Outspoken commissioner to run for mayor

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Lon Howell, an ardent critic of city government who has served two terms on the Sanford City Commission, now wants to be mayor.

Howell joins seven other candidates who have thrown their hats into the ring to replace Mayor Bettye Smith who will not seek re-election.

Commissioner Bob Thomas, former commissioner A.A. McClanahan, Larry Blair, Larry Dale, Dean Ray, Vernon Spears and Lynda Donato have either opened campaign accounts or have publicly announced their intention to enter the race.

Qualifying for the race officially gets under way on Wednesday, Sept. 4 and runs through noon on Friday, Oct. 29.

Howell has been a strong proponent for the need for improvements in building codes, especially in the downtown historic district, he said. He said he continues the fight to strengthen the historic district's viability through codes regulating the repair and new construction in the area.

Howell has been a staunch critic of a commission and city officials he says only pacify the public and do not act to make needed changes.

"I think the city manager and city attorney have too much power. I want to restore some of that decision-making power to the commission and make department heads accountable." Howell would like to see the city run more efficiently financially, as businesses run.

The commissioner, 50, has fought to clean up the city and to reduce crime. He spearheaded the effort to get the historic district zoning changed from multi-family to single family, a move many

Business expands, city pays

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — Community Development Director Charles Rowe is concerned about the Economic Incentive Program administered by the city. "With the number of applications we have been getting, it could potentially overtax our coffers," he said.

Meanwhile, requests for assistance continue to be received. City Manager Bill Simmons indicated as far back as last month that he already had two in hand. One is from Mobilite, a manufacturing company. Seminole County Tuesday approved a $125,000 Economic Incentive package for Mobilite. Simmons said the request to the city was apparently for $250,000. "I don't see how we could afford that much," he said.

Mobilite, presently located on E. Lake Mary Blvd. has proposed a massive building expansion, which includes the promise of hiring possibly 150 more employees.

Another company, Florida Extruders, has also reportedly applied for $250,000 from the city. "Those two together are a half million dollars," Simmons told the commission. "There is just no way we can get involved in that."

Meantime, a third application, from TransAir, located at the Orlando/Sanford Airport, has also been received, but it is in the preliminary stages of development, and no financial amount has been formally requested.

Neither of the two requests for Economic Incentive money from the city has been officially brought up for discussion during any of the city commission work sessions, although Simmons indicated they would be presented soon, possibly by the Sept. 16 work session.

Rowe's report was presented during the Sanford City Commission work session Monday afternoon. "I would suggest we consider looking

SANFORD — Full details have now been revealed regarding a massive drug crackdown this past Thursday, Friday and Saturday, by members of the sheriff's department City/County Investigative Bureau (CCIB). A number of arrests were made, warrants served, and search warrants executed. In connection with a major crackdown, the drive was to eliminate what was called the "Rebecca East Cocaine Distribution Organization," which was reportedly responsible for a conspiracy to traffic over 400 grams of cocaine. Three of the members of the Charter school plan gets lukewarm reception from board

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — After a four hour workshop on the intricacies of charter schools given by the Florida School Boards Association (FSBA), the Seminole County School Board was not prepared to offer words of encouragement to a group which has proposed the districts first charter schools.

Florida Charter Schools, Inc., led by president Don McCammon, has filed an application with the school board to convert the new Winter Park High School into a group of charter high schools with four separate campuses, each with its own principal and staff.

The board will have two months in which to make a final decision on the application, but their initial reaction echoed their reaction during the workshop to using public school facilities for charter schools.

School board chairman Sandy Robinson said her initial reaction to the application is that it should be denied. She noted that the board will consider the full application carefully, however, before making a final decision.

Board members expressed a concern that the county is growing too rapidly for the county to be able to accommodate the public school students. Turning facilities over to other entities would endanger the

Citicorp settles suit

PUNTA GORDA — Thousands of property owners who went to court complaining of broken promises by developers of Rotunda have settled a suit against Citicorp for $37 million.

"More than 2,000 live there now, but a lot more people own dirt," property owners attorney Ervin Gonzalez of Miami said Tuesday.

"For years people were waiting for their community and never got it. A lot of people from all over the country bought property for retirement and all they had was a field of weeds," he said.

Gonzalez estimated the class action claim covered 40,000 to 50,000 people who could receive up to $500 compensation apiece.

The huge 20,000 acre development opened 25 years ago with much fanfare and a host of super star events. And since the early 1970s legal actions have plagued the community.

Property owners invested based on promises they said were not kept. Utilities weren't in place, golf courses weren't developed as planned and roads weren't maintained or even built, Gonzalez said.

The two-year-old was settled Friday, Gonzalez said. Brian Spector of Miami, who represented Citicorp which was a former Rotunda developer, could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Ocoee sued by peddlers

OCOEE — Two women are suing this Central Florida community in federal court alleging that a city ordinance prohibiting door-to-door soliciting or canvassing without a permit is unconstitutional.

Pamela Sue Jones visits households to share her Christian faith and offer free religious literature, and Marcia Muller is a political activist who distributes voter information door-to-door.

The law in this Orlando suburb regulates peddlers, solicitors and canvassers and requires them to obtain a written permit from the chief of police. The chief is to determine whether the applicant is a "person of good moral character" before issuing a permit.

Ocoee's ordinance violates free speech principles, Orlando lawyer Matthew D. Staver said after filing the suit Tuesday.

"Our liberties are in danger if we have to depend on the good graces of a government official before we can discuss ideas with each other," Staver said.

City officials would not comment.

72-year old ship pilot won't retire

TAMPA — A tugboat company, concerned about safety, told the Tampa Bay Pilots Association it won't send out tugs again to guide vessels piloted by veteran Harry Williams.

State regulators charged Williams last week with negligence in a July 23 shipping accident. The 72-year-old pilot was accused of going too fast to make a turn. One tug went aground and another plowed into it.

It was the fourth time in three years charges were brought against Williams. There were no injuries or major property damage from the accidents.

Last summer, the Tampa Bay Pilots Association asked Williams to take a physical exam after he fell 15 feet into the Gulf of Mexico while trying to climb a ladder up the side of a freighter. Williams passed the exam.

However, Capt. Stephen Cropper, the local pilot's group president, said some pilots are asking if he is able to handle the demanding job.

Williams is contesting the charges and has said he doesn't plan to retire, said his lawyer, Brooks Hoyt.

The state and federal government have no mandatory retirement age for harbor pilots. But rules are not unprecedented. Airline pilots must retire at 60 under Federal Aviation Administration rules.

The local pilot group may ask members to vote on a retirement age of 65 or 66, Cropper said.

RED HORSE deployed to Saudi Arabia

HURLBURT FIELD, Fla. (AP) — Neither the freezing muck of Bosnia last winter nor the broiling sands of Saudi Arabia this summer have stopped the Air Force's tent-city builders.

More than 200 members of the 823rd Rapid Deployable Heavy Operational Repair Squadron Engineer, better known as RED HORSE, were deployed from this Florida Panhandle base to Saudi Arabia on Aug. 6.

They are among 1,200 engineers, military police and air traffic controllers building Prince Sultan Air Base, 50 miles south of Riyadh, from the sand up.

It is a remote desert refuge from terrorist attacks for 4,000 U.S. troops who will move from the northern city of Dhahran. That's where a truck bomb on June 25 killed 19 airmen. A dozen of the dead were from Eglin Air Force Base adjacent to Hurlburt; six were from Patrick Air Force Base on Florida's east coast.

Kids survey gets response from 46 percent of the candidates

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Not quite half the state's legislative candidates responded to a survey from the Florida Children's Campaign, but advocates said they were very pleased with the answers they got.

"I am ecstatic," campaign director Roy Miller said Tuesday.

"This is the first attempt to get candidates on record regarding their perception of kids and what can be done to solve the problems," said Jack Levine, executive director of the Florida Center for Children and Youth.

Levine said he had hoped to get responses from a third of the candidates. Unlike political action committees, the Florida Children's Campaign can't reward candidates with endorsements or donations.

But 46 percent of the candidates — 100 people — responded.

Florida ranks 48th among the 50 states in the latest comparison of the well-being of children.

Only children in Mississippi and Louisiana are worse off than Florida children on 10 different measures ranging from infant mortality to the percentage of teen-agers who aren't in school or working, according to an annual report issued in June by a private charitable foundation.

The Children's Campaign, a non-partisan group, sent out surveys in early August to the 218 men and women running for the Legislature.

The first question was whether the candidate agrees Florida's ranking is a serious problem and that all Floridians should work to improve the quality of life of children.

Athlete arrested for buck making

By The Associated Press

SATELLITE BEACH — A dollar bill with the back printed upside down led to the arrest of a high school athlete accused of using his computer to make counterfeit money and fake drivers licenses.

Billy Beeley, 17, a starting linebacker at Satellite High School, also is suspected of ripping off America Online computer users, police said Tuesday.

He was charged with six felony counts related to the licenses and money. Police confiscated seven or eight fake $1, $5 and $10 bills.

He has not been charged yet in the America Online scheme, in which police think he tricked users of the service into giving up their passwords and account information.

Beeley, who was released to his parents after his arrest last week, has been suspended from school and may be expelled, said Brenda Blackburn, a Brevard County school official.

Police said Beeley told them he made the phony money as a joke.

The suspect's father, Bill Beeley, said Tuesday police are overreacting by "killing a mosquito with an ax."

Judge orders more time off for state workers

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A judge's order granting more than 100,000 state workers additional vacation time could cost the state more than $100 million and has state officials scrambling to figure out their options.

Last week's Leon County Circuit Court ruling stems from a legal battle between three employee unions and the state over Florida's 1988 decision to reduce annual leave and increase sick leave — in conflict with terms negotiated through collective bargaining.

Circuit Judge Phil Padovano ruled Florida must give the state workers additional annual leave going back to that year, and must compensate former state workers who have left since 1988.

And the state must come up with a plan for doing so in 90 days.

State officials say just figuring out who should get what benefits could cost as much as $40 million, in addition to the tens of millions of dollars and vacation hours the state would have to pay workers and former workers.

"If we want to shut down about half of the government to comply, we could do it," said Dexter Douglass, the governor's general counsel. "We obviously don't have the funds. They'd have to be appropriated by the Legislature."

The three unions are declaring victory for their members, who include Florida Highway Patrol troopers, corrections workers, probation officers, secretaries, janitors, doctors and nurses.

Union officials estimate the average employee who has worked since 1988 would get 200 to 400 additional annual leave hours, or five to 10 weeks, under the ruling. Former workers could get thousands of dollars each.

"It's a victory for collective bargaining," said Ben Patterson, general counsel for the 80,000 state workers represented by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Douglass said his lawyers do not know what they will do next. He would like to appeal the ruling, but it is unclear what the state can do at this point.

Ronald Lane Heiderman, 44, of 2088 Shady Lane, Geneva, was arrested by sheriff's deputies shortly after 1 a.m. Tuesday. Officers said they saw him on a bike in a driveway in the 100 block of Vihlen Road between Ravenna Park and Idylwild. The two areas had been the point of a crime alert issued Monday, regarding two residential break-ins where a man was reportedly found inside the residences where there were children, and one attempted break-in. The arresting deputy said Heiderman matched the description of the person being sought, but no direct connection was immediately made. Pending a further investigation, he was taken into custody on a charge of loitering/prowl.

Attempted auto theft

Carlos Lamont Wilson, 18, of 101 Willow Avenue, Sanford, and two other persons, were reportedly seen by witnesses trying to enter a 1977 Chevrolet Friday in the 700 block of E. First Street. They reportedly left on bikes. Sanford police gave chase and located Wilson in the 300 block of Cypress Avenue. The other two reportedly managed to escape. Wilson was charged with burglary to a conveyance, attempted grand theft auto, and possession of burglary tools.

Domestic case

Daniel S. Reese, 41, of DeBary, was arrested by Sanford police Sunday at Second Street and Lee Avenue following a reported altercation with his son in a vehicle. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Stolen and recovered vehicles

• A Sanford man in Carriage Cove reported he had loaned his 1979 automobile to a man on July 13. He said the vehicle had not been returned. On Aug. 20, it was found that the vehicle had been located in Sandusky, Ohio.

• A 1985 Volkswagen, reported stolen in Longwood, was recovered Monday by Sanford police parked in the 3800 block of S. Orlando Drive.

Armed robberies

• A couple in a home in the 2500 block of Park Avenue told Sanford police two persons, one with a handgun, forced their way into their home early Tuesday morning. They said one fired a gun through a doorway, striking the man in the right side. The two were said to have fled from the home on foot.

• A 35-year-old man told police he was shot in the chest by a person heading north on Bay Avenue near Ninth Street early Tuesday. He said the shot apparently came from inside a small dark colored vehicle. The man was transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center for treatment of his wound.

Sanford police reports

• Various items with a total value of $399 were reported stolen Monday from a business in the 3600 block of S. Orlando Drive.

• An estimated $360 in wrenches and a lawn mower were reported stolen Monday from a work truck parked in the 1700 block of Palmetto Avenue in Sanford.

Fines levied in price-fixing case

By MICHAEL J. STEPPEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Three foreign-owned companies and three executives agreed Tuesday to pay more than $20 million in fines for scheming to raise world prices for an animal feed additive. They have begun cooperating with investigators targeting a giant American farm products company, Archer Daniels Midland.

Five defendants agreed to plead guilty and one agreed to plead no contest to the first charges brought in the Justice Department's investigation of international price-fixing in the food and feed additive business. In this case, they conspired to fix prices and divide up worldwide sales for the additive lysine, an amino acid used to foster growth in swine and poultry and a $900 million industry in itself.

No charges were filed against Archer Daniels Midland. But the government said its investigation was continuing against companies it would not name.

ADM learned of the federal probe last summer, when agents raided company headquarters in Decatur, Ill. Company executives soon learned that ADM vice president Mark Whitacre had worked for more than two years as an undercover mole, helping the FBI tape meetings between ADM executives and officials of other companies.

Two Japanese companies charged Tuesday and ADM already have agreed to pay millions of dollars to settle private lawsuits alleging lysine price-fixing.

Prosecutors have told two top ADM executives they will face criminal indictments in the lysine case next month, according to published reports. Those officials are ADM vice president Michael Andreas, son of ADM chairman Dwayne Andreas, and Terrence Wilson, head of the company's grain milling division.

Deputy Assistant Attorney General Gary R. Spratling, head of the antitrust division's criminal enforcement, said, "All of the corporate and individual defendants already have begun to cooperate with the government's ongoing investigation."

A criminal felony case was filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago on Tuesday charging that the six defendants conspired among themselves and with unnamed others to suppress and eliminate competition in the lysine market from June 1982 through June 27, 1986.

Those charged were:

—Ajinomoto Co. Inc. of Tokyo and its former general manager of the feed additive division, Kanji Mimoto. Mimoto lives in Japan. Ajinomoto is the only defendant pleading no contest.

—Kyowa Hakko Kogyo Co. Ltd. of Tokyo and its former general manager of the agricultural products department, Masaru Yamamoto. Yamamoto lives in Japan.

—Sewon America Inc., located in Paramus, N.J., and its president, Jhon Su Kim. Sewon America is a subsidiary of Sewon Company Ltd. of Seoul, South Korea. Kim is from Korea and lives in New Jersey.

If a federal judge accepts the plea agreements as expected, Ajinomoto and Kyowa Hakko will pay the maximum fine of $10 million each and Sewon America will pay a fine as large as the court deems it can reasonably afford.

Mimoto and Kim would each pay a $75,000 fine and Yamamoto would pay a $60,000 fine.

The government charged that the defendants and their unidentified co-conspirators:

—Discussed prices and volumes of lysine sold in the United States and elsewhere.

—Agreed to increase prices of lysine.

—Allocated the volume of

GM's electric car will be leased at first

By BRIAN S. AKNE
AP Auto Writer

MILFORD, Mich. — General Motors Corp. initially will lease but not sell its sleek, two-seat electric car, part of a strategy to develop a mass market for the vehicles.

The EV1 coupe will appear at Saturn dealerships in Southern California and Arizona in the fall.

The EV1 will be available only through a three-year lease, as will the garage terminals needed to recharge it. The car lease is expected to cost around $35,000, GM officials said at a briefing Tuesday at the GM Proving Grounds.

The lease-only policy is part of GM's strategy to develop a mass market for electric cars as a pollution-free alternative for short commutes in urban areas. By leasing, buyers will not have to worry about resale value in a market that does not yet exist, or being stuck with an obsolete car if the technology continues to improve.

Saturn spokesman Bob Tripolsky said monthly lease payments will range between $400 and $600, with the variation due to the availability of federal, state and local tax credits in different areas.

The automaker has not yet determined the price to lease the garage terminals.

The EV1 initially will be available only in the metropolitan areas of Los Angeles, San Diego, Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz. GM will discourage anyone outside those areas from buying the car and using it where service is unavailable.

Battle still brews over courthouse

Two races for Seminole County Commission, those for districts 1 and 5 have multiple candidates. Dist. 1 has three Republicans facing one Democrat. Dist. 5 has four Republicans and one Democrat. Therefore, neither of the races will be completely decided until the November general election.

In preparing for the Republican primary however, various members of the Sanford Herald editorial staff conducted personal interviews with the Republican candidates.

One question asked of each of the candidates, (unless they brought it up on their own), pertained to whether or not the Seminole County courthouse should remain in downtown Sanford or be moved to the Five Point location as proposed this past year.

It was quite a battle. Several of the county commissioners came out totally in favor of moving at least the court departments of the county function to Five Points.

Of course, with that, would have come a move of attorneys, bail bondsmen, secretaries, clerks and many others, who are all a vital part of our court system.

It would have left some of the county functions in downtown Sanford. These might include tax offices, property appraiser offices, and a few others. But most of the personnel would have left downtown. And with this could have come a disastrous drop in the economy of the downtown area.

It's not a done deal. No contracts have been signed. No advance work has been agreed upon toward determining how the downtown courthouse expansion might be accomplished.

Plans have included building over the present courthouse parking lot on Seminole Boulevard, taking over property to the west and southwest up to the banking areas, and even buying the Sanford City Hall.

Nothing is in concrete. Therefore, a new move to transfer the court activities to Five Points could be brought up once again. It may depend on who gets elected to serve for the next four years on the commission.

If sufficient votes can be obtained, the few who have been pressing for this move (for a reason which remains hidden), might be able to muster enough strength to not only bring the plan back, but approve it once again.

During the Sanford Herald interviews, each candidate, including the incumbents, stated, unequivocally, that they preferred to keep the courthouse in the downtown Sanford area.

It is going to be interesting to see if any further attempts at a move are made after the elections have ended and newcomers (if any) are seated.

This next year, politically speaking, is going to be extremely interesting. We can't wait to see who on the commission will cast their votes in favor of what decisions, and who is to benefit from such a vote.

Thanks

My administrative aide, Diane Merkt, has advised me that Herald correspondent Herman Schroeder delivered an original September 1991 newspaper clipping which includes a photograph of me addressing the Lake Mary Optimist Club. If I understand correctly, Herman had this article in his archival file and thought I should have it for my scrapbook.

This is most kind. I am so appreciative of this thoughtfulness, and I am delighted to find a picture of me in which I look so young!

I applaud Mr. Schroeder's involvement with both the newspaper and the R.S.V.P. Program. As a regular reader of the Sanford Herald, I have seen many of his photographs over the past years. His photographic efforts have enhanced the value of the Sanford Herald. In addition, his assistance at our County Services Building information desk has not gone unnoticed. He continues to provide a very valuable service.

Thanks to Mr. Schroeder for sharing time and talents to the benefit of the citizens of Seminole County.

Louis Farrakhan's big mistake

Minister Louis Farrakhan has been increasingly irritated at charges that he -- of all people -- has been covering up the enslavement of blacks by the Islamic government of Sudan. During one interview with a reporter, his incandescent smile suddenly vanished as the subject came up, and he exploded.

Finally, on May 14, speaking at the National Press Club in Washington, Farrakhan angrily presented the press with a challenge:

"Where is the proof? If slavery exists, why don't you go as a member of the press, and you will look inside Sudan, and if you find it, then you come back and tell the American people what you have found."

Accepting the challenge, the Baltimore Sun sent two reporters to Sudan -- Gilbert Lewthwaite, white, a foreign correspondent, and Gregory Kane, black, a columnist for the Sun.

John Carroll, editor of the paper, explained that their assignment was "to see if they could buy slaves. By this admittedly controversial means, we believed we could prove beyond a doubt that chattel slavery does exist in the Sudan, despite the denials of the Islamic fundamentalist government and its supporters."

Lewthwaite and Kane found clear evidence of slave raids on blacks in the south of Sudan -- as has been abundantly documented by various human rights organizations -- and they did actually buy two slaves, whom they immediately returned to their families. The price was $500 each.

Starting on June 16, the Sun ran three front-page stories by Lewthwaite and Kane on their investigation, with powerful photographs. Minister Farrakhan's first response -- as reported in his newspaper, the Final Call -- was that "the Baltimore Sun is not a news source I should accept as gospel."

Farrakhan also said that he had met in Sudan with Dr. John Garang, leader of the Sudanese People's Liberation Army, a rebel force opposing the Islamic government. "Not once," said Farrakhan, "did Mr. Garang mention slavery as an issue of conflict with the government of the North."

Yet an official of Garang's liberation movement sent me a statement by Commander-in-Chief Garang charging that the Islamic government army and its paramilitary auxiliary militias use slavery "to destroy the African/non-Moslem dimension of Sudanese identity."

During a brief recent visit to the United States, Dr. Garang said the same thing in a meeting with the editorial board of the Baltimore Sun. One result of this intensified focus on blacks in captivity has been an offer by the Sudanese government to permit international monitors to take a look. But Jemera Rone of Human Rights Watch/Africa points out: "There's going to be a herd of government escorts anywhere you go, so no one in their right mind is going to talk to you."

Farrakhan, now that his challenge to the press has backfired, proposes that a team of Muslim and Christian leaders and journalists go to Sudan to "verify" all these reports.

Maybe Jesse Jackson could be asked to come on board. His silence, all along, on slavery in Sudan might make him an objective observer. He could even buy a slave.

There was no answer, but I thought he looked worried.

Dennis makes a gown of himself

Now that Dennis Rodman has unveiled his alter ego, what's next? How long before the honeymoon is over?

Taking a vow that he had to sell more copies of his book, the queen of the basket ball showed up in a bridal gown at a New York book-signing last week.

And did he ever go to the point. Word is RuPaul was offended. Some innocent bystanders thought it was RuPaul.

If anyone should have been offended it would be David Letterman. Rodman was on Letterman's TV show the night before and said he was getting married the next afternoon at Rockefeller Plaza.

Silly, but Dave believed him. It was just a lot of Chicago Bull, of course it was.

Rodman had dragged Dave down the aisle. Oh, Dennis, you dysfunctional menace, penned newspaper columnist George Diaz, naming Rodman his "Pinhead of the Week."

What a shameless way to sell a "tasteless book!"

The real shame is that J. Edgar Hoover isn't alive to give Dennis an assist or get pumped up with him. J., which some insist stood for Jennifer, was man and woman enough to also wear net stockings. No one ever knew for sure if Jennifer Edgar's seams were straight or for that matter if he were straight.

J. Edgar's FBI, known in inner circles as the Female Bureau of Impersonation, would have been on the Rodman case like a gingham gown.

"Let's get on this one, girls." Reactions of Rodman's teammates has been mixed.

Some were miffed they weren't invited to the shower. One said he hated it when Dennis left the lid off his mascara.

Coach Phil Jackson called a 20-second timeout to adjust Rodman's bra strap.

Nick Pfeiauf, the only writer at the Sanford Herald who has been to stand-up comic school, addressed the latest Rodman saga this way: "He no doubt had to bridal his feelings about being rejected in the literary world."

Doris Dietrich, this paper's senior editor, said, "Quite frankly my dear, I don't give a Scam...but he looks better as a bride than he does groomed."

Just keep your skirt down, Dennis.

Paying homage to foremothers

BOSTON—Each year, I celebrate the anniversary of the passage of women's suffrage by paying homage to my foremothers. During the week of Aug. 26, I dispense what have come to be known as the Equal Rites Awards. This is a highly competitive set of honors that are given to those who have struggled the most over the past 12 months to set back the progress of women.

For a time I wondered if there would be enough contestants. After all, this was the year when every mass media production from the Olympics to the Republican National Convention was wooing women.

Nevertheless, when our one-woman jury sat down to the task, there was an overwhelming number of truly qualified entrants. So, without further ado, the envelopes please.

Our longest-running prize is the Raging Hormonal Imbalance Award. This year it goes to Pete Smith of Bowling Green, Ind., who went berserk during labor: his wife's labor. In the delivery room, Papa Pete not only tried to veto her request for painkillers, but threatened her doctor and told police that it was his right as a father to mix her Rx. We send Pete a "special delivery" embroidered copy of Every grandmother's favorite curse: One Man Should Have One Baby.

While we are on the subject of fatherhood, the Deadbeat Dad Cup had so many contenders that we held a runoff. It was almost won by baseball's Darryl Strawberry, who owed $300,000 to his two kids. But how could we resist San Diego's Jim Harnsberger. Jim's winning edge?

The man, who was married five times and owed $18,000 to the child of his third marriage, is none other than the director of the Center for Family Values.

Family values? The Battle of the Sexes T-Shirt goes to Charlie Sheen, erstwhile client of Heidi Fleiss, who explained the end of his six-month marriage this way: "You buy a car, it breaks down. What are you going to do?"

Well, at least the ex-Mrs. Sheen wasn't a Mitsubishi. In that company's Illinois plant, the women who complained about sexual harassment--plastic penises in their work buckets, hurried epithets, air guns shot between their legs--were accused of insufficient "wa," the Japanese term for living in harmony. For this lesson in male bonding and female bondage, we send Mitsubishi the first Transnational Backlash Award.

Speaking of bondage and more discipline, the Battered Woman's Shelter

The Deadbeat Dad Cup had so many contenders that we held a runoff.

Citation goes to those California folks who held an anti-violence fund-raiser in O.J. Simpson's house. Swell pick. We offer them a certain 911 soundtrack as background music for their next event.

Now for the Blind Justice Award. This pin, suitable for so many black robes, goes to Michigan Judge Joel Gehrke. After a man pleaded guilty to the spousal abuse of an adulterous wife, Judge Gehrke administered this punishment: a slap on the wrist.

The criminal justice system of California wins our prize for the Double-Standard-Bearer. Raphael Diaz Rodriguez of Van Nuys was charged with two crimes this past year. For beating his girlfriend, the maximum fine was $1,000. For strangling her pet rabbit, the maximum was $20,000.

The Superstars of Sexism Prize usually goes to the professional athlete with the worst locker room behavior. But this year, the amateur golfers at the upscale and retro Lakewood Country Club in Maryland won for their impressive skill at drinking vodka spouting from between the legs of an X-rated female ice sculpture. We would send these duffers a handicap, but they don't need one.

The Dubious Equality Award for progress toward the worst goal in gender equity goes for the second time in the history of this contest to Virginia Slims. The tobacco company's ads have come a long way, baby. Now they boast: "It's a woman thing." The "woman thing" is advancement to parity in lung cancer. Whoopee!

Next we have a new prize--for Cybermisogyny. The first--and we hope last--award for Internet-piggery goes to the Cornell freshmen who sent out a mass e-mail listing "Top 75 Reasons Why Women Should Not Have Freedom of Speech." Reason 38: "If she can't speak, she can't cry rape." The prize will be sent to these boys by a hacker with a bad attitude and a worse virus.

 lysine to be sold by each. —Issued price announcements in accordance with the agreements. —Monitored and enforced the agreed prices and sales volumes. "This is the department's first action against international cartel activity in the food and feed additive industry," said Acting Assistant Attorney General Joel I. Klein, head of the antitrust division. "It sends a message to the entire world that criminal collusive behavior that harms U.S. consumers will not be tolerated." An ADM legal opponent saw the guilty pleas as a sign the Justice Department will aggressively pursue the company. "The Justice Department has sent the message they are closing in on ADM and the individuals inside ADM who have had primary responsibility for price-fixing," said Kenneth Adams, a Washington lawyer who challenged the settlement of the private lysine suits. ADM spokesman Roy Erickson declined comment Tuesday. Federal authorities also are investigating whether ADM conspired with competitors to fix the prices of high-fructose corn syrup used to sweeten soft drinks and other foods and the prices of citric acid used in food and other products. ADM fired Whitacre shortly after the raid and accused him of stealing millions from the company. Whitacre says the money was under-the-table compensation similar to payments made to other top executives. News of the federal probe brought a flurry of lawsuits from angry customers and disgruntled investors. Earlier this year, ADM agreed to pay $25 million to settle a group of lawsuits alleging lysine price-fixing. Ajinomoto and Kyowa Hakko agreed to pay $10.2 million apiece as part of that settlement. The corporations are expected to be arraigned in a week to a month, and the executives some time after that.

 district's ability to provide an education to all the students in Seminole County. McCammon's proposal was considered too ambitious by the board. They had been told by Wayne Blanton, president of the FSBA, the six charter schools that have been opened in the state so far had between 20 and 60 students each. Florida Charter Schools, Inc. is proposing 650 students, though they said they would limit classes to no more than 20 students each. McCammon told the board that his group's charter school would offer day and evening classes as well as an academic curriculum with a strong school-to-work emphasis. The Winter Springs location was essential for the plan to work, however, McCammon told the board.  more closely at the pool of applicants," he suggested. "Right now, we are at a very low unemployment rate. Should we focus on finding jobs for the hardcore unemployed, in jobs where they can be trained?" he questioned. "Can we do that," asked Mayor Bettye Smith. She questioned whether it is realistic to take the hardcore unemployed. Rowe estimated that there are approximately 2,000 low income unemployed persons on the job market in the city of Sanford at the present time. "I don't want to eliminate others and concentrate on just one economic level," observed Commissioner Lon Howell. Rowe also suggested the city might look into the possibility of making the Economic Incentive money a loan which would be paid back. "Maybe we will have to set a goal for each year," he said, "or for each quarter per applicant." He explained that the last two applications he had become aware of were for a total of a quarter-million dollars.

Commissioners said they would give the matter some serious consideration, and possibly approach the subject again at the next commission work session.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) — A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis," and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work. Use only as directed. © 1996, Arthur Health Products, Inc.

The Democratic convention, Chicago, 1996

Cheers and praise for first lady, her followers

By PAUL SHEPARD
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Stomping their feet and cheering her name, Democrats wrapped their first lady in a warm, protective embrace. And Hillary Rodham Clinton did not disappoint the faithful, never flinching from her liberal beliefs.

"If I feel that I've done the best job that I can, I will be satisfied. If I feel that maybe something I said sparked somebody's interest, I'll be happy," Mrs. Clinton said in an interview taped Tuesday and broadcast today on NBC.

The first lady said she is not a good idea to focus on comparisons with Elizabeth Dole, the wife of GOP nominee Bob Dole.

"I don't think it's a good idea to pit women against women. I think we ought to celebrate the diversity of women. ... I think it is great that the American public are seeing not just Mrs. Dole or me, but many different women who are speaking up for what they believe, who are involved in every aspect of American life."

But the sign-waving delegates to the convention were clearly in a mood to make the woman Republicans vilify feel welcome in her hometown. When she took the stage, their cheers went on for minutes.

"She seemed to be so grateful. I thought she might want to cry," said Lucille Maziarz, a delegate from Duryea, Pa. "She's gotten a beating the last four years."

In her address, Mrs. Clinton strongly rejected Republican presidential nominee Bob Dole's criticism of her book and her views on child-rearing.

Dole had told his convention two weeks ago that it took a family, not a village, to raise a child. Mrs. Clinton, without mentioning Dole's name, retorted: "It takes all of us. Yes, it takes a village."

The convention hall erupted — again.

At various points during her 23-minute speech, thunderous applause rocked the United Center as delegates stomped their feet. Still more waved placards saying "Welcome Home Hillary," momentarily turning the convention floor into a rolling sea of white.

"It's just overwhelming to think that people are there for me and care about my husband so much," she said after delivering the much-anticipated speech. "And it really touched me out there tonight."

Throughout her White House years, Mrs. Clinton has been adored by some Americans, and strongly disliked by others, especially Republican conservatives. In one poll, 47 percent of respondents gave her a thumbs up while the same number viewed her negatively.

In Chicago, she was surrounded by admirers. Wearing an aqua-blue suit and pearl choker, Mrs. Clinton stressed strengthening families, mentioning her own daughter time and again as Chelsea sat beaming from the VIP section.

In defending President Clinton's policies, she did not flinch from reviving the failed notion of health insurance for all Americans.

"My husband has always felt that all American families should have affordable health insurance," said Mrs. Clinton, who played a leading role in what many see as the greatest blunder of her husband's first term.

The limited health bill signed by the president last week was an important step, she said, but "our nation still must find a way to offer affordable coverage to the working poor and the 10 million children who lack health insurance today."

Mrs. Clinton, however, made no mention of the president's signing of a GOP welfare overhaul bill that many liberal Democrats dislike.

There were inevitable comparisons with Elizabeth Dole and her informal, walkabout talk to the Republican National Convention. In contrast, Mrs. Clinton stood at a podium, speaking forcefully.

A sign in the Illinois delegation seemed to sum up the crowd's verdict: "Anything Elizabeth Can Do ... Hillary Can Do Better."

The president watched her on television from his train en route to the convention city, and told a late-night rally of more than 15,000 at Michigan State University, "She was terrific. I was so proud of her."

Democrats welcome Clinton 'at historic point in America'

President Bill Clinton addresses the audience at a New Hampshire campaign stop earlier this year.

By DONALD M. ROTHSBERG
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Beaming with confidence and displaying rare unity, Democrats welcome President Clinton to his convention today, poised to proclaim him the man to lead the nation into the 21st century.

Eager, in first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton's words, to "lay the groundwork" for the new century, he was arriving by helicopter after one last day of whistestops on his four-day campaign train tour.

All the hoopla of the past two days — the speeches and cheers, flashing lights and rollicking dance — served as buildup to tonight's highlight: Clinton's arrival in the convention city aboard a Marine helicopter and the state-by-state roll call that will give him the nomination.

Mrs. Clinton, who got her own foot-stomping welcome Tuesday night, said in an interview broadcast today on NBC: "I know he believes strongly we're at a historic point in America and he wants to help lay the groundwork for a strong America in the next century."

For the first time since 1936 — the year of Franklin D. Roosevelt's landslide re-election victory — a Democratic president will be renominated without opposition within his party.

But tonight's nomination only sets the stage for the battle to come from now until Election Day.

White House chief of staff Leon Panetta predicted today on ABC that the party would emerge from the convention with a "strong double digit lead" in the polls. But, he added, "this is still going to be a tough campaign." He said he had cautioned Democratic troops, "Keep eyes on the target. We've got to keep our focus."

The focus today was on Chicago and Clinton's arrival for renomination.

"By the time the president gets here, we will be really wound up," Arkansas delegate Ruby Henderson said.

Clinton spent four days traveling to Chicago, most of them on a 13-car train dubbed the 21st Century Express. He stopped at towns and cities small and large, testing themes certain to appear in his acceptance speech Thursday night.

He also demonstrated the political power of his office, proposing $8.5 billion in new spending over five years to promote literacy, clean up urban toxic waste sites and encourage companies to hire welfare recipients.

Seeking to dim Clinton's spotlight, Republican nominee Bob Dole interrupted a California vacation to team up with running mate Jack Kemp and promote his plan to cut taxes by $548 billion.

"He's going to ride into town on a track. It's called the Status Quo Express," Dole said of his rival.

But new polling data gave the Democrats reason to cheer. ABC News' nightly tracking poll Sunday and Monday found 51 percent of registered voters would back Clinton if the election were today, 36 percent would support Dole and 8 percent favored Reform Party nominee Ross Perot.

That compares to a 47-38-9 race in ABC sampling Saturday and Sunday, a possible slight increase for Clinton given the polls' margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

Shot back Dole from Santa Barbara, Calif.: "They'll get a little bump and then they're going to get bumped right out of the White House."

Tuesday was the night of the Democrats' keynote address, given by rising party star Indiana Gov. Evan Bayh.

But Bayh had to take second place to Mrs. Clinton. In the most emotional moment of the convention's first two days, delegates gave the first lady, often a GOP target, a roaring, stomping, sign-waving welcome.

Suspect in girl's attempted abduction arrested by deputies

From staff reports

GENEVA — Investigators from the Seminole County sheriff's office major crimes section have arrested a suspect in connection with the attempted abduction of a 12-year-old girl from a school bus stop in Geneva on May 23 of this year.

Cody Smith, 28, of 2598 Ekana Drive, Oviedo, was taken into custody by sheriff's deputies Tuesday morning at his office in Oviedo. He has been charged with one count of attempted kidnapping of a child under 13. The charge is a second degree felony which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough says Smith has no prior criminal record.

McDonough said Smith is accused of pulling up to the school bus stop in a red pickup truck on May 23. The stop is located at the intersection of Ocoola Road and Riverfront Trail in Geneva.

He said the girl was standing alone at the bus stop when Smith reportedly asked for directions to the Seminole Towne Center in Sanford. During the conversation, McDonough said the suspect grabbed the girl by the neck and tried to pull her into the vehicle. She broke free and ran to a nearby house, as the driver of the pickup drove off.

McDonough said the girl has positively identified Smith from a photo lineup.

A second girl also identified

Cody Smith is led away to jail in handcuffs after his arrest as a suspect in a young girl's attempted abduction.

Smith in a photo lineup. Smith had reportedly confronted her at a school bus stop just a few miles away on Ocoola Road, about 15 minutes before the attempted abduction of the 12-year-old girl. Smith was to be booked at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. His bond has been set for $5,000.

Boys' turn to spike

Lyman to host boys' Volleyball Jamboree

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — The boys' volleyball teams from Seminole County get their first opportunity to answer a lot of questions raised during the off season tonight when the Seminole Athletic Conference Jamboree takes place at Lyman High School starting at 5:30 p.m.

Local fans will get their first glimpse of Seminole High School under new head coach Bill Whalen and defending SAC and VolleyFest champion Lake Mary under new mentor Jeannie Fletcher.

It will also be the first chance to see if Lake Howell will be able to build on last year's super season, when they were the second best team in Central Florida behind Lake Mary, and if perennially tough

Lyman can bounce back from a little bit of a down year in 1995.

Each of the six county squads will play two games each to 15 points. There will also be a 10 minute warm-up period between games.

The jamboree opens with a match-up between the Lake Mary Rams and the Oviedo Lions.

The second game will pit the Lions against the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, with the Rams returning to play the Silver Hawks in Game three.

The second half of the jamboree will have the Lake Brantley Patriots taking on the Seminole High School Fighting Seminoles in Game four and the Tribe sticking around to battle the host Lyman Greyhounds in Game five.

The evening's action will conclude with the Patriots facing off with the Greyhounds in Game six.

Senior Greg Pegram and the Seminole High School Fighting Seminoles hope to show tonight that they will be a force in the SAC this season when they take part in the Boys' Volleyball Jamboree at Lyman.

Oviedo's Carolee Liljenquist (No. 13) and Elizabeth Marger can't stop a kill by Lake Mary's Elise Carvalho in the Rams 15-13 victory over the Lions in the Girls' SAC Volleyball Jamboree at Lyman High School Tuesday night. Lake Mary and Seminole were both 2-0 for the evening.

Tribe, Rams star at Jam

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Seminole and Lake Mary showed Tuesday that they will be right in the thick of the Seminole Athletic Conference race this season after their performances in the Girls' SAC Volleyball Jamboree at Lyman High School.

The Rams edged defending SAC champion Oviedo 15-13 and topped Lake Howell 15-10.

"I saw some good things tonight," said Lake Mary head coach Cindy Henry. "But I also got to see some things not going well. Our passing was not good and I have tried every drill I know of. We did get good hitting and setting however. We were about where I thought we would be."

The Tribe was awesome as they blanked host Lyman 15-0 and blitzed Lake Brantley 15-4.

"I was happy with what I saw tonight," said SHS coach Beth Corso. "We've still got a ways to go, but the girls have been working very hard. This was a good sneak preview and was very pleased. Now we have 10 days to practice and get in better shape for the Lake Mary Tournament."

In the other games, Oviedo beat Lake Howell and Lyman dumped Lake Brantley 15-8.

Woods a pro now

By ARNE STAPLETON
 AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE — The game Tiger Woods has played his whole life finally became his job.

Woods, the most heralded player to come out of the amateur ranks since Jack Nicklaus 35 years ago, announced Tuesday he would be playing in this weekend's Greater Milwaukee Open as a pro.

"This is to confirm that, as of now, I am a professional golfer," Woods said in a statement released through the tournament.

He declined further comment until a press conference Wednesday, saying he wanted to practice without distraction.

Just 20 years old, Woods won an unprecedented third consecutive U.S. Amateur title Sunday, leaving little else for him to achieve as an amateur.

Woods, who was to have been a junior at Stanford this fall, called his university golf coach, Wally Goodwin, early Tuesday morning to tell him of his decision.

"I jumped for joy," Goodwin said. "I said, 'Atta boy, Tiger.'"

"He's ready. He's a great kid. He's paid his dues. He's been a wonderful emissary for Stanford the last two years. I'm blessed to have had him. Stanford's been blessed to have had him, and now it's time to get on with it."

The most noticeable difference initially between Tiger Woods the amateur and Tiger Woods the pro may be the corporate logos he sports.

Agents and industry sources have estimated that Woods will sign a series of endorsement deals that could bring him as much as $7 million a year. Those deals will be ORLANDO — We've got your ticket to fun and excitement this year as the University of Central Florida Golden Knights take on the William & Mary Tribe for a one-of-a-kind, annual, football extravaganza event known as "Central Florida's Rockin' Rally for United Way," presented by SunTrust, tomorrow at 7 p.m. at the Citrus Bowl.

The spectacle is being created for the benefit of Heart of Florida United Way, since UCF will donate 50-percent of ticket proceeds to the local nonprofit organization.

"SunTrust is proud to be a sponsor of this event, and to help make the missions of these two great organizations possible," George Koehn, president and CEO of SunTrust Central Florida said. "SunTrust gave more than 8,000 game tickets to SunTrust employees, United Way agencies and UCF-supported charities.

"We are using this opportunity to thank our employees for their past United Way support, and to show the community that SunTrust is a big supporter of both UCF and United Way."

Since the game kicks off SunTrust's 1996 United Way campaign, SunTrust is coordinating a portion of the half-time show, set to their internal Heart of Florida United Way campaign theme, "Mission: Possible!"

The UCF Marching Band will kick off the spectacular high energy extravaganza by pumping out the theme song to the summer hit movie "Mission: Impossible." SunTrust employees and their families will participate in the show.

Accept it: Kids are out to lunch

By MARALISA GALTA
NEA Food Writer

It's that time of year again, the time when nearly every mother (and some fathers) of school-age children are forced to ask the dreaded question: What do you want for lunch? The negotiations start: THEY want a peanut-butter-and-marshmallow-fluff sandwich; YOU are opposed on moral and nutritional grounds. YOU vote for whole wheat bread, THEY veto your choice instantly. At our house, this argument used to take place just minutes before the school bus was due to arrive (and it arrives, at our house, at an unholy hour). Lunches were angrily thrown together, and then often returned, uneaten.

A couple of years ago, I got smart. The kids now take a basket when we go to the grocery store; they shop for their lunches themselves, with prior approval of MOST of the items by me. We talk about the menus ahead of time, and, best of all, they almost always pack their OWN lunch the night before. Generally, if they pack it, they are more likely to eat it.

The other real revelation I had is that, when it comes to lunches, I had to get beyond the sandwich-fruit-cookie model that I grew up with. A nutritious lunch, I decided, could be a healthful muffin (see the recipe below) or some homemade banana bread spread with cream cheese or apple butter. Leftover pizza is lunch. Roasted chicken drumettes are ALSO lunch. Teriyaki ribs are wildly popular. Vegetable sticks accompanied by a small Tupperware container of dip (make it with plain yogurt if you're worried about fat grams) makes a GREAT lunch. Fruit and cheese. You get the picture.

I have gotten help in the school lunch department from several excellent books, including "The PennyWhistle Lunch Box Book," by Meredith Brokaw and Annie Gilbar, a volume chock-full of great tips, recipes and real-life anecdotes. A kids' cookbook from the Center for Science in the Public Interest - "Kitchen Fun for Kids" - is the book I WISH I could say my children used all the time. It's full of whole grains and fresh fruit and vegetable dishes, and while we like the recipes, my kids were grossed out by the drawing of the clogged artery in the introduction. For a small book, Ellen Klavan's "The Creative Lunch Box" packs a big punch, with at least 100 recipes and lots of tips.

These recipes have definitely helped in the daily battle. Now, if I could only get my kids to keep track of their shoes....

1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Place the cubed chicken, chopped celery, drained pineapple chunks and drained mandarin oranges into a bowl. Add grapes and nuts and toss with a wooden spoon.

In a small bowl, whisk together the yogurt, mayonnaise and lemon juice. Add to the chicken mixture and toss to coat. Cover and refrigerate at least one hour. Serve on pita bread or rolls, or in a small dish by itself.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings, depending on age and appetite of child.

CHICKEN DRUMMETTES

1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup low-sodium soy sauce
2 tablespoons mirin (sweet rice wine; optional)
Pinch of ground ginger
1 scallion, trimmed and minced 12 to 24 chicken drumettes (the upper part of the wing; if using frozen ones, thaw before starting)

In a glass baking dish, combine all the ingredients, except the chicken. Stir to dissolve the sugar. Add the chicken, and marinate, refrigerated, for 1 hour, turning from time to time.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Drain the drumettes, reserving the marinade.

Bake the chicken, basting occasionally with the marinade, for 30 minutes or until as crispy as you like them. Cool and refrigerate, covered. Pack in lunch box the next day.

Note: I always bake them at least 45 minutes to an hour; but I like chicken to be really crispy.

Yield: 12-24 drumettes.

BARBECUED TERIYAKI SPARERIBS

1 pound pork spareribs
1/2 cup Japanese soy sauce
2 tablespoons dry sherry
3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger
1 clove garlic, peeled and mashed

In a pot of boiling water, parboil the spareribs for 25 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine the soy sauce, sherry, sugar, ginger and garlic in a blender. Process.

Drain the ribs and pat dry with a paper towel. Place in glass baking dish and coat with the sauce. Marinate, refrigerated, for one hour or more.

Broil the ribs, basting with the teriyaki sauce until browned, crispy and well done. Cover and refrigerate.

In the morning, reheat spareribs in toaster oven, and wrap in aluminum foil. They will still be a bit warm at lunchtime, but are delicious at room temperature, too.

Yield: about 4 servings.
-- Recipe from "The PennyWhistle Lunch Box Book," by Meredith Brokaw & Annie Gilbar (Simon & Schuster, 1989).

FRUIT AND NUT SANDWICH FILLING

1 orange, peeled
1/2 banana, peeled
1/3 cup raisins
1/3 cup crunchy peanut butter
Bread for sandwiches

Separate the orange into sections and cut each section into chunks. Measure 1/2 cup and save any remaining orange for another use.

Cut banana into chunks. Mix orange, banana, raisins and peanut butter in a bowl. Spread on sandwich bread.

Yield: 2 to 4 sandwiches, depending on age and appetite of child.

-- Recipe from "Kitchen Fun for Kids," by Michael Jacobson & Laura Hill (Henry Holt & Co., 1991).

RAISIN BRAN MUFFINS

2-1/2 cups raisin bran cereal
1 cup milk
1/2 cup honey
1 egg
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1-1/4 cups all purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

Center a rack in the oven and preheat to 400 degrees. Grease a 12-muffin muffin tin or line with paper cups.

Put the raisin bran in a medium-sized bowl and pour on the milk. Let this mixture sit for a few minutes, while you prepare the other ingredients. In a small bowl, mix the honey, egg and oil. In a large bowl, mix the flour, baking powder and salt. Add the honey-egg-oil mixture and the raisin bran and milk to the flour-baking powder mixture. Mix until all the ingredients are blended.

Spoon the batter into the prepared muffin tin. Bake 15 to 20 minutes. Cool, then wrap in a layer of plastic wrap and two layers of aluminum foil. Freeze up to 6 weeks. Defrost by putting in refrigerator overnight, or pack frozen in the lunch box.

Marriage falls to yield larger diamond

DEAR READERS: I'm on vacation between Aug. 18 and Aug. 31. Don't panic - I've selected some of my favorite letters from past years to fill the gap. I hope you enjoy them.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married 31 years ago, he gave me the smallest diamond I had ever seen. I was glad to get any diamond at the time, but as the years passed, my husband became more prosperous and I kept hoping he would replace it with a larger one. He never did.

On my 25th wedding anniversary, I gave him a fine piece of jewelry with money I had saved out of my household allowance. He gave me 25 roses.

Soon after, I lost the diamond out of my ring. My husband promised to buy me another one, but he didn't. When we passed a jewelry store, I'd stop to look in the window, but my husband would walk away.

Last year on our 30th anniversary, my husband handed me a tiny box. When I opened it, I found my old ring with the tiny diamond replaced. I tried to put it on my finger, but I had gained some weight and it wouldn't fit. I put it back in the box, where it's been ever since.

What should I do? Have my ring made larger and wear it? My husband could well afford a bigger diamond, and I feel like a poor relative among my friends who have lovely jewelry.

LIKES DIAMONDS (BIG)

DEAR LIKES: Face it. Your husband is not likely to buy you a bigger diamond unless you ask for one. If it's that important to you and he can afford it, ask him. Besides, diamonds are not only a girl's best friend, they're also a good investment.

DEAR ABBY: Please help settle a disagreement we are having in our family. My grandson sent out his high school graduation announcements before he knew that he didn't have enough credits to graduate.

He received many lovely graduation gifts, including some nice checks from relatives. I say all the gifts (and of course the checks) should be returned because he didn't really graduate. His mother (my daughter) insists that he is entitled to keep the gifts because he completed 12 years of schooling.

Do you think my daughter is right, and I should butt out?

ILLINOIS GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Your grandson should keep the gifts and send thank-you notes explaining that he did not graduate with his class, but he plans to make up the deficient credits and earn his diploma eventually - if indeed he intends to do so. Otherwise, he should return the gifts.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my boss showed me a picture of an elegant sofa in a current magazine, and said if I could guess the price of it within $300 he would give me the $300. (He had seen this sofa in a Beverly Hills store.)

When I guessed $2,800, he looked at though he'd been shot. He said the price of the sofa was $3,000, but he refused to give me the $300, saying that my guess was just $1 low!

According to my calculation, $2,800 is within $200 of $3,000. Please answer in your column. If I am wrong, I will throw in the towel and be a good sport.

I have been my boss's faithful Girl Friday for four years. Please don't mention his name or mine.

LAKEWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR LAKEWOOD: I don't know how your boss figured, but I figure he owes you $300. (P.S. And he should throw in a $60 bonus for protecting his identity.)

DEAR READERS: If you would like your letter considered for publication, please include your name, area code and telephone number.

Hanging up her apron

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — After more than 20 years of ringing up bargains for Kmart customers, the "blue-light special" queen is hanging up her apron.

Irene Kerber started working for Kmart in 1973. The 80-year-old's last day of work will be Friday.

"They call me the 'blue light special queen' because I can sell anything," Kerber said. "I think they buy because they feel sorry for me."

From the Hula Hoops, yo-yos and Power Rangers purchased by a generation of children, to the microwaves and other goods bought by their parents, Kerber has sold it all and done just about every job there is at Kmart.

"I've done domestics, I've done checkout, and I've been layaway, and I've been every place but TA, or toilet articles," she said. "I wish I was younger, so I could work longer."

Store manager Richard Cloyd said Kerber won over customers with her friendliness.

"Of all our floor people, she provides a lift. We're all going to miss her," he said.

Mayor cools off

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Mayor Ron Weaver said he's cooled off about getting soaked on a city golf course.

A worker turned on the sprinklers in an effort to stop Weaver from using the course before it opened.

"I never imagined that hitting a few golf balls last Thursday would get me soaked — and in hot water — at the same time," Weaver said Tuesday.

Mike Oaley, the worker who turned on the sprinklers, was given a week's suspension without pay.

Weaver has an 8800 annual membership that allows him to play golf anytime Hillman Golf Course is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

But the sixth fairway backs up to Weaver's home and he said he frequently goes on the course when it's closed.

Oaley, a maintenance supervisor, said he and others have talked to Weaver in the past about following rules. He said he turned on the sprinklers to keep Weaver from practicing.

As young as he says?

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Prosecutors want a teenager murder suspect to undergo a dental exam to see if he's as young as he says he is.

The youngster's age could help decide if he's tried as a juvenile or an adult for the shooting of a liquor store owner during a February holdup. The development of wisdom teeth can be used under state law to determine a person's age.

The boy says he's 15, but prosecutors say he could be lying. If he's 15, prosecutors must convince a judge he should be tried as an adult. If he's 16 or 17, the defense must show why he should be tried as a juvenile.

"At this stage, he obviously wants to be as young as possible," said Deputy District Attorney Ralph Dixon, who filed a motion seeking the dental exam.

Is indigestion gone for good?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently underwent laparoscopic cholecystectomy that revealed a badly diseased gallbladder and a large stone lodged in the bile duct. Prior to this, I had frequent episodes of indigestion of varying severity. What caused this indigestion, and will it continue now that I've undergone the surgical repair?

DEAR READER: The gallbladder stores bile, which is necessary for proper digestion. Also, gallstones can cause pain that, in some people, resembles indigestion.

I recommend that you adopt a wait-and-see approach. If your symptoms don't recur, eureka! They were caused by the diseased gallbladder. Should the indigestion return, your physician will have to order special X-ray tests to make sure that you don't have another disorder, such as a peptic ulcer or a hiatal hernia.

Finally, if your indigestion has not been cured by the surgery, your doctor will probably refer you to a gastroenterologist for a second opinion. But for now, be patient. Allow about two months for full healing to take place and see what happens.

To give you more information, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Hiatal Hernia" and "Peptic Ulcers."

DEAR DR. GOTT: The skin on my lips peels constantly, causing them to bleed. Over-the-counter lip balms do not seem to help, and a dermatologist even placed me on cortisone, but that doesn't work. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: The skin of the lips is particularly sensitive to dryness and environmental factors, such as exposure to harsh weather and sunlight.

Are you a "lip lick"? This habit can deplete the lip tissues of skin oils, leading to chapping and cracking.

Similarly, are you an inveterate outdoorsman, who works year 'round in all kinds of weather?

Finally, are you a woman who is, perhaps, experiencing a severe allergic reaction to lipstick products?

If the answer to any of these questions is "yes," stop biting or licking your lips, use a lip salve (for protection from the elements) and discontinue lipstick.

If, on the other hand, your problem isn't so easily answered, I suggest a tried-and-true old-fashioned remedy. Go to the drugstore and purchase a container of raw lanolin. This product, which is made from sheep fat, will — when applied several times a day (and rubbed in well) — replace the natural oils in the skin of the lips, usually putting an end to peeling and cracking.

Oh, as a final suggestion, stop kissing for a while.

DEAR DR. GOTT: There are times when I am eating that my throat seems to close up and I cannot swallow. An hour or so later, I can resume eating. Have you any idea why this happens?

DEAR READER: You are evidently experiencing a form of esophageal spasm. This could be caused by certain food additives — the most notorious being monosodium glutamate, a flavor enhancer — or by something as mundane as a hiatal hernia. Also, some people tend to have esophageal spasms for no apparent reason.

You should have a simple X-ray test called a barium swallow. While you are swallowing a flavored, thick drink, the radiologist will X-ray your esophagus to determine the presence of unusual or vigorous contractions that can interfere with swallowing.

If this is your problem, you can be given prescription medicine, such as Propulsid, that will overcome the spasms and facilitate swallowing. Your primary-care physician can order the test.

If, on the other hand, your X-rays are normal, the doctor may choose to refer you to a gastroenterologist for further testing, such as endoscopy, and advice.

Act immediately or wait?

By Phillip Alder

If, as a defender, you have a winner nesting in your hand, sometimes it pays to hold it back for a while. You might break declarer's communication in the suit between his hand and the dummy. Or you might receive a revealing signal from partner. However, if by ducking too long you let declarer switch suits and run for home, you will regret your restraint.

This deal occurred in a match between Northern Ireland and Scotland. At both tables, defending against three no-trump, West led the diamond nine, East winning with the king and debatably switching to the club nine: jack, queen, ace. Now came dummy's spade king, South throwing a low heart. How should West defend?

South bid three no-trump more in hope than expectation, but he didn't fancy stopping in three spades. The Scottish West ducked the first spade, waiting to get some help from his partner. But South promptly claimed nine tricks: one spade, two diamonds and six clubs.

Sitting West for Northern Ireland was Monty Rosenberg, one of the more colorful players in the game. He could see nine different tricks for South: five spades, two diamonds (remember, the first trick marked South with the queen) and at least two clubs (East's switch to the nine placed the higher clubs in declarer's hand). So, Rosenberg concluded that the defense had to take three heart tricks. There being no point in ducking the spade king, he won with the ace and switched to the heart king: two down.

Always count declarer's tricks, and try to find a play to make partner's life easy.

situations that have been going against you and turn these losers into winners. Do not deviate from your plan.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Cupid may devote more time and attention to you today than he has for some time. Things should go well for you where affairs of the heart are concerned.
