Seminole County Commission Is Expected To Approve Reorganization Plan

By Diana Petryk
Herald Staff Writer

A proposed reorganization of Seminole County's Facilities, Parks and Recreation Division appears headed for approval by the county commission Tuesday.

So far, only one commissioner, Barbara Christensen, has expressed any disagreement with the reorganization plan submitted by County Administrator T. Duncan Rowell III.

The commission is scheduled to vote on the plan during its regular meeting beginning at 9:30 a.m. in room 200 of the county courthouse in Sanford.

A scandal involving misuse of county materials and labor by parks division employees sparked an internal probe of the division in September of last year.

In November the commission studied a proposal to split the Facilities, Parks and Recreation Division into two divisions, but at a work session last week Rowell recommended it be kept intact.

He recommended, instead, that the division be placed under two coordinators, one for facilities maintenance and one for parks and recreation and grounds maintenance.

The only objection came from Christensen, who said the plan creates too many levels of management. She asked for time to come up with an alternative, but when the consensus went against her she said:

"That saves me a lot of time."

Rowell's plan calls for a Facilities, Parks and Recreation manager, who reports to the director of the Department of Public Services and Development.

Under the manager are the new facilities/maintenance and grounds/breaks and recreation coordinators. The coordinator schedules and dispatches under each coordinator. The schedulers and dispatchers then have supervisors, under them who oversee technicians and workers of various types.

Christensen said she would like to remove at least one layer of management for the benefit of taxpayers. Rowell said any further cuts would affect the level of service.

Other business facing the commission Tuesday will be a request by the Manpower Division for the board to make appropriations treating a new Private Industry Council under the federal Job Training Partnership Act.

The board will appoint between eight and 14 representatives to the board from the private sector. A new Private Industry Council under the federal Job Training Partnership Act. City May Act Tonight Against Old Plant

The Sanford City Commission will meet tonight to decide whether to condemn the abandoned Chemical & Fertilizer Corp. plant at 2500 Country Club Road.

The commission on April 25 voted unanimously to declare an emergency and shut out its usual condemnation procedures by holding today's hearing. Over city staff said the plant represents a public hazard.

The staff said because of structural deterioration the plant is a hazard and the plant site has been contaminated with chemicals and fertilizers of such concentration that the soil has been poisoned and the standing water there will eventually contaminate ground water if it hasn't already.

In addition, city building inspectors said the building is open to vandals, a stored equipment, an attractive nuisance, exposed wires are a fire hazard and stagnant water is a breeding ground for mosquitoes.

Meanwhile, Spencer O. Douglas, president of Douglas Fertilizer & Chemical Inc. of Lake Mary, which owns the facility, said in a letter to City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles that the condition of the building was for the most part fairly presented in a preceding group report to the commission.

Douglas, saying that he will be present at today's hearing, noted that activity at the Country Club Road plant was curtailed last year after the hall storm which "ventilated" the building and was most destructive.

"We have not been hasty in removing tanks and other equipment, but have in the past few months removed tanks, material and equipment in order to make the site suitable for another occupant with whom we are negotiating," Douglas said.

He said contact has been made with Florida Power to alter main power to the building and provide power only to radio equipment on site. Douglas said during the past week "we have mowed and picked up some debris and intend to remove additional products this week."

He offered to provide any additional information needed.

In addition, Knowles will report to the commission that the city has received notification that the landfill in Volusia County which has been used by the city refuse department as a final dumping ground for refuse from the city's garbage collection will be closing by the end of this month. The city is negotiating with Seminole County for use of the county's Uplava transfer station.

And Knowles will report that city building officials are closely monitoring the property at 25th Street and Country Club Road, which was being used as a landfill site and dumping ground.

The city passed an ordinance two weeks ago prohibiting open landfills within the city limits and forbids the dumping of building materials and organic matter at such landfills.

The Pet Palace

is Built

By Donna Bates
Herald Staff Writer

Not even the prospect that milk crates and brass bowls will be sold to pet lovers impresses residents of the Crossings.

That the subdivision has produced the plan of Jeanne and Carmine Bravo to build a $250,000 pet boutique and grooming center with kennels on property on Lake Emma Road.

But the Lake Mary City Commission, despite the protests of dozens of public hearing last Thursday night and a petition from 137 Crossings residents, voted unanimously to grant its blessing to the project.

The Bravos had sought a special exception to permit the operation and had also gotten approval from Lake Mary's Board of Adjustment.

That board's decision was appealed to the city commission by outside One city commissioner, Dr. Bart Perichetto, before voting on the issue said the animal arguments by the opponents and the Bravos, were "classy."

The opponents noted that kennels are not listed in the zoning ordinance as conditional uses under C-1 zoning. They also expressed concern that excess from the animals and hair shavings could present the risk of disease. Another concern is the noise from the kennels, particularly the kennel portion, would have a domino effect on Lake Mary Boulevard, encouraging higher class development.

"This is the first use of mediotry kennels," he said.

City Attorney Robert Petree, asked for an opinion on whether the city could permit the use under C-1 zoning, said "Since C-2 specifically allows it, it would be better practice to rezone the property or to locate the site in a C-2 area."

He said if the matter were taken to the commission, he would probably lean toward the objectors. "I'm inclined to think kennels are not in harmony with uses listed in C-1, but the commission can probably do anything it wants," he said.

Bravo, an attorney, urged Mayor Walter Sorinson to establish firm guidelines for the hearing so that "it doesn't turn into something bizarre." Bravo said he and his wife had already been through a lengthy round of adversarial hearings.

Sorinson said he was reacting being irritated by Bravo's implication that he would allow the hearing to become a "free for all."

Mrs. Bravo said she has a pet grooming and grooming center with kennels on property on Lake Emma Road. She said among the unusual services also will provide for pets are hot spa, milk crates and brass bowls. Mrs. Bravo said the animal waste will be placed in heavy trash bags and hauled to the county dump for disposal.

She said her facility will be placed about 300 feet back from Lake Emma Road into the 518 feet frontage property, leaving the road frontage of the property vacant for the time being. Mrs. Bravo indicated that at some future time something else will be built on the front of the property, but that the frontage is not for sale at the time.

The kennels also will be multi-crate to hold 60 dogs and 12 cats, she said, and will lick she will be grooming 50 dogs daily. Bravo said that the building will be one-half mile away from the nearest home in the Crossings.

Residents of the Crossings stated their concerns about noise from the kennels, increased traffic on Lake Emma Road, and deteriorating property values in the area.

Perichetto in voting for the facility said he doesn't share the concerns of those from the Crossings about waste disposal or traffic. "I do have a concern about what may happen if the facility falls into other hands," he said.

Commissioner Russ McLaughlin said he had listened to the arguments of the Crossings and wondered if other uses allowed in the zoning such as restaurants and movie theaters wouldn't cause more traffic problems.

And Commissioner Ken King said he believes the facility should be built on a property with C-2 zoning, he would nevertheless vote in favor.

2 Tots Drown in Family Pools

By Britt Smith
Herald Staff Writer

A 2-year-old Patrick boy died this morning at Orlando Regional Medical Center after falling into his grandparents' swimming pool Friday afternoon, the second area child to drown over the weekend.

Daniel Lee Denson died at 4:48 a.m. Monday, according to a hospital spokesman.

A Seminole County Sheriff's Department report said that the boy's mother, Jeanette, was at her father's house at Lake Mills Road in Chuluota when the boy fell into the pool.

Mrs. Denson was talking to her sister when she realized Daniel was missing, went searching for him and found him in the pool.

Mrs. Denson reportedly tried to revive the child until Seminole County firefighters arrived. Not wanting to wait for an ambulance, the firefighters rushed the boy toward Winter Park Memorial Hospital, reaching the hospital but was revived shortly after arriving, ambulance personnel said.

A second 2-year-old boy, Paul Nicholas Mastock, of 116 Lake Circle, died this morning in his mother's home pool floating in the family pool.

It was not known how long the boy had been in the pool.

Mrs. Mastock dragged the boy from the pool, but revival efforts failed and the boy was pronounced dead at Florida Hospital, Altamonte.

Central America: Facts Are Facts

President Reagan offered a skilled, and in our view, convincing defense of his Central American policy in his recent address to a joint session of Congress. While it is too early to judge whether he persuaded many of his congressional critics or an incredulous public, Mr. Reagan undoubtedly secured some points with a deftly delivered speech that was both reasoned and forceful.

Some of the points he would not have found it necessary to speak to in a joint session of Congress or to the nation unless the administration's policy in Central America had been in some trouble in Capitol Hill. And they are: The day before Mr. Reagan's speech, a House Appropriations subcommittee voted to cut the administration's $800 million emergency military aid bill for El Salvador in half.

And even the $30 million that was approved was reportedly made conditional on Mr. Reagan's appointment of a presidential representative to negotiate a settlement of the war in El Salvador. Moreover, many congressional liberals would obviously insist to reduce or even eliminate reported U.S. assistance to anti-Marxist guerrillas in the public realm.

In a larger sense, it is apparent that both Congress and the public remain wary of any U.S. commitment in Central America that could lead to another Vietnam. It is not surprising, therefore, that sustained, round applause of the evening when he declared that there would be no sending of U.S. combat troops to the region.

But those who believe that the administration is being too kindly in its quagmire in Central America, or that the White House is seeking an illusory military solution to the problems of the latterly economic and social were not listening to what Mr. Reagan said.

The bulk of the aid to Central America is going for military equipment and training of Salvadoran troops. The rest is earmarked for economic development and humanitarian assistance to the landless and hungry, to diminish the suffering of ordinary Salvadorans and help to undercut support for the insurgents.

Five elections and a presidential administration is unquestionably resolved to promote political reforms and to support the democratic process. It is not surprising that only broad popular support for non-Marxist governments in the region. Portraying these initiatives as an excessive reliance on military solutions simply defies the facts.

But, of course, there is an undeniable military dimension to the turmoil in Central America. Agricultural adviser and improved weapons equipped by Nicaragua, Cuba, and the Soviet Union. Ignoring the buildup of Soviet-bloc arms to lending Marxist insurgents in El Salvador, would doom the U.S. efforts to promote peace and stability in a region that is our own country.

President Reagan has no responsible choice but to include military assistance in his Central American aid programs. His congressional critics undermine their own credibility by preventing these initiatives as an excessive reliance on military aid to friendly governments in the region.

Then, too, it is the height of folly to believe that the aid to Central America, Cuba, and the Soviet Union, to support their campaign of subversion in Central America if the United States tries to limit the President's military aid to Central America and cutting the help for Nicaraguans, realizing that country's Marxist rulers would only grow more and more fanatical.

The domino theory may be unfeasible among liberals in Congress, but simple logic tells us that a communist regime in El Salvador would be increasingly in step with subversion against Guatemala and Honduras. Will El Salvador be in such trouble today if it were not for El Salvador? Similarly, a communist Central America would threaten Mexico, the ultimate Latin American goal.

These may be unpalatable facts, but they are facts. Reagan cannot afford the luxury of ignoring them. Neither can Congress or the American people. The president's speech framed the issues in a forthright way; if Congress chooses to look for other ways, it will not be President Reagan's fault.

Foster Drills Second 3-run Shot in Three Days; Brett Swings Hot Bat Despite Catcher's Leather

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second time in three days, George Foster drilled a game-winning, three-run homer against his former team Sunday to help the New York Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"It's gratifying to do what I did," said Foster, who reluctantly responded to a standing ovation by the crowd after putting the Mets in front 6-5 during a six-run seventh-inning rally that wiped out a 5-0 lead the Reds accumulated in the first inning.

Jason Crowe, 2-0, pitched one hitless inning of relief for the first time he left the mound after turning his right ankle running the bases during the seventh-inning uprising and Doug Cook earned his second save by working the final two innings.

Four Mets pitchers followed starter Scott Horner and they added the Reds to three hits over the final eight innings.

"The main thing is to know what the bases are so you can go back to it," said Foster, who started slowly this season but now has a six-game hitting streak and five home runs. Foster is batting .400 with 10 hits over the last six games. His season average is .274.

Foster did finally come out to take a bow after his three-run shot when he asked why he was reluctant, said, "I'm at a stage where I can make my own decisions."

Doggs 6, Cardinals 4

A Los Angeles "octopus" left the world champion without a run Sunday night. "It was a tremendous accomplishment to beat that club three games in a row," Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda said Sunday after Los Angeles completed a sweep of its three-game series against St. Louis with a 6-4 victory over the Cardinals.

Dwain Baker and Greg Brock hit solo homers to leave the Dodgers at 2-0, the best in baseball.

"This team can be classified as an octopus," said Lasorda. "One day one guy can beat you and the next day it's another guy."

World Series champion St. Louis has lost 5-0 games on its current West Coast trip.

Baker hit his fifth homer of the year with two outs in the first inning on a pitch from Joaquin Andujar, who has lost five in a row after winning his first two decisions of the season. Brock led the second with his fifth hit of the year, a shot into the right-field pavilion, to make it 2-0.

"I wanted to get a home run for my mother and my wife but I didn't let them that before the game because I didn't want to let them down," I said, said Foster.

Braves 6, Astros 3

At Atlanta, Rick Behrens combined with three relievers on a six-hitter and Bob Horner singled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth for the Braves. "I'm back in my career like I've ever been off to a start like this," said Brett, who is 30-56-78. "I'm usually hitting .300 and I'm not hitting .300 until after the All-Star break."

"I'm being more selective this year and my teammates have been hitting (Royals' batting coach) Rocky Colavito was always after last year, saying my hands were lazy when I was not hitting. This year, I'm trying to get my hands to work a little more."

At Boston, rookie left-hander Matt Young allowed only two hits over five innings and Jason Luff hit the first major-league homer to help the Mariners snap a five-game losing streak. The Red Sox five-game winning streak. Eric Richards homered for Boston.

Educator Reviews Book For Chapter

The Sanner home of chairman Mita Cooper was the site of the April meeting of the Espagon Sigma Omicron of the Women's Club of Sanford. Co-hostesses were Laurine Messinger and Bill Giffin.

Mrs. Giffin met members at the door and introduced each to the guest speaker, Mrs. Clema Husted of Water Park. A social and refreshment hour followed with Mrs. Charlotte Smith presiding over the tea.

During the brief business session a letter of appreciation from the Friends of the Library was read for a donation of $150 and a report given the committee by Margaret Stuyvesant by Eugenia Price, now available for members use on a one-month basis.

Mrs. Cooper then read the group that Mrs. Husted was a long-time friend back in Litchfield Heights, Md., where the two families lived while their children grew up together and they all enjoyed a cultural and social life of their small town before retiring in Florida.

Mrs. Husted, a former teacher, avid reader, active member of the Friends of the Library of Water Park, reviewed the best fiction books of 1980 GOING TO EXTREMES, by John McGinnis. The author described the most remote areas of Alaska. Some interesting facts Alaska with its 375 million acres, has one-half the population of Washington, D.C. and one-third of that population resides in Anchorage, which is the hottest spot in Alaska in summer and the coldest in winter; the 600-mile, above-ground, pipeline stretches from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez, Mrs. Husted used interesting facts to illustrate her review.

Battered Men Reluctant To Report Wives

DEAR ARMY: God bless "Frightened in Manhattan" for trying to bring to light that he is a battered man. You are correct in saying that very few men have the courage to report their wives for fear that their wives beat them. I know I was a badly battered husband for years and had cuts, bruises, burns and broken bones - all attributed to "accidents." How could I report a wife that I, a 6-2, 185-pound man, was beaten by a 5-4, 135-pound woman?

My wife always felt very bad before we were married, but I thought I could change her. I could! I've been hit with lamps, ashtrays, books, ice buckets, furniture, shoes, etc. Once while I was asleep she tried to run a vacuum cleaner over me. I finally had to choose between my wife and my life. We're divorced now. No names, please, I wouldn't want you to be a S.A., I.S.S. pound woman!

BATTERED IN NEW YORK STATE DEAR BATTERED: National support groups for the battered women are all over the place, but I know of no equally effective national group for the battered men. I don't know of any support groups offering the men to sibberners.

DEAR ARMY: Recently my father suffered a severe heart attack and was hospitalized for a month. Because my mom was alone, I moved back home to be with her for that duration.

I realize that many friends and relatives were truly concerned for my father, but the phone calls were every night for a month nearly drove me crazy! First it was one uncle, then another, then the cousins, then a friend, business associate, then a neighbor, then a friend, and so on. They all wanted to assure my mother she had no need to be afraid and also to get the daily reports on Dad's condition, which brought my poor mother in tears until I finally started calling all the calls.

DEAR BATTERED: I'm glad you have your heart's gone to sleep? And some called very early in the morning, I'm sure you were up at 11:00. I don't like to take the phone off the hook for fear the hospital might be calling to give you some news about my father.

DEAR BATTERED: I'm glad you were contacted, but where it is written that during a family crisis people outside the immediate family should bombard them with phone calls? Please tell your readers that during the first few weeks of a situation like this, one should call except the immediate family to inquire about the patient. A few calls or letters would be so much more appreciated. Thanks for letting us get the "INSIDER" IN L.A.

DEAR BATTERED: Will this thing continue? No letters, S.A. Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, alcohol, and sex. For a baby booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped 137 cent, self-addressed envelope to Andy, Steam Books, P.O. Box 39923, Hollywood, Calif. 91608.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Davis

Couple Celebrate 50th Anniversary At Picnic For 200

By Doris Dietrich PEOPLE FILED "Helping others has been our life," Birdie Davis says while talking about her 50-year marriage to Edward L. Davis.

Calling herself a Florida Cracker, Mrs. Davis adds, "I have always been a housewife and a housekeeper - nothing exciting, but exciting enough."

The Davises celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a barbecue for about 200 persons on May 1, at Lake Lanier in Panama City where Mrs. Davis was born and reared. They have lived at their Woodlark Springs home west of Sanford since 1924. They are members of Countryside Baptist Church, Lake Mary, and are parents of three children: Dick, Oviedo, Bilt, Sanford, and Lydia, Flippin, Altamonte Springs. They have six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mr. Davis, 76, was born on a farm about eight miles from Blounton in Calhoun County. He joined the work force as an early age with his father cutting timber and raising the logs and drifting the rafts down the Choptank river into the Apalachicola to the saw mill at Apalachicola.

"This journey took a week to 10 days," Mr. Davis said. "The nights were spent on the river banks with two blankets for a bed and cooking was done on an open fire. Many of the water nights were cold and rainy with all my clothes wet including the bed clothes."

Mr. Davis left the farm when he was 18 and headed toward Miami, via the first time in Florida at the Brower's Farm, 150 W. Jessup Ave., in Longwood's Historic District, Tuesday, May 10 through Saturday, May 14, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

She is one of the several hundred "Washingtonians" who transferred here with their husbands in 1923. Mrs. Johnson has recently completed a book of paintings for her Martin Hotel Corporation and has been commissioned to paint a mural.

The first set was hung in the Presidential Suite at the Santa Barbara, California hotel. Recent occupants of the suite were Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. The second set is decorating the Executive Suite in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Johnson uses a wet on wet technique to achieve an impressionistic effect in her watercolor. In addition to her current work, Mrs. Johnson will be giving for viewing at the Brower's Barn a double portion - even to six watercolor paintings.

"Historic" Acornia at Brower's Barn will have Mrs. Johnson's paintings available after the show.

When his family moved to Panama City, Mr. Davis worked on commercial fishing boats and later went to work for Gulf Oil Company driving a commercial truck making long hauls.

"While fishing, I met my wife, the daughter of the captain that I fished with and we were married on May 1, 1933."

Mr. Davis continues, "On Aug. 18, 1933, I was transferred by the Gulf Oil Company from Panama City in Sanford. My supervisor over four years told me that I was moving to the Garden Spot of the World, and in my opinion, it was certainly true. We delivered gasoline from the bulk plant on the lakefront to 10 different cities. The gas was brought in from Jacksonville on barges to the bulk plants."

In 1941 the Gulf Oil terminal was moved to Tampa, Mr. Davis says. "This was due to our tanker being sunk by a German submarine."

He worked in Tampa about four months, he says, and then moved his family back to Panama City. "I felt we were going to get into war and I wanted my wife and children to be near our parents in the event I had to go to war."

In Panama City, Mr. Davis went to work for the Wayne-Wright Shipyard. We built 100 Liberty Ships and eight tankers for the British government," he said.

After the war, Mr. Davis went into the business with a friend in Koonseems. He later sold his share of the business and moved back to Sanford where he went to work at the Sanford Naval Air Station in the pipe department. Nine years later, he began working out of the Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 803, Orlando, but the family continued to live in Sanford.

"After 50 years of being married to a sweet wife and a Christian woman, I thank God for a long and happy life and being able to see my two sons and one daughter also raise a Christian family. I think God has given me a double portion - even to six wonderful grandchildren and two great grandchildren."
