Skylab America's first space station rocketed away from earth today to serve as a giant "cabin in the sky" for nine astronauts in the next eight months.

The first three-man crew is ready to ride another rocket into space to link up with the station, which is as large as a three bedroom house, for a record 28 orbital mission.

The Skylab one astronauts - Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz — watched from three miles away as a 33story Saturn 5 rocket thundered skyward to

Also observing were members of the Skylab 2 and 3 crews, each of which is to inhabit the station for 56 days later in the year. It was the final planned flight for the Saturn 5

The information also may have far-reaching consequences in bringing benefits from space to mankind, expecially in the survey of earth's hidden natural resources.

Donald K. Slayton, director of flight crew operations, said Sunday that Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz are "fully trained, confident and looking forward to getting the big one off tomorrow and riding the little one on Tuesday.'

Both South Africa and the Soviet Union, the two largest producers of gold, are withholding fresh supplies of the metal from the market, adding to the upward pressure on the price. Gold was traded in Zurich in a range of $99.50-

$100.50 briefly, then eased slightly to $99-$100. The $100 range was reached shortly after the five main dealers had fixed the price at $99.75, an indicative figure to show the level at which the dealers described as large and believe the metal will be traded.

The Zurich market was hit by a flood of buying orders from small investors, dealers said. Small operators generally consider gold safer in times of monetary turmoil, and the slump in the dollar last week apparently sent them into bullion.

A Changing World

A Shining Hour On A National Dark Day And

The free press of America is enjoying its finest hour in the Watergate and associated conspiracies, and this means the free people of the nation also are enjoying their finest hour.

This is so despite the anguish, the disgrace and the sickening aspects of this most stupid crime and the fact that it has reached into several departments of the government and the highest circles in the White House.

There are those who say Watergate is a minor part of government performance, that it has run its course and that the time has come to turn to more important things.

However, the dishonesty in high places represented by Watergate is not a minor affair. There has been the arrogance of those close to the horrible affair - and there has been the persistence of the press, this persistence finally producing, nine months after the inept burglary and bugging attempt, President Nixon's speech in which he said, "I discounted the stories in the press...I remained convinced that the denials were true and that the charges of involvement by members of the White House staff were false ... ' During those nine months the press, par-

Bankers are trying to rearrange matters so that the prime interest rates have less psychological and fiscal influence. That influence, however, was painfully visible when a host of commercial banks raised the prime rate from 61/4 per cent to 63/4 per cent. An immediate tremor was visible in the stock market and nervous trading partners abroad quivered. Also significant was the reaction of the Federal Reserve Board which immediately summoned bankers to apply pressure on them to rescind the

Tax Reforms Adminstration Bill Commendable

If there is any unanimity on the complex and painful subject of taxation it usually is embodied in the thought that no rejiggering of formulas - tax reforms -- is going to be met with universal acclaim. Americans pay their tithes to government with remarkable conscientiousness but not

In this context, it was not surprising that a chorus of opposition immediately greeted the administration's suggestions for federal tax reforms. Of particular interest was the opposition of Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which will have the major influence of what kind of tax legislation emerges from congress. Mr. Mills insists that the administration's tax restructuring proposals do not go far enough. He would add, at the least, additional taxes to soak profits from investments and inherited wealth.

Contrary to the impression that Mr. Mills' objection leaves, the administration's tax reform bill is far-reaching. It would, for example, pay a substantial part of the tuition for children in private schools, assist the elderly in paying their property taxes and drastically limit provisions of the income tax law that allow the combining of preferential sections to escape most or all U.S. taxes.

Indeed, some of the far-reaching aspects of the proposal merit thorough philosophical discussion. Among these is the idea of giving income tax "refunds" to impoverished elderly people who pay no taxes and to parents of children in private schools if their federal taxes are less than the tuition payments-or the suggestion for subsidizing interest payments on state and local bonds. Such "rebates" would be nothing more than a form of "negative income sharing" that Americans have consistently rejected. The local bond interest subsidy undoubtedly is intended as the first step toward eliminating tax-free local bonds which now pay for so many state and municipal projects.

By large, however, the direction of the administration's tax reform bill is commendable. The thrust is to leave intact the basic federal laws which offer incentives for investment in business and property or which enhance the development

To do otherwise in an era when the need for new jobs is greatand when the availability of natural resources is a major national concern would be short sighted and self defeating.

Don't Send Pipe Tobacco There

By BRUCE HANDLER Associated Press Writer RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)- Don't send pipe tobacco to your friends in Brazil. It might get them thrown in A U.S. citizen living in this South American country swears that's what almost happened after a buddy from Chicago mailed him a $6 tobacco sampler as a gift. A notice from the Brazilian post office arrived last October in the home of the American, whom we shall call Smith because he doesn't want any more trouble with the cops, advising him to pick up an overseas package.

When Smith arrived at the post office, an employe told him: "Pipe tobacco. You ought to know it's against the law to bring pipe tobacco into Brazil. We'll have to burn it." "I didn't know the guy was going to send it to me. Couldn't you ship it back to Chicago." Smith asked.

"The law says we have to burn it," came the reply. Smith left. Six months later there was another notice from the post office. The same package was waiting for Smith, and the post office people put him through the same routine. "I'd like to see the law that says you have to burn it," Smith said this time. "I'm perfectly willing to like to see it on paper." The post office told him to go to the internal revenue department There, a tax official dragged out a copy of the law that really says a person can be jailed from six months to two years for bringing foreign tobacco products illegally into

Then Smith overplayed his hand. "I'd like to watch you burn my package," he said. The tax man exploded. "What? You doubt the word of a Brazilian official? I could have you jailed for disrespect - even for endangering national security. "Witnesses. I need two witnesses." "I'm a witness," shouted a Brazilian who had been sort of dozing in a corner. WASHINGTON (NEA) Even as the ugly word "impeachment" is bandied about, President Nixon is getting unasked-for-advice to save himself by changing his pattern and becoming an "open president." The chance of change is slim. Enough has been said now about Mr. Nixon's need for deep isolation. Only a handful of observers still manage to suggest he was walled off against his will by arrogant

"protectors" like the resigned top aide, H. R. Haldeman, Unmistakably, they were doing his bidding. Also well worked over is the fact that the special, narrow brand of loyalty the President commands has come from men whose public careers have been largely bound up with his, men with slight knowledge of government and politics. I see no accident in all this. In my judgment, he perceived early in life his lack of talent for warm, easy human contact. Plunging into an arena (politics) where such contact is paramount, he has done the minimum he deemed necessary-and that mostly by a kind of forced, highly controlled contrivance.

Yet there is a missing element here, hinted at but not well developed in the heavy speculation about the President's role in the unfolding Watergate affair. Men not gifted in human relations are quickly wounded by others. Sometimes they merely throw up a defensive shell. But often they respond, perhaps gradually at first, with resentment, bitterness, and slashing

Mr. Nixon's career is studded with evidences that his has been a bitter response. And it suggests that a circular effect develops. Counter-attack brings more criticism and hence fresh wounds. The uncomfortable man feels increasingly put upon, embattled, unfairly victimized by adversaries in many places.

This is the President's view of himself, supported by his wife's astonishing cloth-coat "we couldn't afford to go to the movies" version of their life even after he was an established Washington figure. As late as this winter, talking of the "cease-fire" in Vietnam, Mr. Nixon told newsmen he knows it "gags them" to think of him, the old hawk, as a maker of My point: The iron loyalty he demanded all these years is a shield against at least those wounds delivered at close range. The shield is screngthened by other devices, some unappreciated by outsiders. How many public figures match him in not reading the newspapers and watching televised news? Of course he gets an elaborately prepared "news digest" from aide Patrick Buchanan, but it is hard to believe this gives him all the bad news. As for TV, he is reliably reported to take fiftered, secondhand accounts of panel shows and others from aides. I venture to suggest this is a facade, that the reality is he can't read or listen to constantly new assaults and keep his bitter reactions under control. And I venture that nothing can make Richard Nixon open himself to

Air Bag Is Given Auto Safety O.K.

Automobile air bags, designed to inflate and deflate in milliseconds while cushioning drivers and front seat passengers in a crash, have received a lot of publicity. A lot of it, based on early test failures, has been bad, Proponents of the devices have had to spend an inordinate amount of time defending them against claims that they might go off accidentally or deteriorate with age or harm the hearing when they inflate explosively. Of late, however, air bag advocates have stopped being defensive as the list of those whose lives have been saved by the bags grows.

On Feb. 20, for example, Ralph Worsey of Wauconda, II., rammed the rear of a parked police car at 68 miles an hour. Though he was not wearing a seat belt, he suffered only a broken wrist and a few cuts and bruises because his car was equipped with an air bag system. The officer in the police car was seriously injured. This is one of the incidents discussed in an article. "How Real World Crashes Are Increasing Air Bag Acceptance," in the April issue of the National Safety Council's "Traffic Safety" magazine. In addition to "real world" crashes where air bags have deployed as intended, test crashes conducted earlier this year have also been completely successful, says author Jim Kielty of the council's public information

As for fears that the bags might go off when they were not supposed to, he reports that a fleet of 2,000 Mercurys has traveled more than 18 million miles under all types of driving conditions with not one instance of improper deployment of the air bag system.

Although a federal court order has indefinitely delayed a requirement that air bags be installed on all 1976 cars. General Motors will offer the bags as an option on some How much will air bags cost? Estimates range from $110 on up-way up. GM's "ballpark" figure is $200.

Nobody knows how many 1974-model new car buyers will want to spend this much money on a device they hope will never be called into use, says Kielty. "However," he concludes, "what safety benefits can be expected from such options as a vinyl roof, power windows, power radio antenna, sequential turn signals, simulated wood grain interior, a rear arm rest, 'sports striping' or a stereo tape system in the event of a 30mile-per-hour head-on crash?

On their next date, however, he repeated the invitation, and she went. After that the guy lost interest in her so she wrote to you for advice. You said: "Next time, hold something back."

That attitude toward men by women is exactly why men regard most women as prostitutes. And mothers teaching their daughters to be dishonest by "holding something back" has resulted in marriages based on deceit and dubi-

Changing Trends

From all indications the trend in professional basketball is once again leaning toward realistic type competition. Both the NBA and ABA championship series found defense playing an unprecedented role for the victorious teams the New York Knicks and Indiana Pacers.

The Knick rule the National Basketball Assn. world after subduing the Lakers with an unheard of defense that limited the 1972 champs to less than 100 points. And that also included their regular season meetings. And defense was very much needed by the Knicks who averaged only 103 points a game themselves, which shows a few other teams in the league were playing defense also.

Indiana captured the ABA crown with a 88-81 victory over the Kentucky Colonels in a game that saw the Colonels held to 11 points in the third period.

The high scoring Lakers were held to less than 20 points a quarter several times during their playoff series. This seems nearly impossible with players such as Jerry West, Gail Goodrich and Jim McMillan in the lineup.

Another trend that seems to be "leaving" the probasketball circuits is that of the home floor playing such a instrumental part in the series. Both New York and Indiana ended their series with victories on the opponents court, the Knicks in five games and Indiana in seven. And it was not the only win they achieved on the opponents floor.

New JuCo Poll Leader

Blinn College of Brenham, Texas has taken over first place in the National Junior College Athletic Association baseball poll. Blinn, with its 25-6 record, polled 10 first place votes and 154 points. San Jacinto College, also of Texas, is second with 118 points.

Gulf Coast, the Florida JuCo champ, moved up to fourth place behind Conners (Okla.) State. Miami Dade North fell all the way to sixth because of the two losses in the State JuCo tourney. Dade North and Dade South (9th) lead the nation in wins, both with 40-15 records. Chipola was also ranked in the top 20, grabbing the 17th

Making The Rounds

Lyman High School has set May 26 as the date for their annual awards banquet at the high school. The dinner will be held in the school cafeteria and the awards will be given out in the auditorium afterward. Guest speaker will be assistant coach with the World Champion Miami Dolphins.

Lake Brantley High annual Athletic awards will be presented May 19 and will be part of an all-day affair. At 1 p.m. baseball and volleyball games will be held pitting faculty, parents and students. A powderpuff derby between freshman and sophomore girls will be held from 4-5 p.m. after which a barbeque chicken dinner will be served. And the best and most improved athletes in each sport, along with outstanding athletes will be cited.

Seminole Junior College's Office of Community Service has come up with another super course that should prove of great interest to the sportsmen in the district. The course is called "Introduction to Fresh Water Fishing in Florida" and is designed to give newcomers to Florida the fundamentals of fresh water fishing. Subjects covered will be fish habits, spinning and revolving reels, fly fishing gear, matching the gear to the fish and the boats best designed for freshwater fishing. Those interested should call 323-1450, ext.

Marantha Is Word, Crippled Skylab Limps Along As Temperature Soars To 100

By HOWARD BENEDICT AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) - The crippled Skylab space station developed a new problem today when temperatures of 100 degrees were recorded inside the laboratory. The space agency called it a serious problem but still hoped to launch three astronauts to link up with the station on Sunday.

"It's too early to tell if we're in an unmanageable situation," reported flight director Neil Hutchinson. "But the Skylab cluster is hot and it's a problem that we'll have to be able to solve if the mission is to continue.'

Hutchinson also reported a problem with a stabilizing gyroscope in the spaceship control

These add to the difficulties of space agency experts who are trying to salvage three manned missions from America's first space station.

The laboratory was launched unmanned into a perfect 272-mile high orbit Monday, but suffered a severe blow when two of six solar panels failed to extend properly.

The panels are designed to convert the sun's energy to electrical power. With two panels inoperative, the power supply of the Skylab was Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz were to have ridden another rocket into space today to link up with the station for a 28-day space adventure.

But the space agency late Monday postponed the astronauts' liftoff until Sunday to give experts a chance to work out a new flight plan adapted to the reduced power supply.
