The Communist Position

One of the most encouraging probabilities of the Russo-German war from the British and American point of view is the likelihood that communist inspired strikes in this country and communist activities of a subversive nature in England will come to as immediate halt. Not too much can be hoped for from the Russian army with its interior equipment and its too often burged general staff, but we can find comfort in the belief that the Communist Internationals, which is directed from Moscow, will call upon workers everywhere for an all out affort to defeat Germany.

It is well known in this country that ever since the Russo-German pact, which heralded the invasion of Poland, communist agitators have been working hand in glove with Nazi agents to propagative this country against the British, to foment atrikes and discord in American factories, to hamper in every possible way the delivery of supplies to England, and to encourage the belief that this is just another imperialistic war being waged for the exclusive benefit of bankers and see.

It is hard to see how this line of argument can any longer be maintained in the face of the German attack on Russia. Surely Russia had done everything in her power to appease the Germans. She had signed a non-aggression pact with them and adhered rigorousir to its provisions.

In commenting on defense progress editorially, the Wall Street Journal says: "A year ago we heard men say that much of this was not possible under our form of society, that we would have to accept a dictatorship. That is not so." We have done it all in a democratic war.

What About Preparedness At Wars End?

Back in the 1920's they put their stuff across—as witness the Kellogg pact, our naval limitation bargain with Britain and Ja-pan, and finally our neutrality law. pan and finally our neutrality law. That law has been modified on late, is due to be modified some more, may be repealed entirely and is spoken of in the most uncomplimentary terms. Yet the thing went through skitting directly after senator Gerald P. Nye introduced it in congress; we were still pacificate at that stage of the game.

Gerald had preceded introduction of his neutrality plan with an slaborate senatorial investigation of the causes of World War No. 1. The witnesses' general verdict was that capitalism got us into it. The appearers still say so, but at the present writing they're bawled out like fury for saying it. Then it was widely agreed that they were right. Else neutrality couldn't have passed.

At the time armament limits ion was being urget, Congress man Fred Britten was chairman o he representatives' naval allair committee. He was an extransitround disarmament."

That just goes to show how itrong the sentiment was.

Why, American entrance into the League of Nations wasn't defeated by inflitarists, who objected to an alignment they were afraid would keep us OUT of future wars. It was defeated by isolationists, who were afraid such an association would involve us IN lem. World War No. 1, in short, was regarded, after it was over, as a WHEN this war's over, whether we do or don's get into it; shall we or shall we not lapse into quite a prolonged peace-at-any-price complex, as we did after World War No. 17

It seems funny now to complex as the complex and 8-8-3 normal limitation treaties and 8-8-3 normal limitation treaties and 8-8-3 normal limitation treaties and 8-8-3 normal limitation treaties.

ny now to compare that period from about 1920 until not so very long ago, with our present splurge of defense and aid - the - delong that have been put across.
Now, will the same conclusion be drawn following the end of World War No. 27
I'd guess not. My guess would be that we'll say pacificatory policies have been tried and have proved to be provocative of war instead—that the right way to be pacificatory is to be loaded for hear.

course, If EVERYBODY would be peaceful and stay so, pa-cifism doubtless would be O. K. But, seemingly, all hands can't be depended on to stay put. Some outlaw nation apparently is certain, sooner or later, to tear loose, The remedy evidently is not to whale the tar out of the outlaw and then to best the carpible as and then to hogtle the cannibal so effectively that he never can start anything again. That was tried on Germany, in the treaty of Ver-sailles, and it hasn't worked.

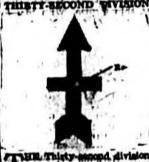

Berves, if a particular of-fender really can be permanently squeiched, a different one may go on the rampage later on. For in-stance, Italy wasn't any especial hellion in 1974-18. Since then IT'S me & pest.

We May Ease Up If wouldn't judge, then, that we'l If wouldn't judge, then, that we'll saw off on our preparedness program at the current war's end. Perhaps we'll ease up a bit, but my impression is that we'll continue to lug a gun, and that we'll need to keep up our production of more had better frearms indefinitely—

Hitler Will Turn On Italy, Mayor States

NEW YORK, June 24, —(AP)

Mayor La Guardia predicted
Monday that Adolf Hitler aconer or later would turn upon another pact-partner—Italy.

After asserting that the German attack upon Rusala was deliberate and preconceived, the mayor, who is also national director of civillan defense, auswered questions on the new Eurepean situation with this comment!

"I predict now that there will atther be a complete surrender or turning over of complete control of the economy of Italy, or use he (Hitler) is going to do the same thing to Italy. That is said part of a program to dominate first of all Europe, then set into Asia and Africa.
