The splendid Joe DiMaggio

RUSS WHITE

A priest was saying Mass 29 years ago at a hotel room in Dallas. His congregation included a dozen professional football players, the most famous coach in football and one of major league baseball's greatest legends.

The late Vince Lombardi had a priest accompany the Washington Redskins on each of their road trips in 1969. Lombardi used to invite his friend, Joe DiMaggio along, too.

At Mass that Sunday in Dallas, I was seated between Lombardi and DiMaggio. It was very much like being in heaven. Lombardi to my left, DiMaggio to my right. Even God had to like having these guys on His team.

Lombardi died of cancer before the start of the 1970 season and his funeral Mass was at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. DiMaggio was there that day, also.

DiMaggio, 84, is now fighting for his life. He is in a Hollywood Fla. hospital, where he underwent surgery for lung cancer.

This very elegant man — perhaps the most graceful player in baseball history — has avoided making much fuss in recent years. He has refused lucrative autobiography deals because of this. DiMaggio doesn't need publicity nor money. His legacy won't be cheapened with any trash for cash scheme. He did not approve of a book Roger Kahn wrote about his love affair and marriage to Marilyn Monroe.

DiMaggio hit safely in 56 consecutive games in 1941. He played on World Championship teams in 10 of his 13 seasons. He and Lou Gehrig were teammates. Later he played with a kid named Mickey Mantle. In between Joe D. served his country.

In the song "Mrs. Robinson," Paul Simon laments "Where have you gone DiMaggio, a nation turns its lonely eyes to you." DiMaggio asked Simon if the song was "derogatory." Simon assured him it wasn't.

So it was that DiMaggio would inspire artists to include him in both song and literature. In the novel "The Old Man and the Sea," Ernest Hemingway wrote, "I would like to take the great DiMaggio fishing. They say his father was a fisherman. Maybe he was poor as we are and would understand."

In the last sports column, Red Smith wrote that maybe he "was stuck on bad ballplayers but I told myself not to worry. Some day there would be another Joe DiMaggio."

At this moment, a nation turns its lonely eyes on the original "Joltin' Joe DiMaggio. It also is turning to prayers for his recovery.

Ground breaking set for new campus

OVIEDO — The ground breaking for the Seminole Community College Oviedo Campus is at 2 p.m. Dec. 4. The Seminole County Board of Commissioners approved the school's final master plan and developer's agreement this past week. If there are no snags in permitting from the St. John's Water Management and other site plan reviews, building will begin in the spring. School officials would like to have classes begin in the summer of 2000.

There are drainage concerns that have to be resolved at the site. Please see Campus, page 3A.

Family left homeless gets new house

SANFORD — A Sanford family left without a home by the Feb. 23 tornado that ripped through portions of Seminole County celebrated Thanksgiving by preparing to move into a new home built by the Mennonites, with construction costs paid for by Seminole County Community Development.

The Roberts will move into their three bedroom, two bathroom home at 3690 Laura Avenue on Friday or Monday, when the electricity is hooked up. Family gathered at the home on Wednesday to help the Roberts pack belongings into the home. "It's fabulous," Jimmie Roberts said. "This is a really nice house. We've been helping to build it as much as the Mennonites will let us. We appreciate all they've done. They've done a lot of work. We got to meet people from all over Canada, Germany, Pennsylvania, even Hawaii."

Justin Roberts, 15, said he helped with every phase of constructing the home since ground was broken April 11, except for installing shingles on the roof.

"We can't wait to move in," Justin said. "In the summer, people had a hard time with the heat and the leader told them 'if these people have to live in this, then you can work here.' Since September, there have been 10 to 20 people working here. Please see Home, Page 3A.

DUI sting - 13 go directly to jail

By Russ White
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY — Word came just after 10 p.m. Friday that a Sanford Police officer had apprehended a drunk driver.

"I was there," another officer said. "The guys really hammered. He drove into a bunch of mail boxes."

At 10:34 p.m., SFD Officer David Morgenstern brought the offender to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, where the 40-year-old man was tested and booked for an overnight stay.

The arrest was the first of 13 DUIs issued by a team of officers from the Seminole County's law enforcement agencies and from the Florida Highway Patrol on an intense Mobile Saturation Patrol that began at 9:30 p.m. and lasted to 4:30 a.m.

In addition to the 13 DUIs, the patrol made two drug arrests, one other traffic violation and issued 137 tickets.

"It was a very successful night," said Seminole County Sheriff's Office Deputy Mark Dibona. "The mission was to enhance the quality of safety and make the roads free from impaired drivers."

The day after Thanksgiving is notoriously "bloody" because of the number of drunk drivers on the road. For the past 10 years, the sheriff's office has conducted DUI checks. This year's patrol was more intense than previous years. Instead of using three or four checkpoints, the patrol was widespread.

The command post was at the county jail, where Deputy Keith Betham worked out of the B.A.T. Mobile — the same mobile command post used for the tornado and wildfire emergencies this year. Betham and another DUI analyst technician worked well past dawn.

One by one, the arresting officers brought handcuffed offenders to the jail. From 10:34 p.m. to almost 4 a.m., the patrol cars arrived — most of the arrests made in the early morning.

"Most of the offenders are first time arrests," Betham said. "Normal Joe Citizens who know they have messed up, they realize what they did wrong and make an effort not to be brought back here again."

Betham said that 85 percent of the offenders do not repeat. "We see them once, and that's it." Please see Drunks, Page 3A.

Lake cleanup meets goals

By Bill Kerns
HERALD STAFF WRITER

LONGWOOD — The Longwood city commission requested city manager Greg Manning to investigate whether the contract for the $170,000 Island Lake North restoration project has been fulfilled at a recent commission session.

Manning concluded the contract with Aquatic Plant Management has been fulfilled, despite misunderstandings by staff, commissioners and residents over the contract.

"We got what we paid for," Manning said. "The company did a good job overall. It was money well spent. Laymen like me didn't understand this kind of process. Nobody really understood what would go on. Maybe in hindsight a visual of what was going on might have helped us all understand."

Island Lake North is separated by its natural main source of water by State Road 434. Longwood Director of Community Services John Brock said he said this makes it an inter-nutrient wet and dry body of water with an average depth of three to four feet, dependent on rainfall.

"If we don't get rain it can get very dry," Brock said. "This is conducive to weed growth. It might have been an open lake 100,000 years ago, but I don't know when human eyes have ever seen that."

The contract called for certain non-native and invasive vegetation to be removed, leaving room for native vegetation to flourish, Brock said. He said the contract did not call for a dredge and fill permit. "We're going to see some residue right now from yanking stuff up by the roots," Brock said. "There's gas from the plants that will settle down with rainfall. We've got some clean-up items around the lake. There's a stormwater outfall that a resident is concerned with. But the contract is being fulfilled."

Dean Barber, a regional biologist with the Department of Environmental Protection, surveyed the lake and found that the removal of invasive and exotic plants, and the increase in water circulation, has been accomplished. He said he considered the project completed.

Aquatic Biologists, Inc., are under contract with the city of Longwood to remove the remaining designated Chinese tallow and floating spatterdock roots, Barber said. Please see Lake, page 3A.

Food, drug interaction update

The Food and Drug Administration and the National Consumers League are correcting information in a brochure recently developed for consumers on drug interactions. The brochure erroneously states that the consumption of grapefruit juice with prescription antihistamine drugs (fexofenadine (Allegra) or loratadine (Claritin)) could result in serious heart problems. In fact, FDA knows of no evidence of such an interaction problem involving these drugs.

POLICE LOG

The following reports were compiled from the Seminole County Sheriff's Office for incidents recorded Nov. 24:

Burglary:

WINTER SPRINGS, Moree Loop, Nov. 23, 1:48 a.m. A 19-year man and a juvenile male were arrested by Winter Springs police for burglary, theft of less than $300 and for resisting arrest without violence. Police said they found the two trying to gain access to vehicles in the parking lot of a business. They found a stereo system in the older man's waistband. He also had a wallet which contained items that weren't his. He and the other man said they found the items in the bushes nearby. The owner of the wallet was contacted and said the wallet had been in his car and that no one had permission to remove it from there. The pair then admitted they had taken the stereo from another vehicle in the area.

Domestic violence:

OVIEDO, Division Street, 500 block, Nov. 20, 2:05 a.m. A 37-year old man was arrested by Oviedo police for domestic violence. Police said the man punched his daughter in the forehead with his fist during an argument.

SANFORD, Holly Avenue, 400 block, Nov. 24, 11 p.m. A woman was arrested by Sanford police for domestic violence. Police said she had struck her son in the head with a beer can and told them that she "had the right to" do so.

Drugs:

LONGWOOD, U.S. Highway 17-92, 200 block, Nov. 23, 3:10 p.m. A 40-year old woman was arrested by Longwood police for trafficking in illegal drugs. Police said she went to a pharmacy and got a prescription filled using a false identification card, to purchase a prescription drug (Hydrocodone).

LONGWOOD, Credo Street at Pasadena, Nov. 23, 2:05 a.m. An 18-year old man was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies for possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana. Police said he was stopped on his bicycle in the middle of the street so they stopped to question him. He gave them permission to search him and when they did, they found a small baggie of marijuana in his pocket.

The Roberts are the third Sanford family to move into a home built by the Mennonites since the tornado hit the city. Virgil Kouffman, project director for the Mennonite's Sanford Unit, said.

The concrete-block homes built by the Mennonites have 2-3 bedrooms, 1100 square feet of living area, wall-to-wall carpeting, and a carport. Kouffman said.

"The Mennonites were here a few weeks after the tornado hit," Buddy Balagia, principal planner in the Seminole County Community Development Office, said. "In March, the (Seminole County Commission) authorized certain funds for both construction of homes and the housing of Mennonites."

The $30-35,000 construction cost of the houses is half what the houses would cost without Mennonite assistance, Balagia said.

"These are very nice homes," Balagia said. "They're much nicer than the homes many victims were living in before the tornado hit."

Justin Roberts said the family was living in a mobile home before the tornado.

"It was home for us," Justin said. "But, this is great. I'll even have my own bedroom."

The Mennonites are also currently taking part in home-building projects in Puerto Rico, Alabama, and Texas, Kouffman said.

At Tuesday Seminole County Commission session, two Sanford homes were designated to house Mennonites while they continue constructing new homes for victims of the Feb. 23 tornadoes.

The Mennonites will stay at 3485 and 3441 Country Club Road in Sanford until March 31, 1999 while continuing work on at least 11 new homes for victims.

"We appreciate all the help we've been receiving," Kouffman said. "There's been a lot of progress in the last 10 months. It's been an excellent community-wide effort."

The Mennonites have previously stayed in Winter Springs High School and a Girl Scout Camp in Chuluota.

Year of disasters costliest on record

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Since Jan. 1, the American Red Cross has responded to 239 major disasters affecting 300,000 families in 41 states, Guam, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands and committed more than $160 million for immediate disaster relief. The Red Cross continues racing aid to Honduras and Nicaragua in the wake of Hurricane Mitch, 1998 has become the costliest year for the Red Cross and one of the most devastating years for disasters in recent history.

So far just this year, the Red Cross has served 3.2 million meals and provided comfort, care and solace to almost 200,000 people left homeless because of disasters. Red Cross trained, licensed mental health professionals have provided more than 75,000 crisis counseling sessions to victims, emergency personnel and relief workers in 1998.

"This has been an extremely difficult year for disasters," said John Chize, vice president for Disaster Services of the American Red Cross. "The Red Cross has been in the worst hit areas and will continue to be there, providing help and hope to those individuals and families affected."

Hurricane Georges is one of the most destructive hurricanes in recorded history and the costliest single disaster operation in Red Cross history. The disaster stretched Red Cross resources thin, requiring a $50 million fund-raising appeal from Red Cross President Elizabeth Dole several weeks ago.

Trained Red Cross disaster workers have been sent to more than 16,000 relief assignments, totaling almost 500,000 days spent providing humanitarian relief since winter storms crippled parts of New York, Maine and Vermont in January.

As the year continued, so did the disasters. In February, massive flooding hit California and horrific tornadoes killed 42 people in Florida. In March, tornadoes ripped through southern Minnesota and floods swamped the towns of Oils, Alabama and Albany, Georgia. In April, another strand of deadly tornadoes harassed the south in Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky and Arkansas. In May, more tornadoes tore through North Carolina, South Dakota, Pennsylvania, New York, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

In June, wildfires scorched almost a half a million acres in Florida and flooding in Iowa and Ohio devastated dozens of communities. Floods scoured parts of Tennessee and an evacuation of Times Square displaced hundreds of people in July.

180-acre site located on the southeast corner of Lockwood Boulevard and Old Lockwood Road. Site preparation and construction cost for Phase 1 is approximately $20 million.

SCC's Oviedo Center will offer a full complement of college credit courses leading to an Associate in Arts or Associate in Science Degree.

County planner Don Fisher said that subsequent changes would be brought to the attention of Commissioner Grant Maloy, the school being in his district. It would be far too expensive to have more public hearings on the subject. If plans met Maloy's approval, the project would continue.

"We've supported this - it's part of the process," Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide said. The board voted, 5-0, to proceed.

"If I see problems, we'll take them up," Maloy said.

A small group of residents near the college site are not happy with the building. They are concerned with drainage and proximity to their homes. Some are concerned that the value of their properties will be reduced.

The commissioners say the properties will most likely rise in value.

Drunks

Unfortunately, others come back. We want them off the road for good."

Some of the DUIs brought to the jail are belligerent or just plain sick. Others quietly undergo their tests and put up no protest.

"Recently, we did had this one fellow who just cracked everyone up," Betham said. "The arresting officers said he was delivering all these one liners that had them laughing - really laughing."

"When he got here, he was still in line form. I had to try my best to hold back from laughing. The guy had some great lines. But by the time we had him processed, he wasn't saying much at all. It wasn't very pleasant being thrown into jail for the next eight hours. The laughter was over."

Sheriff Don Eslinger's intent is to make the DUI offenders' stay from pleasant.

They are held in cells just like the 1,110 other inmates - killers, spousal abusers, armed robbers and muggers.

In the midst of the DUI testing area at the jail Friday night was yet another grim reminder of how some offenders place the lives of others - their children - in danger.

Several yards away from the

B.A.T. Mobile, Laurie Olson from Orlando Regional Health Care, placed eight baby or children's car seats. Each had a sticker that read: "Safe Kids Buckle Up."

"We give these seats to those who need them," Olson explained. "When an officer makes a DUI arrest and notices that children who are in the car are not buckled up, we supply these seats. All children under 16 must be buckled up at all times."

Drunk drivers with unbuckled children in their cars get stiffer fines and little sympathy from the law.

McCollum should focus his attention closer to home, ease up on president

Is Rep. Bill McCollum the Clinton impeachment R-Fla., adequately representing the views of his constituents regarding hearings or is he trying to satisfy an agenda that diverts his time away from serving the people he represents.

McCollum, a Longwood resident and a leading member of the House Judiciary Committee investigating the president's pending impeachment charges, has been among the leaders in his relentless attack of the president.

McCollum has been on many national news programs and is one of the most frequently quoted House members in his attacks on the president.

Though election results showed that the American public is tired of the Clinton scandal, the fact remains the president hurt himself and his family, and broke the law in the process.

Even as national media has pointed out that some Republicans are willing to settle for censure, McCollum remains insistent that the impeachment hearings have rallied the Republicans to look for more evidence.

Let the impeachment hearings play themselves out. As McCollum attacked the president, the American people pushed aside their feelings on the scandal and voted more Democrats into the House and to key gubernatorial positions.

McCollum has described Clinton as mastering a "cold, calculating, well thought-out scheme."

He has been voted into office to represent the views of his constituents, not the House Judiciary committee. The time McCollum spends discussing the impeachment hearings in the media could be spent serving the people he represents.

POLITIBITS

Whats going on politically-speaking in Seminole County

Seminole County Sheriff Don Ealinger sent a recent memo to all of the employees in his command that he was not interested in a political appointment by Gov. Jeb Bush to be the top gun in the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. Ealinger's Office is considered by many to be the most efficient in the state.

Former Seminole County Commissioner Win Adams has been deluged with good wishes from residents who are urging him to run for the commission again in 2000. Adams said others say they will support him if he should want to run for the County School Board in 2000. Meanwhile, he is mulling offers from the private sector.

In Longwood, one resident offered suggestions on how the city should be organized by posting assignments on the wall of an outhouse that was recently deposited on the steps of City Hall.

Longwood city administrator and former chief of police Greg Manning, whose son lives in Sanford, said the reason he is not interested in becoming Sanford's chief of police is that "I'm riding my tractor back to Alabama. It will take a long time to get there by tractor, so I don't have time to waste."

Longwood Commissioner Paul Lovstrand and Manning got in a heated argument Monday night at the commission meeting over whether police are involved in soliciting funds for a youth center. Manning and Director of Public Safety Terry Baker say no officers are soliciting funds, and this is a misunderstanding over a form solicitors use in which the police department endorses the center. Lovstrand said use of police authority in soliciting funds is intimidating.

Some members of the Sanford Police Department say that if Cmdr. Ray Bronson, presently the acting chief, had been named chief a year ago there would be no need for a nationwide search for a new chief when Joe Dillard leaves. Bronson will announce soon if he intends to be a candidate for the job.

A used people in an unwanted district

By Johnell Jackson

Now that the conference center/hotel for the City of Sanford has been approved, the forgotten black residents (voters and taxpayers) of District II can resume with their normal lifestyles. Their lifestyles of useless district negligence from a neglectful city government, until their black vote is needed for other district benefits. This is not about the District II Commissioner whom I have worked with and have confidence and respect for her leadership. It is about a system of government that uses blacks for vehicles and footstools for supporting their district and mayor needs.

In a recent five-year Capital Planning Budget Program Proposal with millions plus dollars, District II and its residents weren't considered or mentioned once for their district needs.

As a 1968 graduate of

My Two Cents

Guest Column

Crooms Academy. It is degrading to see our young blacks and elderly residents struggling with the same social conditions. With a government submitting such a proposed budget, they are going into the 21st Century with no consideration for District II voters and taxpayers.

There is really no direct need for a district two. It is just a fraudulent intent by the system to use blacks as a vehicle for the mayor and other district needs. This City of Sanford government with its proposed budget is letting District II voters and taxpayers know that the new vision that the City of Sanford's government is proposing does not include District II directly. Your vote is needed for the rest of our districts. The only good thing that was done indirectly in the past for District II voters and taxpayers was a black assistant police chief who finally made chief. He became a chief that the city never wanted.

District II suffers more social ills than any other district in this city government. While some may say it is their own fault, and that is easy to say, but when you are not part of a proposed budget anywhere, then you are up the creek without a paddle.

The black voters will always be welcomed and your taxes will be paid and increased, but this system of government will constantly ignore your needs.

Until fear is subdued, the apprehension of harm from fear is conquered, and the unfair favoring of favoritism is no more, blacks across the system will always be stereotyped and ignored. Wake up and smell the roses or you are destined to lose.

God bless you all.

Will Congress properly punish Clinton?

By Morton Kondracke

MORTON KONDRACKE

The election results all but guarantee that President Clinton won't be removed from office. Now, Congress' task is to find a fitting punishment short of that. Chances are, it will.

What that punishment should be remains to be seen. It could be censure, impeachment by the House without conviction by the Senate or a House vote on impeachment that falls short of a majority.

Any of the above would put a permanent—and deserved—brand on the Clinton presidency for the history books. Moreover, his punishment might not stop there.

Clinton's premeditated commission of perjury in a federal civil deposition and again before a federal grand jury surely constitute crimes, although arguably not "high crimes" of the kind the Constitution prescribes for impeachment.

Other charges against Clinton—obstruction of justice and witness tampering—need to be proved more solidly than they have been in independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's report to Congress.

At this week's hearing before a House Judiciary subcommittee, Republicans argued that perjury was a "high crime" because it amounted to "an attack on the rule of law" and violation of the president's duty to "take care that the laws are faithfully executed."

However, Democrats and allied scholars implicitly made the equally valid point that the Framers' intention with impeachment was to deal with real—not metaphorical—"attacks" on the Constitution.

If Congress ultimately decides that Clinton's offenses constitute "low crimes," as they were described by historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. at the hearing, Clinton could still face prosecution for them after he leaves office in 2001.

In fact, Starr conceivably could try to seek an indictment against the president while he's in office and hold a trial for him after he leaves. Legal authorities are split on whether that's possible.

So Clinton is not going to get off "scot free," as his critics fear will happen if he's not impeached and convicted. He will not escape the "rule of law."

In a democracy, however, Congress ought not ignore the unmistakable judgment of the public on so weighty a matter as the continued tenure of a President.

The public's will is clear through opinion polls and now election exit polls, whose results are consistent: Two-thirds of U.S. voters are opposed to Clinton's removal.

Impeachment was not precisely put to a referendum on Nov. 3, but the outcome practically guarantees that 67 senators won't vote to convict and remove him.

Those who thought that losing five seats would cause House Republicans to look for a quick deal—or "exit strategy"—seem to have been proved wrong.

Judging by members' comments at the Judiciary Committee hearing Tuesday, the GOP majority seems bent on voting articles of impeachment and sending them to the full House for a vote.

Possibly the articles will fall short of a majority of those present and voting there. In that case, Clinton still will go down as just the second president ever to have impeachment considered by the full House.

Possibly—but not probably—a censure motion might pass as a substitute for impeachment in the House. It's not likely because it would require the House to act as both judge and jury, which GOP leaders say violates constitutional order.

Perhaps a House majority will support one or more articles of impeachment and send them on to the Senate for a trial. That ordeal would constitute censure on its own, although the two bodies might want to follow up an acquittal with a stern joint resolution of censure.

Clinton critics consider censure a mere "slap on the wrist" for Clinton, and several scholars said it would create a dangerous precedent, leading to regular censures of the president when the opposite party controls Congress.

University of London's Gary McDowell told the Judiciary panel, "In light of the founders' concern that the president not be subjected to political molestation by Congress, it cannot be emphasized too strongly that impeachment is the only means granted to Congress to censure the president. It is impeachment or nothing."

Such opinions shouldn't be dismissed lightly, but there are counter arguments: Clinton would be only the second president ever subjected to joint censure—the other being

Andrew Jackson—and the rarity of the procedure would signify that it should be used only in unusually serious circumstances.

Moreover, censure has the advantage of being a punishment that Republicans and Democrats might agree upon. The votes on impeachment are likely to be party-line underestimating the breadth of dismay Clinton's conduct has elicited in Congress and the country.

It's still remotely possible that Starr will bring more charges against Clinton—such as systematic intimidation of witnesses—that would unmistakably rise to the level of "high crimes."

On current evidence, it's clear that Clinton has demeaned the presidency, violated the law and lied to the country. He won't be removed, but one way or another he will be punished. The system works.

Businesses charged with price gouging

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

TALLAHASSEE Florida Agriculture and Consumer Services Commissioner Bob Crawford filed lawsuits against three Miami Dade County businesses for allegedly price gouging in the aftermath of Hurricane Georges.

The suits, filed in Miami Dade County Circuit Court say the companies violated Florida's price gouging law and the law prohibiting unfair and deceptive trade practices by changing excessive prices for plywood during a declared state of emergency. The businesses involved are BSA Lumber Company, located in Homestead, Paradise Plumbing Supplies Inc. of Miami and Don Tallet Hardware and Lumber Company Inc. of Miami.

Florida law prohibits charging excessive or exorbitant prices for essential items, including food, ice, generators and lumber, following the declaration of an emergency, unless the price increases are attributable to additional costs incurred by the retailer.

After receiving complaints on the Department's price gouging hotline, investigators found that the businesses had increased the prices on various types of plywood by anywhere from $4 to $7 during and after the storm.

"Consumers are at a distinct disadvantage during an emergency and they should not have to worry about being victimized twice just so businesses can increase their profits," Crawford said. "Plywood is necessary for boarding up homes and businesses, and price gouging will not be tolerated."

The penalty for violating the price gouging statute is $1,000 per violation, up to $25,000 per day. Additional penalties under Florida's Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act include a fine of $10,000 per violation and restitution to consumers.

Crawford urges anyone who believes that they have been the victim of price gouging after a declared disaster to call the price gouging hotline at 1-800-357-4273 and keep copies of their receipts. During non-emergencies, consumers can call the Department's Consumer Hotline at 1-800-HELP-FLA (1-800-435-7352). The best way to avoid price gouging is to shop and prepare early before the disaster strikes.

Are you one of the 7 out of 8 who have not prepared a will?

When you die you must leave behind everything for which you have worked and saved. The question is, TO WHOM? If you have a will, you have already instructed the State attorneys and judges to act according to YOUR wishes. But if you don't have a will, the State will simply distribute your estate according to law.

Without a Will you let the State determine the disposition of your assets, the welfare of your spouse and the guardianship of your children. Probate costs, taxes and fees increase. What's worse, you rob yourself of the privilege of continuing stewardship through designated gifts.

DON'T MAKE THE MISTAKE OF THINKING:

- only wealthy people need a will
- that drawing a Will is too complicated
- or that it is too expensive.

Brown is doing a great job

LAKE MARY - When you think of the Lake Mary girls basketball team, what comes to mind?

The intensity of Mary Leah Sutton.

The scoring and size of Lauren Bradley.

The passing and leadership of Ashlee Ballance.

Last year's state title and a current 33-game win streak.

Two losses in two years.

Dig a little deeper and look at the bench. The Rams' junior varsity could play as a varsity team and probably finish second in the county.

In other words, there's an awful lot of talent and success to go around.

But there's also somebody everyone forgets when Rams girls basketball is mentioned.

It takes great ingredients to make a great stew, but it also takes a great chef.

Carl Brown has done one of the most underrated jobs of coaching you'll ever see.

Sure everyone knows he's the leader of the Rams, the guy who makes it come together, but he rarely gets the credit from local basketball fans for the success of his team.

Why?

People mention that anyone can win with the talent at Lake Mary. Some say he doesn't really have to coach as much as he throws a bunch of basketballs on the floor and tells them to win by 50 points.

It's more than just that.

Talent doesn't win championships and talent doesn't alone put together 33-game winning streaks.

That's why Brown deserves an awful lot of the credit.

When he took a team whose starting lineup consisted of four underclassmen to the state finals two years ago, he had seniors who rarely played.

Same thing last year when he won the whole thing.

This season, he has a senior-dominated team but still chooses to start a freshman.

Success breeds jealousy. At most schools, the seniors would be screaming for playing time and a cancer would grow between them and the younger, more talented players.

Brown has prevented that.

If he never leaves his seat on the bench, if he never bails a referee or calls a play, he deserves a load of credit for keeping his team playing as well, a team.

Championships can produce egos. There aren't any at Lake Mary. Despite a string of injuries, the Rams still were working on all cylinders after a close call against Lyman last week. Bradley and Ballance are still recovering from injuries and Sutton may be out for a few weeks with a broken hand.

But it says here that Brown does an awful lot more than send a bunch of basketball robots onto the court. He knows how to coach, both as a tactician and as a master chef. He'll find a way to keep it all together until Lakeland.

Last Second Shot: Just a thought: At Seminole High's Bill Fleming Gymnasium, both baselines feature long, white padded sections with the Seminole logo on them.

It's a great addition, but there's a lot of white space on each side. How about letting the players on the volleyball and basketball teams sign them each season under the year they played. After the names add up in a few years, it might look pretty impressive. Just a thought.

Lady Raiders roll to 7-0

ferve effort as the Seminole Community College women's basketball team rolled to defeat Skagit Valley Community College from Mount Vernon, Washington, 71-53, in a Friday afternoon matinee at SCC.

Second half 'D' carries host SCC past Skagit Valley C.C.

SANFORD - The Seminole Community College women's basketball team completed a strange week on Friday, but the distractions did not hinder the outcome as the Raiders ran their record to 7-0.

After being idle for five days, SCC was scheduled to play Owens Community College in the Ocala Classic at Central Florida Community College last Friday, but the Ohio school pulled out and was replaced by Bereard College from North Carolina.

But the BC team came down with an illness and also could not play the Raiders.

The local team finally got to take the court on Saturday (Nov. 21st) and slugged Nova Southeastern University from Ft. Lauderdale, 75-55.

But that was not an end to the problems as SCC had bus trouble trying to get back to Sanford from Ocala.

Lions, Patriots undefeated at Arrow Force VII Classic

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - It's shaping up like another typical Oviedo boys basketball season.

Lots of unfamiliar faces, no superstars, the perfect concept of team play and the rest of the concepts which makes the Lions a perennial conference and state power.

With a roster full of new faces, the Lions won their second straight game in the Seminole Arrow Force VII Tip Off Classic, 57-44 at Bill Fleming Gymnasium Friday night.

It was everything fans have come to expect from Oviedo. Strong defense, crisp passing and strong play under the boards led the Lions who, along with Lake Brantley, came out of the classic with two wins.

Lake Brantley won Friday's opening game, 68-47, over Crooms.

Wednesday, Oviedo crushed Crooms, 97-61 and Lake Brantley beat Seminole, 65-47.

Oviedo lost all of its starters from last year's district semi-finalists, but some new leaders emerged in the tournament. Larry Wharton led the Lions with 15 points and Matt Tulip chipped in with 12. Mark Bierkan added 10 including a pair of three-pointers.

Seminole played without its team captain and star Cornelius Blue who was suspended for two games after committing a flagrant foul near the end of Wednesday's loss to Lake Brantley. Without Blue, the Seminole offense was out of sync despite B.J. Pratt and Shaun Lettwich who each had nine points. Lettwich scored his on three three-pointers in the second half.

Arrow Force VII has only one non-senior, but most played junior varsity or didn't have much playing time last year, so coach Bob Trajna said he's still working on rotations while the school's younger talent gets experience on the

"What we decided to do was let our younger kids get some good JV competition," he said. "If we rushed them up this year, we'd struggle for the next two years."

Trajna's team won the Seminole Athletic Conference last season, but this squad is still trying to put the pieces together.

"We have played so poorly, right now we just need to look to improve," Trajna said. "We have had good shots, but we haven't finished anything."

Oviedo had plenty of good shots Friday. The Lions jumped out to a 7-0 lead and led 12-6 after the first quarter.

Bierkan accounted for seven of the points.

Oviedo continued to lead throughout and was never threatened until Lettwich got hot in the second half and Seminole was able to cut the lead to 10.

The games don't count officially on the team records, so each team substituted freely looking for the right rotations once play starts for real next week, but it was a good indicator of where they stand.

In Friday's opener, Terrance Perkins had a game-high 25 points and Brent Watson added 10 for Crooms, but it wasn't enough as the Patriots spread the scoring all around. Gene Willis led Lake Brantley with 11 points and David Baker tossed in 10.

The Patriots jumped out to a 17-5 first quarter lead and the game was never close.

Most of the county's boys teams will begin playing for real next week, including Seminole, which will join Lake Howell in the Winter Park-East Orange County Rotary Tournament at Winter Park High School starting Wednesday.

Lake Brantley and Oviedo will meet in a tough Seminole Athletic Conference opening contest in Altamonte Springs next Friday at 7:45 p.m.

Mark Bierkan poured in seven of his 10 points in the first quarter to help the Oviedo Lions get past host Seminole, 57-44, in the Seminole Arrow Force VII Tip-Off Classic Friday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

New Covenant clinches Church crown

By Dean Smith
HERALD SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - Calvary Apostolic Church did everything it could, but in the end New Covenant Church proved too tough as it clinched the championship of the City of Sanford Recreation and Parks Department Adult Fall Church Basketball League last Friday night (Nov. 20th) in the Dan Pelham Gymnasium at Sanford Middle School.

Lawrence Gordon scored 12 points and Cornelius Carter 10 as Calvary Apostolic Church took a shocking 40-28 halftime lead over undefeated New Covenant Church.

But Titus Joshua and Charles Daymon scored 15 and 13 points, respectively, in the second half as New Covenant Church rallied to tie the game at 66-66 after regulation.

New Covenant Church then claimed its eighth victory without a loss by hitting five of six free throws, including four for-four by Daymon, and outscoring Calvary Apostolic Church, 13-7, in overtime to win 79-73.

Joshua and Daymon both finished with 27 points for New Covenant Church, while Mike Lockhart clipped in with 18.

Derrick Cooper led Calvary Apostolic Church with 17 points, while Gordon (16), Cornelius Carter (14) and Steve Carter (12) also finished in double figures.

In the other game from Nov. 20, Sanford First Baptist Church got a 2-0 forfeit victory from C.H.O.P.

In games from Nov. 13th, New Covenant Church club-bered C.H.O.P., 85-40; Sanford First Baptist Church topped Calvary Apostolic Church, 67-58; and Sanford First Church of the Nazarene Team No. 1 took the measure of Sanford First Church of the Nazarene Team No. 2, 54-45.

Tony Davis (19), Marquis Bell (18), Lockhart (13), Daymon (10) and Vinnie Morris (10) all scored in double figures for New Covenant Church, while Doug Hughs and Charles Inman poured in 11 points each for C.H.O.P.

Calvary Apostolic Church held a 33-32 halftime lead, but Sanford First Baptist Church rallied behind 12 second half points by Denny Clayton to pull out the triumph.

Clayton finished with a team-high 18 points, while Dan Strauss added 16 points, Koseta Kennon 15 points and Jim Learned poured in 14 points for the winner's.

Cooper had a huge night for Calvary Apostolic Church, hitting four three-pointers in the second half and finishing with a game-high 23 points. Mike Evans, Norman Beverly and Cornelius Carter helped out with 10 points each.

Team No. 2 took a big 20-12 halftime lead over Team No. 1 in the battle of the Sanford First Church of the Nazarene, but could not maintain the momentum as Team No. 1 rallied behind Sean Whitman and Chris Robbins, who combined to score 24 second half points.

Sean Whitman led the way with 16 points, while Dale Whitman Jr. added 12 points and Robbins scored all 11 of his points in the second half.

Timmy Watson scored 13 points and Brandon Kinnett and Scott Johnson 10 points each for Team No. 2.

New Covenant Church is now 8-0, with only one game to play, and is being followed by Sanford First Baptist Church (6-2), Calvary Apostolic Church and Sanford Church of the Nazarene Team No. 1 (both 3-4) and C.H.O.P. and Sanford First Church of the Nazarene Team No. 2 (both 1-6).

The league took off the Thanksgiving weekend and return on Friday, Dec. 4 with Sanford First Church of the Nazarene Team No. 2 playing Sanford First Baptist Church at 6:30 p.m.; C.H.O.P. battling New Covenant Church at 7:30 p.m.; and Sanford First Church of the Nazarene Team No. 1

What's Up In The NFL.... Week No. 13

SANFORD - Week 13 has arrived and the CRYSTAL BALL OF FOOTBALL is back.

We destroyed the Vegas bookies last week with a near perfect performance. My accuracy aided not only you, my loyal readers, but myself as well.

After going to sleep for a few weeks in the national handicappers contest, I have vaulted back into striking distance of the leader. My best work tends to come in the latter part of the season, so I am confident that I will bring home the Gold to the Seminole Herald.

The race for the playoffs is beginning to tighten up as teams make one last push to remain relevant in the chase for the Super Bowl.

My patented LOCK OF THE WEEK cruised to victory again as my beloved BUFFALO BILLS (-7) thrashed the INDIANAPOLIS COLTS. As promised, Buffalo and their fans took the game very seriously and "covered" handily, 34-11.

Taking a quick look around Florida, let's head to Jacksonville first.

The Jaguars, as predicted by this writer, took a tough loss at Pittsburgh last week, but don't despair. I told you the Steelers would do everything they could to win because they realized that their entire season rested on the outcome of this game.

The Jaguars will get back into the groove just in time to beat the Steelers in the playoffs. were the best team in Florida, and for the first time ever, I must admit he is correct.

Tampa Bay dropped yet another one at home as the Lions sailed to victory in the Bucs' ship. It is now official, Tampa Bay is a disgrace. The worst thing about the team right now is the fact that it won't learn from its mistakes.... Trent Dilfer.

Miami, as promised, wasn't up to the challenge in New England this week, and dropped into a three-way tie for the Division.

From the amount of mail I got on the subject many of you weren't happy with my comments about Marino getting on in years.

Let me tell you one more time....I'm not paid to avoid hurting feelings, I'm compensated for telling the truth.

Marino has to drag his body around the pocket now. I respect what the man accomplished in the League, but face it, while I was eating turkey many of you were eating crow.

Let's look into the CRYSTAL BALL OF FOOTBALL and find the winners.

MIAMI (-9) VS. NEW ORLEANS
The Dolphins need this game badly, and Johnson will do everything possible to get the win. I love watching Ditka and the Saints play, they have more heart than any team in the League. Dolphins 23, Saints 17.

JACKSONVILLE (-7) AT CINCINNATI
The Jaguars can ill afford another loss in the Division so look for them to trounce the Bengals, who seem to have given up on the rest of the season.

This organization is so screwed up they still won't put Sanford native Jeff Blake back in. They deserve every loss they're getting. Jaguars 28, Bengals 6.

NEW YORK JETS (-9) VS. CAROLINA
The Panthers have been improving steadily since they dismissed Kerry Collins. Now they are scoring points and putting in efforts their fans are more accustomed to seeing.

The New York Jets does NOT want to lose this game, if they do they may fall out of the playoff race for good. Bill Parcells is tough at home, and I have to give him the win in this one, but to give up nine points in this improved Panthers property? No way. Jets 24, Panthers 17.

KANSAS CITY (-4) VS. ARIZONA
I want to see the Cardinals win this one. It would be the final nail in Marty's coffin at Kansas City.

Jake Plummer looked fantastic last week as he threw his squad to an early 31-0 lead at Washington. I look for the offense and defense to both show up for this Arrowhead battle. Cardinals 23, Chiefs 11.

NEW ENGLAND (-3) VS. BUFFALO
The Bills look to improve their situation in the A.F.C. East and the Patriots try to stop their amazing run.

Unfortunately for Buffalo, the Patriots' victory over Miami on Monday Night gave them much needed confidence to get back in the hunt. If the Bills can stop Bledsoe's passing, they will get the win, if not, they don't have a chance. TOO CLOSE TO CALL.

What's Up In The NFL

BRADY LESSARD

SEATTLE (-2) VS. TENNESSEE
This game is do or die for Coach Erickson. If he loses this one, Seattle will definitely send him packing, but if he wins and finishes the season with a winning record, they may show mercy.

The Oilers, however, won't come to town planning to help him keep his job. This team has looked very good on both sides of the ball and have a real shot at making the playoffs, despite last week's stumble against the Jets. TOO CLOSE TO CALL.

GREEN BAY (-18) VS. PHILADELPHIA
The Packers blew a golden opportunity last week against the Vikings and will look to punish the Eagles for their mistake.

Green Bay will certainly win this game, but 18 points is a lot of points to give a professional football team. Have to play it? Take the points and cross your fingers. Packers 31, Eagles 14.

OAKLAND (-6) VS. WASHINGTON
The Raiders looked much better against the Broncos than I thought they would, and I was happy for them. They still have more talent than 90-percent of the League and if they can sneak into the playoffs....look out! Running back Napoleon McCallum is one of the best I've seen in a number of years. Raiders 31, Redskins 20.

SAN FRANCISCO (-13) VS. NEW YORK GIANTS

The Niners seem to have gotten back what they were missing for a month or so, and they still have some ground to make up on the Falcons. I look for Young and Rice to make a statement in this one, amazingly a number of fans and writers have listed this team as dead, they are far from it! Niners 34, Falcons 9.

Each week, and after extensive and exhaustive review, I release what I consider to be the best selection against the spread in the schedule that week.

These LOCK OF THE WEEK selections have led to financial independence for a handful of loyal readers. Our season profits have swollen to $24,000 and I'm ready for another streak!

Today I'm going with the OAKLAND RAIDERS (-6) OVER THE WASHINGTON REDSKINS as my LOCK OF THE WEEK in a game that should be over by halftime.

SCC

Things looked to be back on track Friday afternoon at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center as the Raiders took a 24-14 lead after 10 minutes of the game against Skagit Valley Community College from Mount Vernon, Washington.

But the visitors, who went 32-0 in the California Junior College League last year, got rolling against the SCC reserves and kept the momentum the rest of the half, outscoring the Raiders 21-8 to take a 35-32 halftime advantage.

Both teams got off to a slow start in the second half, but SCC's pressure defense finally started to create problems for Skagit Valley and the Raiders went on a monster run, holding the visitors to only five points over the first 15 minutes of the second half to build a 20-point lead, 60-40.

The two teams played equal the rest of the way with fourth-ranked SCC improving to 7-0 on the season, 71-53.

"We're probably going to move up to No. 2 (in the state poll) when the poll comes out today," said SCC coach Ken Patrick. "I'm not sure we belong there with the way we played today though."

"We're still not playing with enough team consistency and intensity yet. The freshman have saved us several times this year, but they are still lost on offense and the freshman and sophomores are still learning each others' game. I hope they [the team] start getting it together soon."

The Raiders will remain at home to play a doubleheader on Wednesday (Dec. 2) with the SCC men's team. The women host Brevard Community College from Melbourne at 6 p.m., followed by the men against Miami-Dade Community College at 8 p.m.

Daria Kudrnytsyeva led the Raiders with 22 points on Friday, while Kaisa Tuure added 13 points. Sasha Raimesalo added nine points and Crystal Tanner came off the bench to score eight points, while contributing several steals and assists during the SCC rally.

In the victory over Nova Southeastern, Kudrnytsyeva was the leader with 20 points, six assists and four steals, while seven-foot Jaana Kotova had a big night with 18 points, 10 rebounds and three blocked shots. Raimesalo chipped in with 10 points and five assists, while Mevett Wooley added 10 points, four assists and steals and Tuure contributed six points and 10 rebounds.

Tourists go back to nature in county

By Bill Kerns
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - The theme for this year's Seminole County Convention and Visitor's Bureau marketing plan is eco-tourism.

Tourists interested in a nature activity or in visiting a historical site are the fastest growing segment of vacationers worldwide, the bureau said.

Hotel development, with the county's tourism industry growing in response to corporate growth in the I-4 corridor, is expected by the bureau.

Additional development is expected to come to the Oviedo area near the mall and at the Orlando Sanford Airport, the bureau said.

Six new hotels were built in Seminole County during the last year, and the county's hotel tax collections have increased 20 percent, the bureau said.

There will be a new meeting facility completed in the county within the next five years, the bureau said. Sanford voters approved the construction of a 300 room hotel/convention center that is being planned on Lake Monroe by PRA Development.

At least one new eco-lodge will be developed along the St. Johns River with 100 to 200 units, the bureau said.

The county's sports market will continue to grow, with a demand for additional soccer and softball facilities, the bureau said. Sanford is constructing a four field sports complex at Chase Park, which when combined with Zinn Beck Field and Historic Sanford Memorial Stadium would give the city six fields at the site.

The bureau said it expects the Orlando Sanford Airport to receive 500,000 visitors per year from Germany, Canada and South America, in addition to its United Kingdom customer base.

The 1.3 million passengers through the Orlando Sanford Airport from Britain and Germany are an untapped source of new business for county hotels and attractions, the bureau said. International visitors stay an average of 14 days, spending $1,600 per person, the bureau said.

Corporate travelers are the number one market for Seminole County hotels Monday through Thursday, the bureau said.

Weekend vacationers tend to come from Florida cities and from the Southeast, usually driving to the county and staying an average of two nights, the bureau said.

Most senior travelers come to the county by car, often by Auto Train, the bureau said. There is a trend among seniors to travel with grandchildren, the bureau said.

The county's tourism bureau will focus its efforts on eco-tourism touting the natural resources including parks and the zoo. Local golf courses continue to attract visitors of all ages throughout the year.

Sports training is an important aspect of the county's sports market. The bureau said there is less competition in this market, since most venues are interested in large events.

The objectives of the bureau include a five percent increase in hotel occupancy and a 10 percent increase in tourism tax revenues. The bureau hopes to bring two new events to the Seminole County Sports Training Center in Sylvan Lake Park near Sanford. The bureau is also seeking to attract a new golf event to the county.

The bureau has an objective of increasing individual golf traffic by 10 percent through relationships and packages with golf wholesalers and businesses. In addition, the bureau hopes to increase use of the county's outdoor attractions by 10 percent by including day and overnight packages with an expanded eco/heritage tourism marketing program.

The Central Florida Sports Authority will assist the bureau in bidding for new events for county sports venues, the bureau said.

The bureau is seeking new promotional partners, including

Church Street Station in Orlando, as well as partners in Daytona Beach and New Smyrna Beach.

The bureau will assist in promoting events such as American Powerboat Racing, Seminole Soccer Club tournaments, softball tournaments, wakeboarding and water-skiing events, Scottish Highland games, junior Olympics, and the Sanford Heritage Festival.

New information centers will be established by the bureau in the county's three regional malls and within each of the Chambers of Commerce in the county.

The bureau said it will cooperate with promoters to support opening ceremonies and garner television coverage. The bureau also said it will use promotions, such as golf packages with hotels, to direct guests to county properties.

A seminar for hotels and attractions on low cost or no cost promotions and public relations will be developed by the bureau.

The bureau will develop a training program for front desk employees on customer service.

There will also be an awards program, including free admission to county attractions, for customer service employees.

Four operators in the Orlando area that are receptive to promoting Seminole County such as Sun Coast Destination Services will play a key role in selling eco-heritage tours and other attractions, the bureau said.

The bureau will run banner advertisements on the Visit Florida web site, and remodel its own web site. The bureau's Special Events page will be remodeled so viewers can select the dates they will be coming to Florida, and find out which specific events will happen at the time.

WIN AT BRIDGE

This strange side of bridge

By Phillip Alder

BRIDGE

PHILLIP ALDER

Although bridge is not renowned as a hotbed of humor, many funny things happen at the table. The trouble is that most of them lose their impact when recounted later. Yet today's deal definitely has its amusing side.

It occurred last January at the National Open Teams in Canberra, Australia. (Side issue: Why were all the results on this deal and the other nine in the session scrapped?)

At most tables, South arrived in four spades. The best opening lead is the spade jack. (Starting with a singleton trump normally isn't recommended, but leading away from an ace is usually worse.) One declarer won with dummy's king and called for the club king, discarding a heart from hand. The lethal defense is for West to lead a low heart to his partner, for a diamond switch. Even continuing with the ace and another heart is successful. But

West returned a club. Guessing correctly, declarer won with dummy's queen, ruffed a club to bring down the jack, drew trumps ending in the dummy, and claimed 10 tricks via six spades and four clubs.

When Barbara McDonald was the declarer, she inadvertently ducked the spade-jack lead in both hands! And when she saw what had happened, she let out an involuntary gasp. Suddenly West could see a great result. Speedily, he cashed the heart ace, the diamond ace and the club ace — or so he thought. McDonald ruffed the club ace and claimed a moment later!

The deals were scrapped because

'A Decade of Doors' theme for holiday home tour

Davis Home, 419 Magnolia Ave.

The third stop after the Cultural Arts Center and Holy Cross Episcopal Church on this year's Sanford Historic Tour of Homes, "A Decade of Doors," features an original floor plan and local legends.

James and Margaret Davis bought the two-story home, 419 Magnolia Avenue, about 16 years ago. In addition to their son, several family members were living with them and they needed a big home. Margaret's mother, Edna Rambo, currently lives with them. Please see Davis, Page 2C

Singeisen Home, 203 E. 10th St.

Preserving the past has been a life-long passion for the owners of the 10th stop on this year's Sanford Historic Tour of Homes, "A Decade of Doors."

Scott and Jennifer Singeisen bought their 1913 Colonial Revival home, at 203 E. 10th Street, two years ago.

Since then, they have put a new roof on the two-story house, added new plumbing and electrical, remodeled the kitchen and bath, and added a half-bath on the first floor. Please see Singeisen, Page 2C

Hill Home, 1800 Magnolia Ave.

The seventh stop on this year's Sanford Historic Tour of Homes, "A Decade of Doors," offers a glimpse into the lifestyle of a prominent 1920s family.

Built in 1925 for the William Hill family, owners of Hill Lumber and Hardware, the palatial home at 1800 Magnolia Avenue is situated on three lots and includes separate guest quarters, which were built at the same time as the main house. Members of the Hill family occupy. Please see Hill, Page 2C

Sanford Historic Trust's 10th annual Tour of Homes scheduled for Dec. 5 and 6

All Stories By Debra Wood
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

Eight families living in Sanford's historic district will open their homes and hearts to hundreds of history buffs and curious onlookers during the city's 10th annual Historic Tour of Homes.

The Sanford Historic Trust presents "A Decade of Doors," Dec. 5 and 6. The homes will be open from noon until 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

"There are going to be some fabulous homes," said Jennifer Singeisen, who owns one of the homes on the tour. "The houses always look wonderful decorated for Christmas."

Guests will receive a commemorative program, which homeowners will stamp as people pass through their homes, allowing tour takers to see half the homes one day and the rest the next, if they choose to. Carriage rides and antique cars will add to the historic ambiance.

Bart Rush and Keith McCann are co-chairman of this year's event. In addition to the 10th anniversary, they are highlighting the cosmopolitan, yet friendly, family ambiance found in the historic district as a theme for the premier event.

"I chose families more than I chose homes," said Rush. "So people who come through the tour could see themselves living in Sanford."

There are single professionals, multigenerational families, couples with babies and families representing a mixture of '90s lifestyles. In addition to household makeup, homes were selected for the tour based on the degree of renovation, aesthetic appeal and adherence to national preservation guidelines.

"I hope a lot of people get out to the tour. In the last three years, I've seen the neighborhood grow and change for the better. It's a wonderful, wholesome and, hopefully becoming, a vibrant little town," said Heather Henderson, another homeowner welcoming tour takers.

"The kids in the park know they can come over here for a Band-Aid. It's that kind of neighborhood, where neighbors look out for each other," Henderson said. "And if you have something worth celebrating, everybody celebrates with you."

The tour begins, as it has in the past years, at the Cultural Arts Center, at the corner of Park Avenue and Fifth Street. The $12 admission fee includes entry to all 10 stops and benefits the historic trust.

Other stops on the tour include: Holy Cross Episcopal Church, which recently received a face lift; James and Margaret Davis' two-story home at 419 Magnolia Avenue; Russell and Nancy Lord's Prairie-style home at 812 Magnolia Avenue; Scott and Jennifer Singeisen's Colonial Revival home, 203 E. 10th Street; Claudia Webber's Magnolia House, 1104 Magnolia Avenue, the palatial home built in 1925 for William Hill at 1800 Magnolia Avenue; The Platt home, 700 Park Avenue; Linda Walther's Casalina Cottage, 1015 Elm Avenue, the 1911, khaki-colored bungalow, 608 Elm Avenue, owned by Michael Green and his wife, Heather Henderson, the Sanford Museum, which was chosen as a historic destination because of its content. Exhibits chronicle Sanford's story—the man's and the city's.

The Sanford Historic Trust Inc. is a nonprofit organization dedicated to preserving, protecting and improving the city's historic community and educating the public about maintaining historic integrity. For more information call 302-3454.

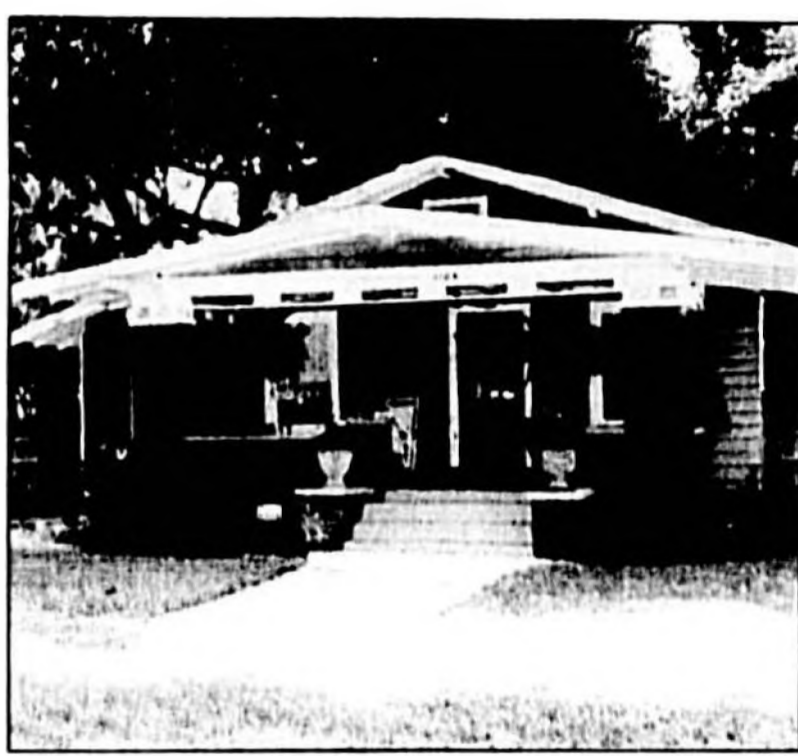

Lord Home, 812 Magnolia Ave.

The wrap-around porch invites visitors to the fourth stop on this year's Sanford Historic Tour of Homes, "A Decade of Doors," but the real welcome comes from the home's owners Russell and Nancy Lord.

The Lord's purchased the 1913, Prairie-style home in March and live there with Nancy's mother, Jane Robinson.

"It's not finished," Nancy Lord said of the house at 812 Magnolia Avenue. Mine's going to be in transition on this tour." Please see Lord, Page 2C

Webber Home, 1104 Magnolia Ave.

The Magnolia House, the sixth stop on this year's Sanford Historic Tour of Homes, "A Decade of Doors," has been decorated for the holidays in a burgundy, gold and magnolia motif.

Claudia Webber owns the 1920, blue-with-white-trim bungalow, at 1104 Magnolia Avenue. The house sits on a double lot and is shaded by more than a half dozen handsome oak trees. Please see Webber, Page 2C

Walther Home, 1015 Elm Ave.

The Casalina Cottage, the ninth stop on this year's Sanford Historic Tour of Homes, "A Decade of Doors," brought its owner a little closer in touch with her Southern heritage.

"I'm from an old Florida family, a first family of Florida. My family settled New Smyrna in 1768," said Linda Walther. "My grandparents settled Miami. They crossed the Everglades in a wagon. What I fell in love with is that (the house) reminded me of old Florida."

Please see Walther, Page 2C

Green-Henderson Home, 608 Elm Ave.

Celebrating the revitalization of a city and the blending of lifestyles, the owners of the 10th stop on this year's Sanford Historic Tour of Homes, "A Decade of Doors," will open their home for the second time.

"We're interested in bringing more people to Sanford and generating more interest in Sanford," said Michael Green, who lives in the home at 608 Elm Avenue with his wife, Heather Henderson, and their. Please see Green, Page 2C

Davis

"I had my mother, my dad, my husband's brother and my son living with me, to find a house big enough in the price range, we had to go to the outskirts of town," Margaret Davis said. "We had to get the biggest house we could for the money, and my husband is a contractor and could work on it."

Her husband has worked for Kelsey Construction for more than 20 years. Margaret is a clinical supervisor at Orlando Orthopedic Center. They both commute to downtown Orlando.

The Davis family has seen the neighborhood improve. "In the last five years, so many young people have been buying and staying with it," Davis said. "The historic district has taken a great turn around, and with the mall and conference center, it's only going to get better."

The home was on the tour about six years ago. The couple decided to open it again, in support of the Sanford Historic Trust, in which they are active members.

"We had a lot of fun the first year," Davis said. "We had about 550 people come through the house. We met people that had lived in the house."

Since the first showing, the family has redecorated with traditional furnishings and repainted.

"It has a totally different look," Davis said. "It's a celebration of the house."

A maroon door off the large front porch welcomes visitors to the 1913 home, with a schoolhouse architectural style.

"We've kept it in its original condition. The floor plan had never been changed," Davis said.

The home features hardwood floors, crown moldings and big base moldings. It had three bedrooms and two smaller rooms, an office and a nursery or sewing room.

The couple remodeled the kitchen last year, and have maintained and landscaped the home.

The home was built by a local undertaker for his second wife. Stories persist about Old Bob, the undertaker's horse. Word has it, Old Bob didn't need anyone to ride him. He knew the path to the graveyard and then would find his own way back to his carriage home, out back.

Lord

The couple have been busy restoring the two-story home. They have spent months replacing the electrical and plumbing systems and many of the structural piers under the house. The Lords have had the heart-pine wood floors refinished, and they painted interior rooms in the four-bedroom beauty.

The home has a unique, large entrance hall, with a double-wide center staircase, set back approximately 16 feet from the front door.

"I understand there's not any in the area like it," Lord said. "It's huge. The hallway is huge."

The family first spotted the house three years ago, but still owned a home in Orlando.

"This just happens to be the first house that we looked at that we wanted, but our house in Orlando didn't sell quickly enough. So it actually was three years later before I got this house," Lord explained. "The people we bought it from, they bought it before I had a chance to sell my house."

When their Orange County house sold, the couple rented an apartment in Sanford, keeping an eye on properties in the historic district and biding their time until this or another historic house they liked became available.

Remodeling has kept the two-career couple busy. Even though they still have more projects in mind, Lord wanted to participate in the tour.

"I have had the joy of going on the tour every year and I love going in everybody's old house," she explained. "They let me in. I'm not going to be stingy. I'm going to share mine, too."

Singeisen

"We did a lot of the work ourselves, along with friends and family. And we really had a good time at it," said Jennifer Singeisen. "We learned as we went along. We joke that we should have a show on Home and Garden Television called 'Learn With us.'"

The Singeisen's handled their own demolition and installation of kitchen cabinets and appliances. They painted, pulled up linoleum and got the fireplace working again.

Work continues on a few items. "We're moving to the finish line," Singeisen said. "The tour was the inspiration to bring those little things to completion."

Jennifer has a degree in historic preservation from the University of Georgia. Scott is an architect and a graduate of the Savannah College of Art and Design.

The couple are active in the Sanford Historic Trust, sponsor of the tour, where Scott serves as secretary. He is also chairman of the citizens' Historic Preservation Board.

Jennifer first became interested in historic preservation while growing up in Sarasota.

"At the time, a lot of buildings were in disrepair. I remember seeing them and thinking someone should do something with these buildings," she said. "Then I discovered there's a whole degree in it."

Scott works at Burke Bales & Mills Associates, Inc., an architectural firm specializing in preservation architecture. His current projects include the Daytona Beach bandshell and a hall at Bethune Cookman College.

Jennifer teaches at Southern College, runs a home-based business and works part-time for a downtown merchant. She had served as Sanford's Main Street manager, a nonprofit organization charged with restoring and rehabilitating the downtown area.

The couple discovered Sanford while visiting friends. "We were here three hours before we said, 'Wow, we have to move here,'" Singeisen said.

One year later, they made the move. "When we saw the house, we fell in love with it," she said. "It seemed like a good project and a good home. We really think this area's going to take off."

Singeisen hopes the tour introduces more people to the town and spikes their curiosity.

"For people who aren't from Sanford, coming and seeing what the houses are like and the people are like is important," she concluded. "You never know what's behind that door."

Walther

Walther had been looking for a home in the historic district for 10 years, when she spotted the two-story home, at 1015 Elm Avenue, while driving around.

"It was everything I ever wanted," Walther said. "I walked in the door. It was like a hug reaching out. I said, 'This is it. I want this house.' I never got past the front door. It was just like it was supposed to be. It reminded me of the house I grew up in Miami."

Anthony Pitchford built the house in 1926. He and his bride came to Central Florida with the railroad. Pitchford was a civil engineer for the City of Sanford.

Members of his family used it as a winter home until 1995, when Walther bought it. Neither Pitchford nor his nieces and nephews had any children, so wear and tear was kept to a minimum.

"The inside is almost all original. I even have the old skeleton keys," Walther said. "They all loved this house. It's always been taken care of."

The bathroom still has the original claw foot bathtub and medicine cabinet.

The plumbing fixtures and flooring came from Sanford contractors.

During the home's early years, Pitchford rented a guest bedroom to the Sanford mailman.

Walther has kept many of the original furnishings. Wicker chairs and other wicker pieces once belonged to Pitchford.

"It's like coming into a warm hug," Walther said. "It looks like a museum."

The home has yellow siding with white trim and a red front door. A large oak tree graces

5-month-old daughter, Amelia. The 1911, khaki-colored bungalow has a tin roof, a fireplace and hardwood floors. The couple has decorated in neutral tones.

"Our settings are low key and reserved and neutral," Henderson said.

The decor pleasantly blends antiques with a soft contemporary look. "We just loved the historic houses," Green said. "The houses have a lot of character and a lot were getting remodeled and refurbished."

Most of the two-bedroom home's major structural renovations had been done by previous owners. The couple added a few touches to personalize it.

The family will decorate for the holidays with traditional ornaments. Henderson is a teacher at Galaxy Middle School in Deltona. Green stays home with Amelia, while pursuing his master's degree in English literature and working as a manager for Funch-A-Penny Pool, a pool supply retailer.

"He's a house husband," Henderson said. "It's more fun. The pay is worse, but the perks are better. We figure a lot of fathers don't get the opportunity to stay home with their children."

Henderson has been active in the Sanford Historic Trust and believes in the tours.

"It shows the community the type of people that live here," Henderson said. "Sanford has a nice conglomeration of lifestyles. It's not just older families. It's new families with babies and children."

The couple moved to Sanford three years ago, from Lake Mary. They helped their neighbors, Scott and Jennifer Singeisen, renovate a Sanford home. The Singeisen's home will also be open during the tour.

"We do a project over there one weekend, and the next weekend, we do a project over here. That's what Sanford is about. If you need a helping hand, there's someone that's done the project and will lend you the tools," Henderson said. "Sanford has come a long way and is becoming a Norman, Rockwell type of town."

Platt Home, 700 Park Ave.

The Platt Home is the eighth stop on the Sanford Historic Trust, Inc. Holiday Tour of Homes.

Hill

pled the home until 1991.

A 50-inch-wide hardwood front door greets guests as they enter the Georgian Colonial home. Inside, French doors separate the parlor, dining room, office and library.

Among the home's finer attributes are hardwood and marble floors, 12-foot ceilings with crown moldings and three fireplaces, including one on the verandah overlooking the swimming pool and pond. Ten gas-lit lanterns, reminiscent of the 1800s, illuminate the yard.

The two-story house has three bedrooms and three-and-a-half baths. It is the only house in Sanford with a full basement, according to the current owner.

The home is decorated with period furnishings.

The current owners bought the 3,500-square-foot home this March, two years after their initial offer. They have painted, refinished the floors and landscaped.

the front yard.

Tour goers will be warmed by a huge red-brick fireplace in the living room, which has never been painted. Walther is decorating for the holidays with grapevines and ivy, natural ornaments used in olden days. She will have a real tree.

Walther, a career resource operator, works out of the house for Florida Job Finder. She also repairs dolls and teddy bears, teaches others how to make teddy bears, and owned the Doll and Bear Shop downtown.

She has twin teen-age sons and two cats. Her sister lives next door.

Walther sublet the house for a while, but now she plans to stay.

"I'm never leaving it again. The house loves me and I love the house," she said. "It's meant for us to be together."

Webber

"I have huge oak trees that have got to be 100 years old," Webber said.

Webber, who has owned the house since April, has decorated with a blend of traditional and antique furnishings. The home has pine hardwood floors and a fireplace, with a fieldstone front. Crown moldings and special trim around the windows and doors add a touch of elegance. The home has glass doorknobs and original glass windows.

"It looks ripply. It almost makes you dizzy when you look through it," Webber said. "It's from before straight glass came out."

Guests enter through the comfy home's original brick colored front door.

Webber added central heat and air, and painted. Most of the other remodeling, including a new kitchen sink, had been done by the time she bought the house.

Webber has enlisted the support of others to help prepare for the holiday tour. Sanford Flower Shop Inc. is decorating the mantel and archway. Sharon Huggins, with Yester Years Antiques and Gifts, will handle the tree, and Fred Rogers, from the Martin House Bed and Breakfast, is helping with window treatments in the living and dining rooms.

The single professional looks forward to showing her new home.

"I'm excited. I think it's going to be a really neat experience," Webber said. "It gives people a taste of what old Sanford is like and a feel for the history of Sanford."

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCloud

Hill-McCloud vows spoken

Louise Hill and Joseph McCloud of Sanford, were married Oct. 17, at 3:00 p.m. at the Full Gospel Church of God in Christ. The Rev. Henry Bradley officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the goddaughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Enoch Rivers and the groom is the son of Mrs. Henrietta McCloud, Sanford.

Given in marriage by her godfather, the bride chose for her vows a formal length white gown with a V-shaped neckline, trimmed in lace with wrist length lace sleeves and a fitted bodice. The pleated skirt featured a flowing train attached to the waist. Her veil of illusion net was shoulder length, attached to a V-shaped headband of pearls and roses. She carried a bouquet of white roses with baby's breath.

Terry Fisher attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a peach formal-length sheath gown and carried a bouquet of peach and aqua roses with mixed streamers.

Serving as bridesmaids were Hattie Ensley and Rosetta Maxwell. Their aqua floor length gowns had puffed sleeves. Junior bridesmaids were Dominique McCloud and LaDeea McCloud who wore peach colored dresses identical to the maids of honor. They carried bouquets identical to the bridesmaids.

Flower girl Ryra Washington was attired in a peach dress identical to the junior bridesmaids. Bible bearer was Rae Ann Gardner. Her aqua dress was styled like the flower girl.

Freddie King served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Joseph McCloud, Jr., and Curtis Washington.

Ringbearer was Derrick Brown and ushers were Benjamin Burke and Michael Hill.

Following a reception at the Anvets, the newlyweds went on a brief honeymoon. They will be making their home in Sanford where she is a homemaker nurse and he is self-employed.

DAR chapter marks 80th year

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

The 80th birthday celebration for Sallie Harrison Chapter DAR was held Nov. 13 at the Marina Hotel Lakeside Landing Room. The Chapter was founded Nov. 15, 1918, with Elizabeth Harrison starting as regent. A photo of Mrs. Starling and other chapter memorabilia were prominently displayed. Celebration balloons and flag bearing cups of mits decorated the tables. Regent Betty Bridgwater presided.

Mrs. Talmade K. Wiley, past regent, gave a brief history of the chapter. Bridgwater announced Mrs. John Leonardy who was chapter regent 1928-1929 and Florida State Regent 1930 will now be given credit as being a member of Sallie Harrison Chapter in future state write-ups.

Past chapter regents present were honored and presented with red roses: Mrs. Talmadge K. Wiley 1972-1974 and 1978-1978; Mrs. Mills Boyd, 1980-1988 and Mrs. Paul Mikler 1992-1996.

The opening ritual began with prayer by Virginia Mikler, serving as chaplain. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Nancy Williams and the American Creed was led by Virginia Powell. The regent recognized guests: Jim Patterson, son of Sara Patterson who was in attendance following a long illness; Cynthia Pitcock, Jerry Brock, Paul Erisman and John Kerr. Acting secretary Libby Boyd read the September minutes which were approved as read. Treasurer Shirley Kerr gave the treasurer report. Registrar Nancy Williams reported that national is requesting each member to advise how mail should be addressed. Cards were given to each member to complete.

the needs of DAR-sponsored schools and requested members to save all labels from General Mills products. The member collecting the most labels to be turned in at the April meeting will receive a prize. Campbell Soup labels are also to be collected and they are to be turned in at each meeting. Libby Boyd, C.A.R. chairman, reported the C.A.R. invited members to join them Sunday, Nov. 22, 2 p.m. at the Clock of Magnolia Square to participate in a walking tour of Historic Sanford.

Boyd also reported she and the regent and historian, Virginia Powell, met at the Evergreen cemetery to look into the matter of the missing DAR marker at the grave of Elizabeth Harrison Starling. It developed the marker was not missing, but needed cleaning and reinstalling into the permanent base. Mrs. Boyd reported Hunt's Monuments will clean both grave covers of Mrs. Starling and her husband and permanently reinstall the marker for a cost of $75.00. A motion was made and seconded that this be done. Motion passed. Boyd announced that the Ft. Mellon Society

C.A.R. would donate $10.00 toward the project as part of their restoration project.

Betty Bridgwater thanked Shirley and John Kerr for all the table decorations and the Marina Inn personnel for the beautiful birthday cake. The Ways & Means table had voices for the bride doll and choice Christmas tree ornaments for sale.

The December meeting will be held at Mary Ann Cleveland's home, Dec. 12. Directions were passed to members. The meeting adjourned at 2:49 with a closing prayer.

Organizations help 'Holiday in the Park' to light up Lake Mary

In years past, the City of Lake Mary's annual tree lighting has been called Olde Lake Mary Holidays. The name became a little too confusing. So, the tree lighting has been renamed Holiday in the Park. This year will be the fifth annual collaboration between the Lake Mary Woman's Club, the Stardust Service Unit of Girl Scouts and the City of Lake Mary.

This is more than a tree lighting. It's a chance for the community to contribute to a worthy cause. The Lake Mary Woman's Club will be giving free cookies and coffee or hot chocolate to anyone who donates a non-perishable food item for Safehouse of Seminole County. The Stardust Girl Scouts will be giving free holiday crafts to anyone who donates a toy for Safehouse. Safehouse is a shelter for battered spouses and their children. It is important to remember that many of the people who arrive at Safehouse do so with nothing more than the clothes on their backs. It means a great deal to the children there to have new toys that belong to them, that they can take with them when they move on to their new lives.

The Harry S. Benson parade will begin at the Public Safety Complex at 5 p.m. and end at Holiday in the Park at 6:30 p.m. The parade will be bringing Santa for a visit.

Entertainment for the evening will be provided by Michael Wierzbowski playing holiday music on the dulcimer; the Lake Mary Drama Department with excerpts from their play, Babes in Toyland; Country Joe Roster with storytelling for the season; the Florida Young Artists String Quartet and the Stardust Singers.

Festivities will begin at 6:30 p.m. with Santa's arrival.

Congregation celebrates season at Harvest Meditation Service

The Harvest Meditation Service is the annual tribute of Thanksgiving and praise sponsored by St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church Choir No. One. Harvest is a season of reaping. Chairman Margaret Oliver appreciated us of the history of the world, people and nations who show their gratitude to God for sparing them to witness another season.

The custom is a part of our American culture. We must continue to teach the "New Generation" to keep this tradition by pausing to worship the eternal God of the harvest.

Meditation is that time of quietness needed by all to draw near to the Lord and give praise and thanksgiving for his blessings. "Meditate upon these things, give thyself wholly to them," 1 Timothy 4:15.

To God be the glory for this 38th Harvestime, the brainchild of the late Julia Merritt, mother of Patricia Merritt Whatley. Patricia Whatley is the founder and director of the Taji School of Performing Arts and Academics, who along with the Macedonia Baptist Church Children's Chapel of Eatonville, performed under the direction of Sandra Petty. To God be the glory for the rich inspiring worship experience. The performances of musical demonstrations by Taji, Children's Chapel, creative movements by the Junior Mime Boys, liturgical dancers, choral, junior and senior repertory ensemble overall gave the Thanksgiving message. This message put our hearts into the meditative hour and season.

A special tribute to the late Julia Rae Merritt was presented by her daughter Patricia. "To God Be The Glory" Moments of gratitude was extended to the sponsors with closing observations given by Pastor Albert Covington. Let us be thankful for our bountiful blessing that we enjoy.

FAMILY HISTORY

Former Sanford born native Eartha Mae Collins Potler shared the Thanksgiving holiday with her family here in Sanford. Happy birthday was also wished Eartha on Nov. 10. The first born of the late Thomas and Maude Collins has for many years been the matriarch in the Collins family. Being the oldest of eight children and having been given a universal name Earth (Eartha) she has lived for 74 years.

Her sister Joyce Collins Shaw speaks of her sister's life as an inspiration to the immediate family, her sister Thomasena and brother Oliver. The great honor and thanks were given to Eartha on Sunday Nov. 21 when she attended the eighth anniversary of the William and Laura Clark Mission and Faith Temple Ministries which is housed on the site of the family home of her grandparents and parents.

Eartha Collins Potler

This site remains in the family as a landmark and dedicated remembrance of the Clark, Collins, and Potler families.

God has blessed Pastor Shaw and she is truly thankful for the harvest as it grows. This mission serves a God given purpose. It meets the needs of people who come from near and far and are in need of nourishment as well as spiritual uplifting. Located at 13th Street and Lake Avenue, those in need are helped.

A special lady who will return to Atlanta on Sunday is still a part of the working force of the educational force. Mrs. Potler is still an active instructor at an elementary school.

Happy birthday to Thomasena on her birthday Nov. 29 as she returns to Titusville.

JUBILEE SERVICE

gums, lizards and many other creatures roaming the halls of Lake Mary Elementary School on Wednesday Nov. 18. The administrative office was full of not creatures, but nurses from the black lagoon. Huck Finn was teaching fifth grade. And there was more than one Mrs. Frizzle.

It was character day. Students and teachers came to school dressed as their favorite character from their favorite book. Encouraging students to read more was the reason for the very special day. Besides dressing as their favorite character, the students also brought the book with their character in it to share with their classmates. To give everyone a chance to see all the great and inventive costumes, the school staged a parade at 9 a.m. The younger grades participated in the parade with the older grades watching. And some of the older grades made up skits for their characters. The school hopes to make this an annual event.

WOMAN'S CLUB HEARS BEAUTIFUL MUSIC

It was a very special day for the Lake Mary Woman's Club.

Two members celebrated 50 years as Woman's Club members. Virginia Francisco and Cynthia Pitcock have both been members of a Woman's Club for half a century. The club celebrated this occasion with flowers for the ladies and a special pm commemorating the milestone.

Ever heard of Fredric August Kummer? Few people have, special guest Jonathan May told club members. Kummer was a musical composer who wrote for the cello. He also arranged music by other composers for the cello. He is well known among cellists. He wrote the first song, a cello duet, that Jonathan and Maureen May played for the club.

Jonathan and Maureen have been playing cello duets for 20 years. He is the Artistic Director and Principal Conductor of the Florida Young Artists Orchestra as well as a teacher at SCC. Maureen plays with the Cypress Quartet throughout the Orlando area. She just finished playing in the orchestra for the Orlando Opera's "Turandot." Jonathan and Maureen both trained with the same cellist, Jonathan's mother.

The couple showed their cellos to the club members and explained some of their features. The cellos look very different. Jonathan's cello is a typical German cello; Maureen's is Italian and each is made with a different wood. And while both cellos are old, Maureen's was made in 1906. Jonathan's a few years later, they are considered modern instruments. One club member asked how hard it was for children to learn to play such large instruments. Jonathan explained that there were half size and three quarter size cellos for learning purposes. Because part of the sound of a cello comes from the size, the smaller cellos don't sound as deep or as loud, but smaller instruments means children can start younger. And the younger you start, the better.

SCOUTS HELP WITH 'CHRISTMAS CHILD'

Cub Scouts from Pack 529 in Lake Mary worked with WOFL-FOX 35 to put together over 30 boxes for Operation Christmas Child. Tui Frye in the programming department at WOFL sent letters to several Lake Mary businesses asking for help with the project. The Cub Scouts then went shopping to get the needed supplies. Target, Publix, Albertson's, and La Quinta Inn all donated to the cause. The scouts then went to the station to put the boxes together. WOFL threw in toys left over from previous events. Employees of WOFL also contributed boxes.

Practical gifts for seniors are better than more dust catchers

DEAR ABBY: I foolishly teased out your column on what to give seniors for Christmas, thinking I knew what to give my parents. However, this summer I married a man several years older than myself, and now I could use some suggestions about what I can buy for my elderly in-laws. This is my first Christmas in the family, and I want to be sure to give them something they can use and enjoy. Help! MELISSA IN MINGO JUNCTION, OHIO

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Give me anything, that usually means, "I have more things than I need." However, a gift of your time will be appreciated and remembered long after the holiday has passed and the material gifts are stored away. Trust me.

DEAR MELISSA: I'm pleased to help. When buying gifts for seniors, keep in mind that most seniors have more than their share of dusting powder and afterhave, and have run out of room for bud vases and bird feeders. Some practical alternatives:

- Postcards or lined stationery with a generous supply of postage stamps.
- A gift certificate for their favorite grocery store, deli or pharmacy.
- An assortment of greeting cards for birthdays and anniversaries, as well as get-well and condolence cards.
- A "paid in advance" certificate for 10 lawn mowings or snow shoveling by a neighborhood youngster.
- A "certificate" for a service you can perform that is difficult for them - a thorough house cleaning, a month's laundry, a handyman visit for home safety inspection and minor repairs.
- An offer to rewrite their address book in large, more legible print.
- A month of Sunday drives to church, or to the country, the museum or the park.
- If the person on your list is on a limited income, a check in any amount will be appreciated.
- A subscription to their favorite magazine or the daily newspaper.
- A basket of goodies assembled especially for them: cans of ham, tuna, chicken, hearty soups, chili and stew; instant coffee and tea bags; crackers; and a selection of their treasured, tattered photos retouched and placed into a new album, with captions.
- A drive to see the Christmas lights and decorations, as well as store windows.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived in a sexless marriage for almost 25 years. Shortly after our marriage, my husband told me that since we didn't plan to raise a family, there was no need to have sexual relations. He said he didn't like to get hot and sweaty.

A few days ago, I ran across a prescription bottle of - you guessed it - Viagra. I know he's not using it for my benefit. Should I confront him about it? I have thought sex was a dead issue for my entire married life, and this really distresses me.

DEAR CAROL: You have good reason to be distressed. Although you thought sex was a dead issue for your entire married life, it appears there has been a resurrection. Your husband owes you an explanation.

DEAR ABBY: I recently received two invitations that rubbed me the wrong way. Perhaps, in spite of my young age (26), I'm old-fashioned, but I think they were tacky.

The first was from a coworker who is getting married. The invitation was for a paper shower. I assumed that meant the guests should bring paper for games or other activities. Just to be sure, I called the bride-to-be to find out exactly what to bring. Boy, was I shocked! She told me she wanted only money or gift certificates. I was so put off I didn't attend or send a gift.

The other invitation was to a baby shower for a friend of a friend whom I barely know. I'm a fun-loving person and planned to attend until I read the invitation carefully.

The shower was being held at an expensive restaurant, and the invitation said, "No host lunch." Abby I got the impression that I was to bring a gift, pay for my own lunch, then leave. I didn't attend that shower either; however, I did send a gift for which I never received a thank-you or acknowledgment.

I have been the honoree of both a bridal and baby shower. The bridal shower was traditional with food, cake, games and close friends with whom I enjoy spending time. The baby shower was a luncheon, but my hostesses and I picked up the tab. I hope my guests never felt as pressured or insulted as I did when I received the invitations I have described.

Abby, am I overreacting to this, or is it proper for the '90s? NOT ATTENDING MANY SHOWERS IN TENNESSEE

DEAR NOT ATTENDING: You are not overreacting. I don't blame you for refusing the invitations. Let your silence speak for you.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter about the boy who was causing his neighbor a lot of trouble. Many years ago, I had the same problem.

I was at my wife's end and decided, as a last resort, to try to make the boy my friend.

I went out of my way to be kind to him and on occasion, even asked him for advice. The problems quickly came to an end. Surely the neighbor, when gardening, could offer a bouquet of flowers to take to his mother. Wouldn't it be worth the effort to offer friendliness to help a troubled boy?

DEAR CONCERNED CANADIAN: Yes, it would. Leave it to my readers to remind me that compassion is alive and well, and perhaps all that is necessary to turn this youngster around.

Hospice program helps children cope

By Debra Wood, RN
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - Grieving Central Florida youngsters ease their pain in an innovative education program that works through sadness to enhance learning.

Hospice of the Comforter's Horizons Children's Loss Program embraces art, drama, music and puppets to help Seminole County students work through grief and deal with the losses in their lives.

"We act out and do a song called the 'Circle of Life' from Lion King. We use a lot of metaphors. For example 'Circle of Life' is a metaphor for the circle of life--people coming into our lives, people leaving our lives, people dying," said Julie Stanick, coordinator of the program. "We want the children to know that the feelings they are feeling are OK. We validate those feelings, and then talk about them."

Stanick's partner, Bereavement Educator Anne Curtis, handles the drama sessions.

"Drama and music access their feelings," Stanick said. "Using dance and movement, they work through their grief physically."

Drawing on their bereavement skills, staffers and volunteers from the nonprofit agency conduct weekly, hour-long sessions at the public schools. They teach coping skills, such as how to release anger and cope with sadness. The students are usually not related to Hospice patients. Teachers and guidance counselors refer students to the program. The youngsters, with parental approval, are let out of class to participate.

"Grief affects their schoolwork. How can you do your schoolwork when you're thinking about your loved one who died?" Stanick said. "We work with them, and then they're better able to function in the classroom."

The children are grouped with other grieving classmates, no more than six to a session. Children needing individual therapy are referred back to the guidance counselor. The Hospice has started a Saturday Kid's Club to help youngsters for a longer period of time.

"Grief is an ongoing process," Stanick said. "Anniversaries, holidays are very difficult without your loved one. So we also talk to them about making new rituals."

The Hospice team helped entire classes of students work through the loss of classmates after tornadoes tore through Sanford in February. The program won an award from the Seminole County School guidance counselors two years ago.

In addition, the team makes presentations about loss and grief to life-skills classes, PTAs, and guidance counselors.

"Divorce is loss of the family. Moving is loss of their friends. We talk about what to do when they lose someone," Stanick said. "Many children have pets that die, so we talk about those losses."

The program started in 1991 with one child in a Seminole County elementary school and has grown to include all grade levels in schools throughout the tri-county area.

"I became absolutely clear of the need early on," said Robert G. Wilson, the Hospice's president, CEO and chaplain. "We have been able to make quite an impact on the schools in Central Florida. It's a gift to the community. We try to do some fund-raising to help support it."

Part of that gift is one of peace. The Hospice team spends much time talking about memories and emphasizes happy images, baking cookies or going fishing. The final ceremony, at the end of six weeks, is one of letting go, of wishing the loss hadn't occurred.

"We write a message to our loved one and send it off in a balloon. This is a very powerful experience for the children. It's almost like a catharsis with them," Stanick said. "One little girl, 8 years old, said, 'My heart is rewinding and coming back into one piece.' The depth of understanding these children come to never ceases to amaze me."

Diabetes complications are often overlooked

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

Of the more than 16 million Americans with diabetes, 15 percent (almost 2.5 million people!) will develop a foot ulcer--wounds that extend through the top layer of skin, sometimes deep into the tissue at some point in their lifetime. Potential complications include infection, hospitalization and possible amputation. According to the National Institutes of Health, more than 67,000 people will undergo limb amputations each year due to diabetes.

Until recently, the most common treatment for diabetic foot ulcers involved simply keeping the wound clean and moist, and hoping the wound would heal properly. This regimen alone frequently is ineffective. American Diabetes Month (November) is the perfect time to educate people with diabetes and their caregivers about prevention tips and advances in the science of wound healing that have led to a genetically-engineered topical medication that stimulates the body's growth of new tissue to help heal deep diabetic foot ulcers. New therapies can dramatically impact the lives of many people with diabetes who will suffer from a foot ulcer at some point in their lifetime.

Chewing gum hazardous to kid's health?

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

CHICAGO - Swallowing chewing gum can cause numerous health problems and it should not be given to young children who cannot understand this point, according to a study published recently by the American Academy of Pediatrics on Pediatrics electronic pages.

Pediatricians from Nemours Children's Clinic, Orlando, compiled case studies to illustrate the potential health hazards of chewing gum for small children. According to the study's authors, swallowing gum can cause many adverse health effects, including diarrhea, abdominal pain, flatulence, mouth ulcers, and dental and jaw problems, and is not recommended for young children. In addition, it can block the esophagus and colon. The first case study highlighted in the study is that of a 4-year-old boy with a two-year history of constipation. After numerous tests and different treatments, doctors discovered that his fecal matter largely consisted of chewing gum. On further investigation, they learned that the boy always swallowed his gum, after chewing up to seven pieces each day. In another case, a 4-year-old girl suffered from complications from constipation. Again tests and treatment failed until doctors removed a fecal mass of chewing gum. The child had the habit of swallowing gum, often just to get another piece. The third case concerned a one-year-old girl who drooled, coughed and had trouble swallowing. Doctors discovered four coins encased in chewing gum lodged in her esophagus.

For the past 18 years I have depended on contacts or glasses to do everything from drive, watch television and play sports. LASIK has changed my life! Exploring the field of law enforcement

By Alex Kane
HERALD STAFF WRITER

The Sanford Police Department Explorers are a group of students from middle school up to college gaining practical experience with the Sanford Police Department.

The Explorers are part of the boy scouts, and aside from police, Explorers can participate at hospitals, fire departments, and a variety of other places. Officer Mike Taylor runs Sanford's Police Explorer Program. Taylor has worked as a school resource officer for the past eight and a half years.

"I love working with kids, and it is my belief that we have one of the best Police Explorer programs in Central Florida," said Taylor.

The Explorers have the opportunity to see law enforcement up close. Not too close, however.

"When the Explorers are riding with the officers, they do not get out of the car unless it is a situation such as a robbery where there is no danger. They also always wear bulletproof vests," said Taylor.

The program gives its participants a unique experience. They not only ride along with police, but they also work in the station's communication center.

"You get to meet a lot of interesting people and do a lot of interesting things most never have the opportunity to do," said Explorer Corporal Jillian Smith.

In many senses, the Explorer program prepares the students for real police work. One part of that includes confrontation with violence and death. The Explorers have encountered shooting victims, fire victims, and others. They have been present in situations where lives were lost. Still, the Explorers keep perspective.

"It makes you appreciate life," said Explorer Sergeant Jessica Castro.

The work also has a number of other perks besides training.

"The part that affects me most is when little kids and others look up to us with respect," said Explorer Corporal Ashley Freeman.

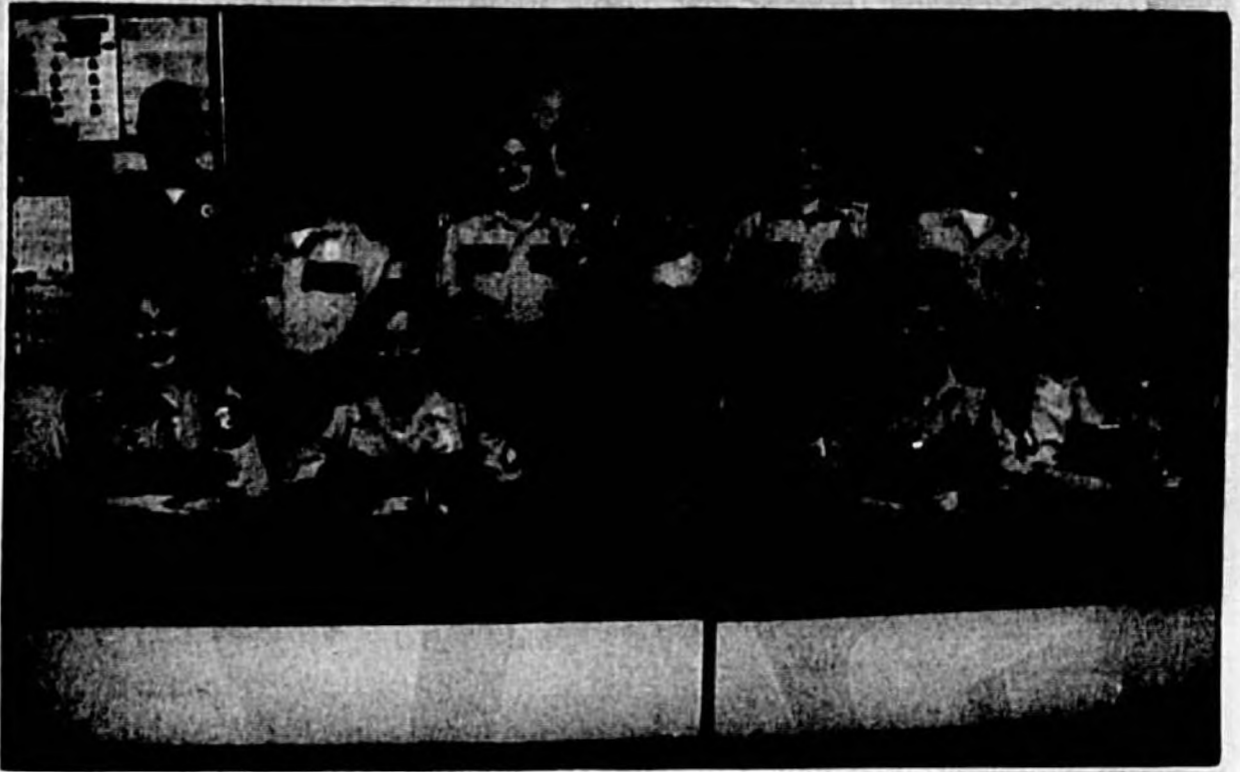

Many in the program have decided upon a career in law enforcement. Explorer Captain Theresa Ryan plans to join the Navy, and work in the military police.

"The Explorer program has allowed me to learn a lot about law enforcement," said Ryan.

Students also feel the program helps them not only as future law enforcement officials, but also aids them in other facets of their lives.

"It teaches you discipline, physical and mental," said Castro.

The students not only gain experience in a career field, they also help the community. They participate in a number of activities in the area, including a monthly walk downtown with the seniors who live at Bram Towers. Dec. 12, the Officer Mike Taylor of the Sanford Police Department heads the Explorers, made up of a group of middle school and high school students interesting in the field of law enforcement.

Explorers will drive Bram Towers' residents to the Seminole Town Centre. The group regularly provides the service of fingerprinting children for a personal identification sheet it distributes to parents for free. The group has gone out to malls and theme parks to give this service to the community.

The Explorers take part in a number of fund-raisers to gather enough money to buy a van. Recently, they provided security and information at the Sanford Heritage Festival. In the next month, they will serve as traffic control and park cars at Sanford Middle School, help at the Sanford Christmas Parade, work the city's Christmas party, and perform a number of other duties.

In order to raise extra money, Officer Taylor transforms himself from Policeman Mike Taylor into Wrestler "Mad Dog" Mike Taylor, a combatant in Southern Championship Wrestling. On December 11, "Mad Dog" and his manager Ms. Red "Hot" Pepper will fight a tag-team match against Mr. Money and Chris Hollywood at the Sanford Civic Center. (Tickets are $7 in advance, and $9 at the door.)

Anyone interested in the Police Explorer Program can contact Officer Taylor at the Sanford Police Department at 323-3030.

Wrestling: It isn't just for guys anymore

By Amy Guenther
SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

Girl's wrestling is a modernistic sport that is rising up against oppression.

Men and boys have always shown their strength and proved their manhood by wrestling. Early in the nineteenth century wrestling became known as a sport.

Now in modern times women can do "anything a man can do," or something to that effect. So ladies wrestling has become a sport. Last year many schools in Seminole county began a girl's wrestling program.

Many people may think, "girl's should not wrestle." Many people may think that it is not lady like. Still others may throw in their two sense by saying what the boys must think about this atrocity.

At high schools in the county wrestlers, both girls and boys alike go to class. They learn in the same environment, why can't they join the same extra curricular activities as well?

Girl's wrestling is accepted at schools. Yes, that's right teens all over the county are simply accepting it. Yet there are still some people in the community who do not think that it is right.

If that is the route they want to take then here is my argument. Women work in office buildings, design buildings, and some even build buildings.

What does this have to do with girl's wrestling? Back in the day, women were not supposed to work. It was unacceptable. Now working wives and mothers are common practice.

Women's sports such as basketball are really taking off. Especially in the absence of male athletes who are going on strike. The WNBA, used to just be a dream and now it is a reality. Why should wrestling be any different from any other sport?

Sure wrestling is a more full contact sport. Yet, so is football, and this season, Lake Howell had a girl on their football team. Sure one girl does not make it common practice but it is becoming increasingly abundant. Two years ago Seminole High School had a girl on their football team.

Is wrestling really all that different? I do not think so. Still I could be wrong, but in ten years I will be able to find out for sure.

Until then, watch for more full contact sports to include ladies on their rosters. After all the country will not truly be equal until all people regardless of race, sex, and religion have the same opportunities.

Look for girl's wrestling to move its way up the popularity charts in the near future.

Lyman wrestling coach Mario Miranda talks with his female wrestlers just before practice last week. Girls' wrestling started in Seminole County last year and has proven to be a popular sport.

Hamilton kids are teed off

Hamilton Elementary School, as part of its career program, is working with Alaqua Country Club to teach golf to its students. The kids get together with the Alaqua staff once a week under the supervision of Hamilton teacher Greg Turner. For most, it's the first time they've had a chance to swing a golf club.

Ashley Brewer, daughter of Terry and Bonny Brewer, and a sophomore at Oviedo High School, was recently named to the Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Bradley Daniels, son of Lyle and Gloria Daniels of Lake Mary, and a senior at Lake Mary High School, was recently named to the Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Several Seminole County students were recently nominated for the national Wendy's High School Heisman award, a national award that honors student-athletes from all over the country. Seminole County athletes include: Karin Cloninger (Oviedo), Loudhia David (Lyman), Krista Edmondson (Lake Brantley), Jonathan Hubbard (Seminole), Joseph Kenski (Lake Brantley), John Roth (Oviedo), Robert Stachow (Lyman), Mary Leah Sutton (Lake Mary), Lori Thomas (Seminole), and Justin Wright (Lake Mary).
