BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

FORGET ABOUT YOURSELF. Think of another's burdens and fulfill the law of Christ.—Galatians 6:2.

FOR 1941

Up from the sorrowful stable, bare as desert, the manifold darkness of night in retreat, Rise the lark in his freedom, beating his wings, Tossed in the shaft of the storm, foothold he sings, Foothold he sings in the darkness lifting his sight To a thread stretching silver above him, essence of light; For the thread ever widens to glory, dawning begun: Uprises the lark in his freedom, up to the sun.

—RUTH EVANS

Our Newest Sky Giant

The initial flight of the world's largest bomber was completed last Friday amid cheers over the successful test and signs of relief that the flying monster had been able to get off the ground, sail around the heavens for nearly an hour and come back to earth with no untoward incident to mar the occasion.

Some idea of the difficulties confronting our efforts to build thousands of bombers may be attained by reading the official statement issued by the Chief of the Army Air Corps regarding the huge aircraft.

The statement said: "The Douglas B-19 is a product of twelve years of foresighted and painstaking effort on the part of engineers of the Air Corps and the Douglas Aircraft Company, as well as the aircraft industry generally.

"Actual groundwork for this new airplane was laid in the construction of the old B-9's and the B-10's. The results of the engineering and experiments with those now outmoded bombers led a group of engineers in the material division of the Air Corps to believe that much larger and better airplanes could be built.

"While the B-19 is the culmination of long and intense labor, it is itself a laboratory for the production of both bigger and better airplanes in the future.

"Construction of the giant bomber was begun in 1937 after the Douglas company spent more than $150,000 and three months time of 140 engineers on designs and other preliminary engineering work.

"By the time it was ready for its test flight 500 engineers, 9,000 drawings and 2,000,000 man-hours were involved. The Air Corps had asked for an airplane to surpass all others in range, load and equipment carried.

"First work on the B-19 began in a huge, seven-story 110-ton steel jig. As fitting together of the huge sections progressed, hoisting engineers who moved the steel in the Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco took over. Each movement of pieces was charted in advance to a fraction of an inch.

"Engineers say there is as much area in the tail group of elevator and horizontal stabilizer alone as in the wing of a normal ten-passenger transport.

"The huge fuselage is double-decked. Pilots and others of the normal flight crew of ten are stationed in the top deck, while positions for the bombardier and gunners are placed below.

"A large, soundproof, heated and ventilated bridge deck in the forward and upper end of the fuselage houses the ship's pilot, co-pilot, navigator, radio operator and engineer. The rest of the normal operating crew consists of a chief mechanic and four relief crew members.

"Their accommodations include a galley, ward room and cabin, with sleeping quarters for eight on full-length three-quarter-width berths. If used on an attack mission, the ship would carry extra crew members to man the battle stations.

"Companionways and latches, which run through the airplane, make all parts of the interior accessible, from tail to nose and out into the wings as far as the landing lights. These are located beyond the outboard engines on each side of the ship.

"A loudspeaker system also connects all stations in the plane. Each engine is accessible in flight and is so installed that most minor repairs and adjustments could be made aloft.

"In addition to the four main engines the B-19 carries two auxiliary engines to provide power for the hydraulic systems, electricity for radio and light and to operate all other power-driven mechanisms.

"One of the greatest problems tackled was installation of the various equipment. The two generators develop 15 kilowatts, or as much electricity as is used by the largest Santa Monica department store.

"There also was the radio, consisting of four sending and receiving sets, or nearly as much equipment as is contained in a medium-sized commercial broadcasting station.

"More armament positions were installed, engineers said, than in any three military planes ever built. The telephone system is so elaborate that twenty-four stations were provided.

"A complete oxygen distribution system was installed for high-altitude flying. Its output was designed to sustain the normal ten-man crew for 100 hours at 20,000 feet—well above the range of many anti-aircraft guns.

"Power steering apparatus, virtually unheard of in airplanes when the B-19 first was laid out, had to be developed. The tricycle landing gear is fully retractable."

Prices In The Wind

Trying to keep prices down in wartime is very much like trying to hold down a basket of leaves in a windstorm. Unless you have a cover big enough for the whole basket they tend to get out on one side while you're holding down the other.

Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supplies, has indicated that he believes the possibility of keeping prices under control by voluntary methods is about exhausted. His setting of price ceilings for cotton yarn, pig iron, and some other products has been followed by a threat "to take the pricing of automobiles out of the hands of the industry" and to limit even the dealers' mark-ups and trade-in allowances.

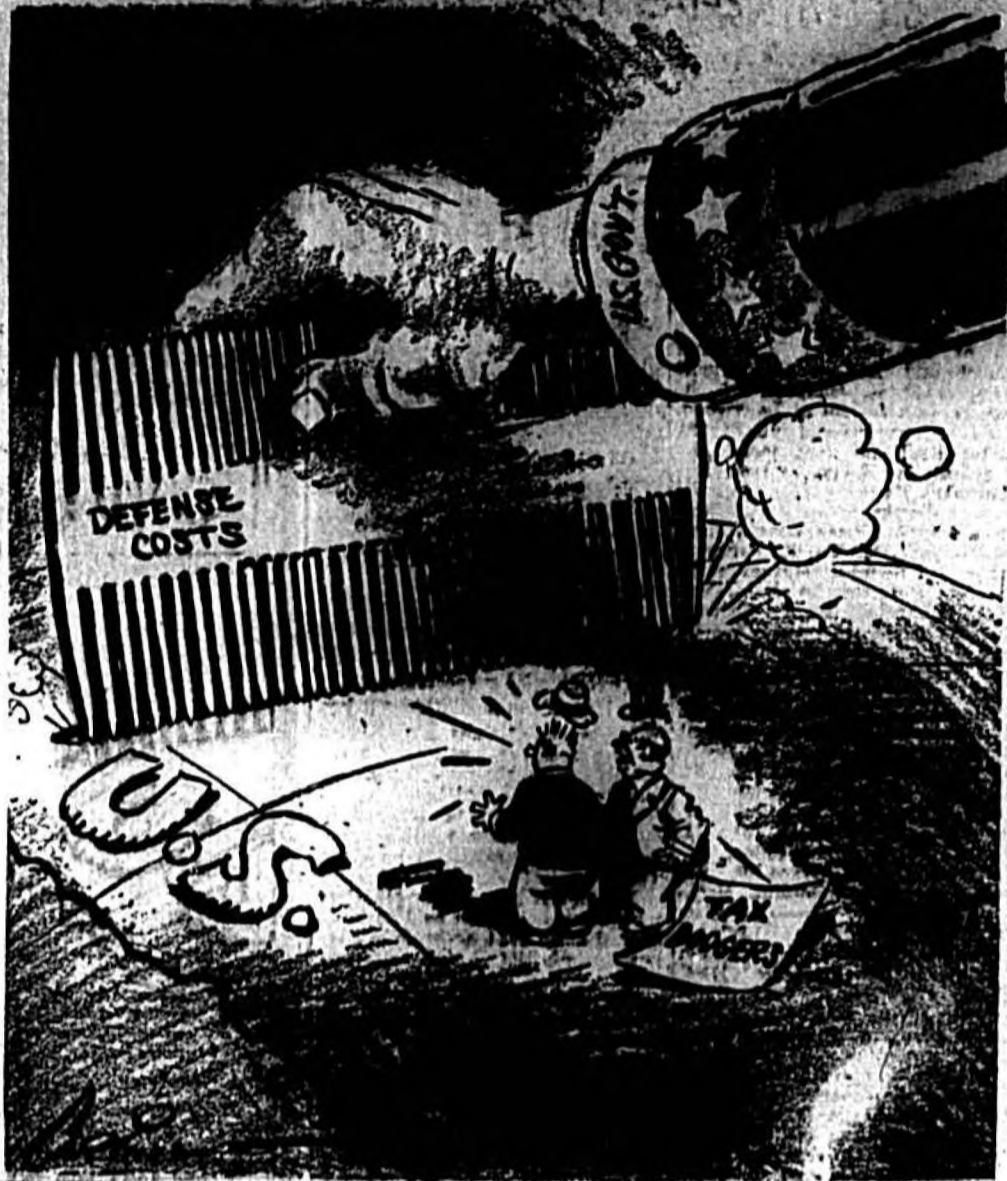

The mention of trade-ins suggests how ramified and difficult the business of price controls becomes. Quotations may be fixed at one point but not at another. The variety of items in a modern merchandise inventory is almost endless. Rationing in one commodity leads to substitution of another. Cost increases may be disguised by reductions in quality or quantity while the price per package or unit remains unchanged.

To be effective, any legislation on the subject—such as is now being contemplated—must be very far-reaching. Some believe that all prices, rents, and wages should have been frozen at the levels prevailing at the beginning of the emergency. But even the most drastic legislation will take an inordinate amount of policing, and become top-heavy in administration if it is not accompanied by economic measures to get at the source of inflation.

The basic difficulty in the present situation is that consumer purchasing power in the United States has been increased rapidly while the supply of goods to meet it has not. Some believe that the supply of goods to meet it has not increased in proportion to the increase in purchasing power. Some believe that the supply of goods to meet it has not increased in proportion to the increase in purchasing power.

Some believe that the supply of goods to meet it has not increased in proportion to the increase in purchasing power. Some believe that the supply of goods to meet it has not increased in proportion to the increase in purchasing power.

Zivic Figures Davis To Be Easy Victim

NEW YORK, June 28—(AP)—Fritzie Zivic insists he isn't going to be too hasty about forming an opinion of the whole United States Army just because he has seen Al (Gall) Mc Bunny Davis.

Welterweight Champion Fritzie draws "Soldier Boy" Bummy as a playmate at the Polo Grounds Tuesday in a 12-round non-title tussle. And he doesn't think it's going to be as much of a job as trying to do the rhumba.

"I know," he told friends Sunday who wanted to know what he thought of the party. "I saw Bummy at the athletic competition Friday when we were camped. After I took one look at him, I went out and bought myself a softer suit. I'm a savvy man from now on.

"He, ah, the army can't be bragging about that little man. I've been around a long time, but the way I figure it, I never had a softer touch than this one. I'm gonna punch his head off easy. He doesn't even look like a fighter.

Naturally, Bummy has got a furlough from Camp Hood in Texas to take this match, it is going to have something to say about this. He's been working like a little soldier at Madam Coy's Samit (N. J.) acreage, and Trainer Ray Archel says he has done very well for this outfit.

What's more, he wants a whole lot of revenge for his last tussle with Fritzie when the referee disqualified Davis in the second round for tossing an assortment of punches south of the legal border.

Bummy doesn't see how he can miss, either. He is planning to give Fritzie no end of an ember

Evils Of War To Be Shortlived, Pope Says

VATICAN CITY, June 28.—(AP)—Pope Pius XII, lamenting the suffering thrust upon the world by the "shortlived evils" of his leaders, said yesterday in a worldwide broadcast that the triumph of evil will last only a short time and "God's hour will come—an hour of joy and liberation."

Once again the pope attacked atheism—an implied attack on Russia—and declared that God "cannot allow the predominance of atheism, injustice to unarmed, peaceful men nor evil."

Contrary to expectations, the pope mentioned no hope of peace in the gloomiest broadcast he has ever made. Most Vatican observers felt that he sought to prepare world opinion for a long, painful war.

Beaverbrook Named Minister Of Supply

LONDON, June 28.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, shuffling his cabinet for the second time in two months to take full advantage of Adolf Hitler's Russian campaign, today appointed Lord Beaverbrook minister of supply, with responsibility for one of the most important posts in the British war machine.

Simultaneously Churchill abolished the post of minister of state, which Lord Beaverbrook was given in the cabinet changes of May 8 and in which "the Beaver" had been called vice prime minister.

Nazi Attack Brings Rise In Securities

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP)—The German attack on Russia and indications pointing toward general price-fixing legislation in his country were the main developments in the over-all business picture last week.

The sudden German attack on the Soviet shocked stock market traders and brought a mild rise in security prices. Enthusiasm was tempered, however, by warnings from experts that any early capitulation of the Soviet, undoubtedly would leave the reich in a stronger position to wage war against Britain.

Germans Capture Polish Town In Push To Ukraine

Special communiques issued by Adolf Hitler's field headquarters were these:

A week extending through Lithuania, part of Latvia and most of the Russian share of Poland, without, however, saying whether all these lands were actually held by the Germans; 40,000 Russians captured; 417 planes destroyed; 2223 tanks destroyed or captured; 1250 armored cars destroyed; "vast quantities" of Russian cars and arms, including 600 heavy guns captured; Two entire Russian armies—estimated by some sources at 400,000 men—surrounded and set off their destruction imminent; Four Soviet destroyers, three submarines and a torpedo boat sunk and the cruiser Maxim Gorky seriously damaged.

The rapid-fire series of German communiques ending a week of vague German stories of "successes" sought to convey the impression that catastrophe is fast befalling the Soviet union.

The Russians disagreed.

Arrayed against the magnitude of these Nazi claims was a Soviet communique which said in general that a stubborn Russian defense was holding up the German military juggernaut at all points and inflicting terrific losses upon it.

On August 16 the forces met at Smolensk, but the Russian immediately pulled out for Moscow. On Sept. 7, 125,000 French met 110,000 Russians on the Moscow road, but Napoleon, subject to threat and oppression, failed to cross his advance after 200,000 Russians and 25,000 French had fallen.

The Russians retreated again. The exhausted French followed them to the Dnieper, and after a seven-hour struggle Napoleon's army was in Tchernobyl and the French were driven into the sea.

But now the French were moved out into a separate unit, totaling 270,000 men, and a battle at Maloyaroslavets in Oct. 24 took heavy toll.

On August 16 the forces met at Smolensk, but the Russian immediately pulled out for Moscow. On Sept. 7, 125,000 French met 110,000 Russians on the Moscow road, but Napoleon, subject to threat and oppression, failed to cross his advance after 200,000 Russians and 25,000 French had fallen.

The Russians retreated again. The exhausted French followed them to the Dnieper, and after a seven-hour struggle Napoleon's army was in Tchernobyl and the French were driven into the sea.

But now the French were moved out into a separate unit, totaling 270,000 men, and a battle at Maloyaroslavets in Oct. 24 took heavy toll.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 28.—(AP)—The temporary White House gave a clear indication Sunday that selection would be kept in military training only a year, then be permitted to reenter private life.

A presidential executive order, signed Saturday and released Sunday, set at 900,000 the number of men who may be inducted into the land forces of the United States in the year starting Tuesday, July 1. This is the maximum permitted under the selective law.

William D. Hassett, the President's secretary informed reporters that the War Department expected to ask the selective system for new inductees "as the training period of men inducted during the current fiscal year expires."

ATLANTA, June 28.—(AP)—The little man, who plans to build his own home, shortly may come into direct contact with defense priorities, Charles F. Palmer, co-ordinator of defense housing, said yesterday.

Discussing plans for restrictions similar but more liberal than those imposed during the World War, Palmer said anticipated acute shortage of building materials in defense areas would require contractors to obtain permits from the housing co-ordinator or his field agents.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(AP)—A lengthy congressional battle reminiscent of tariff-making days appeared to be in the offing yesterday as reports spread that the Administration had decided to seek price-control legislation.

Although bi-partisan support seemed likely to develop for the principle of controlling prices to avoid inflation, disagreement over methods was forecast and some senators predicted that before Congress was through with the question it might find itself writing a bill far more involved even than a tariff measure.

As evidence of Republican support, Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, said he was willing to go along on the enactment of statutory restraints against excessive price boosts in basic commodities.

Don't buy this-- it's NOT advertised

It's a doubtful product. It bears no trade name. It might be any one of the many things you buy or use every day. A refrigerator, perhaps... or a radio... nail polish... chewing gum... kitchen soap... a correspondence course.

But the promoter knows its claims couldn't stand the intense scrutiny of the American buying public. And so he prefers to dispose of it as an unbranded article. That's why you won't find his advertisement here.

How different from the other advertisers in this newspaper! Proudly they tell you of their latest product or service. Eagerly they announce special values, improvements, new features.

These manufacturers and merchants have confidence in what they offer. They realize that while advertising may make the first sale, it's the quality and value of the product that makes the second, third and fourth. And that's why they advertise.
