Rain dampens track, not spirits

LAKE MARY — Although rain moistened the ground, it could not dampen the spirits of the participants on the first night of the Lake Mary Summer Track Series at Lake Mary High School. When the rain let up, the group lit up the track with their times in the 50-yard, 100-meter, 220-yard, 440-yard, 880 yard and mile races.

Deputy pleads no contest

FORT LAUDERDALE — A sheriff's deputy with a history of harassing women while on duty was sentenced to 18 months in state prison after pleading no contest to sexual battery and battery charges.

Broward County Deputy Charles Foste, 42, of Coral Springs, also was ordered Monday to surrender his certification as a police officer. Under terms imposed by the judge, he cannot apply for police work again in Florida or any other state.

Foster had been suspended without pay since his arrest in September and will be fired, sheriff's officials said. Foster was arrested two weeks after he responded to a call of an attempted suicide at a Tamarac apartment.

No charges filed in death

MIAMI — No charges will be filed in the burning death of a 90-year-old man undergoing ultra-violet treatment for psoriasis at a hospital, but Dade County's state attorney urged the state to regulate such light treatment.

State Attorney Janet Reno said there was insufficient evidence to file criminal charges in the burning death of Miami Beach resident Henry Homer.

She urged the state to require training of personnel who give ultra-violet treatment for psoriasis. She also suggested that such treatments be given using only approved, commercial equipment with safety devices such as timers and escape hatches.

Taxes may jump 30%

Raise could even be more

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — A 30 percent increase in Seminole County property tax is imminent this year due to nearly 10 years of fiscal stringency, decreased revenues and increased expenses.

And the tax increase may be higher if Seminole County commissioners decide to pay for up to $900,000 in children's programs and a $1.2 million emergency helicopter.

County financial consultant Roger Neiswender told commissioners Monday they will have to increase the base county tax from about $3.84 per $1,000 of taxable property to about $5 per $1,000 to maintain the same level of service for the county. The increase will allow the county to add eight new sheriff's deputies and enough firefighters to provide three men on each fire engine instead of the current two men teams.

Commissioners will begin their detailed review of the county budget July 11. The tentative millage rate will be set July 24. Public hearings on the proposed $197.6 million budget is scheduled for Sept. 11 and 25.

Last year, all Seminole County residents paid a total of about $4.55 per $1,000 for base county taxes, county transportation and bond payments. Under county officials'

SANFORD — In the first day of city budget discussions, the city commission yesterday decided by a 4 to 1 consensus it did not want to raise taxes, despite a recommendation by the city manager.

Mayor Bettye Smith opened the meeting by saying, "My first feeling is that I want no vote for a millage increase."

Commissioner Bob Thomas, who dissented, said Faison's proposed

With the agreement of Commissioners A.A. McClanahan, Whitey Eckstein and Lon Howell, Smith told City Manager Frank Faison his assignment for the Tuesday afternoon meeting would be to come up with alternative proposals to the tax increase.

Thomas said he dissented because by not sustaining a tax increase, the city would have to cut personnel.

"I was really disgusted," Thomas said after the meeting. "I don't increase would add about one cent

Teleconference gives educators view of session

By VICKI DeSORMIER

LAKE MARY — At Lake Mary High School yesterday, about 30 Seminole County school district administrators, some school board members and representatives of the PTA and Local School Advisory Committees took part in the Department of Education's first statewide teleconference meeting. Participants across the state joined Seminole County's representatives as they reviewed how the 1990 legislative session affected Florida public schools.

Local representatives sat casually around tables in a corner of the LMHS media center and watched a large television screen. Some took copious notes while others sat, hands clasped behind their heads and leaned back in their chairs. There was a great deal of chatter, some directed at the screen, most of it not.

The satellite link with DOE experts allowed district level personnel and others to gather at 67 sites around the state to listen to what had transpired in Tallahassee and to call a toll-free number to ask questions.

Though the Seminole County contingent did not take advantage of the free call service, Supt. Bob Hughes and assistant superintendent for instruction Dr. Marlon Daley agreed the opportunity was a good one.

"You can call and have your question answered without being lost in a crowd," Hughes

'People's fireworks' to light up sky

SANFORD — It's going to be the city's biggest display yet. Where there might have been nothing but starlight and moonlight on our nation's birthday, there will be $4,100 in fireworks blossoming in the sky over Lake Monroe to celebrate the occasion tomorrow night.

In the past, the biggest display purchased amounted to $3,500.

An ecstatic Steve Alford, who spearheaded a drive to raise money for the show traditionally sponsored by the Sanford chamber, has dubbed the project "the people's fireworks" because it was the people of the city who stepped in to help him when he needed them.

The list of community events in Seminole County scheduled for the Fourth of July is a long one.

While many Central Floridians will celebrate the Fourth with barbecues, parades and parties, area police will be beefing up their patrol on the lookout for speeders and drunk drivers.

The Florida Highway Patrol is predicting nine traffic deaths on Florida's roadways in the 30-hour Independence Day holiday, which begins at 6 p.m. today. Every available trooper will target speeders and suspected drunk drivers, with lawmen's efforts concentrated on primary highways and interstate highways. FHP Director Bobby Burkett said.

Florida band member charged with rape

OSHKOSH, Wis. — A Florida man accused in the alleged gang rape of a 15 year old Milwaukee girl was ordered held on $10,000 cash bond Monday in Winnebago County Circuit Court.

Monte Howard Hess, 23, of Wintermere, Fla., is accused of participating in the gang rape of the girl at a Town of Menasha motel May 11. Hess, along with three other members of the rock band Young Turks, was performing at a Town of Menasha tavern the night the alleged incident took place.

The other three members of the band still are at large and warrants have been issued for their arrest.

Hess voluntarily surrendered to authorities Monday and appeared in Circuit Court later in the day. Judge Bruce K. Schmidt also ordered Hess not to have any contact with any of the individuals named in the complaint and set a preliminary hearing for July 23.

Business Regulation chief resigns

TALLAHASSEE — Steve MacNamara, secretary of the Department of Business Regulation, has resigned to become chief of the Leroy Collins Center for Public Policy at Florida State University, Gov. Bob Martinez said Monday.

MacNamara, who will remain as head of DBR until the end of this month, has been director of the agency since March 1989. He replaces Lawton Chilea, who resigned in April to run for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Martinez said he intends to promote Deputy Secretary Joseph Sole to the top post in the agency. Sole, 56, has served as MacNamara's deputy since last year and prior to that was the department's general counsel for two years.

Sole has also served as an assistant attorney general and as an attorney for Associate Industries of Florida.

Klan plans march in West Palm Beach

WEST PALM BEACH — A federal judge declared Palm Beach's parade ordinance unconstitutional Monday and ordered the city to allow the Ku Klux Klan to march down the exclusive Worth Avenue shopping thoroughfare on July the Fourth.

U.S. district Judge Norman C. Roettger disregarded testimony from police chief Joseph Terlizese, who said the organization's parade request for safety reasons. Roettger ruled that Palm Beach was denying the Klan its constitutional rights by prohibiting the march.

He also said the ordinance was unconstitutional because it allowed city officials to randomly decide what conditions were suitable for obtaining a parade permit.

The judge's ruling resulted from a suit filed by the segregationist organization after the city denied the parade permit.

Nuke the hurricanes, writers suggest

MIAMI — Ants have invaded Ernest Sanchez's kitchen, a sure sign that killer hurricanes are on the way, according to one of the many letters that start trickling in to the National Hurricane Center at this time every year.

"We get letters and tapes and videotapes every year from people saying, 'This is the year of the killer hurricane,'" said hurricane specialist Bob Case.

Armchair meteorologists insist the professionals should consider everything from ants to flower blooms as they prepare for the hurricane season, which runs from June through November.

Case suggested lowering icebergs from the Arctic to cool the warm ocean waters that feed monster storms.

Private group eyes school for experiment

MIAMI — Dade County school officials will allow a private company extraordinary control of a Florida public elementary school as part of an experiment aimed at providing a better education, school officials said.

Education Alternatives Inc., signed a five-year contract last week with Dade County schools to set up its program in South Pointe Elementary School, which will open in Miami Beach in the fall of 1991.

South Pointe's principal and two "lead" teachers will be hired and trained in the fall, and they will spend the year helping to hire and train other teachers.

Wildlife commission recruiting dogs

TALLAHASSEE — Florida wildlife officials are looking for a few good dogs.

The recruitment effort is a result of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's success with the first two members of its K-9 program.

For a year, the two dogs, a pair of Labrador retrievers named Sonny and Shaata, have been used in wildlife detection, in tracking and in search and rescue. Officials are currently training them in underwater searches, hoping to use them to recover drowning victims.

American hostage heads home

United Press International

MIAMI — Freed American hostage Scott Heimdal of Peoria, Ill., and his mother arrived home in the United States Monday, nine weeks after the gold miner was kidnapped by Colombian rebels.

The Heimdals arrived at Miami International Airport from Quito, Ecuador, early Monday afternoon, where the former hostage and his mother, dressed in identical red T-shirts proclaiming their affection for Peoria, greeted a horde of news reporters.

During a 15-minute news conference, Heimdal said he was well-treated during his two-month ordeal.

"They always treated me with respect. The food wasn't good but we all ate the same food," Heimdal said. "I was only afraid at the very beginning. After that, I wasn't afraid for my life."

Heimdal, 27, also thanked those who

I was only afraid at the very beginning. After that, I wasn't afraid for my life helped raise the $60,000 ransom paid to his kidnapers.

— Scott Heimdal

"I owe them a debt I won't be able to repay," he said.

Heimdal was kidnapped April 25 as he was traveling by motorized canoe near the Colombia-Ecuador border. He was found Friday in good health by Ecuadoran police in a boat on the San Miguel River and flown to Quito.

"I was inside Ecuador, roughly about 3 kilometers, on a river in a 30-foot Indian dugout canoe. Three men attacked the canoe, killed the driver, wounded one and took me hostage. The rest of the time we were running around the Colombian countryside. They wanted to kidnap a North American," he said.

Heimdal said his kidnapers were not drug-traffickers but rather members of one of five guerrilla groups that operated in the area. He identified the group as the People's Liberation Army.

Originally the kidnapers had asked for $1.2 million in ransom, but lowered their demand to $60,000, which the family raised in a nationwide appeal.

After that amount was collected, the family received word the ransom had been increased to more than $600,000. The kidnapers, however, apparently settled for the $60,000 once it had been converted to local currency.

Heimdal said he could not explain the apparent change of heart.

Martinez vetoes restrictive bill

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez vetoed a bill Monday that would have limited the public's ability to change the state constitution through ballot initiatives.

The bill would have barred citizens' group from hiring others to gather signatures to place an initiative on the ballot. It would also have required witnesses when petitions are signed, plus affidavits showing that the signatures are indeed from real people.

Martinez said he vetoed the bill for a simple reason — because the new rules would simply have set up too many hoops for someone to jump through if they wanted to get an issue on the ballot for a public vote.

"The changes proposed by this bill so stringently limit access to certification of a citizens initiative that it must be viewed as an effort to quash or severely limit the ability of the people to revise their constitution," the governor said in his veto message.

Since 1960, nearly 50 groups have circulated petitions to change the state constitution. Only four of the issues ever made it to the ballot, which Martinez said is an indication that the current restrictions are severe enough.

"I have no knowledge of reports of corruption or questionable practices that would give rise to a need for the imposition of more stringent controls on this process," Martinez said in his veto message.

Martinez also vetoed three other bills Monday and signed into law 41 others, including one establishing state licensing of bottle clubs. A license will cost $500, and no entity holding a bottle-club license may hold any other type of beverage license for the same location.

Despite some recent mass bill signings, Martinez still has more than 200 measures he must consider.

Cool climate pushes citrus farther south

United Press International

ORLANDO — Florida's northern and central areas have gotten colder in the last 25 years, a trend that citrus-industry analysts say will result in even more production shifting farther south.

The latest evidence of the trend came with last December's three-day freeze that devastated the industry. Damage results are still being compiled, but clues about the magnitude of the losses — and to the industry's future — abound.

"The verdict is in, and we lost," said Phil Cross, grower liaison for a waste-water irrigation project that supplies several thousand acres of young groves in western Orange County.

"When it gets down to 18 degrees, there's not much you can do about it," Cross said, referring to the Christmas weekend freeze.

Cross and other industry analysts said they foresee more devastation from temperatures in the future, and a plant-hardiness zone map of the United States supports their view.

"Most of Florida has gotten colder" by 5 to 10 degrees, said Mark Cathey, director of the National Arboretum in Washington. Cathey supervised the updating of the map, which commercial plant nurseries and others use to determine when to harvest crops and ship plants.

Mountain of money seized after 13-month drug probe

United Press International

MIAMI — Federal agents seized more than $22 million in illegal drug profits — a mountain of money weighing 1 1/2 tons — after a 13-month probe that targeted cocaine operations in New York and Miami, officials said Monday.

"This is a case in which we have uncovered a money laundering operation of unprecedented proportions," U.S. Customs Commissioner Carol Hallett said.

Federal agents displayed the tainted money on tables which ran the length of the fashionable Doral Country Club.

Heavily armed federal drug agents lined the main lobby of the resort to protect the cash, all of which was in bills of $20 or smaller. The money was accumulated during a number of seizures.

"This really represents street money. These are the dollars that have come off the street for drugs, for narcotics, and I think that it is very significant, when you realize that these small amounts of currency add up to $22 million," Hallett said.

"Twenty-two million dollars is a lot of money to launder. ... There are probably a lot of people involved," Hallett said. "I think it is fair to say that these were Colombians along with Cuban-Americans who were involved in this case."

She declined to be more specific. Officials have made one arrest.

"We expect to make more arrests and we anticipate indictments," she said.

Tammy Faye would rather eat cake

United Press International

ORLANDO — Tammy Faye Bakker says she yearns for those halcyon days when she and imprisoned evangelist Jim Bakker celebrated special occasions by curling up together in bed with a wedding cake.

"It's those little things you miss," Tammy Faye told the Ladies Home Journal in its July edition. "Jim and I always loved to buy wedding cakes with that white icing so rich it tickles your teeth. Then we'd climb into bed and eat the whole thing."

In the Journal interview, Tammy Faye discoursed on several of life's most important issues — makeup, money, shopping and Jessica Hahn.

"It's all right. I have forgiven her," Tammy Faye said of Hahn, the woman whose tryst with Bakker brought down his vast evangelical empire.

Tammy Faye said the rendezvous was definitely the only time her husband ever strayed and she isn't a bit jealous of Hahn, who after the scandal broke posed as a naturel for Playboy magazine.

"When I finally saw photographs of her in magazines, Jessica Hahn was a skinny, very ordinary looking woman. That soothed my heart. She did not make me feel dowdy, like I often do."

And just so the Sand Man won't think she is "dowdy," Tammy Faye said she goes to bed each night fully made up, including the false eyelashes.

"I take them off about once a month," she said of the eyelashes. "You know how all the magazines are saying false eyelashes are coming back, so I've won, haven't I?"

"Besides," she added, "I wish people would look beyond my makeup and into my heart to see the love I have for humanity."

Tammy Faye insisted she is no longer a lady of means, living a hand-to-mouth existence in a $300,000 home in Orlando that she rents for a mere $1,200 a month because of the landlord's kindness.

"We're living at the very edge," she said. "I make ends meet on a minitary paycheck that's a lot smaller than you'd think."

As for the $4 million she and her husband earned their last three years at PTL, Tammy Faye said they failed to sock any of that away.

"Jim gave his money away," she said. "We had no personal savings, no Swiss bank accounts, nothing."

But still, a woman does what a woman has to do, and in Tammy Faye's case that means shopping.

"It takes my mind off everything," she said. "It's even exercise."

Bevan to seek county judgeship

By BOB POMPANO
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Altamonte Springs Attorney Ken Bevan has announced his candidacy for the Seminole County Judge position recently created by the resignation of County Judge Alan Dickey.

Bevan said in a release, "Everyone knows my interest in serving as a judicial officer. I feel that my legal experience and varied legal background will help me well serve the people of Seminole County."

Bevan, a fifth generation Floridian, was admitted to the Florida Bar in 1988. He is presently president-elect of the Seminole County Bar Association, a member of the Harvard, Seminole and Orange County Bar Associations. As chairman of the Seminole Judicial Pool Committee, he coordinated the lawyer evaluations of the judges in Seminole County.

Bevan said, "County court is the most important court because it is the people's court. Most citizens' only contact with our judicial system occurs in County Court. I look forward to the opportunity to foster and maintain the respect for our judicial system by my neighbors in our fast growing county."

In addition to his practice, Bevan teaches law-related courses at Valencia Community College where he received the Outstanding Educator of the Year award. He is active in the South Seminole Rotary Club, Boy Scout Council, and was an active participant in fund raising for construction of the new YMCA facilities in Lake Mary.

Bevan, 48, his wife Linda and their two children, Jill, 15 and Kehny, 14, live in Longwood.

Woman stabbed with ice pick

SANFORD — Seminole County sheriff's deputies have the name of a man accused of stabbing Beverly Jean Holly, 31, 1500 Roosevelt Ave., Sanford, seven times with an ice pick. Deputies said Holly was injured at about 2:30 a.m. today when the man confronted her in the roadway at 2108 W. 18th St., rural Sanford. They reportedly argued over jealousy and Holly was injured. She was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

Charges had not been filed early today, a sheriff's report said.

Man with painted face makes threats

CASSELBERRY — A 19-year-old rural Casselberry woman reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies Monday that on June 23 at about 11 p.m. she was attacked by a man outside her Sunahadow Apartments home.

The woman said the man, with his face painted dark, grabbed her and pushed her against her car. He fled when another car approached in the parking lot.

The woman reported that since then she has received threatening notes from the man. He reportedly wrote, "Don't resist the inevitable. It won't be so bad. I want to see you soon," a sheriff's report said.

Witness reports threat

SANFORD — A man who allegedly threatened a witness who testified against his brother in another criminal case, has been arrested by Sanford police.

Police report charging Richard Bernard Taylor, 19, 15 Cowan Moughton Terrace, Sanford, with retaliation against a witness and aggravated assault. The arrest was made at the police station Monday at 7:45 p.m.

Taylor is accused of confronting the woman Sunday on Olive Avenue at Third Street, where he allegedly said, "I'm going to kill you....! You got my brother 75 years."

Taylor took a large branch from a tree, put it to the victim's face and repeated the threat, police allege.

Man accused of threatening family

SANFORD — Gary Roy Waits, 40, 114 Satsuma Drive, Sanford, was arrested at home on a charge of aggravated assault after he allegedly broke up items in his house using the stock of a shotgun.

He is accused of threatening to hit family members with the gun at about 8:20 p.m. Monday.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrested Waits at home at 8:56 p.m. Tuesday.

Fired worker arrested

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly fought his boss and created a disturbance at Picadilly Restaurant, State Road 436, Casselberry, was arrested there at about 4:46 p.m. Tuesday after he was fired.

Jimmy Greg Cooper, 33, who refused to give Casselberry police his address, was charged with battery, disorderly conduct and resisting without violence.

Man accused of theft at work

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — City police here report charging Shown Williams Luke, 23, 171 Oak St., Longwood, with dealing in stolen property and grand theft, after reportedly linking him to thefts from his former employer ECI Telecom, Inc., of Altamonte Springs.

The loss of at least $345,000 worth of goods from the business was reported to police June 15. The suspect is also accused of making numerous long distance calls on the business phone.

An investigation, tips and the location of some of the property at a pawn shop led to the arrest of Luke, police said. He was arrested Monday at the county jail.

Seminole County DUI arrests

SANFORD — The following person faces a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:
Stephen J. Rowan, 35, 177 Post Way, Casselberry, was arrested at 3:03 a.m. today after his car was seen weaving on Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary. He was also charged with careless driving.

Winged traffic sets up house in light signals

By AMY WILSON

Birds statewide are flocking to the nearest traffic intersection to find such plush living accommodations as protection from the elements, year-round warmth and complete privacy. The color scheme isn't so hot, but they don't seem to mind.

The Seminole County Public Works Department says birds have taken residence in many of its 200 or so traffic lights. Dave Muntz, signal supervisor, said at about every 10 intersections one can find a bird's nest.

"They are ideal nesting spots because they're totally enclosed," Muntz said.

"There's a box above the signal head with openings on each end," he said. "If the ends aren't capped, birds will go in there."

As Muntz explained, the cables which control the light run through this box. Most of the time bird and cable can peacefully coexist. Sometimes, however, the bird can cause major problems.

"We've had a couple of problems in Casselberry with birds chewing through the wires," Muntz said. "One caused the light at an intersection (U.S. Highway 17-92 and Lake Tripoli) to go on flash."

If birds are found living in the traffic lights, they are usually removed and the ends of the box capped off.

"Once in a while we find little babies or eggs in there, and we don't know what the heck to do with them," Muntz said. "I feel really bad sometimes."

Carmen Shaw of the Florida Audubon Society said mostly mockingbirds, sparrows, and pigeons nest in the lights.

"They like it there because it's enclosed and they probably get a certain amount of radiated warmth," Shaw said.

In south Florida, the common house sparrow dominates traffic lights. According to a University of Miami professor, the bird's seemingly unnatural behavior reflects the evolution of a species that has been altered by humans.

"They were introduced into this country toward the end of the last century," said Dr. Oscar Owre, a UM professor emeritus of ornithology. "These birds accompanied man when he migrated into Europe and became habituated to his presence. The birds found ready pickings in the agricultural fields. They're seed eaters."

As humans became more urban, so did the birds.

"As man developed and the urban areas became what we see today, the birds were still partial to man's areas and habitations. You don't find many of them outside the cities and farmyard areas where man is," Owre said.

And the traffic-signal interior marks the perfect spot for a bird's home.

"Anywhere there are chimneys and crannies and places in the dwellings where they can build,

Once in a while we find little babies or eggs in there, and we don't know what the heck to do with them. I feel really bad sometimes. g they will," Owre said. "This just happens to be an isolated cranny, and that's just fine for them."

The aerial homeites also protect them from most other animals.

Bronson: State inspects only 10 percent of food imports

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Department of Agriculture is inspecting less than 10 percent of food imports for residue of illegal pesticides, Republican Charles Bronson charged Monday.

Bronson, one of three GOP contenders for the Cabinet seat of retiring Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner, said he would like to see at least one-fourth of all agriculture imports screened for DDT and other banned pesticides.

He said Mexico and some South American and Caribbean countries still permit use of pesticides and growth hormones banned in Florida and across the United States.

Bronson, a Brevard County cattleman, said at a news conference that inspectors in Florida ports normally open only one or two freight containers with a shipload of produce or meat enters the country.

He said "only 1 percent of these imports are being inspected for the use of chemicals and pesticides banned in the United States and/or Florida; from this 1 percent, 30 percent is rejected."

Dr. Dan Smyly, director of the chemistry division of the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, said "those sound like federal numbers." He said the Food and Drug Administration, not the state agency, has primary responsibility for inspecting agriculture imports and interstate shipments.

Smyly said the state's laboratories spot-checked 279 samples of food imports last year for pesticide residues and found that 2.5 percent of those inspected had excessive levels of banned chemicals.

Bronson said he could increase state-level inspections without hiring more inspectors or raising taxes by "cross-training of people within the department" and increasing the number of inspections by each currently employed agent.

"I would think a minimum rate of 25 percent should be inspected," said Bronson. "We're not anywhere close to that right now."

NASA probes shuttle leak that grounded space fleet

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI science writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA engineers are considering everything from misaligned fuel tanks to the remote possibility of sabotage to explain the elusive fuel leaks that have grounded the shuttle fleet, officials said Monday.

Agency managers are considering another fueling test for the shuttle Atlantis, possibly as early as this weekend, to pinpoint a tiny leak in the ship's 17-inch-wide fuel line "disconnect" fitting that forced NASA to cancel the ship's launch later this month on a secret military mission.

Engineers said Monday Atlantis's leak does not appear at all similar to the one that grounded Columbia and that another fueling test might show the leakage detected during a test last week showed up only because of the location of a critical sensor and a lack of wind to dilute the concentration.

In California, meanwhile, engineers are preparing to pump frigid liquid hydrogen through disconnect hardware removed from Columbia in a test Thursday to duplicate the much larger leak that forced NASA to cancel the ship's May 30 liftoff.

Regardless of what ultimately may be required to fix the grounded shuttles, engineers say it will be virtually impossible for NASA to launch both Columbia and Atlantis as planned before Discovery's high-priority Oct. 5 flight to carry the Ulysses solar probe into orbit.

"We're right on the edge where two flights no longer fit before Ulysses and we'll be addressing that in the next few days," said William Lenoir, NASA's associate administrator for space flight.

NASA managers are considering the possibility of launching Atlantis before the Ulysses mission, assuming the leak issue is resolved, and then launching Columbia after Discovery.

Columbia was grounded when sensors detected a massive fuel leak during propellant loading the night before the ship's planned launch in May.

A subsequent fueling test showed hydrogen leakage in the engine room as well as in the cavity between the two halves of the 17-inch disconnect fitting, which allows the shuttle's propellant lines to separate before the tank is jettisoned in space.

Hydrogen concentrations higher than the allowable limit of 40,000 parts per million — 4 percent — were detected in the engine compartment and up to 58 percent in the disconnect cavity.

In sharp contrast, no hydrogen leaked into Atlantis's engine room last week during its fueling test and the concentration in the disconnect cavity was around 8 percent.

There was virtually no wind at launch pad 39A for Atlantis's test and engineers could not rule out the possibility that a sensor located very close to a 4-inch hydrogen line in the disconnect fitting was picking up signs of leakage that might otherwise have been within allowable specifications.

Lenoir said five teams have been assembled to look into the design of the 17-inch disconnect fitting, its history, ground processing, assembly techniques and so on to find evidence of anything that could explain the leakage.

"After as many flights as we've had ... all of a sudden two in a row seems more than coincidental," he said. "That seems to weigh against a generic problem that's been there lurking all along. It would seem there's something different that we've either done in manufacturing this hardware or in the way we're using it."

A space shuttle is assembled for launch by bolting the spaceplane to giant fittings on the side of the external fuel tank.

Killer whale blimp to float over Sea World this week

United Press International

ORLANDO — Orlando area residents will see a giant killer whale floating above them sometime soon.

Sea World is using a 250-foot blimp with the likeness of Shamu the killer whale on it as part of an aggressive new market strategy. The blimp is to be delivered later this week, weather permitting.

The four Sea World parks are now owned by Anheuser-Busch, which declined to say how much it would spend on the marketing effort.

Correction

Due to a reporting error, a story appearing in Monday's Sanford Herald misstated information about the Sanford Fire Department.

The department has four licensed paramedics, although they are not allowed to practice for the fire department under present conditions. With a budget increase, according to Assistant Chief Ron Neel, the department would have the equipment and the personnel to have practicing paramedics.

Also, ambulances are not dispatched through area hospitals, but through the Seminole County sheriff's department 9-1-1 emergency system. Neel said only "occasionally" does it take an ambulance seven to 10 minutes to respond to an emergency call.

Hope for victims

The case of Jack Henry Abbott symbolizes the awful failure of America's criminal justice system.

Those who have read the jailhouse author's book, "In the Belly of the Beast," have been horrified and angered by his account of prison conditions. But there is no denying that New York jury's recent award of $7.57 million to the widow of Abbott's latest stabbing victim was a just decision. The ruling greatly advances the cause of compensating crime victims.

Abbott spent most of his troubled life behind bars for a variety of crimes, including the killing of a fellow inmate. In 1961, six weeks after he was paroled with the help of author Norman Mailer, Abbott killed again.

He had been dancing in a New York restaurant and needed to go to the bathroom.

A waiter told him there was none and directed him to an alley. Abbott said he thought he was being set up for assault. The two quarreled and Abbott plunged a knife into the waiter's chest. Abbott said he killed the waiter for "showing me disrespect."

The tragedy of the waiter's death was not adequately addressed until his widow sued Abbott for monetary damages. The stabbing victim was 22-year-old Richard Adan, an aspiring actor who had received good reviews.

His widow, Ricci Adan, contended that her husband suffered a horrible death and that he had a good chance of becoming a successful actor had he lived.

The jury agreed and awarded Adan $6.57 million for the financial loss resulting from her husband's death and $2 million for the pain he suffered after being fatally stabbed.

The award will come in part from the $115,000 Abbott has earned as a writer, as well as from all his future earnings.

The jury's award serves as a model for making criminals accountable for their actions, and signals hope for victims who so often are left to heal their own wounds without compensation.

Crime victims seldom receive the financial compensation that is due them. Civil judgments such as that levied against Abbott are a valid, constructive option that should be applied more often to make the punishment match the crime.

Thanks for saving a tradition

This Fourth of July is going to be a special one as it almost didn't happen this year over Sanford.

I made a plea to the people and businesses about our problem and it took four weeks to get the verdict in. But we will have raised $4,000 for the display.

I learned early in life about hope, dreams, people and hard work — they are the key to success, rather than failure. In our town, "People helpin' people" is what comes to mind from my upbringing here. My parents always showed me if someone or something can use your abilities or experience, then drop all you're doing and lend of yourself. People helped each other this time. We opened the eyes of some and planted a positive seed of the future.

"People helpin' people" — a formula I have yet to deny.

I believe in my town and her traditions and would like to take this time to say thank you all for your help, hard work, dreams and hope.

Thanks to the people, the businesses (APC Fireworks) and our newspaper's assistance, we will see a grand Fourth of July again this year.

People's Fireworks First Annual — see you all there.

Is fear of Japanese growth rational?

It is not enough that Americans succeed; their friends abroad must fail.

Is this to be our new national motto, a tribute to cramped vision and insecurity? Well, it is if economist Robert Reich is to be believed. He says Americans would rather give up a 15 percent hike in wealth than see Japan surpass us in economic power.

Writing recently in The Wall Street Journal, Reich revealed that he had presented to six different groups of people the following options:

A) Between now and the year 2000, the U.S. economy grows by 25 percent but the Japanese economy grows by 75 percent.

B) Between now and the year 2000, our economy grows by 10 percent and Japan's grows by 10.3 percent.

Five of the six groups, including corporate executives, investment bankers and State Department bureaucrats, chose Scenario B. Only a gathering of professional economists voted for A.

At first, I rubbed my eyes upon reading this. Surely Reich's results were skewed by an unusual sample. Why would any sane person give up greater income just to ensure that another country half the world away, a nation he or she will probably never even visit, remains poorer than it otherwise might be?

To test Reich's thesis, I offered the same choice to a number of acquaintances. To my dismay, most labored over the decision, with only a slight majority finally coming out for Scenario A. While they clearly recognized the truly rational choice — maximum growth for each country — they nonetheless feared the prospect of the United States slumping into second place in the economic sweepstakes.

I said the "truly" rational preference. Perhaps that overstates the case. It's always possible that a mighty Japan, engorged on its own success, would abuse its economic power and revert to the brutal bully its neighbors knew and feared before World War II. Far more likely, however, is the prospect that a future burst of growth by Japan would only mean what that country's success (and indeed

It's possible that a mighty Japan would abuse its economic power.

Asia's) has meant for the past 20 years: A profusion of new, better and cheaper products for the advanced world and a rising living standard for all.

People who work hard and smart do the rest of the world a favor. They do themselves a bigger favor, of course, but then why shouldn't they enjoy the lion's share of the rewards?

Some Americans seem to think that other countries have been prospering at our expense. This is nonsense — a medieval economic outlook at best. The truth is that the entire industrialized world has been prospering, ourselves included, but that some countries have done better because they save and invest more.

Short of a transformation of American habits, schools and tax laws, we're not likely to match Japan's rate of progress anytime soon. Perhaps we shouldn't even want to, given that country's unpleasant obsession with financial affairs, as reported, for example, in a recent issue of The Spectator. Not only does Japan's leading financial daily boast 8 million subscribers (compared to the Wall Street Journal's 2 million), even some Shinto shrines issue annual tip sheets on hot stocks.

Meanwhile, the average Japanese household still saves at three times the rate of its American counterpart.

U.S. hypocrites applaud Mandela

WASHINGTON — As Nelson Mandela tours the United States, it is easy — almost too easy — for Americans to feel a smug sense of moral superiority to the apartheid policy that dominated South Africa for far too long and kept Mandela in jail. Less comfortable, but more important, is a candid appraisal of race relations in our own society.

That task has been attempted by an unusual group — not a civil-rights lobby, not a minority organization, but 80 chief executives of major corporations and universities who call themselves the Business-Higher Education Forum. Their report, "Three Realities," drew less attention than it deserved when published earlier this month.

What are the "three realities" that they see? The first is that many minority-group members are succeeding. The black middle class has tripled in size in a generation. More than 40 percent of working-age blacks now are middle class. Nearly half own their own homes. Three years ago, about two out of five black and Hispanic families had incomes over $25,000.

The second reality is that another third of America's minorities live on the margin, with such limited skills and so little education they must scramble to survive. As the report says, "they are falling behind economically and seem to be virtually invisible to our policymakers.... The families of most unskilled workers qualify for little public aid. Many have no health insurance, but they do not qualify for Medicaid." Food stamps and unemployment programs rarely reach them.

The third reality is the one most of us would choose to ignore: the persistence of poverty for three out of ten minority citizens, many of them trapped in an underclass plague of drugs, delinquency and broken families.

The executives found a vivid way to describe the fateful balance in this nation. In the 30 minutes they estimate it will take to read their report, about 250 people will become Americans — 220 born here and 30 immigrants. "In that same 30 minutes, more than 160 young people in the United States will make personal decisions that will affect them for the rest of their lives. Their families, their communities and the entire nation will also live with the consequences.

"Nearly 50 will drop out of school; 85 will commit a violent crime against another human being; 27 teenage girls will give birth, 16 of them out of wedlock."

As successful executives, the authors, led by Steven C. Mason, president of the Mead Corporation, and Clifton R. Wharton, Jr., former president of Michigan State University and now head of the nation's largest private pension fund, are not satisfied to describe the problem and then walk away. They have met already with three members of the Cabinet and key congressmen, as well as their counterparts in the business and academic world. Their agenda suggests some things Americans can do here, when we finish applauding what Mandela has done there.

For those on the margin and those who are not making it at all, they suggest restoring public employment and training programs to the equivalent of their 1980 budget levels. While most of us were being lulled with claims that the "social safety net" was being kept intact, those funds were cut by more than half — from $8.5 billion to $4 billion — and further diminished by inflation.

They also call for full funding of Head Start and its follow-on programs in the elementary grades, which now reach only one-third of the eligible youngsters. They want grants, instead of loans, for low-income students in the first two years of college. And they want families of all low-income students to be told when they enter the seventh grade that if they buckle down to schoolwork, their college costs will be guaranteed.

In their own ballistics, the corporate and college presidents strongly endorse affirmative-action programs and point to model outreach programs which seemingly do bring more blacks and Hispanics onto campuses and into career-track jobs. The decline in the percentage of minority enrollments of the past ten years is neither acceptable nor inevitable, they say.

And they have something important — and unusual — to say about the ways in which big businesses, including universities that often are the largest employers and purchasers in their communities, can help small businesses owned and run by minorities get started and survive. The tools include capital investment, counseling and awarding of franchises. One Chicago bank they cite has helped create job-training and placement programs for 3,000 people, given advice to 1,000 would-be entrepreneurs, and assisted the start up of at least 70 new businesses — and made money in the process.

What these executives are saying is: The challenge is there, but so are the tools to meet it. When the applause for Mandela stops, the test will be how many turn their hands to these tasks.

Less comfortable, but more important, is a candid appraisal of race relations in our own society.

Banks now wary after S&L crisis

WASHINGTON — The savings and loan crisis has given commercial banks the jitters, but consumers are the ones who will suffer from that nervousness.

Consumers enjoyed a lending binge for most of the 1960s. Total consumer loans such as credit cards, auto loans and revolving lines of credit skyrocketed by 35 percent to $716 billion from the end of 1965 to the present.

But with the boom came a small bust for the banks. Delinquencies on consumer loans rose by 14 percent last year alone. The banks are souring on them as the economy shows signs of weakening. Consumer installment loans, particularly home equity loans, are still relatively easy to get, but that easy climate may change as banks look ahead to a possible recession.

The pendulum at banks is undoubtedly swinging from excessive laxity to excessive stringency. Now federal regulators are beginning to worry about banks circling the wagons and saving their loans for only blue-chip customers.

The situation grew dire enough to require a recent closed door meeting among the nation's top banking officials from the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Comptroller of the Currency.

They are all between a rock and a hard place — encouraging availability of money to consumers while pressuring banks not to make any risky loans. The banks are obviously listening to the latter.

Federal Reserve Board officials recently surveyed the nation's banks. More than half responded by saying that they have tightened their standards for lending to small and medium-sized businesses. And almost 30 percent of the banks said they had trimmed the size of credit lines to businesses with annual sales of from $50 million to $250 million.

Against the backdrop of this credit crunch, Federal Reserve officials have been wary about tightening credit in a move to raise interest rates. Even though at times the economic signals have pointed to increased inflation, the Fed knows very well the risks of squeezing the economy any more.

Slower economic growth, or even outright recession, are among those risks. The United States has weathered plenty of downturns, but this time, the specter of a massive commercial bank failure lurks behind that recession. The savings and loan bailout will severely strain the patience and pocketbooks of American taxpayers. They don't need a bank crisis on top of a thrift crisis. Compared to the reckless thrifts, the banks look conservative, but looks can be deceiving. Commercial banks have succumbed to the lure of quick money, too. Due to excessive risk-taking in the past 10 years, commercial banks are now the nervous holders of more than $500 billion in assets that may eventually turn into worthless paper.

Some experts warn that a recession could wipe out the capital of 20 percent of the nation's commercial banks.

Combine that with the wave of bankruptcies that would come in a slow economy, and the nation's banking officials have plenty to be worried about.

The Berlin Wall has crumbled but don't expect the spies to come in from the cold. Intelligence sources tell us that the spy agencies of the East Bloc are quietly reconstituting themselves.

observed. "It's much simpler this way."

Dailey said she felt the phone method for asking questions allowed people to ask questions who might otherwise have shied away from doing so.

"It's easier to ask the questions in this format," she said.

In the past, four representatives from each district travelled to a convention, held the last four years in Tampa, where a similar review and question-and-answer period was done for 288 people representing all the state's school districts.

"It was only administrators," explained Hughes, "not even school board members had the opportunity to attend."

A 77-page summary, which many had feared would not arrive in time to make copies for all in attendance was in the district print shop by 7 a.m. and available for all to use by the 9:30 start.

"It came in the weekend mail," said Hughes, who had expressed concern last week that the 50 people who had been invited to participate would be sharing the four copies of the summary sent by the DOE.

Hughes said each paragraph of the summary would be expanded into a one to two page memorandum and sent to each district beginning next week.

"We'll have full details of each change so we can be sure we are in compliance and we can answer any questions anyone might have," he explained.

Commissioner of Education Betty Castor opened the telecast with half-hearted praises for the legislative session.

"While (this year's legislative session) was a fine team effort," Castor said, "education was held hostage to election year politics."

"No kidding," said one administrator under his breath. "Tell us something we don't know."

Castor applauded the first increase in 50 years of the state's gross receipts tax on utilities services from 1.5 to 2 percent annually. She said that as a result, a "major crisis in facilities construction has been averted." The tax, which is used to finance some school buildings, will increase again to 2.5 percent per year by July 1, 1992.

State officials reiterated they felt Florida was moving ahead into the 21st century with things like advanced computer and satellite technology as well as concepts such as dealing with overcrowding by contracting with big businesses to have school sites for children of employees on the business site.

Buildings used for educational purposes at the business site would be exempt from ad valorem taxes. The business would pay 50 percent of costs to be sure the facility met educational specifications. The DOE and the school district would each pay 25 percent.

For the most part, participants liked the teleconference.

"I think it worked out very well," said Hughes. "It was very efficient this way. We can include much more than administrative people this way."

Hughes also liked the relaxed atmosphere of having the conference at "home" rather than at a site 100 miles away.

Judy Smith, PTA president, liked the opportunity of being included "at this level" of the reporting process.

"I liked being able to hear it straight from DOE and not a watered down version from the district," she said. "There were some things that got past me, but I have the opportunity now to ask the questions I want to ask."

Board member Pat Telson and vice chairman Nancy Warren were the only board representatives in attendance. Telson said she was not impressed with the teleconference.

"First of all I am not a television person," she said. "I like dealing with people and this is like dealing with a machine. I don't like this at all."

proposals, that tax rate would increase to about $5.89 per $1,000.

The owner of an average home in Seminole County valued at $75,000 taking a $25,000 homestead exemption is paying taxes on $50,000. This year, that homeowner paid $227.50 in county taxes. Next year, the same homeowner will likely pay $284.50, a $57 increase.

Neiswender said a major reason for the current budget problems is commissioners have increased taxes only once during the last 10 years, relying instead on new construction and revaluations of existing property to boost county revenues each year.

"The commission has not addressed the major problem," Neiswender said. "Historically, you've paid for growth using existing revenues. You've been pulling back and tightening down. It has brought us to the point where there is no internal flexibility without increases in external revenue sources or major cuts internally."

Neiswender said residents of Seminole County don't want further cuts in county services if they would not maintain the same quality of life they have come to expect. He said there may be some cuts in the building department and other construction-related services, coupled with fee increases to make up an approximately $1 million deficit caused by a slowdown of construction in the county.

In addition, Neiswender said the county has relied heavily on cash reserves to maintain services, depleting those "rainy day" funds to low levels. Because reserves and other revenues have reduced, the amount of interest earned on those dollars have also reduced, Neiswender said.

As revenues have decreased, expenses have increased. The shift to a new automated telephone system caused an increase in county telephone costs. Two new judicial seats will cost the county more money for additional staff and support services for those judges.

The county's catastrophic incident insurer, Lloyds of London, has requested the county to increase their liability and property coverage by $1.7 million, which will be done during the next three years. The state has also increased the rate the county must pay for its employees' retirement. County employee health and life insurance will increase an estimated 30 percent above last year's rate.

State requirements that county services must be available concurrent with population growth will force the county to speed up road and other construction projects. Coupled with new staff and other expenditures needed to monitor growth in the county, Neiswender said the county will have to spend $757,472 this year. That amount will increase significantly next year, he said.

"This is just the toe in the water view of the kinds of things needed for the (growth) plan," Neiswender said.

To avoid an even higher tax increase, Neiswender recommended trimming some requests. Sheriff John Palk requested a total of 43 new positions, including 18 deputies and five investigators.

Neiswender said senior county officials recommend hiring eight deputies and three investigators among the 18 new positions.

Neiswender also did not include the $1.2 million rescue helicopter requested by Gary Kaiser, director of public safety. Neiswender said if commissioners want to buy the helicopter, they should be prepared to increase the tax rate by another three cents per $1,000 this year and possibly higher next year.

Kaiser said $300,000 of the helicopter's cost will be paid from a donation from Heathrow originally made towards the purchase of a ladder fire truck.

Kaiser said the helicopter could be used for more rescues than a ladder truck. A county helicopter would be able to deliver a trauma victim from Geneva to Orlando Regional Medical Center within 30 minutes of receiving the emergency call, compared to over 50 minutes for an ambulance. Kaiser said in trauma cases, the chances of survival decrease rapidly after 60 minutes.

Kaiser said after the initial purchase, maintenance and operations would cost about the same as the expenses for a ladder truck with a three-man crew.

Neiswender did recommend increasing the number of men on county fire trucks from two to three. Kaiser said more lives and property can be saved by having an extra pair of hands on each truck. Also, should one of the men on the truck have to accompany a victim in an ambulance, the engine could still be operated with the remaining two men. Engines are taken out of commission if one of the two men is taken off now, Kaiser said.

Neiswender also said the tax proposal doesn't include revenues for children's programs. Last week, commissioners said they would pay for up to $900,000 in programs to help needy children. Neiswender said taxes would have to be raised another 13 cents per $1,000 to pay for all the grants recommended by the county Commission on Children. County commissioners said many of the recommendations are duplicated in other county grant requests so the tax increase can be trimmed.

agree with the rest of them because I have compassion for people who will be out of work. I didn't say a whole lot about it today, but I will say this tomorrow at the meeting. We have to make some tough decisions. This is not going to be easy, but I don't think that one mill will sink the city of Sanford."

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan also said that to exclude the tax increase, jobs would have to be cut.

"Personnel is about 70 percent of the budget," McClanahan said. "Sure we're going to have to cut some people if we don't want taxes to go up." McClanahan could not say which positions might be cut.

Faison said if the tax increase was not included in the city's financial plans, he would have to submit an alternative proposal to cover a $618,000 loss in the city's more than $22 million budget.

"I'll develop two or three scenarios," Faison told the commission. Asked when he would develop the new proposal, Faison said he would be working late, Monday night.

"I'll have to have the new proposals coming off the printer at about 8 (Tuesday) morning."

Faison also said some positions would have to be cut if taxes did not increase from 6.87 mills to 7.87 mills, but would not say which positions.

In other business, the commission held off on the decision of whether to freeze at least two vacancies in the police department until after they considered alternative budget proposals.

Police Chief Steve Harriett asked the commission not to freeze the positions.

"We have had two people go recently," Harriett said. "I don't think it would be good for morale to see those positions frozen — which amounts to a cut. We need to keep active police officers on the streets."

Arguing in favor of a strong police force, Harriett said the

WORLD BRIEFS

Mandela starts London stay

LONDON — South African black leader Nelson Mandela today fired the opening salvo of his stay in Britain by calling on the world to fight the "poison of racism" by upholding sanctions against South Africa, a stance opposed by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The deputy president of the African National Congress arrived in Britain late Monday, facing a furor over his comment during a trip to Ireland that London should hold peace talks with the Irish Republican Army.

The suggestion was firmly rejected by Thatcher, and aroused a rare display of unity across the political spectrum, with numerous public figures declaring Mandela was misguided to compare the IRA with other armed groups.

African officials to discuss problems

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — Foreign ministers from 50 African countries gathered today for a week-long meeting to discuss Africa's crushing external debt, regional conflicts and the fear that needed foreign aid will go to Eastern Europe.

Their final recommendations were to be presented to the Organization of African Unity heads of state summit meeting opening in the Ethiopian capital next Monday.

Iran cancels celebrations

TEHRAN, Iran — Iran canceled celebrations for a major Islamic festival set for today because of last month's earthquake, but planned to mark the anniversary of the accidental downing of an Iranian airliner by a U.S. Navy cruiser.

Pilgrims die in Mecca stampede

United Press International

CAIRO, Egypt — Thousands of Muslims on a pilgrimage to the holy city of Mecca crammed into a pedestrian tunnel leading to the Saudi city, suffocating and crushing to death an undetermined number of people, state-run Riyadh radio reported.

The Saudi radio report, monitored in Cairo, quoted a source at the Saudi Interior Ministry as saying "thousands of pilgrims" Monday squeezed into the Moassim tunnel near Mecca, the Muslim world's major religious center about 500 miles southwest of the Saudi capital of Riyadh.

The source said ambulances were sent to remove the victims and treat pilgrims who fainted in the crush.

Witnesses quoted by the Singapore Broadcasting Corp. and Singapore newspapers said an apparent power failure Monday interrupted the ventilation system and people crammed into the 500-yard tunnel panicked at the loss of oxygen in the sweltering heat.

Muslim pilgrims must pass through the Moassim tunnel on their way to Mount Arafat, about 8 miles from Mecca, where the Prophet Mohammed, the founder of Islam, was born and is said to have delivered his last sermon 14 centuries ago.

The pilgrimage came at the end of the Feast of Sacrifice, marking when the Prophet Abraham offered his son Ismael for sacrifice to God.

The source did not say how many pilgrims were killed in the incident, but Riyadh radio said Interior Minister Prince Nayef ibn Abdul Aziz would broadcast a detailed statement on Saudi television Tuesday.

A U.S. Embassy official in Riyadh said he had no direct information on the situation in Mecca, where an estimated 1.5 million Muslims were completing the annual pilgrimage.

"We have no confirmed figures (of casualties)," said political officer Paul Wickberg. "We have some people (in Mecca), but we have not heard from them."

One Gulf-based Western diplomat said "several hundred pilgrims are believed to have been killed," but his estimate could not be confirmed.

Shevardnadze won't run for Communist Politburo

United Press International

MOSCOW — Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Tuesday he will not run again for the Politburo, further diluting the importance of the Soviet Communist Party's once supreme policy-making body.

But Politburo hard-liner Yegor Ligachev said the 28th Communist Party Congress meeting at the Kremlin would decide who would hold the party's top posts and criticized Shevardnadze's Foreign Ministry for letting Eastern European nations flee communist rule in the last year.

"This does not strengthen, but weakens our position," Ligachev told reporters during a break on the second day of the Congress.

Shevardnadze, 62, one of President Mikhail Gorbachev's closest advisers, opened the session by telling the 4,657 delegates in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses that times have changed.

"I consider that it is not necessary for a minister to sit in the Politburo and in the Presidential Council and in the Defense Council and in various other organs," he said.

Shevardnadze, who was on the Politburo when Gorbachev was elevated to leadership in 1985, now is a member of the more influential 16-member Presidential Council.

There are currently 11 full members of the Politburo, which until Gorbachev's change in March to a presidential system, was the country's most important body and an inner sanctum of power rarely pierced by publicity.

Alexander Yakovlev, 66, intellectual "godfather" of perestroika and Gorbachev's other closest adviser, implied Monday he too would give up his top party posts.

In another surprise Tuesday, Shevardnadze criticized any change to private property in the Soviet state — a key element in the economic reforms designed to get the country moving.

"Public property units, while private property divides," he said.

In a speech to the Congress, Ligachev initiated the battle between advocates of change and conservatives, disputing Yakovlev's claim Monday that perestroika was "unstoppable" and would "go on with the party or without it."

Aquino upholds Marcos exile after acquittal

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino said she was "disappointed" that a New York jury acquitted Imelda Marcos of racketeering charges, but stood firm on a decision banning her return to the country.

In a statement issued after the decision in New York Monday — Tuesday morning in Manila — Aquino said she was sorry to hear that the "courageous efforts made by the American prosecution ... have not succeeded."

"We are disappointed but respect and accept the decision of jury," Aquino said.

UNEXPLAINED WEIGHT LOSS PUZZLES SCIENTISTS

FINLAND — The unexpected weight loss experienced by members of a test group has puzzled medical researchers at a leading Finnish university. Scientists were testing a naturally-occurring compound for its ability to lower blood cholesterol levels when, to their surprise, they found that every person who took the formula had lost a significant amount of weight.

The formula was then tested at another prestigious European university hospital. Again, all patients lost weight even though they did not change their eating habits. The report detailing this study, published in the British Journal of Nutrition, stated: "Body weight was significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits."

This woman reportedly lost 134 pounds while on the formula.

While it is still not entirely clear how the formula induces weight loss, some scientists believe this compound actually alters the way the body digests food: when taken before mealtime it bonds with food and suppresses calorie absorption. Unabsorbed calories would pass through and out of the digestive system.

The formula is marketed in capsule form in the United States under the trade name Cal-Ban 3000. A firm located in Tampa, Florida has exclusive North American distribution rights to Cal-Ban 3000. A company spokesman reported that the formula is 100% natural and has been clinically tested for safety. Review of the customer files of this company revealed the names of hundreds of people who have lost as much as 20, 40 or 80 or more pounds overall with Cal-Ban 3000. This appears to be a golden opportunity for people who are plagued by fat and cellulite that they can't seem to lose by conventional methods.

Cal-Ban 3000 is reasonably priced at $19.95 for a 3-week supply and $38.95 for a 6-week supply. Postage and handling is $3. VISA, M/C, AMEX and COD orders are accepted. To order call TOLL-FREE 1-800-537-3723 or purchase locally at:

Thigpen, Fisk lift Sox

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox keep inventing ways to win.

Carlton Fisk singled home pinch runner Craig Grebeck from second base with one out in the ninth inning Monday night, giving the White Sox a 5-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The win was an encore to Sunday's 4-0 defeat of New York despite being no-hit by the Yankees' Andy Hawkins.

Fisk's hit made a winner of Bobby Thigpen, 4-2, who pitched the final 1 1/3 innings. Chicago won for the 10th time in its last 11 games and remained percentage points ahead of the Oakland Athletics atop the AL West.

Elsewhere in the AL on Monday, Boston trimmed Texas 3-2; Oakland bested Toronto 3-2; California shaded Cleveland 2-1; and Kansas City thumped New York 11-5.

Speedway makes moves

DAYTONA BEACH — International Speedway Corp., which operates tracks at Daytona Beach and Talladega, Ala., Monday announced two senior executives will assume new responsibilities July 15.

Jim Foster, 63, Executive Vice-President for Corporate Communications, will become president of Daytona International Speedway. John Cooper, 57, ISC Vice-President and current president of Daytona International Speedway, becomes ISC's Director of Corporate Development.

ISC also operates tracks in Darlington, S.C. and Tucson, Ariz., and is a partner in New York's Watkins Glen International.

YBOA tourney underway

ORLANDO — The Youth Basketball Organization of America's girls' 12-and-under national championship tournament tipped off Monday at Walker Middle School in Orlando.

Local representatives SBA Kemper didn't fare well on the first day of the tournament, falling to the Seattle Magic 49-20. In other games Monday, Kenner (Ia.) whipped the Kutis Kewpies (St. Louis, Mo.) 49-10 and Southern West Virginia hammered ICBA Florida 75-39.

Today's schedule kicks off at 1 p.m., when Kenner (Ia.) plays ICBA Florida. The Kutis Kewpies face Southern West Virginia at 2:15 p.m. before SBA Kemper takes on the Oviedo Tigers at 3:45 p.m. This evening's 5 p.m. contest pits the Seattle Magic against the Kutis Liners (St. Louis, Mo.).

WORLD CUP

Italy, Argentina square off

NAPLES, Italy — In some respects, Neapolitans can't lose Tuesday when Italy plays defending champion Argentina in the World Cup semifinals.

If Italy wins, they celebrate their national team going to the final. If Argentina wins, they can bask in the glory of Diego Maradona, their adopted No. 1 son.

Maradona is as popular as pizza in Naples and the people revere him almost as much as Santa Lucia. Since joining the Italian club team Napoli in 1984, Maradona has brought soccer pride to this often degraded city. When Napoli won the league title this season, people partied in the streets all night.

Maradona realizes most fans in San Paolo Stadium will be pulling for Italy, but he knows he won't be mistreated as he was in Milan and Florence, where fans howled at him during the World Cup.

Pirates prevail in 14 innings

SAN DIEGO — Jay Bell singled home Jose Lind with one out in the 14th inning Monday night to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the slumping San Diego Padres, who have dropped six straight.

Lind opened the 14th with a double off Calvin Schiraldi, 2-1, and scored one out later, when Bell singled sharply to center.

Bob Patterson, 5-3, who entered the game to start the 12th, worked three innings of hitless relief and struck out four.

Bell added a run-scoring single and Andy Van Slyke homered for the Pirates, who overcame a 3-0 deficit to notch their third straight win.

Elsewhere in the NL on Monday night, Philadelphia beat Houston 5-1; Atlanta kicked Montreal 6-3; San Francisco edged St. Louis 3-2; and Los Angeles knocked off Chicago 3-1.

SBA Magic open with wins

Victories put locals within reach of championship round

From staff reports

Thanks to a pair of wins on the first day of pool play, the Sunshine Basketball Association Magic are on the verge of qualifying for the championship round of the AAU/Carrrier Boys' 11-and-Under National Championship Basketball Tournament.

The 41-team field, featuring teams from all over the country, is broken down into eight pools. Each team plays all the others in its pool, the top two teams in each pool advancing to the double-elimination championship round.

On Monday at Oviedo High

School, the SBA Magic — who draw their players from the Seminole County area — topped Indiana Silver 56-33 in the first game of the day, then came back to beat Oklahoma 43-31 in the nightcap.

Today at 8:40 p.m., the Magic will try to go to 3-0 when they play North Carolina Silver at Oviedo High School. The last pool game for the Magic will be at 10:20 a.m. Wednesday morning against Virginia Silver at Lake Howell High School.

In other games played at Oviedo on Monday, Minnesota whipped New Mexico 46-15, Southeastern-Tennessee overcame Georgia 53-47, Potomac Valley Gold edged West Virginia 36-35 and Oregon thumped Pacific-California 55-24.

At Lake Brantley High School, North Carolina Silver bested Virginia Silver 47-29, Iowa beat Virginia Gold 50-44, Utah nailed New England-New Hampshire 53-36, Pacific Northwest Gold embarrassed Alaska 48-8, Southeastern-Alabama knocked off Florida Gold Coast 41-21 and Indiana Silver dunked Virginia Silver 43-28.

At Lake Howell High School, North Carolina Gold popped Western Pennsylvania 45-29, Ohio drilled Ozark Gold 68-27, Arkansas Gold spanked Pacific Northwest Silver 57-39, Arkansas Silver took care of Pacific Southwest 67-43 and Indiana Bronze bested Wisconsin Gold 50-45.

At Apopka High School, Maryland thrashed Florida Silver (Gainesville) 68-19, Inland Empire Gold stopped Wisconsin Silver 51-42, Southern-Louisiana shaded Potomac Valley Silver 33-31, Indiana Gold stomped Ozark Silver 55-27 and Florida Gold (Orlando) tipped Inland Empire Silver 50-35.

Today's schedule has Florida Silver from Gainesville taking on Arkansas Gold at 7:20 p.m. at Oviedo High School. Florida Gold of Orlando meets Ozark Silver tonight at 7:20 p.m. at Lake Brantley High School.

Play at all four sites will pick up again this afternoon at 2 p.m. Admission is $5 per day, $2 for students or children under 17. There is a $15 tournament pass good for all games all week.

Chris Nickle (No. 8) earned the congratulations of his Auto Body Centers teammates by hitting an inside-the-park home run in an 11-2 blowout of the Boomtown Boys on Monday night at Chase Park.

Auto Body Centers, TRC keep pace

From staff reports

SANFORD — Both Auto Body Centers and the Tim Raines Connection romped to wins on Monday night at Chase Park to stay tied for first in the Sanford Recreation Department's Monday Night Super "C" Slowpitch Softball League.

In the first game, Auto Body Centers turned a first-inning 2-1 deficit into an 11-2 blowout of the Boomtown Boys by scoring at least one run in six of seven innings. TRC shut out the Regulators for the first six innings enroute to an 11-1 victory.

Auto Body Centers and TRC, who were to play last week but were rained out, are both 3-0. The Regulators, who beat the Boomtown Boys 3-2 in the only game played last week, are 1-3 while the Boomtown Boys are now 0-4.

Terry Russi paced Auto Body Center's 24-hit attack against the Boomtown Boys last night, ripping a trio of triples and scoring a pair of runs. David Goldstick hit a home run and two singles while Chris Nickle homered and hit one single for ABC. Both Goldstick and Nickle scored two runs.

Also contributing for ABC were Ken Oswald (three singles, two runs scored), Joe Ervin and David Blackwell (both with three singles and one run scored), Rick Perkins and Chuck Lamb (two singles each), Terrell Ervin (single, one run scored) and Paul Payne and Jason Miller (one single each).

For the Boomtown Boys, Bill Jenkins singled twice and scored once while Kelly Hysell singled and scored a run. Richie Pilhorn hit two singles, Steve Arthur doubled and John Oliva, Dave Bixby, Mike Greenwood and Rick Morales each hit one single.

In the nightcap, Levi Raines was 4 for 4 with a double and two runs scored to lead TRC. Rod Turner had three singles and scored two runs while Keith Acee singled three times and scored once. Burnett Washington also had three singles.

Other contributors for TRC were Robert Stevens (triple, single, run scored), Sam Raines (triple, run scored), Tony Dunkinson (two singles, one run scored), Otis Raines (two singles), Jimmy Stuckey and Greg Hardy (each with a single and a run scored), Fred Washington (single) and Eddie Jackson (one run scored).

JGA bids farewell to Alhambra

From staff reports

ORLANDO — On January 1, 1991, Alhambra Country Club will close its doors and become part of the beltway project. So, on Monday, the Junior Golf Association of Orlando traveled through the par-72, 6,500-layout for the last time.

For some, the wide-open course offered relief after playing two tough courses (Dubsdread and Windermere) the first two weeks of the seven-event circuit. But for others, high rough and rock-hard greens created another week of havoc and high scores.

Once again, one trophy was handed for low gross and four for low net (net scores will be listed).

Seminole County fared well again in first flight with Mike Berzovich shooting a 77 to tie Nathan Oberly for first place but losing in a playoff. Garrett Morrison shot a 72 for third place while Rex Holland shot a 79.

Edgewater's Cohlun Cone won the second flight while Andy Braddock shot a 75 for second place. Steve Johnson placed third, shooting a 79. Oviedo's Brent Nelson came in fourth with a 81. Edward Bigoss finished fifth (82).

Oviedo sophomore Jason Roby broke out of a two-week slump by taking third flight with his best score 83. Bill Lovett posted an 88 to take second while David Bailey shot a 90 for third. Andrew Vernon posted a 95 for fourth place and Steve Varndt had a 97 for fifth.

Michael Hoelle finished with a 90 for first place in fourth flight. Jason Reynolds came through with an 86 for second place and Eric Leiger followed with an 89 for third. Taylor Wright and Scott Boone tied for fourth place, Boone prevailing in a playoff.

Ricky Slodsky triumphed in a playoff over Justin English to win first place in the fifth flight. Both shot 49. Ryan Pirke came in third (39). Brent Fannin finished fourth (40) and Jason Martin fifth (41).

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — Although rain moistened the ground, it could not dampen the spirits of the participants on the first night of the Lake Mary Summer Track Series at Lake Mary High School on Monday.

All-in-all, 35 athletes showed up for the rain-soaked event, which was delayed a half-hour due to a steady drizzle. When the rain let up, the group hit up the track with their times in the 50-yard, 100-meter, 220-yard, 440-yard, 880-yard and mile races.

"I think the weather kept a lot of people away," said Lake Mary track coach and meet organizer Mike Gibson. "That's not bad for a Monday night. I think they'll be more next week. There was some good competition and I think everybody had a good time."

Leading the way was five-year-old Tommy Ketterer, who won every event in which he competed, including a 6-2 effort in the long jump, a 10.7 time in the 50-yard dash, and a 2:13 mark in the 100-meter. Mike Gibson Jr. placed second in four events; the 50, 100, 220, and 880-yard runs. Willie Calloway Jr. finished third in 50-yard and 100-meter dashes and second in the 440.

In the 6-7 girls' group, four participants — Rebecca Colon, Chessie Keresnbroc, Eileen Ketterer and Shalonda Calloway — all turned in good performances. Colon won the 50, 100, and 220 while Keresnbroc took the long jump with a leap of 8.2. Ketterer placed second in several events, including the long jump (17.0) and the 50-yard dash (8.7). Calloway won the 880 in 4:25.0, was second in the 100-meter and 440-yard dashes and third in both the long jump and 50-yard dash.

Joel Wean was the only participant in the 6-7 boys' division. In his three events, he had a 5:11 long jump, ran the 50 in 9.7 in the 50 and had 19.6 in the 100-meter.

In the girls' 8-9 division, Tiffany Gibson prevailed in two events, as did Brittany Baker. Baker won the 50 and 100 (8.1 and 13.7 respectively) while Gibson took the 220 and 880 (46.1 and 3:39.5, respectively).

David Wean won four events in the boys' 8-9 group, going 9-1 in the long jump, ran 8.2 in the 50, 16.3 in the 100 and 42.3 in the 220.

Sharse Barnes dominated the 10-11 girls' division, winning the long jump, 50, 100, 220, and 440 events. She had a 12-8 attempt in the long jump.

Ben Kersecbroc, Brian Ketterer, Dennis Platt and Mark Robertson all did well in the 10-11 boys' group. Kersecbroc won the long jump and the 50-yard dash while Ketterer won the mile run (6:47.8). Platt placed second in one event and third in another and Ben Ketterer won the 100-yard dash. Robertson won the 880.

For the 12-13 girls, Kala Henderson came in first in long jump (13.0), 50-yard dash (6.7), 100-meter (12.7), 440 (1:30.6) and 220 (30.7). Tami Schlessinger finished second in the long jump (10-2) and 50-yard dash (8.5). Amanda Robertson won the 880 with a time of 3:33.0 as well as the mile in 7:51.6.

Josh Wean went home with three second-place finishes and two victories, one in the 220 and the other in the 440. Brad Baker won the long jump, 50-yard dash and 100-meter.

Jonelle Weinman took two events in the girls' 14-15 division, winning the long jump with a leap of 12-3 and running the 50-yard dash in 6.9. Brett Mackie won the mile (8:20.8) and the 880 (3:33). Heather Vaughn came in second in the long jump (12-6) and 50-yard dash (7.4). Leslie Citarella placed third in the long jump (12-3).

Steve Platt won the only event for 14-15 boys, leaping 12-10 in the long jump.

Karrie Schlessinger ripped through three events — the long jump, the mile, and the 880 — in the 16-17 girls' division. She jumped 8-10 in the long jump and ran a 7:30.1 mile.

Counseling may reverse Impotence in AIDS patient

DEAR DR. GOTT: Since finding out two years ago I was HIV positive, I have been unable to achieve an erection. I'm taking Retrovir. My doctor thinks it's psychological. What do you think?

DEAR READER: Your impotence is probably psychological and, perhaps, could be helped by counseling.

The knowledge that one is infected with HIV (human immunodeficiency virus - the presumed cause of AIDS) can be a shattering emotional catastrophe that often affects sexual interest and performance. Psychological intervention and counseling may improve your symptoms.

Retrovir (zidovudine) is marketed as a potent inhibitor of HIV. Although there is considerable controversy about its use, a recent article in the New England Journal of Medicine (April 5, 1990) reported that HIV-infected patients without symptoms of AIDS were helped by this therapy. The drug's primary side effects were nausea, anemia, headache, insomnia and rash; impotence was not reported.

Therefore, I suggest you follow your doctor's advice about therapy and follow-up - and consider obtaining counseling.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood - AIDS." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've heard of a new medicine that takes the place of castration in patients with prostate cancer. What is it?

DEAR READER: Prostatic cancer is often worsened by the presence of testosterone (male hormone); therefore, treatment of advanced prostatic malignancies may include castration, removal of the major sources of natural testosterone. For obvious reasons, most men do not welcome this type of surgery. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration recently approved a new drug that reduces testosterone levels in the body. Called Zoladex (goserelin), it is administered monthly by injection and has been shown to decrease tumor size and to alleviate pain when the prostatic cancer has spread to bone. The major side effects are hot flashes.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Many-time national champion Bill Root is considered by many to be the best bridge teacher in the world. His latest book, "How to Play a Bridge Hand," certainly ranks him as one of the best writers. This week we will look at some of his examples of how to block the opponents' communications to facilitate making the contract. West led the king of diamonds against four spades. East had supported diamonds and followed with the three-spot, showing an odd number of cards in the suit. So West switched to a heart, hoping that East could win a heart trick and play back a club. That left it up to declarer, who could certainly hope that East might hold the queen of clubs. But there was a better play. Declarer rose with dummy's heart ace and played queen of diamonds from dummy, pitching his jack of hearts. West won and led a spade. Declarer won in dummy, ruffed a heart with a high trump, and led a spade to dummy's ace. Another heart ruff set up the heart suit, and declarer could get back to the queen of spades to take three good heart tricks. Had West made the more obvious play of another high diamond at trick two, it would have been necessary for South to throw a heart away on that diamond. After that approach, with the hearts splitting 3-2, four spades would still make.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 4, 1990

Your social contacts will take on greater significance in the year ahead than they have in the past. Friends will be in positions to do things for you that you've been able to do for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) People you'll be involved with today will sense an extra dimension to your personality. It's plus quality that could make you a leader among your peers. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a considerable amount of inner resolve upon which to draw today. These strength factors will give you an edge in developments where you have to compete against others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you may have an opportunity to strengthen a friendship that has been faltering a bit lately. Your pal is equally as eager to lighten bonds as you are.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Base your decisions today pertaining to financial matters on factors you know from personal experience have worked previously. If they were winner before, they can be again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your leadership qualities will be very evident to others today and people you're involved with will wish to please you, but not because they are commanded to do so.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things you unselfishly do for others today will produce unsought advantages for you as well. Benefits come from leaning on the arms of people you help.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to spend time today with persons whose company you truly enjoy. This could be a mix of family members and friends. Put the social package together yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Ambitious objectives have a better chance of being achieved today than they will tomorrow. Try to keep this in mind as you arrange your agenda.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The opening for which you've been hoping with a social contact might present itself today. It will give you an opportunity to delineate a plan you've been considering which could include this person.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could be extremely skillful today in perceiving and helping others make changes that can improve critical conditions which have been negatively affecting them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be reluctant to take a firm stance today on an issue about which you feel you know more than your companions. They too can become enlightened supporters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Material trends look rather attractive for you today. There is a strong possibility you will experience some type of personal gain. Keep your eyes and ears open.

Feds open fifth airline probe

By DAN SANNONAL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department disclosed that it has added a new facet to its "broadly based" review of possible antitrust violations by major U.S. airlines, bringing the number of current investigations to five.

James Rill, chief of the department's antitrust division, told reporters Monday his unit is examining "a particular agreement" between air carriers, but would not elaborate.

Asked about Rill's comment, Justice Department spokesman Joseph Krovicky said a fifth airline antitrust investigation had been opened, but said he could not provide any details.

Four other airline antitrust investigations already had been made public.

"I can only confirm the investigation is rather broadly based," Rill said, adding the department has committed considerable resources to the antitrust examination.

Air transport "is a very important area of the economy" and deserves special scrutiny, he said.

Rill said the government is examining possible violations of antitrust law involving an industry-owned computer network, overwhelming domination of "hub" airports by single carriers, and a round of price increases just before last Christmas.

Another investigation that became public in 1988 involves United Air Lines, which purchased and sold various gates at Chicago's O'Hare airport. That investigation is continuing, Krovicky said.

Moore admits Barry said 'no' seven times

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The woman who lured Mayor Marion Barry into an FBI drug sting acknowledged that Barry declined to smoke crack cocaine seven times on the night of his arrest and said the mayor "was suspicious of something."

Former model and government witness Raaheda Moore testified under cross-examination Monday in U.S. District Court that Barry reluctantly smoked crack before his arrest, but denied contentions Barry was a novice drug user.

Defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy questioned Moore for a second day about the 83-minute FBI videotape of the Jan. 18 sting operation at the downtown Vista International Hotel, trying to prove Barry was enticed to use drugs.

Barry, 54, faces 14 drug and perjury counts stemming from the arrest and subsequent indictments. He could face 28 years in prison and $1.85 million in fines if convicted on all counts.

At one point on the FBI videotape, Barry is heard telling Moore, his former lover, "I don't smoke no more, honey."

Moore asked him, "You don't want to smoke?" Barry responded, "No."

Mundy went through a transcript of the videotape with Moore, pointing out time after time he said Barry rejected drugs. Mundy repeatedly got Moore to acknowledge Barry had, in his words, answered "no" when asked to use drugs.

"He said 'no' seven times," said Mundy.

"That's correct," responded Moore.

The prosecution witness said Barry appeared uncomfortable in the hotel room and was lying when he said he did not know how to use a crack pipe.

The videotape, shown in court last week, shows Barry picking up a crack pipe and asking how it worked, adding "I never done it before."

Julie McGhee shows Vicky Pakovic a new way to style her hair.

Let Julie Help You Like Your Hair

Julie McGhee is a stylist at Merle Norman/Fascinations in the Winn Dixie Town Square. With twelve years experience and a few miles under her belt, she has been licensed in Minnesota, North Dakota, Texas and Florida; Julie has developed a common sense, no nonsense approach to hair styling.

"You wear your hair everyday, whether you like it or not. I can help you like it." This is the motto Julie has adopted. And with her background and training, she ought to be able to live up to her motto.

Julie has owned her own salon, managed a franchise salon and a private salon. Not satisfied with her basic training, Julie has continued her education by attending various hair shows, the biggest being the 1984 Hair Olympics in Las Vegas.

seminars held by internationally known hair-dressers, and in-shop training programs.

Julie specializes in mens and womens cuts, perms, colors and braids. She also is experienced in facial waxing and ear piercing.

Julie uses and recommends the Aveda line (made in Minneapolis). Aveda products are made of herbs and flowers. Julie likes to do clarifying and conditioning scalp massages using Aveda products.

Merle Norman/Fascinations also carries a full line of Merle Norman, Paul Mitchell and Nexxus products.

Northwest Airlines said to be angling to buy Eastern

WASHINGTON — Northwest Airlines is considering the purchase of troubled Eastern Air Lines and is to meet with Eastern's unions to determine if the carrier's labor problems can be solved, it was reported today.

The Washington Post, citing sources, reported that representatives of the International Association of Machinists met Monday to discuss the problems of integrating Eastern employees into Northwest as a prelude to a meeting later this week between Northwest Chairman Alfred A. Checchi and John Peterpaul, vice president of the IAM.

The Post quoted Northwest spokesman Doug Miller as saying the Minnesota-based airline is examining all its options for growth and expansion. "We are not in a position to discuss the options we are reviewing, nor should anyone conclude that such an examination will lead to a transaction," he said.

The newspaper said Northwest approached Eastern trustee Martin Shugrue about buying some of the Miami-based carrier's airport gates in Atlanta and some of its maintenance facilities but was rebuffed.

Shugrue, who was appointed by the bankruptcy court last April to replace Frank Lorenzo and his management team, "made it very clear that parts of the airline are not for sale. It is the whole airline," the newspaper said.

The Post said another source said of a sale, "It's going to be the whole system."

Creditors apparently feel Eastern cannot survive on its own and that a sale is the only way they can recoup their money. "I think the creditors' group hopes it can be sold," a source said.
