She told the Herald on March 29 that Kelly was prepared to pay her $1,000 a day plus expenses to come to Washington to "tune in" on Abscam bribe money. Incompetence, Ignorance

By DIANE PETRYK Herald Staff Writer Probably few people think of dental care as a matter of life and death, but they should, according to one local dentist dedicated to promoting good dental health. Dr. Andrew Greenberg, who practices in Sanford, says poor dental hygiene and irresponsible dental care can cut your life short by 10 years.

Cardinal Industries Loses Bid To Build Sanora Townhouses A $300,000 six-unit townhouse development proposed by Cardinal Industries for location in Sanora was turned down by the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission last week. According to Bill Royster, who chaired the meeting, approval of the development was denied because of a definition in the city ordinance saying that "no less than four nor more than eight" units comprises a townhouse. Cardinal is planning to build a total of six units - with two units in each of three townhouses - on six lots.

Paul Jarvis, vice president of Cardinal Industries, said each of the units will be valued at $50,000. He said each of the two units per building, connected by one common wall, contains three bedrooms, two baths and its own separate garage. 1980 FLORIDA LEGISLATURE

Carter's Cuts Pressure State To Save Plans

(Editor's note: The Evening Herald today presents a preview of the 1980 Florida Legislature, which convenes Tuesday in TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — What was supposed to be fine-tuning of the second half of a $16 billion two-year budget is turning into a wholesale rewrite and one of the toughest jobs facing legislators during the 1980 session.

Programs damaged by President Carter's attempts to slash federal spending by $15.4 billion and balance his budget will have to be rescued. No one knows how much Florida will lose, but it will be substantial and mostly education and transportation dollars.

State agencies in the hole because of inflation-triggered increases in operating expenses must get supplemental appropriations. Schools, colleges and universities need another $200 million or so - not including millions in slashed federal funding that must be replaced.

The Department of Transportation needs at least $65 million to finish the biennium without big delays in road-building. And it wants up to $300 million more a year in the next biennium to fully satisfy Florida's transportation needs. DOT's primary income source is the gas tax. Gov. Bol Graham has indicated he still plans to ask the Legislature to increase the eight-cents-a-gallon levy, despite the oil import fee recently imposed by Carter that jacked up already burdensome gas prices 10 cents a gallon. Complicating the budget work is Graham's drive for 100 percent property assessments to make sure every county collects its fair share of taxes. Assessments will go up in most counties and so will taxes unless there is a reduction in the millage or taxing rate. The governor has asked for controls in the budget to force a millage rollback. The state returned to biennial budgeting last year and the Legislature put together a $16 billion plan for 1979-81. There is an automatic off-year budget review, but it's supposed to be for fine-tuning.

This year's budget review was shaping up as a pretty extensive one even before Carter announced his intention to slash federal spending, but not the massive re-write that now ap-suggesting ways to spend $458.2 million of the excess The plan is outdated now because much of the money Graham proposed spending will have to be used to replace federal money cuts. The surplus is turning out to be a Godsend. Because of it, Florida won't be hurt nearly as much by the reduction in federal funds as other states. Graham had planned to make some refinements to his supplemental budget last week, but now says he will wait until Florida knows how much and which federal dollars it will lose. That information won't be available for weeks or even months, depending on how slowly Congress acts on Carter's recom-

"We're having to start at ground zero. We're in a holding pattern," says Senate President Phil Lewis. In his supplemental budget, Graham recommended $198 million for education on top of the $2.4 billion already appropriated for the upcoming fiscal year, exceeding Education

Commissioner Ralph Turlington's $180 million supplemental Graham also asked for $46.5 million for energy conservation grants; $20.6 million in tax relief for renters; $1.9 million to plan two new prisons and $3.8 million to start building a prison already authorized for Volusia County; $49 million to meet a deficit in the Medicaid program providing medical care for the poor; and $52.5 million for additional state employee pay and

Not all of the state's surplus should be spent, the governor says. He wants the working capital reserve fund raised from $372 million to $404 million, the maximum allowed by law, and another $38.4 million also left unappropriated so the state will have $443 million to fall back upon if a recession hits later this year as predicted.

Jones Asks Tough Energy Plan

Rep. Fred Jones wants to drive a stake through the heart of Gov. Bob Graham's energy plan — a $78 million trust fund to encourage energy conservation and penalize those who waste

Jones, D-Auburndale, doesn't mince words. He uses terms like "rinky dink" to describe the plan Graham out forth two months ago as the key to curbing oil consumption 25 percent over the next decade.

Other lawmakers, like House Minority Leader Curt Kiser, are less vocal. But they are just as unhappy with the trust fund approach to raise $78 million through increased taxes and fees and give it away in residential and business grants. The opposition sets the stage for a prolonged battle in the Legislature this spring over how Florida — growing by some 3 percent a year - is going to cut its dependency on the oil that provides 70 percent of its energy. "We've got a long, long way to go," concedes House Energy Chairman Frank Mann. "The big bone of contention is going to be the residential grant program, I'm afraid." The program allows for homeowners to receive 25 percent up to $500 toward the cost of insulation, weather stripping and other energy saving devices that can be added to homes. Businesses can qualify for up to $20,000. The Graham administration pegs the total cost of the grant program at some $54 million and projects a savings equal to 3.75 million barrels of oil annually. An additional 7 million barrels can be saved from home energy audits, tougher wilding standards and increased reliance on van pools and solar water heaters, the governor says. The grant money would come from higher fines on speeders

Florida Gov. Bob Graham (above) addresses a joint opening session of the Florida Legislature at 10 a.m. Tuesday. The 1980 session will include issues such as tax reform, energy, consumer protection, banking, transportation and in-exceeding 55 mph, and from a 2 percent additional sales tax levy on gas guzzling cars. Additional money would be raised by hiking oil and gas transfer and severence taxes. Jones and other detractors are critical of the trust fund concept because they feel a monstrous bureaucracy will be needed to coordinate and administer the grants. "It sounds like something right out of Washington, D.C. friend," says Jones in his best country voice. "I have no confidence in a government program of that caliber." He says he's prepared to offer at least one alternative that will save nearly as much energy and won't cost the taxpayers The state accumulated a $500 million surplus over the last His idea is to give Tampa Electric Co. the freedom to burn year because of a healthier than expected economy and coal instead of oil. He said air quality standards can be Graham released a supplemental budget six weeks ago, maintained at near present levels, the changeover would save 2.5 million barrels of oil a year, and TECO customers would "Something like that is better than some rinky-dink business that's going to cost more than it's worth," he maintains. But Sen. Dick Anderson, DMiami, who is handling the Graham trust fund package in the Senate, says even if the governor's program isn't flawless, it's the best way for Florida to reduce its dependence on oil. "We're into a serious matter. We use too much oil. If we don't prepare for (shortages), we're going to be in trouble," he In the House, Mann says floor debate on the package and 17 other energy bills that have passed his committee, will begin sometime during the first week of the session.

Anderson is unsure when the Senate will tackle the subject. Besides the governor's plan, other energy proposals up for consideration this session include: -Rep. Tom Gustafson's committee bill requiring that 1987 gasohol — a mixture of 10 percent alcohol and 90 percent gas — be the only motor fuel sold in Florida. -House and Senate bills seeking to outlaw radardetection devices, commonly known as "fuzzbusters." -Tax breaks for producers of gasohol, and those who man facturer equipment for the synthetic fuel.

Florida uses to determine whether regulatory laws are serving although a fund-raising dinner for him in Lakeland Saturday the public interest. Also up for review this spring are the Public Service Commission and the state banking codes. In every case, save the lawyers, the Legislature must act to retain or modify existing laws to prevent the statutes from fading out of existence on July 1. Rep. George Sheldon, DTampa, thinks sunset is just fine when it comes to trucking. Sheldon, chairman of the House Regulatory Reform Committee, believes regulation stifles competition, wastes energy and costs people money when they go to the store for paint and other consumer goods. The Senate Commerce Committee - and the trucking industry - sees things differently. The committee two weeks ago voted to retain and even strengthen the trucking codes — a position Chairman W.D. Childers, D-Pensacola, admits is mostly for bargaining as the session moves along. "Personally, I feel that changes are going to be made in trucking. I expect them to be made," he said. "But in order to wind up with an acceptable regulatory reform bill, the Senate position is going to have to be rather firm." One set of provisions ripe for modification, however, are the strict regulations prohibiting what drivers can carry. Charles Ranson, House Regulatory Reform staff director, says the rules frequently mean truckers making a run from Jacksonville to Miami must return empty. This translates into 15 million gallons of wasted diesel fuel and 51 million unproductive miles on the highways annually, While lawmakers must act to continue trucking regulation, attorneys are a different story. The legal community doesn't want the Legislature meddling and lumping it in with doctors, accountants and other professions whose licensing and discipline is handled by the DPR. Among those lobbying against any changes are state

"The question is," says Ranson, "should the Bar be treated any differently than any other profession." Currently the House has no bill, but Sen. Tom Tobiassen, D-Pensacola, has filed a measure (SB 180) which would bring the lawyers under DPR jurisdiction. Its future, however, is un-

The bill provides the mechanics for investigation by the state Human Relations Commission of complaints of victims male or female — of sexual harrassment on the job. A proposal to require teachers to give equal time in the classroom to the theory of creation provides a brand new issue for Florida legislators.

The bill to make the schools teach the theory of creation along with the theory of evolution passed one test vote, slipping by the House K-11 Education Committee by a onevote margin. But strong opposition is building, led by the Civil Liberties Union, Florida School Board Assdociation and teacher unions. Holes In The Screen

Given the violently anti-American tenor of the Iranian revolution, one might assume that the Carter administration would be vigilantly on guard against the possibility of Iranian terrorists infiltrating into the United States. The FBI has specifically warned both the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service of just such a terrorist threat.

Indeed, President Carter himself assured the nation during his press conference recently that Iranians entering the United States were "screened very closely."

Incredibly, a United Press International investigation found just the opposite to be the case. According to UPI, immigration agents are admitting just about any Iranian who can produce a seemingly valid entry visa, despite the fact that the U.S. Embassy in Tehran where such visas are normally issued is controlled by gun-toting terrorists holding the embassy staff hostage. UPI quotes several frustrated immigration inspectors as saying they are operating under State Department and INS policy to avoid any "incident" that might anger the terrorists holding

Prince Charles Enters Hospital After Polo Game

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) - Great Britain's Prince Charles was admitted to Good Samaritan Hospital for heat exhaustion Friday after completing a polo match in 90-degree temperatures. Onlookers said the prince appeared to be exhausted as he left the field after the afternoon match, but he reportedly was not taken to the hospital until 8 p.m., several hours later.

A spokesman at the hospital said the prince was in fair condition, and he was reported in good spirits shortly after he arrived.

Utilities To Collect Fee

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) - Public Counsel Jack Shreve has agreed to let big power companies collect fuel adjustment charges totaling $432 million while he fights the legality of the charges in court. The Public Service Commission Friday cut $50 million from the initial fuel adjustment package. In response, Shreve agreed to modify the suit he has filed in the Florida Supreme Court so the amended plan can fourth year with the Montreal Expos' organization this spring.

Several years ago Cincinnati's Joe Morgan was acknowledged as the best and most exciting performer in major league baseball. He combined speed, power and good fielding ability to spearhead the Reds' annual pennant drives. Morgan has aged since then, and is now playing out his remaining years with the Houston Astros.

As one superstar fades in baseball, a new one usually emerges to take his place. Sanford's 20-year-old Tim Raines may be that emerging star. Raines, who is property of the Montreal Expos, matches up with Morgan very well physically and emotionally. Both are

Sanford's Walt Law banged out four hits and made wo great plays defensively to pace the Fighting Seminoles to their fourth straight victory, 5-4 at Winter

"That was Walt Law's best game ever," a delighted stop's performance. The victory moved the Seminole slate to 5-18, but 10 previous wins had to be forfeited. After spotting Winter Park two runs in the first inning, senior right hander George Porzig settled down to limit the Wildcats to only five hits.

"We misplayed two fly balls that gave them the first two runs and George was a little wild," said Lundquist. 'But Porzig pitched real well."

Down 2-0, the Seminoles rebounded in the first inning when Law stroked his first hit into right field scoring Bobby Wells. Wells reached base on an error by the shortstop and moved up when the third baseman messed up Mike Link's ground ball.

The Tribe tied things in the third, when after two outs Porzig followed up singles by Link and Law with one of Several weeks ago I was visiting my friend, Martha, and saw her do something really unique. Since I had never thought of pins, a child can use his it, and had never seen it in your column, I thought I would send it imagination and decide if he's a new tube of lipstick in an original shade. She let the tube stand until it hardened. I went home and tried it and it worked for me too. A really good way to save a few pennies here and there.

JESSICA WAXES CLEVER DEAR HELOISE:

I have been saving up your columns in the Sunday I was looking through them to find something to do and found how to make place mats with your favorite comic strips using clear adhesive-backed plastic.

My mother suggested using two pieces of waxed paper since we didn't have any plastic. I cut the two pieces of waxed paper about a half inch larger than the comic and then pressed them with a warm iron (under Mom's supervision). It works just as good as the other way, only better.

DEAR HELOISE: Though I'm only 12 I think this is a good suggestion for your readers. I was making TV dinners the other night and it said to uncover the meat and dessert, so I tried to uncover it by ripping but that didn't work. I then took a dinner knife and looked for the food that I was to uncover (which the package usually has a picture of) and cut around the food. Using my knife blade I lifted up the foil and presto!

This way you don't upset the rest of the food.
