Gunman at door opens fire

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — City police here have no strong leads and no motive today for the wounding of two occupants of a Chatham Harbor Apartment at 511 Nantucket Court, at about 3 a.m. today. The gunman allegedly knocked on the door and opened fire when one of the victims opened the door.

Altamonte Springs police spokesman said investigators haven't yet questioned the three injured victims, all of whom are hospitalized. Ebon Johnson, 24, was injured when he jumped through a second-floor window to escape after his companions, Kuri Matthews, 27, and Andrew Davis, 29, were wounded by the assailant.

Hawkins said he doesn't know the addresses of the victims, or if they live at the apartment where the incident occurred.

The gunman ran, Hawkins said. Johnson underwent surgery in Orlando Regional Medical Center this morning, while the two other victims were in stable condition at Florida Hospital Altamonte, Hawkins said. He declined to give specific information on their wounds.

Hastings successor named

WASHINGTON — President Bush announced Tuesday that he had selected a state circuit judge to succeed a federal district judge in Florida who was impeached last year for allegedly accepting a bribe.

Bush chose Dade County Circuit Judge Federico Moreno to succeed Akece Hastings as U.S. District judge for the southern district of Florida.

Hastings, Florida's first black federal judge, was acquitted in 1983 of charges he accepted a bribe to reduce a prison sentence for an organized crime figure.

A special panel of federal judges conducted an investigation and recommended to the Senate that Hastings be impeached.

Morris has seen it all during his time on P&Z commission

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — In the 10 years that John Morris has worked on the city Planning and Zoning Commission, he has seen public opinion swing from outrage to apathy. He has seen Sanford grow from a sleepy rural town to a part of a growing metropolitan area. And he has seen all the faces in commission seats around him change at least once.

Commissioners are appointed by the city commission to serve for three-year terms. They are allowed no more than three full terms, so Morris's service on the body will come to an end June 21. He was appointed to his first year on the commission in 1980 when one of the commissioners resigned to take a job elsewhere.

Since then, he has worked with a number of other commissioners who changed seats with time and political tides. Just within the past year, Morris saw Brent Carl and Jay Malone, both former chairmen, and Oletia Yates leave the commission.

Morris said one of the most notable accomplishments of the body in the past 10 years has been the revision and streamlining of the permitting process.

"When people apply for permits to build anything anymore, that is when they really notice it," he said. "There is less red tape now. It only takes you one step where it used to take you seven or eight."

Another of the biggies, Morris said, is the revision and updating of the city comprehensive land use plan.

The plan, a volume more than 450 pages thick, outlines the conditions and uses or any kind of construction or building use in any area of the city. There are rules and specifications governing everything from the implementation of city utilities to the construction of major projects like the proposed 100-acre Seminole Mall.

Budget agreement includes higher beer, cigarette taxes

By MICHAEL MOLINE
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — House and Senate conferees reached tentative agreement late Tuesday night on nearly $805 million in new taxes and fees to help finance the state's $26.4 billion budget for the new fiscal year.

House Speaker Tom Gustafson and Senate President Bob Crawford shook hands on the pact just before midnight, freeing budget conferees to put the finishing touches on their spending plan for the fiscal year beginning July 1, and possibly permitting a timely adjournment of the 60-day regular session at midnight Friday.

"It's a deal," Crawford told Gustafson. "Let's go home."

Gustafson told reporters he believed nothing in the package would sufficiently offend Gov. Bob Martinez to draw a veto. "I don't hear a lot of veto language out of the governor's office," the speaker said.

The deal includes an increase of 9.99 cents per pack of cigarettes, well below the 19-cent boost sought by Martinez, but also lower than the dime threshold House negotiators feared going over.

The tax on alcoholic beverages sold in bars would be increased at a rate of 10 cents per 1.5-ounces of liquor, 10 cents per 4-ounces of wine and 4 cents per 12-ounces of beer. (Rep. Frank Stone, R-Casselberry, has said the alcoholic beverage tax could be difficult to regulate.)

The tax on soft drinks would be increased by 1 cent per 12-ounce serving.

The fees to replace a lost auto license tag, or late or replacement drivers license, would increase to $10. Additionally, there would be a one-time fee of $295 for new residents bring cars and light trucks onto the state's already overcrowded highways, unless the owner has already paid Florida sales tax on the vehicle.

The documentary stamp tax on real estate transactions would be increased to 17-cents per $100 assessed value. The intangibles tax on investment portfolios would be increased to 1.5 mills, but the personal exemption would also increase to $100,000 for individuals and $200,000 for couples.

The package also calls for slightly increased taxes on surplus insurance.

Hydrogen fuel line leak leaves shuttle grounded indefinitely

By ROB STEIN
UPI Science Editor

CAPE CANAVERAL — Engineers drained the shuttle Columbia's fuel tank today and scrambled to trace a leak in a 17-inch hydrogen fuel line system that forced NASA to indefinitely delay the ship's launch on a 10-day astronomy mission.

The shuttle and its seven-member crew had been scheduled for liftoff at 12:38 a.m. EDT this morning, two weeks late because of other problems, but less than an hour after fuel loading began yesterday, multiple alarms went off indicating hydrogen gas in the ship's engine compartment.

NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone said the launch was postponed "due to a higher-than-allowable concentration of hydrogen in Columbia's aft fuselage."

She said "the vehicle was never in an unsafe condition at any time" and that "a new launch target date will be set as soon as the problem has been identified and corrected."

Late Tuesday, engineers had identified two hydrogen leaks: a small leak in a ground fuel supply system on the shuttle's mobile launch platform and another, more serious leak in the area where a 17-inch hydrogen fuel line enters the shuttle's belly.

Depending on the nature of the problem with the 17-inch "disconnect" fitting, NASA managers could be forced to haul Columbia back to a giant hangar-like facility to make repairs, delaying blastoff two weeks or more.

But launch director Robert Sieck would say only that liftoff was on hold for at least 48 hours, and other officials stressed that a new target date could not be set until engineers get inside the shuttle's engine compartment late Wednesday to precisely locate the leak.

"We know we've got a leak in the 17-inch disconnect area," Malone said after a late-night engineering meeting broke up. "They don't

LONGWOOD — Yesterday's late afternoon announcement that the launch of the shuttle Columbia would have to be postponed, also caused a postponement of ham radio projects planned at Lyman High School in Longwood and Seminole Community College in Sanford.

Members of the Lake Monroe Amateur Radio Society, in cooperation with the schools and NASA were to attempt computerized and voice contacts with the space craft through equipment set up at the schools.

John Rother, a Seminole County amateur radio operator said, "The project is still on and we'll definitely do it at both locations whenever the shuttle launch is rescheduled."

The delay was a frustrating disappointment for commander Vance Brand, 59, copilot Guy Gardner, 42, John "Mike" Lounge, 43, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 45, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Sammie Durrance, 46, who came within 5 1/2 weeks of launch in 1986 only to be grounded by the Challenger disaster.

New land use restrictions have developers scrambling

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Eight developers will seek approvals for projects throughout Seminole County in August, perhaps the last to do so before controversial "concurrency" requirements take effect by early 1992.

The relatively low number of proposals is surprising since concurrency may restrict development in the county. In March, 15 development proposals were reviewed by the county planning and zoning commission. The 11 surviving proposals are expected to receive final approval July 10.

Under state laws, all updated comprehensive growth plans must assure that development will occur concurrently with the city's or county's ability to provide services to that development. If the local government doesn't plan to make the improvement needed for the development, such as widen a road, and the developer cannot pay for it, construction of the development may be prevented.

Seminole County must adopt their new growth plan by April 1991 and send it to the state for review. If approved, the plan should take effect by late 1991 or early 1992. Commissioners will decide June 12 whether to allow another group of land use changes before the growth plan takes effect.

The eight new proposals will be first considered by the planning commission Aug. 1 and county commissioners will first review them Aug. 28. Final

July 14 dedication date set for new Lake Mary City Hall

By LACY DOMEN

LAKE MARY — Workmen's hammers will cease to swing in three weeks as the new Lake Mary City Hall nears completion. A July 14 dedication date has been set for the structure.

The Florida Colonial-style, 14,000 square-foot building is flanked by rows of pillars and Mexican tile.

"The only problem we've had is with the tile," City Manager John Litton said. "It had to be sent back to Miami because the color was wrong."

Building Official Stan Welling explained the tiles were honed to a smoother texture and lighter color. They are ready to be put in place.

"All that's left is the landscaping," Litton said.

The ice blue and steel gray color scheme, accented with burgundy, will decorate the of fices of city employees and public works employees, who are being moved to the new location to consolidate staff.

Sitting on eight acres, the cost of the building will come in as bid at $957,000.

"We didn't have many overruns," Litton said.

City hall chambers will feature auditorium-style seating for 105 people plus commissioners. Capacity seating at the old city hall is 75.

Sophisticated audio visual equipment has been installed in the acoustically sound walls of the chamber. A speaker system will allow any over-capacity crowd of interested citizens to hear commission meetings from outside the building.

"You can sit out here, listen to the meeting and smoke a cigarette," Welling said.

No smoking will be allowed in the building, Litton said.

Clown charged with sexual assault

MIAMI — A man who entertained children at roller-rink birthday parties has been charged with sexually assaulting a 13-year-old girl while wearing his clown makeup and skates, police said.

The arrest of Pedro Regalado, 20, was the second this week in southern Florida involving people dressed in clown suits, police said Tuesday.

On Saturday, a man wearing a clown suit and mask delivered a bouquet and balloons to Marlene Watson's home in West Palm Beach, then drew a gun and shot her in the face. She died late Monday.

Palm Beach County detectives still are looking for Watson's killer and police do not believe the clown crimes are related.

Regalado, known as Peter the Clown, was charged Monday night with one count of sexual battery and one count of lewd and lascivious assault.

Regalado was subcontracted to perform on weekends at birthday parties at the Hot Wheels Skating Rink. He juggled, twisted up balloon animals, painted faces and was a hit among children at the rink, said owner Byron Sharp.

Regalado, who also operated a limousine service, would earn $50 for an hour or two of work at the parties.

Shrimp decline alarms officials

MIAMI — The shrimp catch in the traditionally bountiful waters off southwest Florida has dwindled to a record low and scientists fear the decline signals serious environmental problems in Florida Bay.

Although biologists believe the state's drought may be responsible, they also suspect the drop may signal more serious problems in the bay's estuaries and grassy shallows, which serve as prime nurseries for the dime-size spawn.

"If the trend continues, the shrimp fishery is definitely going to collapse," Joan Browder, a research ecologist for the National Marine Fisheries Service, told The Miami Herald.

Experts also are concerned about the decline because of its impact on other marine species that feed on shrimp, including gray snapper, spotted sea trout and great blue herons.

After enduring three years of shrinking catches, shrimpers asked Gov. Bob Martinez for help this month.

Martinez in turn urged the federal government to provide disaster assistance for shrimpers in nine counties — Brevard, Citrus, Duval, Nassau, St. Johns, Charlotte, Collier, Lee and Monroe.

Although Florida's shrimp industry has experienced declines before, the current fallout is viewed more seriously, representatives said.

"It's the worst in history, the absolute worst," said Robert Jones, executive director of the Southeastern Fisheries Association.

In the Keys last year, trawlers caught 2.35 million pounds of shrimp, or less than one-fourth of the record 1981 haul of 9.8 million pounds.

The total catch from the Dry Tortugas has fallen from 8.1 million pounds in 1987, to 6.3 million pounds in 1988 and 5.6 million pounds in 1989.

Murder defendant slugs witness

PALM BEACH — A murder defendant bound in handcuffs and leg shackles slugged a witness in the mouth during a pretrial hearing, and could face new charges for the outburst, prosecutors said.

Frank Valdes, 27, is charged in the June 1987 shooting death of a prison guard. He was bound in handcuffs and leg chains Tuesday when he threw the two-fisted roundhouse punch at private investigator Gary McDaniel.

Three deputies and a courtroom bailiff grabbed Valdes and flung him to the floor of the courtroom.

"Stop resisting us, Frank. Stop resisting us," Deputy Ray Griffith said while Valdes thrashed and twisted the arms of the four men.

"I'm not resisting," Valdes shouted.

McDaniel, who was appointed by the court to work on the case, had a bruised lip and a bloody nose.

Valdes' court-appointed lawyers, Fred Susaneck and Craig Boudreau, dashed toward the back of the courtroom when the outburst began.

At the hearing Tuesday, Valdes tried to persuade the judge to fire the lawyers, claiming they had assaulted him at a May 18 meeting in the Palm Beach County Jail.

Two witnesses told Circuit Judge Walter Colbath that nothing had happened between Valdes and his lawyers that day. McDaniel stood before Colbath and said the same thing.

When asked if he had any questions for McDaniel, Valdes rose slowly from his chair and walked toward the investigator. As he came within arm's reach of McDaniel, a deputy stepped up.

Through pursed lips, Valdes asked, "You are going to sit there and ... tell that lie?"

Then he swung his shackled fists from his right side and slugged McDaniel in the mouth.

City officials guilty of extortion

United Press International

MIAMI — A suburban mayor and two council members were convicted of extortion Tuesday for accepting thousands of dollars from a businessman who needed a zoning variance to sell part of his shopping center.

A federal jury claimed to be hopelessly deadlocked early Tuesday afternoon but continued its deliberations and returned verdicts against the three officials of Sweetwater, a town of 8,200 people 15 miles southwest of Miami.

Council member Carmen Menendez, the central figure, was convicted on one count of bribery conspiracy and one count of extortion. She faces a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison and a $500,000 fine.

Mayor Iraln Gonzalez and council member Antonio Duran were acquitted of the conspiracy charge but convicted of extortion. Each faces a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $225,000 fine.

U.S. District Judge Edward B. Davis set sentencing for July 30. All of the defendants remained free on bond.

The defendants were among five of the eight council members indicted in January. Two pleaded guilty before trial. A sixth was named as an unindicted co-conspirator and testified against his colleagues.

The charges involved businessman Maurice Barakat, part-owner of a shopping center who wanted to sell part of the mall but needed city approval to lift zoning restrictions.

His variance request was turned down by the council in the summer and fall of 1989. Court records indicate that Menendez approached Barakat and solicited a $11,000 bribe from him in exchange for the zoning variance.

Barakat testified that he gave her fifty $100 bills June 5, 1989 inside a letter-sized envelope that contained documents about his request. Menendez testified last week that she did not realize the money was in the envelope with the documents until later in the day.

She said she gave the envelope back to Barakat instead of going to police because, "I don't trust the Sweetwater Police Department." She said she also wanted to avoid a scandal.

Barakat, however, went to the FBI. In testimony, he insisted Menendez did not return the money.

Duran and Gonzalez elected not to testify.

More IV tubes cut at hospital; latest incident life-threatening

United Press International

TAMARAC — Intravenous tubes delivering medication and fluids to seven patients were deliberately cut at University Hospital, and one patient's tube was cut a second time Tuesday in a potentially life-threatening manner, sheriff's investigators said.

Six of the tubes were sabotaged Saturday and a seventh was cut Sunday above a pumping mechanism and none of the patients was harmed. But an 83-year-old patient's tube was cut Tuesday morning below the pump and could have been fatal, said Broward County Sheriff's spokesman Al Gordon.

"This one was below the mechanism and it pumped fluid on the floor," he said. "And with the needle still being in the patient's arm, the patient could have bled to death."

Officials would not speculate on whether the person who was cutting the tubes, deliberately severed the last tube below the pump.

"We're very concerned about it. We don't want to diminish what happened, but it was not life-threatening," said Dave Margulies, spokesman for the Columbia Hospital Corp. in Fort Worth, Texas, which owns University Hospital.

Margulies said all the damaged tubes were made of soft, flexible plastic, and the damage was discovered soon after they were cut.

"What it meant to the patients was they were not getting their medication as long" as the tubes were damaged, he said.

Nurses were added and security was increased at the hospital after the discovery, Margulies said.

Broward County sheriff's investigators interviewed hospital workers and patients, but had no suspects, Gordon said.

"I've never heard of anything like this before," he said.

One elderly patient told investigators he had seen an unfamiliar man in his room and was able to give them a vague description of the man, investigators said.

They will receive about $4 million in 20 annual installments of more than $200,000 each.

The couple said they will use part of the money to make sure their three grandchildren receive college educations.

The Johnsons already have plans to visit relatives in Texas and Illinois and hope to travel to Australia as well, said Susanne Johnson.

The winning numbers were 1, 15, 20, 31, 35 and 44. The other winning ticket was sold in Dunedin, but no one has claimed the other half of the prize, lottery officials said.

Couple claims Lotto payoff of $4 million

UPI report

TALLAHASSEE — A retired Sarasota couple has claimed half of last week's $8 million Lotto jackpot, state lottery officials said Tuesday.

John and Susanne Johnson discovered they had a winning ticket Sunday.

Too excited to sleep, the couple left home at 3 a.m. Tuesday to reach Tallahassee to claim their prize. The lottery office was closed Monday because of the Memorial Day holiday.

John Johnson, 70, had just finished working in his yard Sunday morning when he checked the winning numbers.

"I looked once, then I looked again," he said.

"He was grinning like a Cheshire cat," said Susanne Johnson, 65.

The couple has played the same numbers since the lottery began. The Johnsons usually buy five tickets each week. The couple has matched four of six numbers in other drawings.

John Johnson is a retired Exide industrial storage battery salesman from Morton, Ill. His wife worked as a nurse's aide before the couple retired in 1979 to Florida.

One killed, five hurt in bar shooting

United Press International

MIAMI — A bar patron, angry because the manager would not let him take his drink outside, opened fire with an AK-47 assault rifle early Tuesday, killing one woman and injuring five other people.

The gunman fired at least 30 bullets as he and a friend left the bar in a white midsize car, said Miami Police Sgt. David Rivero.

One bullet passed through the 3 1/2 inch steel door of the bar and hit a woman who was sitting at the bar. She was struck in the head and died instantly, Rivero said.

Five other people inside and outside the Magic City Lounge were hit in the arms, legs, back and head. All five were in stable condition at Jackson Memorial Hospital, Rivero said.

Rivero said the gunman and another man were drinking at the bar and prepared to leave about 4 a.m. Tuesday.

"They were getting ready to leave the bar with a couple of drinks and the manager told them they couldn't take the drinks outside the bar because it's against the law in Florida," Rivero said.

"There was a big argument between the two and the manager. The manager ushered them outside and they left and got in their car."

But as they drove away, one of the two opened fire with the fully automatic assault rifle, Rivero said.

He fired at least 30 bullets, possibly more because some of the casings may have landed inside the car where police could not count them, Rivero said.

Several of the injured were standing in front of the bar, and others were inside.

The two suspects escaped. Police said they did not have a good description of the men because all the uninjured witnesses either fled or denied they had been in at bar at the time of the shooting.

They will receive about $4 million in 20 annual installments of more than $200,000 each.

The couple said they will use part of the money to make sure their three grandchildren receive college educations.

The Johnsons already have plans to visit relatives in Texas and Illinois and hope to travel to Australia as well, said Susanne Johnson.

The winning numbers were 1, 15, 20, 31, 35 and 44. The other winning ticket was sold in Dunedin, but no one has claimed the other half of the prize, lottery officials said.

Fire races through historic Woolworth's store

MIAMI — Fire raced through the upper floor of the historic Woolworth's store in downtown Tuesday, injuring more than two dozen firefighters and backing up morning rush-hour traffic for several hours.

The roof of the three-story, 69-year-old building was in flames and thick black smoke poured from the third floor, which was used for storage.

More than 70 Miami and Coral Gables firefighters sprayed water from ladder trucks and the roof of a neighboring Burdines department store for 4 1/2 hours before the fire was declared under control at 12:15 p.m., said Fire Chief C.H. Duke.

Temperatures in the upper-

80s, high humidity and intense heat from the fire took its toll on firefighters.

Seven firefighters were taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for treatment of heat exhaustion and smoke inhalation, another was hospitalized with a knee injury while one firefighter suffered minor burns to his back and neck when a ceiling collapsed, Duke said.

Nineteen more were treated at the scene for heat exhaustion.

"The heat was really intense when we first got here and the firefighters immediately took a beating," Duke said.

"The heat was so intense you couldn't stand up. It was burning your ears," said firefighter

Rick Smith, one of those who had gone inside. "I was crawling. I couldn't see anything. All we were doing was tripping over boxes."

Police closed the nearest downtown exit off Interstate 95 and blocked off several main streets to keep people out of the area, backing up the morning rush-hour traffic for several hours.

They also closed part of the People Mover, an overhead rail system linking downtown to the larger MetroRail train system.

No one was in the building when the fire began in a third-floor storage room at 7:47 a.m., said Miami Fire Department Capt. Henry Cepeda.

Man arrested on vehicular assault charge

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly pursued two cars with two occupants each and allegedly rammed both vehicles with his car because he reportedly thought they were near his house for drugs or alcohol, has been arrested.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies allege John Patrick Dunan, 28, 121 Vagabond Way, Longwood, grabbed one occupant of each car by the hair and threatened all four. He reportedly told deputies he thought the victims had been at his home the night before to break windows of his mobile home.

The incident occurred at about 8:45 p.m. Tuesday. Dunan was arrested on charges of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle and battery at 9:21 p.m. on Lake Shore Drive, deputies said.

Victim hitches ride for help

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — When a man sneaked into the house of Louis Hauber, 22, 2685 S. Wymore Road, Apt. 103, Altamonte Springs, at about 12:05 a.m. today, Hauber refused the man's demand for money, and ran past him.

Outside, Hauber flagged down a passing car to be taken by the strangers to a nearby convenience store where they had just seen an Altamonte Springs police officer.

Police went to the scene of the burglary and found John Barry Anderson, 29, of Altamonte Springs, outside Hauber's apartment. He was reportedly identified by the victim and the two occupants of the rescue car. Anderson was charged with burglary and attempted robbery in the case at 12:36 a.m. today.

Man arrested after week-long 'spin'

LAKE MARY — The driver of a Jeep stopped for running a stop sign in Lake Mary at about 2 p.m. Tuesday was arrested after Lake Mary police determined the driver had given them false information and the car was stolen.

Gregory James Stillwell, 19, 551 E. Semoran Blvd., Fern Park, was charged with auto theft, obstruction, driving with a suspended license, having an unassigned license tag and running a stop sign. He was arrested on Main Road.

Police said they determined the car had been stolen from Royal Jeep Eagle about one week ago.

The suspect reportedly said he saw the Jeep being delivered to the dealership, but was denied a test drive without a co-signer for an auto loan. He later found the Jeep had keys in the ignition and "took it for a spin," which extended into about seven days of use, a police report said.

Man charged with spouse battery

SANFORD — Tommy Lee Ford, 27, 59 William Clark Court, Sanford, was charged with battery-spouse abuse at 134 Scott Drive, Sanford, at 10:57 p.m. Tuesday.

Ford's wife Ruby J. Ford allegedly said he hit her in the face with his fists, a Sanford police report said.

Three charged in auto burglary

LAKE MARY — City police here report capturing a man and two boys near the scene of vehicular burglaries at Dorchester Square, Lake Mary, at about 2:40 a.m. today.

Two were caught in the parking lot and the third suspect was found hiding under a motor home there, police said. Burglary tools and items stolen from a truck were reportedly found in the suspects' truck at the scene.

Arrested on charges of burglary to a vehicle, possession of burglary tools, two counts of attempted burglary, petty theft, and loitering and prowling was Anton Steven Kuvach, 19, 560 Tiberon Cove Drive, Longwood. Two boys ages 17 and 16 years were also arrested, police said.

Wife accuses man of battery

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man who allegedly hit his wife and pushed her into a wall, and kept her from telephoning for help, has been charged with battery-spouse abuse.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies report arresting Steven Curtis Wain, 25, 510 Lynchfield Ave., Altamonte Springs, at home at 3:50 p.m. Monday.

Chamber grows by 58 members

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Results of the recently completed membership drive of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce are in, with a total of 58 new members signed up during the drive.

But chamber office manager Diane Parker believes the number of new memberships attained during the drive will go even higher. "In addition to those we signed up," Parker said, "we have so many new leads. It may be a couple of weeks before we can contact every one of them."

At the chamber's Business After Hours gathering at the Swiss Inn Restaurant in Lake Mary last week, five membership team leaders were singled out for having signed up the most new members during the drive, which ran from May 15 through May 23. Team members who were honored were President Mike Curasi, Shari Brodie, Joe Deitz, Brad Tallman and Beverly Paulk.

Businesses that may not have been contacted during the membership drive are urged to contact the chamber headquarters at 3821 Lake Emma Road, in the Lake Mary Centre.

Census finishes follow-up count

Late respondents think they have been counted twice

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald staff writer

Some people may have the impression that they are being counted twice by the U.S. Census Bureau, but such is not the case according to area census office managers.

As the bureau's non-response follow-up operation is nearing an end in Central Florida and across the nation, Orlando District Manager Mary Shepherd said, "If the completed forms were mailed in toward the end of our response gathering period, our computers may not yet have those names, and, as a result, our enumerators have no way of knowing for sure who has been counted. So some people may end up with a census taker's visit, as well."

Both Shepherd and Pat Ryan, census district manager for Volusia and Seminole counties, are looking forward to June 6, which will mark the end of the initial follow-up operations — the largest part of the population counting effort.

The next step in the attempt to reach everyone in the 1990 Census is a program called "Were You Counted?" Census offices will set up registration tables at malls, supermarkets and other places frequented by large numbers of people, in the hope that anyone who has not been contacted either by mail or by an enumerator, will stop and complete the form. The exact starting time of this program has not been determined, but is expected to be in place before the middle of next month.

Engineers focus telescope as Hubble locks onto target

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The Hubble Space Telescope locked securely onto a celestial target during the first test of its most advanced guidance system, the project's lead scientist said Tuesday.

The successful "fine-lock" with the telescope's "fine guidance sensors" over the weekend encouraged engineers to think they can overcome lingering vibrations in the 12-ton telescope and begin final work to focus the instrument's near-perfect optical system, said NASA astronomer Edward Weiler.

"We held fine-lock for an hour or two and held it through the day-night transition," said Weiler as he awaited launch of the space shuttle Columbia on a 10-day mission aimed at complementing the Hubble telescope.

"The only time we achieved fine-lock before that was just for a few seconds and then we got knocked out," he said. "This time we achieved fine-lock and we held it for an hour or two."

The $1.5 billion telescope was placed into orbit April 25 by the crew of the space shuttle Discovery for a 15-year exploration of the universe that is expected to revolutionize astronomy.

Since being deployed, NASA engineers have struggled with a series of problems as they carefully activated the complex observatory's many systems.

The key to the telescope's operation is its ability to firmly lock onto astronomical targets.

Rape bill passes without Langley amendment

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Senate shamed one of its members Tuesday into dropping an amendment to weaken legislation forbidding evidence that a rape victim's dress incited the crime, then voted unanimously to send the bill to the governor.

"I thought it was a pretty good idea when I did it," said Sen. Dick Langley, R-Clermont, who could be clearly seen from the Senate gallery to blush as he withdrew his amendment in the face of strident opposition from fellow senators.

The legislation (CS-HB 1393) was inspired by a widely criticized Broward County case last year in which a defendant was acquitted of rape after jurors were permitted to examine the victim's skimpy costume.

That defendant could not even say, 'But your honor, she was standing in the corner with short shorts and a see-through blouse.'

—Sen. Dick Langley, R-Clermont

The measure, approved 40-0 by the Senate, amends an existing state rape shield law restricting evidence about a victim's sexual history to stipulate that evidence may not be presented to attempt to establish that the victim's dress incited the crime.

Gov. Bob Martinez has said he will sign the bill into law.

Langley's amendment would have permitted defendants to impeach any prosecution testimony regarding the dress of the sex crime victim. Langley envisioned courtroom testimony whereby a victim tries to portray herself as blameless.

"I was just standing on the corner, just after church. I was in a full dress with an overcoat and a high-buttoned collar, when this gentleman just came out of the blue, with no incitement from me whatsoever, and raped me," Langley said.

"Under this bill, that defendant could not even say, 'But your honor, she was standing in the corner with short shorts and a see-through blouse with high heels and a banner across their chest that invited me,'" he continued.

HBJ chairman resigns, Herrington takes over

United Press International

Former Secretary of Energy John S. Herrington has been named chairman of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., replacing William Jovanovich, the strong-willed executive who led the publishing company for more than three decades, the company said Tuesday.

Jovanovich, 70, resigned as chairman of the board and chairman of the company's executive committee, but will continue to work as a Harcourt editor, the company said. Jovanovich said he also plans to write books.

The company said Jovanovich's retirement caps a 43-year career at Harcourt, including approximately 20 years as chairman. Jovanovich stepped down as chief executive officer in December 1988 after serving in that position for 34 years.

"Forty-three years is enough, especially since I now can devote my time to editing books and writing them," Jovanovich said in a statement.

But an analyst described the transition as a "non-event."

J. Kendrick Noble Jr., who follows Harcourt for PaineWebber Inc., said Jovanovich has been devoting his energies to the company's school division, which has experienced problems over the past 18 months.

"I think he is essentially clearing his desk to focus on where he is really working anyway," Noble said. Noble also said he believes control of the company is in the hands of Jovanovich's son, Peter.

Peter Jovanovich, Harcourt's president and chief executive officer, was named to the additional post of chairman of the board's executive committee Tuesday.

Herrington, who joined the Harcourt board in May 1989, served as secretary of energy in President Reagan's second term.

The elder Jovanovich led his company's successful 1987 effort to fend off a hostile takeover bid by British publisher Robert Maxwell. Harcourt was able to thwart Maxwell by adopting a $3 billion recapitalization plan.

The company has been forced since to sell assets, including its lucrative Sea World theme parks, to reduce the staggering debt brought on by that plan.

Harcourt sold about $370 million in assets in the fourth quarter of 1987, including a magazine publishing business, to reduce debt.

More recently, the company sold six theme parks, including Sea World parks in Florida, Texas, California and Ohio, to Anheuser-Busch Cos. for $1.1 billion.

Harcourt used proceeds from that sale to pay off its long-term bank debt.

But Noble said the company still is saddled with other, more expensive debt that could cripple the company in coming years if its performance in the textbook market does not improve.

Earlier this month, the company said it had ended talks concerning the possible sale of additional assets, or some or all of its existing debt at a discount.

Bush's wrong turn on ozone

The White House's abrupt refusal to pay for helping to reduce the use of chlorofluorocarbons isn't just "mind-boggling," as one European leader put it. It undermines the U.S. pledge in Montreal three years ago to work toward eliminating this entire class of chemicals that have been linked to the destruction of the earth's ozone layer. And it almost certainly condemns any hope that those international efforts will soon be strengthened.

Negotiation of the so-called Montreal Protocol, which calls for a 50 percent reduction in the use of CFCs by the year 2000, was one of the few positive environmental accomplishments of the Reagan administration. When scientists subsequently found that the threat to the earth's atmosphere may be even more severe, George Bush's promise to push for a total ban reinforced his claim to being an environmental president. But now that the United Nations has scheduled a conference in June to consider adopting just such a ban, the president has apparently changed his mind.

CFCs are widely used in refrigerators, as industrial solvents and, outside the United States, as a propellant in aerosols. Substitutes are being developed, but they are likely to be more expensive. The success of the effort to eliminate CFCs therefore depends upon finding ways to help the less industrialized countries adjust to these new alternatives.

In March, representatives of the industrialized nations agreed to create a $100 million fund to provide financial and technical assistance to developing countries for this purpose. The White House decision not to contribute throws all of those plans into disarray. India and China have already said that without financial assistance, they will not participate in efforts to reduce CFCs and will urge other countries not to cooperate, either.

Republican leaders joined Democrats in denouncing Bush's decision, pointing out that U.S. contributions to the fund would have amounted to only $25 million over the next three years. The chemical industry as well as America's allies abroad have likewise condemned it.

No one so far has explained what brought about this bizarre reversal of policy. It may be tied to a recent speech by Bush's budget director, Richard Darman, in which he suggested that resistance to "global management" of environmental problems should become the moral equivalent of anti-communism. But some problems are truly global in scope and the destruction of the atmosphere is certainly one of them. Bush has rightly insisted in the past — on the global warming issue — that environmental problem-solving and economic considerations must be linked. Why deny that linkage now, especially on CFCs, where the damage is not theoretical but a proven fact?

Why Iran-contra inquiry drags on

SAN FRANCISCO — Don't be deceived by all the smiles and hand-holding between the White House and Congress these days as the budget negotiations inch forward. Politics ain't beanbag, as Mr. Dooley long ago pointed out, and the impaneling of a new grand jury to continue poking around in the debris of the Iran-contra controversy means just one thing: The effort to destroy Ronald Reagan's reputation and/or impeach George Bush has just taken a new lease on life.

Like any large, complex sequence of events, the Iran-contra affair will go on generating unanswered, and probably unanswerable, questions forever. Never mind that it has already been investigated more thoroughly than any event since Watergate. The Tower Commission was only the first of many probes. Then came the congressional extravaganza, choreographed and presided over by Democrats. Finally, it was the turn of special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, who enlisted the help of scores of lawyers and investigators, spent millions of the taxpayers' dollars, and has yet to put a single person behind bars.

Add to these the voluntary investigative efforts of the Washington media, who would gladly trade their admittedly slender hope of heaven for the honor of being instrumental in bringing about the downfall of either Reagan or Bush, and you get some idea of the sort of grinder the Iran-contra events have already been through. Yet not a scintilla of evidence has been found indicating that either Mr. Reagan or Mr. Bush was aware that some proceeds of the arms sales to Iran were being diverted to help the Nicaraguan contras. Why, then, has yet another grand jury been assembled and put to work sifting these cold ashes?

Since the impetus comes from special prosecutor Walsh, let us first turn our attention to him. Walsh, a Canadian-born New Yorker who moved to Oklahoma when he was nearly 70, got his start under New York Governor Thomas Dewey, whom he served as counsel. He became a federal judge in 1954, but resigned that position to become deputy attorney general in 1957, during Eisenhower's second administration. Thereafter he practiced law in New York City for 20 years.

To Walsh, who is now 78, appointment as special prosecutor in the Iran-contra affair must have seemed a priceless opportunity to add some belated luster to a moderately distinguished but not particularly earthshaking career. His failure, therefore, to obtain a single jail sentence thus far for any indicted defendant, let alone to implicate Reagan or Bush in some demonstrable wrongdoing, must be thoroughly galling. Walsh thus has nothing to lose by pressing on. One or two more small fry may be indicted, and he may even persuade the grand jury to hand up some sort of "presentment" that tarnishes Reagan and/or Bush without actually accusing either of violating any law.

To the Democrats, too (and, let's not forget, their loyal allies in the media), this state of affairs has no down-side whatever. If Walsh actually gets anywhere, they will benefit automatically. If he doesn't, it's no skin off their nose. Meanwhile, the very existence of his probe — watered from time to time by helpful leaks — will cast a shadow on the Reagan record, and, by investigating the possibility that Bush may have lied, subtly damage the president's reputation as an honorable man.

Military doctors: Go ahead, sue me

WASHINGTON — Robert Longo should sue the doctors who told him that the softball-sized tumor in his leg was a muscle tear. The cancer spread to his lungs during the months that Longo tried to convince the doctors that they were wrong. But he can't sue because Longo's doctors were in the Army and so was he.

Victims of medical malpractice by military doctors could fill a book with their painful experiences, but they can't file so much as a single lawsuit because a federal law called the Feres Doctrine prohibits military personnel from suing military doctors.

Longo, of Onset, Mass., first felt the pain in his left thigh while he was on duty Dec. 21, 1983. He tolerated it for a few days and then went to an Army aid station and got pain pills. Then for the next three months, doctor after doctor at the Army hospital in Fort Hood, Texas, told Longo he had a torn muscle. They prescribed pain pills, physical therapy, heat packs, crutches and rest while Longo watched with horror as the lump in his thigh grew. Finally he asked one doctor if it could be a tumor.

"I was told that I was too young to have a tumor," Longo recalled. Finally, a doctor sent the complaining Longo to a bigger Army hospital at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. "The doctors could not believe what they saw," Longo recalled. They cut out a malignant tumor the size of a softball. Some members of Congress think that people like Longo should be able to call their doctors to account through the courts. Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., is spearheading the drive to legalize malpractice suits in the military. He says it is unfair that federal prisoners can sue the government, but GIs can't.

Our associates Melinda Maas and Scott Sleck turned up several cases in which military personnel claim to have suffered at the hands of military doctors. Willie Harris of Highland, Calif., injured his knees playing basketball for an Air Force team in 1963. He says military doctors urged him to keep playing and gave him cortisone injections to numb the pain. Today, after five knee operations, he is a cripple. His doctors blame the injections.

Marine Sgt. Lori Jolley entered the Balboa Naval Hospital in Long Beach, Calif., in 1986 for an appendectomy. For months after the surgery, she continued to feel the same symptoms of appendicitis. Eventually she went to the emergency room of a civilian hospital. Doctors there told her that she still had her appendix, but that she was missing an ovary and her fallopian tubes. At 27, Jolley is sterile and owes $60,000 in medical bills. She can't find a lawyer to take her case because none wants to take on the U.S. government.

E. Christian Gremlich III of Broomall, Pa., became impotent at the age of 23. But it was 30 years before he discovered that an Army doctor may have been responsible. Military doctors told him he was impotent because of abdominal injuries he received in a car accident. Three years ago, Gremlich reviewed old medical records and pieced together a different story. He had undergone initial surgery after the accident at a civilian hospital, and then the Army insisted that he be moved to a military hospital. Gremlich's records show that the military doctors didn't follow the post-operative instructions from the civilian doctors. Gremlich's original physician claims his urethra wasn't allowed to heal completely, resulting in impotence.

Gremlich is now bucking the rules by suing the government for compensation for his three decades of suffering.

Victims of medical malpractice by military doctors could fill a book with their experiences.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Mills victory may be defeat

BOSTON — When the news came that Mills College would not be accepting men, there were cheers and champagne all across the Oakland campus. The young women in their counter-revolutionary T-shirts — "Better Dead than Coed" — had won the day. They had been temporarily saved from that fate worse than death.

But on the other coast, this observer suffered from a case of deja vu. Where had I seen those T-shirts before? Just last month, on the all-male campus of Virginia Military Institute.

What would I say if the students of VMI were to pop champagne bottles and celebrate victory against the lawsuit to admit women onto that male bastion? I would call it a defeat.

So, the Mills College case raises more than a few questions about the battle for equality. Is there a double standard being raised on the field? Are we to cheer the fall of the last male strongholds while defending the remaining female cloisters? Are male traditions bad and female traditions good? Is segregation bad for men and good for women?

I don't want to press the analogy between VMI and Mills College too far. VMI is a tax-supported institution and public money is being used by a school that excludes citizens on the basis of sex. Mills College is private, and private institutions have more legal leeway to structure themselves as they will.

But over the past decade, in the name of equality, some who favor admitting women into male colleges have also fervently argued against admitting men into female colleges. The defenders of women's institutions describe their campuses as oases in a sexist society. They say that the attention and encouragement women receive there make them better equipped to go into the world on an equal footing with men.

A good deal of research is mustered to support their belief that all-women's environments may produce more than their share of scientists, professionals, leaders. And if that is true, the double standard may actually be a double path to the same goal. Men's colleges may be bastions of male tradition, while women's colleges are on the front lines of feminist change.

I understand these arguments. In women's classes, women do ALL the talking. On women's campuses, they hold ALL the leadership positions. Indeed, when women's colleges go coed, they seem to lose that edge.

But nevertheless it occurs to me these days that the ringing defense of women's colleges has a separatist clang to it. The argument carries the sounds of discouragement with the pace of change in coed institutions, perhaps even with the possibility of equality in the world. These days, do many prefer the cloister — some variation on the theme of the monny track? Susan Rieger, a legal studies professor who calls herself "the honorable opposition" at all-female Mount Holyoke college, says: "I think the ideology is mostly patronizing. It says, if we put you into classroom with men you aren't going to do as well. You aren't going to edit the newspaper. You are going to be discouraged from science." Ironically, she says, that message grows stronger as the evidence may be growing weaker, as more women succeed in coed schools.

Women's colleges were founded because women were barred from most colleges. Today, only a handful of schools exist for men only. But the early and eager assumption that equal admissions would produce an instant equal environment has led to disappointment and impatience.

Indeed, the notion has emerged among some that if a woman goes to a coed school she will automatically — dare I say naturally — remain a second-class citizen. There is a suggestion in the sales pitch that she is better off with her own kind.

"Separatism has become more attractive in the past few years," says Wendy Kammer, who has written about this in "A Fearful Freedom." "The notion that for whatever reasons we can't be equal in the same place at the same time reflects some resignation that I don't share."

Nor do I. The discouragement with change and the goal of equality is premature. And defeatist. There are, after all, only 125,000 women attending 94 women's colleges. These schools can remain a lively alternative. But the most important work is to change the learning environment on campuses where the vast majority of women go to school with men.

Mills College, neither dead nor coed, has raised some lively issues about equality even among its own defenders. Consider the role of Warren Hellman, the chairman of the board. In the past, Hellman quit two all-male clubs because they refused to admit women. Last week, he announced that Mills would remain male-free. Both times he was applauded by women.

Is segregation bad for men and good for women?

Projects

will be set up outdoors at the Lyman High School football field, and in the Science Building at SCC, at which time the radio club will attempt to make both computer and voice contact with the Columbia, before, during and after the lift off.

Lyman Space Science Instructor Joe Laughlin has been working with his classes in preparation for the event, and the students are well versed in the technology involved. Space communications techniques have also been the focal point of instruction at SCC.
In the actual experiment, ham radio operator K4GCC, of Merritt Island, operating just one mile from the launch site, will be relaying the radio signals. The signals between NASA's ground control and the shuttle, which will be bounced off the SatCom II communications satellite, will then be transmitted from Merritt Island to receivers set up at SCC and Lyman. For the general public and other students who attend the event, speakers will be set up to allow everyone to hear the communications.

Overall, the event is a joint project created by NASA and the Amateur Radio Relay League, for anyone interested in the space program. According to Rothert, "The local projects were first brought up at our April club meeting, and it just grew from there."

He explained, "Astronaut Ron Parise, Mission Payload Specialist, who is also an amateur radio operator, will be using a hand-held radio during part of the shuttle trip, in an attempt to be in two way contact with amateur radio enthusiasts and students interested in the space program, on a world-wide basis."
"When the launch is rescheduled," Rothert said, "We will have various video tapes available at in nearby classrooms during the pre-launch time, centered on the shuttle as well as amateur radio operations." A graphics display computer will also be set up to show a display of where the shuttle actually is at each step in the initial liftoff.

Although there is no schedule yet, Astronaut Parise is expected to attempt voice contact with space and radio enthusiasts at the space camp on Merritt Island and a location in Clearwater in addition to the two Seminole County locations.

Rothert said that if the shuttle is launched, another contact with Columbia will be attempted during the next meeting of the Lake Monroe Amateur Radio Society, June 5, at the Seminole Community College Science Building. At that time, he hoped there could even be a visual sighting of the shuttle in orbit.

payload bay is the Astro-1 observatory, a battery of four telescopes built to study invisible X-ray and ultraviolet light from high-energy stars, galaxies, quasars and other violent objects to learn more about the structure and evolution of the universe.

Engineers started pumping a half-million gallons of liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen rocket fuel into Columbia's giant external tank about 4:36 p.m. Tuesday.

At 5:25 p.m., with 5 percent — about 20,000 gallons — of 383,066 gallons of hydrogen loaded, sensors indicated higher-than-acceptable levels of hydrogen vapor in the shuttle's aft engine room, which is pressurized with inert nitrogen to prevent any possible chance of a fire or explosion.

Morris

"We revised it from 1975. It took us five years to do that."
Morris said the greatest challenges for the body often have been voting for what members knew would be an unpopular decision in front of a crowd of friends and neighbors who had packed the commission chambers to convince them to do otherwise.
"It takes a good bit of guts to disagree with your friends and neighbors when they are sitting there looking you in the eye and telling you to do something else. Some of them really take it personally," he said.

Morris said such an instance occurred several years ago when the commission voted in favor of allowing a cement contracting company to place a truck-fuel storage tank on the property that they had bought for their business.

No one showed up when the business applied for the permit to operate there in the first place, Morris said. But when the contractor applied for permission to put a fuel storage tank on the property to service its trucks, there was standing room only in the commission chambers.
"People were lined up outside the door to protest it," Morris said. "I think we voted to pass it anyway. I know I did. It was an accepted use for that area."

In such instances, Morris has received angry anonymous phone calls.

"They'd call me in the middle of the night and say, '...Who's paying you? How much did you get for that?'"

Morris shrugged it off.
"It's part of the job. I'll miss being on the commission. But my wife won't miss it," he joked.

Morris said because of all the progress the commission has made in the past several years, it shouldn't have any trouble handling the boomtown-like growth that has been forecasted for years, but that just may be occurring with such expansions as those due at the airport and developments such as the Seminole Mall.

"They've got a really good framework to work from. I think it'll be a smooth road," he said. "There may be a few bumps, of course, but I think they'll do just fine."

Planning and Zoning Commissioner Joe Denison said Morris won't be missed much because he will still be around.

"He's done a great job while

I've worked with him," Denison said. "He has more experience than anyone else."

"I'll still be around," Morris said. "Just because I'm not serving (on the commission) doesn't mean I won't be involved. I'll come down to give my opinion from time to time."

Morris was the chairman of the commission this year and five other years.

Budget

ance lines — that is, unusual lines such as for rock concerts or opera singers' voices. There are also slightly higher taxes on utility bills and on corporate fees.

Martinez has had little to say about the negotiations, although he reportedly opposes the tax increases for beer and soda pop.

Also in the finance package is language requiring companies collecting Florida sales tax to hand the money over faster to the Department of Revenue, making about $200 million available to make up a shortfall in the current budget year.

That brings the total revenue package to about $1 billion. The extra money is needed because the existing taxes on sales and corporations are not bringing in enough money to meet the increased demand in a number of high-cost areas, including the schools and social services, lawmakers argue.

Another item still on the agenda as the 1990 session wound toward its scheduled midnight Friday adjournment was the $26.4-billion budget for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

Members of a House-Senate conference committee on the budget announced late Monday that they were deadlocked over how to divide state matching funds between the school districts. They also were struggling to resolve disagreements of a juvenile justice package sought by Gustafson.

Gustafson's proposed reforms, designed to house troubled kids in small group homes, started out with a $71 million price tag and has already been whittled down to $50 million.

Meanwhile, the House Finance and Tax Committee Tuesday afternoon approved a $5.7-billion state transportation package, but opponents said at least one of the amendments guarantees that it will be vetoed if it remains in the bill. The plan is essentially the same one approved by the Senate last week, in that it would raise the state gas tax in Florida counties that already levy the maximum 6- or 7-cent per gallon local fuel option by the full 4 cents. Those with lower taxes would pay less.

An amendment approved Tuesday by the House committee would equalize the local-option gas tax in all Florida counties over the next four years, so that eventually all counties will pay the same amount.

Rep. Daniel Webster, R-Orlando, said that plan amounts to a statewide gas tax, which is exactly what opponents say will cause Martinez to veto the bill if it reaches his desk.

Martinez is opposed to any statewide tax increases and also insists on local public hearings before any county adds additional gas taxes.

The bill must still pass out of the House and then on to the Senate before it hits the governor's desk.

City Hall

Currently city hall employees are housed in 2,700 square feet in the Shoppes at Lake Mary shopping center at Country Club Road and Lake Mary Boulevard. Old city hall, which is used for commission meetings and was once a community center and a hardware store, is 1,350 square feet.
"We picked up a little more space with our 14,000 square feet," Welling said.

Litton said the new building will not be bursting at the seams with employees as the old location has been.

"Now there is plenty of room for expansion. We needed to expand our clerical positions last year and just didn't have the room, now we do," Litton said. "This is a very functional building and will serve the needs of the city for years to come," he said.

Developers

county approvals are expected in mid-December.

Three of the eight current proposals were refused by commissioners in March. Then, commissioners voted unanimously to refuse a land use change for 24 acres south of State Road 46 west of Interstate 4 from homes and offices to commercial uses proposed by county planning commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski.

Residents living near the site said they could accept living with offices nearby, but not stores. Commissioners said they preferred offices at the site too. They said any development at the site was premature until Grant Line Road is extended along the site's eastern edge.

Owners of the property include former county commissioners Kwiatkowski and Bob Hattaway and former county attorney Tom Freeman.

Kwiatkowski's latest proposal is for a planned commercial development, which would allow greater development restrictions. The project, Grant Line Center, would have 140,700 square feet of commercial uses on the southern end of the property with three additional business sites on SR 46.

Kwiatkowski is offering to leave a 30-foot-wide natural "buffer" between the stores and Old SR 46 south of the property. He has also proposed an 80-foot-wide natural buffer and 20-foot drainage ditch along the site's western edge next to homes.

Kwiatkowski also proposes to replace wetlands destroyed during construction with new wetlands off the site. County regulations require no more than 10 percent of wetlands can be disturbed without replacement. Approximately 60 percent of the site is wetlands and 40 percent is prone to flooding, county staff reports show.

Developer Bob Hattaway is also seeking for a second time approval of his proposed Magnolia Lake development near Chuluota. Hattaway angered area residents earlier this year by proposing to build up to 660 homes on the 221-acre tract east of the Old State Road 13 railroad right of way. Most homes surrounding the site are built on one-acre or larger parcels.

Commissioners denied the project in March, saying they preferred a lower-density planned development. Hattaway is now proposing a planned residential development with 218 homes, a density of about one home per acre.

Another effort will be made by Sami Hereich to build a 400-home residential development on 436 acre acres northeast of Lake Mills in the Chuluota area. About a quarter of the site's area is in Lake Mills. Hereich is now proposing to build 395 homes on about 200 acres of the site. The remaining area will be used for a clubhouse, open areas and drainage.

Commissioners will consider a new development proposal for Chuluota immediately south of the proposed Magnolia Lakes site. Arthur S. Bothers has proposed to build more than 600 homes on 227 acres. Chuluota residents have opposed any densities higher than about one home per acre.

Other proposals under county consideration beginning in August include a nine-acre site south of Orange Boulevard east of the intersection of North Indiana Street. Michael J. Good has proposed a land use change from rural to low density residential, with a potential of nearly 30 homes.

Excelsior Properties has proposed to build up to 36 homes on 12 acres south of Orange Avenue west of I-4. ETOR Properties has proposed to build a 258-unit apartment complex on 25 acres north of Greenwood Lakes.

Tempers fly over fish catch

ELKINS, W.Va. — High waters allowed a fish to get away and led to a shooting incident. State police arrested Freddie Tingler, 23, of Bowden, and charged him with the malicious wounding Monday of 27-year-old Timothy Richards of Shinnston after the two men argued about the ownership of a fish. Police said Tingler had stocked a stream near his home with fish, but recent rains caused some of them to escape due to high water. Authorities say when Tingler found Richards reeling in fish below his dam, he got angry, and an argument ensued.

During the brouhaha, police said, Tingler shot Richards once in the leg with a .22 caliber pistol he had with him.

Tingler was being held in the Randolph County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond; Richards was in satisfactory condition at an Elkins hospital.

Arkansas Gov. Clinton wins nomination

Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton captured his sixth straight Democratic gubernatorial nomination, while in Kentucky, Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., easily won renomination and will meet Democratic primary victor Harvey Sloane in November.

If Clinton, 43, who has governed Arkansas for 10 of the past 12 years, wins re-election and completes another term, he will have served as governor longer than anyone in the state's 154-year history.

In Kentucky, Sloane defeated John Brock while McConnell beat Tommy Klein, who said he ran for office because he needed a job.

With 98 percent of the Republican precincts reporting, McConnell led Klein 88.6 percent to 11.4 percent. With 98.1

percent of the Democratic precincts reporting, Sloane led Brock 59 percent to 41 percent.

Navy reacts to woman's charges

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Hoping to minimize fallout from a female midshipman's resignation this month after charging that male classmates harassed her, Naval Academy officials promised to increase penalties for hazing and opened up new lines of communication for plebes who feel victimized.

This month, 19-year-old Gwen Dreyer, a second-year student at the academy, resigned, saying she had lost faith in the institution after officials meted out little punishment to midshipmen that had harassed her.

Dreyer accused male classmates of handcuffing her to a urinal and taking photographs of her.

Adm. Virgil Hull Jr., the academy's superintendent, issued his four-part plan Tuesday to re-establish the rights of all midshipmen at the institution, intending to block any future incidents of harassment or hazing.

South African president cancels visit

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — President Frederik de Klerk abruptly put off a trip to Washington next month because it would occur too close to a scheduled White House visit and speech to Congress by South African black leader Nelson Mandela.

The decision Tuesday also avoids a possibly nasty confrontation with American anti-apartheid activists who objected to de Klerk's plans to meet President Bush before Mandela's scheduled visit.

Senior government sources said it was unlikely de Klerk would visit the United States this year.

Quake hits Soviet Union, Europe

MOSCOW — An earthquake centered in the Carpathian Mountains shook the southwestern Soviet Union and other parts of Europe Wednesday afternoon, forcing the evacuation and closure of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said preliminary information showed the quake measured about 6.0 on the Richter scale and was felt strongly in Kishinev, Moldavia, about 700 miles southwest of Moscow and near the Romanian border.

Crowds embrace Yeltsin victory

MOSCOW — Hundreds of people took to the streets in celebration of the parliamentary election of maverick Boris Yeltsin as president of the Russian republic, hoisting portraits of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's chief rival and showering him with flowers.

Yeltsin's defeat Tuesday of Alexander Vlasov, the incumbent Russian premier and a non-voting member of the Soviet Communist Party's ruling Politburo, ended a two-week deadlock in the struggle for the giant republic's effective presidency.

Canada lawmakers OK limits on abortion

OTTAWA — Parliament voted 140-131 to approve a law Tuesday that would forbid doctors to perform abortions unless a woman's health or life is endangered. The action upset abortion advocates and opponents.

The law must be approved by the non-elected Senate before it becomes law, but that is expected to be only a formality.

Canada has been without an abortion law since January 1988, when the Supreme Court ruled the existing law unconstitutional because it restricted women's right to an abortion.

Under the new law, criminal sanctions, including a maximum penalty of two years in jail, would apply to any

Surprises not expected at the summit

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, staggering politically under the mounting pressures of ethnic unrest and economic instability at home, arrives here for a three-day summit with President Bush that will focus on obstacles facing both nations as they chart the future of East-West relations.

With chief political rival Boris Yeltsin capturing the presidency of the giant and powerful Russian republic, and uncertainty clouding the potential for summit pacts on trade and arms control, Gorbachev planned to travel to Washington Wednesday evening for talks to begin Thursday at the White House.

"This is not a summit devoted to the celebration of agreements that we can sign," said a senior Bush administration official. "It is a summit designed to do the hard work of trying to overcome the remaining obstacles that stand in the way of transforming East-West relations."

Gorbachev's efforts to thwart secessionist movements by the Baltic republics and U.S. demands for de-escalation of that crisis as well as the faltering Soviet economy and tensions on German reunification top the summit agenda.

Gorbachev now in Canada, takes walk in Ottawa

United Press International

OTTAWA — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, leaving behind economic woes, Baltic secessionist movements and nationalist upheaval in the Caucasus, arrived in Canada prior to his summit with President Bush and strolled through downtown Ottawa to the delight of adoring Canadians.

Gorbachev's schedule today included laying a wreath at the National War Memorial and making a public address at the National Art Gallery before flying to Washington, where he was expected to arrive about 6:30 p.m. EDT.

About 1,500 Canadians of Baltic heritage planned to demonstrate Wednesday against Gorbachev's measures in that region to prevent the secession of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania from the Soviet Union. A few Lithuanians demonstrated Tuesday in front of the Soviet Embassy.

Soon after his arrival Tuesday, Gorbachev addressed yet another challenge to his authority, saying his country could be in for "difficult times" if maverick communist Boris Yeltsin, his main rival just elected president of the Soviet Union's giant Russian Republic, is "playing political games."

Among more than 1,000 people who welcomed Gorbachev — accompanied by his wife, Raisa, and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze — at the Canadian Forces Airport in Ottawa were 850 boisterous schoolchildren who waved Soviet and Canadian flags and shouted greetings.

After reviewing a 100-member Honor Guard dressed in scarlet tunics, white gloves and white pith helmets, Gorbachev unexpectedly waded into the milling crowd.

Study: Blacks lead disabled population

United Press International
TALLAHASSEE — Florida's social service agencies could do more to reach the disproportionate number of disabled blacks in the state, a Florida State University professor says.
Fred Seamon, an assistant professor of public administration, found that 5.8 percent of Florida's blacks are disabled, compared with only 4.1 percent of whites and 3.2 percent of Hispanics.
"Unfortunately, most service-delivery systems tend to treat all groups the same," Seamon said. "There are some special needs that blacks have that some social-service systems have yet to fully recognize."
Many blacks lack transportation to reach needed services, especially those who live in rural areas, Seamon said. Blacks also often lose out on services because they mistrust the political system, he said.
"Look at the census, for example," he said. "There are black neighborhoods where a census worker won't get correct information because folks don't know how that information is going to be used."
The study found that 50,500 blacks, 226,852 whites and 20,296 Hispanics are disabled in Florida.

Public service video begins production in Casselberry

By J. BRADLEY OILLING
Herald staff writer
SANFORD — Lights flashed and screens waited yesterday as a police motorcycle and cruisers sped down Seminole Boulevard in hot pursuit — of nothing.
Sanford police officers at the boulevard yesterday morning, but it was not a catch fleeing would be before drug dealers, although eventually the result may be the same.
It was to film the opening of what will be a 20-minute public service film on drug abuse and crime prevention.
For about $3,000, Casselberry Video Productions is creating the video for the police department, police chief Steve Harriett said.
Harriett said the money to pay for the crime prevention and drug abuse project is coming from money and assets seized by police from drug-related arrests.
"It would actually cost them about $10,000," Harriett said.

They are doing this for us because they want to make a contribution to the community."
The film eventually will be available for schools and civic groups to educate their students or members.
"The project started when the police Benevolent Association was trying to sell advertising for a booklet on crime prevention and drug abuse," Harriett said.
When we contacted Casselberry Video Productions, they said, "Tell us what we'll do something better. We'll film a video."
The video will be about 20 minutes long and will all be done in segments to be filmed at the convenience of the police department and the production company.
"This is by no means a full time thing," Harriett said. "We don't have an exact plan. We'll do a little bit here and a little bit there. We don't have a special deadline."

St. Petersburg's dome Florida 'Field of Dreams'

By VICTOR GALVAN
United Press International
ST. PETERSBURG — For Rick Dodge there wasn't a voice in the wind saying "If you build it, they will come."
But like the farmer in the movie "Field of Dreams," the assistant city manager for St. Petersburg did have a dream to build a baseball field — only this time the field was a $119-million major league stadium in a city without a team.
"It was a dream — a vision — that part was like the movie," Dodge said.
The cavernous, 14,000-seat Florida Suncoast Dome was still under construction and cable when the Chicago White Sox came within minutes in 1988 of moving to St. Petersburg and becoming the Florida White Sox, only a last ditch effort by Illinois lawmakers kept the team in the windy city.
The Astrodome-sized Suncoast Dome opened in late February and speculation that St. Petersburg and Denver were front runners in the race to land two National League expansion teams planned for 1993.
Located on the edge of downtown, the 22-story tilted dome rests in 60 acres of what was once a gas plant about a mile inland. It is the newest and arguably most awkward-looking structure in Pinellas County.
It's tilted dome, General Manager Terry Oliver said, "because it was less expensive to build it that way."
Dodge, a knowledgeable, 40-year-old man with a mustache, said he was pressing two bond issues without a vote by taxpayers — one for $85 million and another for $2.4 million — was a political gamble in a city that many observers believe would never have approved the measure.
"We didn't need to put a referendum to pass a waste management bond," Oliver said. "We didn't need to put a referendum to pass a stadium bond," Oliver said. "We didn't need to put a referendum to pass a stadium bond," Oliver said.
The dome, which is also the county's convention hall, concert and events hall and sports arena, competes a 10-year, two-phase plan to make downtown a gathering place for artists, developers and residents, said Rick Messert, deputy city manager for downtown development.
"It first came the $120-million expansion of the Pier which juts out about a mile into the Gulf of Mexico, then the $25.5-million Bayfront Center theater complex."

Monthly stipends are gleaned from Pinellas County hotel-guest sales and excise taxes. That money is spoken for at a time when city bean counters are trying to strip more than $4 million from St. Petersburg's 1991 budget.
Critics of the dome such as New York Yankee's owner George Steinbrenner, who has since decided to publicly support the complex, have argued that Major League Baseball wanted cities vying for teams against building stadiums.
"And there is no guarantee that the pros will be making a stop in St. Petersburg," Baseball executive tips have been sealed and Florida's second largest television market Miami is also actively pursuing a team for Joe Robbie Stadium. Many sports observers believe it is unlikely Florida will get both expansion teams.
But contrary to popular opinion, Dodge said the dome was never constructed with the sole intent of luring a professional baseball team.
"We want a baseball team, and that is the dome's primary purpose," Dodge said. "What's better than having a major industry move downtown that's non-polluting with an annual payroll of $100 million?"
But having the Suncoast Dome here is an incentive — a springboard for developers to come and invest millions of dollars in St. Petersburg," he said. "That's the key. (The dome) is part of our strategy to invigorate downtown."
The dome, which is also the county's convention hall, concert and events hall and sports arena, competes a 10-year, two-phase plan to make downtown a gathering place for artists, developers and residents, said Rick Messert, deputy city manager for downtown development.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

White Sox win fourth straight

CHICAGO — Lance Johnson scored on a wild pitch by Lance McCullers with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning, helping Chicago extend their winning streak to four games with a 5-4 victory over New York.

With one out, Ozzie Guillen drew a walk off Jeff Robinson, 0-3, bringing in reliever Lee Guetterman. Johnson forced Guillen and pinch-hitter Ivan Calderon singled him to third. McCullers relieved and Calderon stole second.

Carlton Fisk was then intentionally passed and Carlos Martinez batted for Dave Gallagher. McCullers threw an 0-1 pitch in the dirt, making a winner of Seminole Community College graduate Bobby Thigpen, 2-2, and dropping the Yankees to their fourth straight loss.

In the AL it was Baltimore 5, Minnesota 1; Boston 2, Texas 1; Kansas City 4, Detroit 3; Milwaukee 5, Seattle 3; Toronto 2, Oakland 1 and California 2, Cleveland 1.

Celtics name Gavitt director

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics are expected to announce Wednesday the appointment of Big East Commissioner Dave Gavitt as director of basketball operations, according to published reports.

Gavitt, 52, accepted the offer Tuesday and was to be formally announced at a ceremony at Boston Garden. It was reported that Gavitt will be given almost total control of the team's day-to-day operation.

The move comes as longtime Celtics mentor Red Auerbach is reportedly seeking a reduced role in the team's administration as it attempts to rebuild after several disappointing seasons.

The selection of a head coach is seen as Gavitt's first duty. The Celtics have been without a head coach since firing Jimmy Rodgers last month after the team's loss to the New York Knicks in the first round of this year's playoffs.

Gavitt led Providence College to the NCAA Final Four in 1973, was coach of the 1980 Olympic team when the country boycotted the games, and is considered an expert on the emerging international aspects of basketball.

Quarry suffers 'freak' injury

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. — Former heavyweight contender Jerry Quarry has suffered a cut over his eye in a freak injury that will force postponement of his planned fight June 9, his promoter said Tuesday.

Gary Pliner, of Janesville, said the 45-year-old Quarry, who has not fought in 13 years except for two exhibitions in 1983, suffered a cut over his eye during the weekend that will take six to eight weeks to heal. He said Quarry received the cut when someone accidentally opened a cabinet door while the boxer was washing dishes and struck Quarry.

The injury occurred in a Lake Geneva condo where Quarry was staying and Pliner called it a "freak accident."

Although he planned the fight June 9 at the Americana Resort in Lake Geneva, the state Department of Regulation and Licensing has not decided yet on whether it will grant a permit for the fight card. Quarry's fitness to fight is one of the questions being considered.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pirates find fifth starter

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Pirates, in search of a fifth starter to replace injured John Smiley, may have found him in Bob Patterson during a 9-5 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night.

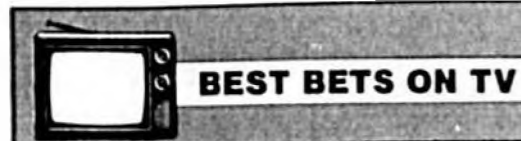

In his first start since Oct. 1, the 31-year-old left-hander put in 6 1-3 strong innings, giving up three runs and six hits, walking none and striking out six. The outing put Patterson's record at 3-1 and stretched the Pirates' winning streak to four games.

The Dodgers went into a game on a hitting tear — they had 31 hits in their two previous games. But they only managed three during Patterson's first six innings.

Four players — Sid Bream, Reynolds, Don Slaught and Andy Van Slyke each had two RBI in the game as the Pirates took advantage of Fernando Valenzuela's early control problems and the second straight bad outing by reliever Pat Perry.

In other NL games, Cincinnati dropped New York 2-1, San Francisco downed Chicago 6-2, St. Louis tripped Houston 3-2, and San Diego at Philadelphia was rained out.

Thermo-Carbon rolls on

Suggs, Paulk homer in win over Harcar

From staff reports

SANFORD — Thermo-Carbon gave up its first runs of the season but still had enough offense to beat Harcar Aluminum Products 16-10 and remain the lone unbeaten team in the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Softball League at Chase Park.

In the other games, Seko Air Freight evened its record with a 14-0 whitewash of the Honey Beers and Ensley, Incorporated came back from a 10-3 deficit to post a 19-15 triumph over In Home Medical.

With one week left in the first round of play, Thermo-Carbon stands alone at 4-0, followed by Ensley (3-1), Seko and Harcar (both at 2-2) and the Honey Beers and In Home Medical (both 1-3).

Next week, Seko takes on Ensley, the Honey Beers face Thermo-Carbon and Harcar challenges In Home Medical.

The night opened with Seko getting a five-hit pitching performance from Peggie Pullman and 16 hits from its offense to pick up its second straight win.

Seko took a 4-0 lead in the first when Denise Levinson and Faye Kennedy singled, Sandy Reid tripled and Pullman homered. After a scoreless second inning, Seko finished the game with a 10-run third to end the game by the mercy rule.

Pacing the Seko attack were Kennedy (three singles, three runs scored), Bobbie Mosley (three singles, two runs scored), Reid (triple, single, two runs scored), Levinson (two singles, run scored) and Pullman and Janet Morris (one home run and one run each).

Also contributing were Sally Foust, Sue McCrae, Sonya Poole and Rene Carter (one single and one run scored each).

Getting the hits for the Honey Beers were Gretchen Walker (two singles) and Sandy Manning, Jodi Doyle and Annette Guazekowiak.

In game No. 2, Thermo-Carbon kept its record unblemished despite being out-hit 20-19.

Thermo-Carbon scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning when Michelle Widener walked, Sharon Paulk singled, Betty Divens

Seko delivers

Faye Kennedy (sliding into third, left) had three singles and three runs scored as Seko Air Freight evened its record at 2-2 with a 14-0 blowout of the Honey Beers Tuesday night at Chase Park. Seko pounded the offerings of Honey Beer pitcher Barbara Foster (below) for 16 hits.

Mets replace Johnson with Harrelson

United Press International

CINCINNATI — Goldenrod resident Davey Johnson was fired Tuesday as manager of the "underachieving" New York Mets and replaced by third base coach Bud Harrelson, who pledged to "fire up" the disappointing club.

"If I don't get a concerted effort out of a player, it's time for him to sit and watch," said Harrelson. "I feel in my heart this ballclub will be fired up."

"When I was a player, I was embarrassed when a manager was fired because when a manager is fired it's usually because the players haven't been doing the job."

Mets' infielder Dave Magadan said that was exactly the case with the Mets.

"I'm surprised they didn't fire all the players and bring up Tidewater (a Mets' minor league team)," said Magadan. "It's unfortunate Davey was fired because the players had a big hand in the problem. Maybe Buddy will shake things up."

Mets General Manager Frank Cashen said that's why he fired Johnson and promoted Harrelson.

"Our club was underachieving," said Cashen. "The time had come for a new direction. Not all the blame was Davey's. Part of the blame was mine and part of it was the players'."

Henderson sets new AL steal record

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rickey Henderson of the Oakland Athletics broke Ty Cobb's American League record for career steals Tuesday night, and said the major-league record could fall by August.

Henderson swiped his 893rd base in the sixth inning of a 2-1 losing effort against the Toronto Blue Jays. Having struck down a 62-year-old standard, he now targets Billy Hamilton, who is second on the all-time list with 937. Lou Brock is the leader with 938.

"As far as Lou Brock — it's hard to project," Henderson said. "But if we keep playing the way we are then it's possible by the end of July."

Brock, and his all-time record, have been on Henderson's mind since Opening Day.

"Brock is the No. 1 base stealer," Henderson said. "I think this record kind of ties in with Brock because he stole all his in the National League. When I first broke in, Brock was a broadcaster with Boston and he told me he thought I would be the one who would break his record."

"I don't know what it was, but he saw something in me and I think it made me want to try that much harder to be that much better."

Henderson, in his third at-bat of the game, doubled into the left-field corner against starter David Wells. On a 2-0 pitch to Carney Lunsford, Henderson stole third easily.

Hometown heroes win again — Portland goes one up

United Press International

PORTLAND, Ore. — Thanks to Clyde Drexler, the Western Conference championship series still resembles an old cowboy movie — the guys wearing white always win.

Drexler snapped out of scoring slump with 32 points, including the go-ahead free throws with 34.4 seconds left Tuesday night, as the Portland Trail Blazers maintained their precious home-court advantage in the best-of-seven series with a 120-114 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

Drexler entered scoring just 16.5 points a game in the series, almost seven points below his season average. But he exploded for his series-high by hitting 13 of 24 shots.

"Rick (Portland Coach Adelman) just told me to be more aggressive," said Drexler, who also had 10 rebounds, "but I can't give away any secrets. We just did a little thing or two.

Portland, 9-0 at home in the playoffs, leads the series 3-2 and can advance to its first NBA finals in 13 years with a victory Thursday night at Phoenix.

The Trail Blazers have struggled recently on the road, dropping their last five games by an average of 18.5 points.

"But I don't care what has happened, we can play excellent ball on the road," Portland's Buck Williams said.

But should they fail to close out the series Thursday night, the Blazers will play host to a seventh game Saturday. The home team has won every game.

The Suns, who won the previous two games at home by a combined 46 points, fell for the 20th straight time at Portland. They have lost their three road games in the series by margins of 1, 2 and 6 points.

"It's about time they quit hiding under the umbrella of their home-court advantage," frustrated Phoenix Coach Fitzsimmons said.

Said an equally frustrated Tom Chambers, "We've been here before. What do you want us to say we quit?"

Portland's Jerome Kersey, who had 21 points and 11 rebounds, snapped a 109-109 tie with two foul shots, then led Drexler for a sensational slam in transition for a 113-109 lead with 2:41 to play.

But the Suns retaliated with five straight points. Mark West hit a free throw. Dan Majerle scored off a difficult drive and Chambers made two free throws to put Phoenix ahead 114-113 with 47.3 seconds left.

However, Drexler attacked Majerle on the baseline, drew a foul and sank two free throws 13

The Citadel eliminates Hurricanes

United Press International

CORAL GABLES — Chris Coker and Tony Skole hit solo home runs in the sixth inning Tuesday, leading The Citadel to its first trip to the College World Series with a 4-1 victory over Miami in the NCAA Atlantic Regional.

The Bulldogs became the eighth and final team to qualify for the College World Series, which begins Friday in Omaha, Neb. The Citadel — with an enrollment of 1,870 in Charleston, S.C. — is the first military school to reach the CWS.

With the score tied 1-1 in the sixth, Coker banged the second pitch from Miami starter Oscar Munoz over the left-field fence for a home run. After Phil Tobin struck out, Skole hit his solo shot to left field.

Hepatitis may call for a specialist

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had hepatitis for 76 days, and my doctor says mine is an unusual case. I might have it for the rest of my life. My whole body is yellow. Is there any cure or medication I can take?

DEAR READER: In the United States, hepatitis (liver infection) is most frequently caused by a virus. The most common types of viral hepatitis are hepatitis A (transmitted by food contamination and raw shellfish) and hepatitis B (transmitted by infected blood transfusions or shared needles among drug addicts). Irrespective of the type of virus, hepatitis is customarily marked by jaundice (yellow skin), due to a backup of bile from malfunctioning liver cells. Hepatitis is also caused by alcohol abuse, mononucleosis, drug allergies, and non-A/non-B viruses.

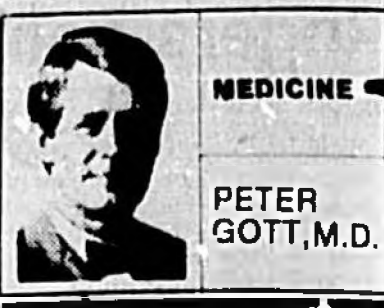

Most forms of viral hepatitis last two to four weeks. Therefore, your hepatitis, which has been present 2-1/2 months, is distinctly unusual. I worry that you may be slipping into subacute or chronic hepatitis, more serious conditions for which you should be under the care of a liver specialist or gastroenterologist. Chronic hepatitis is associated with more extensive liver damage and a much poorer prognosis.

However, I cannot comment on your prognosis because I don't know the cause of your hepatitis. You should obtain this information from your doctor.

In any case, following your recovery from this ailment, you may remain infectious for many years, meaning that the virus — although dormant in your liver — still lives in your tissues and could be transmitted to another susceptible person through a needle stick or a blood transfusion. This is the reason the Red Cross prohibits patients who have had hepatitis from donating blood.

I suspect you are going to have to wait out your hepatitis, if it is caused by a virus. There is no cure for viral hepatitis; treatment is for symptoms only and consists of rest and a balanced diet. Ask your doctor — or the gastroenterologist — what, if any, treatment might help you feel more comfortable during your recovery.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

After North and South had bid their hands to the hilt, South was on the right track to making six hearts. He won the opening diamond lead, ruffed a diamond and then played a low spade from dummy. When East played the eight-spot, South reasoned that East did not hold the king. So declarer put in the nine, West winning the 10. If West now tamely returns a trump, declarer will win in his hand and lead the queen of spades. It does West no good to cover (all the spades in dummy will then become good), and declarer will let the queen ride. A diamond ruff will now be followed by the ruff of a low spade. Declarer can then pick up the ace of clubs, and play the ace of spades and the good seven of spades, discarding losing clubs. If West plays another diamond after winning the 10 of spades, declarer can ruff, draw trumps by overtaking dummy's jack of hearts, and then pass the queen of spades as before. (Remember, if West covers, dummy's 7-6-5 of spades will all be good.) After the queen of spades holds, declarer plays out all his trumps. Eventually West must unguard either the spade king or the club king, and the slam makes. Brian Glubok, who sat West, saw all this coming, so he led the king of clubs after winning his spade 10, sacrificing a trick. But after taking the ace of clubs, declarer could not work out a way to make a later trick with the ace of spades and still ruff his other diamond loser, and the enterprising slam had to fail.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 31, 1990

Many interesting changes could be in store for you in the year ahead. Meaningful transformations may occur where both your social life and career are concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Play a lone hand in your commercial endeavors today, because partners might lack your dedication and motivation. Their indifferent attitude could offset your enthusiasm. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you might have involvements with persons who will come up with rather bright ideas. However, they will need your mental adroitness to develop them to their fullest potential.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're still under influences where money might come to you more readily than usual. Be dollar minded and also look for ways to make good things better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be afraid to take on more assignments than usual today. You are likely to perform better if you feel circumstances are prodding you a bit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Several good things might be developing for you at this time that you'll be eager to discuss with others. However, it might be best to keep what's occurring to yourself a bit longer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions in general are very hopeful for you in this cycle, but you are likely to be luckiest in situations that have impressive potential. Big is better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be quite successful today, especially if you are able to collectively link together several related objectives. Make one from the many.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you might have an opportunity to teach someone you like how to handle a testy situation similar to one you successfully dealt with in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your best chances for adding to your resources today aren't likely to come through your customary channels, but you could score through a new one you just opened.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone who has never been very cooperative with you could do an about face at this time and turn into an ally upon whom you can truly depend. You'll be brought together in an unusual way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take a little extra time today to organize your procedures in advance before tackling tasks. When your tools are laid out and your plans made, you'll be very productive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your greatest asset today is likely to be your mental agility. This attribute will be effectively utilized in your social involvements. It will enhance your popularity and win admirers.

Modest cook makes meals to brag about

By Beverly Best
Herald correspondent

FOOD & NUTRITION

SANFORD — Our Cook of the Week, Barbara LeCompt, shares her love for Sanford with the love of her life, Hans Stoffregen.

The couple moved to Sanford a year ago after careful planning. They observed and compared other towns. The hustle and bustle of the crowded city that often forces disillusioned city dwellers to retreat to a small town was one of the reasons they left the Pine Hills area of Orlando.

Here they found "the small town traditional values that are so obvious in Sanford," LeCompt said.

The close proximity of Lake Monroe was one of many factors that helped their decision. The clean, well-kept neighborhoods were another factor in adopting Sanford as their hometown.

They feel the old homes that still stand in Sanford are full of charm, commenting that they plan to buy an older home in the near future.

Although Stoffregen highly recommends LeCompt as a cook, frequently praising her skill, LeCompt displays a quiet reserved manner and does not flaunt her excellent cooking ability.

She smiles and reports that "The man in my life is a big cater." The hot Florida sun and the slight afternoon breeze seep through the sitting room windows, adding an air of cheerfulness to the Ninth Street duplex LeCompt and Stoffregen call home. They display European art throughout their home. A bronze bust of Albert Einstein sits upon an antique record player that Hans picked up at a garage sale. Two unusual pieces make up the floor decor. LeCompt explains she wasn't sure what they were when she found them, but later decided they were once used as a water fountain. But she notes that she is only speculating.

A bit of the outdoors spruces up the sitting room. LeCompt points out the aloe vera plants, which she has used for medicinal purposes for minor burns. Walking to the window, she points to another aloe vera plant that surprisingly sprouted red blossoms. She transplanted it

Help find 'Dad of the Year'

The Sanford Herald is searching for an area dad deserving of our annual "Dad of the Year" title.

We need our readers to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by our panel of judges.

Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity, with specific examples or anecdotes about why your nominee is a special dad a plus. Your nominee need not be your own dad.

Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated but their nominators need not live in Seminole County.

Here's how to enter. Write us a letter about a special dad, telling us why he's so special.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include the nominee's name, street address, city and daytime phone number at the top of your letter.

At the end of your letter, include your name, address, daytime phone number and age, if under 18.

Deliver or mail to "Dad of the Year," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters.

Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday, June 8.

The top three winners will be featured in the Father's Day edition of the Herald, Sunday, June 17.

First of corn crop is finger-lickin' good

Drizzle with butter grill it, or whip up tasty corn chowder

MICROWAVE MAGIC
MIDGE MYCOFF

This past weekend our son-in-law, Len, went to Hoopers Farm in Zellwood for the first of the May corn crop. It was delicious! Len, a master of outdoor grilling, grilled some of the corn on the grill along with chicken. If you have never tried cooking corn that way you're missing a real treat. Pull back the husks, remove the silk, then replace the husk and place on the grill. Turn the ears occasionally. The moisture in the husks turns to steam and cooks the corn quite quickly. All of the sweet flavor of the corn remains in the tender kernels. You may also microwave the corn in its husk or remove the husk and wrap in plastic or place several ears in a shallow microwave safe container and cover. Use 100% power.

1 ear in husk M/W 3-5 minutes
2 ears in husk M/W 4-9 minutes
3 ears in husk M/W 9-12 minutes

Buttered corn-on-the-cob

minutes
4 ears in husk M/W 10-17 minutes
Time will be slightly less if the corn is husked. Select ears with fresh green husks, moist, fresh-cut stem ends and silk, free from decay. Avoid dried yellow husks. Look for plump, tender, milky kernels developed to the top of the ear. Large or dark yellow kernels indicate age. While corn is in season try these other corn recipes.

This old favorite can be made with modern methods.

CORN PUDDING

2 C. tender cut corn
1/2 C. sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
1/4 C. melted butter
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. black pepper
1 C. milk
Paprika

Mix all ingredients and pour into a 2-qt. casserole. Cover and microwave on 100% power for 5 minutes. Stir. Sprinkle with paprika. Reduce power to 50% and microwave 5-6 minutes or until almost set. Allow to stand for 5 minutes before serving.

For the hot days ahead a soup, salad and light dessert will be welcome at dinner or lunch time. This wholesome soup will satisfy most everyone.

FLORIDA CORN CHOWDER

1/2 C. chopped salt pork (bacon may be used as a substitute)
1/2 C. sliced celery
1/2 C. green pepper, diced
1 med. onion, chopped
2 potatoes, microcooked & diced
1 bay leaf
1 tsp. salt
1/4 C. flour
2 C. milk
1/2 C. light cream
1/2 C. fresh corn, cut from cob

In a 3-qt. casserole microwave salt pork 2-3 minutes on 100% power. Add onion, celery, and green pepper. Microwave 2-3 minutes. Mix flour with small amount of milk and add to the above mixture along with diced potatoes. Add remaining milk, salt, and bay leaf and microwave on 100% power until thickened. Add cream and corn. Microwave on 100% power 4-6 minutes.

When you have a few extra ears of corn make this Pennsylvania-Dutch relish. It's always one of the seven sweet and seven sours on the table. It's nie to have as a side dish to serve along with any meat or poultry.

FRESH CORN RELISH

1 1/2 C. fresh cut corn
1/2 C. finely diced celery
1 Tbsp. chopped green pepper
3 Tbsp. wine vinegar
2 Tbsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
3 Tbsp. chopped onion
1/2 tsp. tumeric
1 Tbsp. chopped pimento, minced

Microwave corn in a 2-qt. casserole on 100% power for 2-5 minutes. Add the remaining ingredients except the pimento and microwave on 100% power 3 heat thoroughly (3-5 minutes). Add pimento. Cool and refrigerate.

Do you have a question or suggestion about microwave cooking? Midge Mycoff will use her column to answer. Address letters to: Midge Mycoff, Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave. Sanford, 32771.

Woman's obesity has been her longtime load to bear

DEAR ABBY: So "Slim and Satisfied" thinks no one would tell an obese person, "Gee, you're fat! Why don't you go on a diet?" Well, it's happened to me dozens of times. Total strangers have stopped me on the street and said, "You have such a pretty face, have you ever tried — (Weight Watchers, Optifast, NutriSystem, Overeaters Anonymous, TOPS, Diet Center, Jenny Craig, hypnosis, or that wonderful doctor who does stomach-stapling surgery?"

I've had people come up to me in restaurants and say, "Do you really think you should be eating that?" (The "that" could be anything from a salad to dessert they don't think a fat person should be eating anything period.)

Hairdressers and makeup specialists have told me that it's pointless to bother about my hair or makeup, weighing as much as I do. And buying clothes is a nightmare. I either order mine by mail or have them made by a seamstress. If I enter a clothing store to buy a gift for someone, a salesperson is sure to approach me and say, "Sorry, we don't carry your size here."

I broke my arm in a car accident two years ago, and while I was waiting in the emergency room, a doctor appeared and said, "Boy, you really should lose some weight!" As if my weight had caused my broken arm! Most physicians believe that all fat people are lazy, weak-willed and undisciplined, rather than people who could be suffering from a genetic or metabolic problem.

I am 36 years old, and have been on more diets than I can count. A pediatrician put me on Metrecol when I was 8; another doctor gave me a 600-calorie-per-day diet when I was 11; still another put me in the hospital for a medically supervised fast when I was 13.

For the past year, I've been working with a great counselor who understands obesity. She has helped me more than all the diet doctors and weight-loss groups combined. I am learning to understand the connection between eating and hunger, which was lost in all those years of binging and dieting.

I know I'll never be thin because I'm genetically programmed to be fat — but I hope to find my natural weight through a program of learning to eat from hunger.

I hate exercising, but I do it every day, because I know it's important (for both fat and thin people) for health reasons. Abby, you've done a terrific job in educating the public about obesity and discrimination against fat people. You have helped fat people stop hating themselves and to understand that they have a physical problem — not a lack of willpower. I know this is too long for your column and you'll have to trim it, but please try to print some of it. I speak for so many people.

LOOKING BEYOND LOOKS

DEAR LOOKING: I haven't trimmed a word, because every word you've written is essential to your message. Please write again when your mission has been accomplished — as I know it will be. I want to print your success story as an inspiration to others who are also "Looking Beyond Looks."

DEAR ABBY: I take the commuter rail to and from Boston every day. Very often there are not enough seats for all the passengers and I have to stand for the 25-minute commute.

I ordinarily don't mind standing, except now I am seven months pregnant and it is very uncomfortable for me. I am writing to you because all the businessmen who take this train hide behind their newspapers and never offer their seat to a woman in my condition, an elderly person or one who is handicapped. These men most likely sit behind a desk all day anyway.

Please print this, Abby, so that these inconsiderate, mannerless men can read it in your column in the Boston Herald on their way to work in the morning.

Maybe it will revive the meaning of the word "gentleman."

DISGUSTED IN BOSTON
DEAR DISGUSTED: It's worth a try, but don't expect these sitting ducks to get a case of instant chivalry because this appears in my column.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

from her sister's garden six months ago, not knowing that it would bloom. Like all gardeners, she speaks with a sense of pride concerning the plants she has planted.

If Sanford had no other admirers, this couple would make up for it. The tone of contentment and the spark of love at first sight for the city is fluently spoken by LeCompt's and Stoffregen's words of praise for Sanford.

Stoffregen has many words of praise for the following recipes from LeCompt's file.

SPAGHETTI

- 1 lb. ground chuck
- 2 small cans tomato sauce
- 1 can tomato paste
- 1 Tbsp. oregano
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 Tbsp. basil
- 1 small bell pepper
- 1 small white onion
- 8 medium mushrooms
- 1/2 can black olives (pitted)
- 1 pressed clove garlic
- 1/2 tsp. sugar
- 1 small box of spaghetti noodles

To prepare: Dice bell pepper and onion. Slice mushrooms and black olives. Mix with ground chuck. Fry until meat is browned, drain fat. Stir in tomato sauce, tomato paste, oregano, bay leaf, basil, garlic and sugar. Allow to simmer for 1 hour.

Cook noodles 8-10 minutes in boiling water. Strain. Add sauce over noodles and serve.

LeCompt suggests a tossed salad and a red wine be served with this Italian favorite.

SHEPHERD'S PIE

- 1 lb. ground chuck
- 10 medium potatoes
- 1 can sweet corn
- 1 large bag shredded mild cheddar cheese
- 1 large bag shredded Swiss cheese
- 1 small onion
- 1 small can mushrooms
- 1 tsp. garlic salt
- 1 small bell pepper
- 1/2 tsp. pepper

To prepare: Preheat oven to 450°. Brown ground chuck with onions, mushrooms and bell pepper. Drain fat. Stir in garlic salt and pepper. Boil and mash potatoes. Put ground chuck in casserole dish, top with 1/2 bag of cheddar cheese, 1/2 bag of Swiss cheese and 1 can of corn. Top corn with remaining cheeses and add layer of mashed potatoes.

- Crust:
- 2 cups self-rising flour
 - 2/3 cup milk
 - 1/2 cup salad oil
 - 1/2 tsp. salt

Mix all ingredients. Knead dough to smooth consistency. Work dough to 1/2 inch thickness. Place on top of casserole and bake for 8-10 minutes, or until dough is browned.

IN THE SERVICE

Staff Sgt. Major

Army Staff Sgt. Michael A. Major participated in the recent military operations in Panama. The servicemember was sent with other U.S. military personnel to the Central American country to assist in operation "Just Cause," which resulted in the ouster of Panamanian dictator, Manuel Noriega.

Organic produce naturally good

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Shepherd Ogden believes the key to good-tasting vegetables is in the genes. And, judging from Ogden's background, the same goes for successful gardeners.

"My grandfather, Big Sam, could spit on the ground and something would grow," says Ogden, a third-generation organic farmer and seedsman. His grandfather, Samuel Ogden, was an organic-gardening pioneer and author of the definitive "Step-By-Step to Organic Vegetable Gardening."

"Gardening is a constant learning experience," Shepherd Ogden explains. And the first thing he learned when he took over from his father was to think small. "I started with one-quarter acre, thinking it would be easy. It soon looked God-forsaken with the weeds. The next year, I cut back to 2,500 square feet."

His advice to beginners is to start modestly: "You get a positive feedback from a small area. It's marvelous to see how great it is in the morning."

In the last decade, Ogden has mastered the short growing period in his home state of Vermont to become nationally known for a specialty produce farm stand and for bringing fancy gourmet vegetables to restaurants, and specialty and commercial growers. His "The Cook's Garden" mail-order seed catalog illustrates Ogden's growing success: it offers 50 varieties of lettuce, 20 cheries and 40 special salads, plus other gourmet vegetables and melons.

"I'm a lettuce nut," Ogden admits, "and was a pioneer in bringing 'mesclun,' a current food craze, to the United States." He selected a host of seeds from European sources to develop in Vermont, and also experimented on American ones. The mesclun is a special mix of French or Italian salad greens long popular on European tables and now available for restaurant and home use through such growers as Ogden.

Ogden says he knows nothing about chemical controls because his family never used them on their produce. An expert in integrated pest management, Ogden does use non-toxic, environmentally safe insecticides.

He says he objected to the use of chemicals, such as Alar on apples, and adds that too many growers use pesticides the way overzealous doctors prescribe pharmaceuticals. "There are lots of good salesmen out there, and they make a good case for their use. Chemicals too often are being used when they're not required. You don't have to be a good shot when you're using a shotgun. Just become a better shot."

"I know there is a lot of talk about organic produce being inferior in look and taste," Ogden continues. "But we cater to an urban clientele, and our customers are flabbergasted at our produce. It looks better and tastes better because we manage crops better and have quality control."

Ogden is a garden writer, and he and his wife collaborated on their new book, "The Cook's Garden" (Rodale Press, $14.95), which includes her recipes using produce straight from their Londonderry, Vt. property.

MESCLUN SALAD
 1 clove garlic, halved
 1 shallot, chopped
 2 tablespoons red-wine vinegar
 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
 1/2 cup olive oil
 3 cups mesclun or whole, young salad greens

Rub inside of a large salad bowl with garlic halves. Mix shallots and vinegars in bowl and let stand for 5 minutes. Pour oil into bowl in a slow steady stream, whisking until well blended. Add mesclun or greens, and toss with dressing. Serve immediately. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

If bitter greens are used, stir 1 tablespoon plain yogurt into dressing. Traditionally, a mesclun salad includes whatever greens are available wild or in the garden.

CELERIAC REMOULADE
 1/2 cup mayonnaise
 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
 2 tablespoons finely minced fresh parsley
 2 tablespoons finely minced fresh tarragon or 2 teaspoons dried tarragon
 1 clove garlic, minced
 2 sweet pickles, finely chopped (optional)

2 celeriac knobs, peeled and coarsely grated (2 to 2 1/2 cups)

In a medium-size bowl, mix together mayonnaise, mustard, parsley, tarragon, garlic and sweet pickles. If using, add celeriac and toss until completely coated. Cover and chill until ready to serve. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings. (Celeriac may be grated and dropped into boiling water briefly if it is a large and tough knob.)

Employee retires
 JoAnn Barnett, center, retired recently after 15 years of service at the Sanford Branch of the Central Florida Blood Bank. Wishing her a fond farewell are Sanford residents Loren Dougherty, left, who has donated 20 gallons of blood, and Mabel Chapman, who has donated 18 gallons of blood. Dougherty and Chapman have donated more blood than any other man and woman.

Mutant peanut lowers cholesterol

GAINESVILLE — A peanut variety planted 30 years ago has mutated into an unlikely ally in the battle against cholesterol. The variety produces an oil effective in lowering blood-cholesterol levels, reduces fat content in meat and gives peanut products a longer shelf life, said agronomist David Knauft with the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS) at the University of Florida.

"Sometime between 1977 and 1981 the variety became much higher in oleic acid. This produces an oil higher in mono-unsaturates that may be more effective than poly-unsaturates in lowering serum cholesterol," said Knauft, head of the IFAS peanut breeding program.

In addition, recent studies conducted at Texas A&M University show that oil high in mono-unsaturates has the potential to reduce the proportion of saturated fat in meat. When swine were fed a ration containing mono-unsaturated oil, for instance, the proportion of saturated fat in the pork was reduced from 40 percent to 15 percent, he said.

The mutated legume also should increase shelf life of peanut products. High levels of mono-unsaturated fats contained in the mutated variety are more stable, preventing rancidity in peanut butter and candies, Knauft said.

Nature's reproductive mistake was discovered by chance. Due to a split-pod characteristic the variety is commercially undesirable, but was kept in the IFAS breeding program to study its high yields. During routine analysis, the high oleic acid content was discovered, he said.

While the potential benefits from the mutation are many, split pods prevent commercial plantings. Knauft is cross-breeding it with established varieties and predicts success is two to three years away.

"The mutation is simply inherited, making it easier to transfer the characteristic into other peanut lines," he said. "Eventually, I would like all peanuts coming out of the Florida program high in oleic acid, which may help lower blood-cholesterol levels."

Historic dinner
 Top: Debbie and Henry Bowlin recently enjoyed a catered dinner at the Sanford Cultural Arts Building with about 50 other members of Sanford Historic Trust, Inc. Bottom: Mayor Betty Smith and Commissioner Lon Howell spoke to the group about ongoing restoration in the newly designated residential historic district, which is adjacent to the commercial district in downtown Sanford. The 13 block area was recently placed on the National Register of Historic Places. The dinner was held to celebrate the designation and to recognize National Preservation Week. The next meeting of the trust will be held Thursday, June 7, 7 p.m., at 205c East First Street.

Italian food fresh and full flavored

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Fresh and full-flavored regional foods of Italy are exciting, innovative and surprisingly simple to prepare.

The following dishes are a sampling of the variety of recipes to be found in the photographic, "Italy, the Beautiful Cookbook" (Knapp Press, $39.95):

Eggplant, one of the most popular vegetables in the cooking of the province of Campania, can be fried, grilled, sauteed with a little oil or used to add flavor to pizzas and spaghetti.

EGGPLANT WITH MOZZARELLA
 12 slices eggplant (best are dark purple, long and with few seeds), cut 3/8-inch thick
 Salt
 12 tomato slices
 12 fresh basil leaves
 12 thin slices mozzarella
 1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil
 Freshly ground pepper

Lightly sprinkle the eggplant slices with salt on both sides. Place them between two plates and top with a weight. Let eggplant drain for an hour.

Salt the tomato plants and let them drain for one hour.

Pat the eggplant slices dry. Cook them on a hot grill for a few minutes on each side or until tender. Arrange them on a plate and place a tomato slice, a mozzarella slice and a basil leaf on each. Drizzle with oil, season with salt and pepper and serve. Makes 6 servings.

In the province of Liguria, the true specialty is fish, always fresh and very simply cooked in its own broth with a little oil.

MUSSELSOUP
 4 pounds mussels
 2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
 2 garlic cloves, chopped
 3 tablespoons chopped parsley
 Juice of 1/2 lemon
 1/2 cup dry white wine
 1 cup water
 Salt and pepper
 6 slices firm, coarse-textured bread

Scrub and wash the mussels. Place in a large covered stockpot over moderate heat just until they open; discard any that do not open. Strain mussel liquid.

Heat oil in a saucepan over low heat. Add garlic and cook until fragrant. Stir in parsley, lemon juice, mussel liquid, wine, mussels and water and cook for 5 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

Meanwhile, toast bread in the oven until golden. Place a slice in each soup bowl. Pour soup and serve. Makes 6 servings.

Tagliatelle can be served with a meat sauce or eaten with a simple cream and ham sauce, depending on the imagination of the cook. Here's a recipe from the region of Emilia-Tomagna.

TAGLIATELLE WITH PROSCIUTTO
 2 1/2 cups all purpose (plain) flour
 3 eggs
 7 ounces cooked ham, coarsely chopped
 1 cup cream
 3 ounces butter
 Pinch of grated nutmeg
 1/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
 Salt and freshly ground pepper

Heat the flour on a board and make a well in the center. Add the eggs and work into a soft, smooth dough. Let rest, covered, while preparing sauce.

Combine the ham, cream, butter, nutmeg and half the Parmesan in a saucepan and heat through. Season with salt and pepper.

Roll dough out into a thin sheet and cut into "tagliatelle," 3/8-inch wide. Bring a large pot of salted water to boil and cook the tagliatelle in it until al dente. Drain. Serve topped with the ham sauce and the remaining Parmesan cheese.
