Motorists asked to reduce speed

LAKE MARY — The speed limit on Interstate 4 has been slowed to 55 m.p.h. from 65 m.p.h. at the construction site at Lake Mary Boulevard for work crew and motorist safety. State contractors are replacing the 24-year-old two-lane bridge with a four-lane bridge with three additional turn lanes and reconstructing the interchange. Work is expected to be completed early next year.

Lotto, Cash 3 celebrate birthday

TALLAHASSEE — After billions in winnings and millions doled out to the 158 Lotto winning tickets, Florida's on-line lottery games turned 3 years old.

More than 64 million winning lottery tickets have been sold since April 29, 1988, when the Cash 3 and Lotto games first began. Fantasy 5 began a year later.

"The Lottery's exciting variety of on-line games is very popular with our players. They account for about 70 percent of total lottery sales, and therefore about 70 percent of the funds generated for Florida's schools," Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann said.

Cash prizes totaled more than $1.63 billion, Ms. Mann said. Lotto winning jackpots exceeded $1.38 billion of the cash prizes.

Four months after the Lotto began, it set a world record for the largest prize ever paid to a single winner. Sheelah Ryan claimed a $55.1 million jackpot.

Nightmare attack

Kenisha Jelks in her hospital bed this morning under watchful eye of her mother, Debra.

Big rat invades bed; mom shoots, tot hit

By MCK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Kenisha Jelks, 5, sat up in her hospital bed at Central Florida Regional Hospital this morning, watching Sesame Street on TV, and smiling almost constantly.

The little girl had been accidentally wounded in the chest by a ricocheting bullet fired by her mother who was trying to kill a rat.

The cat-sized rodent had invaded the bedroom of their small Midway home early yesterday morning, and scampered over the bed in which the girl was sleeping along with her mother and another sister.

Seated next to her daughter's bed in the hospital room this morning, a relieved and pensive Debra Jelks said:

"I don't know why I tried to shoot the rat. I've never shot a gun before. Maybe I should have relied more on this." She pointed to the open bible on her lap.

The incident began at approximately 6:50 Tuesday morning. Debra Jelks, 30, was in the bedroom of her home at 2450 Church Street in Midway with Kenisha and her 10 year old daughter Letaaha, when a rat jumped into the room from the window. The mother attempted to chase the rat from the bedroom, and cautioned the children to stay on the bed. The rat then ran into the bathroom.

The mother reached for a 22 caliber pistol, as the rat ran into the living room under a rug. She called

FPC power line paths considered

Lake Mary officials prefer existing route

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The likely paths for a new major power transmission line is along current routes passing through Lake Mary, Florida Power Corp. representatives indicated Tuesday. And one of those routes may be better than another, city officials suggest.

FPC officials said a new transmission line is needed to carry electricity from their DeBary "peak" generating plant to a Winter Springs substation by 1995 to keep up with projected population growth in the area. Current plans call for stringing the 18-mile line along 100-foot tall concrete or steel poles spaced about 550 feet apart, officials said.

FPC will prepare up to a dozen possible routes and present them to the public by mid-May, officials said. The two or three final choices will be selected by FPC officials later this summer.

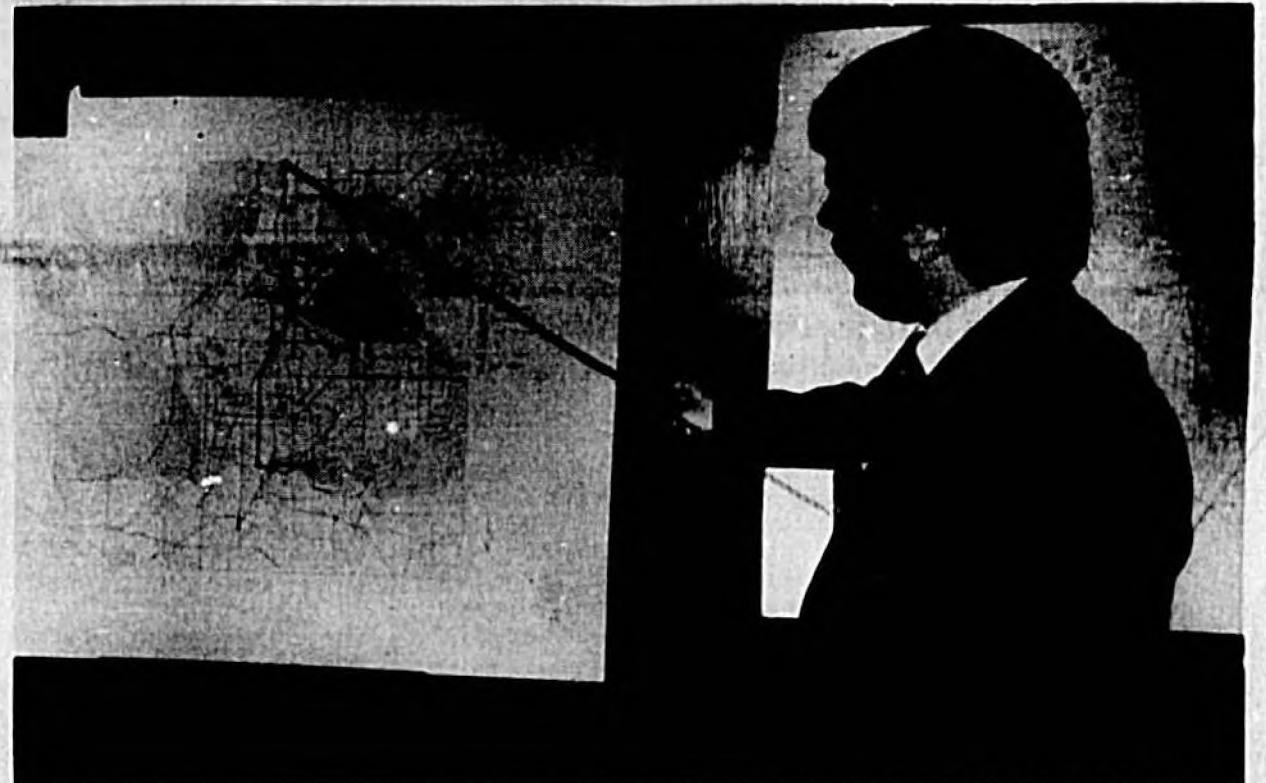

The additional power will also be used to meet electricity demands for FPC Central Florida customers who live throughout most of Seminole County south of the northern areas of Sanford and in Orange County.

The three-year public process to choose a route, get the state to permit it and to build it began when FPC officials sought comments from area government officials Tuesday at Seminole Community College.

The majority of the officials from Seminole County, St. Johns River Water Management District, Florida Park Service and other agencies had the same message — stick to existing routes or roads and do not disrupt environmental areas and neighborhoods.

Lake Mary Planner Matt West said the current power line route south from Volusia County along Rinehart Road and Lake Emma Road may prove the least disruptive in Lake Mary. Transmission lines along Rinehart Road may have to be moved when the road is widened so new power lines could Customers responding to plea to cut down on energy consumption

From staff and wire reports

SANFORD — Sanford and Lake Mary residents have joined power customers across the state in cutting down on energy consumption despite the unseasonably high temperatures.

"We don't have specific figures for each area," said Ray Golden, a Florida Power and Light Co. spokesman. "But there have been no problems in the Seminole County area."

Florida utilities are crediting the public's compliance with conservation measures for heading off possible blackouts during a springtime heat wave.

The unseasonably warm temperatures come at a time when nearly a fourth of the state's power plants are shut down for seasonal maintenance, straining Florida's electricity supplies to the breaking point.

Gov. Lawton Chiles declared an energy emergency and called on Floridians to conserve.

GENEVA — Karen Coleman, winner of the Jefferson Award for volunteer community service in Seminole County, hopes to hear within the next few days if she has won a national honor in the contest.

"I understand that the national awards will be given to the top volunteers selected from winners all over the country," she said.

Coleman was nominated for the Central Florida honor by Joe Hayes, representing Dagvar, the company which operates the Burger King restaurants in Seminole County.

"She was nominated for her work in AIDS education," Hayes said.

Coleman, whose brother Thomas Whigham died of the disease which he contracted from a tainted blood transfusion, has been offering educational seminars on the disease for several years.

Priests say rethink celibacy

Associated Press

ORLANDO — The Roman Catholic Church must rethink its positions on celibacy and the ordination of women if it hopes to boost membership of its declining priesthood, a group of Catholic priests said. But the National Federation of Priests' Councils, at its annual convention in Orlando, is not ready to endorse the changes in either tradition. Rather, it intends to provoke debate on proposed solutions to what it calls "the growing phenomenon of the priestless parish."

The organization's members are local councils who represent 26,000 Roman Catholic priests in the United States.

Biblically, I don't think there's any prohibition of it. But ... I don't think we could easily throw out 2,000 years of tradition.

—The Rev. Joseph C. Brink

The Rev. Joseph C. Brink, a parish priest from Covington, Ky., and the council president, Tuesday called for the proposals to be discussed "thoroughly and honestly."

Brink said the church could quickly boost its ranks by ordaining women and by allowing optional celibacy, thus allowing the ordination of married men.

"But personally I think the ordination of women is a long time off," Brink added. "Biblically, I don't think there's any prohibition of it. But ... I don't think we could easily throw out 2,000 years of tradition."

But, Brink added, "That's not saying we can't do it."

The Rev. Denis Herron, a pastor in Far Rockaway, N.Y., said the number of Catholic priests in the United States reached its peak in 1970 at 34,000. In 1980, their numbers had dropped to 26,000, while the average age rose substantially.

The 265 delegates approved a committee report chaired by Herron that was the end result of a two-year study.

Storm damage estimate tops $15 million

ST. PETERSBURG — Adjusters predict at least $15 million in private property insurance claims will result from Tampa Bay's severe thunderstorms last week. Damage to public property has yet to be estimated.

The storms last Thursday blew through the area in only minutes, but the property damage caused was comparable in some areas to a hurricane.

In 1985, Hurricane Elena ripped the waterfront for about $100 million in property damage, largely because the storm hovered off Florida's Gulf Coast for more than two days before moving away.

"I think it's very significant that a severe thunderstorm front can easily generate that kind of property damage here," said David Blodgett, Pinellas County's director of emergency management and communications. "I think it will go higher than that."

Two playmates drown in freak accident

OKLAHOMA — "A freak accident" was the only way authorities could explain how 6-year-old playmates drowned in a lake while hundreds of people splashed in the water not far away.

"No one saw anything," said Marion County sheriff's Sgt. Robert Douglas. "It was a freak accident."

Nathaniel Roman and Brandon Harris, neither of whom could swim, fell into a 7-foot hole outside the designated swimming area at Lake Weir Sunday evening, witnesses and family members said.

The beach, like two other county-owned swimming holes, doesn't have a lifeguard.

Curtis Alexander, Brandon's father, said he had been watching his son and his two other children but had turned away to talk with someone. When he looked up, his son and the boy he was playing with were gone.

The boys were found at the bottom of the shallow water. Efforts by sheriff's deputies to revive them were unsuccessful.

FBI: Over $800,000 embezzled

MIAMI — An investigation into bank embezzling netted 27 former bank employees who allegedly stole more than $800,000, the FBI announced.

A federal indictment handed down last week charges each of the defendants with embezzlement and misapplication of federally insured funds. Each faces up to 30 years in prison and up to $1 million in fines.

"No matter the amount of money stolen by an employee, whether they be a teller or a vice president or a major official of a bank, they're going to be prosecuted," FBI spokesman Paul Miller said Tuesday.

The stolen funds range from $1,200 to the more than $418,000 allegedly embezzled by William Dies, a former assistant vice president at Consolidated Bank in Miami.

Cop sentenced for running robbery ring

MIAMI — A high-ranking Metro-Dade police officer and his detective brother were sentenced to 30 years in federal prison for running a drug rip-off and robbery ring that wounded two fellow officers.

Roberto Gonzalez, 41, a major in charge of a police district at the time of the 1987 indictment, and his brother Jose, 45, an organized crime detective, were convicted Tuesday along with two others of racketeering conspiracy.

"I can think of very few things more important in a free society than the public's trust in the police," U.S. District Judge Edward Brooke said in sentencing Roberto Gonzalez. "You have violated that trust."

Well-wishers mob political prisoner

MIAMI — A former Cuban political prisoner who spent 22 years in Fidel Castro's jails and was one of the historic "planted" was mobbed by well-wishers when he arrived in Miami.

Meanwhile, a top Cuban government official said he applied for political asylum with the Immigration and Naturalization Service after announcing his decision to defect Monday during a Miami radio broadcast.

Ernesto Diaz Rodriguez, who was released from prison last month, was surrounded by family and friends when he arrived at Miami International Airport Tuesday on a trip sponsored by the International Rescue Committee.

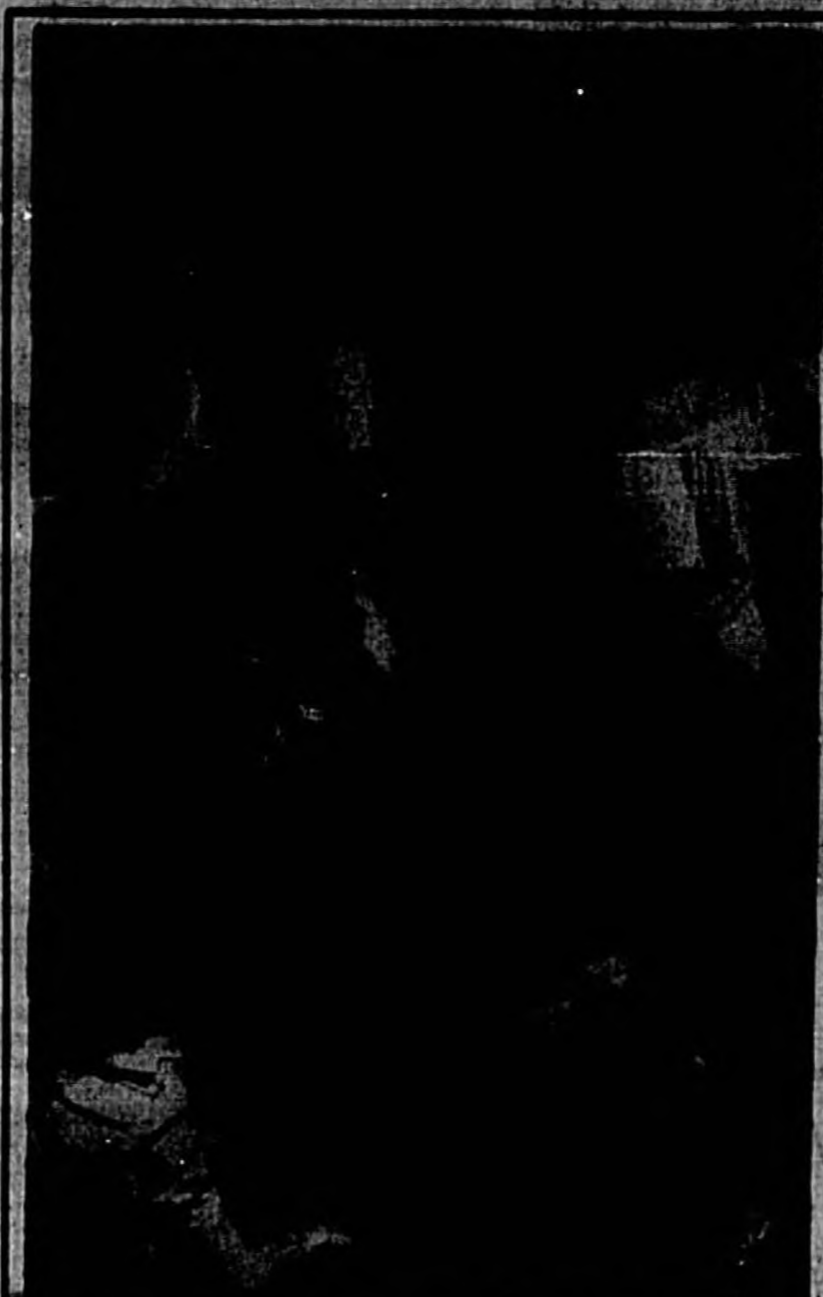

Office shooting leaves two dead

CORAL GABLES — Two men were killed and another was critically injured in a shootout inside an office building Tuesday afternoon, police said.

Metro-Dade Police spokeswoman Miriam Royle said the Coral Gables Police Department responded to the shooting at the first-floor office shortly after 5 p.m., and two males were dead at the scene.

One man was flown by helicopter to Jackson Memorial Hospital, where he was undergoing emergency surgery, hospital spokeswoman Rosa Gonzalez said.

Man doused with gas and set on fire dies

Associated Press

MIAMI — A man who was bound to a tree with wire, doused with gasoline and set on fire died Tuesday morning, police said.

Detectives still had not identified the man, whom they believe was about 40 or 50. When police and firefighters found him Monday morning in a vacant lot near a Metrorail station, he was burned beyond recognition and unable to talk.

The victim, who police said was white and possibly Hispanic, suffered burns over 60 percent of his body. He was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital's burn unit.

Detectives said the incident did not appear to be a suicide attempt because it would have been difficult for the man to wrap himself around the tree with wire.

"This was a deliberate attempt to get rid of the guy," said homicide detective Manuel De La Torre. "Someone poured gasoline on him, lit him on fire and wanted him to be found, but not right away."

Police said a woman called just before 10 a.m. and said she saw smoke coming from the vacant field.

Police had no idea how long the man had been tied to the tree.

"I haven't seen anything like this since a man climbed on a bridge on Flagler Street years ago and set himself on fire while people watched," said De La Torre.

But "that was suicide," he added.

House sends governor bill to raise marriage license fee $10

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The House voted 97-90 Tuesday to send Gov. Lawton Chiles a bill raising the cost of getting married by $10.

The bill (SB 998), sponsored by Rep. Mary Figg, D-Lutz, would increase the cost of a marriage license from $56 to $66 in most counties. The new fee would take effect July 1.

The additional $1.2 million generated by the increase would help fund 29 domestic violence centers around the state. Those centers, operated by the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, got no extra money in this year's budget.

Rep. Dan Webster, R-Orlando, was among those who opposed the bill. He said marriage was a "God-given right" that shouldn't be heavily taxed.

"I think it encourages people to live together instead of getting married," Webster said.

Highway loan to boost education spending

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A complicated scheme to boost education spending by forcing the Department of Transportation to repay a $110 million loan a few years early awaits the House today as lawmakers eye an early adjournment.

Following a tearful plea Tuesday from President Gwen Margolis, the Senate passed a bill requiring DOT to repay the loan to the state's general fund, with the money headed for Florida's 67 school districts.

Margolis, D-North Miami Beach, read a letter from her 8-year-old son, Jeffrey, as she choked back tears during an emotional speech on the Senate floor.

"Don't cut the education budget, Grandma Gwen ... School is the best place in the world," the North Miami Beach Democrat read. She turned to her colleagues and asked, "Why are we here if we can't take care of our kids?"

The Senate voted 40-0 for the bill (SB 1314) and sent it to the House, where Speaker T.K. Wetherell was skeptical about its chances. He said forcing DOT to repay the loan could harm road-building projects and that obtaining only $50 million of the amount would be a better deal for the state.

"We can get some money but we can't get enough to do all the things people are suggesting," said Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach. "It'll be hard to do."

The $9.1 billion education budget for fiscal year 1991-92 is short $64 million to reach the per-student funding level of the current year. Each school district would lose $23 per student if the Senate plan or some alternative fails to pass.

That could result in teacher layoffs, loss of some school programs and larger class sizes.

Wetherell also doubted that $31 million sought by Gov. Lawton Chiles for a 3 percent state employee pay raise could be found.

The Senate sent the budget (SB 2300) to Chiles on a 40-0 vote Tuesday and followed with a $184 million tax plan (CS-HB 2523) by a 27-11 margin. The tax bill, which raises annual license plate fees by $2, had earlier passed the House by a 75-33 vote.

Other than the license tag increase, the legislation contains no general tax hike for the fiscal year starting July 1.

"I don't particularly like what's in this budget, but we've done the best we can with the revenues available," said Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Winston "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville.

Academic team fails to make state finals

By Vicki Buchanan
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County academic team lost steam heading toward the final round of this week's statewide academic tournament at Walt Disney World and stopped dead in their tracks.

"The competition just got too tough, I guess," said Beth Stanley, a tournament coordinator.

According to Stanley, the team breezed to first place in their preliminary round, scoring a total of 214 points, but failed to earn enough points in the second round to make to the final.

Members of Seminole County's team were Shawn Vassell of Seminole High School, Ronald Viri of Lake Mary High School, Russell Prosser of Lyman High School and Todd Gillett, Jon Kufner and Lyle Sprinkle of Lake Brantley High School.

"The questions get progressively more difficult as the competition progresses," Stanley said. "I guess they just hit a streak where they couldn't answer the questions."

Neither Sandra Erickson nor Phyllis Nardy, the team's coaches, were available for comment on the students' performance.

Stanley said that while their 132 points were not enough to get them to the final round of competition, the team has nothing to be ashamed of.

"They did very, very well," Stanley said. "The teams that came to the tournament this year were exceptionally good."

The Seminole County teams have traditionally started strong but failed to make it to the final round of competition in the five years of the competition, according to Stanley.

School board, cities to control growth together

By Vicki Buchanan
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Joe Williams, Seminole County school board chairman, is pleased with the cooperation that is developing between the school district and the governments of the various municipalities in the county.

"We all agreed on various needs in managing growth and overseeing it," said Williams of yesterday's work session with representatives of the Seminole County Commission and the governments of six of the seven cities in the district.

Casselberry did not have a representative at yesterday's informal meeting.

Williams said that it is up to the school district to lead the fight to keep school construction in line with growth but that the other government leaders were willing to work with the district.

Almost all of the district's 43 schools are filled to or beyond their capacity.

"It boils down to everyone being supportive and working together on better managing the growth," Williams said.

School district, city and county representatives agreed that impact fees, which are charged to developers who will bring more homes to an area, were the best way to help the schools keep up with exponential growth in the district.

Impact fees, which have not been used in Seminole County, were declared legal last month by the Florida Supreme Court.

"Everyone who was here today believes that impact fees are the way to go," Williams said. "We will be drawing up a plan with (the government representatives) at our next meeting."

The date and time of that next meeting have not been set yet.

The group also agreed that schools must be included in all local growth plans, according to Williams.

According to state law, cities and counties cannot approve plans for homes or businesses until roads, sewers and other basic services are ready for hook up in the area.

"All we want to do is add schools into that planning process," Williams said. "We will have to work very hard and closely with them on that. Growth plans require a lot of careful planning."

School board won't endorse system used by its teachers

By Vicki Buchanan
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board agreed last night not to allow the Canopy Road Software company to use its name in advertising for a product that the district's media services department helped develop.

Media Minder, a program that allows teachers to check on the availability of media items from their classrooms and to reserve them from their work stations or from home 24 hours a day, was designed with the professional assistance of media specialists from the Seminole County school district.

Gary Becker, the district's director of media services, brought the issue to the attention of the board because, he told them, he wanted to "pursue what your feelings were on this."

Saying that they did not want to set a precedent of endorsing products which they purchased, several board members opposed the proposed advertisement, written by Canopy Road Software.

"...for the last four years, Seminole County Public Schools in Florida has been using our system-wide media reservation program, Media Minder, in their District Media Center," the advertising copy would have read. "They found it to be the best school district media service reservation program on the market and are extremely happy with it."

Board member Jeanne Morris objected to the endorsement on the basis that the program could not be called the "best...on the market" as it had been designed specifically for Seminole County's needs.

"In that respect, it is the only one on the market," she said.

Supt. Robert Hughes added that he had no objections to the school district being used as a reference for other school districts who are contemplating the purchase of the Media Minder system.

"When we purchase something," he said, "it is a matter of public record. I would recommend that the district not get into the habit of endorsing products, however."

Head to head

President Bush has drawn a line in the sand on the vital issue of free trade. In a recent meeting with Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, Mr. Bush vowed to go "head on head" against organized labor and other protectionist interests who are trying to block a U.S.-Mexico free-trade agreement.

Opponents of the proposed trade deal hope to thwart the president by decoupling it from negotiations to extend the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the international accord that sets global trading rules.

Congress must likely would approve a new GATT treaty if it were put to a separate vote. But there is considerable opposition to a free-trade agreement with Mexico.

The administration has wisely insisted that the two issues be considered together as a package. If the proposed pact with Mexico is separated from the GATT agreement, the prospects for congressional approval of a U.S.-Mexico accord would be slim at best.

At issue is whether Congress should extend the president's fast-track negotiating authority, which expires on June 1. Under fast-track procedures, trade agreements negotiated by the administration are subject to only a straight up or down vote. Lawmakers are not permitted to attach amendments.

The fast-track approach is critical, Mr. Bush said, because it enables him "to assure our negotiating partners that the free-trade agreement we conclude at the negotiating table will be the one that will be voted on by the Congress."

He added that "the credibility of the United States as a trading partner is one the line" with the looming vote on the fast-track authority.

Mexico currently ranks third among U.S. trading partners, trailing only Canada and Japan in annual volume. In 1990, Mexico shipped $28.4 billion worth of goods to the United States — 65 percent of its total exports. Mexico also bought $30.2 billion worth of American products, roughly 60 percent of its total imports.

Yet, notwithstanding the overwhelming evidence that a Mexico free-trade agreement would be a boon to the entire U.S. economy, Democratic lawmakers already are attempting to attach an array of potentially crippling conditions to the proposed deal.

Among the conditions specified by House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt are provisions to suspend the treaty in the event of substantial U.S. job losses; a guarantee that U.S. tariffs will be waived only on goods with high Mexican content; a clause preventing American companies from relocating south of the border to escape U.S. environmental laws; an agreement on workers' rights for Mexicans; and a promise of financial and other assistance for U.S. workers who lose jobs to Mexicans.

It is clear from all of this that Mr. Gephardt and his protectionist-minded colleagues are not likely to support a trade pact with Mexico, regardless of its final form. This is all the more reason for Mr. Bush to meet the opposition head on and resist any effort to decouple the U.S.-Mexico trade pact from a new GATT treaty.

Strange bedfellows: Dems, big biz

After their political prattle on the Gulf War, Democrats said, ah, if we can just get attention back to domestic issues, then we'll be fine.

Democrats may get their wish. There will likely be a high-profile liberal vote on a domestic issue. It remains to be seen if it will be fine. It may well turn out to be just one more major Democratic political disaster.

The domestic issue in question deals with a Democratic proposal to overturn recent Supreme Court decisions on hiring policy. Democrats call it a "civil rights bill." Republicans call it a "quota bill."

Meanwhile, Democrats have managed to mingle their fortunes with both "liberal activists" and "big businessmen." Neither group is exactly at the top of the political popularity polls.

Civil rights lobbyists tried to work out arrangements with The Business Roundtable, representing the biggest of big corporations. But then other business groups, and ultimately The White House, said that The Business Roundtable negotiators weren't speaking for anyone but themselves.

The role of big business in this internal politicking reveals part of what is wrong with the bill.

American businessmen — and I generalize here — are honorable, entrepreneurial, intelligent, hard-working — and just.

Our corporate titans want to avoid constraints — lawsuits, bad publicity or boycotts.

When confronted, they tend to give away the store, or more accurately, give away someone else's store. In this case in the form of de facto preferential hiring policies. After all, it will not be corporate executives who will suffer from reverse discrimination that can come from preferential hiring: it is the workaday people in offices and on the shop floor.

It is just this process that leads many opponents of the Democratic bill to say that it will lead to quotas. Facing demands for hiring by the numbers, businessmen will fold, not fight.

There is very arcane legal language in both the Democratic bill and a somewhat better but mushy Republican compromise alternative. But the issue has become politically charged.

The issue is proportionalism vs. merit, demography vs. ability.

When the 1964 Civil Rights Act was passed, almost 75 percent of minorities were black. The bill properly ruled out proportionalism, but it was later argued that due to the authentically tragic history of blacks in America, there should be some bending over backward — for a while.

Almost three decades have passed. Because of recent immigration flows, blacks are now somewhat less than 50 percent of the minority population. Proportionalism today has to deal not only with blacks, but Hispanics, Asians, Mexicans, Caribbean and African blacks, and perhaps, soon, a new wave of East Europeans and Soviet Jews. Also, of course, women.

That can't work. It doesn't work. A growing body of opinion maintains that proportionalism has been hurting blacks and other minorities.

Neither group is exactly at the top of the political popularity polls.

ROBERT WALTERS

Base closings open wounds

FORT WORTH, Texas — Politicians in California claim that Texas fared better than it deserved in the recent round of proposed military base closings because it's among President Bush's various adopted home states.

Here in Texas, however, politicians insist that they're being treated unfairly by the Defense Department. Specifically, they charge that the Bush administration is waging a protracted vendetta against the state in general and Fort Worth in particular.

Once again, the base-closing fandango is underway. Public officials throughout the country are posturing for the benefit of constituents fearful of losing jobs or business if the Pentagon shuts down a facility that long has provided economic benefits.

Those concerns are hardly trivial. The economic dislocation following such closures can be initially devastating — and the long-term adverse effects frequently are painfully apparent for years.

But military expenditures are by far the largest single component of an annual federal budget now approaching $1.5 trillion. Without significant reductions in that category, we can't bring government spending under control, balance the budget, reduce the deficit and attain the assorted other fiscal goals that enjoy the nearly unanimous support of the nation's taxpayers.

"If we want the federal government to indeed get its house in order, we all realize that we are going to pay the consequences," says Kim Hill, a political science professor at Texas A&M University. "Each community is going to have to give up something."

Similarly, Defense Secretary Richard B. Cheney notes that "a shrinking budget clearly requires us to make some hard choices." But too many politicians — Republicans and Democrats alike — would rather pander to their constituents' worst fears than provide classy leadership in a difficult situation.

Consider, for example, the intemperate rhetoric from a pair of Pennsylvania members of Congress after they learned that the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard was on the new list of facilities to be shut down:

"It looks like the Department of Defense is declaring war on Pennsylvania," proclaimed Republican Sen. Arlen Specter. Cheney and Bush "told the people of Philadelphia (to) drop dead," added Democratic Rep. Thomas M. Foglietta.

Paul Tauer, the mayor of Aurora, Colo., didn't have much of a measured response either when he learned that the Bush administration recommended closing nearby Lowry Air Force Base while allowing almost as expendable Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, Texas, to remain open.

"I think the reason Lowry was picked was because the other base it came down to was in Texas," said the mayor. "That's where the president is from."

But here in Texas, politicians assert that the Bush administration in general and Cheney in particular are picking on Fort Worth because it's the hometown of former Rep. James C. Wright Jr., the Democrat who was House speaker until he was forced to resign amid a scandal several years ago.

"Our community has suffered worse than any ... in the country with defense layoffs," Democratic Rep. Pete Geren (who succeeded Wright) complained after learning that Carswell Air Force Base here in Fort Worth was being recommended for closure.

Geren was referring to the fact that prior to the mid-April base closing announcement, two of the city's largest employers — Bell Helicopter and General Dynamics — were forced to lay off thousands of employees because major weapons contracts they had been awarded by the Pentagon were canceled or scaled back.

The General Dynamics work force here, for instance, peaked at 30,000 but now has been slashed to 10,000. Its production of the F-16 fighter has been reduced and its contract to manufacture the A-12 attack plane has been canceled.

The closing of Carswell, long home to a wing of B-52 bombers, will result in the loss of an additional 6,500 military and civilian jobs. That's hardly cause for celebration.

But responsible public officials in Washington have struggled to minimize political considerations in base closing decisions. The system they have devised ought to be allowed to function.

A shrinking budget clearly requires us to make some hard choices.

Tired of politics, politician lobbies

WASHINGTON — When Sen. James McClure retired from Congress this year, he did not throw away his Washington experience and head for the trout streams of his native Idaho.

The three-term Republican said he had become disillusioned with "wet-finger politics" — gutless lawmakers who vote with the shifting breeze. But apparently his dismay with Washington politics did not stop him from wanting to take advantage of it as a high-priced lobbyist.

Few people are more marketable than the former senior Republican on the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee who is also well-connected in the administration as a longtime friend of President Bush.

With that resume, McClure recruited his two top aides from his days in the Senate and created a consulting firm — McClure, Gerard and Neuenchwander Inc. Their first clients were General Atomics and L.B. Industries, two energy-related businesses that could use some of McClure's clout in Washington.

McClure is prohibited by Senate rules from directly lobbying the Senate for his first year out of the club, but General Atomics still felt his firm was worth a retainer of $10,000 a month.

The firm is not McClure's only endeavor these days. His Senate committee used to oversee the management of a needy U.S. commonwealth in the South Pacific — the Northern Marianas. McClure has now hooked up with a proposed foundation that would funnel development money to the islands.

The Northern Marianas, 1,500 miles southeast of Japan, fell under U.S. supervision after World War II. Since then, the United States has supplemented the tiny nation's annual budget and tried to help manage its affairs. During the 1980s, the population tripled to 46,000 people and the Marianas became a tourist haven, a little Hawaii for Japanese jetsetters.

The sewer, water and power facilities on the islands have not kept pace with the boom and the island government is in a bind. It can't afford to borrow more money and the State Department won't let the Marianas take cash from Japan or any other foreign government.

So supporters of the islands came up with the notion of a Marianas Improvement Foundation, which would work like a development bank, using the investment capital of private people (primarily Japanese), as well as the sale of bonds. The foundation board would include three Japanese, three Americans and three Marianas residents.

McClure apparently is slated to be the foundation's managing director, or possibly the chairman of the board of trustees. His former staff director on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Frank Cushing, is considered a likely candidate to run the foundation.

The proposed foundation is making some in the government of the Northern Marianas nervous. They like the idea of development money coming in to the islands, but they're not sure they want it sifted through Americans in Washington.

McClure laughed at the rumors leaking out of the Marianas that his salary would be $150,000 a year.

McClure has been a busy guy since he retired, but he may get busier. His name has surfaced repeatedly on the short list of candidates to replace Energy Secretary James Watkins, whose days are numbered in the Cabinet. It might be some time before McClure has time to cast off the politics of Washington which he finds so distasteful.

McClure laughed at the rumors leaking out of the Marianas.

Mall

 President Jerry Carvey said, "We are in the final throws of an agreement with the J.C. Penney people, and we should be able to announce that within 30 to 60 days." Carvey said the fourth major store will probably be in Boca, and added, "we could have that agreement in possibly the same 30 to 60 day period."

Sanford Mayor Betty Smith introduced Carvey at the press conference, along with Partisan's Chief Executive Officer Warren Bailey. Bailey discussed the history of the firm, started in 1890 by the Hess family, with grandson Donald Hess as the current President. "We have a motto of 'You're Somebody Special,'" he said, "and our philosophy is, find out what the customers want, then give it to them."

Partisan currently has 21 stores in six states, from Ohio to Florida. Two are already operating in this state, in Sarasota and Pensacola. Carvey said a third store will be opened within a week in Tallahassee. As for the proposed store at the Seminole Towne Center, Carvey said, "this one will be a very special store that will not be duplicated anywhere else in Central Florida."

The hiring practices for the new store were also discussed. "We will have one manager and two assistants, with between 18 and 24 department managers," Carvey said. "They will all be transferred here from other store locations. Then, approximately 90 days before this store opens, we will hire the rest of the staff and put them into a two week classroom training program so they can learn the operation of our store, and the way we want them to treat the customers." In all, the Sanford store is expected to employ about 400 people.

The Seminole Towne Center Mall is expected to begin operation by spring of 1994.

NBC tops first of May sweeps

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "Switched at Birth," a miniseries based on a true-life story, helped NBC win the first week of the May sweeps.

Part one of the miniseries about two couples whose newborns were switched in a hospital nursery was the most-watched show on television last week, the A.C. Nielsen Co. said Tuesday.

It helped NBC win the weekly ratings with a 12.7 average. ABC was second with an 11.4. CBS had an 11.1. Each ratings point represents 931,000 homes.

Last week marked the beginning of the May sweeps, one of four month-long periods a year whose ratings determine advertising rates for affiliate stations. The networks schedule blockbuster programming during the sweeps.

NBC's "Cheers" was the No. 2 program of the week, followed by CBS' "60 Minutes."

The three actors had said they were leaving the show to pursue other projects. But Dey announced Tuesday she was returning next season.

ABC and Peter Jennings continued to dominate the network news ratings, finishing with a 9.5 average. NBC and Tom Brokaw had an 8 and CBS and Dan Rather a 7.9.

Here are the top 10 prime-time shows, their network and rating: "NBC Sunday Movie: Switched at Birth," 20.4; "Cheers," NBC, 19.3; "60 Minutes," CBS, 17.1; "L.A. Paths West said. Another potential route that crosses Country Club Road at the site of the city's Liberty Park which is under construction would detract from the natural setting of the park.

"It would just ruin the park," West said.

The route favored by West crosses the St. Johns River at Interstate 4, and then crosses over the highway south of the river. The line then travels south along Rinehart Road and through The Crossings, then veers southeast to a power substation in Longwood on County Road 427, then continues on a southeasterly course south of State Road 434 to Winter Springs.

The second route also crosses over I-4 after passing over the St. Johns River but follows a more easterly route closer to Country Club Road. The line crosses over Country Club Road at the Liberty Park site then continues in a southeasterly direction through several neighborhoods to Lake Mary Boulevard before heading south.

The second line continues south over U.S. Highway 17-92 near CR 427 then continues southeast through Winter Springs.

FPC route consultant Randy Schulze said the Rinehart Road route appeared feasible but would need additional study. Schulze said the two lines pass through populated areas so additional land for the new lines may be difficult to obtain.

Schulze said FPC and engineers for Florida Power and Light, which also uses the route, are studying the possibility of sharing the same concrete poles for their power lines. The major problem with the shared pole idea is the increase risk of a major power outage, Schulze said.

"If you have a tornado or a hurricane or something you may lose power to a whole region if you have all your main power going along one route," Schulze said. "But if you split them, you have other impacts to residents and the environment to consider. There's always trade-offs."

She has given more than 200 presentations in the last year alone.

"Five in the last 10 days," she counted.

Coleman believes the Jefferson Award she has been given must be shared by many people in Seminole County.

"It affirmed the value of the work of a lot of people," she said. Coleman noted that while she might be a very visible spokesperson for the need for education in the control of the spread of the dreaded disease, the people of the community have supported various fundraising efforts for an endowed research chair at the University of Miami to the tune of $160,000.

"But most importantly," she noted, "there have been so many rewards. People send cards, letters, flowers. And the support continues."

Coleman said that because the Seminole County community has continued to "expect" her to educate the public on the AIDS epidemic she has been able to continue her crusade.

Coleman said that there have been 101 confirmed cases of AIDS in Seminole County.

What you can do

Utility officials have suggested:

- Raising thermostats to 80 degrees or higher
- Closing curtains and blinds
- Shutting off air conditioners in unused rooms
- Reduce use of all non-essential appliances, such as dish washers, clothes driers and lighting.

"Barring any problems with a major plant, and with continuing assistance this week, generation and regular power purchases will be adequate to meet demand," Golden said Tuesday.

But analysts said that the utility must do something now at one company can quickly lead to trouble elsewhere. It was the temporary failure of a large FPL plant in Martin County earlier this week that triggered the emergency.

The public is being asked to reduce electricity consumption sharply through at least today, before temperatures are expected to drop to more reasonable levels.

FPC serves about 101,000 customers in Lake Mary, Oviedo, Winter Springs, Casselberry, Altamonte Springs and Longwood.

for her two daughters to run outside, which they did, going onto the front porch.

Pulling the rug upward, Mrs. Jelks shot at the rat. The bullet however, missed the rat, went completely through the outside livingroom wall, and struck 5-year old Kenisha in the upper left portion of her chest.

The rat, which she indicated was possibly as large as one foot in length, ran out of the house after the shooting.

"It was the biggest rat I ever saw," Debra said.

Sheriff's officers said Kenisha returned into the house after the bullet struck her, almost unaware that she had been hit until she noticed blood.

As for the 22 caliber bullet, the girl's mother said this morning, "It's still in her. The doctors said she is too little to operate on for a removal, so they're going to wait until she's older, then take it out."

At the Seminole County Sheriff's office, spokesman George Prochel said that no charges would be filed, as it was determined by Sheriff's investigators to have clearly been an accidental shooting. "The investigation is considered complete," he said this morning.

Prochel described the house in which the incident occurred as small. "It was approximately a 12 by 20 house," he said, "and there were 8 people living in it."

The Jelks family had only lived in the house since February. "I've got to look for a better place to live for my family," the mother said. "That house just isn't sufficient for us."

In her hospital bed this morning, the little girl was in excellent spirits, spending her time watching TV and talking by phone to her brother in Cocoa.

The mother expects her daughter to be released from the hospital by Thursday morning.

Little Kenisha, a student in the Midway Head Start program, was anxious to return to school to see all of her friends.

Activists score nuke fire

By JERRY MARKAVY
Associated Press Writer

WISCASSET, Maine — Anti-nuclear activists accused operators of a nuclear plant crippled by fire of holding back information on the accident and said the blaze shows the danger of operating a 19-year-old reactor.

The president of the Maine Yankee plant countered that the blaze Monday night could just as easily have occurred at a coal- or oil-fired plant. He said the age of the equipment made it no more susceptible to accidents.

No radiation was released, no one was hurt and the reactor shut down automatically after the fire broke out, officials said. The blaze was confined to the non-nuclear portion of the plant.

"I don't want to downgrade the seriousness of the event, but it's not a nuclear event," Maine Yankee President Charles Frizzle said Tuesday. "From my perspective, this should not reflect negatively on the use of nuclear power."

He said the fire probably was caused by a short in the transformer or sparks in the generator that ignited hydrogen gas being used as a coolant. Hydrogen is commonly used to cool large generators, said plant spokesman Duggan Kimball.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokeswoman Diane Scenci said authorities reported "a loud boom" preceded the fire, but she said investigators couldn't say for sure whether there was an explosion.

Maine Yankee officials said the plant could be closed for weeks or months. Central Maine Power Co., the plant's chief customer, said no immediate shortages were expected.

It was the most serious incident at Maine Yankee since the plant opened in 1972. Frizzle said.

Anti-nuclear activists said the fire was more serious than Maine Yankee managers made it out to be and accused the plant's management of being slow to report the damage to the public. The plant is owned by 10 New England utilities, with Central Maine Power owning the largest share.

"I think Maine Yankee should be forced to be more forthcoming," said Tom Coffin, spokesman for the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee. "To hold back information is simply unconscionable."

On Monday night, Maine Yankee officials confirmed there was a fire but gave no indication of its severity and said they could provide no details until Tuesday. The first description of the fire and details of the damage were released by the NRC on Tuesday morning.

"We saw the same thing at Three Mile Island, we saw the same thing at Chernobyl," said Scott Denman, director of the Safe Energy Communication Council, a Washington-based environmental group.

"You've got plants that are aging, you're going to increasingly have these problems," he added. Frizzle countered that the transformer that may have caused the fire was replaced three years ago.

The fire raged within 200 feet of Maine Yankee's containment building, which houses the nuclear reactor inside 44-foot-thick walls of concrete

Effect of rate-cut on recession debated

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — While the Federal Reserve resolved one economic mystery with its unusually forceful cut in interest rates, the bigger question remains: will it be enough to lift the U.S. economy out of recession?

The Bush administration, buoyed that the Fed had finally taken its hints for another round of interest rate cuts, insisted that it saw no reason to change its forecast of an economic revival within the next two months.

However, some private economists said that even with the Fed's decision Tuesday to slash two key interest rates, they were revising their forecasts to push the recovery off until later in the year.

"We are convinced that the economy is still sliding," said Lawrence Meyer, who heads a St. Louis economic consulting firm. "The Fed's action will help, but the momentum at this point is down."

While Meyer said he believed the economy would return to growth by the July-September quarter,

Astronauts release 'Star Wars' research satellite

By LAURAY O'LEARY
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Discovery's astronauts today used the spaceship's robot arm to unpack a Star Wars research satellite and release it in orbit to study the exhaust plumes from the flip-flopping shuttle.

The crew used the arm to latch onto the 18-foot satellite and slowly raise it from Discovery's cargo bay. As the shuttle whirled around the Earth at 17,500 mph, the crew released the craft into space.

A few minutes later, commander Michael Smith steered the shuttle away from the satellite in order to put 6.2 miles between the two craft.

The $94 million satellite — a two-ton set of instruments resembling a cheese box on a raft — will spend 1 1/2 days gathering data from the exhaust and from chemical and gas clouds that will be released from the shuttle at the press of a button.

Pentagon officials said the information is needed to develop sensors that can "read" an enemy missile's exhaust and distinguish it from natural phenomena, such as atmospheric light, and from manmade clouds used to camouflage warheads.

The astronauts had planned to put the satellite in orbit Tuesday but decided to hold off until today so that they could make additional light observations with an instrument that was running low on coolant.

While operating the satellite by remote control, the astronauts were to put the shuttle through turns and flip-flops so the engine nozzles were pointed at the craft, which is equipped with TV cameras, tape recorders and other sensors.

NASA considers the mission one of the most complex shuttle flights ever because of the tricky, split-second acrobatics.

Discovery's seven astronauts are working 12-hour shifts around the clock to get as much data as possible.

Early Thursday, the astronauts will move the shuttle to within about a mile and a half of the craft for additional tests. Later, they will retrieve the satellite with the robot arm and stuff it back in the shuttle's cargo bay.

NASA seriously underestimated cost of space station

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The space agency has underestimated the cost of building and operating the space station by $34 billion, congressional auditors have concluded.

A $10 billion construction underestimate arises from NASA's failure to count the costs of flying the shuttle during construction of the station, developing the crew lifeboat, conducting scientific projects and installing certain equipment, according to congressional testimony by the head of the General Accounting Office scheduled for delivery on Wednesday.

A $24 billion operations underestimate arises because NASA has not counted shuttle flight costs, salaries of ground-based personnel, the cost of research and added electrical power.

NASA's $30 billion construction cost estimate should be about $40 billion, and the agency's $54 billion for 27 years of operation after the turn of the century should be $78 billion, according to the conclusions of Charles A. Bowsher, comptroller general.

Bowsher's planned testimony before the transportation subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee was made available on Tuesday.

The space station, to be named Freedom, was proposed in 1984 by President Reagan and it was to have eight potential uses. But escalating costs and a series of redesigns resulted recently in a scaled back version that would permit only microgravity and life science research.

And those, said Bowsher, are "two scientific endeavors that many scientists believe are incompatible and are not best conducted on the same station."

Food, fun and fanfare planned for area seniors

By ROSE PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

A large number of events have been planned in Sanford and Lake Mary in observance of May as Older Americans Month, including a variety show, ice cream social, senior fair, and other interesting programs.

On Saturday, May 4 in Lake Mary, the dance team from the Lake Mary Seniors will make their debut during a combination dedication of Central Park and a Welcome Home for Desert Storm Troops beginning at 11 a.m. Other entertainment is also included, followed by a chicken barbecue at the CIA building at noon.

The following day, there will be a Golden Wedding Ice Cream Social at the Sanford Senior Center from 2 until 4 p.m. Anyone who has been married 50 years or more will be honored during this event.

Tuesday, May 7, it's the Serendipity Show, an arts and crafts exposition presented by the Lake Mary Seniors and the Historical Commission.

Visitors are invited to see what seniors do to keep busy. Additional exhibits and memorabilia from the Historical Commission will also be on display.

Tuesday evening, beginning at 7 p.m. Sanford Seniors will present a combination variety and talent show at the Civic Center. Participants are still needed. All that is required is the entertainers be at least 55 years of age, and have enough gumption to get up and perform on stage. The top act will also be invited to participate, representing the Sanford area in a Senior Fair, Thursday, May 23 at the Central Florida Fairgrounds in Orlando. That event will be held from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Toward the end of the month, on May 28, plans are being formulated for a special day to honor the volunteers of the Lake Mary Seniors.

The majority of Lake Mary events will take place at the Lake Mary Senior Center, 158 N. Country Club Road. The Sanford events will take place at the Sanford Civic Center, on the lakefront.

State parks prepare to raise fees

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

The price of a visit to a local state park is about to increase.

Beginning June 1, the current fee of $1 per car and 50 cents per passenger will increase to a flat fee of $3.25 per carload. The fee at unmanned "honor" park entrances will increase from $1 per car or pedestrian to $2.

The increase is needed to maintain state parks at current standards, said John Baust, bureau chief of the Florida Park Service in Tallahassee.

"This will maintain the status quo in the park system," Baust said. "It won't be used to build any new facilities. But we need this just to keep up with what we have."

Baust said more than 14 million people visited Florida state parks during the year ending June 30, 1990, generating about $17 million in fees for parks. About 60 percent of park operations are financed through documentary stamp taxes however. The new fee, coupled with an expected 3 percent increase in park visitors, is expected to produce more than $20 million, Baust said.

The fee increase will affect Wekiwa Springs State Park near Sopchopko, which crosses into Seminole County from Orange County. A total of 112,256 people visited the park for the year ending June 30, 1990, park officials report.

Also affected by the increases are Blue Spring State Park near Orange City and Hontoon Island State Park near DeLand, which had 327,447 visitors last year, officials report. Hontoon Island is an honor system park. Visitor information was unavailable.

Honor fees are paid by dropping the money in a numbered envelope and depositing the envelope in a drop box. The envelope has a like-numbered tab that may be produced at the request of a park ranger.

There is still no charge to visit the Lower Wekiwa River Aquatic Preserve west of Sanford on State Road 46, Baust said.

Kurdish trickle expected to flood

By JOHN POORNEY
Associated Press Writer

NEAR IRAQ'S BORDER WITH TURKEY — Pickup trucks, trailers hauled by farm tractors and buses with broken windshields are winding down steep mountain roads, bringing thousands of Kurdish refugees one step closer to home.

The arrival of the first ramshackle caravans in the Iraqi town of Zakho marked the official start of a crucial stage in the rescue of Kurdish refugees — getting them out of the mountains.

About 800,000 Kurds fled to the hills along the Iraq-Turkish border from Saddam Hussein's crackdown on their rebellion more than a month ago.

The return of the first refugees follows efforts by U.S. and other allied officers to persuade the Kurds they would be protected — and a tentative peace agreement reached in Baghdad between Saddam and Kurdish leaders.

General: some reporters in Gulf 'unprofessional'

By STEVEN WINE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Operation Desert Storm's second in command says some of the media covering the Persian Gulf War were unprofessional and lacked a basic understanding of the military.

"There were some who irritated the living daylight out of me," Army Lt. Gen. Calvin Waller said Tuesday. "And those were the individuals who had absolutely no knowledge — they didn't know what a squad was from a battalion."

"Yet they would try to get up and pontificate on national television or write something in the newspaper that was totally screwed up, as if they were giving you the gospel truth."

Waller, deputy commander of the U.S. Central Command during Operation Desert Storm and Operation Desert Shield, gave a guest lecture at Florida International University, where he received an honorary degree. The general discussed a number of war-related topics but saved some of his most critical comments for the reporters who covered the conflict.

"The military always tried to be above board and put things in the proper light," Waller said. "Yet there were many times when you were asked, 'Aw, that's not really the way it happened, is it, general? You're really trying to spoof us, aren't you? ..."

"For some reason they thought that the military was going to lie to them. But the American public, in my opinion, quickly realized that the military would probably be more prone to tell the truth than many times, the press was."

News organizations accused the Pentagon of manipulating coverage during Operation Desert Storm.

Waller's stormy relationship with the media dates from last December, when he made headlines around the world. With the Iraqis facing a United Nations deadline of Jan. 15 to leave Kuwait, Waller was reported to say that U.S. forces would not be ready for action against the Iraqis until mid-February.

"That's not quite what I said," Waller said. "What I said was that the ground forces won't be ready, and that was the truth."

"I knew what the war plan was, but I wasn't going to tell Saddam Hussein. I could've said, 'Yes, we won't be ready by Jan. 15, but we're going to start the air campaign shortly thereafter, and we'll bomb the living daylight out of him.'"

Waller said the motive for misquoting him was to sell more newspapers.

Parents win the battle of busing

By VERA BOGDANOVICH
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A group of Winter Springs parents whose youngsters must walk 1.6 miles to Winter Springs Elementary School convinced the school board to allow the children to continue to ride a bus until the end of the school year.

Courtesy busing, a service often provided in the past to students who live less than two miles from their zoned school but who have to traverse dangerous areas to get there, is offered only on a temporary basis.

When the danger no longer exists or when a crossing guard or law enforcement officer can be provided along the route, the service is rescinded.

The Winter Springs parents, organized into a group called Safeguard Our Schoolchildren (SOS), have protested to the board in the past that they were never told that the busing service was temporary and they cried foul when they were given a week's notice to find alternative transportation for their children last month.

"These children have to walk a very dangerous route to school every day," Shawn Hart of Winter Springs, the father of a five-year-old student said last night.

Hart said that walking either past a deeply wooded area or along State Road 434, the only two possible routes, he said, was not safe.

"The paths these children must walk is not dangerous," said Jerry Klein, the district's director of transportation. "According to the state guidelines."

Klein agreed, however, that the parents were not given sufficient notice to find other means of getting their children to school.

"I believe they should be given the service for the next six weeks," he said.

The board agreed, but in light of tight budgetary restraints in place and more to come, they noted that they did not believe the district could afford to continue to provide courtesy bus service to children for whom the state would not reimburse them.

State law requires that all students who live more than two miles from their zoned school be provided with bus service.

Anderson drives to Late Model End of the Month title at New Smyrna

Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — From his sixth-place starting spot in a strong 30-car field, Dick Anderson drove the Cash Register Auto Insurance Chevrolet to victory in the 50-lap FASCAR-sanctioned Late Model End of the Month Championship on Saturday at New Smyrna Speedway.

Pete Orr was second over early leader Jim Sills, Stan Kade and rookie Ronnie Burkett.

The victory did not come easy for Anderson, who was involved in a heavy three-way battle for the point in the early going. By lap eight, the scrapping lead trio of Anderson, Sills and Orr were side-by-side across the stripe.

Orr came out on top briefly on lap 10, but two laps later, when he came off the second turn sideways, Anderson took advantage of the situation and moved into the lead to stay.

At the halfway point, Anderson was followed closely by Orr, Sills, Kade, Burkett and Mike Loescher. With six laps to go, Anderson was a half-strut ahead. But a late-race double-file restart tightened up the pack and made for a close finish on the brightly lit half-mile of pavement.

For the fourth time in a row, young Marc Kinley drove the Applebee's Restaurant Mercury Cougar to a popular victory in the Limited Late Model final. Mike Kubanek, who challenged Kinley all race long, was second followed by early leader Tom Whipple, newcomer Don Schuman and veteran Darrel Frye.

Bikini Beach scored a run in the first and two in the third to take a 3-0 as it tried to win its first game in two years. But Beer "30" tied the score with three in the bottom of the third, took the lead with two in the fourth, and added one insurance run in the fifth and six in the sixth to secure the win. Bikini Beach added its final two runs in the seventh.

Contributing to a 16-hit Beer "30" offense were Shelley Jackson and Roe Fry (one double, two singles and three runs each), Denise Byrd (triple, double), Hollis (double, single, two runs), Carol Tauscher (two singles, run), Gloria McMiller

Sometimes keeping your eyes on the ball doesn't pay off the way it's supposed to. Michelle Cook singled and scored a run Tuesday but it wasn't enough to keep Green Leaf from falling to Fred's Lawn.

ORLANDO — Pete Orr made his return to Orlando SpeedWorld a winning one Friday night as he drove the Horses' Around Quarter Horse Farm Firebird to victory in the 50-lap End of the Month Championship for the FASCAR Late Model.

Jim Sills put his new machine up front at the drop of the green and threatened to run away with the race. Meanwhile, Orr, the fast qualifier, was using the outside groove to work up from his sixth-place starting position.

Caution periods for minor spins on laps 10 and 12 gave Orr the chance to move in on Sills and, on the 13th lap, eventually pass him for the lead.

Sills finished second over Butch Yoakam, Tim Fuller and Bob Ackerbloom, who currently holds a narrow lead in the 12-month point chase for the track championship.

High-point man Von Crews bested Mike Vlach by a bumper at the stripe for his third Limited Late Model feature win of the year.

Heat winner Bobby Owens led for the first five laps before his badly smoking machine brought out the black flag. Vlach then took over the point, but his car stuck in third gear on a restart. Despite the handicap, Vlach held off Crews until the end and almost won the race.

Dave Savicki, subbing for injured Randy Grief, finished third ahead of Claude Collignon and points runner-up Chuck Stanley.

Gary Salvatore scored win No. 4 of the year in the Florida Modifieds while Gene Van Alstine did likewise in the Mini Stock division.

It was also win No. 4 for Ricky Marshall in the Sportsman class while the wild and woolly Bomber final went to Duwayne Waddell, his fourth win of the year as well.

singles each), Jeff Joyce (double, run), Chuck Rice (single, two runs), Steve Gray and Jim Headington (one single and one run each) and Jack Hearn (run).

The Kokomo Recyclers scored all three of their runs in the top of the first with Jerry Herman's two-run triple being the big hit. Also hitting were Bert Herring (two singles), Erik Luce (single, run), Julio Galarza, James Bell and Greg Henaley (one single each) and Arthur Barnes (run).

The third game saw the first six batters in the Regulators order get hits and score runs in the bottom of the first to take a 6-0 lead over State Market Restaurant. The winners settled down to allow only one more run but still trailed 7-5 entering the fifth inning. That disadvantage changed quickly as State Market exploded for nine runs and cruised to the win.

Contributing to the 23-hit State Market attack were Mike Lambert (four singles, three runs), Tom Gracy (two doubles, single, run), Mic West (three singles, two runs), Dan Gracy (double, single, three runs), Nick Brady (two singles, two runs), Chris Davis (two singles, run) and Bill Gracy (two singles).

Doing the hitting for the Regulators were Jeff Kruger (double, two singles, run), Bob Rowe (double, single, run), Brad Kruger (two singles, two runs), Randy Middleton (two singles, run), David Goldstick and Jeff Futrell (two singles each) and John Keigher (single, run).

Expansion discussion put on hold

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — The National League expansion committee will not make its recommendation to owners until the quarterly meetings on June 12 and a discussion and vote will follow immediately, NL president Bill White said Tuesday.

"There will be other discussions, but I think they'll be able to do whatever they have to do that day," White said.

Information has not yet been disseminated outside the NL expansion committee and at least one owner has questioned whether a decision can be reached the day of the recommendation. NL spokeswoman Katy Feeney cautioned that the plans are subject to change.

Six cities are competing for the teams, which cost $95 million each — Buffalo, N.Y.; Denver; Miami; Orlando, Fla.; St. Petersburg, Fla., and Washington. The expansion teams, which must be approved by nine of the 12 NL teams and by eight of the 14 American League teams, will begin play in 1993.

"Something this important, I can't see us walking into the meeting, hearing the report and taking a vote twenty minutes later," San Francisco Giants chairman Bob Lurie was quoted as saying in Tuesday's editions of the Rocky Mountain News. "You've got to give it some study, and I personally don't think that can be done in an hour or so. I need to do more than just look at it and vote. We're not going to rubber stamp it."

Feeney said that some information would be given to owners before the meetings in Santa Monica, Calif. Several owners said Tuesday they have no complaints about the process.

"They've done a wonderful job of containing the information within the National League expansion committee, which I think is really good," said Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf, head of the joint ownership committee. "I really don't know how the other owners will be informed. I presume we'll have an executive council meeting sometime in early June."

The AL's demand for part of the $190 million expansion money must be settled before a vote. Pittsburgh Pirates chairman Douglas Danforth, San Diego Padres chairman Tom Werner, Milwaukee Brewers president Bud Selig and Toronto Blue Jays president Paul Beason are handling the negotiations, along with the two league presidents. If they cannot reach an agreement, the dispute will be settled by commissioner Fay Vincent.

Philadelphia Phillies president Bill Giles, a member of the expansion committee, said many small issues remain to be decided.

"The question is who will get the recommendation first: the National League, the executive council, the ownership committee. It might happen all at the same time," Giles said. "As far as I know, there's a lot of little details as to the timing of everything. Things like when they share in licensing money, what kind of schedule we're going to have."

The NL teams currently play 18 games against teams in their own division and 12 games against teams in the other division.

Host's center stage is kitchen

Charitable causes keep him cooking

By ANDREA BROWN
Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — Numerous associations with political, religious and cultural events have thrown Longwood resident Avi Abramowitz onto center stage. Often that stage is the kitchen.

Abramowitz arrived in the Orlando area from Baltimore and has since made his mark as an insurance professional, consummate host and now Cook of the Week. He's been cooking for "It started a long time ago when I ate a lot of steak and potatoes and couldn't find a good steak. I'd throw a bunch of concoctions together and found it's fun," he said.

Basically, Abramowitz's secret lies in the marinating, he said. He first purchases aged filets, approximately 3" thick and marinates them in 10 different kinds of steak sauces, a good bottle of white wine and 10 different spices such as lemon pepper, chopped garlic, onion, and various salts.

"It's a terrible looking combination. The problem with filets in a restaurant is sometimes they taste like rubber or mush. This tastes a lot better than it looks," he said.

The steaks are turned every three minutes and served with marinated mushrooms.

Other savory selections such as fruit salad, tossed salad, carrot souffle, asparagus with hollandaise sauce and hot fudge sundaes have been part of his menu, as well.

Abramowitz keeps a close check on cholesterol because of his fondness for eggs. He said good health can accompany good taste.

"People are not eating as much red meat as they used to for health reasons," Abramowitz said, adding that he prefers lighter fare such as salads, especially as the summer months approach.

Abramowitz's salad tip: Hold the watermelon. "To me, it's simply water and ruins a salad."

Look hard for fresh tomatoes. "Unfortunately, tomatoes here are hydroponic. Some look beautiful, but you end up knowing that out since it just turn bad quickly. Plum tomatoes are a little better."

He said his pet peeve is an overabundance of onions and garlic.

"They are too overbearing for a salad and everyone worries about bad breath anyway," he said.

Abramowitz hosts many gatherings for family, friends and charitable causes.

"On my 50th birthday, my mother's 75th birthday and my parents 55th anniversary, I flew in my relatives, served a catered dinner, displayed fireworks, and showed off a 50 foot champagne bottle. It was great but something you do only ONCE," he recalled.

Abramowitz's culinary experiences have been linked in a much larger way with such events as the Holocaust Research Educational Foundation Dinner, Valencia Community College Sight Program reception, and functions for various political personalities, including Rep. Bill Nelson and Senator Metzenbaum. This month's events include the National Conference of Christians and Jews, honoring Mayor Bill Frederick; Give the Kids the World Dinner; and the Jewish National Fund Dinner, honoring Rita Bornstein, president of Rollins College and Steve Altman, president of UCF. The funds raised from the last event will be directed toward reclaiming the soil in Israel for Russian immigrants. Abramowitz has played a key role in the planning of these fund-raising efforts.

"Some people don't enjoy doing it (charity work) and others do — I'm one of those that do. In fact, I moved here at age 24, and the following year was president of a charity. I'd like to now get more involved in the contribution of fund-raising techniques," he said.

Abramowitz admitted that he has slowed down slightly. He used to host approximately 1000

May marks 'Older Americans Month'

May was first proclaimed as national "Older Americans Month" by President John F. Kennedy, in response to the growing number of Older Americans in our nation. In 1991 the federal Administration on Aging announced the theme for Older Americans Month, 1991, "Older Americans, Our Greatest Natural Resource." This theme emphasizes such roles of Older Americans as caregivers to other older persons, intergenerational and other types of volunteers, skilled artisans and employed workers. The Area Agency on Aging for District VII, (which includes Orange, Osceola and Seminole Counties) is cooperating with the Older Americans Month Planning Committee to develop area-wide celebration plans.

The month will begin with "Senior Showcase," a senior talent show in each county. Seniors who sing, dance, or perform in other ways are invited to participate. The best will perform at the Senior Fair at the Central Florida Fairgrounds on May 23. Talented seniors can call their Better Living for Seniors Help Lines, or Tuffy Abbatichio at Savings of America, (407) 894-3116.

Artists over 60 years of age are invited to show their work at the Senior Art Show at the Senior Fair. Brevard and Seminole Counties will hold a county-wide art show in preparation for the district show. For information, call your Better Living for Seniors Help Lines, or the Area Agency on Aging, (407) 823-1075.

An Employment Fair featuring over 50 employers will provide job opportunities for those over 60 years of age at the Senior Fair. Employers who want to participate or older job seekers, call Dr. Paul Wilson, 849-3200 extension 2815 for more information.

Better Living for Seniors of Seminole County is sponsoring a "Senior Prom" dinner dance in Sanford on May 4. Call 831-4357 for details.

The Senior Fair, May 23 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Central Florida Fairgrounds is the big event of the month. Exhibits, entertainment, food, door prizes, an art show, an employment fair, health screening and other attractions, provides something for everyone. A few booths are still available. If your organization wants to inform seniors of your products or services, call Darlene Ragan at Dr. Magruder's office, (407) 423-2528.

Get a May calendar by calling the Area Agency on Aging, (407) 823-1075, or your county helpline. (Brevard, 631-2747; Orange, 648-4357; Osceola, 847-4357; Seminole, 831-4357) and enjoy all the fun.

The tide is running out.

Strive for vigorous, on-going exercise

DEAR DR. GOTT: How much exercise is considered to be healthful?

DEAR READER: This is a very good, although deceptively simple, question. Recently researchers have discovered two interesting facts.

First, in order for exercise to lower the incidence of coronary artery disease and heart attacks, the physical activity must be vigorous and on-going. Dancing, golf and gardening are not strenuous enough to protect against heart disease.

Furthermore, a history of vigorous sports activity (performed 25 to 40 years earlier) is not protective. The rate of heart attack in such a group of men (reported in the British Health Journal) was similar to that in a group of sedentary individuals. Therefore, frequent aerobic exercise — such as running, brisk walking or swimming — is necessary to reduce the incidence of heart disease.

Second, regular exercise stimulates the release of growth hormone. This release can significantly increase lean body mass (primarily muscle) and bone strength, as well as improve circulation. Even in the elderly, brisk walking has been shown to produce beneficial effects.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column you indicated you hadn't heard of constipation-induced migraines. As someone who has experienced them, let me tell you they are for real. I've also discovered that milk and milk products aggravate the condition. Perhaps a suggestion of avoidance might help your readers.

DEAR READER: OK, I take you at your word, although the relation between milk products/constipation and migraine suggests to me that your "migraine" may actually be due to a sensitivity to something, such as lactose, in the milk. Food allergies can often trigger vascular headaches, including migraines.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

One of the real gentlemen of bridge, Lee Hazen, died on February 13, aged 85.

Most bridge players have big egos and aggressive personalities. But every now and then a calm, quiet champion comes along. Hazen was a paragon of gentlemanliness.

He used to divide his time between professional baseball and law. Bridge made its first appearance in his life in the 1930s, but was in the background until his other diamond days were over. Hazen represented the United States in the 1966 and 1969 World Championships for the Bermuda Bowl. He won 11 national titles — nine team championships, the 1945 Men's Pairs and the 1941 Master Individual.

He worked as the American Contract Bridge League attorney from 1942 to 1966. He was also a director of the ACBL, vice president from 1945 to 1947, and honorary member in 1956.

Hazen played today's hand in the 1939 National Mixed Pairs Championship. He admitted that his final bid of six spades was a shot in the dark.

To test yourself, cover the defenders' hands. West, none other than Oswald Jacoby, led the ace of hearts and another heart to dummy's king.

Hazen stopped to think. Why had Ozzie led a second heart, giving him a dummy entry to take a spade finesse? Ozzie knew that Hazen must have a singleton heart — with two he wouldn't have bid a slam. Jacoby could have exited in either minor, leaving Hazen to play spades from his hand. There was only one answer. Hazen led a spade from dummy and put up his ace. As he expected, the king came tumbling down and Hazen claimed his contract.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

May 3, 1991

Considerable emphasis in the year ahead will be devoted to arrangements that could enhance your material security. You might have to work a bit harder than usual, but the end results will be worth it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you try to reap a harvest from a field you haven't sown, you're not likely to be very successful today. Your chances of getting something for nothing look rather dismal. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to be a leader, rather than a leaver, today. Letting companions make all the decisions doesn't guarantee that their choices will be right. Be more assertive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A likable but indolent friend might try to shift responsibilities to you today, since this individual doesn't want to be saddled with any inconveniences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone within your group or clique might attempt to do a little petty politicking today. This is tolerable, provided the individual doesn't try to get you directly involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually, you're disciplined and have your demeanor under control. But, there is a chance you may do something outlandish in public today that won't win you any admirers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An individual who is very fond of you has been wondering about your inattentiveness lately. If you hope to keep this relationship intact, you'll have to be more thoughtful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're someone who likes to function free from restraints, so you should be able to understand the folly of possessiveness. Subdue your inclinations to limit the freedom of the one you love today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) What is merely a harmless flirtation to you could be just the opposite to the one to whom you owe your loyalty. Don't be afflicted with a wandering eye today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to make any promises today that you know you'll have a difficult time keeping. If you do, there is a very good chance you'll severely disappoint someone who is depending on you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may feel a strong, inner need to be the center of attention today. To express this desire of having all eyes focused on you, you might end up doing something quite silly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Think before you speak today. If not, you may experience one of those embarrassing moments when you wish you could vanish after saying the wrong thing to the wrong person.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's commendable to acknowledge or praise another, provided there is proper justification. However, if you flatter someone for ulterior motives today, your play will misfire.

LEARN' LIZARDS!

by Leonard Starr

Tart rhubarb sign of spring

You can be sure it is spring when you see rhubarb in the produce department. I was torn between writing about rhubarb or Vidalia onions, so I decided to wait until next week for the Vidalia onions; that way you would all have a supply.

One of my very favorite fruit pies is a rhubarb custard that I make the old fashioned way...lots of tart rhubarb in a sweet custard with a lattice top baked in the conventional oven. The pie that I'm going to suggest for this column has a double crust and you team your microwave and the conventional oven.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB PIE

Pastry for 2-crust pie
2 C. sliced rhubarb
3 C. sliced fresh or frozen unsweetened strawberries
1 C. sugar
1/4 C. all-purpose flour
1/4 tsp. cinnamon, if desired
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine

Roll out half of pastry to fit 9-inch pie plate; trim edge even with plate.

Combine rhubarb, strawberries, sugar, flour and cinnamon; mix lightly. Turn into pastry-lined plate. Dot with butter.

Roll remaining pastry for top crust. Place over filling with 1/2-inch overlap. Trim edge. Turn so 1/2-inch extends beyond plate. Moisten edge of crust with water. Seal top crust to bottom, turning under 1/2-inch that extends. Flute edge. Cut a few slits in top crust for escape of steam.

Microwave on 100% power, 8 to 10 minutes, or until bubbly at edge, rotating plate once. Preheat oven to 450°. Transfer pie to oven. Bake 10-15 minutes or until golden brown and fruit in center is tender.

Fruit crisps are quick. Team two fruits for this one.

RHUBARB CRISP

1/2 C. sugar
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
1/2 C. water
3 C. sliced rhubarb

SHOWAWAYS
MIDGE MYCOFF

3 C. fresh or frozen unsweetened strawberries
1/4 C. all-purpose flour
1/4 C. rolled oats
1/4 C. packed brown sugar
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 C. butter or margarine

Combine sugar and cornstarch in 6-inch round baking dish. Stir in water until blended. Microwave on 100% power, 2 to 3 minutes, or until mixture boils, stirring once or twice. Stir in rhubarb and strawberries. Set aside.

Combine flour, oats, brown sugar and cinnamon. Cut in butter until in fine pieces. Sprinkle over rhubarb. Microwave on 100% power, uncovered, 10-12 minutes or until rhubarb is tender. About 8 servings - 240 calories each.

This jam sets up quickly with the help of strawberry flavored gelatin.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB JAM

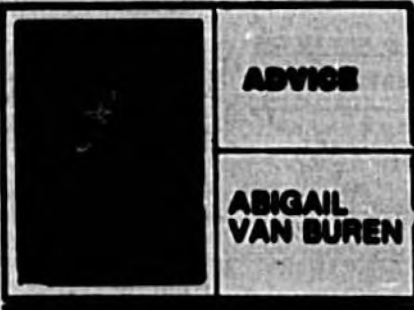

5 C. thinly sliced rhubarb
3 C. sugar
1 pkg. (3 oz.) strawberry flavored gelatin

Combine rhubarb and sugar in 2-quart glass batter bowl. Microwave on 100% power, uncovered, 14 to 16 minutes or until rhubarb is tender, stirring twice. Gently mash rhubarb against sides of bowl. Stir in strawberry gelatin. Cool slightly. Spoon into sterilized jars. Seal. About 4 1/2 - 35 calories/tablespoon.

In any of these rhubarb recipes, replace sugar with equivalent amount of sugar substitute. When recipes include flavored gelatin, replace with equivalent amount of sugar-free gelatin.

Mother's Day honors belong to all women, with or without kids

DEAR ABBY: Hooray! I can write and don't have to sign my name - or else I'd be snubbed and called a heartless traitor in my small town - about the Mother's Day custom that frequently causes much pain. Certainly, mothers should be honored as well as fathers on their special day. But what about childless women?

beyond our control, have never experienced motherhood.

How about the woman who conceived accidentally, but gave her baby the right to live and be adopted? And the mother who, due to accident or poor health, lost every child she conceived? Where are the flowers for them?

NAMELESS AND HURTING

DEAR HURTING: You are right. There are many women who have never experienced motherhood, but nevertheless have made significant contributions to the lives of others: the eldest sister who never married because it was her lot to raise her siblings, and who was then called upon to look after the aging parents or an ailing relative. And, of course, all the mothers and would-be mothers you mentioned.

For those women who will not receive a flower or any public recognition on Mother's Day because they are childless, or because their child is dead - or simply "elsewhere" - an orchid to you!

Some churches ceremoniously present a flower to the oldest mother, the youngest mother, the mother with the most children, etc. However, there are among us many noble women - schoolteachers, nurses, or perhaps just friends or neighbors - who, through circumstances
