No Tax Hike In Proposed Budget For Lake Mary

By Genie Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary City Manager Bob Norris has proposed a no-tax-increase budget for fiscal 1987-1988 of $2,164,957, an increase of $168,821 over this year's budget. If adopted by commissioners as presented, city residents will continue to pay $3.70 per $1,000 assessed property value.

The reason there is no proposed tax rate increase is because the municipality's tax base has gone from $165,399,055 in 1986 to $214,776,283 for 1987, according to Bill Suber, Seminole County property appraiser. The increase will generate enough additional tax revenue to cover the proposed increase in the budget.

The increase in the tax base comes from new construction and expansion of existing structures which increases their taxable value.

Public hearings of the budget are set for July 9 and 23 at 7:30 p.m. State law requires the city commission to adopt its budget by Sept. 1. The fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The budget includes a recommendation that the water utility tax, which is 10 percent of the customers' water charge per month, be discontinued due to its unpopularity.

A 1.1 percent across-the-board salary increase for all city employees is proposed in the budget, including a raise for Norris. Norris' probationary period ends Sunday. He's been on the job six months and earns $29,400. The commission can grant him an additional pay raise if it chooses, as well as more money for other employees, Norris said.

The budget shows a decrease in road expenditures from $167,000 last year to $63,000 this year with no money allocated for paving the city's dirt roads. However, a policy on repaving is forthcoming, according to Norris.

The budget also includes hiring a police officer, a mechanic's helper for the city garage, a building inspector and a public works employee who

Storer Dumps PTL

Storer Cable Communications, which serves 15,200 customers Altamonte Springs, Lake Mary and surrounding parts of unincorporated Seminole County, is dumping PTL Television Network July 15.

Tony Pupo, operations manager for Storer in Altamonte Springs, said, "The decision to drop PTL corporately followed national controversy regarding the organization, which has lost much of its value as a channel."

He said Storer, which serves 1.4 million subscribers nationwide, gave PTL a 30-day cancellation notice on June 16.

Locally, Pupo said, the results of a customer survey that went out with the June bills showed that 40 percent of the 2,000 persons responding named PTL Television Network as the channel they most wanted removed from the schedule.

Pupo pointed out that Storer still carries Christian broadcasting on WIYE-Channel 55, WTGL-Channel 52 and Pat Robertson's CBN Network. The PTL Club can be seen on Channel 55, but PTL Network also carries other prominent TV evangelists including Jerry Falwell, who took over leadership of the PTL Ministries when founder Jim Bakker left amid allegations of sexual misconduct and financial improprieties. It also carries

Longwood Confronts Bookkeeping Nightmare

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood has unofficially agreed to pay an auditing firm, which has given up on ever completing the city's 1985-86 fiscal year audit, up to $18,000 over two months to train the staff in accounting procedures and set up a procedures manual in an effort to balance the city's botched books.

Jackie Hoefer, partner in Kane & Associates of Winter Park, hired by the city to audit last year's books, said so much of the evidential material needed from the city's Finance Department is unavailable that her firm has no choice, but to disclaim the incomplete audit without giving either a positive or negative

The commission made the decision by consensus at a work session Thursday night with Hoefer and Bill Partlow, representing Kane & Associates.

Hoefer said the disarray in the city's financial statements poses a serious threat, in that, technically, banks holding the cities bond issues and loans can declare them in default and demand payment because the required audited financial statements have not been submitted by the city.

She said there is no evidence of fraud or wrongdoing and the problem didn't happen overnight, but has been building for several years.

Commissioner Harvey

Smerilson said of the city's accounting system, "It's been going sour over a number of years. In the past our auditor (another firm) just gave up and checked everything as great." As to bringing in the outside help, Smerilson said, "I don't think we have any choice. Instead of throwing stones, let's take corrective action. I will say get a procedure of checks and balances and keep it from happening again."

"Do we have the money for it?" asked Commissioner Dave Gunter. City Administrator Ron Waller responded, "For this we do!"

Smerilson said he has been

'I Would Have Drunk Myself To Death'

Billy Carter: Treatment Works

By Genie Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

"I reached the epitome of being a drunk in 1977 when I had a beer named after me while I was still alive," Billy Carter, brother of former President Jimmy Carter, said Wednesday.

Carter, a recovered alcoholic whose widely reported drinking sprees during the early years of the Carter administration became legendary, was the featured speaker at a public open house for the new CareUnit of Orlando chemical dependency treatment center in Lake Mary. He told the 150-person audience that "Billy Beer" now sells as a collector's item for about $75 a can. "But if you drink it, it ain't worth nothing," he said.

Carter, who has not had an alcoholic drink since Feb. 3, 1979, kept the audience laughing with jokes about his "career" as a drunk which he said he worked at "full time." He said his detoxification struggle was "hell" but being sober has straightened out his life and kept his family together. "If I had not gone for treatment, I know I would have drunk myself to death by now," he said.

Carter spoke after a luncheon on the grounds of the new $8.5 million treatment facility. Other speakers included defensive end Ron Holmes of the Tampa Bay Bucs; Valerie Costantino, facility administrator; Jim Zydek, assistant administrator and Carter's wife, Sybil, who "warmed up the audience" before her husband appeared.

Also on hand to hear the speakers were Lee Karns, President and chief executive officer of CompCare's corporate headquarters in Irvine, Calif. and Dave Comerzan, senior vice president of CompCare's regional office in Tampa. More than 500 people in a long, winding line piled their plates high with food as they filed along a buffet table filled with such delicacies as crabmeat stuffed artichoke hearts to petits fours along with two-tiered fountains flowing with fruit juices.

Mrs. Carter, married to "Billy" for 32 years, said about their life together, "It's been good, it's been bad and it's been hell — but it's never been boring."

Battle Lines Drawn On Bork Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's bid to put Robert Bork on the Supreme Court, an effort to extend the reach of conservative principles for years to come, could spark the toughest Senate confirmation fight on such a nomination in almost 20 years.

Liberal opponents and conservative supporters of the controversial federal appeals court judge drew battle lines immediately upon Reagan's announcement Wednesday of his choice to succeed the retired moderate Justice Lewis

Senate Democrats vowed to question Bork on everything from fine points of constitutional law to his role as the man who carried out President Nixon's orders to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox in 1973.

Boundary Survey Needed For Sanford Land Purchase

By Brian Sullivan
Herald Staff Writer

It may take a $60,000 boundary survey to close the deal on 2,200 acres the Sanford City Commission voted to purchase over the objection of two commissioners who already thought the $3.5 million price was too high.

Commissioners Whitely Eckstein and John Mercer voted against the purchase. The property, east of the Sanford airport and north of State Road 46, is to be used in the city's wastewater disposal program.

City Engineer Bill Simmons told the commission the city has already begun advertising a July 27 public hearing on the proposed purchase. If all goes well and the city tries to meet its Sept. 1 closing deadline for the $3.5 million purchase, then they need to obtain a boundary survey.

"We need the survey before we can close," Simmons said. "It (the survey) will verify the legal description in the deed and will protect us from future encroachments. It will also give us the exact acreage and it may change our purchase price per acre if it's more or less." The city needs the land to be part of a plan to stop dumping five million gallons a day of treated effluent into Lake Monroe by 1989. The airport is a potential site for this purpose, and other city properties, including city hall are already being implemented. The Federal Aviation Administration is studying the plan for using the airport property. The 2,200 acres is to be used if the airport plans fall through and when growth demands.

The Sanford engineering firm of Conklin, Porter and Holmes has done some preliminary

Twins On The Team

Lake Mary Grads To Return For Basketball Tournney

By Maryann L. Cross
UCF Intern

Playing on the same basketball team, 6-foot-2 sisters Laura and Peggy Glass can befuddle the best opponents.

But their "strategy" is not one that can be applied by just any two teammates. Laura and Peggy are identical twins.

"One time, our opponents didn't realize there were twins on the team," Laura said. "At one point, two of their team members were guarding Peggy and no one was guarding me, so I got a chance to score."

In November, the former Lake Mary High School girls' basketball team stars will get a chance to score for a hometown audience again. After being away at college more than three years, they'll take part in an independent college basketball tournament held at Lake Mary High. In spite of the time lapse, chances are Lake Mary High remembers the pair.

One day back in high school the twins thought they were pulling something over on their teachers. Dressed alike, they switched classes, but none of the teachers seemed to notice.

"We were sure they didn't know what was going on," Laura recalled. "We'd never done anything like this at Lake Mary, so the teachers had no reason to suspect anything. What Peggy and I did was go to our regular classes, ask to be excused halfway through the class, and then meet in the hallway and switch passes."

"At the end of the day I was sitting in Peggy's science class and feeling kind of bored, so I raised my hand. 'Mr. Nouskajlan, I don't understand problem number three,' I told the teacher. 'Well, Laura,' he said, 'If you were in the right class you might...'"

"I was so embarrassed I wanted to die," she said. "All of Peggy's classmates were laughing because they knew Peggy and I had been switching classes all day without getting caught."

Laura and Peggy, 321 Loch Lomond, Longwood, were born in Jacksonville 21 years ago. Laura 10 minutes before her sister. Their family moved to Orlando 14 years ago. When the twins were 10, their parents purchased a house in

POLICE

Winter Park Man Arrested; Rape Of Pre-Schooler Charged

A 27-year-old rural Winter Park man, accused of raping a pre-school age girl, was arrested outside his home at about 12:35 a.m. Wednesday by Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

The allegations of the girl and her mother were reported to sheriff's investigator Billy Lee at about 5 p.m. Tuesday. The girl was questioned and a doctor's exam confirmed she had been sexually assaulted, a sheriff's report said.

Larry Lovett Jenkins, of 2810 Eastbrook Blvd. #23, has been charged with sexual battery of a child. He was being held without bond.

Officer Watches As Pot Drops

A Sanford policeman standing at the counter of Lil' Champ, 301 S. French Ave., Sanford, at about 5 p.m. reported seeing a packet of pot drop from a man's pants pocket when he reached for his wallet.

The man was confronted, Donald Charles Barry, 27, of 548 Cape Cod Lane, Altamonte Springs, has been charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana. He has been released on $500 bond to appear in court July 8.

2 Boys Arrested On Burglaries

Six vehicles in rural Winter Park, on Lawndale Circle, Tremont and Mermont lanes and Auburn Green Loop were burglarized between 8 p.m. Monday and 3:49 a.m. Tuesday when sheriff's deputies found two suspects who allegedly had some of the stolen goods.

The 15 and 17 year olds were arrested at the County Line Park, a sheriff's report said. They were transported to the juvenile detention center. Among the items stolen from the cars was a purse, which along with its contents was valued at $150. Other items were valued at $45 and $30 and less, a sheriff's report said.

Arrested For Stealing Notebook

Witnesses who reportedly saw two suspects enter two cars at Semoran North Apartments, 2575 State Road 436, Winter Park, at about 12:20 a.m. Wednesday called sheriff's deputies to the scene where a man and a boy were nabbed in the case.

Only a notebook had been stolen from one of the cars, but apparently other cars had also been entered before witnesses spotted the burglars.

Charged with Burglary to a vehicle and being held in lieu of $1,000 bond was Robert William King, 20, of Orlando, who was arrested along with a boy.

Woman Faces Check Charges

Sanford police charged Regina Bailey, 38, of 1810 Southwest Road, Sanford, with uttering a forgery and grand theft after she allegedly cashed two checks stolen from a Willy Bailey.

The checks, one for $175 and the other for $150, were cashed at Food Giant, 329 S. Sanford Ave., Monday and Tuesday. Bailey was arrested at the store at 7:22 p.m. Tuesday and was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Tip Brings Drug Case Arrest

Police agents who received a tip and watched an apparent drug deal between two men who met in the parking lot of the Hilton Inn, North Lake Drive, Altamonte Springs, stopped one of the men as he drove away at about 9:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Police reported finding cocaine and marijuana in the suspect's car. Paul Gonzales, 30, of Orlando, has been charged with possession of cocaine and less than 20 grams of marijuana. He has been released on $2,000 bond to appear in court July 20.

Altering Licenses Charged Filed

An 18-year-old Orlando woman, who allegedly presented an altered driver's license, with a 1985 birthdate, as identification at Calico Jack's, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday after the bar manager called Altamonte Springs police.

Police alleged the woman had four driver's licenses, all of which had been altered.

Shellyleigh Lance has been charged with unauthorized possession of driver's licenses and four counts of altering driver's licenses. Bond was set at $1,000 and she has been released.

Driving Under Influence Arrests

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Booker T. Natson, 40, of Savannah, Ga., was arrested at 9:59 p.m. Tuesday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary.

—Danny Allen Baker, 34, of 202 Birch Terrace, Winter Springs, at 10:40 p.m. Tuesday after his car was seen traveling erratically on County Road 427, Longwood.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

Joseph C. Stern, 59, of 155 Lakeview Ave., Lake Mary, reported to sheriff's deputies that a $150 cable television control box belonging to him was stolen from his vehicle while parked at Albertson's, Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary, Tuesday.

Keogh Released

A former Lake Mary city commissioner sentenced to a year in jail for grand theft has been released.

Colin Keogh, 31, of Lake Mary, was released Saturday, cutting his one-year jail sentence to seven months with good behavior. He was sentenced in December for stealing nearly $22,000 from a private Lake Mary association in 1985.

Though Keogh has been released from the Seminole County jail, he has to serve the balance of five years on probation and make restitution of $21,627 to the Lake Mary Cemetery, of which Keogh was chairman when the money disappeared. The association maintains the city's only cemetery.

Keogh pleaded no contest to the charge which irked Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor who said Keogh was not owning up to his guilt in the incident.

McGregor, according to the prosecutor on the case, then took the unusual step of convicting Keogh, a first-time offender, rather than withholding adjudication. That established a criminal record for Keogh and also prevents him from voting and holding public office until his civil rights are restored.

Casselberry Doctor Disciplined

A Casselberry doctor has been disciplined by the Department of Professional Regulation for writing inappropriate or excessive prescriptions.

The medical license of Shaheed M. Ali, M.D., has been placed on a probationary status for two years. He has also been restricted in the type of drugs he can prescribe and must practice medicine under the supervision of another doctor. He also has to pay an administrative fine and the costs involving his discipline, according to the DPR.

The DPR also said Ali must take 25 hours per year of continuing medical education with emphasis in the areas of risk management.

The discipline stems from Ali's treatment of a patient from July, 1985, to July, 1986. The patient was treated for narcolepsy, according to the DPR. Narcolepsy is an irresistible tendency to go to sleep when one does not want to sleep, according to medical sources.

The DPR states that the drugs All prescribed to the patient were inappropriate and or excessive. Further, the DPR states All did not document the prescriptions on at least six occasions and failed to adequately keep written medical records justifying his course of treatment of the patient.

Because of this, the DPR charged All with prescribing, dispensing, administering, mixing or otherwise preparing a (prescription) drug ... other than in the course of the physician's professional practice.

The DPR also charged All with malpractice or poor patient care and failing to keep written medical records justifying the course of treatment.

Phone Fantasies Rejected

Oh, those telephone solicitors! A 78-year-old rural Winter Park woman says one made her an offer she could refuse.

The woman told Seminole County sheriff's deputies she received a call at about 7:30 p.m. Monday from a woman who said her "membership" to the "Fantasy Phone Co." had expired. The caller made an offer of renewal, with a promise of calls dealing with sexual acts. The woman told the caller she never had such a membership and didn't want one. She did take the address of the Miami company, and gave it to sheriff's deputies, but got no phone number. The fantasy caller apparently only wants to make calls, not receive them. She wouldn't give the Winter Park woman a phone number for the company.

Another Victim Sues Palm Bay Shooter

TITUSVILLE (UPI) — Another victim in the April massacre in Palm Bay has filed suit against the gunman who allegedly killed six people and wounded a dozen others in a rampage through his neighborhood and two shopping malls.

Eric Messbauer, an 18-year-old employee pizza restaurant employee, alleges in the suit filed in Brevard County circuit court that William Cruse, 60, was negligent and "intoxicated to such an extent that his normal faculties were impaired."

The suit seeks damages in excess of $5,000 for a wound Messbauer suffered in his right ear as he was driving near the Publix supermarket where the random killing began.

Messbauer's lawyer, Jim Nance, said the exact amount of damages sought will be revealed when the case goes to trial.

Cruse is held without bond on six charges of first-degree murder, 28 counts of attempted murder and two kidnapping charges.

Nance also is representing a grocery store stock boy wounded in the shooting, David Fox, 16. Nance said even if he wins damages for his clients they may never see the money.

Cruse had assets of more than $200,000, but the money was transferred into different accounts under the name of his wife, Melahat, after Cruse was arrested.

The widows of two slain Palm Bay policemen, Gerald Johnson, 28, and Ronald Grogan, 27, also have filed suit against their husbands' alleged killer.

Plane Crashes During Daring Demonstration

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (UPI) — From the grandstands 5,000 horrified civilians "all gasped at once" as the daring demonstration by an Air Force transport plane unraveled into a fiery crash that killed five men and injured two others.

But despite the C-130 Hercules crash Wednesday, the same display — called Low Altitude Parachute Extraction System, or LAPES — would be performed today for 4,500 ROTC cadets undergoing summer training at the base, said Maj. Mike Nason, a spokesman for the 82nd Airborne Division based at Fort Bragg.

"We do dangerous things routinely. We're well-trained and we do them properly, but we're not infallible," Nason said. "Something just went very wrong, and it ended in tragedy." Some witnesses said the pilot of the C-130 appeared to be fighting to keep the transport from hurtling into the grandstand, where military families and dignitaries were watching the annual "Capex" Army and Air Force exercise.

"The crowd was horrified," Nason said. "Five-thousand people all gasped at once, and there were a few screams." The transport was skimming just above a dirt runway to drop a Sheridan tank using LAPES, Nason said.

"The plane flies 5 feet off the ground, and then the load is released," explained Nason. "As soon as the load is clear, the aircraft is supposed to go into a steep climb, which they always do until today. Today it just stayed on the ground."

The four-engine plane careened at 120 mph within 50 yards of the crowded grandstand and crushed several jeeps before splitting apart and slamming into pine trees in a ball of flame.

Four of the crewmen of the plane were killed along with a soldier watching the demonstration on the ground. Two other crewmen were hospitalized.

Air Force Capt. Brian Irving said the plane followed the standard practice of coming in at a 45 degree angle with its wheels down. But, he said, "then it hit the ground — hard. The whole plane hit flat on the bottom."

Some civilian witnesses also detected a difference in this year's exercise; others were too overcome by the sights and smells of the tragedy.

"I've seen these exercises for years, and it was obvious something was wrong," said Tim Newton of Fayetteville, N.C.

IN BRIEF

North Gives Investigators 'Truth' As Fired-Aide Testifies In Secret

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "The truth," perhaps the definitive account of the Iran-Contra scandal, is at last being told by the central figure in President Reagan's worst crisis: Lt. Col. Oliver North.

Less than a week before he is expected to break his public silence at the congressional hearings in the case, the president's fired National Security Council aide went to Capitol Hill late Wednesday in his Marine uniform to answer questions privately from a select group of lawmakers and lawyers.

The proceeding lasted about 90 minutes, and investigators did not give details of his testimony, which was to be offered under oath only on the key question remaining in the controversy: What was the president told about the diversion of money to Nicaraguan Contra rebels from secret U.S. arms sales to Iran?

Yet North, who assured Congress in December that no one more than he wanted to tell the story of what became Reagan's worst crisis, offered two words to reporters who asked him on the way into Wednesday's session what he would say.

"The truth," he replied.

Judge Convicted In Scandal

NEW YORK (UPI) — The chief judge in Queens County was convicted of perjury and criminal contempt in what prosecutors said was partly an attempt to protect John Zaccaro, husband of former Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro.

A state Supreme Court jury in Queens on Wednesday found Francis X. Smith guilty of five counts of perjury and three counts of criminal contempt in a cable television scandal that has resulted in Zaccaro's indictment.

Smith, 65, faces up to seven years in prison at his sentencing Aug. 5. He was suspended from his $84,000-a-year post as supervisor of 50 state judges in Queens upon his indictment in October, and he is no longer drawing his salary.

Smith was found guilty of lying to a grand jury when he denied offering to help Cablevision Systems Inc. obtain the Queens cable TV franchise and of giving "evasive" and "unbelievable" testimony about a dinner with Cablevision officials that he attended with Zaccaro.

Boy-Pilot Crosses Nation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Kevin Hill, the 11-year-old pilot who puttered through thunderstorms and nosebleeds in a "roller-coaster" flight across the nation, has landed full of fire and is already talking about plans to "bounce up and down" on the moon.

Hill landed his Cessna 210 at Washington National Airport in Arlington, Va., Wednesday afternoon, completing a 3,500-mile journey that began last week in Los Angeles and took him through thunderstorms, over the Rockies and into midair turbulence that buffeted the single-engine craft.

Hill hopes the feat lands him in the Guinness Book of World Records. But he doesn't intend to bask in his new success too long — he said he wants to fly around the world by age 13 and eventually become an astronaut.

"I want to walk on the moon and bounce up and down on it," said the resident of Arlington, Texas.

Democratic Candidates Happy With TV Debate

HOUSTON (UPI) — Although none of seven Democratic presidential candidates claimed a clear victory in the campaign's first nationally televised debate, most said the forum may have lifted them from obscurity for voters.

"I think we went from 'The Seven Dwarfs' to 'The Magnificent Seven' tonight," Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt said after the Wednesday forum.

The seven have been labeled "The Seven Dwarfs" because none enjoys widespread voter support and none is a party front runner.

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt said it was hard to judge who came out on top because of the debate format, in which moderators William F. Buckley Jr. and former Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss asked a question of one candidate, then gave the others a chance to also respond.

Jesse Jackson, perhaps the most well-known of the contenders, gained a momentary spotlight in the debate by standing during his closing statement.

Also taking part were Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware and Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois.

Bork Provokes Liberal Wrath

The retirement of Justice Lewis F. Powell hands President Reagan a historic opportunity to leave an enduring conservative stamp on the Supreme Court. The vacancy also sets the stage for a bitter partisan battle between the White House and the Democratic majority in the Senate.

In the wake of Reagan's earlier appointments of conservatives Sandra Day O'Connor and Antonin Scalia, Justice Powell was the pragmatist astride the Supreme Court's ideological chasm. As the critical swing vote on important cases, he sided part of the time with the four conservatives led by Chief Justice William Rehnquist and part of the time with the four liberals led by Justice William J. Brennan.

The "floating center" that Justice Powell represented will likely now be anchored by conservative jurist Judge Robert Bork, President Reagan's choice for the nomination.

A pivotal shift to the right could have far-reaching consequences in deciding such landmark issues as the potential reversal or narrowing of the 1973 ruling legalizing abortion. The future of affirmative action, the death penalty, homosexual issues and school busing to achieve racial integration could all be changed by the court's new direction.

Yet, with only 19 months left to govern, Reagan can anticipate efforts among Senate Democrats to delay, and if possible block, the nomination of Judge Bork. That intention was quickly announced by liberal senators and leaders of various civil rights groups.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, chaired by Democratic presidential contender Joseph Biden of Delaware, is at the forefront of partisan Democratic efforts in Congress to challenge the president's authority on a broad range of topics.

The degree to which the Judiciary Committee has politicized White House appointments to the federal bench is illustrated by deliberate delays in the nomination of Bernard Slegan, a conservative University of San Diego law professor, to a seat on the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. "I think there is a chance of defeating (Slegan) in committee," declares Nancy Broff, the director of a coalition of liberal organizations seeking to overturn Reagan appointees. "The Democrats feel they have to show they can defeat somebody."

With the Democrats now controlling the Senate by a decisive 55-45 majority, the White House cannot be assured of winning approval of Judge Bork. Some Democrats are already suggesting a brazen partisan filibuster to prevent confirmation of the Reagan appointee, thereby deferring until the next president the appointment of Justice Powell's successor.

In the end, Reagan's appointments to the Supreme Court may turn out to be his most lasting legacy — which explains why the emerging confrontation between the White House and the Senate is likely to be a bitter one.

GEORGE McGOVERN

Avoid Democratic 'Centrism', GOP Nonsense

Much has been written recommending that Democrats adopt more conservative positions if they wish to win national elections.

One recent article appeared in The New York Times. It was by Stuart Eizenstat, President Carter's chief domestic policy adviser. Eizenstat is a thoughtful man whose ideas should be considered carefully. Here he argues cogently that in Western Europe the electorates most similar to ours have supported conservative governments in recent years.

Eizenstat believes Democrats have been losing national elections in the United States for the same reason that the Labor Party lost in Britain and the social democratic parties lost in France and Germany.

Liberals in all of these countries are perceived as reducing national defense funding while increasing funding for domestic social programs. The solution for the Democrats, if they are to prevail in 1988, is to take stronger positions on national defense and internationalism and to be more conservative on domestic programs.

Democrats must be wary, says Eizenstat, of presidential contenders who move toward the left in seeking the party's nomination only to discover that the country is more conservative than those who do the nominating.

Without entirely discounting this argument, I think it calls for more examination.

Is it possible that Democrats have been losing elections because of the unpopular byproducts of the very defense posture and internationalism which Eizenstat recommends?

Is it possible that Republicans, and those Democrats who think like Republicans, have intimidated advocates of peace and justice, making it difficult for Americans to see the need for reducing military spending and interventionism while increasing investment in education, housing, transportation and the environment.

I continue to advocate such changes in national priorities, popular or not, and I hope that will be the course taken by Democrats in 1988.

It is ridiculous for this country to spend $300 billion annually on the military when we are not at war.

It is also ridiculous for us to fool around with another Vietnam-type disaster in Nicaragua.

Most ridiculous of all is the Reagan administration's wild deficits stemming from a poorly conceived tax cut and an even more poorly conceived escalation of military spending.

The above are neither liberal nor conservative ideas: They are nonsense and should be repudiated.

Can Democrats sell the country on a different approach: a lean military budget, reasonable increases for education and other domestic needs, and a tax program to begin balancing the budget?

I believe such a program is salable to the American public.

I also believe that when Democrats get us into a Korean War or a Vietnam War or an arms spending orgy, they create the conditions of inflation that make it possible for the Republicans to discredit them as "big spenders."

I hope Democrats won't move to that kind of "centrism" in 1988.

ROBERT WALTERS

Alaska's Bubble Bursts

CHUGIAK, Alaska (NEA) — In the early 1980s, when Alaska was awash in money generated by crude oil, state officials devised an ambitious plan to construct two massive dams spanning the Susitna River.

The project was supposed to provide low-cost hydroelectric power to the three-fifths of the state's residents concentrated in south-central Alaska — a region that includes Anchorage, by far the state's most populous city, and the Kenai Peninsula to its south and the Matanuska-Susitna Valley to its north.

For more than five years, the state government commissioned a seemingly endless series of studies and analyses of the plan. "Every consulting firm in the country probably had a piece of it," says an Anchorage-based journalist.

Last year, however, the project was abandoned as economically infeasible — after the state had spent an estimated $150 million without turning a single shovelful of dirt.

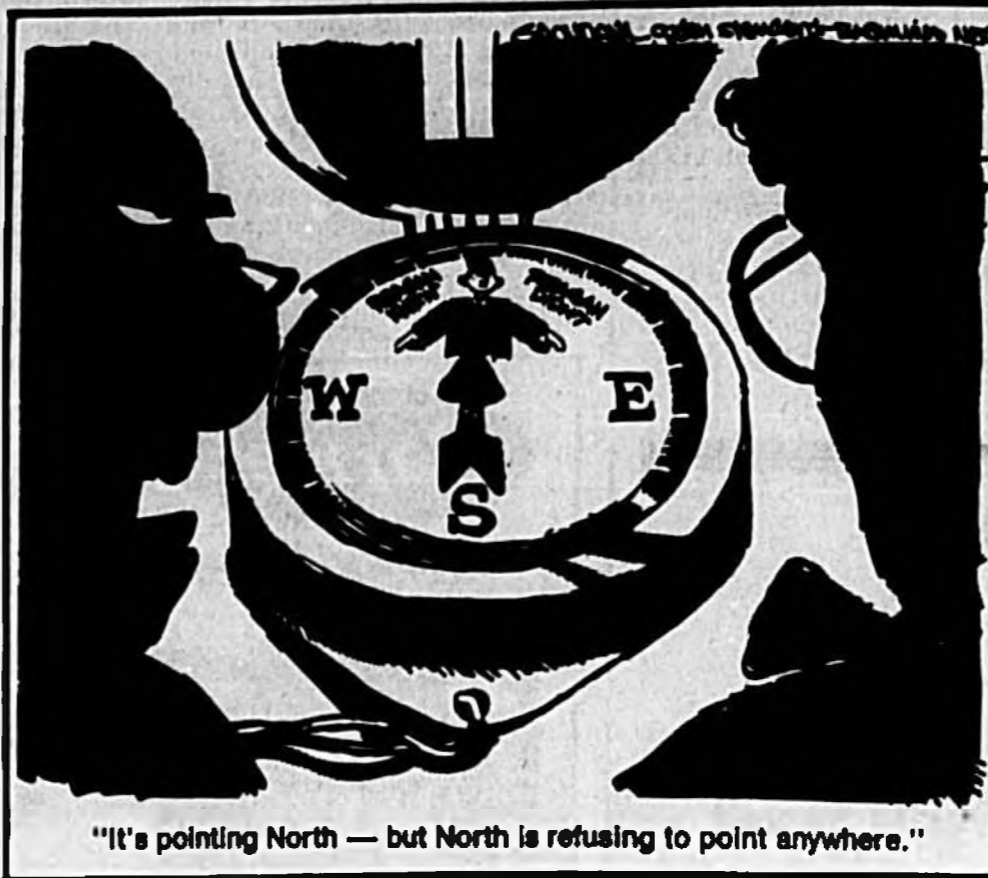

The episode typifies a spendthrift era that began in 1969 when the state received $900 million for oil and gas leases on land it owned adjacent to Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope.

That money was spent in four years, but the real wealth began to flow when oil was discovered on those state tracts and the Alyeska Pipeline was opened on June 20, 1977. Since then, the state has spent $26 billion in crude oil royalties, taxes and investment income.

A substantial portion of the oil windfall was handled wisely. A 1976 law requires that 25 percent of all royalty payments to the state be placed in the Alaska Permanent Fund, a "nest egg" now worth $8 billion.

But much of the money was squandered on projects that were wholly unjustified or absurdly extravagant. "In retrospect," admits Gov. Steve Cowper, "it would have been wiser to have adopted a more restrained public spending policy."

With oil revenues accounting for 80 to 90 percent of all state government income, the budget for the fiscal year that began July 1 has a shortfall of more than $300 million — and Cowper now has been forced to call the legislature into special session to deal with the crisis.

CHUCK STONE

Fight For Democracy

South Korean students have been forced to take to the streets in Seoul to get something Americans take for granted.

Democracy. President Chun Doo Hwan's attempt to tarbrush the students as violent seditionists makes as much sense as King George III calling all the American revolutionaries thugs.

When Americans celebrate their democracy on the Fourth of July, the most violent thing they do is set off firecrackers.

In South Korea, tear gas fired by Darth Vader-garbed police has replaced the firecrackers.

But passions for a two-party democracy are just as intense.

And one way to get it is through revolution.

As Woodrow Wilson once said, "We have forgotten the very principle of our origin if we have forgotten how to object, how to resist, how to agitate, how to pull down and build up, even to the extent of revolutionary practices, if it is necessary to readjust matters."

Readjusting matters to strengthen South Korea's two-party system is what democracy's real allies — the students — have been trying to achieve.

French students achieved a similar readjustment last November when their riots prevented Jacques Chirac's conservative government from overhauling the university system by limiting student admissions.

American students achieved a similar readjustment when their nationwide demonstrations forced a national reassessment of America's military role in Vietnam.

The normally tyrannical President Chun has shown tentative signs of backing down from his policy of massive arrests — not because he has had a change of heart, but because continued military brutality might cause the relocation of the 1988 Olympics, which are scheduled to take place in Korea.

Meanwhile, South Koreans reveal a remarkably disciplined revolutionary zeal.

A wry New York Times headline expressed their cautious methodology concisely:

South Koreans Riot In Night. Then Go Dutifully to Work

That Spartan ability to simultaneously follow two diametrically opposed patterns of behavior without damaging the economy or the ideals of democracy is part of a unique culture that has built one of the world's most flourishing economies.

South Koreans already lead the good life. They also want a good democracy — without Chun's arrogant pretenses.

That's why middle-class, middle-aged, middle-of-the-road adults have joined the student protests with an exhilaration that has astonished even themselves.

Yet, they're baffled by the democratic United States's dogged support for South Korea's undemocratic ways.

Eventually, democracy will come to South Korea — if not through the influence of the U.S.A., then perhaps by the power of the IOC (International Olympic Committee).

Smoking Damages Bladder

By Al Rossiter Jr., UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — People who quit smoking significantly reduce their risk of bladder cancer, but a new study shows the extra risk is not entirely eliminated — suggesting some of the bladder damage from smoking is irreversible.

Many studies over the past 30 years have linked smoking to bladder cancer, but the effects of changes in smoking habits have not been as clear.

Researchers at the National Cancer Institute and 10 other institutions across the nation interviewed 2,982 people who had bladder cancer and compared them with 5,782 who did not in an effort to determine how quitting or switching to filtered cigarettes affected bladder cancer risk.

More than 40,000 Americans develop bladder cancer each year with 71 percent of the cases occurring in men, according to the American Cancer Society. The disease kills 10,600 people annually in the United States.

About half the bladder cancer in men and one-third of the cases in women are blamed on cigarette smoking, according to a report on the new bladder cancer study published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

"Although bladder cancer is hardly the most common danger associated with cigarette smoking, it is an important risk that the typical smoker in the United States faces," the researchers said.

The study found that current smokers on the average faced three times the risk of developing the disease than people who never smoked cigarettes. But those who smoked heavily for 20 years and still smoke had four times the bladder cancer risk of non-smokers.

People who had stopped smoking 10 years or more before the study had about half the bladder cancer risk of current smokers.

Switching to filtered cigarettes also reduced the risk, the study found, but those who only smoked filtered cigarettes had less risk than those who once smoked unfiltered cigarettes and then switched.

The researchers calculated that the estimated annual increase in bladder cancer risk was 0.6 percent per year for those who smoked filtered cigarettes and 1.1 percent per year for those who used only unfiltered brands.

JACK ANDERSON

FDR May Have Known He Was Dying

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — There is growing evidence that President Franklin Delano Roosevelt was told he had inoperable stomach cancer before he ran for re-election in 1944, and picked his vice president accordingly.

We reported in December 1985 on the "Lahey memorandum" — a confidential document written by the late Dr. Frank Lahey, who examined FDR in the late spring of 1944. The memo, which has still not been made public, would settle once and for all the historical question of whether the president knew he was dying when he ran for a fourth term.

Our report rang a bell with Dr. Samuel Day of Jacksonville, Fla., a distinguished surgeon and former president of the Florida Medical Association. But the busy, 73-year-old surgeon didn't write us about it until this spring.

In his letter, Day recalled a visit in the late 1950s by an old friend and internationally known cancer surgeon, Dr. George Pack.

"One night," Day wrote us, "he related a story, which had been told to him by Dr. Frank Lahey (head of the famed Lahey Clinic in Boston). It seems that President Roosevelt and his entourage came to Boston by special train to see Dr. Lahey prior to his final race for re-election in 1944.

"After intensive studies at the Lahey Clinic it was found that he had advanced cancer of the stomach. I am sure that was the stated site, as I was surprised at never having heard of any of FDR's 'stomach ailments' before that.

"Dr. Lahey told Dr. Pack that he related the findings to the president and told him he was a very sick man and he could not advise him to run for office again.

"Mr. Roosevelt was said to have replied, 'Well, I AM running,' to which Dr. Lahey replied, 'Well, Mr. President, I would suggest that you take on a strong vice president.' It was apparently understood that this was TOP SECRET information and nothing was published detrimental to the president."

In 1965, Pack visited Florida again and Day asked if he had heard anything more about the FDR incident. Day quotes his friend as saying: "I spoke to Dick Cattell (Dr. Richard Cattell, Lahey's successor) and he seemed upset by my inquiry.

"He (Cattell) was quite short with me, saying that was confidential information and will not be released." Pack said he argued that since both FDR and Lahey were then dead, the information should be released. But he said Cattell "angrily dismissed the subject with, 'It will NOT be!'"

Our associate Les Whitten tried to get independent confirmation of Day's hearsay evidence. But Pack and Cattell are dead, and FDR's records at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center disappeared long ago.

The secret memo we wrote about is in the possession of Lahey's longtime aide, Linda Strand, now in her 90s. Her lawyers said she has ordered the memo released only after her death, when it will be given to the FDR Library in Hyde Park, N.Y.

In a 1977 article in the medical journal Surgery, Gynecology & Obstetrics, Dr. Harry Goldsmith, a New Hampshire physician, wrote that in 1963 Pack had told him much the same thing Day wrote to us, and that another doctor, Andrew Kiley, a California surgeon, told Goldsmith he had heard Pack make the same statement on two occasions. FDR was losing weight — a symptom of metastasizing abdominal cancer — had no appetite and suffered frequent, severe stomach aches. His death in April 1945, was officially attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage. There was no autopsy.

Footnote: Shortly before he died, Justice William O. Douglas told us that FDR had given Democratic National Chairman Robert Hannegan two choices to replace Vice President Henry Wallace in the 1944 election. Douglas was FDR's first choice. Sen. Harry Truman was his second. But because he knew Truman was more acceptable to the politicians, Hannegan reversed the order of the names when he passed them on to the national convention, which dutifully nominated Truman.

Longwood Interviewing Attorney Candidates

Sanford Herald, Sanford, Fl. Thursday, July 2, 1987-5A

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole's Assistant County Attorney Lonnie Groot Tuesday withdrew his name from consideration for the job of Longwood city attorney, moving alternate Miles A. Lance of Dunedin up into the top three chosen to be interviewed at 7 p.m. today at city hall by the city commission.

Groot said he withdrew because the county attorney and deputy county attorney asked him to stay in his present job. "I like working for these folks and feel loyalty for the people here," he said.

Lance has been an attorney on the Clearwater city attorney's staff for two years. He has been a member of the Florida and American bar associations for 10 years; and received his law degree from the State University of New York at Buffalo in 1962. From 1963 to 1985, he was in private practice and also employed on the county attorney's staff of Niagra County, N.Y., and was attorney for the Niagra County Board of Health.

The other two finalists recommended to the commission by an ad hoc committee of three lawyers are Daniel R. Vaughn of DeLand, assistant county attorney in Volusia County for eight years, and Sam Stafford of Gainesville, assistant county attorney for Alachua County for five years. Vaughn, 48, has been general counsel for Nautilus Sports/Medical Industries, Inc. since September 1984, but his position has been eliminated because the company has been sold and the new owners are moving its headquarters to Dallas. He has been a member of the Florida and Volusia County bar associations since 1964. After graduation from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in May, 1964, he practiced law in DeLand and Daytona Beach before serving with the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's Corps. He has served as counsel for the DeLand Housing Authority and was formerly municipal judge for the city of DeLand. Stafford, 45, was assistant district counsel for the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services in Orlando for two years prior to moving to Gainesville five years ago. The screening committee was composed of Interim City Attorney Ann Colby, who resigned as Longwood city attorney effective June 15 to go into private practice in Orlando; Paul Gougelman III, a Longwood resident, who has substituted for Colby as legal advisor to the city in her absence, and his wife, Maureen Sikora, an attorney who is chairman of the city's Code Enforcement Board.

Friends Of Library Donate $9,000 For Used Book Store

The Friends of the Seminole County Public Library System have donated $9,000 to furnish a used bookstore at the Central Branch Library under construction in Casselberry on Oxford Road. The branch is scheduled to open in the spring of 1988.

Friends of the Library is a private group which assists the county libraries in obtaining books, equipment, and other special items. The group is to operate the used bookstore to raise money for all branches of the library system. Casselberry and Sanford branch replacement facilities are under construction and three additional branches are to be built. Anyone wishing to join the Friends of the Library can pick up an application at the Casselberry branch in Seminole Plaza, Sanford Branch in downtown Sanford, or Bookmobile.

IN THE SERVICE

VIRGIL T. GRANT

Marine Pfc. Virgil T. Grant, son of Deloris D. and Earnest Grant Jr. of 2029 Airport Blvd., Sanford, has completed recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot Parris Island, S.C.

During the 11-week training cycle, Grant was taught the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

A 1985 graduate of Lake Mary High School, he joined the Marine Corps in March 1987.

GARY R. GONTERMAN

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Gary R. Gonterman, son of Gary R. and Mardell L. Gonterman of 819 Cherokee Circle, Sanford, has completed the Advanced First Term Avionics (aviation electronics) course.

During the 26-week course at the Naval Air Technical Training Center Millington, Tenn., Gonterman studied airborne communications, fire control systems and anti-submarine warfare systems. In addition to the technology of these systems, he studied mathematics, physics, electronic theory and the operating principles of digital and analog computers.

A 1983 graduate of Seminole High School, he joined the Navy in March 1986. His wife, Linda, is the daughter of Edward A. and Dolores Rinkavage of 2715 Country Club Road, also of Sanford.

MARK I. OUTLAW

Marine Lance Cpl. Mark I. Outlaw, son of Sara K. Young of 1805 Mellonville Ave., Sanford, recently reported for duty with 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

DAN J. KAPLON

Navy Seaman Recruit Dan J. Kaplon, son of Edward J. and Angeline F. Kaplon of 3455 Springview, Sanford, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During Kaplon's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic fields.

Kaplon's studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

A 1980 graduate of Palatine High School, Palatine, he joined the Navy in October 1986.

MICHAEL H. MATLOCK

Marine Lance Cpl. Michael H. Matlock, son of H.R. Matlock of 1430 Guinevere Drive, Casselberry, recently participated in the Mountain Warfare Training Center Evolution, Unit Operations Package with 1st Battalion, 1st Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, CA.

The operation is divided into four incremental phases. Phase one includes bivouac procedures, day and night skiing, snowshoeing techniques, arctic nuclear biological chemical warfare, tactics and survival shelters.

Phase two and three emphasizes squad and platoon sized tactical movements, patrolling and route reconnaissance, and specialized instruction in avalanche search and rescue.

Phase four combines what has been learned into a Battalion Field Exercise.

A 1985 graduate of North Kansas City High School, Kansas City, MO, he joined the Marine Corps in April 1986.

Yanks Sweep Blue Jays, 6-1

TORONTO (UPI) — The New York Yankees threw a damper on the Canada Day celebration Wednesday in Toronto. Wayne Tolleson singled in Claudell Washington from third base to spark a five-run 12th inning that carried the Yankees to a 6-1 victory over the Blue Jays and a sweep of their three-game series. The first place Yankees, who moved three games ahead of the second place Blue Jays in the American League East, have won 12 of 16 since the Blue Jays swept a three-game series in New York. "Revenge is a word you could use," Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly said. "They embarrassed us. They just came in and beat up on us. It's nice to get them back."

Toronto's Jimmy Key hurled a strong seven-plus innings Wednesday night but the Yankees pulled out a 12-inning victory to move three games ahead of the Blue Jays.

'Mates Criticize Strawberry

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry was criticized by his teammates Wednesday night for missing two games against the St. Louis Cardinals. Strawberry says the flu prevented him from playing Tuesday and Wednesday night and he required a penicillin injection Tuesday. However, before Tuesday's game against the National League East leaders the power-hitting right fielder worked in a recording studio on a rock video. Mets utilityman Lee Mazzilli, serving as team spokesman, admonished Strawberry on a pregame telecast Wednesday night. "I'm a little upset and the rest of the team is, too," he said in an interview on WWOR-TV. "Tuesday's game was probably the most important game of the season for the Mets."

Mumphrey's HR Saddles Sebra With 14-K Setback

United Press International Jerry Mumphrey saved Cubs Manager Gene Michael from making what would have been a tough decision. Mumphrey belted a home run with one out in the ninth inning Wednesday night to help Chicago to a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Expos and make a winner of Greg Maddux. Maddux, who had not pitched into the ninth inning all season, hurled a four-hitter for his first complete game. Had Mumphrey not belted his sixth homer of the season, Maddux might not have lasted much longer. "I could have gone on much further," said Maddux, 21, the youngest player in the National League. "I felt fine and I wasn't tired. But it wouldn't have been my decision."

Instead, Michael did not have to make any decision and Maddux improved to 5-7. Mumphrey's homer spoiled a 14-strikeout, three-hit performance by Bob Sebra, 4-9. "Both pitchers were outstanding," Michael said. "But my pitcher really impressed me. Maddux is only 21 and has a fine arm. He is improving game by game. He still makes mistakes, but takes the advice of the coaches. They are trying to help him smooth out his pitches. He is strong and has a fine future."

Jim Eisenreich vindicated himself against the team that believed he could not handle pressure situations. Eisenreich, who has been out of professional baseball the past two years because of a nervous disorder which made him twitch, delivered a pinch single in the clutch Wednesday night to lift the Kansas City Royals to a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

The Twins gave up on Eisenreich after discovering his nervous disorder made it difficult for him to perform under pressure. Instead of diagnosing his illness correctly and treating it, Twins doctors insisted Eisenreich's problem was psychological and the club became convinced he would never play major league baseball again. Eisenreich, though, discovered his problem could be kept under control with proper medication and set out to make a comeback. Claimed by the Royals on waivers last year, he turned in an impressive spring training and opened the season at Memphis. He was leading the Southern League in batting when he was called up on June 17.

He had managed only one hit in 12 at-bats prior to getting the call from Royals' manager Billy Gardner to hit for Angel Salazar in the ninth. Eisenreich hit a 2-2 pitch off Keith Atherton, 4-3, just short of the left center field wall to score Buddy Biancalana from first base with the winning run. "It was a big enough win for me," Eisenreich said. "You couldn't hope for anymore than that." "You have to give it to Ely," Gardner said. "It may have been a gamble, but I had to give the guy some time. It was a good way to win." Even Twin's pitcher Frank Viola was proud of his former teammate.

Women's Groups Praise NCAA Decision To Save Scholarships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women's groups praised the NCAA's decision to preserve athletic scholarships in 21 men's and women's sports, but say more needs to be done to ensure full equality for women in collegiate sports.

"Our reaction is that we are certainly pleased that the NCAA declined to cut disproportionately women's scholarships," Ellen Vargyas, a lawyer with the National Women's Law Center, said Wednesday. "But we think much still has to be done. Women should have access to 50 percent of the athletic scholarships offered. Currently, women have access to far fewer scholarships than men."

Women currently account for only 36 percent of the total number of scholarships offered under NCAA rules.

Delegates to the NCAA's special convention in Dallas Tuesday tabled a proposal, called Proposition 18, from the powerful NCAA Presidents Commission that would have cut 27 scholarships in 21 men's and women's Division I sports, but would spare all 95 scholarships for football.

Women's groups maintained the cuts would have disproportionately impacted women's sports. A study conducted by University of Texas Women's Athletic Director Donna Lopiano found Proposition 18 would have caused a 10.4 percent reduction in women's sports and a 6.5 percent reduction in men's sports.

"It's a great day for us. We're thrilled," Women's Sports Foundation Executive Director Deborah Anderson said. "It gives us hope for women's sports and college sports in general."

"It's fantastic," said Sue Mottinger, the executive director of the National Association for Girls and Women in Sport.

Puerto Rico Ponders Knight

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — The Puerto Rican government is still considering whether to seek extradition of Indiana University basketball coach Bob Knight, an official said Wednesday.

Commonwealth Justice Department spokeswoman Flor de Maria Rodriguez told United Press International that Secretary of Justice Hector Rivera Cruz has not set a date when he will announce a decision.

"The secretary is analyzing the case," she said. Knight was sentenced in absentia to six months' imprisonment in 1979 for assaulting a police officer at the Pan American Games. Knight has repeatedly claimed he tried to defend himself when pushed by a police officer.

Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon asked the justice secretary last week to study the possibility of asking Knight's extradition, based on a June 23 Supreme Court opinion in a Puerto Rico appeal of another case. The ruling said federal courts have the power to order state governors to comply with extradition petitions.

The incident involving Knight occurred during practice at the Pan Am Games, where he led the United States to a gold medal. He left the island before the trial.

Puerto Rico Olympic Committee Chairman German Rieckeoff favors dropping the issue to prevent bad publicity for the 320-member delegation Puerto Rico will send to the Pan Am Games in Indianapolis this August.

Ocoee Drops Oviedo In 7th, 7-6

Ocoee pushed across an unearned run in the bottom of the seventh inning to hand Oviedo a 7-6 setback in its final Big League baseball game of the season Wednesday night at Ocoee.

Oviedo finished 13-5. Right-hander Scott Bowers, who was plagued by a shoddy defense in the second when Ocoee erupted for six runs, allowed eight hits, no walks and struck out nine. Ocoee's winning run scored on a throwing error.

Glenn Reichle hammered a two-run homer and singled in another run. Jon Cox slugged a solo homer while Mike Kelly singled twice and drove in a run. Marty Martin added a double while Robbie King and Gary Pelczar each had singles.

Williams Draws Fine, Probation

HOUSTON (UPI) — Kevin Williams of the Seattle SuperSonics was fined $400 and given one year probation resulting from an incident at a nightclub while charges against teammate Dale Ellis were dismissed, a judge ruled Wednesday.

Williams, 25, pleaded no contest to charges of resisting arrest stemming from an altercation May 3 in which he allegedly struck the assistant manager at the Ocean Club, a Houston nightclub. He was given a year deferred adjudication, meaning if he has no violations for a year, he'll have no record.

Ellis, 26, was charged with hindering an arrest for interfering with uniformed, off-duty Houston police officers working security at the club.

Trevino Looks For Turnaround

TORONTO (UPI) — Lee Trevino, who has made the cut in only three of nine tournaments this year, says he expects a turnaround beginning today at the $850,000 Canadian Open at Glen Abbey.

Trevino, who captured the Open in 1971, '77 and '79, finished fourth at the Hartford Open last week.

"I like this course and I love coming to Canada," Trevino, 47, said. "I feel great and I'm here with a lot of confidence after the way I hit in Hartford. Maybe nothing will happen, but I'm going in with a lot of confidence."

Last year, Bob Murphy overcame a strained back to capture the Open, ending a victory drought that had lasted 11 years — the longest in PGA history.

Peterson Returns To Win Site

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Lauri Peterson, trying to end a three-year LPGA championship drought, returns to the site of her last victory Thursday when the $225,000 Jamie Farr Classic opens at the Glengarry Country Club.

Peterson, who turns 27 Monday, won the inaugural event in 1984 by two shots over Nancy Lopez but has not captured an LPGA event since. Penny Hammel won in 1985, and the tournament was not held last year because Toledo's Inverness Club hosted the PGA Championship.

"I have a real good feeling about this course," said Peterson, who has won $51,765 in 1987 and is 32nd on the money list. "Glengarry's a real test of golf."

Voss Whips Monacelli, 245-219

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Brian Voss of Tacoma, Wash., beat Amleto Monacelli of Venezuela 245-219 Wednesday night to win the $117,500 Southern California Open.

Voss, who earned $17,000 for the victory, becomes the second two-time winner on the PBA Tour this year, joining Randy Pedersen of Santa Maria, Calif.

"When you lead a tournament, you feel like you should win it," Voss said. "This will be my most memorable tournament." Voss said after the match.

It was Monacelli's seventh runner-up finish without a title and his third second-place performance of the year.

Mustang Stars Come Out Tonight

By Mike Dame
Special to the Herald

WINTER SPRINGS — Play in the Seminole Pony League Mustang Division has come down to one last showdown — the American and National League all-stars.

The rosters for both squads were completed this week, and with the talent on these two teams, the three-game all-star series promises to be a very exciting one.

The best-of-three series between the two all-star teams begins tonight at 6 at Five Points. Play will continue on Friday at the same time. If necessary, a winner-take-all game will be played Saturday. Time to be announced.

Gary Burger, who managed Johnstown Properties to the division title, will manage the National squad. John Church and Dave Hudick are the coaches.

Casselberry Southeast Auto dominates the team with the most selections: Mike DeVoss, Brian Lowe, Eddie Wilson, Brad Butterfield, Michael Johnson and Stuart Robinson.

Baseball

Winter Springs Johnstown Properties chipped in five all-stars: Kiley Calapa, Aaron Church, Dusty Curry, Shawn Earnest and Shawn Burger.

Jamie Pitzer (Sanford), Brian Wilcox (Lake Mary), Michael Hoelle (Lake Mary), Gabe Lovass (Longwood) and Jimmy Parran (Winter Springs) complete the National team.

Sobik's Subs manager Mark Kleibl will oversee the American team. Steve Goodman, John Guemple and Del Story will be the coaches.

Sobik's led the squad with five picks: "Bubba" Lamb, Jimmy Guemple, Cris Kleibl, Dusty Story and Scott Trimmer.

Ten other players complete the American roster: Jeff Chenut (Sanford), Brian Luger (Winter Springs), Jon Mallozzi (Casselberry), Carlos Martinez (Casselberry), Tommy Powers (Lake Mary), Tony Morgan (Lake Mary), Tony Hammett (Lake Mary), Brian Dwyer (Sanford), Michael Goodall (Winter Springs) and Cornell Daniels (Sanford).

Some of the big bats for the Nationals will be Church, Butterfield and Earnest. Earnest held an average of .647 for the season and is the leading hitter on the team, while Church is right behind him with an average of .640.

The National squad also has a strong pitching staff, led by Church, Johnson and Calapa will also pitch for the team, with Calapa pitching mostly in a relief situation.

On the other side of the field, Kleibl has his squad prepared to play a solid all-around game.

"We're well-balanced all up and down the lineup," Kleibl said.

Kleibl feels that the balance of his team could cause problems for the Nationals.

"We don't have an easy out," Kleibl said.

"We'll put the ball into play and they'll have to make the play."

Two of the Americans' strongest hitters are Story and Kleibl, with Kleibl hitting .678 for the season.

launched a towering home run to left center to cut the lead to 12-8. Henderson then walked the next hitter and gave up consecutive singles to load the bases with one out. Henderson then reached back and struck out Justin Wright for the second out and the final out came when catcher Williams tossed to Henderson covering who tagged Gray out after a passed ball.

"I felt pretty good but I got down a couple times," Henderson said. "But my teammates talked to me and got me settled down. When we came back tonight, we had to play like did the first two games instead of the first game today."

Anderson took over as manager for Otis Raines Wednesday night because Raines had work obligations.

"Otis just told the kids to go out and play hard," Anderson said. "And that's what they did. It was an all-around good team effort."

In Wednesday's first game, Leesburg built a 7-2 lead behind ace pitcher Wright and never looked back en route to a 9-4 victory. Henderson's two-run homer brought Sanford within 7-4 in the fifth but Leesburg scored two in the top of the sixth and Wright got out of the bottom of the inning without any trouble to force the second winner-take-all game.

Market Up, Trading Moderate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher Thursday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 8.77 Wednesday, was up 18.33 to 2428.09 shortly after the market opened. Advances led declines 662-243 among the 1,295 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 12,396,100 shares.

The stock market slipped in sluggish trading Wednesday in a session dominated by profit taking.

Analysts said profit taking hurt prices and would probably continue to pressure them Thursday, the last trading day before the market closes for the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

Unemployment Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 6.1 percent in June, the best showing since 1979, because the labor force shrank more than usual, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

The government said the rate appeared to go down in large part because fewer young people than normal had entered the labor force by the time it surveyed the job market in June.

An estimated 119.2 million people were in the civilian labor force, 476,000 fewer than in May, the government said.

Pupo said the president of Channel 55 said his station carries quite a bit — about 40 percent — of the programs being offered on PTL Television Network.

"We've had some calls from people objecting to the decision to cancel PTL, but haven't been deluged," Pupo said. "I assume we are going to get more now that the news is out. Obviously, we hate to drop any channel."

As for a replacement, Pupo said, "Nothing is definite, we are looking at a couple of options, but haven't signed any contract."

He said there are no plans to drop any other religious channels.

Cablevision of Central Florida, which serves 100,000 subscribers in Orange and Seminole, does not carry the PTL Network, but The PTL Club is seen on WTGL, which the company carries. Another area Christian station, WIYE, was recently dropped by Cablevision.

would do mowing and landscaping for the city. The mechanic's helper would assist city mechanic Rick Jursa with minor maintenance work and would be paid $10,792, about half of Jursa's salary of $20,811.

The proposed building inspector would receive a $19,045-a-year salary and the proposed public works employee would receive $10,792. The proposed patrol officer would earn $15,830 per year. His salary and a proposed police car would come out of impact fees from the city's 186-acre Primera commercial development.

Also included in the budget is a proposal of $20,000 to restore and clean out the city's polluted Crystal Lake. Commissioners recently gave Norris permission to include projected funds for the cleanup in the budget. The city had applied for a beach permit at Crystal Lake earlier this year and was denied the permit based on the testing of the lake. The commission authorized Norris to advertise for bids for a study of Crystal Lake.

Conservatives cheered the decision, hopeful that by replacing Powell as the crucial vote in many 5-4 decisions, their views will dominate the nation's highest court long after Reagan leaves office.

Reagan ended five days of speculation about a successor to Powell by picking the man that senior White House officials said was "at the top of everybody's list" right from the start. Officials said a final decision was postponed as a political judgment in deference to various senators pushing other nominees.

Bork, 60, is a former Yale University law professor who shares Reagan's strict constructionist view of the Constitution and has criticized Supreme Court rulings on issues such as civil rights, affirmative action and abortion.

The president praised his man Wednesday as "a premier constitutional authority" and urged the Democratic-led Senate to speed confirmation hearings so the court returns to full strength before its fall session begins Oct. 5.

"I have every expectation (the Senate) will do so," Reagan said at a brief appearance in the White House with Bork, who left without saying a word. "In taking this action today, I'm mindful of the importance of this nomination."

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., promised his panel would conduct "full, thorough and fair" hearings, but he indicated at a news conference in Houston that a bitter battle could be brewing.

"Unless Judge Bork can demonstrate to me that he comes to the court with more of an open mind than I think he has, I will have some problems," Biden said.

Echoing most of Bork's opponents and supporters by casting the pending debate in momentous terms, Biden said he had met with administration officials to press for a nominee in Powell's mold — "conservative with an open mind."

"I told them I wasn't at all certain Justice Bork fit that mold," he said.

She said she and their six children suffered through a great deal of embarrassment and pain during her husband's notorious drinking days. "But we got through it with treatment," she said. "I feel treatment is education and that is the key to drug and alcohol abuse."

Her husband said that when brother Jimmy first got into politics, he was left to run the family peanut business and became a "social" drinker for many years with one unsuccessful try to give it up. He said his brother's presidency fueled his drinking problem in that he was constantly traveling and giving talks as the president's brother and found himself drinking liquor 12 hours a day and admitted "I was completely in hog's heaven," with that much alcohol around.

He told the story of an airplane trip from Washington D.C. to Georgia in which he and friends were drinking vodka and tonic. When that ran out, they turned to gin, he said. When that ran out, he said, someone desperately pointed to a case of "Billy Beer." The audience roared with laughter.

But what wasn't a laughing matter was the hurt Carter said he caused his family. He said he reluctantly agreed to a three-week treatment program at the Long Beach Naval Hospital where former alcoholic Betty Ford had been treated. He said he stayed eight weeks because he was a slow learner, but admitted he went through great agony before his recovery.

Carter, who works for a modular home company in Georgia, said that when he was drinking, he could forget his problems; but now he deals with them. He said the nicest thing about being sober is keeping his family together.

"I'm proud of that," he said, along with "remembering what I did the night before."

The open house was held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with lunch at noon and visitors toured the 100-bed center which officially opened May 18. It is located at 1098 Sand Pond Road on a 5.5 acre site off Interstate 4. Zydek said the facility has more than 20 patients and has even "graduated" a few already. "It's (the facility) worthwhile and people are getting help." He said their corporation motto is "We care for people."

Besides the free lunch, Zydek said, CompCare is offering a free cab-ride home from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. to anyone who does not want to drive after drinking during the 4th of July weekend which includes Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The number to call is 1-800-433-3691.

"This is our way of saying we're with you to do our part," he said.

engineering work for the project already, and Simmons has said that it would be less time-consuming to let them sub-contract with Donald W. McIntosh Associates of Winter Park to do the survey as part of the city's contract. If the city chose another route they might not even have a contract by the time they need to have the survey completed, Simmons said.

At a work session Monday, commissioners balked at the $60,000 price and asked Simmons to check what other firms would charge.

"That seems like an awful lot of money," said Mayor Bettye Smith.

Simmons said marshland on the property is one reason the price tag is so high.

But, "If you do a boundary survey on any property this large you're going to pay this kind of price," Simmons said.

...Twins

Longwood.

Both started playing basketball in middle school and were top players by high school. They are now seniors at the University of South Carolina. Their return engagement at Lake Mary is to come Thanksgiving weekend when they play for USC in the Ladies Sunshine Basketball Tournament.

The tournament is the starting game of the season for the twins. Bill Moore, former basketball coach for Lake Mary High and now assistant principal, said this is the eighth year the tournament has been held at Lake Mary High School. Moore said that, in addition to USC, Drake University, Auburn University, and Providence College will play.

"It's the largest independent basketball tournament in the country," Moore said. "Every year at least one of the top 10 teams in the nation plays in the tournament."

"We're really excited about coming back to play at our old high school," Peggy said. "When we were in high school, we came to see the college teams playing (in past tournaments). It intimidated me because the players looked faster and stronger, but it also motivated me and made me work harder."

"We started playing basketball in the seventh grade at Milwee Middle School," Laura said. "My best friend, who was also the shortest girl in the class, talked us into trying out. She made the team, too. But we didn't enjoy playing that year."

"That's right," said Peggy. "We had a real losing season. In fact, we didn't win a single game all year."

"But then the next year we went to Rock Lake Middle School," Laura said. "We had already decided that we didn't want to play, but Coach Mike Averill encouraged us to give the game another chance. That year we played with the same girls we ended up playing with at Lake Mary."

"But we lost our interest again when we played for Lyman High School," said Peggy. "We were ready to forget about the game by the time we were sophomores. We transferred to Lake Mary High School and basketball didn't seem important anymore."

"Plus we didn't think we had the time for it anymore," Laura said. "We were too busy — singing in the church choir, modeling, working at Disney, and dancing with the Seminole Singers."

"But Coach Moore convinced us to try out for the team and give it a chance," Peggy said. "So we did and we loved it."

"Bill Moore was so supportive. When we were seniors, he and his wife drove us and three other girls to Maryland Blue Stars Camp. It's like a college basketball recruiting camp. You play games and drills for a week on a big court. Above the court is a balcony where the college coaches can watch you and take notes."

"There was a lot of interest in us after that," Laura said. "We got boxes and boxes of letters, but we were only interested in schools on the East Coast."

"When we decided to go to USC, we knew that they already had a fantastic team," said Laura. "But we decided to go there anyway because it's a big basketball school and they really care about their athletes. During our freshmen and sophomore years we were both support players. Then last year Peggy played forward and center on the starting line-up while I sat out the season. I caught hepatitis last summer and the doctor told me it would be a year before I fully recovered."

This fall will be the first time the twins will compete against each other for the same team position — center.

"It's going to be a big year of competition for us," Laura said. "But we don't feel the competition between us will hurt us. We both know how to be a good sport."

Laura said she and Peggy rarely fight and when they do it's usually over something small. "I think we probably fight less than two sisters who aren't twins," said Laura. "But we do have our disagreements from time to time. It's to be expected."

Both women love to play basketball, but Laura said she feels there are drawbacks to being a woman and playing in college sports. Laura said that she feels men in basketball get more support and more coverage in the news than the women players.

"We (the women's team) had a winning Metro-championship season last year," Laura said. "The men's team at USC had a losing season. But they still got more publicity than we did."

"The men at USC stay in the athletic dorm and get better food than we do. Men athletes get babbed and the women have to fend for themselves."

Although Laura and Peggy share many common interests like basketball, modeling, and dancing, they like to feel that they have their own identity. Laura is more blunt than her twin and likes to be in the limelight. Peggy is always even-tempered and a better student at Math.

"Being a twin and trying to be a person in your own right is hard at times," Peggy said. "In middle school everyone thought of us as a unit. The kids were always asking, 'Where's your other half?' So we've always tried to dress differently and be our own person."

Laura and Peggy's parents got divorced when the twins were 5. Their father, Horace Glass, is a graphics arts designer and lives in New Hampshire. Their mother, Patay, works in the sales department at WESH-TV as a secretary and receptionist. Their stepfather, Don Rodgers, is a plant supervisor for Cardinal Industries. They have three older sisters: Debi, 30, Cathy, 28, and Ruth, 25.

"My mom has always encouraged us to be different," Laura said. "I guess we had distinct personalities even when we were babies. When we first came home from the hospital, Mom kept our hospital bracelets on for the first few weeks. But one day we were playing and they came off. But mom said that by then she could tell us apart and didn't need them anymore anyway."

The twins will graduate in June, 1988; Peggy with a bachelor's degree in Hotel, Restaurant, and Tourist Administration and Laura with a bachelor's in Advertising and Public Relations. Both want to return to Orlando and work here.

"Peggy and I worked for Disney when we were in high school, dancing in the parades," said Laura. "I'd like to work for Disney's Vista Productions when I graduate."

"Orlando's a great place to look for a job with a degree like mine," Peggy said. "We'll just keep our fingers crossed that there are openings when we graduate next spring."

Although the sisters both love the game, they said that they wouldn't want to play professionally.

"When we graduate next year, that will be the end of it for us as far as basketball is concerned," Laura said. "We are both looking forward to starting our respective careers."

going over the books and thinks at the end of the fiscal year the city will be between $100,000 and $250,000 to the good.

Furthermore, she said, the prospects for a proper audit of the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, are dim because a verified balance from last year is not available and the same procedures are being followed by city staff.

She said the financial statement prepared by Longwood Financial Director Barry Weeks is not giving detailed information and can't be tested against the general ledger. Weeks said all accounts but one could be verified at the end of June, but Hoefler disagreed. Weeks said, "There is a 99 percent chance except for one that by July 15 we could verify everything by the penny." But Hoefler again disagreed.

She blamed part of the problem on the computer system, which she said is either not being used properly or has a glitch.

Hoefler said some of the control procedures in the computer system are being overridden by the city to allow one-sided journal entries and two-sided entries are needed in order to have an audit trail.

Smerilson said, "We need to get the system to modern day technology, this system should be junked. It has been customized and band-aided. We need one that is user-friendly."

Hoefler said she had been trying to get the general ledger in balance, but there were not debit and credit entries and had been comparing the bank statements against the ledger for the 45 different bank accounts and only gotten through one. She said there is not enough cross training in the financial area among city employees, so when someone is on vacation it leaves a gap.

She said there is $178,000 listed in accounts payable, but since there is no detail listing, it can't be substantiated. The inventory lists $3,100,000 in fixed asset items, but there is no indication how much individual items cost, depreciation, or what their condition or current value is. Hoefler said there is a lot of clutter in the office and papers should be filed better for documentation.

Hoefler said there is a fixed asset program in the computer but it is not being utilized.

Mayor Ed Myers said when the finance director was hired the commission thought was going to do what Hoefler was recommending.

"There is a lot of responsibility for a finance director doing retrospective and prospective accounting, budgets and bond issues," she said. "It's a very big job and he should be able to delegate some things to others." She said in her opinion "Barry has been doing too much on his own rather than delegating."

"I don't believe everything a finance director should be able to do has been done. Maybe there is no one to delegate to or he is unwilling to delegate."

Iacocca: Broke Law Of Common Sense

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee A. Iacocca insisted no law was broken but the "law of common sense" when the company disengaged odometers of cars driven by executives then sold them as new, even those that were damaged.

Trying to restore customer faith shaken by indictments returned last week against Chrysler and two top executives, Iacocca hastily called a news conference Wednesday and announced a program of extended warranties and free repairs for the unknowing buyers of the cars in question.

For cars that were allegedly damaged during testing procedures, Chrysler will offer owners a new car of comparable value, he said.

Faithfuls Are Out In Front In National Fidelity Derby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I sent a postcard in response to your survey asking, "Have you ever cheated on your mate?" Please tell us how that survey is coming.

BOTH FAITHFUL IN JUNEAU, ALASKA

DEAR FAITHFUL: The response has been overwhelming! So far the results show that not everybody is cheating. Far from it! The scales are tipped in favor of the "faithfuls." Most "faithfuls" are over 40, and have been together for 25 years or longer. The eldest couple has been married for 72 years. He's 91 and she's 88. The youngest have been married 3 months. He's 21, she's 19.

More men than women admitted to cheating. (I've been asked, "Can it be that the women are lying and the men are bragging?" To which I respond: It's doubtful; there's no reason to lie in an anonymous voluntary survey.)

Last chance for those who would like to be a part of this survey. Send a letter or postcard to Abby's Survey, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Please indicate whether you are male or female, your age, and how long you've been together. You need not sign your name.

DEAR ABBY: Back in 1942, when I was 18 years old, I had an affair. He was 21. It lasted two years. World War II was raging. He went to war and we went our separate ways.

I never forgot him. I married someone else and had two children. He married and had four. Although we lived in the same town, we never saw each other until three years ago when we met by chance in a drugstore. We spoke briefly about what we had been doing in the past, said goodbye and never saw each other again, until nine months ago when out of the blue he called me and asked to see me again.

We met in a parking lot. That night, sitting in his car, he took me in his arms and we both knew that old feeling was still there. I know I still love him, and he said he still loves me. This has been going on for nine months — at least once a month. (No sex involved.) I've never done anything like this before and he said he never had either. We can't believe this is happening to us after 45 years. We've both been married for 41 years. I would never leave my husband for him and he would never leave his wife. All we want to do is meet occasionally and hold each other in our arms and experience that old feeling again.

TRUE STORY, KEEP ME NAMELESS

DEAR TRUE STORY: Write again in a year and let me know if you're still in a "holding pattern."

DEAR ABBY: I have kept a diary — never missed a day — since Jan. 1, 1933. I'll be 69 this year and have been sorting out my belongings and dividing them for my three children.

My problem is what to do with all these diaries. There are some things I wrote that could hurt some feelings, but it is also a record of my thoughts and activities of my life and the lives of family members. Much of it could even be boring to them.

Should I burn them all? Or give them to my eldest? I am still writing every day — it's a habit.

MRS. G. IN ST. JOSEPH, MO.

DEAR MRS. G.: Don't burn them! Regardless of what they contain, they are a part of history. But why should the eldest inherit them all? Perhaps the youngest or middle child would have more interest in them. Discuss it with all your children, and then decide.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this because we've asked several people and nobody seems to have the answer. In a traditional church wedding, when the clergyman asks, "If there is anyone present who sees just cause why this couple should not wed, speak now, or forever hold your peace," what would happen if someone spoke up?

CONCERNED COUPLE

DEAR CONCERNED: If someone claimed to know why the couple should not marry, the clergyman would stop the ceremony, confer privately with that person, then depending on the clergyman's decision, the wedding would either proceed or be delayed. I was informed that one wedding was stopped when a guest claimed that the bridegroom was already married. To her.

Opera Company Names Officers

Orlando Opera Company announces the following officers for the 1987-88 season:

George Fender, president of Orlando-based accounting firm Fender, Donovan, Fogal & Co., is serving his first term as president of Orlando Opera. Fender has been a long-time supporter of the arts in Orlando and has been an active member of the Orlando Opera Company Board of Directors since 1982.

The fundraising efforts of the company will be led this season by Richard Scott, vice president of sales with Stromberg-Carlson in Lake Mary, and LCDR Ruby L. Homayssi of the United States Navy.

Scott was appointed to the Board of Directors in 1986 and has been active on the Corporate Funds Committee. Homayssi has been an active supporter of Orlando Opera as both a member of the Opera Guild and the Board of Directors since 1984.

Rita Wilkes' affiliation with Orlando Opera Company comes full circle this year. Wilkes has always been active with the opera as a backstage leader on the production staff, but she has since served as a member of the Board of Directors, a volunteer in the box office, editor of the company newsletter and as a member of the Opera Guild.

Gerri W. Davis, secretary for the 1987-88 season, joined the Board of Directors last year. Davis is vice president of the Division of Employee Relations at The Orlando Sentinel.

James O. Whitehead will continue in his position as treasurer of Orlando Opera Company. Whitehead, a partner with Peat Marwick Main & Co., joined the Board of Directors in May 1986 as treasurer.

Orlando Opera's 29th season of performance in Orlando officially began May 1. This subscription series includes productions of Bizet's Carmen and Rossini's comic opera The Barber of Seville.

Fiberglass In Body Can Be Hazardous

DEAR DR. GOTT — If fiberglass gets into the body, is it excreted or does it remain and cause problems?

DEAR READER — Fiberglass is not excreted by the body. It can enter the skin and cause rash and severe itching. If inhaled, the spicules penetrate lung tissue and can cause chronic pulmonary irritation. I am not aware of any reports that detail the effects of swallowed fiberglass. However, the material is considered to be hazardous; people who work with it must use adequate protection such as wearing masks and long sleeved overalls. Taking a cold shower after working with the product helps wash the particles off of exposed skin.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My grandson constantly grinds his teeth while sleeping. The dentist says not to worry. Aren't teeth guards available for this situation?

DEAR READER — Teeth grinding in children (and adults, too) often reflects emotional tension. Therefore, the most effective treatment for this common condition is to work on ways to reduce stress. Is your grandson being expected to perform at too high a level of efficiency and sophistication? Is the family putting unrecognized pressure on him?

Although teeth guards are available, children will usually outgrow the habit of grinding their teeth at night once they perceive that their environment is less stressful. If his dentist is satisfied that your grandson is not harming his bite, investigate potential stresses in the home and put off the teeth-guard issue until such a protective device is necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What would cause a man's nose and ears to grow, starting in his late 60s?

DEAR READER — When men become more stout with age, fat deposits can appear in the ears and nose, causing protruberance. Some nose growth is the result of rhinophyma, a form of middle-age acne. Certain men also may have an inherited tendency to ear and nose growth. However, for most men with enlarging noses and ears, the cause is simply being overweight.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In a nutrition catalogue I read that zinc is "found in every cell of the body and it is necessary for the formation of the cells' nuclei." What does this mean in layman's language?

DEAR READER — Zinc is an incredibly versatile element in the body. It is part of more than 70 enzyme systems that control a wide variety of human functions. In essence, zinc is vital because it participates in many chemical reactions, including the formation of cells' communication centers: the nuclei. It is required for the synthesis and repair of key proteins, the nucleic acids RNA and DNA. The recommended daily allowance of zinc is 15 milligrams for adults. The mineral is found in meat, eggs, seafood and grains.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
It's old hat to set a contract by giving partner a ruff after he has led a singleton. But it's a new spring outfit if you refuse to give partner that ruff because you can foresee that the declarer will then surely make his contract. Ira Chorus held the East cards at the recent spring North American Championships in St. Louis and made the right play by refusing to give the ruff. Declarer was faced with losers in both spades and clubs, and his trump suit had some obvious holes. But he knew that West not only would be trumping a loser if he ruffed a spade, but would be helping to make dummy's trumps more manageable for a club ruff. So at trick two he led a low heart to dummy's nine.

Chorus knew declarer was void in diamonds (West would hardly make a pre-emptive jump overcall on only a five-card suit) and therefore probably held four spades and four clubs. He had an eventual spade loser anyway. Unless his clubs were A-K-Q-10, the defense could also come to at least one club trick. But Ira had to make the right play. He won the king of hearts, and continued with the ace and another. Declarer lost only two trump tricks, but he had to lose a trick in each black suit for down one. See what happens if East gives partner a spade ruff. Now declarer can play A-K of clubs and ruff a club, and then play a second heart. That will be 10 tricks, and nothing for us to write about.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 JULY 3, 1987
 In the year ahead, a profitable new market that will maximize your talents and experiences may open for you. It will be what you've been waiting for.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Decisions that have affect your family should not be made for expeditious reasons today. In your haste to resolve issues, you may not do what's best for all concerned. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 It's possible today that your good intentions regarding health, diet and exercise could go by the boards. Strive to keep all your worthwhile resolutions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Check all warning signals in your financial involvements today. Think twice before taking on any new, long-range monetary obligations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 Your possibilities for achieving an important objective are good today, provided you don't let self-doubts or a runaway imagination convince you otherwise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Don't pass on information about another today if you are uncertain of the facts. You could unintentionally hurt someone who doesn't deserve it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 Today you may once again waste money on a frivolous activity that you've promised yourself you would never repeat. Try to keep your word.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 It looks like you'll be unwilling to make the sacrifice required to attain something you desire. Apparently you don't want it badly enough.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 It's best not to employ coy or clever methods today to get others to do your bidding. Even if they consent to do so, the results will be undesirable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 There is a big difference between pipe-dreaming and being a visionary. Unfortunately, you may confuse the two and use wishful thinking in your commercial involvements today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Don't put too much faith in someone who disappointed you the last time you needed help. It's possible the scenario will be repeated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 People you associate with today will influence your productivity. If your cohorts are lazy, you may be tempted to slack off as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Watch yourself every step of the way today if you are engaged in buying, selling or trading anything of value. If you're careless, you could be taken.

WORLD

IN BRIEF

Source: Russian Mi-17 Choppers Arrive To Reinforce Sandinistas

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The Nicaraguan government is believed to have received a new shipment of six Soviet Mi-17 military helicopters, a key weapon in the war against U.S.-backed Contra rebels, Western diplomatic sources said.

The Mi-17 helicopters, which can quickly carry soldiers to areas where rebels have been sighted, were thought to have been unloaded in crates at the Pacific port of Corinto during the past few days, sources said this week.

Lt. Carlos Lara, a Sandinista army spokesman, denied any new shipment of helicopters had arrived. "That is always being said but it is false," he said.

The government normally denies or declines to discuss arms shipments but defends the country's right to acquire the material it deems necessary. This shipment, if confirmed, would be at least the fourth since 1984.

Western sources said Nicaragua received the helicopters as part of a larger deal made last April with the Soviet Union, which agreed to provide Nicaragua with 12 to 18 new helicopters, mostly Mi-17s.

Earhart Honored On Anniversary

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (UPI) — Fifty years ago today, legendary American aviator Amelia Earhart took off from the town of Lae in her twin-engine Lockheed Electra, climbed out over the Huon Gulf and faded into the horizon, never to be seen again.

It was from Lae, a balmy, tropical town on the northern coast of Papua New Guinea, that Earhart embarked on the most perilous leg of her around-the-world flight.

Earhart — the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic — and her navigator, Fred Noonan, had set course for Howland Island, a tiny atoll on the equator in the Pacific Ocean, 2,100 miles east of Lae.

Today, a memorial plaque honoring Earhart and Noonan was unveiled in a park near the Lae Airport by the Governor General of Papua New Guinea, Sir Kinsford Dibela.

Waldheim Vows Palestinian Aid

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Kurt Waldheim, making his first protest-free trip outside of Austria since he was elected president a year ago, pledged his continued support to the Palestinian people and praised King Hussein's Middle East peace efforts.

Waldheim arrived in the Jordanian capital Wednesday for a four-day state visit, his second official trip outside Austria since he was elected to the largely ceremonial post amid accusations that he hid his Nazi past.

His first trip, to the Vatican last week for an audience with Pope John Paul II, was met by fierce protest, particularly from world Jewry. But there were no signs of protest as Jordanians turned out in the capital to welcome the former United Nations general secretary.

Nazi War Criminal Dies In Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nazi war criminal Karl Linnaas, who was deported from the United States in April to the Soviet Union to face a death sentence for being the "butcher" of a concentration camp, died today in a Leningrad hospital, the official Tass news agency said.

Tass said Linnaas, 67, apparently died of heart failure. Linnaas, known as the "Butcher of Tartu," had been transferred from his prison cell in the Estonian capital of Tallin late last month to a hospital in Leningrad for treatment of heart disease.

Soviet doctors performed two operations on Linnaas, who was convicted in absentia by a Soviet court of war crimes and sentenced to death 25 years ago.

Vatican Rejects Arrest Warrant

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican says American Archbishop Paul Marcinkus and two aides, charged with complicity in fraudulent bankruptcy, are immune from prosecution by Italy under a 48-year-old treaty, according to a Roman Catholic magazine.

A Vatican tribunal made the decision on the case on April 25 and has advised Milan judges who charged Marcinkus, president of the Vatican bank, and his aides, the weekly Il Sabato reported Wednesday.

Il Sabato said the Vatican argued that the three administered "a central organ of the Church" and thus are immune from prosecution by Italian authorities under a clause of the 1929 Lateran Treaties governing relations between the Vatican and the Italian state.

Italy has no extradition treaty with the Vatican. Marcinkus and his aides could be arrested by Italian police if they leave the Vatican city-state.

The tribunal also rejected the warrants and extradition requests against the three because the charges "are in part conjectural and are contradicted by some documents produced by the defense," the magazine said.

The Vatican press office expressed similar views on Feb. 27, shortly after Milan investigators issued arrest warrants charging Marcinkus and Vatican bank aides Luigi Mennini and Pellegrino De Stroebel with complicity in the 1982 Ambrosiano bank collapse, Italy's most sensational postwar bank scandal.

The Vatican bank is known formally as the Institute for Religious Works. Italy's highest court of appeal is expected to decide shortly the validity of the charges lodged by the Milan investigators.

Marcinkus, 65, a native of Cicero, Ill., is considered the most powerful American in the Vatican. In addition to his bank president post, Pope John Paul II made him governor of the Vatican city-state.

The Ambrosiano bank crashed in 1982 with debts of $1.287 billion. The president at the time, Roberto Calvi, fled to London where his body was found hanging from scaffolding under the Thames River Blackfriars Bridge June 18, 1982.

The charges against Marcinkus and his aides were based on the Vatican bank's links with Calvi. Mennini and De Stroebel formerly were members of the Ambrosiano bank's administrative council, and Marcinkus issued "letters of patronage" to Calvi to help him in his deals with foreign banking institutes.

The Vatican formally denied any liability in the Ambrosiano collapse, but in July 1984 it paid $240.9 million to bank creditors as a "goodwill gesture."

Brazil Suspends Payments

BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — Brazil, expanding a 4-month-old suspension of interest payments on more than half of its $111 billion foreign debt, said it also would delay repaying the principal on loans from foreign governments.

The suspension announced Wednesday covers $1.015 billion of principal due on loans from agencies such as export-import banks grouped under the Paris Club, an association of Western creditor governments. Since Feb. 20 Brazil has not paid private banks interest on $88 billion of medium- and long-term loans.

"This is not an attitude of aggression toward our creditors," said Francisco Baker, spokesman for Finance Minister Luiz Carlos Bresser Pereira. The measure was adopted "to defend the country's foreign reserves," he said.

Baker said Brazil, which has run up a total foreign debt of about $111 billion, will continue to pay interest on the Paris Club loans and the measure did not affect loans from organizations such as the International Monetary Fund.

Brazil owes $13.6 billion to Paris Club creditors, according to a recent Central Bank estimate, but not all of that is immediately due.

Brazil's problems stem from falling exports.

Honduran Indians Trapped By War They Don't Want

Douglas Farah
ALONG THE MOCORON RIVER, Honduras (UPI) — Thousands of Miskito Indians, forced to flee their homeland in Nicaragua in recent years, are now trapped in a world they do not control by a war that most do not wish to fight.

They are refugees in Honduras, a country that does not want them, and want to return to Nicaragua, a country they fear will persecute them. Many have lost faith in their leaders, who are asking them to resume a war against Managua's leftist Sandinista government.

"People are only asking that there be no war, that we live in peace," said Cebelia Benjamin, as she sat on a front porch made of rough-hewn planks in Ilibila, a Miskito refugee village 30 miles north of the Nicaraguan border.

"We support the struggle, but too much blood has been spilled. We no longer want war," she added.

More than 15,000 Miskitos live in about two dozen villages like Ilibila scattered along the Mocoron and other rivers in the Honduran Mosquitia, a vast jungle savannah on the Atlantic coast, with the Coco River serving as the border between Nicaragua and Honduras. It is a virtually unpopulated area except for the Indians, who travel mostly by dugout canoe.

The refugees are almost totally dependent on the United Nations High Commission for Refugees, or UNHCR, which provides them with food, education and health care.

The villages are carved out of the jungle, the single-room houses built on stilts on the banks of the river, the walls made of planks and roofs of palm thatch. Each house has the traditional covered porch where the Indians, who cannot work and have little land to plant, spend much of their time in hammocks and crude benches, visiting, talking of home and starting into space.

UPI Special Report:

"What we want is for the war to stop so we can go home, because here we are miserable and have nothing. But only God knows when that will be," said Candido Olvides, 30, as he lay in his hammock on the porch of his hut in the town of Ipaunil.

As he spoke, rain driven by strong winds off the Atlantic fell in almost horizontal sheets, turning the village paths to mud.

"I am thinking about going back, but I am afraid," said another young man on the porch. "Here we have no work, no land, we suffer greatly. Sometimes I think it would be better to go back to Nicaragua and die."

Olvides' tale is similar to many others: he left Nicaragua in 1984 after the Sandinistas burned his house and tried to kill him.

"They burned it because it was on a good road they thought the Contras were using," he said with a shrug. "They left me with only the shirt on my back and were looking for me to kill me, so I left."

The Miskitos have always been cut off from the rest of Nicaragua, and were strongly influenced by the English, rather than Spanish, accounting in part for their unusual names. They have maintained a separate language and culture; most are Protestants belonging to the Moravian church, not Roman Catholics.

Never close to the central government, the Miskitos began to actively oppose the Sandinistas in 1982, when authorities killed more than a dozen Indians, burned villages, forcibly recruited young men into the army and tried to relocate others. Thousands of Miskitos poured across the Coco into Honduras, and many took up U.S.-supplied arms to oppose the Nicaraguan government.

Their struggle has always been separate from the main

Contra forces. The Miskitos say they are fighting for autonomy for their homeland, but they do not trust the main Contra group to grant them that if they ever gained power.

To the dismay of the United States, the Indian forces splintered and most Miskitos had quit fighting by last year.

In an effort to draw the Indians back and prevent the opening of a new war front, Sandinista officials have publicly apologized for their past actions against the Miskitos and offered a limited autonomy proposal.

Miskito leaders are bitterly divided by personal disputes and differences over whether to try to negotiate with the Sandinistas or continue fighting.

After the United States threatened to cut off funding to their armies if the bickering continued, the three main leaders — Stedman Fagohit, Brooklyn Rivera and Wycliffe Diego — agreed at a meeting last month to unify their forces and fight rather than negotiate. But many Miskitos doubt the agreement will last.

"All three want to be number one still. I do not think they have learned anything," said one Moravian pastor who attended the assembly. "But if this does not work, we'll all die here, because we will never get home."

"I used to support the war, but too many of our young men have died," said Juan Charles, in the village of Klannia. "We are not many, and so many have died. What we need is peace."

Indian fighters also lost support by trying to forcibly recruit young refugees into their ranks, threatening those who did not want to go at gunpoint or knife-point.

Still, some who have lived in the camps for many years are talking about permanently settling there, something neither the Honduran government nor UNHCR favor.

ADVERTISING FOR BIDS
The Seminole County Port Authority, Sanford, Seminole County, Florida, furnishes the following information and instructions to prospective bidders desiring to submit proposals for the work herein described:
Bid # SCOPA 1078, 15,000 square foot expansion, Manufacturing Facility, GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF WORK:
The principal work consists of the construction of a 15,000 square foot expansion of an existing 30,000 square foot Manufacturing Facility with dimensions of 100' x 150' and a 14' seven height. The addition shall have one row of interior columns on 23' centers, and shall have insulated roof and walls, along with gutters and downspouts to accommodate the proposed structure. The addition shall contain approximately 930 square feet of office and rest room space and shall be totally sprinklered. There shall be approximately 2,400 square yards of paving included in the scope of the work to be performed. Construction shall be in compliance with all existing codes of the County of Seminole, State of Florida and the Southern Building Code.
INSTALLATIONS OBTAINING SPECIFICATIONS:
Specifications and a complete description of the proposed work may be obtained in person from the office of the Administrator, Seminole County Port Authority, Dennis K. Dolinger, Administrator, Seminole County Port Authority, 1510 Kasher Place Port of Sanford Sanford, Florida 32771 (305) 322-4798
Contract and Bid Specifications may be obtained for a nonrefundable fee of $25.00, checks to be made payable to the Seminole County Port Authority. All drawings, specifications and contract documents may be examined in person at the office of the Administrator.
BID BOND:
Bids must be accompanied by a certified check, cashier's check, bank draft, or bid bond in the amount of not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of bid, made payable to the Seminole County Port Authority.
REJECTION OF BIDS:
The Seminole County Port Authority reserves the right to reject any or all bids or any part thereof; to waive any informality or technicality in the bidding; to accept the bids or any part thereof deemed most favorable to the interest of the Authority after all bids have been examined and evaluated, or to reject all bids and re-advertise or cancel the proposed work.
TIME AND PLACE OF BIDDING:
Sealed bids will be received at the Office of the Administrator until 1:00 hours (3:00 p.m., e.d.t.) July 14, 1987, at which time they will be publicly opened and read aloud. Any bid received after the specified bid closing time will not be considered.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Ad Tax Boycott Threatens Shows; Football, Soaps May Be Scrubbed

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida TV stations may be forced to cancel "NFL Monday Night Football" and "All My Children" this fall if an advertising boycott protesting the new consumer services tax continues, an industry official warns.

Bob Foss, executive director of the Florida Association of Broadcasters, said Wednesday the state's television stations may have to drop soap operas and football games if the tax and boycott go ahead as planned.

Foss said football could be a particularly potent weapon for national companies that feel they should not have to pay the 5 percent tax on advertising. Companies that sponsor college and professional games through advertising could kill the broadcasts by refusing to place ads on Florida TV stations.

Without the advertising revenue, Foss said, the stations could not afford to show the games.

Regents Pick Woman Chairman

FORT MYERS (UPI) — University freshmen, sophomores and graduate students would pay sharply higher tuition fees next year under a proposal approved by the Board of Regents.

At their meeting Wednesday, the regents also elected Orlando restaurateur Joan Ruffler as the first woman to chair the 13-member panel that oversees the state university system. They also voted to raise the salaries of the nine state university presidents and the university system chancellor 5 percent.

The tuition plan calls for a fee of $28.03 per credit hour for lower-level students, a 10.5 percent hike. Graduate students will see their tuition rise 12.1 percent, to $56.01 per credit hour.

Bork Offers Conservatives Swing Vote

By Henry J. Reske
UPI Supreme Court Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert Bork, the third judge nominated for a Supreme Court vacancy since President Reagan came to Washington, offers conservatives the crucial fifth vote that some hope will overturn decades of rulings on abortion, affirmative action and the separation of church and state.

In all those areas, Justice Lewis Powell, who announced his retirement last week, was frequently the key vote that gave slim 5-4 victories to the liberal wing of the court led by Justice William Brennan and joined by Justices Harry Blackmun, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens.

If confirmed by the Senate, Bork's addition to the court should change that margin in favor of the court's conservative wing, led by Chief Justice William Rehnquist and joined by Justices Byron White, Sandra Day O'Connor and Antonin Scalia. Reagan has appointed both O'Connor (1981) and Scalia (1986).

Just how important Bork's vote could be might be illustrated next term when the court considers an Illinois case concerning a law that restricts a minor's access to abortion. In the court's last abortion ruling in 1986, the justices upheld a woman's right to abortion on the familiar 5-4 vote.

Bork could change that. The judge who now sits on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia has noted his disdain for abortion in opinions and interviews regarding the right to privacy — the constitutional underpinning for the 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling that legalized abortion.

Bork, who subscribes to President Reagan's strict constructionist view of the Constitution, has said the privacy right has "no intellectual structure" and has "little to do with the intent of the framers" of the Constitution.

ANALYSIS

In a 1984 ruling from the appeals court that involved homosexual rights, Bork wrote that nowhere in "the text, structure or history of the Constitution" is there a right to privacy that projects homosexual behavior.

Daniel Pappo of the conservative Washington Legal Foundation, said after Bork's nomination Wednesday that he would "ensure that Ronald Reagan leaves his mark on the Supreme Court well into the next century."

"(Bork would) ensure that capital punishment will be upheld, and there is every likelihood that Roe vs. Wade would be reversed and every likelihood the affirmative action decisions may be reversed as well," Pappo said.

Dick Howard, a former Supreme Court law clerk now a professor of law at the University of Virginia, agreed the "replacement of Powell by Bork is going to accentuate the court's slide to the right in some very important areas."

It is important to note, however, that while Bork is a conservative who has made his views known, there is no way to predict whether he would ignore the strong pull of "stare decisis," the Latin term for following precedent.

Leon Friedman, a law professor at Hofstra University, noted judges like Bork who believe in judicial restraint "are also very reluctant to take giant steps backwards or forwards."

Howard disagreed in Bork's case, saying, "I don't think he will be afraid to reverse precedents. If he think the precedent got it wrong, I would think Bork would be willing to overrule that precedent."

"I think the more liberal Democrats on the (Senate) Judiciary Committee as well as civil rights lawyers view this seat as being crucial," Howard said, referring to the committee that will hold confirmation hearings on Bork.

"The replacement of Powell by Bork invites a reevaluating of several major areas. I think the liberal critics see a historic moment in which ... the reach of the Reagan administration will be there for years long after the 1988 elections," he said.

Liberals Ready For Battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Civil rights leaders say senators "will never cast a more important vote" than on whether to put Robert Bork on the Supreme Court, and his liberal opponents are ready for battle with his conservative supporters.

"The damage President Reagan will do through this nomination if it is not rejected by the Senate could live on far beyond the end of his presidential term," warned Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the Judiciary Committee member who immediately took the lead against Bork's nomination Wednesday.

Close behind Kennedy but trying to sound a bit more politic was the committee chairman, presidential candidate Joseph Biden, D-Del., who promised "full, thorough and fair" confirmation hearings yet warned of strong opposition from civil rights, pro-abortion and women's groups across the country.

"Unless Judge Bork can demonstrate to me that he comes to the court with more of an open mind than I think he has, I will have some problems," Biden said.

His critics label Bork, 60, as an "ultraconservative" federal appeals court judge who threatens to overturn many civil rights gains by replacing the moderate retired Justice Lewis Powell as the crucial vote in 5-4 decisions.

New Tax Questions Mount

MIAMI (UPI) — Thousands of taxpayers jammed state phone lines asking about the new tax on services and more than 500 demonstrators reenacted the Boston Tea Party and vowed to help repeal the measure on its first day as law.

The group STOP — Sales Taxes Oppressing People — organized mock Boston Tea Parties across Florida Wednesday, beginning a petition drive to overturn the tax. Organizers hope to gather 342,939 signatures to put the issue on the March or November 1988 ballot.

The new tax that went into effect Wednesday applies the state's 5 per cent sales tax to many services, including lawyers, dry cleaners and pet groomers. Medical services are still exempt, but plumbers are not. About 50 people gathered along Biscayne Bay in Miami, 100 people met near Pensacola Bay, close to 100 people showed up at Port Canaveral and 30 people were at the Fort Myers municipal yacht basin. Organizers in Jacksonville reported that approximately 300 protesters turned up to help dump one barrel of tea into the St. John's River. "The Boston Tea Party was a defiance of a principle," said Rita Richbourg at Pensacola Bay, an advertising saleswoman. "Today our concern is not only of principle but of the cold, hard fact that this sales tax on services represents the single biggest tax increase in Florida's history."

A broadcast industry official warned that soap operas and football games may go off the air in Florida this fall if an advertising boycott protesting the tax on advertising continues. Spokesmen for the Florida Hotel and Motel Association say the loss of business from trade groups refusing to hold conventions in the state have cost them at least $18 million so far.
