OPEC Ministers Move Toward Production Cut

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — OPEC oil ministers reported initial progress today on a plan to reduce production to defend the cartel's reference price of $29 per barrel.

"We are moving," Saudi Arabian oil minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani told reporters after a first plenary session at OPEC's emergency conference.

Venezuelan Energy Minister Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, asked if an agreement was taking shape, said, "Very soon."

The first session lasted two hours and 40 minutes and ministers agreed to meet in full plenary again this afternoon.

"It was a frank and friendly discussion," Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto said.

Subroto said the ministers would be dealing with three basic problems — "defense of the $29 benchmark price through cuts in production, restoring and strengthening discipline" within OPEC and the issue of price differentials between various qualities of crude oil.

The 13 ministers from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, who held informal talks on Sunday, opened their first full plenary session at the heavily guarded conference hotel.

On Sunday night, the four-member OPEC

Market Monitoring Committee proposed a temporary cut in daily output but left it to the full conference to work out individual production quota reductions.

Yamani and Subroto told reporters that OPEC output might be moderately cut by about 1.5 million barrels a day, which would bring down the official OPEC ceiling of 17.5 million barrels a day to 16 million.

"A moderate cut in production would mean a drawing down of market stocks, which together with greater winter demand for oil would bring up spot market prices," Yamani said.

The authoritative Middle East Economic Survey said it was "a virtual certainty" that OPEC ministers would temporarily reduce daily output by 1.5 million barrels to protect its benchmark price of $29 a barrel.

MEES executive editor Ian Seymour said such a cut "if duly implemented" could "hardly fail to restabilize the market and roll back the recent price cuts in Norway, the United Kingdom, Nigeria and North America."

Observers warned, however, that tough bargaining would be involved in agreeing on individual production reductions with OPEC.

Special Olympians All Winners

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

There were no tears of defeat only cheers and victory hugs for the athletes who competed in Saturday's Seminole County Special Olympics.

All of the 45 basketball players and the 88 bowlers who joined in the game weren't so much competing against each other, they were really challenging their mental and physical disabilities. They all went home winners lust for having played.

Although she never made a single basket in the individual basketball competition 10-year-old Kelli Church of Winter Springs didn't go home empty handed. She and all of the players in Saturdays games took home a ribbon recognizing their participation. The athletes who did place first, second and third were rewarded with additional ribbons.

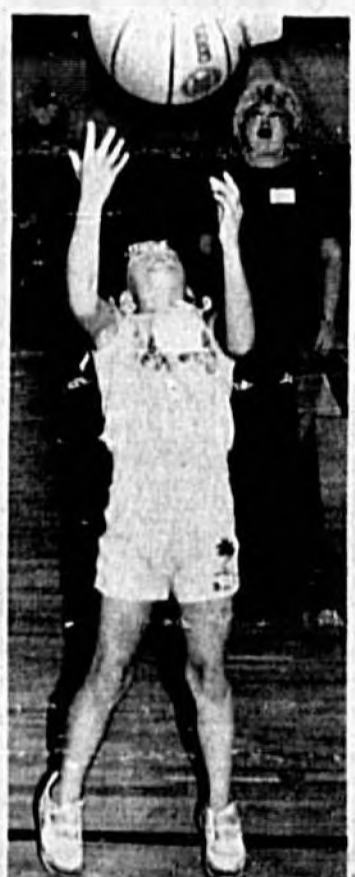

But perhaps the big winners of the day were the volunteers and instructors who supervised the Olympics and the sparse crowd of about 100 spectators who cheered the players on in the gym of Milwee Middle School, Longwood, and at Altamonte Bowling Lanes, Altamonte Springs.

That's what Sanford Kiwanis Club volunteer Rick Austin said after he gave Kelli a victory hug.

"These are special kids who need all the love and care they can get and they give so much to us," Austin said. "They seem to just love people and it's disappointing that more people don't come out and watch them play. This is something people should take time for. Those of us who have all of our abilities should help those who don't. Working with a group like this can add to your life." Kelli's mother, 36-year-old Ginny Church said that rearing a mentally handicapped child (Kelli has Down's Syndrome) has its hardships, but the rewards and happiness she brings to their family helps them meet the challenge.

For Kelli, the third daughter of Ginny and her husband

Harry, Saturday's games were her second shot at the Special Olympics and her mom was "certainly proud," of her showing. And spritly Kelli, the smallest player on the floor, dressed in her lavender shorts set and with her long ashe-blond pigtails whipping around her head as she, "ran, jumped and shot," the basketball, won the hearts of the crowd and the other players. It was special day for Kelli, because, "She gets to compete. She can't really compete with typical kids," Mrs. Church said. "This is what these kids need. Look at that smile on my little girl's face. She's feeling real good about herself, that she's able to compete. With typical kids it doesn't always work out this well."

Doctor Defends Procedure

Baby With Baboon Heart 'Doing Well'

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (UPI) — The surgeon who put the heart of a baboon into a dying human infant said he sympathizes with animal rights activists complaining the operation was inhumane, but says human life must take precedence.

Sixteen-day-old Baby Fae, meanwhile, remained in critical but stable condition and doctors said she was doing remarkably well following Friday's transplant.

Dr. Leonard Bailey told a Sunday news conference at Loma Linda University Medical Center, where more than a dozen animal-rights activists picketed outside, that he is an animal lover, but feels human survival is pre-eminent.

"I'm sympathetic to the animal rights people," he said. "However, I'm a member of the human species and I have to deal with dying human species babies every day and I am more sympathetic toward that issue than I am with animal rights endeavors."

Friday, the baby identified only as Baby Fae underwent five hours of surgery as the heart from a 7-month-old baboon was transplanted into her. The infant faced certain death because she was born with hypoplastic left heart syndrome, an underdeveloped left side of the heart.

Bailey refused to estimate the baby's chance of survival, saying only he is "hoping for the best."

"I cannot speculate on her chances," he said. "We're pleased she's doing so well. We know we may be in for quite a long battle in the weeks ahead, but we think we have a lot of things going for us."

Bailey said efforts to find a human donor were abandoned because it would have taken too long to test for a compatible heart. Several baboons owned by the university were subjected to extensive screening and "the compatibility between this donor and this recipient is remarkable."

But Dr. Paul Terasaki of the UCLA Medical School told the Los Angeles Times that the heart of a 2-year-old baby became available the very day of the transplant.

"I think that they did not make any effort to get a human infant heart because they were set on doing a baboon," Terasaki said.

Opponents raised ethical questions about the operation.

"It boils down to having killed a perfectly healthy baboon in order to prolong a child's suffering," said Lucy Shelton of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals. "We object to both."

Bailey responded by saying, "We can decide to either let these children die because they are born with only half a heart, or intervene and sacrifice some lesser form than our own human species."

Bailey fended off critical speculation that there is inadequate research support for the success of the surgery, but acknowledged his research has been focused more on the operation itself than on the possibility of the recipient's having a long life.

Since the surgery, other researchers have expressed doubt about the baby's ability to accept the baboon heart fully, and have suggested that in the face of such odds, the procedure is inhumane.

Movie Obsession Leads To Killing

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — Police may turn to a psychiatrist for clues on why a man obsessed with the movie "Revenge of the Ninja" donned the garb of an oriental warrior and murdered two people before turning his submachine gun on himself.

Police say Gregory Eley, 24, dressed in his black "Ninja" outfit and armed with an arsenal of weapons, gunned down Arlene Jones, 47, and Wayne Massey, 42, a friend, Friday night at Jones' fashionable Dutch colonial home.

Two boys hiding upstairs heard Eley cry out for God's forgiveness before he pressed the Israeli-made Uzi submachine gun to his chest and pulled the trigger, hitting himself twice, said detective Sylvia Kaiser.

Kaiser said Jones was shot "numerous times," while Massey was shot "a couple of times" in the neck. All three were dead when police arrived.

Eley's wife, Annette, told investigators her husband watched "Revenge of the Ninja" often.

Overconfidence Worries Reagan Aides

By United Press International

Walter Mondale's campaign chief is predicting an upset victory, but James Baker, Ronald Reagan's chief of staff, thinks the biggest threat facing the Republican camp in the waning days of the campaign is overconfidence.

"We don't take victory for granted," Baker said Sunday, adding that Reagan will campaign hard in 12 states in the days that remain.

"We're not overconfident," he said. "It would be a terrible mistake for anybody who works for Ronald Reagan to think or assume that there's a landslide victory already in the bag, because the president is running like he's 1 point behind."

The two campaign strategists, interviewed on CBS's Face the Nation, offered divergent assessments as the campaign entered its final nine days.

Johnson denied a published report that he told Mondale last week that Reagan had built up an insurmountable lead. Quite to the contrary, he insisted the Democratic nominee had hit his stride and was on the road to victory.

"I told him he can win, he believes he can win and ... we will win," Johnson said.

Among Reagan aides, who talk privately of a huge victory that will give Reagan a clear mandate for the next four years, the public emphasis was on caution and restraint.

Reagan spent a quiet Sunday largely outside the public eye. He returned to the White House at mid-afternoon from Camp David and hits the campaign trail again today with a trip to West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Late Sunday, the Mondale campaign aired a 5-minute ad on national television presenting the election as a referendum on arms control.

The ad, shown on all three television networks Sunday, included footage of young children interspersed with shots of missiles taking off and a nuclear blast and shots of the "red telephone" a president would use to respond to a nuclear attack.

"I don't believe this administration understands how most Americans feel about arms control," Mondale says in a segment filmed two weeks ago in Minnesota. "We know if those boys go off, it's probably the end, it's over."

Mondale spent most of Sunday in California, where he hammered away at the president on taxes, calling the subject "the basic issue of this campaign."

"This president, without any doubt, plans to sock it to the average American, run up that military spending further and protect large corporations and the wealthy from paying their fair share," he said.

Mondale said his tax plan would protect moderate wage earners.

Mondale also dismissed polls showing Reagan with a commanding lead heading into the final week of campaigning. The polls "don't show the enthusiasm I'm finding ... I don't believe them," he said.

Cleveland Vice Chairman Of Transportation Study Panel

Sanford attorney and former state senator Mack N. Cleveland Jr. has been elected vice chairman of the Greater Orlando Transportation Study Committee.

The committee has been charged by Gov. Bob Graham with the responsibility of determining the transportation needs in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

Cleveland is one of three Seminole County residents appointed to the committee by Graham. The others are former County Administrator Roger Nelawender, now employed by the engineering and planning firm of Post, Buckley, Schuh and Jernigan of Orlando, and Paul Sneed of Altamonte Springs, director of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services office in Orlando.

Cleveland said the committee is meeting the first and third Tuesdays of each month as well as the second and fourth Wednesdays.

He said the Committee is charged with the responsibility of making a recommendation to the governor and the legislature by Jan. 15, 1985 after examining identifiable transportation problems in the Greater Orlando area.

The committee is to look at all types of transportation including automobile and mass transit.

"We will be holding public hearings and soliciting input from county commissioners and municipal officials as well as the public," Cleveland said.

Couple Charged With Cooking 4-Year-Old Girl In An Oven

AUBURN, Maine (UPI) — Police held a mother and her boyfriend today on charges they stuffed the woman's screaming 4-year-old daughter into an oven and burned her to death, telling neighbors they were "cooking Lucifer."

"It's bizarre and the sickest thing I've ever seen," said police Sgt. William Fournier.

Police, responding to reports of smoke billowing from the kitchen window Saturday, broke into the second-floor apartment minutes later and found the blistered body of Angela Palmer.

Neighbors said they heard the girl banging and yelling. "Let me out, daddy, let me out!" before officers arrived at the three-story tenement.

Police found the door to the electric oven jammed shut with a chair and the mother, Cynthia Palmer, 29, and her live-in boyfriend, John Lane, 36, sitting in the living room, authorities said.

The couple was taken to the Androscoggin County Jail and held for arraignment on murder charges today in District Court in neighboring Lewiston.

Readers Line Up For Magazine

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — A steady stream of subscribers — some of them complaining about censorship — showed up at the office of the Chattanooga News-Free Press to demand their copies of Parade magazine, which was removed from the paper because of a cover story on sex.

News-Free Press Publisher Roy McDonald said the Parade article on American sexual attitudes was "offensive to good morals" and refused to include it in the newspaper.

By Sunday afternoon, 792 people had picked up copies of Parade at the News-Free Press office and another 744 had telephoned, asking that copies be mailed to them. McDonald offered to mail copies to those who found it inconvenient to drive to the newspaper office. The News-Free Press has a circulation of 107,000.

Grand Jury Investigates Synanon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal grand jury has been investigating the Synanon Church for six months to determine whether the organization is defrauding financial backers who believe they are aiding drug addicts and alcoholics.

Synanon's general counsel, Philip Bourdette, acknowledged last week the secret federal investigation has been under way in Sacramento, Calif., since May but asserted there is "no merit" to the inquiry.

He said the California group, which has about 550 members, still devotes much of its energy to pursuing the mission for which it was founded 26 years ago: to assist drug addicts, alcoholics and others with "character disorders."

Synanon became engulfed in controversy in 1978 when Paul Morantz, a Los Angeles lawyer who had won private lawsuits against the organization, reached into his mailbox and was bitten by a rattlesnake. Morantz was hospitalized, but survived.

Newspapers Pick Their Candidates

By Tamara Henry
United Press International

A growing number of newspapers are making editorial endorsements for president, but many are less than enthusiastic about the choices.

While The Washington Post had no reservations in announcing today its support for Democrat Walter Mondale, the Chicago Tribune endorsed President Reagan in words that were less than glowing.

The San Francisco Examiner backed Reagan, describing Mondale as having a "pathetic lack of power to inspire."

With the election eight days away, Reagan appears to have garnered most of the major newspaper endorsements.

A few, like the Clarion-Ledger and Daily News of Jackson, Miss., pointed to Reagan's character and leadership, saying he "has made people feel good about themselves and their country." At the same time, the Philadelphia Inquirer accused the administration of "racism with a smile."

The Washington Post said Mondale, who "has been maddeningly misread and mistreated by the political trendmakers this year, just as Mr. Reagan has been maddeningly indulged and overpraised — is unambiguously the better candidate."

The Chicago Tribune said both Reagan and Mondale are decent, honorable, well-intentioned men that have styles that are unattractive and their policies are difficult to champion.

"Their campaigns have left us with the feeling that we have a choice between Mr. Reagan asleep at the switch or Mr. Mondale groping wildly in the dark for it."

The Omaha World-Herald said "(Reagan's) conservative leadership has pointed the nation toward economic progress."

SCC Math Teacher Takes Top Honor

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Bill Jordan, a 42-year-old math teacher at Seminole Community College, has a nameplate in his office which reads, "Der Grosse Mathematiker." German for "the great mathematician."

He said a friend gave it to him a few years ago as a joke.

Well, last week he got a similar title from the Florida Council of Teachers of Math, and it was no joke.

Jordan was named Math Educator of the Year at the council's convention in Ft. Lauderdale.

A veteran math teacher of 20 years, Jordan was selected for his knowledge of the subject matter, involvement in the council and promotion of math excellence, he said.

He has been at SCC for 10 years, and before that taught for 10 years at Edgewater High School in Orlando. He currently teaches all levels of math, except statistics.

Jordan said winning the award was "overwhelming"

Bill Jordan

because "it's the highest honor a math teacher can get."

He was nominated by Maria Gerity, a math teacher at Rock

Lake Middle School, who said "He's not the type of man who toots his own horn so I decided to toot it for him."

Ms. Gerity called Jordan a "humanitarian" who helps his own students with difficult problems as well as other math teachers in the area.

"He is constantly helping us help our own kids," she said.

Jordan credits the award to his involvement in the 1,800-member council and other math professional organizations which he says upgrades his skills.

He said his greatest satisfaction is helping students overcome anxiety about math and then watching them grasp the subject and do well in it. He said 20 of his former students went on to become math teachers themselves.

Jordan welcomes the emphasis legislators and educators are putting on math and science curriculum, saying "Our society is becoming more technology-oriented and the basis of technology is math and the sciences."

But at the same time, he said schools are not attracting the best math and science teachers and losing the ones they have because jobs in industry pay so much more — about $10,000 to $20,000 a year more.

This has created what he called "severe national shortage of math teachers."

"The only way I see to change it is to pay teachers more," he said.

The situation is not helped, Jordan added, by stringent certification requirements which makes it difficult to become a teacher.

But he said "I'm still a math teacher because I enjoy what I'm doing."

According to Ms. Gerity Jordan is the youngest member of the council to win the Math Educator of the Year award. Jordan said it came the same week as his birthday.

"That was some birthday present," he said.

Mrs. Church said after bearing two healthy daughters Karl and Kim, now 14 and 12, it was a shock to learn that Kelli wouldn't be normal.

"It's a very difficult thing to have happen. You carry a child nine months and think everything is rosy and then in the hospital they tell you 'Down's Syndrome.' It's like the world collapses. But as time goes on things get better and now it's fine."

"Kelli enriches our lives. I know something like this can make or break a marriage. With us it's something that will always keep us together. I think one reason Kelli is so happy is because she has the love of her mom and dad and sisters and brother."

Kelli's brother, Michael, 7, was a planned baby, although Mrs. Church said she did have concerns that he might also be born with a birth defect, but it was a chance she and her husband were willing to take.

"We were high school sweethearts and had always planned to have five kids. After Kelli it was difficult to accept. All of our girls are two years apart in age. It took me an extra year to come to terms and to decide to go ahead. If God wanted us to have another child like Kelli that's how it would be and there was nothing we could do about it," Mrs. Church said.

Two other players in the Special Olympics, Nickulus Williams of Lake Monroe and Michael Shuler of Sanford, are two 10 year olds who dream to go on to play professional basketball.

All of the Special Olympics players are mentally handicapped. Athletes ranging in age from eight to over 70 participated in the games and all represented one of the following schools or programs:

Altamonte Elementary School, Fern Park Developmental

Center, Hamilton Elementary, Idyllwild Elementary, Lake Mary High School, Milwee Middle School, Rosenwald Exceptional Student Center, Seminole Work Opportunity Program or Sterling Park Elementary.

The winter Special Olympics which features outdoor sports, is being planned for March and organizers are seeking donations and volunteers to support those games. To make a donation or to join the Olympics as a volunteer call Ginny Church at 365-4722.

Block Worried About Pay-Back Program To Aid Citrus Farmers

MIAMI (UPI) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block said Sunday a new reimbursement program for crops destroyed in the fight against citrus canker concerns him because it is unprecedented, but is needed to encourage reporting of the ruinous disease.

On other topics discussed during the "Newsmakers" program on WFLG-TV (Channel 10), Block predicted President Reagan's reelection and said the Carter administration shackled America's "greatest tool for peace" — food sales — by embargoing grain sales to the Soviets.

Block announced Thursday that a federal compensation program for farmers whose citrus trees are destroyed to rid the state of canker is being expanded. It will now also cover grove owners who purchased seedlings from infected nurseries.

More than 5 million citrus trees at 28 nurseries have been destroyed so far in the canker fight. Crops at another 28 nurseries still must be burned. New canker discoveries could increase the loss of crops.

No estimate has been made on how much the indemnity program will provide for farmers.

Johnston: Auditor Is Inefficient

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The incoming president of Florida's Senate says the state auditor general's office should stop spending time looking for stolen pencils and instead make sure government agencies are operating efficiently.

The primary thrust of Auditor General Ernest Ellison's office has been seeking bureaucratic misuse of money and making sure state funds are accounted for, The Tampa Tribune reported Sunday. Incoming Senate President Harry Johnston, however, says Ellison should instead concentrate on audits that measure the fiscal performance of state government.

Ellison's office has uncovered several notorious examples of government corruption. His staff helped show that Lt. Gov. Tom Adams was using state employees for personal work in the early 1970s and raised charges that Education Commissioner Floyd Christian was taking kickbacks from firms awarded Department of Education contracts.

Graham Steps Into Miami Fray

MIAMI (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham has agreed to act as an intermediary between City Manager Howard Gary and Mayor Maurice Ferre, who cast the deciding vote to fire Gary last week.

Meanwhile, supporters of Gary — a black man who enjoys considerable popularity in Miami's black community — planned a Monday rally at the Dade County courthouse. The noon rally was designed to boost a recall campaign directed at Ferre and the other two commissioners who voted against Gary.

The three votes to fire Gary came from the three Hispanics on the commission — Ferre, who was born in Puerto Rico, and Cuban natives Demetrio Perez Jr. and Joe Carollo, Miller Dawkins, a black, and J.L. Plummer, a white, voted against the ouster.

Clearing The Skies

Airline deregulation had its casualties, as it was expected to. The industry was shot through with inefficiencies encouraged by years of government regulation of routes and fares. Forced to compete for travel dollars that were shrinking with the recession that began in 1980, some airline companies flew straight into bankruptcy or saw their identity disappear in mergers.

But deregulation clearly has had a positive side, and it is highly evident in the sight of United Airlines breaking out of the clouds. United lost $235 million in 1979, and in ensuing years began to waver in its long-held top position in the domestic market. The challenge of the new hub-and-spoke concept of air routes found United locked into too many long-haul flights and not enough regional feeder routes. Fare wars began eating into its earnings. Its management was slow to adjust to the competitive environment.

Now, according to The Wall Street Journal, United has turned things around. It has developed its own hub-and-spoke system feeding flights into Chicago, Denver and San Francisco. The airline has increased the number of cities it serves by one-third. It has adopted fare plans that appear to be preventing a serious loss of business to scrappy new airlines offering cut-rate fares.

Significantly, United has streamlined its work force, reducing payroll positions by 20 percent and convincing its labor unions of the necessity of making wage concessions when survival is at stake. New employees are now starting at lower scales than they did under previous contracts. An officer of the International Association of Machinists told Business Week magazine last summer: "United has really educated the employee group. They know that this is capitalism, so if the company doesn't make money, it doesn't stay in business."

It's not traditional capitalism when government guarantees exclusive markets to a company, which is how our regulated airline system ran for many years. The unregulated marketplace in which United Airlines and others are now competing is the kind that makes the case for competitive capitalism, and it's working.

Public Protection

Criminal justice legislation approved by Congress will go a long way to close some of the legal loopholes which put criminals back on the street before the ink is dry on their fingerprints.

The anti-crime measures attached to an emergency spending bill include:

- Establishing a reform of federal bail procedure which will let judges consider the danger to the community and to deny bail when a defendant poses a grave threat to others.

- Shifting the burden of proof in insanity trials from prosecutors to defense lawyers, an outgrowth of presidential assailant John Hinckley's "innocent by reason of insanity" verdict. Only defendants who lack the mental capacity to tell right from wrong could be found innocent by reason of insanity.

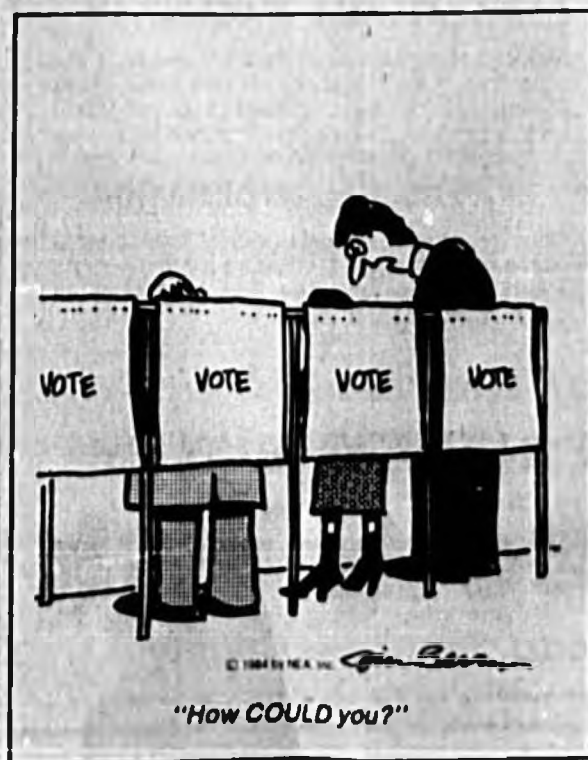

- Establishing a minimum, mandatory five-year jail term for use of a firearm or armor-piercing bullets in federal crimes of violence.

- Making it a federal offense to break into government or private computers to get data that might be used to harm the country.

- Strengthening federal penalties for trafficking in counterfeit credit cards, bank money-machine cards or card-making equipment.

The crime bill will go a long way toward balancing the scales of justice, which have been tilting toward the criminal for too many years.

WASHINGTON — As Walter Mondale belatedly struggles in the final days of the campaign to broaden his appeal to his party's traditional constituencies, some Democratic leaders are beginning to question why their party has abandoned its vital center.

Ohio Sen. John Glenn is one of many Democrats in Congress who thinks his party has forsaken some of its bedrock, rank-and-file constituencies, and he doesn't mind saying so.

Glenn sought to appeal to his party's center in his unsuccessful presidential bid by talking about ways to achieve future economic growth, jobs and the need for a strong defense. Instead of covering up Democratic mistakes of the past, he openly attacked the Carter-Mondale administration for giving the nation 21 percent interest rates and 13 percent inflation, which pounded the economy into a deep recession.

But the special interests who derailed the primaries and propelled Mondale to the nomination — the AFL-CIO, the National Education Association, the feminist groups, gays, etc. — rejected Glenn. He was perceived as a centrist and these groups wanted an undiluted liberal ticket, which they got with Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro.

Today, as the presidential sweepstakes nears its predictable conclusion, Glenn recalls the primaries, the defeats, and even the embarrassment of not being invited by the Mondale forces to address his national party convention in San Francisco.

"I view myself as a political moderate" who identifies with "that big, two-thirds of the middle ground out there," he said in a wide-ranging interview. "They were running a convention to appeal to whoever they wanted to appeal to, and maybe I..." His voice trails off. Didn't appeal to the party's liberal wing? Was too middle-America? He doesn't say.

But the former Mercury program astronaut with "the right stuff" does say without equivocation that the Mondale campaign has failed to reach out with bread-and-butter appeals to the party's mainstream constituencies.

I suggest that from the time of the convention to the final days of the campaign, the one political reality that comes through most strikingly is that of a Democratic Party that has lost its identification with the political center.

Those who addressed the convention in prime time — Kennedy, Jackson, Cuomo, etc. — represented the party's left. But where were the party's moderates? Where was Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia? Where was Sen. Fritz Hollings of South Carolina?

Glenn agrees: "What you're saying is what I tried to address in the primaries."

"I said repeatedly in speech after speech that if this party is to win in the fall, it must reach out and activate those two-thirds of the Democrats who have to go out and vote Democratic."

Much like Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, Glenn directed his appeal to the party's broader constituencies, while Mondale aimed his at specific, special-interest and single-issue constituencies and what Glenn calls "the liberal activists."

It is these groups, he suggests, who have taken over the party apparatus, pushing aside the forgotten "two thirds" of the Democrats who don't necessarily agree with the political agenda of the AFL-CIO, Operation PUSH, the National Organization for Women and the teachers' lobby.

On The Seitz Poll

I know you've already had it up to here with opinion polls during this campaign, but allow me to lay one more on you before Election Day overtakes us.

This one is not the work of Gallup, Harris or Roper. It is my very own.

It involves no weighted questions, no computer-analyzed answers, no balanced interview group. It is very simple and completely unscientific.

I talked to one person.

He is Rob Seitz. We met two years ago in New York's Grand Central Station, during the height of the morning rush hour and the depth of the Reagan recession. Rob was stationed at the escalators to the Pan Am Building thrusting handbills at the crowd. Few hands took them.

"Call me. I'm Rob Seitz and eager to work. I hate unemployment! For six months I have relied on traditional tactics for getting back into the work force, but no one I've talked to is hiring. Are you?"

I was the only one to call. Rob, I learned, had been let go by a public relations firm. Job-hunting had become his full-time occupation. Employment agencies and the want ads had produced interviews but no offers.

Married, he was ashamed to have had to apply for benefits, angry at having to beg for work, bitter at a system that had no place for him.

When I talked to him again a year later, things were better. He still had no job, but he was getting by on free-lance writing, editing and consulting assignments. He was about to become the New York representative of a Washington public relations firm.

He was beginning to think there might be something to Reaganomics, which he had dismissed the previous year in words I can't repeat. I won't even tell you what they rhyme with.

It was even better when I talked to him the other day. The Washington connection is now virtually full time. He manages the New York office, has just hired a secretary-assistant and installed a computer.

At 31, he thinks his career is at a promising stage.

Two years ago, he says, he blamed Ronald Reagan for his plight. Now, "a little more educated," as he puts it, he not only realizes the economic situation wasn't quite that simple but is benefiting from a changed situation.

Life Of The Lonely Whistle Blower

WASHINGTON — Now and then, a lonely hero appears deep in the compounds of government. He becomes convinced that pollution must be seen and smelted to be combated, that corruption hidden in corruption heightened. He convinces himself that good will overcome evil if the facts are known. So he becomes a whistle blower.

He knows, of course, that exposure could cost him his livelihood and lay him open to harassment. Yet he comes forward and condemns the wrongdoing.

Thereafter, the scenario seldom varies. The villain in the drama is quickly surrounded by paid obfuscators and is given the full protection of the U.S. government. But the hero is isolated and intimidated, harried and hassled.

It's almost always the same old story; only the cast of characters is different. In this account, the lone whistle blower is John Hnatko, a security specialist for the Energy Department. He dared to disagree with his superior, Robert O'Brien,

GOP Go To Tax Hikes?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sen. Richard Lugar, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, says one of his GOP candidates has come up with a "tough, honest proposal" to quickly eliminate the budget deficit.

What makes this campaign proposal and the glowing appraisal of it by Lugar, an Indiana conservative, so interesting?

It contradicts many basic tenets of Ronald Reagan's economic philosophy and rejects many of the administration's policies.

The keys to the GOP candidate's proposal are tax increases, sharp cuts in defense spending and lesser cuts in domestic spending.

Barbara Leonard, 59, is opposing Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., in his attempt to win a fifth term. After her husband's death in 1977, she took over a multimillion dollar machine-part manufacturing firm that he had started in 1977. This is her first try for public office.

"I got into this campaign because I was concerned about the deficit and about the direction my state was going," she says. "As a small businesswoman I see how much nervousness there is out there about this economy."

"Small businesses are once again not willing to commit to making major investments for the future.... I believe this deficit could cause inflation to come roaring back. And I think that something has to be done immediately."

So Mrs. Leonard has a plan, which, she says, would reduce next year's deficit from $185 billion to $88 billion, would balance the budget the following year; and would create a budget surplus the year after.

Although she is somewhat loath to admit it, her prescription for cutting the deficit is a lot closer to Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale's than to anything proposed by Reagan. Through a spokesman, Sen. Lugar indicates he does not necessarily endorse the specifics of Mrs. Leonard's proposal. But the fact that it has been distributed widely by an official Republican campaign committee — even though its heart is in direct opposition to the president's policies — might hint the direction the deficit reduction debate will take in Congress next year.

Mrs. Leonard's proposed tax "changes" include a 90 percent limit on deductions for taxpayers with incomes in excess of $30,000 a year, a delay in indexing, a minimum tax on corporations, and elimination of various write-offs such as oil depletion allowances and intangible drilling expenses. These changes, she believes, would increase federal revenues about $45 billion in the first year.

She would freeze the defense budget at last year's level for an annual savings of $33 billion over projected defense budget increases. Then her plan would eliminate or gradually reduce 24 specific Pentagon programs, including the MX missile and the A-6 bomber, for a savings of another $10 billion annually.

Finally she would cut $25 billion annually from domestic programs including $8 billion from agricultural programs, $5.6 billion in revenue sharing, and $7 billion from various aspects of Medicare and Medicaid.

Those False Barriers

WORCESTER, Mass. (NEA) — In the early 1970s, when students at the colleges and universities in this city sought to exercise their right to vote, City Clerk Robert J. O'Keefe refused to register them.

In the mid-1970s, when women here insisted upon their right to register under the names on their birth certificates instead of their husbands' names, O'Keefe denied them access to the ballot box.

In the late 1970s and early 1980s, people who had moved from one home to another discovered on Election Day that they were ineligible to vote because O'Keefe had purged their names from the registration rolls even though they remained residents of the city.

Today, it's still business-as-usual in O'Keefe's office, where he presides over an autocratic political operation that has effectively disenfranchised uncounted thousands of Worcester's potential voters.

But O'Keefe says people who won't take the trouble to register under their ground rules aren't really interested in voting.

His ability to frustrate many would-be voters earned O'Keefe a dishonorable mention in a recent congressional report on "artificial and arbitrary barriers" to increased voter participation in communities throughout the country.

Notwithstanding considerable progress since the passage of the federal Voting Rights Act of 1965, "citizens are still denied the right to equally participate in the electoral process by a variety of means," concluded a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

Literacy tests, poll taxes, physical threats and other blatant forms of intimidation have been replaced by more subtle but often equally effective measures.

In its reference to O'Keefe, the House report notes that he "does not deputize volunteers from the poor side of town." Actually, that's misleading because, in contrast with other cities throughout the state, Worcester refuses to designate people who don't work for the city as deputy registrars — regardless of whether they're rich or poor.

One non-election case, still pending in the courts, involved an extraordinary practice uncovered in 1981: In his role as municipal record-keeper, O'Keefe unilaterally decided to indicate that all babies born to single mothers were illegitimate on their birth certificates.

who allegedly had informed the president that safeguards at the nation's nuclear weapons plants were adequate.

"I wish I could share your views on the adequacy of protection..." wrote Hnatko, "but my experience and knowledge of the program dictates otherwise."

Never mind that Hnatko was right and O'Brien was wrong. This offended O'Brien, who is now the director of the Office of Safeguards and Security. He evidently asked a subordinate to find out how he could get rid of the meddlesome Hnatko. The employee who was asked put it all down in an internal memo, which has been obtained by my associates John Dillon and Indy Badhwar.

"O'Brien requested that I check with personnel to see if we could fire (Hnatko)," the memo states. It then goes on to tell what the employee learned from the personnel people, who apparently are skilled at such matters.

According to the memo, there were two options. The first was to "reassign him as requested." The other was more sinister. "If you want to fire him — start documenting records," the memo advised.

It then explained how to do this: "Establish good performance standards — if he is rated unacceptable, then he can be reassigned, downgraded, etc. If he continues to fail to follow instructions, (this) can lead to dismissal — after warnings, reprimands, etc." The memo closed with the estimate that the "process could take six to eight months." Hnatko's superiors wasted no time getting started.

He had been summoned to Capitol Hill to brief an investigator for Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., on security lapses. For disclosing the poor security at nuclear plants, Hnatko drew a reprimand.

Then a "warning letter" — similar to one given to alcohol or drug abusers — was put in Hnatko's file. (His addiction, apparently, was to telling the truth.)

Hnatko went to the department's inspector general who conducted an investigation, cleared him of any wrongdoing, ordered the reprimand and warning letter removed from his file, and saw to it that Hnatko got a formal apology.

When O'Brien learned that Hnatko had found out about the incriminating memo, he wrote to the whistle blower to assure him that it "reflected only a portion of my request for general information and, by itself, is totally out of context."

O'Brien informed Hnatko that he had "supported your requests for reassignment and never taken any action to fire you."

Footnote: My reporters tried for two weeks to obtain O'Brien's comment. As I was going to press, an Energy Department spokeswoman called to say O'Brien would respond only to "specific questions" submitted "in writing."

I will be happy to print any response he wishes to make. Meanwhile, a House investigations subcommittee chaired by Dingell will hold hearings on the Hnatko case.

Fern Park Woman Reports Rape

A 20-year-old Fern Park woman reported to sheriff's deputies that she was raped Sunday by a man who was supposed to photograph her dog.

The victim said she went to the man's apartment at Spanish Trace Apartments, Altamonte Springs, at about 10 p.m. Sunday for a possible photo session for her dog. The man forced her into a bedroom, took her blouse off and as she fled and struggled he raped her, a sheriff's report said.

The woman dressed and left after the attack. She notified a friend of the assault and was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, for an examination, the report said.

Deputies have the name of a suspect in the case, but an arrest has not been made.

HOLE IN THE WALL

A drug dealer who squirreled away his marijuana stash in a hole in the wall of a Sanford business and then moved it into a tree was charged with delivery and possession of pot after Sanford police ferreted out his hiding place.

An police detective advised two patrolmen that the man had small envelopes of pot hidden in a soft drink carton which he stored in a hole in the wall of an auto repair shop at the corner of 13th Street and Williams Avenue. The suspect had been seen selling pot from that supply to motorists, a police report said.

When an officer approached the hiding place at about 4:35 p.m. Friday, the man fled with the pot and placed it about 6 feet up in a nearby tree. The suspect then ran to Pearl's Bar, where he was captured and detained by officers while police searched unsuccessfully for the drugs, the report said.

The man was released, only to be picked up again within minutes after the detective told the other officers where to find the pot hidden in the tree, the report said.

Samuel Carson, 21, of 2740 Truman Blvd., Sanford, was arrested at 4:45 p.m. Friday on 13th Street, Sanford. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

The woman claimed her husband had hit her with his fists and had thrown a lamp at her. The man said his wife had hit him in the face. Police report he had "sustained non-visible injury to his left jaw and tongue." The officers noted no visible injuries on either of the pair.

A thief who tried one vehicle, but found he couldn't make it into first gear in that car made another selection and decided to drive away in a truck from the parking lot of The Barn, U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

But the bar's security guards were watching the man pick and chose his ride as he tried to enter several vehicles. They called police who nabbed the suspect.

The man reportedly pretended to police that he didn't understand what was happening, but the owner of the truck, Randy O'Brian, told police he hadn't given the stranger permission to take his truck.

Agapito Moreno, 22, of Route 2, Box 97 Michu Ave., Sanford, was charged with burglary at The Barn at 2:15 a.m. Saturday. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Father And Son Sentenced In Pot Case

A Georgia man who pleaded guilty to trafficking in marijuana has been sentenced to four years in prison. His son, arrested at the same time, received five years probation for possession of marijuana.

Tom Henry Patton, 54, of Riverdale, was sentenced Friday by Seminole Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. who also ordered Patton to pay a $25,000 fine. Patton must serve at least three years of his sentence.

Patton, who along with his son, Richard Thomas Patton, James Veal, also of Georgia, and a DeBary couple, Robert Adcock and Janie Kasaab-Adcock, were arrested Feb. 22 after a drug bust by undercover agents from several law enforcement agencies.

Mize also ordered the younger Patton, 29, also from Riverdale, to pay a $1,000 fine and complete 250 hours of community service.

Adcock, 35, of 63 Estrella Drive, DeBary, was sentenced Sept. 10 to six years with a minimum mandatory incarceration of three years plus a $25,000 fine. Veal, 61, of Decatur, was sentenced the same day to 5½ years and also must serve at least three years and pay a $25,000 fine. Both men have appealed their cases.

Ms. Kasaab-Adcock, 35, also of DeBary, was fined $500 Oct. 10 for her part in the drug operation and in a separate case was sentenced to four months in the Seminole County jail and five years probation for smuggling marijuana into the jail.

In other court action Friday, a Maitland man who pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine has been sentenced to 20 consecutive weekends in the county jail and three years probation.

Ronnie Cole, 21, of 2100 Howell Branch Road, was also fined $500 by Mize who ordered Cole to complete 240 hours of community service and pay the Public Defender's Office $250.

According to court records, an Altamonte Springs officer stopped a car for a traffic check at 8:10 a.m. May 17 in the 700 block of state Road 436, Altamonte Springs.

The officer reported seeing marijuana in the car and searched the vehicle. Cole was arrested for possession of cocaine and marijuana. In exchange for the guilty plea on the cocaine charge, the marijuana offense was not prosecuted.

A co-defendant, David Williams Staton, 24, of Orlando, arrested at the same time on two counts of possession of marijuana, had his case removed from a September trial docket and awaits disposition of his case.

An Orlando man who pleaded guilty to possession of Valium was sentenced to 10 consecutive weekends in the county jail and three years probation.

Richard Lawrence Grabowski, 23, was also ordered by Mize to pay a $250 fine and complete 120 hours of community service.

According to court records, an Altamonte Springs officer learned by a computer check that the license plate on a 1972 van in the parking lot of the Hot Line Bottle Club, 803 West Altamonte Drive, Altamonte Springs, was supposed to be on a 1974 Volkswagon.

The driver of the vehicle, Grabowski, could only produce a partial Pennsylvania license and no registration, the officer reported. Grabowski had a title to the vehicle but there was no name on it.

Grabowski gave the officer permission to search the van and a small amount of a green leafy vegetation was found. When Grabowski emptied his pockets, he had a prescription bottle not made out to him with Valium tablets in it plus the remains of marijuana cigarettes and an unidentified brown tablet.

Grabowski could have received up to a year in the county jail. —Deane Jordan

IN BRIEF

Israeli Police Hold Three Youths In Bus Bombing Incident

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli police launched a manhunt for assailants who fired a rocket into an Arab bus in Jerusalem, killing one passenger and wounding 10 others in a revenge attack for the murders of two Jewish students.

A police spokesman said three Jewish youths were held for questioning after the incident Sunday, but Israel television said no one was detained in an indication the three had been released.

The television quoted police sources as saying they were "convinced the assailants were Jewish terrorists."

The father of Ron Levi, one of the dead Jewish students, denounced the attack on the bus. "We condemn any act that furthers bloodshed," he said.

Sandinistas Quell Rebel Drive

United Press International

Nicaraguan troops have blunted a rebel drive to disrupt next weekend's national elections, killing 147 guerrillas in a series of clashes that have left 51 government soldiers dead, a regional commander said.

"The elections will be carried out in the war zone," Commander Javier Carrion told Radio Sandino Sunday.

"The Sandinista army will guarantee them. Even under fire, we will have elections Nov. 4."

Poles Gather To Pray For Kidnapped Priest

By Bogdan Turek

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Large groups of riot police were deployed in major cities to prevent protests as millions of Poles prayed for a pro-Solidarity priest who was abducted 10 days ago and feared dead.

No incidents were reported following masses Sunday for the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, who was popular for criticizing the communist regime in sermons demanding the revival of the banned Solidarity trade union.

There has been no trace of Popieluszko since Oct. 19, when he was abducted from his car near the northern city of Torun, sparking a nationwide outcry and allegations of government involvement.

On Saturday, Interior Minister Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak said three Interior Ministry officials confessed to the kidnapping. One said he killed the priest but authorities have not been able to confirm or refute his claim.

State-run television Sunday said Popieluszko's driver Waldemar Chrostowski, who escaped when the priest was kidnapped, recognized the three suspects as the abductors. The television report added that the "investigation is at full swing." Solidarity founder Lech Walesa told 15,000 worshippers in a Gdansk church Sunday he believed the abduction was aimed at provoking unrest to embarrass Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski as part of a power struggle between moderates and hardliners within Poland's Communist Party.

"Someone saw that martial law (imposed in 1981 and lifted in 1983) had solved no problems. So they decided to use us to start a revolution, thinking that we would react like a bunch of thoughtless people," Walesa told the crowd at St. Brigida's Church.

He cautioned Poles to remain calm for "at least a week," saying, "We shall not start a revolution, but follow a peaceful line of action."

Large groups of riot police took up positions around Gdansk and other major cities to prevent violence after masses for the missing priest, sources around the country said.

In Warsaw, three water cannon and trucks filled with anti-riot gear were parked near the church of St. Stanislaw Kostka, where Popieluszko delivered his monthly "motherland" sermons.

Gypsies Visiting Hospital Chased Off By Security Guards

MIAMI (UPI) — A group of gypsies numbering about 50 wants to stay by the bedside of their dying patriarch but instead are chased away every night by security guards.

Frank Mitchell, 81, was listed in serious condition Sunday at Baptist Hospital, where he was being treated for a perforated intestine, blood poisoning, kidney failure, a stroke and difficulty breathing.

"My brother is critical," said his brother, James. "He is maybe going to die tonight, maybe tomorrow. And they will let only two people in there because we are dark-complexioned and gypsies."

Hospital spokeswoman Jo Baxter said workers did everything possible to make the family comfortable, and did not discriminate.

Seminole County Sports Hall Of Fame

Rose Is A Rose, And So Is Mary

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

When Mary Rose was just a year old she fell off a Massachusetts pier into the water. After one time down and up, Mary's father reached into the water and pulled out his daughter.

A more appropriate debut one couldn't have. She hasn't been dry since. For the last 52 years, Mary Rose, wife of famous water comedian Eddie and mother of standout prep swimmer Charlie, has thrilled onlookers around the world with her water ballet (synchronized swimming) and coaching expertise.

Recently, Mary was inducted into the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame for her outstanding accomplishments. She will be inducted Jan. 19 at halftime of the Lake City-Seminole Community College basketball game. Larry Castle, a successful tennis coach at SCC, and the late Leonard L. "Whitey" McLucas, a top player and football coach at Sanford/Seminole High School, will join her.

Mary Dwight Rose made her first big splash in Scituate, Mass., at age one, but she didn't return seriously to swimming until eight years later. "I guess I was about nine years old when I learned to swim," she said. "I'll never forget it. I only took the dog paddle about three feet and I loved it."

Mary's interduction started with the American Red Cross program. "I used to go down to the beach and watch Eather Williams," Mary said. "That was our main inspiration. We just copied what she did."

The we is Mary and Fran.

Mary gives much of the credit for her success to younger (one year and one-half and one day) Fran (Dwight) Gioe. "We were inseparable," said Mary. "I just can't remember doing anything without her."

The careers of the attractive sisters took a strategic turn while they were in their early teens. The Dwights' grandmother had always wintered in Florida and one year Mary's mother was ill, so they went South, too.

Talk about a fish taking to water, when the girls saw what opportunities they could avail themselves to in St. Petersburg, it was bye-bye Massachusetts. "Florida was just perfect," said Mary. "Imagine, 12 months outside in the water instead of three."

Upon the Dwights arrival, the mother immediately went about town looking for recreation, preferably in the water, for her daughters. "My mother instinctively knew we were interested in water ballet," said Mary. "She found a group of swimmers sponsored by the city called the Aqua Belles. That's really when we got going with it."

Along with swimming, Mary played basketball, field hockey and softball. She was a fine athlete which excelled at all sports. She would later add golf to her list.

Although she was a standout at all sports, Mary felt that the synchronized swimming had a certain appeal. "It was different every time you go in the water," he said. "It wasn't like other sports where you'd practice something over and over. You were always learning something new in water ballet, whether it was choreography or dance."

Mary remembers those formative years as tough — but rewarding. "We didn't have a coach because no one really knew anything about it," she said. "We'd teach ourselves and then teach our swimming coach."

"Our mother would take us to the pool early in the morning. She'd tell us if we were straight when we were upside down. It was really quite an experience."

Since there were no clubs for financial support, the Dwight girls were pretty much helpless when it came to national tournament time. Also, as an unknown commodity, no one was ready to take a chance on them despite the potential greatness.

Then a gentleman named Bob Leahey entered the picture. "That was the turning point for us," remembered Mary. "If he hadn't sponsored us, we would have never gotten to national competition."

So if they went to Detroit, these two wide-eyed girls and their make-shift routine. Incredibly, they finished ninth. "That was unbelievable for our first time," said Mary. "We got up there and we didn't have a coach or anything. The

Mary Rose tests the water before taking the plunge. Mary was a standout performer with Sam Snyder's International Water Follies for 20 years. Prior to that, 17-year-old Mary, inset, was blowing bubbles and performing water ballet at Weekiwachee Springs.

chairman of Synchronized Swimming kind of took us under her wing.

"I think everybody felt sorry for us," she laughed. "The chairman told us the rules changes that had been made. Then, we'd come back home, after the meet and practice for the next year."

It was in Chicago the next year, this time sponsored by the St. Petersburg Times. The Dwights came away with a fifth-place finish this time and they marked themselves as a team to watch in the future. The competition was held in Lake Michigan, not the most mild-temperated body of water, which added to the competition's difficulty factor.

"It was so cold the water had churned up and we couldn't see each other," recalled Mary. "We did everything by count. We used to scream our signals at each other underwater. But one time I couldn't find Franny. I yelled 'Where are you?' She thought I screamed to go up. So she was up and I was down. But all the girls had the same problems and we finished fifth."

The churning water, however, was just a prelude of the problem they would face a year later in South Bend, Ind. Considered as one of the favorites, the Dwight duet came up with something special for the following year.

They would be outfitted as devils. The costumes were red satin leotards with big cotton tails. The girls worked out without the actual outfit because of a problem with getting them on time. Mary knew something was amiss as soon as they went down for the second time. "We went down to about 12 feet and pushed off," she said. "The next time we went down to 12 feet the costumes felt like they weighed a ton and a half."

The cotton had absorbed the water and the Dwights had an unwanted anchor. "We went through with the ballet, but everybody knew what had happened," she said. "It just slowed down our routine too much."

And it was a heavy weight on the girls. "We didn't even make the finals," remembered Mary. "We were heartbroken. We knew we were moving up that ladder. It was a big disappointment."

Lady Hawks Overwhelm Competition

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Howell's "Pack Attack" was at its overwhelming best as the top-ranked Lady Hawks placed five runners in the top nine to win the Five Star Conference Championships on a humid Saturday morning at Lake Mary High.

The Lady Hawks finished with a team score of 28, best in the conference meet since the first year (when girls ran one and a half miles). Seminole, with strong performances from Shownda Martin and Dorchelle Webster, took second at 81 and Lake Brantley edged out Lake Mary for third place, 92-90. Lyman completed Seminole County's dominance of the meet as it finished fourth at 119.

The leader of Lake Howell's pack this season is Lisa Samocki. And Saturday, Samocki, the state's third-ranked individual, ran another outstanding race as she sailed to first place with a fine time of 11:51.2 on the demanding Lake Mary course.

Seminole's Martin went out to the early lead but Samocki stayed within striking distance until she was ready to make her move. "She really handled herself well," Seminole coach Ted Tombros said of Samocki. Her time broke the old course record of 11:59.5 set by West Orange's Louise Schweitzer in last year's regionals.

force. Amy Ertel, a junior, came in fifth at 12:36.3. Nancy Nystrom, a senior, was sixth at 12:37.2, sophomore Martha Fonseca was seventh at 12:39.6 and Belinda LaSeur, also a sophomore, completed the top five as she finished ninth with a time of 12:47.1. Lake Howell's sixth runner, Michelle Spearman, turned in a good performance with a 14th place finish and a time of 13:10.8. Also running for the Hawks was Mary Fonseca who came in 17th at 13:19.3.

"We did a great job of pack running," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said. "The girls are so competitive they're just never satisfied. The great thing about pack running is you don't always have the same top five but there's always somebody else there to take up the slack if one runner has an off day."

For Seminole, the second place finish was the best ever in the Five Star Conference meet and Seminole has been in the conference since its inception.

"We've come a long way in a short time," Tombros said of the 1984 team. "Looking back over the season, I couldn't be any happier. We've only been lower than third place once and we've consistently finished second to second behind the Rams with a team score of 57 followed by Seminole at 73. Lake Howell at 106 and Seabreeze at 151. Lake Brantley's top two runners dropped out and the Patriots wound up with no team score.

"This is the first time we've really been up as a team since the Beach Run and Largo International," Lake Mary coach Mark McGee said. "We were concentrating on the psychological race. We wanted to go out and run the best race we could to prepare for Winter Park the next two weeks (district and regionals)."

Kenney Ignores Boos, Chiefs Ease Past Bucs

Pro Football

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — It took Kansas City fans 2 1/2 weeks to warm up to their Pro Bowl quarterback Bill Kenney.

Kenney broke his thumb in the preseason and missed the first six games of the season before returning in the second half of the San Diego game in the seventh week and passing for 238 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Chiefs to a 31-13 home victory.

But Kenney had a rough go of it last week in his first start, completing only 12-of-25 passes for 124 yards with one interception and four sacks as the Chiefs fell to the New York Jets, 28-7. And after Kenney threw two interceptions Sunday as the Chiefs struggled to a 7-7 halftime deadlock with Tampa Bay, the home fans let him have it.

Kenney was greeted with a barrage of boos as he took the field for Kansas City's first possession of the second half.

"Tom Condon (Kansas City guard) said, 'All right, Billy, this is just like old times. Let's go get 'em,'" said Kenney of the booing. "And we all started laughing. Then I threw that 56-yarder to Carlos on the first play and I was their friend again."

That pass to Carlos moved the Chiefs to the Tampa Bay 5 and two plays later Kenney completed a 5-yard touchdown pass to fullback Ken Lacy that put Kansas City in front for good, 14-7. Kenney went on to complete 26-of-46 passes for 332 yards, adding another touchdown pass and no more interceptions as the Chiefs disposed of the Buccaneers, 24-20.

"The fans pay their money so I'm never surprised when I'm booed," Kenney said. "Len Dawson (former Kansas City quarterback) told me they booed him the year after the Chiefs won the Super Bowl. I remember two years ago we were playing Seattle and I was hot. I was something like 12-of-14 and I threw one in the dirt on purpose to avoid an interception. They booed me and I said to myself, 'What's going on here?' That's the last time I worried about being booed."

"Heck, at halftime I was upset. Very upset. We weren't getting the job done. We were stopping ourselves. We knew they (the Buccaneers) couldn't stop us. We knew they couldn't cover our wide receivers. Not many teams can. It was just a matter of executing our offense like we are capable."

Kenney spread his passes around, connecting with nine different receivers. His favorite target of a year ago, fellow Pro Bowl selection Carlos Carson, caught seven passes for 131 yards. Wide receiver Henry Marshall caught four for 43 yards, including a 27-yard fourth-quarter touchdown.

The 332 yards gave Kenney the fourth best day of his career, but the sixth-year quarterback was more concerned with quality than quantity. So he considered Tampa Bay just another game.

"I didn't play badly," Kenney said, "but I certainly could have played better. I felt I should have thrown for 400 yards. If I play like Bill Kenney is capable of playing, I would have gotten 400 yards. I didn't throw the ball real crisp. I threw the two interceptions and I never expect to throw two interceptions in a game."

Tampa Bay quarterback Steve DeBerg was nearly equal to the challenge, completing 29-of-54 passes for 280 yards and two touchdowns. Kenney and DeBerg combined to set an NFL record with their 100 passes in the game. That broke the previous mark of 98 passes by Minnesota and Baltimore in a 1969 game.

DeBerg threw the final 12 passes that broke the record in the final Tampa Bay drive of the game, moving the Bucs from their own 8 to the Kansas City 20. But the 100th pass of the game was broken up in the end zone by cornerback Kevin Ross on fourth down with seven seconds remaining as Tampa Bay lost for the third straight week.

"We really felt there was no way we were going to lose," Tampa Bay offensive tackle Ron Heller said. "Even when we were down by two touchdowns, DeBerg and all the guys on the offense were on the sidelines and we said there was no way we were going to lose."

 the number one team in the state (Lake Howell).
 Seminole's freshmen flashes, Martin and Webster, are close friends when they're not competing and they stick pretty close together when they're running too. Martin came in second Saturday and broke her own school record in the process with a time of 12:05.7 and Webster was fourth at 12:21.6.

Debbie Coleman (12th at 13:07.2) continued to run consistent as the Tribe's number three performer. "She's a real solid number three runner," Tombros said of Coleman.
 Completing Seminole's top five were Jennifer Roberts (19th at 13:31.6) and Katrina Walker (24th at 14:01). "Roberts and Walker are definitely making us tougher as a group as the big three meets (district, region, state) approach," Tombros said. Also running for the Lady Seminoles were Sherina Johnson (35th at 15:10.8) and Lisa Grant (38th at 15:31.3).

Led by Kim Pacetelli and Michelle Herbst, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots moved up to third place. If the Lady Patriots can continue to progress, their chances look good in the meets ahead.
 Pacetelli finished 11th with a time of 13:03.5 and Herbst was 15th at 13:17.7. Completing the Lady Patriots top five were Joanne Hayward (20th at 13:33.5), Kim Lubenow (21st at 13:36.3) and Melissa Meghdadi (23rd at 13:58.1). Also running for Brantley was Lynn Gomezperalta (26th at 14:09.1).

In last year's Five Star Conference meet Lake Mary's Sue Kingsbury, then a freshman, finished second. But, because of a nagging hip injury, Kingsbury hasn't been at 100 percent the entire 1984 season. The Lady Rams' sophomore fought through the pain Saturday to finish 16th with a time of 13:18.4.

"A healthy Kingsbury and we would have done better," Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson said. "She ran in a lot of pain. I could see it in her face at the mile mark. She showed a lot of heart in finishing the race."

Kingsbury's injury, which started to bother her in the past track season, and the doctors say it's the result of her growing so fast. "The doctors say the injury is just something that she has to outgrow," Gibson said.

With Kingsbury bothered by her injury, Heather Heikkila, a freshman, has taken over the number one spot for the Lady Rams. Heikkila ran another outstanding race Saturday as she finished eighth with a time of 12:42.6. Fran Gordon, a senior, continued to perform consistently for the Rams as she came in 13th at 13:07.9.

Jodie McCurdy ran another strong race for Lake Mary as she moved up to the number four spot with a 27th place finish and a time of 14:16.7. Liz Stone (28th at 14:20.3) moved up to number five for Lake Mary. Also running for the Rams were Lisa Shelby (30th at 14:39.9) and Niki Hays (33rd at 15:02.7).

 came to run Saturday. Junior Ken Rohr was the first Ram to cross the finish line and after Rohr, the Rams just kept on coming. Rohr finished second in the race with a time of 18:16.9 and he was followed in Lake Mary's closely packed top five by Bob Howard (third at 18:33.9), Harold Pitts (fifth at 18:56.2), Matt Palumbo (sixth at 17:01.4) and Jim Shepherd (eighth at 17:15.1).

Also running for the Rams Saturday were John Amrhein (10th at 17:34.3) and Tom Wait (20th at 17:50.1).
 While Lake Mary rolled to its second consecutive Five Star Conference title, Seminole's Billy Penick won the individual race and again it was by a wide margin. The Seminole High junior finished with a time of 15:40.1, more than 35 seconds better than the second place individual.

"He just continues to bury the competition," Seminole coach Ted Tombros said of Penick.

Seminole's number two runner, Larry Cosby, continued to establish himself as one of the area's top performers as he came in fourth with a time of 18:51.3. "Larry's really coming on strong," Tombros said of Cosby.

Kelly Faint moved up considerably Saturday as he came in 16th with a time of 17:42.0 and Kelvin Abney ran another strong race as he finished 19th at 17:47.5. "Faint and Abney are developing into a solid third and fourth runners," said Tombros.

Completing Seminole's top five was John Herberger who finished 46th at 19:24.6 and number six for the Tribe was Randy Drury (37th at 18:48.8). Also running for Seminole was Eric Martin (49th at 19:52.8). "Both Herberger and Drury are first year runners and they're making progress," Tombros said. "They will help us down the road."

Lyman's senior leaders, Carl Schmalmaack and Steve Grundorf, continued their late-season surge to lead the Greyhounds to a second place finish. Schmalmaack finished seventh at 17:07.1 and Grundorf came in ninth at 17:23.2. Completing Lyman's top five were Chuck Mullins (11th at 17:35.8), Robin Rogers (14th at 17:38.5) and Kevin Quinn (17th at 17:43.3). Also running for the Greyhounds was Wayne Straw (22nd at 17:57.5).

Lake Howell is a young team that continues to make progress. Leading the way for the Silver Hawks Saturday were Jeff Van Buskirk, a sophomore, and Anthony Howe, a freshman. Van Buskirk finished 12th with a time of 17:37.1 and Howe was 13th at 17:37.7.

Peterson Uses Hill To Win Junior Varsity Cross Country

By Chris Flister
 Herald Sports Writer
 The home field advantage was good to Lake Mary's Rams in football Friday night and the home course was helped out Lake Mary junior varsity cross country runner Eric Peterson.
 Peterson used the hill on the Lake Mary High course to his advantage and fought off Lyman's Tim Jones in an exciting finish to win the individual title Saturday at the Five Star Conference Championships, the final junior varsity event of the season.
 Peterson, a freshman, finished with a time of 17:28.8, three tenths of a second ahead of Jones, who finished at 17:29.1.
 Jones had passed Peterson in the first part of the race, but the Lake Mary JV standout used the hill to regain the lead. Peterson maintained his lead and Jones put on his kick in the stretch run. But Peterson rose to the challenge and fought off Jones for the victory.
 Lyman came away with the team title Saturday, just edging out the Rams, with a team score of 41 compared to 45 for Lake Mary. Lake

Cross Country

Brantley was third at 56 and Lake Howell was fourth at 80.
 In the girls junior varsity race, Lake Howell's JV express continued to roll as it won with a perfect team score of 15.
 DeLand's Mary Aman was the individual winner with a time of 13:27, but the Lady Bulldog didn't have a team score.
 After Aman came in, Lake Howell had the next five finishers led by Bonnie Oliver who was second individually (and first in the team scoring) with a time of 13:34.9. Oliver was followed by Diane DiMauro (third at 13:47.9), Kim Hammontree (fourth at 13:52.6), Gwen Lane (fifth at 13:52.8) and Terry Gringer (sixth at 14:01.5).
 Seminole's top JV runner was Glenda Bass who came in 10th with a time of 14:27.1. Lake Mary had two JV runners including Kristin Pawlowski (25th at 17:06.2) and Kim Wager (26th at 17:34.9).

 ment... but a tremendous lesson."
 How tremendous, the girls proved next year in Detroit. They finished second and were in contention for a berth in the 1952 Olympics. "We finished first in the Olympic trials," said Mary. "We were really on the verge of something big."
 They didn't realize how big. At that point, Sam Snyder and his International Water Folies discovered the girls. It was a match made in heaven for the Dwight girls. "We got the opportunity to turn professional and we've never regretted," said Mary. "Imagine, doing something you love, enjoying all of that travel and getting paid for it."
 Mary said she didn't think money could be made doing water ballet. She had played on staying in sports, but she thought she had to become a physical education teacher to do it.
 It was with the Water Folies that she met a Mr. Eddie Rose. Captivated by the New Jersey charm, she married him two years later. And, life has been a barrel of laughs ever since.
 "Oh, that was an exciting time," she said. "We travelled all over the world. It seems we spent our anniversary in a different city every year. We never got tired of it."
 After 19 years, though, four-year-old Charlie had a say-so. It was nearing time for him to begin school, so the Roses decided to settle down. But where? Where else do you raise a future Olympian? Florida.

"My sister was running the Orlando Swim School," said Mary. "She called and said she needed help. It was a perfect situation for us. We moved to Altamonte Springs."
 Once there, Mary turned her efforts to coaching. She organized the Lorelis, a Longwood synchronized swim team that has become very successful. Last year, Tia Hardy, one of Mary's pupils, finished second in the figures and third in the solo.
 But coaching hasn't been enough to placate her. In 1978, she and her sister returned to the Grand Masters National Championship and won the duet in Richmond, Va. Again, in 1977, they went to Alexandria, Va. and won the duet.
 She is also instrumental on the national level. She is National Age Group Chairman and Publicity Chairman for Synchronized Swimming. Mary is Administrative Chairman for Florida.
 Yes, a rose is a rose is a rose, and so is Mary.

Principle Of Trick Or Treat Pure And Simple Blackmail

DEAR ABBY: Those who presumably worry about their children who are out trick-or-treating on Halloween should take a lesson from my mother and her friends. They never had to worry. We stayed home because she and her neighbors would toss the best party of the year—next to Christmas. They did this with little effort, permitting the children to do most of the work and planning.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, soft drinks, cookies and cakes were in bountiful supply. We played games, bobbed for apples and received prizes for our costumes.

Growing up in a small town (population about 9,000), I never heard of trick or treat until I moved to Washington, D.C. We didn't have to worry about poisoned candy, pins and razor blades in apples, or the threat of being lured into the home of a stranger to be molested.

I personally despise the custom of trick or treat and refuse to condone it by encouraging children to come to my door. Call me Scrooge.

Fortunately, more parents in my part of the country are beginning to see the sense in block parties on Halloween. I hope it catches on and replaces the deplorable custom of sending children out to beg for treats.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have been a resident in a nursing home for many years. My mind is sound, but my body is badly crippled. My wife visits me every day without fail. She has never neglected me and I know she loves me very much.

I've always encouraged her to have a little social life, but every time she goes to dinner with a gentleman, and the employees here at the home see her, they think it is their "duty" to rush in and report to me that they saw my wife with another man.

I am aware of what is going on, and I do not have to be reminded of my incapability to do things for her. Why, oh why, can't these people keep their big mouths shut?

I'll bet others have this problem, too. If you print this, it will probably go up on a lot of bulletin boards. Thank you for listening.

FRUSTRATED IN FLORIDA
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Some people are more thoughtless than malicious. I hope this reminds those who carry tales to use their heads.

DEAR ABBY: Single American women shouldn't complain about the "Ms." title.

In Australia an unmarried woman—be she 18 or 80—is officially listed as a "spinster" on her passport!

AMAZED IN AMERICA
DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a large shower for a young bride-to-be.

After the bride opened all the gifts, she passed around some notized envelopes and asked every guest to address an envelope to herself. I had never seen this done before.

Some girls thought it was practical. Others called it tacky. What do you think?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: I think it's a clever time-saver. I would not call it tacky.

Clogging Team Dances Way To Grand Champs

The Southern Appalachian Mountains is the birthplace and the traditional home of the dance form known as "clogging." Tracing its roots to the folk dances of Scotland, Ireland, Germany and other European countries, clogging has moved from the mountains and spread its appeal to all areas of the country, especially Florida.

along with others from Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Utah, participated in the Fontana Universal Clogging Competition. Ninety-two teams competed in the traditional mountain style dances, and in categories for line dances and show routines which are most popular in Florida.

The team was also named the Grand Overall Champion. Bilz came in first in his age division in individual competition and Joyce Hensley of Orlando, another team member, was second in her age division.

Buckin' Mule rehearse in Sanford, but members live in Orlando, Chuluota, Lake Mary, Altamonte Springs, and Sanford. Most members have been dancing three or four years and have danced all over the Southeast including Disney World, Sea World, Circus World, Six Flags Over Georgia, Opryland, and the Knoxville and New Orleans World Fairs.

Florida boasts some 105 clogging clubs and teams throughout the state with an estimated 3,000 dancers.

The weekend of Oct. 12-14, a number of teams from Florida,

The Buckin' Mule Mountain Dance Team, under the direction of Scotty Bilz of Altamonte Springs, took a third, two second, and three first-place

Growing Up With Beta Sigma Phi

Xi Theta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met at the home of Bonnie Jones who presented a program on "Growing Up with Beta Sigma Phi."

She described how members grow through the years with Beta Sigma Phi — how they start out as a Ritual of Jewel and learn the ritual starting with a good foundation to move up to an Exemplar degree where sorority sisters continue to grow and build on the foundation.

From there, members progress to the Preceptor degree where they have completed their progression but will continue to help the other degrees with their foundations.

Following the program, president Victoria Hughes led the business meeting.

The social committee finalized plans for the cookout at the beach and made plans for the Autumn Witchery in Daytona Beach.

The service committee received a thank you note from I.S.I.S. and the family they helped.

Lois Smith thanked the chapter for selecting her as its Valentine Girl.

Refreshments were served to the following attending: Donna Frank, Ruth Gaines, Ginny Hagan, Victoria Hughes, Bonnie Jones, Lois Smith, Tracey Wight and Laurel Rodgers.

No Longer Active? You Must Modify Diet

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am interested in learning how to lose weight by diet and exercise. My athletic 25-year-old son was shot in the arm and was forced to give up sports and working out for more than six months.

Since his injury, he lives on meat, seafoods and a little fruit, otherwise no carbohydrates. He has given up water and juices for cola. What about protein?

DEAR READER — Your son is probably used to consuming a lot of calories to support his exercise program. When such an individual stops exercising and continues to consume the same number of calories, he will gain weight. The extra calories are stored as fat. We see this a lot in former "star athletes." At 40, they are no longer football stars or in good physical shape, but are overweight because of a developed eating pattern.

Since your son is eating meats and seafood, he undoubtedly is getting plenty of protein, but even excess protein is converted to fat if the body doesn't need it. Many meats contain lots of fat, and that is where the calories come from. Lean meats are actually low-calorie foods. A whole pound of lean round steak without any visible fat contains only 600 calories.

Obviously, your son is not on a balanced diet. I am sending you a recent issue of The Health Letter, Special Report 17, Flexible Weight Control Plan. It is based on a balanced diet that he can follow.

An arm injury should not keep your son from doing the kind of exercise that he needs to control his weight. While his arm may be weak, he can walk, jog and run. Exercise is an important part of any weight-control program. Those who are able may choose to run or engage in a strenuous sport, but walking is hard to beat. As a person builds up to it, he can walk long distances at a comfortable pace. Long-duration exercise is more effective in mobilizing body fat and using it as a calorie source.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Where are the lymph glands located? What part of the body do they operate? Do they start in the spleen or the pancreas? Can a person live without them?

DEAR READER — Many people are confused about lymph glands. They are part of the lymphatic system, which is a part of your circulatory system. Lymph is the clear fluid that oozes out of tissues when they are damaged. A lot of the fluid in your tissues is collected by tiny porous vessels, called lymph vessels. They connect together into larger and larger channels. Eventually they channel the fluid back to the veins that empty directly into your heart.

As these vessels course toward the heart, they pass through nodes of tissue, called lymph nodes. These nodes produce lymph cells for the circulation.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
When North finally got around to bidding four clubs, South realized that slam was a virtual certainty if partner had a few aces. South bid Blackwood and when he discovered that his side had all the aces, he even checked to see if North had a king. When that reply was negative, he stopped in the small slam.

member what all good players know about finesse: If there is a finesse to take, do what you can to avoid it.
South won the opening lead with dummy's spade ace and trumped a spade in his hand.

Six clubs was a very good contract. It would make if diamonds divided 3-3, or if the heart finesse worked, or if the opening lead were a heart into declarer's A-Q. Although none of those things happened, slam was still a certainty as the cards lay.
Declarer simply had to re-

Then he played two rounds of clubs. Next he played the three high diamonds, ending in the dummy. When East showed out on the third diamond, declarer was ready to fall back on the heart finesse until he saw something better. He played the fourth diamond and discarded the deuce of hearts. West had to win that trick and had a choice of leading into declarer's A-Q of hearts or of giving declarer a spade ruff in dummy and a discard of the heart queen.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY
OCTOBER 30, 1984
This can be a productive year for you, provided you do not take on more projects or ventures than you can comfortably manage. Be selective in what you attempt to do.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Being too insistent upon having everything done your way today could lead to complications in your dealings with family members. Major changes are in store for Scorpios in the coming year. Send for your predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
You may have occasion today to be involved with someone who treated you badly in the past. It will make matters worse if you do something out of spite.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Do not make hasty judgments in your financial affairs today. Try not to commit yourself to anything that could tie up your future earnings.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Unless you use logical procedures today, you're apt to fail to achieve your objectives. Things are tough enough without putting obstacles in your own path.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Guard against tendencies today to worry about things that may never happen. Negative thinking will lessen your vitality and efforts to overcome.
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Do not recommend businessmen to friends today if you are unsure of their ethics. If your pal gets a bum deal, he will blame you.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You're a trifle vulnerable today and you must be careful not to be used by someone who has selfish motives. Be open-minded, but also be cautious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Do not try to run away from your duties or responsibilities today. Things that you postpone or sweep under the rug could cause greater problems later.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Move warily today in enterprises or ventures that contain speculative elements. Be sure your risks are worthy of what you hope to gain.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
A volatile issue that previously caused friction in your household may surface again today. This time try to treat it more sensibly.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
