Salvation Army provides relief

SANFORD — Within 15 minutes of the thunderous blast at the Arthur Murray Building in Oklahoma City, the Salvation Army was on the scene. We began to offer cold beverages, blankets, food, and counseling to victims and rescue workers.

Six Salvation Army disaster canteens are on the scene and are serving around the clock.

No in-kind items are needed at this time, those needs are being met locally, but donations are being accepted at your local unit which is located at 700 W. 24th St. in Sanford. One hundred percent of funds donated locally go directly to disaster site.

Roads adequate for mall

SANFORD — Roads around a proposed mall near Oviedo will be adequate to handle the projected traffic, an advisory committee found Wednesday.

A majority of the Seminole Board of County Commissioners asked a Road Impact Fee Advisory Committee to review projected traffic counts for the Marketplace at Oviedo Crossing. Residents of Tusseawilla complain their neighborhood will be used as a cut-through to the mall.

The county commissioners will decide at their April 25 meeting whether or not to forward the regional mall plans to the state for review. Commissioners delayed that decision earlier this month to allow developers to provide more traffic data.

Clarification

CableVision Industries Inc. (CVI), one of four cable companies doing business in Seminole County, is seeking an renewal of its franchise which expires in 1997. The company serves about 3,000 customers in the Oviedo area and southeast portion of the county. CVI officials are asking for the early franchise renewal in case a proposed sale falls through. Time Warner Cable (TWC) is attempting to acquire CVI. TWC is not the company seeking a renewal. Time Warner Cable acquired Cablevision of Central Florida last year. All cable companies have non-exclusive territories, according to Ginny Huff, administrative manager in the public works department, and can operate anywhere in the county. GROWS needs volunteers

APOPKA — The Greater Reading or Writing Literary Council (GROWS) needs volunteer tutors to spend one hour a week teaching adults to read. A training workshop for new volunteers will be held on Friday, April 21, from 6-9 p.m. and Saturday, April 22, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at See Briefs, Page 6A

SANFORD — He seemed like a man down on his luck when he came into the sandwich shop.

As he drank a couple of cups of coffee, the long-haired, rumpled-looking man told the counter girl and her boyfriend Tuesday night, he'd been in some trouble back home and was headed to Miami for a fresh start.

"I felt sorry for him," 17-year-old Selena Knudsen recalled, "and bought him a sandwich. I paid for it from my pocket money."

Little did she know the nervous driver had walked away from a New Jersey psychiatric hospital over the weekend.

William Jennings, 39, apparently walked away from the Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital in Trenton Saturday afternoon. Jennings had been confined to state psychiatric See Capture, Page 6A

New life for old school

Festival marks rebirth of 1922 community focal point

GENEVA — The old building has been at the heart of the friendly, rural community for more than seven decades.

The town of Geneva has grown around it, perhaps at a more leisurely rate than other central Florida communities, the town's original elementary school became, nonetheless, too small to serve the educational needs of the children.

A short distance away, a larger school has been built and expanded.

After moving from the center of the community for several years, the old Geneva Elementary Building will become a focal point of community life once again.

On Saturday morning at 9:30, a ribbon will be cut from across the front door of the building, which will be the home for some of Geneva's Full Service School programs. It is one of the first Full Service Schools in the state and one of only three in Seminole County.

LONGWOOD — It has been three years, but like the legendary phoenix, it has returned as beautifully as before.

The Springs Concert has returned to bring grand popular music to the audience under the trees in the exclusive Springs subdivision, off State Road 434 in Longwood.

"People have really missed the concert," organizer Bonnie Bromberg said. "Everyone has been asking about it, but the people who did the Springs concert before weren't doing it any more. I thought it was time."

The concert is a fundraiser for the See Concert, Page 5A

As we slip from the warm days of spring into the hot days of nearly summertime, some locals take every advantage of the warming rays. Lunchtime spill

As commuters made their way Thursday to lunchtime activities near U.S. Highway 17-92 and County Road 419 near Five Points, they met with an obstacle in the form of an overturned BFI garbage truck and two cars which were involved in an accident. Though there were no life-threatening injuries, four people were transported to Florida Hospital-North in Altamonte Springs. Traffic in the southbound direction was restricted to one lane with traffic on the northbound side remaining open. The first response system brought immediate assistance to the crash scene from Seminole County Fire Rescue, Sanford Fire Rescue, the Winter Springs Fire Department, the Longwood Fire Department and the Seminole County HazMat team.

Crowds protests Castro supporter

MIAMI — A shouting match erupted at Florida International University as a Cuban researcher who supports Fidel Castro spoke to a standing-room-only crowd of jeering students and protesters.

Campus police flanked Kenia Serrano Puig, 21, as she delivered a short speech and tried to hold a question and answer session with the screaming audience Thursday. At least eight officers surrounded her during the event.

Outside the auditorium, protesters carried signs denouncing the Cuban leader. Others directed their anger at the university, carrying signs depicting FIU as a socialist institution.

Police set up metal detectors to screen those entering the auditorium, but an attempt to keep signs and placards outside failed.

The FIU speech almost was cancelled when university administrators asked student organizations sponsoring the speech to pay for up to $3,000 for security during the event. Administrators withdrew their request after a complaint from the American Civil Liberties Union.

Earlier this week, Serrano Puig spoke at the University of Houston, where she signed a friendship agreement between the school and the University of Havana.

Florida mourns Oklahoma tragedy

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles has ordered flags at the Capitol and all state office buildings at half-staff and offered help to the victims of the Oklahoma City bombing.

Flags will remain at half-staff until at least Monday. "This is a senseless tragedy," Chiles said Thursday. "I think it's a time for mental and physical courage on our part. This is a new kind of struggle for us."

Chiles said state officials are assessing security at state buildings but no additional precautions have been taken.

Alligator attacks 7-year-old boy

GAINESVILLE — Tyce Hammons was swimming in a creek near his home when he was attacked by an 8 1/2-foot alligator.

The 7-year-old, listed in stable condition Thursday at Shands Hospital with 2-inch gashes in the rib and shoulder, now has a warning for his friends:

"Never go swimming in a creek and always watch out for alligators," the first-grader said from his hospital bed. "And never jump in the water unless there's some people there."

The attack Wednesday was the second in a week in the Gainesville area. Another alligator was killed by a trapper after it attacked and killed a dog at Lake Alice on the University of Florida campus.

A trapper killed the alligator that attacked Hammons on Wednesday, according to the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Gunman strikes out

ORLANDO — The third time was unlucky for a gunman who would walk into jewelry stores, look at engagement rings and pull a gun to steal precious gems.

The robber got away with some $26,000 worth of stones from his first crime, $37,000 from the second and $100,000 from the third. But he left something behind at the last store: a stolen checkbook.

Police traced the name on the check and discovered it belonged to the father of the suspect's girlfriend in the Orlando area. The suspect was identified by detectives Wednesday as Anthony Vincent Aleccia, 26, and they believe he fled to South Florida.

Police said he believes the suspect planned to forge a check to buy a diamond at the International Diamond Center on Sunday but ended up hauling off three trays of diamonds instead.

The earlier robberies occurred in January at J&B Jewelry and Pawn in Orlando and at Jewelers of Maitland.

The robbery victims identified a photo of Aleccia obtained by detectives, said Sgt. Mike Holloway.

Judge rejects plea deal for rape

TAMPA — After an impassioned plea by an alleged rape victim, a judge rejected a plea deal for two brothers charged with raping their sister a quarter century ago.

A public trial was ordered instead. Hillsborough Circuit Judge Bob Mitcham called the 32-year-old woman "a courageous young lady."

She should have her day in court, he said, and granted her request for a trial.

Larry Wayne Gregory, 44, of Lakeland, and Danny Gregory, 39, of Kentucky, were charged last year with two counts each of capital rape in a case dating back to 1966. Each count carries a life sentence.

The brothers entered Mitcham's court Wednesday prepared to plead guilty to reduced charges in exchange for seven years probation.

Privacy rights Justices say anti-smoking rule OK

By BILL KACON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Neither a city's policy against hiring smokers nor the disclosure of other patients' records to medical malpractice patients violate privacy rights, the Florida Supreme Court has decided.

The justices split 5-2 Thursday in upholding North Miami's rule against hiring people who have smoked in the year before applying for a job. They were unanimous in the malpractice case.

The smoking rule had been challenged by Arlene Kurtz after she was denied a job as a clerk-typist because she had refused to sign a sworn statement that she had abstained from tobacco for at least a year. She contended that requirement violated her right to smoke in the privacy of her home.

"The city's action does not intrude into an aspect of Kurtz's life in which she has a legitimate expectation of privacy," Justice

Ben Overton wrote for the majority. "In today's society, smokers are constantly required to reveal whether they smoke."

He cited restaurants and hotels that have separate sections or rooms for smokers and non-smokers, rental car companies that have non-smoking vehicles and workplaces that restrict smoking to certain areas.

Justices Gerald Kogan and Leander Shaw dissented, saying the ruling creates a "slippery slope problem" because it could lead to further encroachment on privacy rights by governmental employers.

"An obvious example would be an inquiry into the lawful sexual behavior of job applicants in an effort to identify those with the 'most desirable' lifestyles," Kogan wrote.

North Miami's rule does not prohibit employees, once hired, from smoking and the majority pointedly noted it was not addressing that issue.

The city's rule is intended gradually to reduce the number of smokers on the payroll through natural attrition to cut health insurance costs.

The high court majority found the city has a compelling interest to reduce those costs and is using the least intrusive means to reach that goal because it does not prevent current employees from smoking.

Giving malpractice plaintiffs and their lawyers copies of other patients records does not violate privacy rights as long as precautions are taken to prevent public disclosure, the justices said.

They found in a Seminole County case the trial judge adequately protected those rights by requiring the defendant, Dr. Willie B. Newman, to remove or black out all patient-identifying information from copies turned over to the plaintiff, Bernadette Amente.

Amente's suit blamed Newman for Erb's palsy suffered by her baby.

House passes sweeping, expensive crime bills

By ADAM YEMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State lawmakers are moving closer to fulfilling an election year promise of cracking down on violent and repeat offenders.

If House members get their way, disruptive prisoners would serve on chain gangs as further punishment if they're sent to solitary confinement.

The House passed legislation Thursday to impose mandatory sentences on violent career felons and expand the prison system's legal capacity.

The chamber also is expected next week to pass measures to require offenders serve at least 85 percent of their time and revamp the state's sentencing guidelines to ensure property offenders like burglars and auto thieves serve prison time.

"We have a lot of crime solving to do. We have a lot of criminals to lock up," said House Appropriations Chairman Buzz Ritchie, D-Pensacola. Estimates released by Ritchie show the cost for enough prison beds to handle the surge of inmates would reach $1.5 billion by the end of the decade.

The Senate already passed similar legislation — except for the sentencing guidelines — and estimated the costs to be much less. The chambers must resolve differences in their respective legislation before a bill goes to Gov. Lawton Chiles.

The "Officer Evelyn Gort Career Criminal Act," named after a slain Metro-Dade police officer, imposes mandatory prison terms on felons convicted of a fourth violent offense who have already served one stint in prison.

Gort became the symbol for the tougher sentencing bill after she was killed by an armed robber with a lengthy criminal record while she was off duty in 1993.

A violent repeat offender would face mandatory sentences upon the fourth conviction for a "forcible felony," which includes murder, manslaughter, sexual battery, carjacking, home-invasion robbery, robbery, burglary, arson, kidnapping and aggravated assault.

The House bill (CS-HB 481 & 1885) includes aggravated stalking, aggravated child abuse, or lewd, lascivious or indecent conduct.

The legislation imposes mandatory sentences ranging from 10 years to life. It also imposes a 15-year sentence for using a firearm in the commission of a crime.

The Senate has passed a similar bill.

Other House measures passed Thursday would:

—Expand the state's legal prison capacity from 133 percent to 150 percent to add 4,050 more prison beds. The House bill (CS-HB 2533) is similar to the Senate version already passed.

—Resurrect chain gangs for prisoners sent to solitary confinement. The measure was attached to a general bill (CS-HB 2531) for the Department of Corrections.

—Automatically repeal the state's sentencing guidelines by 1998. The guidelines were enacted in 1983 to provide uniform sentencing statewide but changes in 1993 allowed some criminals to escape prison unless they were convicted of multiple offenses.

Other House legislation that has yet to pass would:

—Require offenders to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences and reduce the amount of incentive gain-time from 25 days to 20 days a month.

—Increase the punishment for 41 felony offenses under the state's sentencing guidelines. Offenses include battery and aggravated assault on an elderly person, aggravated stalking, burglary, firing or exhibiting a firearm on school property, and lewd, lascivious or indecent assault on a child.

Unusual case: Girl kills parents

By LISA HOLEWA
Associated Press Writer

WHITE CLOUD, Mich. — Charla Engelmeyer was a bruised and frightened first-grader when she asked for help. Ten years later, she might finally get it — two lives too late.

The 16-year-old high school sophomore pleaded guilty in juvenile court to voluntary manslaughter for putting two bullets into the heads of her parents, who she said were abusing her and her three younger brothers.

"I acted out of fear," she said. She probably will be sent to a psychiatric hospital, then a juvenile detention center, where she could be held until age 21.

That the case stayed in juvenile court — where Charla has a chance of getting psychological help — is "phenomenal," said Paul Mones, a Santa Monica, Calif., author and lawyer who has worked on 200 cases of children killing parents.

And it happened because the girl's friends, her family and the legal system refused to rush to judgment, but instead stood back to ask: What happened?

"There's not any question about it," said the presiding juvenile court judge, Thomas Eggleston. "This would not have happened in some urban areas of the state. ... Had she been in a different county or had she had a different prosecutor, I think the whole thing would have been different."

Late the afternoon of Feb. 3, Charla shot her father in the back of the head with a .22-caliber rifle as he slept in their rural western Michigan home. Moments later, she shot her mother between the eyes, apparently as she tried to rise.

Then she called 911. "They were abusing us children, and there has to be a stop to it," Charla said partway through the 31-minute 911 call.

"I killed them, and I, I'm so scared now. I mean, I loved them, but I knew that I had to do it."

Her comments "raised eyebrows," said prosecutor Kevin Drake. "We wanted to look into it, and I think that was the start of it."

Charla was charged with two counts of murder. But rather than immediately heading to adult court, where the teen could have faced life in prison, Drake asked for a hearing to decide where to try the case.

He also started a state police investigation into the family's lives. It showed Charla was an A and B student with aspirations of joining the Peace Corps and no history of causing trouble.

It also showed that she was removed from her home when she was 6 because of suspected physical and sexual abuse. She was bruised and said she was afraid of her father and didn't want to return.

She was placed in foster care, then with grandparents. She was returned to her home 18 months later over the objections of a social worker.

Neighbor Nicky Dobson's 14-year-old daughter, Charly, was Charla's best friend. Dobson heard their conversations and realized Charla knew more about sex than most teens. And she knew Charla did all the cooking and cleaning and was like a mother to her brothers, ages 10, 2 and 1.

After Charla's arrest, Dobson spoke with reporters, called defectives and made a midnight telephone call to Drake at his home. "This was not a typical situation," she explained. "And I felt, for her sake, somebody needed to know. Somebody needed to help her."

The investigation turned up a family videotape of the boys naked around a table. A pair of men's underwear and a red leather whip were found in Charla's room.

Charla told psychologists that her father often crawled into bed with her to have her massage his buttocks. Weeks before the shootings, she met with a crisis center worker, sobbing and saying she may have repressed memories of sexual abuse.

Family members forgave Charla after they learned about her suffering.

"Until we came into this courtroom, we didn't know how bad it was," said her aunt, Eve Rodriguez, who plans to adopt the three brothers.

"She did what she had to do to wanted, just walked away, and maternal grandfather, Gordon Belt. "She could have walked out of that home anytime she brothers. She was trapped."

Cooperation will solve road woes

Typical case: A family wants to move to Central Florida, and finds a beautiful residential area, (for example) right here in Seminole County. They buy and move in. It has nice quiet streets and little traffic.

Other families find the same area, and they move in. Soon the streets aren't as quiet and traffic begins to increase.

Because of this influx in residents, businesses begin to spring up in the surrounding areas, which again causes even more traffic.

It is then when people begin to complain. Too much noise, too much traffic, and no one appears willing to do anything about it.

They approach their local government agency and demand something be done.

Then the city or county, whichever the case may be, determines that the only solution is to widen the street.

That generally doesn't set well with the residents either. They see it as only a temporary fix, when problems occur in the area, they will mean even more traffic, more noise, and more business areas nearby.

Who is wrong? Actually, nobody. Citizens have a right to want better government services when problems occur in their area, and governments have a right to seek and attempt to finance a solution.

For traffic congestion, there are only a few solutions. Widen the roadway, close it to through traffic, or reduce the speed limits and add speed bumps.

Except for widening the roadway, all of the other solutions would only result in even more problems and subsequently, more confusion between citizens and government leaders.

The Longwood City Commission and residents currently are facing this problem in connection with Rangeline Road. Finding a solution which will be in the best interests of the citizens as well as the city will be nearly impossible.

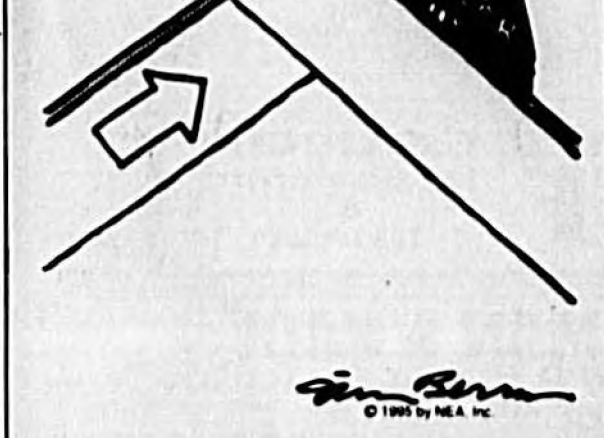

Longwood isn't alone. Other cities in central Florida have, or will eventually be facing similar problems with roadways which travel through fast-growing residential areas and leading to shopping areas and/or malls.

This is a difficult situation. No one is wrong, yet no one believes the other side is right.

The only way this matter may even be partially resolved, is if everyone, individual citizens and government officials, put themselves in the other side's shoe and walk a few miles during solution-seeking.

Then join together in solving the problem, rather than fighting each detail. This is a situation where the only recourse is cooperation.

Clinton joins McNamara's band

Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara now says America was "wrong, terribly wrong" about the Vietnam War. When asked, President Clinton said McNamara is right about being wrong, which makes him (Clinton) right, not wrong, about what he (Clinton) did during Vietnam. I say this is an odd couple who were both wrong twice, then and now.

McNamara's new book, "In Retrospect," is a masti culpa. One reason we acted wrongly, terribly wrongly, in Vietnam was because of our increasing fear -- and hindsight makes it clear it was an exaggerated fear -- of what would happen if we did not.

The facility was there just weren't enough meetings to ask the right questions, such as, "... Was it true that the fall of South Vietnam would trigger the fall of all Southeast Asia? Would that constitute a grave threat to the West's security? ... It seems beyond understanding, incredible, that we did not force ourselves to confront such issues head-on."

What is beyond understanding, incredible, is that McNamara would think those were answerable questions, then or now. And what gives him such a clear hindsight that our fear was exaggerated?

Recall: What were we afraid of? The Cold War. The Soviet Union, Communist China, Communism, Nuclear weapons, Totalitarianism.

Those issues had been earlier confronted by the United States and a decision had been made: Contain the red tide and the evil empire.

McNamara is right: We didn't know what would happen if the tide or the empire was not contained in Vietnam or anywhere else. But we did know that communists talked about global domination, had invaded Eastern Europe, had lots of nukes pointed at us, were subverting governments and conducting "wars of national liberation."

It seemed best not to find out what would happen if we didn't respond. So we responded. What would have happened had we responded, but not in Vietnam? No one knows, including McNamara. Could we have had better strategy in Vietnam? Yes, surely in hindsight.

McNamara seemed certain then that we were right, and seems certain now that we were wrong. Anyone so certain doesn't understand. One thing is understandable. The good guys won the Cold War and the bad people with the big missiles went beddy-bye. Some think that happened because we responded, even at the margin.

Who about Clinton? He is also certain. Asked by Wolf Blitzer of CNN whether he felt "vindicated" by McNamara's book, Clinton answered: "Yes I do. I know that sounds self-serving, but I do." Wrong. It is not self-serving. It is Republican-serving. It is sad.

Later, a White House spokesman said Clinton thought McNamara's argument "... certainly vindicates the views of millions of Americans, including President Clinton, that the Vietnam War was a sorry episode in American history and that those who opposed the war had good grounds for doing so."

It is a sorry episode. It makes you wonder who is more terribly wrong.

I say this is an odd couple who were both wrong twice, then and now.

Jesse's gaffes make you wonder

So that you can fully appreciate the significance of the exclusive investigative story I am about to impart, I will first review two incidents that occurred this year in the U.S. Senate.

On Tuesday, Jan. 24, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, conducted a hearing on a proposed agreement between the United States and North Korea. While reading from a staff-prepared document, Helms referred to the exclusive leader of that communist nation as "Kim Jong Two."

No, no, no. The senator's staff later told him, the man's name is Kim Jong Il. As in Il, as in sickle and sickle.

Concert

Andrew Bromberg Foundation for autistic children.

The Foundation provides speech therapy, occupational therapy and behavioral management for autistic children. In addition, it provides educational seminars about autism for the community.

Music Orlando, comprised mostly of former members of the Florida Orchestra, will provide the music for the evening.

"We're very excited about the quality of the music," Bromberg said.

Music Orlando performed last fall at the annual Lakeside Pope concert on Lake Brantley in the largest orchestral performance in Seminole County since the concert. Bromberg expects an additional 500 more to be sold at the gate.

Tickets for the concert are available at Ticketmaster for $16 for general admission and $25 for VIP tickets. General admission tickets will be available at the gate for $18 each on Saturday evening.

Tickets are also available at Petty's Meat Market on State Road 434 in Longwood just west of Interstate 4.

The concert is sponsored by Target, Alauca Country Club, the Walt Disney Company, B.M.W. Florida, Outback Steakhouse, Boston Chicken and Stink House.

Bromberg said Target is a "wonderful sponsor," which puts five percent of their gross income directly back into the community which it serves.

To get to the Springs concert, Bromberg said, enter the Springs through the gate behind Petty's Meat Market. There will be plenty of parking available, he said.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Capture

facilities since being found innocent by reason of insanity for killing his parents with a deer rifle in their West Orange home on Easter Sunday, 1980.

He made his way to Sanford hitchhiking rides at truck stops and planned to travel on to Miami.

Jennings was housed at Forensic Psychiatric Hospital in Trenton, the state's most secure hospital, for about 10 years, but was recently transferred to another facility in the city.

Jennings' privileges had recently been upgraded, according to officials, to allow him to walk unescorted on hospital grounds.

New Jersey officials said Jennings should be considered dangerous because he was probably not taking his medication.

"He said he was going to Miami because you can't find anybody there," Knudsen said. Jennings asked where he could get a gun, telling the shop employee he wanted to protect his money.

"He said he was carrying a lot of money," she recalled. "That kind of made me mad, because I had paid for his sandwich. We told him to go down to 13th Street."

Wednesday, the 39-year-old man returned to the shop sporting a crew cut and acting strangely.

"He seemed really paranoid," Knudsen recalled. "When a city policeman drove past the shop on routine patrol, the man dove under a table to get out of site."

"That really scared me," the teen said. "The police usually drive by at night to check and make sure everything is alright. When the guy slid down to not be seen, I thought, whoa!"

Knudsen called her boyfriend, Chuck Lee, to ask if he would come to the shop because she was afraid. A co-worker's shift was ending in about 15 minutes and the teen did not want to be alone in the sandwich shop with Jennings.

"He (Jennings) knew she was leaving in 15 minutes," Knudsen said, "because she kept saying 'I get off in 15 minutes.'" Knudsen's friend remained in the shop.

"She saw I was scared. She wouldn't just leave me there," Knudsen added.

"I specifically told him (Lee) not to call police," Knudsen said, "because I still felt sorry for the guy."

A driver for Vivona's Italian Pizzeria, Lee could not leave work because it was not closing time. However, he told his boss, Nick Vivona, about the situation. Vivona called police.

Arriving at the shop on Orlando Avenue, police fed Jennings' name into the computer and found the NJ warrant. He was arrested and taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Although rumors circulated a reward was being offered for Jennings' capture, New Jersey State Police and Department of Human Services said no state agency was offering a reward. A spokesman for the DHS said a magazine called "Wanted" in Freehold Township had offered a $10,000 reward for Jennings' capture. However, the publication could not be reached for comment this morning.

"I don't know whether there is a reward or not," Vivona said. "I just wanted to make sure the girl was alright."

Trio share top spot in 16-18 league

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It was a night of upsets and exceptionally close games in the Sanford Recreation Department 16 to 18-year-old Basketball League at the Sanford Middle School Gymnasium Thursday night.

Aaron Thomas, Alfonso Davis and Richard Reddicks combined for 38 points as Lewis Tillman handed Arrow Force III its first loss of the season 58-51.

In the other games, Sanford First Nazarene topped Phat Vibes, 47-43, and Charles Daymon edged Calvary Apostolic Temple, 44-43.

Arrow Force III, Lewis Tillman and Sanford First Nazarene are all 3-1, while Calvary Apostolic Temple is 2-2. Charles Daymon is 1-3 and Phat Vibes 0-4.

Thomas (14), Davis (12) and Reddicks (12) had 29 of those points in the second half as Tillman overcame a 25-15 halftime deficit by outscoring AFIII 41-26.

The numbers out up by the teams were almost identical. Both teams hit 19 field goals, but Tillman hit two more three-pointers, 3-1. The winners also made 15-of-19 from the free throw line while AF III hit 12 of 20 charity tosses.

Mike Williams and Jonathan Jones added eight points each for the winners.

Kenny Moultrie had 16 points for AFIII. Doug Hughes had eight points and Derrick Jones and Calvin Copeland chipped in with six points each.

In the second game, the duo of Deyon Williams (17 points) and Steve Carter (12 points) was enough to withstand a 19-point effort by Adrian Mitchell as Sanford First Nazarene held off Phat Vibes.

Nazarene very nearly gave the game away at the free throw line, making just eight of 12, while the Phat Vibes converted on eight of 12.

Tommy Sanchez added nine points for the winners, while Sidney Taylor and Lashon Carden pumped in eight points each for the Phat Vibes.

In the late game, Larnell Fayson (12 points) was the only player to score in double figures, but it was still not enough as Charles Daymon took an 18-17 halftime lead and held that margin to the end, winning its first game of the season.

The difference in the game was the three-point stripe, where Daymon hit two, while CAT only went deep once. Neither team was successful at the free throw line as Daymon made six of 17 and Calvary just two of 17.

Terry Patrick and Derrick Cooper had nine points each to lead Daymon, while Darryl Redding added nine points for Calvary.

Next Thursday, AFIII battles Nazarene at 8:30

Fabrics versus UV radiation

Block sun rays with proper clothing

Floridians like to be outside to enjoy the sunshine. A concern for most people, given the dramatic increases in incidence of skin cancers and publicity by health professionals regarding the importance of sun protection, is how to enjoy the sun without excessive exposure to ultraviolet radiation.

Most professionals to date have stressed the importance of avoiding prolonged exposure and midday exposure, and of using sunscreen with sun protection factor (SPF) of at least 15. A third means of protection from UV radiation is to cover the body with clothing that will block the rays.

This leads to the problem of defining clothing that will provide protection. At present, there is no standard means of evaluating the protective abilities of clothing. At least four different methods of testing the UV blocking characteristics of fabrics have been developed for research purposes. Methods to find out which fabrics protect us and which don't, have included: an Australian textile scientist, Pailthorpe, summarized fabric characteristics shown thus far to affect sun protection in 1993. His basic conclusions were: Fabric construction. The best protection is provided by the most tightly constructed fabrics. A plain weave, which has the greatest number of yarn entanglements, will provide greater protection than other weaves of fabric of the same weight.

Fabric weight. In two fabrics of the same construction, SPF increased with fabric

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Fabric color. For a given fabric construction and dye molecule, the darker the shade, the greater the SPF. The lighter color may reflect more radiation than the darker, although no research to confirm this has yet been published.

Fiber type. Research has not yet been published on the transmission of UV radiation through fabrics which are identical in all respects except fiber content. Agents such as optical brighteners and titanium dioxide delusterants which are sometimes added to fibers are known to be absorbers and will help block UV penetration through fabrics.

Wet versus dry fabrics. Research conducted thus far indicates that wet fabrics, which tend to be more transparent than dry fabrics, usually have a lower SPF.

Some fabrics are being marketed as special sun protective fabrics. One of these is Frogskin/Frogwear. The fabric is tightly woven, lightweight nylon which has been tested using SPF methodology. It was shown to have a mean SPF of 35.6 versus 4.8 for cotton T-shirts (weight unknown). Long and short-sleeved shirts of fabric can be obtained by mail order.

The Solar Protective Factory in Chicago sells hats, shirts, jackets, jogging suits, and umbrellas made from Solarweave, a patented fabric that claims to fend off over 90 percent of UV rays. No details of testing methods or construction are available.

ESMO is a high performance polyester staple fiber with a ceramics element contained in the fiber. It was developed by Kuraray Co., Ltd., and it has been tested for ability to absorb UV radiation and reflect visible radiation, thus protecting the skin and keeping the skin cool. No fabric construction information was provided by the company to other researchers for comparative tests. Kuraray claimed that ESMO performed "remarkably better than ordinary polyester" in fabric sun tests.

The evidence given so far in research suggests no reason for consumers to purchase special sun protective clothing, but to simply select tightly woven garments for best protection until further research has been done and a rating system is developed.

Hypochondria is as crippling as organic disease

DEAR MARY: My wife is driving me nuts. She's got a different "illness" every week. If she coughs she has tuberculosis; if she has a headache, it's a brain tumor. She's been to every doctor in the area and no one can find anything physically wrong with her.

Several have suggested that she suffers from hypochondria, but she really gets mad when anyone mentions that and insists that her aches and pains are real. I want to be supportive of her when she's not feeling well, but I'm tired of missing parties and get-togethers I'm looking forward to, because she's too "sick" to participate.

If she does have a real health problem I will stand beside her as long as necessary; if she doesn't, I'm about to run out of patience with this game. What should I do to try to cope with this before I walk out forever?

FED-UP HUSBAND

DEAR FED-UP: Of course, I have no way of knowing whether your wife's health problems are imagined or real, but one thing we can be sure of, her pain is as real to her if it is hypochondria, as it is to someone with physical illness.

Hypochondria is just as incapacitating as is organic disease, but if this does turn out to be her primary problem, there are ways that you can deal with it. Either you or she may find it helpful to keep a diary of her illnesses. Pay special attention to what precedes and what causes the symptoms. Perhaps you will discover a pattern of how worry or stress contributes to the problem.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

Resist the temptation to criticize her since this usually only results in defensive reactions. Focus on dealing with the ideas or issues behind the symptoms. Helping her address and face her fears instead of criticizing may lessen her fear while you're being supportive and showing concern. However, showing concern does not extend to her taking advantage of you.

Set clear limits on how far you're willing to let her impose her symptoms on you. If you're getting ready to go somewhere that you're looking forward to and she starts experiencing symptoms, let her know that you're disappointed that she doesn't feel like joining you, and go anyway. Finally, resist pampering her since overindulgence on your part may give her added incentive to exaggerate every pain and ache.

Adoption is long journey with rewarding results

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, you printed an essay titled "Welcome to Holland" by Emily Perl Kingsley. The subject was having a child with Down syndrome.

Enclosed is an article my daughter, Diane Armitage, wrote, inspired by "Welcome to Holland." Her message is directed to childless couples who are considering adoption. (Diane and her husband are the parents of two adopted children.)

Perhaps you will consider it worth publishing.

KATHRYN REDNALDA BLAIRSTOWN, N.J.

DEAR KATHRYN: I'm delighted to share what your daughter wrote, and I'm sure many readers will appreciate its insight.

DIFFERENT TRIPS TO THE SAME PLACE

Deciding to have a baby is like planning a trip to Australia. You've heard it's a wonderful place, you've read many guidebooks and feel certain you're ready to go. Everyone you know has traveled there by plane. They say it can be a turbulent flight with occasional rough landings, but you can look forward to being pampered on the trip.

So you go to the airport and ask the ticket agent for a ticket to Australia. All around you, excited people are boarding planes for Australia. It seems there is no seat for you; you'll have to wait for the next flight. Impatient, but anticipating a wonderful trip, you wait — and wait — and wait.

Flights to Australia continue to come and go. People say silly things like, "Relax. You'll get on a flight soon." Other people actually get on a plane and then cancel their trip, to which you cry, "It's not fair!"

After a long time the ticket agent tells you, "I'm sorry, we're not going to be able to get you on a plane to Australia. Perhaps you should think about going by boat."

"By boat!" you say. "Going by boat will take a very long time and it costs a great deal of money. I really had my heart set on going by plane." So you go home and think about not going to Australia at all. You wonder if Australia will be as beautiful if you approach it by sea rather than by air. But you have long dreamed of this wonderful place, and finally you decide to travel by boat.

It is a long trip, many months over many rough seas. No one pampers you. You wonder if you will ever see Australia. Meanwhile, your friends have flown back and forth to Australia two or three more times, marveling about each trip.

Then one glorious day, the boat docks in Australia. It is more exquisite than you ever imagined, and the beauty is magnified by your long days at sea. You have made many wonderful friends during your voyage, and you find yourself comparing stories with others who also traveled by sea rather than by air.

People continue to fly to Australia as often as they like, but you are able to travel only once, perhaps twice. Some say things like, "Oh, be glad you didn't fly. My flight was horrible; traveling by sea is so easy." You will always wonder what it would have been like to fly to Australia. Still, you know God blessed you with a special appreciation of Australia, and the beauty of Australia is not in the way you get there, but in the place itself.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you wrote that the only man who beat Jack Dempsey was Gene Tunney.

Sorry, Jack Dempsey was beaten by Jim Flynn and Willy Meahan.

The late Paul Gallico, a longtime sportswriter, wrote a piece for Esquire magazine titled "The Gentle Warriors." In it, he contended that the gentlest athletes were boxers — and the least gentle were golfers and tennis players.

WOODY WILLITS, CAMAS, WASH.

DEAR WOODY: I don't know how Paul Gallico defined "gentle," but when two prizefighters get into a ring and try to knock each other senseless, I cannot imagine anything less gentle.

Removing the Stress from Distress

Shimmering shafts of morning light sift through stained glass windows casting shadows of warmth upon the sanctuary. Outside, beckoning bells announce the Sabbath as inside the pipes of a mighty organ resound with their prelude to the hour of worship, filling each soul with the glory of God and the peace that passeth all understanding.

The same glory peace is felt in every church and synagogue, whether simple or ornate, large or small. That sacred salve of God's comforting and encouraging omnipresence instills in us the strength and assurance we shall need during the coming week, creating a buffer zone between us and the stress of daily life. We are protected ... not from distress, but from the blot stress leaves upon the spirit.

Worship in God's House this Sabbath. God's arms will surround you; and as you depart, He will carry you ... removing the stress from distress ... each day.

IN BRIEF

Second Anniversary celebrated

SANFORD — New Hope Baptist Church and its pastor the Rev. William L. Bradley, Jr. will celebrate its 2nd anniversary. The First African American Church to be established in Deltona was founded and organized in 1993 in the month of January. The Rev. William L. Bradley, Jr. was the founder of the New Hope Baptist Church of Deltona. Pastor Bradley, a native of DeLand, accepted the challenge in January and began with only nine members. After two years the membership has grown to over 150 dedicated Christian workers under Pastor Bradley's leadership.

May 4, National Day of Prayer

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

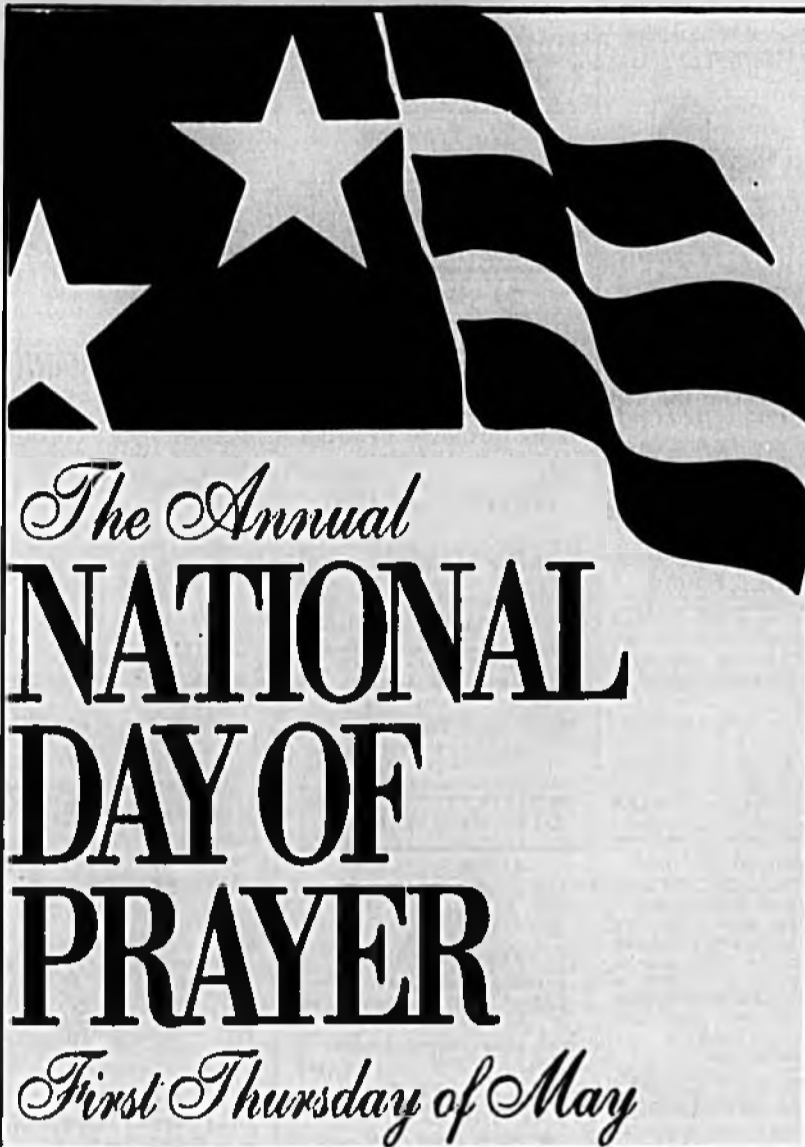

SANFORD — Thursday, May 4 marks the 44th consecutive observance of the National Day of Prayer. Services solely devoted to prayer will take place all over the nation.

All 50 states have proclamations recognizing this day. Each year it takes place on the first Thursday of May. Last year President Clinton issued a proclamation recognizing this National Day of Prayer. He is expected to again this year to mark this day.

Day long observances are held in Washington, D.C. in the Cannon House Bldg. Nationwide, more than 10,000 organized prayer events will take place throughout the day.

Activities have already been scheduled in Texas, Idaho, California, Illinois and Connecticut. The annual National Day of Prayer was established by federal law in 1952 when the United States Congress passed a joint resolution which was signed by President Harry Truman. This law was amended in 1988 and signed by President Ronald Reagan, specifically designating the first Thursday in May as the official National Day of Prayer.

Shirley Dobson, wife of James Dobson with Focus on the Family and chairman of the National Day of Prayer Task Force, commented that "Mr. Lincoln's words echo through the corridors of time. Our country stands at a great crossroad, not unlike the crises that threatened its stability during the Civil War. Our children are in trouble, our families are disintegrating, our streets are beset by crime and many people have lost hope.

And as our forefathers asked God for help in that stressful time, we must also ask for His healing mercies in this day of uncertainty."

Mrs. Dobson, who has chaired the National Day of Prayer Task Force for the past four years, noted a heightened interest in prayer in this country and a great increase in awareness of this annual observance. According to an April 4, 1994 U.S. News and World Report article titled "Spiritual America," 77 percent of Americans polled said

God had guided them in some kind of decision, and 62 percent said the influence of religion in their life is increasing. Some 84 percent told the magazine that "our government would be better if policies were more directed by moral values."

In recent years, a number of surveys have been taken on the subject the role of prayer in people's lives. One such survey, taken by The Gallup Organization for Life Magazine (12/93) revealed that 89% of Americans pray. The survey also provided the following insights on prayer:

Frequency of Prayer
21% pray 3 times a day or more

15% pray about twice a day
38% pray about once a day
9% pray several times a week

Believes Prayers are Heard
Yes 97% No 2%

Have Had Prayers Answered
Yes 95% No 2%

Why People Started Praying
Family influence 47%
Church influence 10%
God, Bible say pray 8%
Needed help/guidance 7%
Natural habit/just want to 8%

Believes Prayer Makes You a Better Person
Yes 86% No 12%

Satisfied with Prayer Life
Yes 77% No 22%

Local activities are in the planning process and will be reported as available. Please advise us if your church has events scheduled in observance of the National Day of Prayer.

Pastor shares advice to improve prayer life

CASSELBERRY — Prayer has been an important part of the life of a Christian. Jesus, on many occasions, took time out of his busy schedule to spend time with the Father.

Sermons are taught in churches all over the brotherhood about the importance of our relationship with Christ. In developing a relationship with a friend or spouse time must be spent in fellowship and sharing. God shares with us through his word, the Bible, and with his guidance through the Holy Spirit in our lives. Our responsibility as children of Him is also to establish a firm relationship with him through communion in prayer.

Bud Abt, pastor of business and finance for Northland Community Church, commented about the importance of an active prayer life. "I certainly feel in my life and in others the importance of the role of prayer. It's the basis of our relationship with Christ. It's how we communicate with him. He communicates with us through his Word."

He continued by saying, "My thought life is as a prayer. I must consider my actions and words. In a formal way we pray with someone and say a blessing before a meal and before a ceremony."

He further offered some suggestions to those wishing to improve their prayer life. "I'd tell people to read the Psalms. They are the prayers of David. I'd also say for people to not think of prayer as just being a blessing before a meal. We need to use scriptures and sermons to ponder those thoughts. When reading the Bible we need to meditate on His Word. It should prompt our daily thought life."

In closing, we were admonished by Paul in 1 Thessalonians 5:17 to "Pray without ceasing." With the upcoming National Day of Prayer slated for May 4, remember the goal of a Christian is to be more like Christ. Spending time with your best friend, Jesus, can help everyone achieve that goal.

'Glory and Fire' reaches lost

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Wekiva Assembly, 1875 Dixon Rd., was the recent host of a dramatic play titled "Glory and Fire." The founders, the Rev. Dean Fransen and his wife, Cheryl, have based the play out of Arkansas.

Most of their time is spent traveling all over the nation training individuals in churches in their roles as a part of a reenactment of a person's death and sentencing of Heaven or Hell.

The stage was draped with a golden material. Stairs accented center stage as angels lined each side of the tall staircase. At times angels would spread their wings in triumph over a saved soul or cower in hiding from the presence of Satan.

Tears were shed as well as long chuckles while the drama unfolded. The devil claimed adults and teenagers to spend eternity with him. At the onset of the play Christ was found dragging a cross to the stage for his crucifixion. Crowds cheered as he entered Heaven by proceeding up the numerous steps.

The angel in charge of the Book of Life spoke often to those being delivered to the bottom of the staircase. Families were reunited and a mother and daughter separated by the pull of Satan.

Joyce Ryll, administrative secretary for the church, reported that there were approximately 1350 in attendance over the four day presentation. Those accepting Christ totaled 72 and there were 45 rededications.

The church has plans to bring the play back to the area again next year. For further information on the drama contact Wekiva Assembly at 774-0777.

Methodist Men meet

SANFORD — The United Methodist Church of Sanford had eight men in attendance at a recent district meeting. Dinner was served to men coming from St. Cloud to Sanford. President, Vic Fredda, gave devotional and announcement information. Special music was provided. A member of "Promise Keepers," an interdenominational laymen's movement, was the guest speaker. Men from Sanford attending this meeting were, Ashby Jones, Lee Stenstrom, Jim Roger, Ralph Shearer, Pastor Larry Ambrust, Lester Rethwill and Jim Thornion.

Vitamin B12 breaks cycle of anemia

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is B12 a safe vitamin supplement?
DEAR READER: Vitamin B12 is a vital substance required by the body for proper nerve function and blood formation. In the absence of B12, patients develop a serious medical disease known as "pernicious anemia," leading to weakness, exhaustion, heart disease, and tingling and burning sensations in the extremities, as well as other symptoms.

Pernicious anemia can be successfully treated with B12 injections, in a fashion similar to diabetics who require insulin injections. The B12 is usually administered about once a month, in a maintenance program. Because vitamin B12 is so safe, toxicity or complications from its use never occur. Unlike many vitamins, an excess of B12 causes no symptoms or health hazard. Whatever the body doesn't use is harmlessly excreted in the urine.

Nonetheless, B12 should only be used if a deficiency exists, as proved by a blood test. Years ago, doctors commonly gave B12 as a tonic, to perk people up or treat "the blahs." As a placebo (harmless but ineffective), it worked because patients were told it would. Such therapy is no longer considered appropriate.

DEAR DR. GOTT: About a month ago I was diagnosed with pernicious anemia. Since receiving about six B12 injections, my appetite has improved and some degree of energy has returned. However, I now suffer from the loss of some sense of balance. Is this related to my anemia? Any advice?

DEAR READER: As I mentioned above, vitamin B12 is an antidote for pernicious anemia, a medical disorder related to the body's inability to absorb dietary B12. I would have expected that, with treatment, the symptoms you suffered should disappear. But complete resolution may take time.

In order for your system to return to normal, the injected B12 must be metabolized and the body's stores replenished. Your loss of balance may well reflect a nerve malfunction, which may not be corrected for several months.

I advise you to be patient, follow your doctor's recommendations, continue the B12 injections, and anticipate a full recovery.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood Donations and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Look at the West hand in today's diagram. The dealer, North, opens one club. East overcalls one heart and South responds one no-trump. What would you do?

You really want to bid, but nothing is appropriate, because partner will read two clubs as a cue-bid in support of hearts. Norman Kay, who held these cards, passed. And no one saw fit to do anything more.

What should West lead against one no-trump? Kay judged that if someone held a singleton ace or king of clubs, it wouldn't make much difference which card he selected. But if East or South held a singleton jack...

Kay led the club queen. Declarer, after ducking trick one, won West's club-10 continuation in the dummy. South could have raked in five tricks by playing a heart to his 10 (remember, East had bid one heart). But South, hoping West had only one entry, played a diamond.

Kay won with the king and plodded on with clubs. Now South played a heart to his 10, followed by a top diamond. But West won and cashed four club tricks. Along with East's major-suit aces, that resulted in three down, plus 300 to East-West.

There are other combinations where leading the top card, though not the textbook selection, may work well. Leading the king from K-J-10 profits when an opponent has a singleton queen. And attacking with the ace from A-J-10 may gain when someone holds a singleton queen or king. But don't try these leads unless you strongly suspect a singleton somewhere. Otherwise you will end up losing more on the swings than you gain on the merry-go-round.

HOROSCOPE

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 23, 1995

Conditions in general should improve for you in the year ahead. Your social life should perk up as well as your commercial affairs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It would behoove you to cooperate fully with persons you share a collective interest with today. Be supportive and don't make waves or even small ripples. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. $11 $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take yourself out of the picture today if negotiating a complex contract. If you don't seem too self-serving, the other party might start making concessions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Two heads are better than one today, so before you fly off without your propeller, check with co-workers for their ideas and opinions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will benefit most today from people with whom you maintain close personal ties. Individuals who know little about you will have more interest in themselves.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be luckier in matters pertaining to your home and family than your mate is today. If there is a toss up as to whose ideas to use, choose yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Socialize with pals today instead of co-workers. There is a chance you might say the wrong thing to someone who'll carry the tale directly back to the boss.
