Home Care Week proclaimed

LAKE MARY — The week of Nov. 28 through Dec. 4 has been declared Home Care Week, 1993. The city of Lake Mary issued an official proclamation of the event during last Thursday's City Commission meeting.

Christine Carlson, R.N., of Olsten Kimberly QualityCare, Heathrow/Lake Mary, was on hand at the meeting to accept a copy of the proclamation.

In the declaration, Lake Mary citizens of all ages are urged to "recognize the efforts of home care providers and the families and friends of the elderly and disabled who provide such important services in the home."

Commission calls meeting

LONGWOOD — The city commissioners will discuss the non-exclusive commercial solid waste franchise at a work session and special meeting tonight at city hall. The city is drawing up a solid waste franchise agreement which takes into account a new state law governing recyclers.

Under the statute, cities are not allowed to collect franchise fees from recyclers. The city may only charge recyclers a fee to register with the city. That provision may result in the city losing about $100,000 in fees.

The work session will begin at 7 p.m., followed by the special meeting.

Brewster trial continues

SANFORD — The trial of former Sanford policeman Guy S. Brewster continues today after the judge denied a defense motion for judgment of acquittal Sunday afternoon.

The defense began presenting its case today. Brewster is charged with 84 counts of sexual acts with a former Police Explorer between 1987 until the youth turned 18 in 1989. The victim claims he and the policeman had an ongoing sexual relationship. Brewster led the Explorers. The two met when the youth was a Lakeview Middle School eighth grader. Brewster was the school resource officer.

Judge Alan A. Dickey heard legal arguments during the nearly four hour hearing Sunday. The judge also denied four renewed defense motions for mistrial.

Term times trimmed

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission is still fine-tuning the city charter, following a major charter revision last year. Thursday night, a recommendation to change term starting dates for the various agencies and boards in the city.

Previously, new members named to the various boards would begin their membership, "...on the first day of the month following assumption of office by newly elected City Commissioners."

As that was stated, the board membership would become effective on Dec. 1.

Thursday night, City Clerk Carol Foster requested a change which would allow members to be seated effective on Jan. 1 of each year.

The boards include the Local Planning Agency, Planning and Zoning Board, Board of Adjustment, and Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

The commission adopted the ordinance providing for terms to begin on Jan. 1 of each year, by a unanimous vote.

Adult entertainment Sanford seeks guidelines on regulations

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — A Model Adult Entertainment Code, will be presented to the Sanford City Commission. The regulation will be discussed during the commission work session today.

Director of Planning and Development Jay Marder explained, "The original plan was developed by Orange County. We will be using it as sort of a guideline for what we may eventually come up with."

"Adult entertainment has basically been a law enforcement issue up to this point," Marder said. "Our Land Development Regulations do not specifically cover this type of business."

Marder has started adapting the Orange County plan into specifics for the City of Sanford. There are a number of changes he suggests, although the final decision will be up to the members of the commission.

The plan specifies that "an adult entertainment establishment shall not be allowed to open anywhere except in RI-1, Restricted Industrial, or MI-2, Medium Industrial zoning districts."

Spacing is given a great deal of consideration. A distance of 1,500 feet will be required between an adult entertainment establishment and a similar establishment, between it and a religious institution, education institution, the property line of a preexisting residence, and park.

It would place a limit of 500 feet between such an establishment and an area zoned for residential use, designated as residential on the future

County to air land buy, waste rates

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners will consider creation of a street-lighting district in Midway Tuesday.

During the first year, the cost of the lights will be picked up under the county Community Development Block Grant program. If approved, residents will begin paying an annual fee for electricity and light rental based on the length of their property line fronting streets.

Commissioners will vote on the proposal and others in their regular meeting at the County Services Building Tuesday. The street-lighting district will be considered in a public hearing beginning at 7 p.m.

Buddy Bakula, community development of Midway, said he hopes the district will be established by the end of the year. See County, Page 5A

Transplant success for ex-tax collector

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Former Seminole County Tax Collector G. Troy Ray, was listed in good condition this morning. Ray underwent a heart transplant operation Saturday, at the Medical University of South Carolina, in Charleston.

A hospital spokesperson said this morning, "Mr. Ray is listed in very good condition today, and he is doing just wonderful in the recuperation process."

Ray had been placed on a donor waiting list on May 20th of this year, and received the transplant on Nov.

20. "It was exactly six months to the day," said his daughter-in-law Tammy Ray.

Because he was required to be available within moments' notice of a donor, Ray has remained in Charleston for the entire six months.

"Yesterday, he was sitting up, he shaved himself, and appeared to be very with it," Tammy said. "The only problem was that he had the hick-ups for the entire day, probably a reaction to some of the medication."

"But if that's the only problem he has," she added, "there is certainly nothing to complain about."

No determination has been made at this time whether Ray will be able to return to Sanford. See Heart, Page 5A

State objects to proposed Chuluota homes

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The state objects to a large housing development proposed for Chuluota given initial approval by county commissioners in August.

The state Department of Community Affairs recommends the county allow an average of only one home per buildable acre in the proposed 227-acre housing development flanking the proposed Chuluota Bypass unless it can justify the need for more homes in the area. Commissioners will consider approving the land use change for the development Dec. 14.

In another comment, the state opposed a county proposal to allow suburban developments to remain in the rural areas of the county although construction had not begun. The state recommended the county withdraw the proposal or provide substantial justification for it.

Tony Matthews, county land use planner, said the state comments are under review.

Aug. 11, commissioners approved a land use change for the property sought by George Viele. Viele sought the ability to build up to 390 homes on the property. See State, Page 5A

The Higgins House reflects charm with a Victorian flair

The Fifth Annual Holiday Tour of Homes will be held throughout Sanford's historic district Saturday, Dec. 4, from 1 to 7 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 5, from 1 to 5 p.m. Eight homes and a church will open their doors to visitors for tours. Tickets for the tour are $10 each and may be purchased by calling Kim Myers at 330-7586 or during the tour at the Woman's Club of Sanford.

Like proud parents showing off their newborn, Walt and Bert Padgett graciously provided a thorough tour of their modest bed and breakfast inn. Higgins House was built in 1894. An antique photograph is displayed in the foyer of the Higgins family sitting on the porch.

The exterior of the house is Queen Anne architecture, Padgett pointed out. Barge board, spindles and cross gables are turn-of-the-century designs. The architectural aspect of cross gables is board put on boards to create a design.

"Bert wanted to keep what was here and work with it," said Padgett. "There were holes in the ceiling and walls that needed repair. The house was vacant for six months before we bought it."

The couple moved here from Orlando. See Tour, Page 5A

Asst. scoutmaster arrested

BRADENTON - An assistant scoutmaster was charged with sexually molesting two teen-age boys at a Boy Scout camp after a deputy reported finding the man naked in a tent on top of one of the boys.

Tommy Evans, 29, was also alleged with giving one of the boys orange juice laced with vodka before molesting him.

The incident occurred at Camp Flying Eagle, a Boy Scout camp on Upper Manatee River Road in unincorporated Manatee County.

Evans, of Bradenton, was held without bail Sunday night in the Manatee County Jail on a charge of sexual battery. Evans is employed as a teacher's aide at Harlee Middle School in Bradenton, according to a police report.

According to Manatee County sheriff's reports, Evans allegedly gave a 13-year-old boy the alcohol-laced orange juice, then pulled down the boy's pants and attempted to fondle him. The boy hit him and ran away.

Another boy alerted the scoutmaster, who called the Sheriff's Office.

When sheriff's Deputy Bud Johnson arrived at the camp, he and the scoutmaster walked to the tent where the boy had been. When they opened the tent, they said, they saw Evans lying naked on top of a 14-year-old boy "apparently engaged in sexual intercourse without the consent of the 14-year-old."

Olympic diver to be released from jail

BRANDON - Bruce Kimball, the former Olympic diver who was convicted of manslaughter after driving drunk into a group of teen-agers, will be released from custody this week after serving less than five years of a 17-year sentence.

Kimball said he had missed a driveway, where he was going to drop off a friend, and didn't see about 35 youths who had parked along a dead-end street on Aug. 1, 1988. His blood-alcohol level was twice the legal limit, officials said.

Robbie Bedell and Kevin Gosic, 18, were killed instantly. Raymond "R.J." Kerker, then 18, and April Bruffy, then 18, were left with multiple leg fractures and have since had more than 12 operations between them. Four others were treated and released from the hospital.

Way Back When

Here is a legal deed of historical value with which General Henry S. Sanford and his wife Gertrude S. Sanford conveyed ownership of approximately five acres of land to Neis Julius Stenstrom. The deed is dated Feb. 12, 1880. It was not filed in Book 2 or Orange County records and recorded until July 20, 1880. To understand why the elapsed time between the time the deed was dated and when it was filed and recorded, it must be noticed that the document was executed at the United States Consulate in Brussels, Belgium. The U.S. consul was John Wilson and it was witnessed by B. Sowards and Aug Snegerd.

Thirty years after JFK assassination, Miami link still intrigues

By RICHARD COLE Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - Just moments after the shots that killed President Kennedy rang out in Dallas, official eyes turned toward Miami and its conspiratorial Cuban exile community.

And on the 30th anniversary of the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination, questions about the Miami connection remain unanswered.

"After 30 years, our government has still not completed a thorough investigation," says former House Assassinations Committee investigator Oaeton Fonzi. "So the people believe everything, and they believe nothing, and they remain as confused as ever."

Law enforcement and intelligence were clearly worried about the Miami connection on the day Kennedy was shot down.

The day after Kennedy's murder, the FBI raided the home of Miami exile militant Frank Sturgis to look for evidence.

In Washington, CIA officer Deamond FitzGerald worried aloud that his agency's Mob- and exile-backed plot to assassinate Fidel Castro had somehow backfired.

The Warren Commission, however, eventually blamed Lee Harvey Oswald alone, and official eyes turned away from Miami.

But a decade later the House Assassinations Committee concluded a conspiracy did exist - perhaps the Mob, perhaps CIA rogues, perhaps out-of-control Cuban exiles.

Fonzi, author of the just-published book "The Last Investigation," believes Miami was indeed the center of the storm.

Fonzi contends the assassination plot was hatched among exiles and their CIA protectors in Miami. The spark - Kennedy's agreement not to invade Cuba after the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

"I think a certain hierarchy within the Miami CIA station played a role in the assassination," Fonzi told The Associated Press. "They had an absolute belief Kennedy was a traitor in dealing with (Soviet leader Nikita) Khrushchev on Cuba."

At the time, the CIA station on what is now MetroZoo's grounds was the largest in the world outside Langley, Va., in the wake of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion and the 1962 missile crisis.

Anti-Castro militant Sturgis - who later became infamous as one of the Watergate burglars and is still active with Miami exile groups - agrees there was a conspiracy. But he blames retaliation by Castro, not exile zealots or the CIA.

Sturgis himself was fingered, however, by Marita Lorenz, Fidel Castro's former mistress who defected with Sturgis' help and joined the exile militants after botching an attempt to poison the Cuban leader. She testified to the House committee and has repeated the story in her new book "Marita."

She claims to have accompanied Oswald, Sturgis, exile militant Orlando Bosch and others to Dallas in a heavily armed motorcade. She was forced to go home alone on Nov. 21, 1963, however, without ever knowing the purpose of the mission.

"I think Oswald was involved in the assassination, but he had help," she says. "I don't know what happened when I left, but there was a lot of anger."

Sturgis, who calls Lorenz "a spy from outer space," says he was home at the time of the assassination. Fonzi, who first interviewed Lorenz for the committee, says he doubts her story as well.

Dade County official archivist Gordon Winslow feels some of the theories could be put to rest if even local police agencies released their files. But Miami police refuse. Metro-Dade police say they can't find any.

And President Clinton, Winslow notes, has dragged his feet on appointing the commission that is supposed to declassify hundreds of thousands of pages of federal investigative reports.

"I don't know if there's anything there," he says. "But if we could get at the documents, we'd have a much better idea."

Suicide, murders, unpursued leads cloud probes

By Associated Press

MIAMI - A partial list of the leads in Florida - including murders, a strange suicide, and conflicting testimony - that have left questions 30 years after President Kennedy was assassinated on Nov. 22, 1963:

• In early November 1963, Miami police intelligence officer Everett Fay recorded right-wing organizer Joseph Miller saying Kennedy would be shot with a high-powered rifle from a tall building. Fay warned the FBI. The Dallas motorcade went on anyway.

• Silvia and Annie Odio, sisters of current Miami City Manager Cesar Odio, said Lee Harvey Oswald - supposedly a Castro sympathizer - and two Latin men came to their home in Dallas in September 1963 trying to collect money for anti-Castro causes.

• The committee received FBI reports saying Jack Ruby, who later killed Oswald, was running guns through the Florida Keys. Exile militant Frank Sturgis told a House Assassinations Committee investigator he had met Ruby in Cuba, and heard him talk about a plan to kill Kennedy.

• Oswald's mentor in Dallas, Russian exile George de Mohrenschildt, retired to exclusive Manalapan outside West Palm Beach. In March 1977, House committee investigator Oaeton Fonzi went to interview him about allegations he was Oswald's CIA contact, not just a friend. De Mohrenschildt was out and The Investigator left his card.

Later that day, de Mohrenschildt arrived home, put the business card in his pocket, and fatally shot himself.

• When New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison conducted his assassination probe, he called Miami exile Eladio Del Valle as a key grand jury witness. Before Del Valle could appear, he was murdered in a Miami parking lot in February 1967.

The Del Valle case file might provide intriguing information. But Miami Police refuse to release it - because the case is still open after 26 years, Lt. Bobbie Meeks says. They contend it was a drug slaying.

• Antonio Veciana, founder of the Miami exile militant group Alpha 66, told Fonzi he saw Oswald and his CIA contact Maurice Bishop together in Dallas in early September 1963. Fonzi says he believes "Maurice Bishop" was really top CIA official David Atlee Phillips, who rose to head the agency's Western Hemisphere Division. Phillips later provided the committee inaccurate reports on Oswald's visit to Mexico City.

• Castro's former mistress Marita Lorenz, who defected and joined exile militants in Miami, testified before the House assassination committee. Lorenz said she, Oswald, Sturgis, militant leader Dr. Orlando Bosch and others arrived heavily armed in Dallas on Nov. 21, 1963. But she was sent home early without knowing the mission's purpose.

Sturgis says he was home with his wife. Fonzi doubts her story. But Lorenz repeats it in her book "Marita."

• CIA-connected mobster Johnny Rosselli, who had participated in the unsuccessful plots to kill Castro, told columnist Jack Anderson that Castro was behind the Kennedy assassination. In August 1976, Rosselli was found floating in a barrel in Biscayne Bay before the House committee could call him as a witness.

• Across the state in Tampa, Frank Ragano, the lawyer for mobster Santo Trafficante, who also helped the CIA in the Castro plots, gave a different version. He said Trafficante confided on his death bed that Kennedy was "hit" by fellow mobster Carlos Marcello of New Orleans, who was angered by Bobby Kennedy's relentless prosecution.

• Convicted anti-Castro exile bomber Rolando Otero, in jail in Okaloosa County, in Florida's Panhandle, gave information that led to a supposed CIA-connected man named "Carlos" with information about the Kennedy assassination. When Fonzi arranged with Metro-Dade police to photograph men linked to Carlos, top staffers in the House committee ordered him to stop.

• Miami police investigated Jorge Martinez Soto, a limousine driver, when witnesses heard him saying, shortly before the assassination, "We're going to get the president." He was linked to organized crime figures who had gambling interests in pre-Castro Cuba. Police destroyed the investigation files. Dade County archivist Gordon Winslow says.

Man dies after shooting self in police standoff

By Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — A South Carolina man accused of abducting his estranged wife died, one day after shooting himself during a 14-hour standoff with police, authorities said.

Cortina C. Hammond, who suffered serious burns trying to escape, was in satisfactory condition at Halifax Medical Center, said nursing supervisor Elizabeth Pendleton.

Police and Volusia County sheriff's SWAT teams stormed the house before dawn Saturday, more than 14 hours after David Hammond refused to come out or open the door for police, said police spokesman Al Tolley.

Hammond, 36, was found in the house with an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head when officers entered.

Ms. Hammond, held hostage throughout the standoff, was burned on her left leg when a flash grenade went off at her feet as she tried to flee the house, Tolley said.

The standoff began Friday afternoon when police were tipped by authorities in Richland County, S.C., that Hammond was in the area.

Participate in the festivities

Watching a high school football game is much more thrilling if you are related to or know a member of the team. Any major event is more exciting if you have a direct or indirect part in it.

Holiday events planned in downtown Sanford during December are good examples of how to get involved and in turn, have a more enjoyable holiday season.

Comments made last year after the annual St. Lucia/Christmas Festival, should not be made this year.

After the low turn-out on the lighted boat parade last year, several boat owners said they wish they had known that all sizes and types of boats could enter the competition. A number of them said they would have entered.

When Miss St. Lucia 1992 passed during the parade, some people said they wish their daughter or friend would have entered the competition.

More advance work than ever before has been done for this year's activities. Planning however, is only fore-thought. Unless people get involved, no amount of hoping and scheduling will produce a success.

The time is now at hand to get involved. Boat owners should contact the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Learn of the various boat classes being accepted for the light parade.

Young ladies between the ages of 16 and 20 should submit applications for the Miss St. Lucia competition.

Downtown merchants should already have plans for window decorating, lighting, and expanded hours during the Dec. 11 and 12 weekend.

The general public should make plans to bring the entire family into the downtown area for the tree-lighting ceremony, parade, and other events.

If a neighbor girl or your own daughter becomes Miss St. Lucia, or if your company has a float in the parade containing friends and associates, it will be a much more enjoyable event.

Don't just wait for others to get things done. Share the season by offering your support and participation.

Become involved in the 1993 holiday events in downtown Sanford's St. Lucia/Christmas Festival.

Satan in grade school classroom?

On college campuses, most of those intent on punishing wicked speech come from the left. But on public school boards and city councils around the country, the arbiters of what is morally correct in the curriculum and on reading lists are mainly from the right. And they are growing in numbers and power.

Some of this cleansing of the minds of children is directed by such ever-watchful organizations as Citizens for Excellence in Education, the Christian Coalition, Focus on the Family, Concerned Women of America and Phyllis Schlafly's dauntless Eagle forum.

But there are also protesters who are not tied to any organization. These are parents who believe -- as one said in Grand Saline, Texas, during a censorship face-off -- "We don't like our children being separated from the values we've given them." I have talked with a number of such parents and they are deeply convinced that their children are at risk from infectious secularism and even Satanism. Some believe they are saving their children from damnation.

Arrayed against them are teachers and even some principals who believe just as deeply that a classroom should be as wide as the world -- enabling students to learn about cultures and ideas they never dreamed of.

A classic confrontation between a teacher who insisted on nurturing the imaginations of her students and a group of parents acutely suspicious of books that might bewitch their children has taken place in Grand Saline, a town of 2,600 in Northeast Texas.

Jackie Haskew, a fourth-grade teacher, became the target of some parents who accused her of assigning books containing satanic imagery to goat's head, for instance, in an African folk tale, "Brother to the Wind." Ann Tartelton of the International Reading Association tells me that a drawing of Santa

Claus with a bag of gift books had to be removed from Haskew's classroom because the letters, Santa, can be rearranged to spell Satan.

A parent maintained, furthermore, that it is not safe for children to read fairy tales.

Jackie Haskew began receiving anonymous calls at home, charging her with teaching devil-worshipping and with being an atheist. (She is a churchgoing Methodist.)

At a town meeting, a woman came over to her and held her hand. The comforter told her some good would come out of all this antagonism because it had awakened many people to the realization that the antichrist was present in Grand Saline. The antichrist must be destroyed, she said, and Jackie Haskew was the antichrist.

(It is a memorable experience to be called the antichrist. A few years ago, when I arrived at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., to speak, several students told me that a couple of weeks before a representative of Minister Farrakhan -- whom I had criticized in print -- declared that I am the antichrist. However, he left no job description.)

The truth of Clinton vs. press

If you believe what you see on TV, you might think the president and the press are getting along better of late.

Zoe Baird seems a distant memory, the infamous $200 haircut is all but forgotten and "Travelgate" is almost a trivia question. There's even some statistical evidence to back up the notion that Bill Clinton and the pack that covers him have struck a truce: The Center for Media and Public Affairs, which counts the positive and negative statements aired about the president, recently reported an "upturn in Clinton's TV image." His press coverage is still worse than George Bush's was four years ago, but things seem to be getting better.

Just goes to show, you shouldn't believe what you see on TV. There does appear to have been an improvement in the tone of Clinton's coverage in recent weeks, thanks probably to the machinations of presidential counselor David Gergen, a masterful image manipulator and press handler. But take it from the Curmudgeon: The Clinton White House and the people who report on it are not getting along, and that's putting it gently.

For their part, many journalists view the Clinton crew as inexperienced, pushy, incompetent and arrogant. "They have given more attention to how to deal with the press than any administration since Nixon's," said one correspondent for a large metropolitan daily. "They have a very cynical and manipulative view of the press. Some of the things they do are downright nasty."

This reporter continues: "They've made a lot of enemies in the White House press corps and that's saying something, because 90 percent of the reporters are Democrats. A lot of the working press get screwed over in a lot of ways and they can be heard saying, I hate these people."

A correspondent for a news bureau complains that Clinton and his aides are dishonest. Yet another White House reporter says flatly that Clinton lies.

For their part, the people in the White House see the pencil and microphone crowd as a monolithic bunch of naysayers and nitpickers who obsess on the trivial and refuse to give Clinton a break. They openly wonder why the press seems to ignore their man's accomplishments. They question why reporters focus on the negative and shy away from the positive.

This adverse attitude sparks threats and even nasty behavior. Access is limited, interviews are denied, inquiries are filibustered. Television camera crews are especially irked by the way they are herded along by young Clinton aides yanking on yellow ropes. "The White House staff doesn't think of themselves as cynical," says a correspondent. "They think of themselves as savvy. They think they are better and smarter than everyone else. They think everyone else is a jerk."

The White House reporters I spoke with believe the contemptuous tone flows from the top down. "When I met Clinton two years ago," said one correspondent, "he relished dealing with the press. He liked them. He was approachable, personable. But he never really understood the press and its function. He felt betrayed by the stories about the draft and Jennifer Flowers. He doesn't think he is cynical. He sees himself as burned."

Indeed, so burned that he openly provoked the media at last spring's annual dinner honoring radio and television correspondents. "You know why I can stiff you on the press conferences?" he said. "Because Larry King liberated me from you by giving me the American people directly."

I personally think this whole situation is getting absurd. Clinton cannot simply thumb his nose at the traditional press. Where does he think stories about draft-dodging and Jennifer Flowers come from? The press cannot simply dismiss as dubious and deceitful every move the White House makes. Skepticism is healthy, cynicism is malignant.

Somebody had better negotiate an end to this madness before it gets totally out of hand. (C)1993 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Billboard's best friend: Shuster

WASHINGTON -- A new billboard is erected every 30 minutes in the United States. The barons of the outdoor advertising industry know who to thank: Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa.

A seemingly routine congressional "reauthorization" -- in which Congress renews funding for existing programs -- is an example of the billboard industry's clout. This story can be told through a war of words between two old enemies, environmentalists and the billboard industry.

Although billboards comprise a tiny fraction of the advertising industry, they have been the subject of heated congressional debate over the years. Despite many attempts to settle the issue, such as the Highway Beautification Act of 1965, which banned new billboard construction on federal highways except in commercial and industrial areas, some members of Congress still insist on fiddling with the law every time a highway bill comes up. This time, billboard proponents didn't even wait for a highway bill.

Congress last thought it settled the issue with the passage of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Act of 1991. Attached to this $151 billion highway bill was a provision that banned all billboards on the federal portions of 15,000 miles of state-designated scenic byways. The intent, many claim, was to provide these officially designated scenic roads with an extra level of protection against the proliferation of unsightly billboards.

The ban didn't sit well with Shuster, the top Republican on the House Public Works and Transportation Committee. Shuster believes the Transportation Department didn't follow the "intent" of Congress when it implemented the billboard restriction. So Shuster, along with Rep. Nick Joe Rahall, D-W.Va., decided to intervene when the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act came up for reauthorization earlier this month.

What does a hazardous material bill have to do with billboards? Absolutely nothing. But this didn't stop Shuster and Rahall from attaching a "policy clarification" to the legislation. In reality, this "clarification" would strip protection for scenic byways, paving the way for new billboard construction on these roads. A proposal to remove the measure was struck down by a 50-15 vote.

A Shuster spokesman told our associate Jan Moller that the clarification would simply return to the states the power to decide on new billboard construction on their byways. But a spokesman for the group Scenic America, which has been fighting the billboard lobby for years, believes allowing billboard construction in commercial areas of scenic highways would make a mockery of Congress' intent. Almost anything can be classified a commercial or industrial area. A small, isolated warehouse, or a roadside inn, for example, can be used as an excuse to put up several sight-polluting billboards.

Shuster has long been the billboard industry's best friend on Capitol Hill, for which he has been handsomely rewarded in campaign contributions. In the first six months of this year alone, Shuster collected more than $17,000 from the billboard industry and its lobbyists. Rahall has garnered more than $6,000 from the billboard industry during that span.

Though he lost the fight over billboards in the 1991 highway bill, Shuster has become legendary for his ability to deliver pork for his constituents. Among other items, Shuster's district is home to the Bud Shuster Highway, a $30 million moving sidewalk (for the city of Altoona, population 50,000) and a $35 million monorail demonstration project, also for Altoona.

Some members of Congress still insist on fiddling with the law every time a highway bill comes up.

ner, said the lighting was requested by residents to increase safety and to deter crime. Only one street light is in Midway, at the corner of State Road 48 and Sipes Avenue. Many residents have installed private lights. When the lighting is complete, lamps will illuminate every street, even Frog Alley.

Jane Wysong, of the county budget office, said the least amount residents will pay is $3.19 annually. The largest amount, for two property owners with two street frontages, is $127 annually. About 600 Midway residents will pay $9.56 per year. Another 400 residences will pay $12.74 annually. Wysong said callers have been supportive of the lighting.

In other action, commissioners will consider a joint purchase agreement with the St. Johns River Water Management District to acquire the 1,300-acre Jesup's Landing property on the north shore of Lake Jesup. A strip through the property was purchased by the Seminole County Expressway Authority and turned over to the state for the Seminole County Expressway.

Under the deal, the county will buy nearly 500 acres for $345,000 under the county Natural Lands Program. The water district will buy the remainder for $655,000, or a total of $900,000. At one time, the land was offered at $13.5 million.

Commissioners will also review their Oct. 1 garbage rate changes which increased some fees paid by haul-it-yourselfers. Commissioners upped the charge for small bulk loads from $5 and $7 per load to $14. They also increased the number bags or cans people can bring to eight containers under the same $4 charge. The size of the bag doesn't matter as long as it's under 50 lbs.

County Manager Ron Rabun said several people who haul bulk loads complained about the hike, so commissioners asked to review the pricing.

One proposal by Public Works director Larry Sellers is to charge a flat $1 per bag or can charge to make the containerized charges more in line with the bulk haulers. Sellers also suggested weighing all bulk loads, regardless of size, and charging the $38 per ton amount based on the quantity.

Commissioners will also discuss a proposed 50-cent per head charge for the new Central Florida Regional Transportation Authority, the merged Lynx and Central Florida Commuter Rail Authority. Deputy County Manager Kevin Grace said Orange and Osceola County have agreed to the payment to help plan and finance a region-wide bus and rail system.

The county now pays about $1.2 million for the county's Lynx service. Based on its population, the county share would be about $133,000. The actual first-year additional cost of the share will be about $32,600 because of projected savings from Lynx services.

Walt and Bert Padgett on a balcony of the 100-year-old Higgins house.

Miami almost four years ago. "We had traveled around and liked to stay in bed and breakfast inns," he said, "so we thought we'd try one in this house. It's a great deal of fun, we're having a ball. We meet neat and interesting people from all over the world," said Padgett.

Much of the color scheme of their home is pink and hunter green which included the pink ceilings. They prefer to decorate in the Queen Anne style. "We're just finishing our second year in business," he said. "We worked on the house for two years before we even opened."

The Padgetts began their refurbishing with the Wicker Room. "We lived in it, restored it, did another room and so on," he said. The Wicker Room is decorated with white wicker throughout. A small wicker basket on the floor holds the personalized Higgins House guest towels.

Next, the Victorian room was born. The authentic mid-1880s brass bed elegantly flatters the room's decor. Guests staying in the Wicker Room and Victorian Room share a bathroom.

The bathroom is framed with cedar wood walls with an antique bathtub. This bath was quite small but reflects the charm of yesteryears gone by.

A gift shop is located on the second floor. "My wife does the crafts in the gift shop," said Padgett. "We make homemade jams and jellies from strawberries and blueberries that we pick."

Padgett spoke of his favorite room, the Pub Room. A television, cozy couch and chairs share space with a small bar. Decorated with deer antlers and beer mugs, this room adds a touch of warmth to the home.

The dining room chandelier hung glistening over the table and chairs. Plaid tapestry was hung on all the walls. Elegant must be the word describing this room.

A couple of months ago the Queen Anne Room became the new addition. This room has a private bath. The floral decor of the room adds to the gardens that can be seen from the windows.

Many of the furnishings in the home are antiques. The Singer sewing machine was a family heirloom of Mrs. Padgett's. "The chairs in the parlor are turn of the century," said Padgett, "and the piano is a 1902 Kimball that my wife restored."

"Christmas is our finest time," he said. "We decorate the weekend after Thanksgiving." A fire is always going in the fireplace and the parlor has a 10-foot tree in the bay window.

A Victorian box garden is in the back yard. Padgett built the deck and tends much of the garden. "Many of the vegetables served to our guests are grown in our garden," he said. "We fix a healthy breakfast of fresh fruit, granola and baked goods like banana bread and muffins with yogurt."

Padgett said, "We're asked many times who does the cooking? Sometimes she tells me to get out of her kitchen and sometimes I tell her to get out of my kitchen. Usually during the week I cook since she works outside the home, and on the weekends, she cooks."

"We advertise through the Grand Romance and the Chamber of Commerce," he said. "We're also listed in the Inn Route Guidebook. It's an association of listings of small historic lodgings. We are with the Nabisco Two-For-One and the Bic Get-Aways.

A centennial celebration is in the discussion for January. Padgett hopes to pull together some special events like poetry readings. "I've already contacted the colleges' Fine Arts departments," he said. "I'd like to have a wine tasting and a string quartet."

Padgett concluded, "We've tried to create many places where the guests can read or relax." "They can sit on the veranda, balcony, in the gardens, or even in the hot tub."

Beauty with a Victorian flair radiates from the Higgins House Bed & Breakfast in every nook and cranny. The elegance of the decor set with the classical music ever present, surely adds to the contented feeling anyone needs to feel as a honored guest.

on the property at an average of 2.8 homes per acre of buildable land. He gained the support of many local residents by offering to donate about 70 percent of the land needed for the bypass and suggesting the offer would allow the road to become a top priority.

County planners opposed the plan because of the increased housing density, inadequate road network and the presence of endangered species on the property. They also opposed the project because it would promote the sprawl of the village of Chuluota into more rural areas. Planners said the roadway land donation would, at best, allow bypass construction a year earlier.

Commissioner Pat Warren supported Viele's request, but suggested the density be lowered to 2.5 home per acre. Although the late Bob Sturm supported Warren other commissioners did not when county staff said the same number of homes could be built under Warren's suggestion.

Commissioners also rejected commissioner Larry Furlong's recommendation to leave the property in its present one-home per acre suburban estates classification.

Ultimately, commissioners voted 3-1 to accept a staff compromise allowing three homes per acre on one 52-acre site south of the bypass path and keeping the remainder of the property at one-acre lot sizes. Furlong opposed the plan, which would allow up to 240 homes.

In the report, DCA reviewers wrote the proposed 240-home plan was inconsistent with the rural character of the eastern areas of the county, including the Econlockhatchee River basin. Further, DCA reviewers wrote the high-recharge soils may not be supportive of septic tanks, even at one home per acre. They also reported the project might increase traffic in the rural area.

DCA reviewers recommended development rights be transferred to the site from other areas within the Econ basin to the site if the need for the development can be justified for that site and not elsewhere in the county. DCA also recommended the county investigate whether one home per acre might be too great for the use of septic tanks.

Perseverance rewarded

Sanford Christian No. 1 finally notches win No. 1

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It has been proven once again that perseverance does pay off.

Through its first eight games, Sanford Christian's entry in the Fellowship Division of the Sanford Church Softball League showed up at the ballpark and played as hard as it could, only to come up on the short end of the score.

But that all changed Saturday morning at Chase Park.

J.D. Segroves tossed a shutout for five innings before settling for an eight-hitter and the offense came up with 17 hits as Sanford Christian No. 1 dumped the second-place Lake Mary Nativity Catholic Crusaders, 11-3.

In other Fellowship games, Tom Gracey hurled a five-hitter as the Sanford First United Methodist Flames kept their hopes of an undefeated season alive with a 5-1 triumph over the Deltona Trinity Assembly of God-Majesty. Sanford First Nazarene moved to within a game of second place with a

In the Fun Division, Sanford All Souls Catholic (8-1) is on top ahead of the Disciples (6-3) and

Silver Hawks take Lady 'Nole title

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Outscoring their hosts in every quarter, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks rolled to a 78-49 win over the Seminole Fighting Seminoles in Saturday night's championship game of the Lady Seminole Invitational girls basketball tournament.

Lake Howell (7-0) took a 19-14 lead after one quarter and stretched it to 33-21 by halftime. The Silver Hawks continued to pull away in the second half, outscoring Seminole (3-1) 45-28 over the final 16 minutes.

Doanna Graves led all scorers with 27 points for the Silver Hawks. Lori Marchisella, Christine James, and Ann Marie Gonzalez each added 12 points.

The Silver Hawk defense stifled the Seminoles, not allowing one Seminole player to score in double figures. Belinder Morgan paced the Tribe with nine points. Mindee Hampton and Tenneshia Eason each had eight points for Seminole.

There wasn't one area of the game where Lake Howell didn't dominate Seminole. The Silver Hawks outrebounded the Seminoles, 47-21, and made 22 of 29

Bill of Rights doesn't cover screaming threats

It was one of the ugliest performances I've ever witnessed.

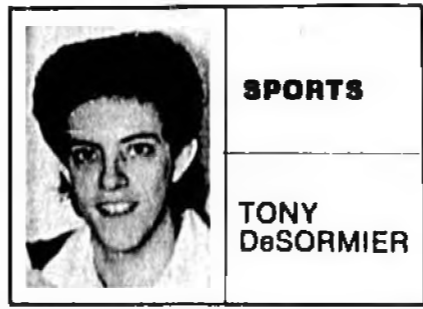

Last week, parents in attendance at a local high school girls basketball game were standing up and screaming things like, "There's a tree and a rope outside with your name on it, Ref."

Horrible.

The astonishing part of it is that we're only in the second week of the season. What's going to happen when the games start meaning something, when a conference or a district title is on the line? Bring the noose and lmb inside?

What goes through someone's mind to make them yell something like that in a public place? Don't they hear what they're saying? Don't they realize what it sounds like? Aren't they aware of the example they're setting?

With violence inflicted by children and teenagers becoming a frighteningly commonplace occurrence, we scramble for reasons and solutions to the problem. Everybody has theories but there doesn't seem to be a definite answer

SPORTS

TONY DeSORMIER

Adults threatening officials at high school athletic events with physical violence isn't the cause, but it doesn't help matters, either. At the very least, an adult who screams such obscenities models it as an acceptable behavior.

And no matter how bad an official may be (and the ones in question at this particular game were far from bad), it is never acceptable to scream personal threats at them.

I discussed the crowd's behavior with someone else in attendance at the game that night and they shrugged their shoulders, saying "They (the fans) pay their $3 to get in, so they can see what they want." Wrong. Absolutely, positively wrong.

The First Amendment to the Constitution guarantees freedom of speech, but you can't walk into a crowded theater and yell, "Fire!" Similarly, when you go to an athletic event, you can go crazy supporting your team, but you do not have the right to verbally attack an official or an opposing player.

Certainly, there's room for some vocal gamesmanship. Booring a call that goes against your team, regardless of how right the call may be, is every fan's God-given right. Applauding an opponent's misfortune — within the limits of reasonable taste — isn't a breach of athletic etiquette.

But there is a limit, a very definite line where you cross over into personal abuse. Suggesting at the top of your lungs that a referee may forfeit his life because his calls go against your team is way over that line.

While the rule of thumb of "If you can't say something nice, don't say anything at all" is a pleasant sentiment, it would make most athletic events uncomfortably quiet. However, if you're going to do it, spew hateful venom, do the rest of us a favor and leave.

SEMINOLE INDIANS?

Have you ever had the occasion to meet up with someone you know well, only to completely forget his or her name?

It happened recently when the Lake Mary Rams hosted the Seminole Fighting Seminoles in a varsity football game on Friday, Nov. 12.

Or at least, the Rams were supposed to be playing the Fighting Seminoles. According to the cover of the program sold at Lake Mary that night, the Rams were playing the Seminole Indians. It also listed the Seminole Indians as the name of the team at the top of the opponents' roster page.

Reportedly, the public address announcer also referred to the Seminole football team as the Indians several times during the game.

Give a living gift
Bonsai is perfect for that special person

Bonsai just might be the ticket if you are searching for an "unusual" gift for the gardener on your list. Each year it seems to get harder and harder to rattle-dazzle garden enthusiasts.

Bonsai is an ancient art form of the Orient that involves creating a dwarf tree or shrub by confining it to a very small container and pruning its branches and roots.

Bonsai were at one time considered to be very mysterious with only the brave and adventurous attempting to grow them, but their popularity has grown as container gardening has become a necessity due to lack of space.

Is calcium level linked to thyroid?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Twenty years ago I had 90 percent of my thyroid gland removed because of an overactive condition. A recent blood test indicated my calcium is elevated and my doctor suggested I have my parathyroid removed. I am unable to find any information on the parathyroid gland and would appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER: The four parathyroid glands, which are imbedded in the thyroid gland in the neck, regulate calcium metabolism. If one or more parathyroid glands is overactive, the level of calcium in the blood rises, leading to constipation, nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, weakness, kidney stones, and many other consequences. Parathyroid function can be assessed with special blood tests. If one of the glands is overactive, it must be surgically removed.

Remember, however, that parathyroid disorders are not the only cause of excess serum calcium, which may also be seen in the presence of cancer, certain inherited abnormalities of calcium excretion, sarcoidosis, lymphoma, and milk-alkali syndrome (from consuming excessive quantities of dairy products or antacids).

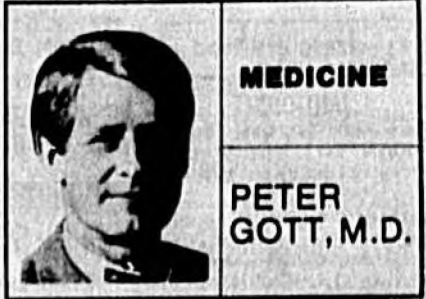

Consequently, before considering parathyroid surgery, you'll want to be certain that these glands are the source of your problem. Using appropriate blood and X-ray tests, your physician should be able to sort things out. The doctor knows that your blood calcium level is high; now he must find the reason for this and refer you to the appropriate specialist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 22-year-old grandson has Friedreich's ataxia. Is there a cure and what is his prognosis?

DEAR READER: This is an inherited disorder that causes progressive difficulty walking, weakness of the arms and trouble speaking. The heart muscle may be weakened. Because Friedreich's ataxia is due to a faulty gene, there is no treatment.

I cannot offer you a prognosis; there is great variability in the

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Aider

Most tournament players prefer team events to pairs. In teams, it is just a matter of making or breaking the contract; overtricks are almost irrelevant. In pairs, however, every trick is vital.

It isn't easy to reach six diamonds after West's annoying overall. Experts play North's double as showing "convertible values." This means that North is promising sufficient high-card values to act as the four-level. If the opener has a balanced hand, he will pass. But if it is unbalanced, he can bid and expect to find some useful goodies in the dummy.

Did you play dummy's club ace, draw trumps, take the heart finesse and win all 13 tricks? Wrong!

You have 12 top tricks: three spades, one heart, seven diamonds and one club. To ensure these tricks, you should play low from the dummy at trick one. In real life, East was void in clubs and West had the heart king. Playing the club ace at trick one cost the contract. East ruffed, and South had an unavoidable heart loser.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 23, 1993

More emphasis than usual might be placed on your organizational and leadership abilities in the year ahead. Over the coming months you could build quite a reputation for yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You've heard that old adage, "If you want something done right, it's best to do it yourself." Try to keep this in mind today. Instead of looking for persons on whom you can lean. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to focus your efforts, energies and abilities on a secret ambition you've been nurturing. Go all out, without revealing what you're trying to accomplish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be hopeful in all of your endeavors today, especially those where you're tied in with a persons with whom you've been lucky previously. This is a day when good things might be repeated.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The reason you failed to achieve a specific objective up until now is not because it's too tough, it's because you haven't tried hard enough. You'll perform well under pressure, so go all out today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons with whom you're involved will believe in you today once it become evident to them you truly believe in yourself and the ideas you espouse. To thine own self be true.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today if you're lucky, and there are strong indications you could be, your good fortune might come through others rather than through anything you do for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today even when you're dealing with groups, you'll have the delightful faculty for making each person feel he/she is the target of your special attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Two intertwined objectives you presently have can be achieved today if they are both given top priority. It's not too important as to which you do first.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you might not deliberately court competition, it looks like it might seek you out today. Don't let this intimidate you, because challenge stimulates your courage.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something you've been wanting to change, but as yet haven't, should be attempted today. You might not do it perfectly, but the results will be an improvement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will be up to you to take the initiative today in a partnership arrangement. If you wait on your counterpart, what you want done might be postponed for quite awhile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be alert for opportunities today that could enhance your material security or add to your resources in some significant manner. If you're sharp enough, you'll spot it.
