Recycling statistics

SANFORD — The month of February saw a decrease in the amount of recycling in Seminole County from January. A total of 7.9 million pounds of recyclables were diverted from the landfill last month, as compared to 9 million in January.

Included in the February recycling were 2 million pounds from curbside recycling, 3.3 million pounds of curbside yard waste, and 1.5 million pounds of yard waste which had been delivered to county facilities.

The recycling started in Seminole County in November, 1990, with curbside and separated recycling beginning in April, 1992.

Compared to the 7.9 million pounds collected in February, the biggest amount to date, per month, was obtained in August of last year, when the total was 14.9 million pounds.

The figures were compiled by the Solid Waste Division of Seminole County.

The dirty little secret

Officials move to halt early release

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — State Attorney Norman Wollinger, with the 18th Judicial Circuit, said progress appears to be moving forward in efforts to prevent convicts from being released early due to various reasons.

"Since October 1 of 1995, our laws say that persons must serve at least 85 percent of their sentences, but there are still other methods which offer earlier release, and we are fighting against them," Wollinger explained.

Earlier this month, Wollinger wrote a document which he called "The Dirty Little Secret" of continuing early release from prison incentive gain-time.

He pointed at Donald McDougall, who was sentenced in 1983 to serve 37 years in prison for the brutal slaying of a five-year-old girl in Altamonte Springs.

"In late December, 1992," he wrote, "when citizens were informed that this murderer was going to be released from prison on New Year's Eve Day, (due to accumulated administrative gain time), 24 years early, they took action to correct this gross injustice."

He said the people expressed their disgust to public officials, and as a result, laws were changed to eliminate administrative gain-time. Thus, McDougall, along with over 100 other convicted murderers and countless other violent inmates, remained in prison.

"Now, in March, 1996," he continued, "we face the

"Almost all these girls are freshman and sophomores," Debra Henley, director of the group, said. "We had a lot of girls graduate last year."

The Marionette group meets every day for a dance class and rehearses several hours each day after school. The officers choreograph

The vandalism was first reported by Charles Stroschein, an employee of Baldwin-Fairchild Funeral Home, located across SR-46A from the cemetery. When he arrived at work at approximately 8 Tuesday morning, he said he was informed of extensive damage. He reported finding small pieces of an aluminum baseball bat which was apparently used to cause the damage. The pieces have been turned over to Lake Mary police, who have launched an intensive investigation

Program lauded for giving kids second chance

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County's Project EXCEL, already honored locally for successes turning the lives of troubled youngsters around, has been recognized with a Magna Award by The American School Board Journal, a monthly magazine that caters to the interests of school board members.

Project EXCEL offers a "second chance" to students who had been expelled from the regular class programs. The program is geared at high school students, though it has served some trouble-prone middle school students as well.

The program was designed as a cooperative effort between the Seminole County school district and the Private Industry Council of Seminole County. The business community has also become very involved in the program as both consultants to the program organizers and as mentors to the students.

It provides a non-traditional environment that responds to the needs of students with educational and, often, psychological deficiencies.

Project EXCEL is one of the district's primary vehicles in the school to work programs in the district, which include other academy programs and apprenticeship programs.

For many of the students in the program, college is not an immediate option after graduation. There is, therefore, a strong emphasis on vocational skills training in the program. Students, upon graduation from the program, have the requisite skills to enter the workforce.

According to program administrator Jim Dawson, Project EXCEL uses a lot of coin

Menendez brothers guilty

By LINDA DEUTSCH
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES — The jury that embraced the theory that Erik and Lyle Menendez were spoiled brats who murdered their parents for the family fortune must now decide whether the brothers should get a death sentence.

The first-degree murder convictions Wednesday in the brothers' retrial came nearly seven years after they fired 15 shotgun blasts at Jose and Kitty Menendez as the parents watched television and ate ice cream in their Beverly Hills mansion.

Erik, 25, and Lyle, 28, appeared pale but showed no emotion as the words "guilty of murder" were read in the courtroom.

The defense, which had suffered several serious setbacks in rulings from the judge, had claimed that the brothers killed after years of sexual abuse.

Two years ago, the first trial ended in mistrial after two juries — one for each brother — couldn't decide if the slayings were premeditated murder or self-defense. One jury heard the five-month retrial.

After four days of deliberations, the jury found that the brothers not only committed multiple murders but had lain in wait for their victims — findings that are considered "special circumstances" subject to a possible death sentence under California law.

The jury could have found the brothers guilty of lesser counts — manslaughter in the slaying of their father and second-degree murder in the killing of their mother.

Jurors were to return for the penalty phase Monday to decide whether the brothers should receive lethal injection or life in prison without parole. Until that decision is made, jurors and other trial participants were barred from discussing the verdict.

In the first trial, the privileged, handsome and self-assured young men were reduced to tears as they described their 45-year-old entertainment executive father as tyrannical and sexually abusive. Their mother, 47, was depicted as an erratic, deeply troubled woman who abused alcohol and drugs and once locked her baby in the closet so she could go shopping.

The brothers admitted killing their parents, but said they did so in self-defense, fearing their parents would kill them rather than risk a scandal over incest.

But the abuse argument became largely a moot point in the second trial after a series of rulings by Judge Stanley Weisberg. He barred the defense from calling nearly 40 witnesses who would have testified about the alleged abuse the brothers suffered as children.

Court rejects bar request to suspend F. Lee Bailey

By BILL BERNSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court refused a bid to suspend jailed attorney F. Lee Bailey from law practice, but did require him to get court approval to tap into any money or property he holds in trust.

A petition by the Florida Bar failed to show that Bailey "is causing great public harm so as to require that (he) be suspended on an emergency basis," the justices said Wednesday.

But the justices slapped emergency conditions of probation on Bailey, forcing him to get a court-appointed referee's approval for any trust account transactions.

Bailey was imprisoned March 6 by a federal judge in a dispute over ownership of $25 million worth of stock. He is trying to raise $2.3 million to pay off a lien, get a Swiss bank to transfer the stock to the court and secure his release.

Bailey, whose clients have included O.J. Simpson, Patty Hearst and Dr. Sam Sheppard, was pleased the emergency suspension request was denied, said his attorney, John K. Aurell.

"There's a dispute, an honest dispute, and the courts will have to resolve it. But that shouldn't have any impact on his ability to practice law," Aurell said. "He's as qualified to practice law today as he was before."

The Bar said its review showed Bailey deliberately impeded U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul's order to surrender the disputed stock. Bailey argued that the dispute and resulting contempt charge were a "civil controversy" that didn't warrant emergency action.

Aurell said the trust account restrictions shouldn't hurt Bailey's efforts to free himself from Paul's six-month contempt of court sentence.

"It shouldn't have any impact on that," said Aurell. "He has to get permission from a judicial referee to take any money out of trust accounts. He can work with that."

The Bar has 60 days in which it can follow up the emergency petition by filing a formal complaint, and hadn't decided whether to do that, said Tony Boggs, the Bar's director of lawyer regulation.

Let's keep it clean

Earlier this week, a group of Central Florida realtors made what has become a yearly tour of Sanford. Its schools and houses. They saw some real beauties.

But we can only wonder if they saw something else. Did they see trash or litter along some of the roadways? Did they see dilapidated business signs, stores, some still in use, with some windows taped shut or unsightly items displayed outside their businesses?

Let's face it. People receive what is often a very lasting impression of an area based on what their eyes see during the first few minutes.

Even present residents prove that point. When they invite guests to their homes for the first time, they will give directions based on the best appearing route they can find. They don't want visitors driving through unkempt areas. It will give a bad impression.

The same should hold true for the city. People enter it on U.S. Highway 17-92, north or south, on SR-46, east or west, SR-46A from the west, Celery Avenue from the east, CR-427 from the south, or the new GreeneWay.

What will they see as they approach Sanford? Will they see row after row of well-kept houses, clean streets free of litter, and mowed yards? If so, they are going to like what they see, and even a few flaws here and there won't change their opinions.

If, however, they see trash and rubbish, homes and yards in poor condition, and other signs which indicate no one really cares about the appearance, then they will have that opinion and no matter what beauty they see elsewhere in Sanford, it will be difficult to erase their memory.

Even the occasional clean-up-the-city or neighborhood projects which are undertaken from time to time last only for a brief time. As an example, the recent St. Johns River cleanup project was considered highly successful. Yet within days, there were beer cans, plastic containers, pieces of broken cooler chests and other items floating along our Lake Monroe shoreline.

In order to give the city a good impression, and keep it that way, everyone must get involved and continue to be involved. People on their daily walks could carry a trash bag and pick up a few pieces of debris from time to time. Neighbors could (similar to Adopt-A-Road) adopt their own neighborhoods or blocks on a rotating basis.

Business owners must be made to realize that a bad appearance isn't helping themselves, their neighbors, or anyone in the city.

We can have a clean city, clean roads and clean neighborhoods. But we can't sit and wait for someone else to do it, we must take it upon ourselves as individuals. As such, we can accomplish miracles.

LETTER

Pat Buchanan

God delivered Israel from bondage in Egypt and gave them a land flowing with milk and honey - Palestine. Israel, after a few years of living in the land, forgot the one true God and began to worship gods made with hands. America is much the same. It was found, in great part, by Christians fleeing religious persecution, who, forgetting their first love, began to worship other gods (TV, sports, amusement, money, cars, trucks, health care and whatever else).

God's response to Israel and America is to allow these nations to be overrun by foreign nations and ruled by a foreign government. We see this in America "the land of the brave and free" surrendered to the United Nations. Our legislators subjecting American citizens to grievous tax burdens that should not be borne by the children of the nation but by foreigners (who want to sell their goods in America). Our nation is being run primarily by legislators (who have foreign rather than American citizens' interests at heart), the Council on Foreign Relations and the Tri-Lateral Commission.

Also, just like Israel, the people are screaming to be delivered and many are crying at the correct footstool, Almighty God's. Likewise, as God raised up deliverers, judges for Israel (Ehud, Deborah and Barak, Gideon, Jephthah, Samson, Samuel), God has raised up a deliverer for America today in Pat Buchanan.

Keep repenting and praying America.

Let Clinton speak clearly, for once

Taiwan's presidential election on March 23 has brought to a boil a whole series of developments that have been cooking away on the back burner for several years.

It has completed, just for one thing, Taiwan's transition from an authoritarian regime to a full-fledged democracy.

Combined with the achievements of Taiwan's powerful economy, it has attracted the admiring attention of the world - an attention Taiwan's leaders have seized on to promote its desire for further international recognition, including membership in the United Nations.

These various developments, in turn, have induced a humongous squalling fit in Beijing. The Chinese Communist regime is jealous of Taiwan's prosperity, frightened by the suggestive example of its democracy, and furious at any hint that Taiwan may cease to regard itself as a Chinese province and seek to go its own way as a sovereign nation of 21 million people.

Hence Beijing's recent military exercises - featuring surface-to-surface missiles with live ammunition - in the Taiwan Strait and not far from Taiwan's two main ports.

On Taiwan itself, the Kuomintang, which is the governing party, insists that it favors reunification with the mainland when China is free and democratic - i.e., after the Communists are gone. The only open support for independence comes from the chief opposition party, which apparently is ready to risk a Communist attack. Listen to this effusion by Chen Shih-meng, a former Secretary General of that party (the Democratic Progressives), as quoted in the New York Times:

"If China uses military force, we will counterattack. We could destroy their economic zones incredibly fast. We will not win by pitching threats against military experts in the Chinese leadership, but if we use our military capacities to sow fear among the economists, we can divide that leadership to triumph."

Nonsense doesn't stop being nonsense merely because it's spoken by the Chinese. Beijing is almost certainly not ready to invade Taiwan today, but an economic blockade could ruin Taiwan's economy, and selective missile shots could devastate the island.

In those circumstances, it would be madness for any Taiwanese government to provoke Beijing by moving toward independence now. Even the demand for U.N. membership can wait, if necessary. Time is on Taiwan's side, as the aging leaders of China die off and the regime struggles to maintain itself amid the economic and political pressures this will generate. The proper course for Taiwan is watchful waiting.

And what about the United States? Unfortunately, just when it is crucial to make Beijing understand that any attack on Taiwan would provoke whatever American response was necessary to defeat it, we have a president whose lifelong habit has been to fudge every question presented to him.

Interestingly, all this plays right into the hands of Bob Dole, a foreign policy expert and a longtime friend of Taiwan's.

These various developments, in turn, have induced a humongous squalling fit in Beijing.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Connie Mack is possible veep

Forget Colin Powell. He's not going to run for vice president, and supporters of Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., should move on to other candidates, including, perhaps, Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla.

Admittedly, Mack is a dark horse, Florida being a should-win state for Dole. Yet top Dole advisers consider Mack the one U.S. senator who might make it to Dole's short list, and he is in the Jack Kemp mold of growth-oriented optimists.

Meantime, I talked to Powell on the phone last week. He said, "I made a decision last November and I'm sticking to it." The decision, of course, was that he would not run for any elective office in 1996. He also told The Chicago Sun-Times that he is "not interested" in being Dole's vice president.

Even more unequivocally, Powell political adviser Ken Duberstein said on CNN that Powell "has decided he is not going to be a candidate, period." Duberstein said in another interview, "The door is slammed shut."

It's too bad. Having Colin Powell as a president-in-training would be great for the country. It would also be great to see Dole sock it to Pat Buchanan, who is presuming to veto Powell. But Powell seems to be one of those rare birds who, when he says something, regards it as a matter of honor to stick to it.

Moreover, as GOP consultant Eddie Mahe says, if Dole somehow did entice Powell onto the ticket, the media would devote much of the campaign to probing for differences between the two, inhibiting Dole's ability to get his message across.

Mahe, along with many other Republicans, thinks that Dole's best bet for veep is Michigan Gov. John Engler, whose advantages are that he is not a Washington insider, represents a key Midwest industrial battleground state with 18 electoral votes, has pioneered the welfare and education reforms that congressional Republicans advocate, and is Roman Catholic.

On the other hand, some Dole advisers say that Engler has been too aggressive in pushing his candidacy and by injecting himself into budget negotiations this winter with President Clinton, camping out almost constantly in the office of House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.

On Mahe's list, and among other Republicans, the next-best choice for Dole is former South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell, who represents the Republican New South and might help guarantee that Bill Clinton and Al Gore carry no Southern states except Arkansas and Tennessee. If that, Campbell's disadvantage is that he's now a Washington lobbyist.

Mahe also touts former Defense Secretary

Dick Cheney, who's all but disappeared from public view since he mistakenly decided not to run for president. He's CEO of the Halliburton Co., an oil exploration and engineering firm in Texas.

Other speculators mention Midwest Govs. George Volinovich of Ohio, Jim Edgar of Illinois, and Tommy Thompson of Wisconsin as well as New Jersey Gov. Christine Todd Whitman. Whitman presumably won't get tapped because she's pro-choice and would set off a conservative rebellion at the GOP convention worse than the one that might have greeted Powell.

Speculators so far have virtually ignored Mack, but Dole aides confirm that they shouldn't. His drawbacks are that he's a senator like Dole and that he's from Florida, which normally is an easy-win state for Republicans.

"If Dole can't carry Florida without Mack," says one Dole adviser, "he's going to lose no matter what he does." Even though Democrats habitually see possibilities of carrying Florida because of its Medicare population, in the last four presidential elections they haven't polled more than 39 percent of the vote.

On the other hand, Mack is a well-liked pro-growth conservative who, as chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, has assembled the GOP case on the hot issue of middle-class insecurity - namely, that it's caused by a sub-par national economic performance for which Clinton tax increases are to blame.

Mack has a famous baseball name, an easy manner, and a youthful appearance (though he's 55). He's Catholic, pro-life (but not in favor of a constitutional amendment), and has a record of activism on behalf of the American Cancer Society. Both he and his wife are cancer survivors. Moreover, Dole likes and feels comfortable with him.

Asked about veeps, top Dole campaign staffers say - correctly - that the whole subject is premature and that they won't begin setting up a veep-vetting procedure until April, when Dole has secured a delegate majority.

Admittedly, Mack is a dark horse, Florida being a should-win state for Dole.

Moving embassy would be tricky

WASHINGTON - One of the most contentious campaign issues between President Clinton and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole will be the battle over whether to move the U.S. Embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem.

But neither candidate is aware of a fact that could render their arguments moot: The land in Jerusalem may not belong to Israel in the first place.

Clinton and Dole are both trying hard to court the Jewish-American community, a crucial source of electoral votes and campaign cash. Clinton traveled to Israel last week to kneel at the grave of slain Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and to pledge $100 million in anti-terrorism aid.

Dole, meanwhile, has taken a hard-line in favor of uprooting the U.S. embassy, which has been a nettlesome issue with the Israelis since they took Jerusalem by force in 1967. Israelis and the influential Jewish-American community want America to recognize their capital. But the United States and most other countries refuse to solidify Israel's claim to Jerusalem because the city is also regarded as sacred to Muslims.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., sponsored legislation in 1989 to find a suitable property in Jerusalem for an eventual move from Tel Aviv. So the State Department scouted and secured a future embassy site. But State has carefully designated this property on their Jerusalem maps as the site of "diplomatic quarters," since calling it an embassy site at the moment would be against department policy and would offend Muslims.

Last fall, Dole shocked the Arab-American community by sponsoring a bill to require construction of an American embassy on that site. Clinton vehemently opposed the legislation and was able to water down the provisions requiring the start of construction. Dole can't wait to remind Jewish-American voters that Clinton stalled the move.

But we've learned of information that could kill the construction anyway. It turns out that the land may be "Waqf" property.

In the Islamic world, Waqf is property that belongs to God. It is essentially an Islamic trust administered by Islamic officials. The property can be leased or rented, but never sold without the consent of the owner, which is God.

Waqf land can also be designated for the benefit of the original owner's descendants. Several Palestinian families, including eight Americans, believe they are beneficiaries of Waqf property that includes the site designated for the U.S. embassy.

If the land is Waqf, and the United States moves onto it, "this will not be merely a slap in the face, but an absolute sacrilege to the entire Muslim world," explained Dr. John Espizido of Georgetown University's Center for Muslim and Christian Understanding. "If we ignore the (Palestinian) claims, we put (Palestinian President Yasser) Arafat in an unbelievably bad position, even among moderates."

Dr. Rashid Khalidi of the University of Chicago said the move would hinder the Mideast peace process. He added it would also make an embassy in Jerusalem a prime target of terrorism for Islamic extremist groups, whereas the Tel Aviv embassy has been left alone.

The land in Jerusalem may not belong to Israel in the first place.

Proposal would bar illegal aliens from public schools

By CANDORA BURRELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Illegal alien children could be barred from attending public schools in some states under a Republican proposal in the House that drew heated attacks from Democrats.

The House voted 257-163 on Wednesday to add the plan to a bill that would revamp the nation's legal and illegal immigration laws. A final vote on the entire bill was expected this week.

In another controversial move, the House voted 210-207 to require certain immigrants to pass standardized tests to prove they are proficient in English. The requirement would apply only to immigrants allowed in because of special jobs skills and foreigners admitted from countries with low rates of immigration here.

The schools vote came after House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., took the unusual step of going to the floor to argue in favor of an amendment that would give states the authority to decide whether to spend taxpayer dollars on public education for illegal aliens.

"I think there's no question that offering free, tax-paid goods to illegals has increased the number of illegals," Gingrich said. "If they (states) want to spend it, that's fine."

He was followed by Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas, who angrily accused Gingrich of trying to squeeze political gain out of the issue by attacking a long-standing government policy that bars illegal aliens from receiving all public benefits — except emergency room care and public education.

"I say shame on you Mr. Speaker," Bryant said. "For the speaker ... to come forward and say we ought to abandon that and jeopardize the ability to pass this bill smacks of nothing more than raw political opportunism."

Other opponents said the amendment would turn school officials into immigration officers.

"It makes armed guards out of principals and teachers," Rep. Sheila Jackson-Lee, D-Texas, said.

Rep. Elton Gallegly, R-Calif., said he wrote the schools amendment in response to a 1982 Supreme Court ruling that said all children — regardless of their legal status — are entitled to free public education under equal protection guarantees in the Constitution.

He said his amendment addressed objections raised by the justices in their 5-4 decision and predicted it would survive a court challenge. The majority opinion noted that the federal government had failed to provide the direction necessary to bar illegal immigrants from public classrooms, Gallegly said.

"Congress has a role and we haven't played it. That gave them the justification to make that finding," Gallegly said. "They no longer will have that justification."

California Gov. Pete Wilson praised the "courage" the House showed in trying to "reolve the issue of whether states must pay for the education of undocumented immigrant children."

The House also rejected a move to cancel a 3-year pilot program allowing employers in five states to voluntarily call an 800 number to verify the social security numbers of new hires. If the program succeeds in keeping illegal aliens out of jobs, Congress would have the option of expanding it and making it mandatory and permanent after three years.

A coalition of Democrats and conservative Republicans had united to argue strenuously against the idea, saying it could easily lead to the imposition of a national identification system requiring residents to carry photo ID cards to prove their citizenship.

A bid to make the pilot verification program mandatory immediately upon passage of the bill also was rejected.

The House also: — Agreed to delete a bill provision limiting the number of refugees entering the country to 50,000 a year.

— Approved an amendment that would give state and local law enforcement officials authority to detain illegal aliens and hand them over to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

— Rejected a move to kill a provision that bars un-documented aliens from applying for welfare, food stamps and Medicaid for children born here.

— Rejected a plan to require health care providers to confirm whether a foreigner in their care is a legal or illegal immigrant when seeking reimbursement from the government for health care costs.

— Agreed to give unused immigration visas reserved for immigrant workers to the brothers and sisters of U.S. citizens who filed immigration applications before March 13. Another part of the bill would end a program allowing U.S. citizens to sponsor their siblings into the country.

GOP sets promised House vote to repeal assault weapons ban

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Over the objections of some Republican lawmakers, GOP House leaders suddenly set a vote Friday on repealing the ban on assault-style firearms, fulfilling a promise to the National Rifle Association.

Wednesday's action cheered House opponents of the ban imposed in 1994 on 19 specific styles of firearms and dozens of similar weapons.

Rep. Jim Chapman, R-Texas, the bill's author, called the ban "a poorly crafted, symbolic gesture that has failed to make a meaningful contribution to reducing violent crime in our society."

But some fellow Republicans disagreed, and tried unsuccessfully at a GOP caucus in the Capitol on Wednesday evening to vote on a motion to delay bringing up the gun ban repeal. They failed to get a required two-thirds majority.

"There are people who think it focuses attention on the wrong issue at the wrong time," said Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y.

"To bring this issue up now is ludicrous," said Rep. Peter Torkildsen, R-Mass. "Congress needs to focus on balancing the budget and passing real welfare reform."

Both Boehlert and Torkildsen voted for the ban as part of the 1994 crime bill that took effect just months before Republicans gained control of Congress.

Overturning that ban has been the NRA's top legislative priority, and Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga., chairman of the House Firearms Legislation Task Force, said, "I'm confident that it will pass."

"This is an issue where people's minds are not going to change," he said.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., called the sudden scheduling of the vote "a sneak attack."

"This bill is headed straight to the floor faster than an Uz' bullet," he said. If the ban is lifted, he added, "This Congress will have blood on its hands."

Until Wednesday, the measure had not even been scheduled for action by the Rules Committee, which must act before a bill goes to the floor.

Michele Davis, spokeswoman for Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, said the leaders "are fulfilling a promise made in January of 1995 to Republican and Democratic members ... who asked for and were told they would get a vote on repeal sometime in this Congress."

Asked why the measure was put on the schedule so suddenly, she said, "We're practically daily getting requests to have the votes. Now is as good a time as any."

Both House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who clinched the GOP nomination for president Tuesday, promised last year to put repeal to a vote.

The terror bombing of Oklahoma City's federal building and the stalemate with the Clinton administration over the federal budget helped keep the measure off both chambers' schedules.

Even Tanya Metaksa, the NRA's chief lobbyist, has conceded that repeal is impossible while President Clinton is in office. She nevertheless has pushed for a House vote this year.

"Our members who were active in the 1994 elections need to know the people they helped have stuck to their original promise to repeal the Clinton gun ban," she said in an interview.

Even if it passes the House, its future in the Senate looks bleak.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., has promised "the mother of all filibusters" to stop repeal in the Senate.

Kruger headed to Illinois?

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — University of Florida basketball coach Lon Kruger has decided to leave for another job, apparently as Lou Henson's replacement at Illinois.

Kruger met with his players Wednesday night to inform them of his decision.

"He made the decision to go coach somewhere else. It was very emotional. Nobody said anything, and there were a lot of tears," said freshman guard Eddie Shannon.

Kruger, who was in Champaign earlier Wednesday, could not be reached for comment.

Kruger planned a news conference at 2 p.m. at Illinois. The Palm Beach Post reported today. School officials said Wednesday that no news conference was scheduled.

SCC streak stopped

Daytona Beach halts Raider run at seven games

From Staff Reports

DAYTONA BEACH — Seminole Community College saw its seven game conference winning streak come to an end Wednesday as the Raiders dropped a Mid-Florida Conference softball doubleheader to M-FC leading Daytona Beach Community College 8-6 and 7-1.

Two errors and a passed ball led to five unearned runs as SCC fell behind the Scots 7-1 after three innings in the first game. But the Raiders almost pulled off the comeback, scoring cutting the lead to 7-5 in the fifth inning.

The second game was close throughout with DBCC holding just a 3-1 lead until scoring four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning.

"The first game was a tough one to lose," said SCC head coach Courtney Miller. "We outplayed them and outhit them, but still came up short. We did a great job of not giving up when we were down 7-1. Unfortunately, we were playing on slowpitch fields (deep fences) and the hits that "We didn't hit the ball in the second game and DBCC had a couple of defensive gems that saved a couple of runs. Now we have to bounce back for tomorrow's (Thursday) conference games at CFCC. We're in a must 'sweep' situation." Contributing to the Raiders' 11-hit attack in the first game were Lisa Milanes (3-for-4, two doubles, run, three RBI), the Lake Brantley duo of Anne Freeburg (2-for-4, double, run, two RBI) and Nadine White-Davis (2-for-4, two runs), Sarah Dungey (double, RBI), JoDee Woesaner (double, run), Debbie Berry (single, run) and Kendra Bateman (single).

Crystal Pittard (8-6) suffered the loss despite giving up just eight hits and three earned runs.

The SCC bats went as cold as the weather in the second game as it was held to three hits.

Dungey came up with two of those, going 2-for-3. Bateman had the other hit, a single, and White-Davis scored the run in the third inning.

The Raiders are now 12-15 overall and 7-3 in the conference and will be in Ocala today for an M-FC doubleheader with Central Florida Community College starting at 2 p.m. before returning home to open a three-game homestand starting with St. Xavier junior varsity on Friday at 2:30 p.m. DBCC improved to 23-5 overall and 11-1 in the M-FC.

Neufeld, Knapp help Lions top Silver Hawks in SAC baseball

By TONY BOGGERMAN

Herald Correspondent

WINTER PARK — Nearly three weeks after he started the scoring with a two-run single, Andy Neufeld singled to break a 4-4 tie and lead the Oviedo Lions to an 8-4 Seminole Athletic Conference baseball victory over the Lake Howell Silver Hawks Wednesday afternoon.

The game, which started on March 1, was interrupted twice by rain. After being stopped in the bottom of the first on March 1, the two teams got two more innings in this past Monday before rain forced a second postponement.

Ben Knapp (1-0) pitched the last two innings to notch the win for the Lions. The 6-foot-6 sophomore righthander, who was sidelined with an ankle injury when the game began, entered as a substitute on Monday, and contributed a double, a single, and two runs scored to the Lions 10 hit attack.

Neufeld finished 3-for-4 with a double, two singles, one run scored and three RBI. Richie Schneck also had a double for coach Kenne Brown's Lions.

Jason LeMeux tripled and scored a run for Lake Howell. Jeff Monaco and Pat Tolliver each hit a double. Kevin Knorr had a single, a run and an RBI, all in the fourth inning, when Lake Howell rallied from a 4-1 deficit to tie the game. The Silver Hawks stranded 11 runners in the game.

Oviedo, 9-7 and 3-2 in the SAC, plays again Friday at home at 7 p.m. against the Lake Brantley Patriots, while Lake Howell, 10-5 and also 3-2 in the conference, hosts Lake Mary in a Seminole Athletic Conference matchup tonight at 7 p.m.

Is there hope for a cancer cure?

DEAR DR. GOTT: After an eight-year battle with breast cancer, my wife died in 1994. The people at the hospital and hospice were wonderful to me, and they ultimately suggested grief bereavement sessions. I attended several, yet the anguish is still present. The attendance at these sessions waxed and waned. At every session, someone would voice an opinion that pharmaceutical companies, the doctors, and/or big business were holding back the research or marketing of a cancer cure for a more auspicious moment. This was like rubbing salt in my wounds. If answering this will embarrass you, I understand. Otherwise, please respond.

DEAR READER: Breast cancer is one of the chief causes of death in women. It is inconceivable, as well as unacceptable, that any responsible authority or corporation would deprive such women of a cure because of financial or other non-medical considerations.

There is, as you know, available treatment for breast cancer, ranging from hormones to radiation. True, these therapies are imperfect, but they are the best we've got. Many research scientists are working feverishly to discover a cure for cancer. You can be sure that a breakthrough would be widely reported and used, when it occurs. Such a moment would, indeed, be auspicious.

Based on studies — including the recent work implicating a genetic factor as a cause of certain breast and bowel malignancies — more and more specialists are beginning to believe that the next exciting medical marvel will be cancer prevention by genetic manipulation. Unfortunately, such progressive therapy is still decades away.

I can well understand the anger, frustration and sense of loss that you and the members of your bereavement sessions continue to face. But rather than blaming the "system" for not having developed a satisfactory cure for cancer, I think that you can work through your grief more effectively by putting the past behind you, getting on with your life, and using the support of the bereavement group to make new choices and accept new challenges. Granted, this is not easy, but it certainly beats focusing on past losses.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a chronic sinus drip and wonder if the after-effects of inhaling powder from an air bag that inflated following a car accident might be part of my problem.

DEAR READER: Chronic sinus drainage can certainly be caused by inhaling irritating vapors or powder. However, the effects are usually short-lived, so if your air-bag incident occurred several weeks ago, I doubt that it is a factor.

You may have to perform some detective work to discover the cause of your symptoms. Are you allergic to dust, pollen and arid dander? Do you work in an environment in which air pollution is a problem? Could you have a chronic, low-grade sinus infection? These and other questions need answers.

I suggest that you start with your family physician, who can later refer you to an allergist or ear-nose-and-throat specialist, if warranted. Something as inexpensive as an over-the-counter anti-histamine might help you. Or you might need a course of antibiotic therapy. After examining you and, perhaps, obtaining blood tests and X-rays for sinus infection, your doctor should be able to help identify the cause of your problem.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Instant, identical scores

By Phillip Alder

The American Contract Bridge League runs an annual nationwide Instant Matchpoint Game. It is an unusual pair event in that as soon as you finish a deal, you look at a scoresheet to learn your matchpoint score. Your results are not compared with those of the other pairs sitting your way.

The 1995 event was even more unusual in that the winning East-West and North-South scores were identical: 1796 (or 74.83 percent). The North-South winners were Clara Rogers and Gopal Tejwani, from Sildell, La. The East-West victors were Joyce Lamm, from Greenville, N.C., and Dorothy Corbett, from Greenville, N.C. They both did well on this deal.

In the given auction, Tejwani made a weak jump overall of two spades. Over four hearts, Rogers happily bid four spades. East made a dreadful double.

Tejwani ruffed the heart lead in the dummy, cashed dummy's top diamonds, discarding a heart from hand, and ruffed a diamond as East threw a club. Now came a heart ruff, the club ace, a diamond ruff and the heart queen ruffed with dummy's spade queen. After the winning diamond jack was led from the dummy, East couldn't stop South from collecting an overtrick for plus 990 and 94 matchpoints out of 100.

Lamm opened the East hand with two hearts. This was Flannery, showing a minimum opening bid with four spades and five hearts. South couldn't risk a bid and Corbett raised to four hearts. Probably North should have doubled, but he bid five diamonds. Corbett doubled and East-West collected an 800-point penalty for 96 matchpoints.
