

Set Up A Buffet For The Crowd

The buffet must have been created when a hostess finally threw up her hands and said, "I'll give the party, but I'm going to enjoy myself, too!"

Winter holidays are practically synonymous with entertaining. It's a loving season of celebration, a time to gather with friends. But if you're stuck with food preparation during the party, you're not sharing much of that holiday spirit.

The simplest way to get out of the kitchen is to set up a buffet. And that needn't mean cold food. You could try an especially festive Glazed Corned Beef, a beauty meant to serve eight to ten people. With a few recipes that look great and taste even better, you'll find that the buffet will free you to have fun, too.

CITRUS GLAZED CORNED BEEF
7 to 8 pound corned beef
1 Florida orange, peeled, sectioned
1 Florida grapefruit, peeled, sectioned
1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1/4 cup Florida orange juice
1/4 cup Florida grapefruit juice

2 teaspoons prepared mustard
Place corned beef in large kettle with enough water to cover; bring to boiling, reduce heat and simmer 3 to 4 hours until tender. Remove from water. Drain. Place meat in shallow roasting pan; arrange orange and grapefruit sections on top of meat. In small saucepan, combine brown sugar, cornstarch and cloves; mix well. Gradually stir in orange and grapefruit juice; add mustard. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and begins to boil. Spoon sauce over meat. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven 30 minutes, basting several times with remaining sauce.

Yield: 8 to 10 servings.
ORANGE CASHEW CAKE
Packaged dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
4 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup Florida orange juice
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons finely chopped cashew

nuts, divided
1/4 cup packaged dry bread crumbs
ORANGE GLAZE (Recipe Below)
Butter a 3-quart tube or Bundt pan. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Set aside. In large mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition; add orange rind. Stir together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with orange juice. Stir in 1 cup nuts and 1/4 cup bread crumbs. In small bowl, beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gently fold into Citrus Glazed Corned Beef is the centerpiece of a buffet meant to let the hostess enjoy the party.

Files Were Kept On Sanford Cops, Inside Probe Finds

WALLACE LAPETERS

By DENNIS FEOLA AND MAX ERKILLETIAN

An internal investigation of the Sanford Police Department has revealed confidential files on the personal lives of policemen were being assembled during the administration of Chief Wallace LaPeters.

The files that were kept were primarily on the personal lives of the officers, Sanford City Attorney C. Vernon Mize said in disclosing the results of the investigation.

The investigation also revealed equipment was being exchanged with a private police equipment firm without proper authorization and official records.

Also criticized as a result of the investigation was a long-standing practice of policemen soliciting contributions for various civic activities while in uniform.

Mize said the investigation has revealed no criminal acts.

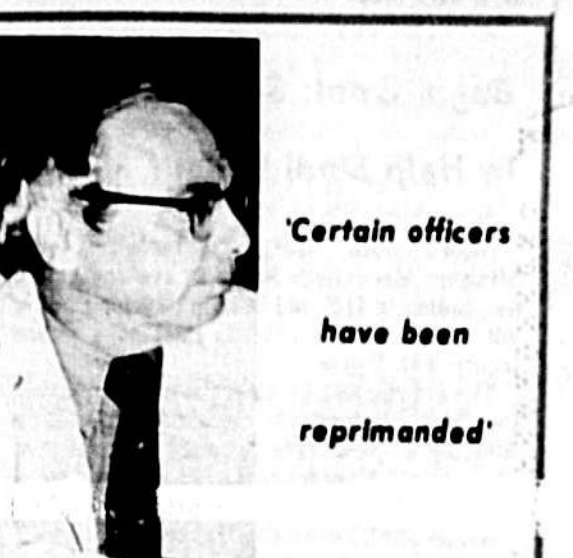

... it is the position of the city of Sanford that the degree of improprieties and irregularities do not justify any criminal prosecutions, dismissals or suspensions. Certain officers involved have been reprimanded and such action should be sufficient," Mize said in a letter to State Attorney Douglas Cheshire.

Cheshire prompted the internal investigation which was conducted by Sgt. Roy Williams. Allegations of wrongdoing grew out of Cheshire's probe of the surprise firing of LaPeters in July. At that time LaPeters set forth allegations of attempted ticket-fixing and Sunshine law violations.

Nothing came of those charges, however, during the interviews at the state attorney's office, new allegations of wrongdoing were brought out and Cheshire requested the internal investigation to clear up the matters.

"We had asked for the statements of those officers making allegations to the state attorney, but the state attorney refused to give us statements. They did furnish us with a list of names of officers they talked to," Mize said.

VERNON MIZE

"One of the things that greatly hampered our investigation was the fact that a number of officers refused to give a statement. We have no powers of subpoena. That state attorney's office can subpoena someone and use a number of methods to force someone to make a statement," the city attorney said.

"What was found were minor improprieties. Other than these minor things, these officers had been good police officers. We don't think there was enough there for criminal prosecution or fines. By that I mean the improprieties were not of sufficient consequence," Mize said.

Work too hard to cook during the week? Combine convenience with good eating in a fresh Vegetable Borscht and an Onion Batter Bread that can be prepared on the weekend and refrigerated or frozen for future eating.

Prepare At Leisure To Eat Well Later

After a long busy day nobody wants to fuss with fixing dinner. Too often that means whipping out the old TV dinner. This is a poor substitute for the taste and nutrition of good fresh food.

If you plan ahead you can eat well every day no matter how tired or rushed you are. Many delectable dishes can be made at your leisure on Sunday and refrigerated or even frozen for use at a future time.

Some dishes hold up better than others. Two that have proved themselves marvelously are Fresh Vegetable Borscht, a wonderfully hearty Russian peasant soup, and Onion Batter Bread served with herb butter made with fresh parsley and dill.

Beets are the main ingredient in the borscht, giving it its famous lush red color. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association says the best beets are firm and their greens should not be limp.

Frozen, the dishes can be kept for weeks, or the borscht can be refrigerated and held for several days. Actually, the flavor of the borscht even improves with age.

Both the borscht and the bread should be allowed to cool to room temperature before freezing. Wrap the bread lightly in freezer wrap and pour the borscht in freezer containers. You may also want to label and date the packages.

To reheat the frozen borscht, place it in a saucepan. Cover and heat slowly, separating with a fork as the soup thaws.

County Plan On Juveniles Wins Praise

Special To The Evening Herald

TALLAHASSEE — State officials today praised Seminole County's community arbitration program as an innovative approach toward reducing crowded juvenile court dockets.

"This is one of the more carefully thought out and better developed programs of its type that we know of and several of them are under way," said Allen Hubanks, Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services youth services director.

"This has to be one of the answers to our overcrowded court dockets."

Hubanks' Youth Services Advisory Council got a briefing on the plan under which first-time juvenile offenders charged with minor offenses are handled by a volunteer arbitrator instead of a juvenile judge.

If found guilty, the youth can be punished by being required to pay back the victim for losses or performing a community service including washing Seminole County Sheriff's Department patrol cars.

Seminole State Attorney Doug Cheshire said the unique program was developed because "we were at the bottom of the barrel."

"We had done everything the law permitted, and we did not believe we were getting our money's worth in our juvenile system," Cheshire said.

Going through a juvenile judge is the most expensive way of handling delinquent cases, Hubanks said, and "This is one of the better developed programs."

Sen. Stone: From Jack Eckerd To Inflation To Casinos

By NORM ORRIN Herald Editor

Senator Richard Stone sat pensively for a moment. He kicked off his shoes. He leaned back in his chair. He raised his eyes toward the ceiling of his Sanford motel room.

He was pondering the question — one he was determined to answer, yet one he seemed to have wished had never been asked.

"I might have," he finally offered.

The question: "If you were running against Jack Eckerd, would you bring up the GSA (General Services Administration) issue?"

He was asked about the same Jack Eckerd, 1978 Republican gubernatorial candidate, who was the Republican bitter, election contest.

But Wednesday, casually conversing at the Holiday Inn in his shortsleeves, he talked once more about Eckerd — but only briefly.

He supplemented his response, about Eckerd and the GSA, with a quick addendum: "Only on the issue of management," said the senator.

"Jack Eckerd is personally honest. I have no doubt of that," he said.

Sen. Stone indicated his preference then to concentrate on Sen. Robert Graham's qualifications for the Florida governorship. Graham is Eckerd's Democratic opponent.

Noting that he is actively supporting Graham, whom he knew when they were both in the Florida State Legislature, Stone ticked off assets he believes Graham would bring to the governorship. His emphasis: business and legislative experience.

"He has a broad business background and 12 years of legislative experience," said Stone. "That legislative experience is important. He knows state government and has wrestled with hard issues."

U.S. Senator Stone was convinced Florida Senator Graham would make a good governor.

Richard Stone then talked of everything from inflation to casino gambling to sharing a personal evaluation of President Carter as the nation's chief executive.

The war on inflation declared by President Carter, whose principal thrust is adherence to voluntary wage and price guidelines, he said, could be won only if government first did its part.

"As I travel through the state's counties," he explained, "I find the people are willing for the government to do its part, then the people will be willing to show restraint," he suggested.

Stone outlined three steps he said had to be taken — and which he was going to suggest to President Carter:

— Appointment of a White House commission to repeal all those costly and time-consuming rules and regulations.

— A pledge from the administration to submit a budget cutting expenditures in half.

— Publicizing by the president his directives to the cabinet and federal agencies requesting submission of cut-in-half budgets.

If all that is done, said Sen. Stone, he would ask his Senate colleagues to take their own pledge: "not to vote a dime more than is requested in the president's budget."

Reminded that AFL-CIO president George Meany had rejected President Carter's anti-inflation program, claiming it was weighted heavily for business and against labor, Stone said

Buck Bounces High In Japan, Europe Reaction Mixed To Inflation Plan In This Area

By TOM GIORDANO Herald News Editor

Depending upon who you ask at Central Florida lending institutions, President Carter's plan to curb inflation and boost the dollar's value will...

... Have no significant effect on Central Florida's economy. ... Cause a decrease in business activity and create an increase in unemployment. ... May cause a recession and is pretty strong medicine.

... Is not very strong and doesn't have any teeth in it. What's it all about? Mostly reaction over President Carter's announcement that the Federal Reserve Board will push up its interest rate by a full percentage point...

That is, the discount rate, or the interest rate the reserve board charges member banks for borrowing, has gone from 8.5 percent to 9.5 percent. It is that rate which affects interest rates charged in all areas.

But those lenders who say Central Florida will not be as greatly affected as the rest of the nation, point out borrowing is not likely to decrease because of the higher interest rates, and that savings accounts will not suffer.

"I think Carter's plan will have some small effect, but I don't think it's as strong as it will be to sooner or later. It won't stop the borrowing in Central Florida, we're in a different market," asserted Tom Buckley, financial manager with First Federal of Seminole Savings and Loan Association in Sanford.

Also seeing no major impact on the local economy is Dot Brenner, assistant vice president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Mid-Florida at the Zayre.

Plaza in Sanford. However, both savings and loan associations noted loan applications will be more closely assessed.

Savings and loan associations will feel more impact from the president's plan than will commercial banks, Buckley pointed out.

He explained savings and loan associations make most of their loans for home mortgages and because of state usury laws limiting interest rates on those loans to 10 percent, the higher cost to those lending institutions to borrow money will give them less of a spread.

Commercial banks have more flexibility because they can charge up to 15 percent interest on business or corporate loans.

"Before the new rates, we paid 8.5 percent compounded daily for an effective yield of 8.73 percent on our highest certificates of deposit. Now we'll have to pay 9.23 percent with an effective yield of 9.66 percent, so you can see we're paying that much and lending it even at 10 percent, it isn't much of a spread," Buckley explained.

Most of the concern over Carter's plan and the higher interest rates came from a lender in Orlando, Richard Livingston, chairman of Sun Banks of Florida.

"It's pretty strong medicine... the high interest rates on loans may cut down business activity over the next few months," he noted. The concern expressed by Livingston and other major lending institutions is that higher interest rates will cut down on borrowing, creating a domino effect on the economy.

However, Buckley saw no such problem locally, saying "people still knock down our doors to borrow money. Mrs. Brenner also said the one per cent increase in interest rates should create no major problem locally.

"When we went from 8.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent, it didn't cut down on the borrowing, and I don't expect it will this time," she asserted.

... Police

Sources close to the investigation said between two and four officers were officially reprimanded as a result of the probe.

In some cases, sources said, equipment was issued to officers, but not logged and in other cases equipment was lost but not reported.

The personal files have been sealed and are in the city safe and will be turned over to the state attorney's office if they are requested, Miss said.

Miss said he reviewed the files and they contain nothing of a criminal nature. LaPeters today denied any knowledge of personal files being kept on policemen's lives.

"I didn't even know who half those guys were married to," LaPeters said. He termed the allegation "nonsense" and said the internal investigation was kept without his knowledge. "Anything is possible in that ---- house," he said.

Miss said policemen soliciting funds in uniforms has been done for many years, even before Chief Ben Butler's first term.

He said soliciting was always for charitable causes and was concentrated mostly in the downtown business district.

The city attorney said police have been informed the practice is not legal and have been told to stop. Miss, in his letter to Cheah, said additional action against the police officers involved is unwarranted.

"The morale of the Sanford Police Department has been substantially damaged by reason of recent events and further disciplinary actions would be of no benefit," he wrote. Appropriate administrative action has been taken relative to the operation of the police department and as a result thereof, the morale and efficiency has substantially improved and should continue to improve."

... Machines

could do something about it," Williams asked. But the Democrats were not alone in the critique.

Buddy Kirchman, Republican representative on the inspection team for the Edwards-Hawkins campaign in Seminole County, agreed today with Cable's observations during the inspection of the machines.

"I found counters that were not turned back to zero. I found machines at the same time transporting them to the 67 precincts today," asked Mrs. Kirchman.

"The commission's promise these problems would be corrected and not happen again," she said.

Commissioner Alexander said today he has consistently said the county should provide full-time voting machine technicians to coordinate proper procedures in preparing Americans in Europe and Asia, who have watched the cost of lodging, transportation and food spiral as the dollar declined.

Japanese dealers said they hoped Carter's package — which included the purchase of $30 billion in the hands of foreign investors and a sharp boost in the Federal Reserve's discount rate — would usher in a "new era" of monetary stability.

Stone On Inflation: Chamber of Commerce

— But predicted that California's Gov. Jerry Brown will try to amend Carter.

"Brown is pushing him (Carter) toward the conservative line," observed Stone. He implied this could help in a re-election bid.

At St. Castro, Sen. Stone stressed he does not advocate negotiations with the Cuban leader now and is particularly concerned for Florida's economy if we begin extensive trade with the Caribbean basin.

"It would cost more than it would help," said the senator. Instead of casino, he added, he would rather concentrate on rejuvenating the area's hotels and tourist industry, including landscaping and fixing the beaches.

That wouldn't cost money help to do that? he was asked. "See you next year," he promised.

Wholesale Prices Up Again —Hurts Anti-Inflation Hope

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices in October soared 0.9 percent for the second consecutive month, the government reported today, dampening hopes that inflation will taper off during the remainder of 1978.

As in the past, sharply rising food costs were a main contributor to the overall increase, the Labor Department said in its latest inflation report. Food ready for sale to groceries rose 1.7 percent, the identical advance registered in September and the biggest gain since last April.

Seminole Spectacle: The Sound Of Music

The rockets' red glare, bombs bursting in air — they'll be part of the spectacle Saturday night at Seminole High School stadium in Sanford as 800 area high school musicians mass for the playing of the Star Spangled Banner and other patriotic tunes.

This will be part of the scene at the Fourth Annual Seminole County High School Band Festival co-sponsored by the Sanford Optimist Club and The Evening Herald.

The program begins at 8 p.m. Professionally programmed fireworks will be timed to coincide with the playing of a patriotic medley consisting of "America the Beautiful," The Star Spangled Banner and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," during the grand finale," according to festival chairman Ernie Butler.

High school bands participating and their bandmasters include: Bishop Moore, Mike Wheeler; Lake Brantley, Jack Herron; Lake Howell, Roland Castro; Lyman, John Blair; Oviedo, Dick Feinberg, and Seminole, Wayne Earnhardt, host bandmaster.

The bands have been practicing special arrangements for the mass concert.

"This will be a dress parade for them with the state contest coming up in two weeks," Butler said.

Individual bands will each have from 10-15 minutes to strut their stuff. This is a festival not a contest," Butler emphasized, "but a beautiful trophy donated by The Evening Herald will be presented to each band."

Scheduled to present trophies will be Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore; County School Superintendent W. P. (Bud) Lyster, Sheriff John Polk; Governor of the Florida District Optimist International, Tom Sewell; Herald's Publisher Wayne Doyle; and Sanford

Optimist President Richard Swartz. Lyster has called the event "one of the finest affairs for county high school cultural activities."

Announcer for the band festival will be Jack Horner, executive manager of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

"Purpose of the festival is to provide funds for the school bands and 100 percent of the gate receipts will be divided equally among the participating bands," Butler said. Profits from concessions will be used by the Sanford Optimist Club to provide funds for its

Friend of Youth Program. Serving on the festival committee are Lt. Governor of Optimist Zone 17, Robert Howe, a member of the local club, publicity; Dale Coppock, in charge of programs; Bill Wilkins, concessions; Tom Leppen, tickets and William Colbert, legal advisor. Don Reynolds is host principal.

Members of the Optimist Club assisted by Evening Herald employees will be selling concessions, programs and tickets.

12-Week Paper Strike Ends

NEW YORK (UPI) — The harrowing 12-week newspaper strike was settled Wednesday with a tentative agreement between The New York Times and the Daily News and the pressman's union and the publishers of the two dailies said they hoped to have their papers on the stands Sunday.

The publishers still have to wrap up agreements with four other unions, but the pressmen's union said it would hold a ratification vote on the 6-year pact as soon as the drivers' union reached a tentative agreement with the papers. Talks between the publishers and the unions were to be held today.

Alexander Our Choice

John Alexander, a Democrat, was appointed last year by Democratic Gov. Reubin Askew to serve out the unexpired term of resigned Republican Commissioner John Kimbrough.

In his latest tenure, which began Oct. 1, 1977, Mr. Alexander has demonstrated he hasn't lost any of the aggressiveness or positive maverick tendencies he had demonstrated earlier during his eight years of service on the commission — six of those as chairman — from 1963-1971.

Even among officials of the Seminole County municipalities — who have frequently been adversaries of the county government, John Alexander has earned high grades.

Almost to a man, they have tabbed Mr. Alexander as the commissioner most sympathetic to, and conversant with the problems of the cities.

His candidacy this year has been endorsed by Longwood Mayor Gerard Connell and praised by Caseberry Mayor Bill Grier. Even a Republican chief executive, Walter Sorenson of Lake Mary, has endorsed him in his 1978 race.

Mr. Alexander also has honored his pledge to devote full-time to his commission duties — a very significant display of devotion and dedication.

One of Mr. Alexander's attributes, too, is his openness in dealing with his constituents. One of his top priorities upon assuming office last year was to instruct his staff to make sure all callers got right through to him without roadblocks or red tape.

Such a policy of availability and responsiveness is a key sign of a good and effective legislator.

We want to keep John Alexander available and responsive as a member of the Seminole County Commission.

Keep Bill Gunter

Bill Gunter is seeking another term as state treasurer-insurance commissioner that chance.

We believe he deserves that chance. Mr. Gunter, former congressman and unsuccessful senatorial candidate, has been crossing the state, challenging insurance companies and fighting often coming up a winner.

His success in obtaining millions in rebates from insurance companies is the biggest newsmaking effort. But there have been other.

Bill Gunter is dedicated, tireless and knowledgeable. We want him to remain in his key post in Tallahassee.

Alaska Land

It is too bad that Alaska's Sen. Mike Gravel single-handedly torpedoed any agreement on an Alaska public interest lands bill Congress adjourned recently.

Alaska's other senator, Ted Stevens, a Republican, was ready to compromise.

But Gravel, a Democrat, was adamant and threatened a filibuster.

President Carter and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus should now take executive action to protect the public interest lands.

And they should take similar action to convey most of the 194 million acres of federal lands promised to the state at the time of statehood 30 years ago.

Land-hungry Alaskans deserve title to their lands, but the national interest in park, scenic, wilderness and wildlife areas must be protected in perpetuity.

But the beleaguered big shot who is too fearful of the workaday press to submit to the glare of a spotlight often resorts to more devious methods. This is the style favored by Chief Justice Warren Burger, who was appointed by Richard Nixon, and whose hale affair with the media we have detailed in previous columns. In one case, there is evidence that Burger's subordinates may even have resorted to Nixon-style dirty tricks to punish a critical reporter.

A glaring example of the Burger style was his reaction to an unfavorable story written by Dave Beckwith of Time magazine.

When Beckwith disclosed the court's decision on abortion before it was made public, the chief justice all but declared martial law at the court. He went to every employee he suspected of having talked with Beckwith and grilled them.

Employees who confessed that they had spoken with Beckwith were ordered to submit affidavits giving the substance of their conversations. Burger gathered the results of his research on the reporter's sources and methods

Could it be in the water or are they just overdoing it? Sanford's seasoned citizens must be the most active age group in town. They can be found working in any given civic project and right now they are gearing up for the big event of the year—the Golden Age Olympics scheduled to begin Friday.

In addition to the many strenuous athletic events in the hectic week-long schedule — like racing, track and field, swimming, tennis, golf, shuffleboard, basketball, etc. — they will be doing a lot of dancing.

Dancing is one of their favorite activities and they keep in practice at the Sanford Serranada's dance hall every Wednesday afternoon in the civic center. Two or three hundred turn out each week to dance to music by the band.

During the Golden Age Olympics there will be a dance contest at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday at the civic center followed by a dinner at 6:30 p.m. Award winners from the first half of the week will be recognized and then it will be grab your partner and start to dance some more—this time just for the fun of it.

Climaxed the week of events will be the Saturday night dance with more music by the Sanford Serranada. Dancing will begin at 6:30 p.m. and medals will be presented to winners of the Saturday events and to the overall high point man and woman for the week at 7:30 p.m. Then to use up any excess energy they might have left it will be back to the dance floor for another fast track or maybe even the "hustle."

Honorary chairman Buster Crabbe, former movie star and Olympic gold medal swimmer, will not be here for the opening ceremonies Monday because of a TV comment in Dallas. He is expected to arrive Tuesday. During the week, Buster has been invited by the Stars Hall of Fame in Orlando to immortalize his hand print in cement.

Sunday afternoon in the park and bands playing in the gazebo . . . just like the good old days in Sanford when local merchants and residents donned their uniforms and grabbed their instruments to serenade the populace. This Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. Sanford Salutes will present not one, but three bands, including Seminole Community Band's old-fashioned German band, dance band and concert band, playing in the gazebo in Sanford's Centennial Park. The concert is free but be sure to bring along a lawn chair or blanket to spread on the grass.

The computer which makes out the bills for the City of Caseberry Utilities Department apparently has a sense of humor. Customers are not only expected to pay their bills, but smile while they're doing it. The computer gives a "smiley" (or was it a jack-o-lantern?) and the admonition "Smile" on this month's bill.

Iowa Tests Anger

DES MOINES — In a year when the country is supposedly swinging to the right, an American for Democratic Action rating as the most liberal member of the U.S. Senate is not exactly a political asset.

No one understands that better than Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, holder of the dubious distinction. But he isn't about to change his spots simply because liberalism is out of fashion.

"I decided when I came to the Senate that I'd do what I felt was right and I'm not going to start flipping now," Clark said. "I'd rather not be here than to become a nobody."

Staunch allegiance to principle is easy enough for a Ted Kennedy, who can be as liberal as he wants without risking his Senate seat, but it is a genuine gamble in a state where no Democrat has ever been re-elected to the Senate.

So far, the gamble seems to be paying off. The respected Iowa Poll of the Des Moines Register shows Clark clinging to an 11-point lead over his conservative GOP challenger, former U.S. Gov. Robert Ray.

The margin has remained essentially unchanged since July.

Japan is as conservative as Clark is liberal — maybe more so, since he is a darling of the "New Right" who focuses as much on inflammatory social issues like abortion as he does on traditional economic and foreign policy matters.

And it is those social issues — especially the national abortion controversy — that threaten Clark's re-election at this juncture. About 30 percent of Iowa voters are Roman Catholic, and the church is playing an active role in the campaign. Clark's opposition to tuition tax credits for private and parochial pupils has further antagonized many Roman Catholics, who would normally vote Democratic.

When Clark and Kennedy, who was in Iowa this month to campaign for his Senate colleague, appeared at an airport rally in Dubuque, a Roman Catholic stronghold, they were all but drowned out by strident jeers from anti-abortion activists.

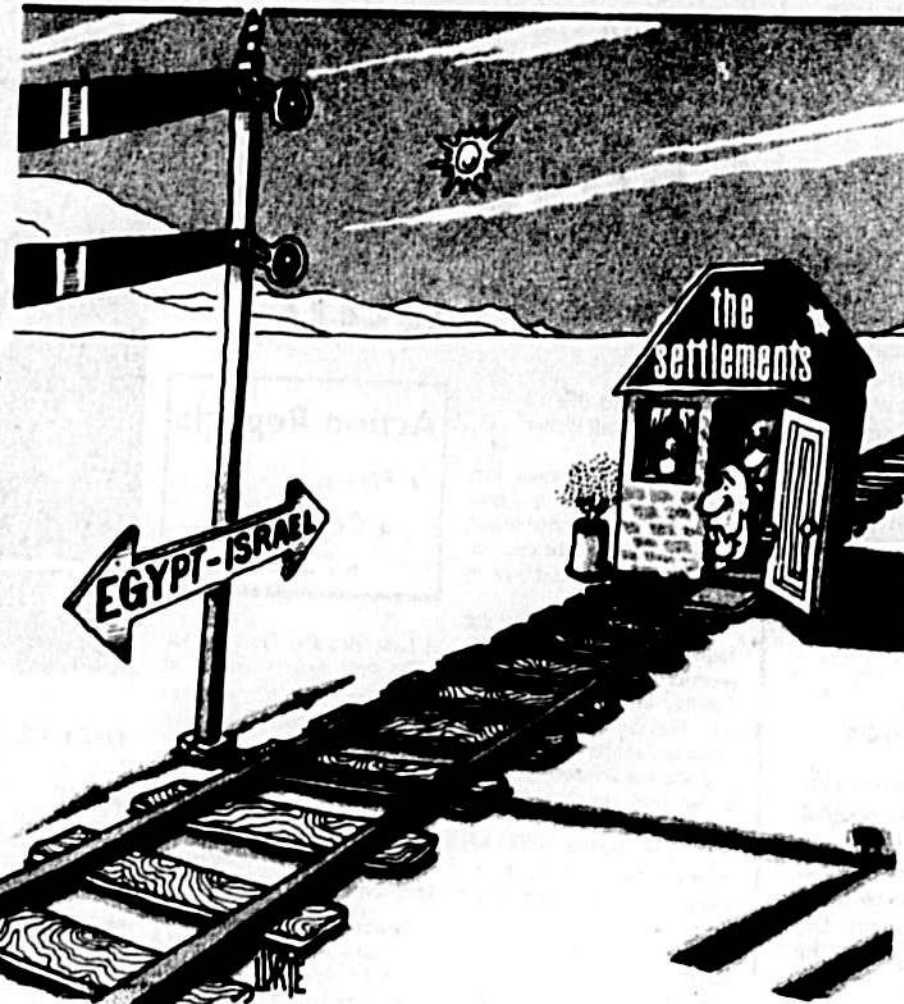

Jeppon, on the other hand, has problems within his own party. GOP regulars aligned with moderate Gov. Robert Ray, Iowa's most popular politician of either party, were dismayed when the "New Right" conservative upset one of their own in the primary. The wounds have not healed.

Between September and October, Clark lost 12 points among likely Democratic voters and 10 among likely independent voters, although he is still the choice of a majority of both groups.

During the same period, Jeppon dropped 13 points among likely Republican voters.

With Clark now holding a 56-to-38 percent lead among all voters, the key to the election probably rests with the undecideds — some of whom are Roman Catholic Democrats, others of whom are disenchanted Republican moderates.

Although Clark has made a national reputation for his leadership in government reform and his expertise in foreign affairs, (he chairs the Africa subcommittee of the Foreign Relations Committee), he has never ignored his fence back home.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Wages, Prices Of Sin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House is reported eager to keep President Carter's anti-inflation program in the public eye by means people will appreciate more than a poke with a sharp stick.

If Carter's advisers are open to suggestion, I recommend incorporating the basic elements of the program into an adult board game.

Board games are always popular gifts, and with the Christmas shopping season about to begin, if it hasn't already started, an anti-inflation game should be a dynamic attention-getter.

First, they will need a catchy name. I thought of calling it "WIN," the acronym for "Win Inflation Now," but I understand that has been used before.

So I propose naming it "SIN," short for "Sack Inflation Now." That name has three things going for it.

1. Millions of people are certain to try the game on the strength of the name alone.

2. The word "sack" is especially meaningful to pro football fans who would envision doing to quarterback who blitzing linemen do to quarterback. Thus the name would smack of violence, which is so much a part of American life.

3. Since Carter's anti-inflation program is largely voluntary, any breach of its guidelines would be more of a sin than a crime. Very well. On with the game.

At the outset, each player decides whether he or she wants to be "Labor" or "Business."

If the former, the player chooses a small plastic marker made in the shape of a construction worker's hat or a white or blue collar. "Business" tokens are tiny replicas of swivel chairs, cash registers and tax loopholes.

Players place their markers on the space labeled "GO," then toss dice to determine the order in which they proceed.

The player now takes turn drawing cards from either the "Labor" or "Business" deck, which determines their progress around the board.

Following are some typical "Business" cards: —U.S. Chamber of Commerce predicts many businessmen "will rebel" against the 5 percent price hike limit. Advance 12 spaces.

—National Association of Manufacturers adopts a conciliatory posture, saying "the time has come to join (Carter) in attacking the problem." Advance 3 spaces.

—GOP Chairman Bill Brock calls the plan "blatantly political." Remain in place.

—AFL-CIO reserves comment on 7 percent wage increase ceiling. Advance 3 spaces.

—Traders and United Auto Workers give plan qualified support. Go back two spaces.

—Labor Secretary Marshall calls program "best thing we could do consider the alternative." Lose next turn.

The first player to pass "GO" ahead of the Cost of Living sign.

Our Thrifty States

By DON GRAFF

What's the difference between state and federal government?

For one thing, money.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, state governments in fiscal 1977 piled up a $13.3 billion surplus.

The federal deficit, meanwhile, was about $64 billion.

The facts and figures offer an interesting look at how such widespread All-America problems as inflation can be handled by states, at least.

The U.S. government statistics show total expenditures by the state governments reached $191.2 billion, an annual increase of 3.1 percent.

Education was the No. 1 state-level expense, according to the data. That was followed by welfare, highways and hospitals.

To break it down: the states spent $64 billion for education, a hike of 7.4 percent. (And higher education accounted for more than one-third of that.)

Yearly welfare costs for the states hit a total of $23.8 billion, rising $1.3 billion. A 14.3 percent increase. State transfers to local governments for welfare were $8.8 billion.

At the same time, the states trimmed highway expenditures 3.3 percent to a total of $17.3 billion, reflecting a decrease in federal funding.

Hospital funding by the states amounted to $6.7 billion, a hike 11.8 percent.

Finally, a refreshing note was the popularity of the state lottery.

The seven states rolled up nearly $1.2 billion in gross revenues during fiscal 1977 from lotteries. The leader, Michigan, grossed $250 million with $118.2 million left for other spending.

Others with hefty lottery surpluses (after expenses): New Jersey, $77.9 million; Maryland, $64 million; Massachusetts, $66.8 million; and Illinois, $62.3 million.

Not all kinds of gambles work for the best of course, and something that happened in the state of Rhode Island provides another good example.

Three years ago, the Newport Historical Society made an interesting discovery about one of the paintings it owned.

A work by the daughter of Gilbert Stuart—the 18th century artist best known for his portraits of George Washington—was found for another painting underneath it.

Art experts thought, perhaps, the bottom painting was by Jane Stuart's famous father. So, the society agreed to have the top layer of paint removed.

Now it turns out the bottom painting is definitely not a Gilbert Stuart. In fact, it's not even as nice as the Jane Stuart.

Society director Wilbur T. Homes is trying to be philosophical.

He says: "It was a gamble that was impossible not to take."

POLITICS IN BRIEF

9 File In Sanford Races For City Commission Posts

Filing for Sanford City Commission closed this week with nine candidates in the race for two seats.

Seven candidates are running for the District Three seat currently being held by A. A. McClanahan, 105 South Park. His six challengers are: Cliff Miller, 101 Larkwood Drive; Jean Manning McLain, 2580 Ridgewood Ave.; David Farr, 106 Larkwood Drive; Thomas Monfort, 818 Palmetto Ave.; Edward Vancay, 2100 Cordova Drive; and Dennis L. Stewart, 108 Mayross Drive.

Incumbent John Morris, 201 Dogwood Ave., is running for re-election to his District Two seat against challenger James C. Coddington, 812 Valencia Court North.

City commission candidates are elected to four-year terms at a salary of $250 per month. Along with the salary goes an expense allowance of $150. Successful candidates in the Dec. 5 election will take office Jan. 2, 1979.

SISTER Pushing Drive For New Yule Decorations

SISTER (Sanford's Interested Sarah's To Encourage Rejuvenation) has become the first local civic organization to donate funds to repair or purchase new Christmas decorations used in decorating downtown Sanford.

Corinne Campbell, representing SISTER, presented a check for $100 to Nora Gordon, president of the Sanford Business Association (SBA). The SBA purchased the lights that adorn the city during the yule tide 10 years ago at a cost of $10,000.

Burger Chef, 2008 South French Ave., was the first business to donate to the purchase of new lights with a $100 check presented to SBA, according to Mrs. Gordon.

The SBA was notified earlier by City Manager Warren E. Knowles that the lights are in poor condition and the decorations are faded. Though the SBA owns the decorations, they are stored in the city's maintenance building on Sixth Street.

"The problem is old age," said Knowles. "They are just suffering from old age."

SISTER has also decided to raise money for the purchase of new decorations as their group project for 1979.

SISTER's goal is in keeping with Mrs. Gordon's hope to replace the present decorations in time for next Christmas.

"What would a Christmas Parade be like in an undecorated city?" asked Mrs. Gordon. "It certainly is a tradition and we would like to have it for our town, because this is for our whole town. Without Christmas decorations downtown would be like a home without a Christmas tree."

"We're still way short of what we will need," said Mrs. Gordon, "but I think we can raise enough. We will probably take us a year." — MAX ERKLETTIAN

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Pro-casino forces are covering Florida with "blanket of deception" in advertisements depicting gambling entrepreneurs as a source of revenue for schools and law enforcement, says Gov. Reubin Askew.

Casinos will pump new blood into a dying Miami Beach and attract the high living jetsetters whose spending will flood Florida with a great wave of cash, counters L.A. "Doc" Baker, vice president of the Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Both versions of the story have been told many times before in the Constitution Revision Commission. Amendment 9 is on the ballot because of a successful drive by the pro-gambling group, Let's Help Florida.

The last place position has Askew somewhat troubled. Tired after weeks of almost non-stop campaigning, the governor says he wants every voter to make sure he considers Amendment 9 before leaving the booth. In his words, "the future of Florida is at stake."

Askew has been fighting casinos since July 4 and continues to chide away at the pro-casino promise of a quick fix for Florida.

"If casinos win, the people lose," says Askew, pointing out that once casinos are firmly established in Miami Beach it will be impossible to stop them from spreading to Tampa, Jacksonville and Pensacola.

Once this happens, the governor says, the state's family tourist industry will go down the tubes and so will Florida's image. As for the claims of new jobs, and increased money for law enforcement and schools, Askew says it's simply not true. Short term boosts will be cut by increased law enforcement costs and the loss of payrolls and revenues from industries that don't want to settle in a casino state.

"If gambling passes, we'll wind up giving profits to a very few people at the expense of many," the governor says.

That's just not so, says Baker, who looks at casinos as a nice complement to other projects planned to rejuvenate Miami Beach and the south Florida tourist economy.

"(Gambling) is the most immediate and quickest way to put Miami Beach in the forefront," he says. "We feel it will mean additional travel to Florida."

Baker says gambling casinos will mean immediate employment for thousands of hotel workers and suppliers of goods and services, and will provide travelers with no more attraction — not stop them from coming. Also new tourist markets will be tapped, he says.

Baker plays down the argument that crime will increase and gambling will spread to other parts of the state once it is legal on Miami Beach. He points out that the people would have to wait casinos before they could set up in other parts of the state.

"There's no way you can get a constitutional change unless the people of Florida want it," he says, and notes further that he trusts the police and the Legislature to be tough on casinos to make sure they are run properly and in no way tarnish Florida's image.

"We've got to get things moving, gambling would start the ball rolling in the right direction," says Baker.

Even Split

GAINESVILLE (UPI)— Floridians are almost evenly divided over the casino gambling issue, a University of Florida survey indicated Wednesday. The survey by the Community Development Center of the UF Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences showed 61.7 of the nearly 6,000 participants favor casino gambling while 46.1 percent oppose it. Undecided was 9.2 percent.

NOW: Only A Couple Of Wins And We'll Have Come Long Way, Baby

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida NOW officials say a Senate race in next week's

Nov. 6 election will provide the impetus for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The group Wednesday said it has targeted four Senate races. It also said overwhelming approval of the constitutional amendment prohibiting sex discrimination would turn around a couple of other 'no' ERA votes.

"We're hopeful, definitely," Florida NOW lobbyist Tina Slaney said of the overall situation.

Ms. Slaney figures ERA supporters hold a 47 edge over opponents, based on races already decided or where one candidate is considered token opposition. She considers four seats still up for grabs.

The "open" races are District 14, where supporter George Stuart Jr., D-Orlando, faces Johnny Bremer, R-Winter Park, District 18, Beverly Roberts, D-Clearwater, trying to unseat Sen. John Ware, R-S. Petersburg, District 21, Rep. Pat Frank, D-Tampa, facing David Ray, R-Plant City, and District 30, Marcia Beach, D-Coral Springs, facing Rep. Van Poole, R-Port Jacksonville.

The ERA has died in the Senate repeatedly in the past, including 21-19 last year. ERA supporters are concentrating on Senate races, believing they will continue to hold a wide majority of support in the House.

Most polls show Revision 2 — asking the word "sex" to an existing provision outlawing discrimination on the basis of sex — will be ratified overwhelmingly. If it is, Ms. Slaney said, Florida NOW will have an effective new lobbying tool.

"We'll wind up with more 'yes' votes than just the majority because some senators have opposed the amendment because they didn't think their constituents approved of it. We intend to do a district by district analysis."

Inflation: Using Purchase Of A House As Hedge

Sanford Realtor Herbert Stenstrom suggests a simple way even a small investor can create a hedge against inflation by the purchase of a small house in the $25,000 to $30,000 price range, allowing it to appreciate in value and then selling it for a handsome profit.

"The average appreciation rate on homes in this area is now a minimum of 12.5 percent per year," said Stenstrom.

"Someone could buy a home 25 years old for $17,000 and keep it for a couple of years and chances are by that time, all things being as they are now, the house should increase in value by $4,000 and could be sold for $21,000."

The seller can then take the dollars earned during the inflationary period and reinvest in a $25,000 home in another area taking advantage of the tax benefits accrued.

"Let's say someone is thinking about trying to save some money without going the standard way of savings account or bonds and securities," said Stenstrom. "The nice thing about real estate is the tendency to increase even when the stock market goes down and gold and silver fluctuate."

"Someone who would like to save by making a small investment could select a home within the average price range. He would not have to make major improvements, by doing the necessary required maintenance.

"He would not even have to move if he had a 90 percent occupancy rate at present and we don't have a single-family residence to rent. He would have no trouble leasing or renting, if he did not want to live there."

"In the normal course of appreciation, two-bedroom homes in one area of Sanford, which sold in 1968 for $7,500, sold for $15,000 today. In some sections of town where 1 1/2 homes sold for $13,000, they are now bringing as much as $20,000," said Stenstrom.

"It's good business to look to Florida real estate; there's not a better investment in the world," he said, adding that he expects a building boom to begin in the Sanford area in the next six months.

"We are directly influenced here by the greater Orlando area economy and with the new international airport, Disney expansion, Epcot, and new industries coming in, there will be "washovers" into this area."

"It is only a matter of time when people start saying, 'I should have made an investment in central Florida real estate.'"

"Investing in properly selected real estate furnishes a necessary protection against our current inflation, said

Stenstrom. "Inflation reduces the purchasing power of the dollars we have, whether those dollars are in stocks, bonds, savings accounts, even in cash. It further shrinks the cash value of our life insurance policies."

"On the other hand, real estate has the capability to increase in value with the increase in costs. This is evidenced by the increase of our insurance protection or almost all improved property such as new homes, commercial buildings, etc., and further strengthened by today's construction costs which are soaring higher month to month," said Stenstrom.

Real estate as a hedge against inflation? Sure, Realtor Herbert Stenstrom tells Jane Conover in the last in Evening Herald series on tips to fight inflation was declared by President Carter. Page 2A

The Race For The School Board, District 3

Carlson: Athletics, Vocation Classes Top Concerns

If John Carlson achieves his goal of winning District 3 school board seat he has several ideas he would like to translate into reality.

His concerns cover a broad area - from athletics and libraries to vocational programs in the schools.

"I would like to see an expanded vocational program," he said. "I realize there is construction currently underway at Lake Brantley and Lake Howell to broaden those vocational programs, but I believe more needs to be done - especially to improve the status of the students who graduate from vocational programs."

Carlson, 55, a former U.S. Navy commander, also would like to see some changes in school library programs. The biggest improvement he advocates is "more cooperation between the county library system and the school library."

In the area of athletics, Carlson would push for a better inter-scholastic program among the schools and "more of an emphasis on the sports program in the middle schools."

Carlson also noted he would like to see more literature available in the school for the graduating student to know what type of grants and scholarships are available from universities and colleges.

Carlson, the father of six and a resident of Seminole County for six years, also believes his past experience makes him qualified for the board.

Carlson served as a comptroller for Norfolk Naval Air Station and at Roosevelt Naval Air Base in Puerto Rico.

While in Puerto Rico he also served one year as an appointed school board member.

Carlson was not endorsed by the Seminole Educators Political Action Committee (SEPAC), the political arm of the Seminole Education Association (SEA), but he holds no grudges.

"I think SEA is a good organization, but I think they should act more like a professional organization instead of a shop union," he said.

"I think there is nothing wrong with teachers having a collective voice, but I don't think there should be a lot of hollering and rabble rousing."

Williams: Those Leaky Roofs Are His Top Concern

School board candidate Roland Williams is concerned about the leaky roofs in county schools.

Williams believes an outside consultant should be hired to have a watch on the repairs.

He said the person hired should be independent not only from the school board but from the current architect who is fixing the roofs.

Williams, who was appointed to his District 3 seat in June when Davis Sims resigned, also believes an independent consultant should be hired to oversee any new building construction in the county.

"I think it would be beneficial to us to avoid any future problems to have an outside consultant who would inspect the first plans and make inspections during the building," said Williams who currently works as a structural engineer for Martin Marietta in Orlando, and taught for one year at Oviedo High School.

One of the future problems Williams is also concerned about is county growth.

"I think a detailed analysis of the growth system for the entire county is needed; I think we need to get with county planners to see where the population is going and where we need to build new schools," said Williams, father of two.

He noted with this analysis "it can help us in establishing guidelines to how we should pursue our building and in what locations."

Williams is the only one of the incumbents who has been endorsed by the Seminole Educators Political Action Committee (SEPAC), the political arm of the Seminole Education Association.

Williams downplays the endorsement.

"I'm an interested parent and citizen of the county and my backing is from anyone who wants to give me support," he says. "I receive a broad spectrum of support and I really don't know who has been walking the precincts for me," he said.

His support, he says, also includes various churches, business people and professional educators.

He'll Burn Home, Not Pay Taxes

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Larry Ford is not at all pleased by the doubling of the assessment on a small, frame house that he rents out on the outskirts of town.

So he's going to burn it down Saturday at 9 a.m.

Ford, who owns several rental properties, says the Okaloosa County assessment jumped from $5,700 to $10,300 in a single year. That's more than the house is worth and more than he would get for renting it.

Orange Bowl: Penn State Vs. Oklahoma?

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer
The people who organize the annual Orange Bowl college football game will have a definite rooting interest over the next three weekends.

games, still has Maryland and Pittsburgh remaining on its schedule (along with potentially dangerous North Carolina State). Oklahoma, also sporting an 8-0 record, must get by Colorado, Nebraska and Oklahoma State to win the Big Eight title.

The countdown begins Saturday with Penn State hosting Maryland and Oklahoma visiting Colorado.

Maryland, ranked fifth with an 8-0 record, has lost 15 straight games to Penn State and there is no reason to believe the Nittany Lions won't make it 16 straight. Penn State has never won a national championship and the Lions are too close to that goal to let it slip away.

The Colorado Buffaloes also are coming off an impressive upset victory over Missouri last week and will be primed for the Sooners. But, there isn't a more devastating offensive unit in the country than Oklahoma and Colorado doesn't appear to have a good enough defense to stop the Sooners.

Here's how we see the games around the country this week:
The East
Penn State 26 Maryland 16 - Lions' defense forces mistakes.

Pittsburgh 30 Syracuse 12 - Panthers won't have to throw 52 times against Orangemen.
Army 23 Air Force 9 - Cadets new aerial weapon, 'Jerry' Bennett, shoots down Falcons.

Virginia 25 West Virginia 20 - Just one of those years for Mountaineers.
The South
Alabama 25 Mississippi St. 7 - Crimson Tide waiting in the wings for Oklahoma and Penn State to lose.

North Carolina 24 South Carolina 17 - Ted Brown runs over Gamecocks.
Duke 21 Tennessee 14 - Blue Devils should move the ball against Vols.

Clemson 20 Wake Forest 0 - Tigers are bowl conscious.
Nebraska 25 Kansas 15 - Cornhuskers might be looking ahead a bit to Oklahoma.

Missouri 27 Oklahoma St. 8 - Tigers recover from last week's shocking loss.
Iowa St. 21 Kansas St. 9 - Cyclones have been disappointing but Wildcats are several degrees below in talent.

UCLA 30 Oregon 7 - Bruins should be home free until they meet Trojans.
California 22 Arizona St. 11 - Fans find out about this life in the Pac 10! as glamorous as life in the Western Athletic Conference.

Washington St. Arizona 13 - Huskies have finally found an offense to go along with their defense.
Arkansas 33 Rice 8 - After two straight losses, Razorbacks need a breather.

Baylor 27 Texas Tech 16 - Walter Abernecoff has given the Bears a new dimension.
The Far West
Southern California 27 Stanford 19 - Trojans will pressure Steve Dila.

McLendon, Green Head Disney Team

LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) - Mac McLendon had earned more than $40,000 in a single year before he and Hubert Green won the 1974 Walt Disney World National Team Classic, and he has not collected less than $70,000 annually since then.

He and Green return to Disney's Palm and Magnolia courses today hoping to repeat their victory in this year's $200,000 version of the PGA tour, which ends Sunday.

McLendon took the title at Sunday's Pensacola Open - the last event on the PGA tour in which money won is officially counted - after a sudden death playoff. He now stands 2nd on the 1978 money list with $107,299.

Green has won $267,406, but says, "I've never had a year like this where I was caught from behind so many times."

He made everything that week. I figured we'd just have a good time. I remember he was as low as a man could get coming here. Why, he could have gone under doors instead of through them."

Andy Bean and Lon Hinkle, Andy North and Steve Melnyk, and defending champions Grier Jones and Gibby Gilbert are among the 112 teams competing for this year's prize money.

Time For Pickin'

This is the week high school football teams step fully. Seminole County teams appear to be taking it easier than a point man through a mine field.

It's that dangerous. Biggest teaser doesn't involve winning teams. It's Oviedo at Lake Howell in a game which has developed into the most intense rivalry between county schools.

For operators, the schools share the same boundaries, and many South Seminole neighborhoods have divided loyalties.

Then too, Howell coach Curtis Keen and Oviedo's Joe Montgomery have their own personal war. As personal friends, much is at stake for them.

In case fans missed it, Marvin McClendon hasn't been as marvelous the last couple of weeks. He has been kept under wraps with a troublesome hip pointer.

Oviedo fans can rejoice that he is back to near-full strength and will play Friday night. Howell will have the airways, Oviedo the ground. One by land, two by air.

That's why I say: Oviedo 21, Lake Howell 14 - For the flow of the game, defense sets the tone, but can't maintain a torrid pace in this one.

Seminole 29, Lakeview 7 - Seminole hits the road for a toughie against a team that prefers the pass play and is fairly adept at that gambit.

Lyman 14, Apopka 7 - Here's a case of sheer pride prevailing against a class neighbor.

Lake Brantley 14, Colonial 13 - This one could go overtime, and the Patriots show their class against the second best team in the Metro.

Glorgi Enters Innocent Plea
CHOWEN POINT, Ind. (UPI) - An unemployed steelworker accused of killing California Angela outsider Lyman Bostock pleaded innocent by reason of insanity Wednesday.

Superior Court Judge Andrew Glorgi set March 13 for the trial of Leonard Smith, 31, of Gary, who's estranged wife was sitting next to Bostock in a car when the player was killed by a shotgun blast.

Woody's Fans Vote On His Retirement

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) - Viewers on a two-way television setup have reversed their opinion to a TV survey conducted last week on whether Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes should retire.

The original survey, conducted on QUBE, Warner Communication Co.'s unique (two-way) setup which allows viewers to participate in programs from their homes, revealed that 56 percent of those taking part felt Hayes should quit. It took place during a taping of the Phil Donahue Show.

Tuesday night, a follow-up survey was taken, and 58 percent of the he polled said he should remain as coach of the Buckeyes.

QUBE said when Donahue asked the question, 551 homes were tuned in and Tuesday night's survey drew 1,102 homes.

The original survey touched off an incident at Hayes' weekly Monday news luncheon with WCMB-TV sports reporter Mary Reid, who asked Hayes his opinion of the poll.

"You know something," Hayes replied to Reid's question Monday, "most of those 56 percent probably weren't even living when I started winning here. I'm not interested in what they think. It's more what I want to do."

"People are fickle," added Hayes. "There has been nobody around in this league (Big Ten) or any other league who has won as much as I have. If you're one of those 56 percent, I don't care much about you either. And, if you don't like it, you can go straight to hell."

Split end Tony Stephens and defensive tackle Doyler Hinton and Robin Fisher, all of whom missed the Georgia Tech game, are now healthy and ready for Auburn. Most of the injuries last Saturday were minor bumps and bruises.

"Auburn has a very talented running back in Joe Cribbs," Dickey said. "We haven't had much success stopping talented running backs."

But the strength of Auburn's offensive linemen is Dickey's biggest concern.

"They are extremely big and strong up front," he said. "We don't have anybody who looks like those guys. The Atlanta Falcons may not have anybody who looks like those Auburn linemen."

The Nets put matters out of hand right from the start. They broke to a 41-28 lead after the first quarter, extended it to 72-53 at the half and had the Bucks and Phoenix in a huddle near the Jersey shore.

They had solid performances from Wilson Washington with 18 points, including nine straight field goals, and eight rebounds, and John Williamson with 19 points. Bob Elliott had 12 rebounds and King 12.

The Nets also reached a minor landmark of sorts with their 131st total - a most curious collection of scores in the regular NBA game.

The Bucks were paced by Junior Bridgeman with 20 points and Brian Winters with 19.

Gators View Auburn As Dangerous District Friday

GAINESVILLE (UPI) - Florida, plodding through an off year, plays host to Auburn, a team that has shown flashes of brilliance despite nagging injuries, in a Southeastern Conference game at Florida Field Saturday.

Kickoff is set for 2 p.m. Doug Dickey, Florida's coach for the past nine years, even though he still has three years to go on his current contract.

Last week's 17-13 defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech was especially excruciating for the Gator alumni. Losses to Auburn and to Georgia Nov. 11 could seal Dickey's fate.

But when rumors of his ouster circulated in the past, the Gators somehow managed to rally and turn their season around. Florida was 2-4 in 1973 and 3-1 in 1974.

"Florida football has always been an up-and-down thing and obviously it's turned down and up as far as a winning performance is concerned right now," Dickey said. "But we have the structure here to come back."

Bucs Sign Free Agents

TAMPA, (UPI) - The Tampa Bay Buccaneers signed a pair of free agents Wednesday for use on the club's special kicking teams and said both will be used Sunday against the Los Angeles Rams.

Signed were wide receiver Karl Farmer, who was let go in the final cut of the preseason by the Atlanta Falcons, and punting back Charlie White, released in the final cut by the New York Jets.

Stargell N.L. Comeback Player Of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) - Willie Stargell of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who fought off claims that he was "washed up" by having his best season in four years, today was named the National League's Comeback Player of the Year by the United Press International.

In a balloting of 28 UPI baseball correspondents from across the nation, the 37-year-old first baseman received 56 votes to win the award handsily.

Pitcher Vida Blue of the San Francisco Giants received two votes and pitcher Gaylord Perry of the San Diego Padres and pitcher Jim Bouton of the Atlanta Braves got one vote apiece.

Stargell had an amazing turnaround this season after struggling through the 1977 campaign, in which he was on the disabled list twice and appeared in a career low 43 games. The Pirates slugged him .285 with 36 homers and 97 RBI in this year in helping Pittsburgh to a second place finish in the NL East.

Last year Stargell, bolstered by bencheside Gary Gagne and a pitched nerve in his left elbow, got to bat only 106 times and managed just 20 RBI and 13 homers.

"I think the most thrilling thing about winning this award is knowing that anytime that you're hurt (as he was in '77), you have to really fight for your credibility again," said Stargell, who signed a multi-year contract with the Pirates Wednesday.

"I just knew I had the capability to have a good year. I have the desire to compete and to be out there. I enjoyed playing this season and did so with enthusiasm."

"I have to give credit to my teammates, and to my manager, Chuck Tanner, who was very inspirational all year. I thought sure he'd be the manager of the year."

Tanner finished second in the manager of the year voting to Joe Altobelli of San Francisco. The ability to bounce back from adversity is characteristic of Stargell. During his 17-year career he has had his share of personal traumas, the foremost of which was a serious illness suffered by his wife, Dolores, two years ago.

Stargell's wife suffered a blood clot on the brain in the early part of 1976 but made a complete recovery by the end of the year.

Blue bounced back from a 14-15 campaign with Oakland last year to post a 30-18 record for the Giants and finish runner-up to Tom Seaver in a 25-4 record with Texas to post a 25-4 record with San Diego and win the NL's Cy Young Award.

In many ways the comeback of Boston was the most remarkable of all. He retired from baseball 18 years ago and had enjoyed a successful career as an author and television sportscaster. He began the long road back in the low minors two years ago at the age of 37. He reached the Triple-A level with Richmond early this year and got a chance to pitch for the Braves near the end of the season.

They had solid performances from Wilson Washington with 18 points, including nine straight field goals, and eight rebounds, and John Williamson with 19 points. Bob Elliott had 12 rebounds and King 12.

The Nets also reached a minor landmark of sorts with their 131st total - a most curious collection of scores in the regular NBA game.

The Bucks were paced by Junior Bridgeman with 20 points and Brian Winters with 19.

"The ability to express an idea is well known as important as having that idea..." Bernard Baruch.
The Greater Seminole Toastmistress Club and the Dew Sweepers Toastmaster Club held a joint meeting recently to commemorate years of educational opportunities for men and women through their nonprofit international organizations.
The joint meeting, held at the Altamonte Springs Civic Center, commemorated the 54th year of Toastmasters International, an organization that has 100,000 members in 3,500 clubs.
October is designated as Founders Month for the International Toastmasters Club. The organization, celebrating its 40th year, is 25,000 members strong, with 1,300 clubs in 24 countries in the world.
Cary Cowan, Lt. Governor of the Eastern Division of Toastmasters, was toastmaster of the meeting which was attended by members of both clubs and guests.
Speakers were Nancy Psyche, Mary Cowan, Gretchen Reese, and Fred Ebel.

'Society' Animals New Shelter Is End Of Dream

BY ELDA NICHOLS Herald Correspondent
"We've finally got a place to put our animals!" said vivacious Ruth Henry, executive director of the Humane Society of Seminole County.
On Oct. 1, realizing a dream, the Society moved into the building that formerly housed the Sanford Dog Pound. It is located on East 25th Street, Sanford, just one mile past the flashing light where 25th Street turns into a two-lane road. Meetings for members and interested people are held on the third Monday of each month, at 8 p.m.
The first thing you notice at the facility is the clean, fresh air atmosphere. Most of the animals housed here are abused or injured.
"We take animals that have been hit on the road, with no tags or identification. We pay for their veterinary care and nurse them back to health," said Ruth.
One such animal is Becky, a sweet, cuddly white poodle, who had a hair-line fracture of the pelvis after being hit by a car. "She is clean now, but when we first bathed her, she was so covered by fleas that her hair turned red. We are having her groomed this week," said Ruth, holding the little dog close.
An organization called VECTOR (Veteranarian Emergency Clinic Transportation Operation Rescue), is maintained by the Humane Society of Seminole County, consisting of volunteers who rush the injured or abused animals to a veterinarian for treatment.
Ruth was president of the Humane Society until she resigned to become executive director of the new shelter. She personally owns horses, four dogs and seven cats. Small and energetic, her love for all animals is apparent as she moves among them.
Just a fluffy kitten rescued from the jaws of a German Shepherd, playfully reached out from its cage as she passed by. Smiling, she said, "He's really quite a clown. That's why we named him Louie."
Another beautiful, spayed tiger cat waits patiently for a new home, as her elderly owners could no longer care for her. "We keep animals until we find them a good home. The only ones put to sleep are those who are vicious or with a medical reason," she explained.
The new shelter was acquired when the City of Sanford agreed to let the County take over their animal control. "The City had been leasing this building from the Airport Authority, so when they vacated, we took over," said Ruth. The organization is funded strictly by donations. "We have no financial backing of any kind," said Ruth.
Plants and shrubs have been donated and are being used in landscaping the grounds by volunteers. Cards are also being printed that may be carried in the wallet, giving information as to what to do with any pets you may have in case you are in an accident. These cards may be picked up at the shelter, free of charge.
The society provides free educational programs and literature for all age groups. They also recognize people who do a kind deed for an animal and would like to be notified of anyone who knows of such an act.
Optimistic about the future, Ruth said, "We are open for business from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Other animals at the shelter include a beautiful white Spitz, some mixed breeds with terrific personalities, a Cocker Spaniel, adorable bottle-raised, half-Airdale puppies, and a 10-month-old female poodle, with one blind eye who needs special tender, loving care.
Ruth is assisted at the Shelter by Cathy Olson, a CETA employee. President of the organization is John Whittington.
Optimistic about the future, Ruth said, "We are open for business from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday. We have volunteers who keep the place open. We want everyone to come out and visit us. Our new phone number is 322-8885."
One way of helping the organization is by becoming a member, or giving a membership as a gift for Christmas. A gift card, one year membership, monthly newsletter and bumper sticker will be sent with your name as donor, all for only $5.00. Help keep this organization in business. They are helping the ones who can't speak for themselves.

Area Scientist Leads Team To Jungle

The first item Dr. Allyn Stearman packed for a trip was a mosquito net. She'll need it as the leader of an international team of scientists who are spending six weeks in the jungles of eastern Bolivia, studying the long-range effects of relocating thousands of native families from the congested highlands of that country.
The petite anthropologist, who has taught at Florida Technological University for two years, is considered an authority on life in Bolivia. As a PEACE Corps volunteer she lived and farmed in that country for four years in the mid-40s. "I guess the grapevine led them to me," she grinned. "They" is the State Department's Agency for International Development, which is backing the study in conjunction with Agriculture's Office of International Cooperation and Development.
Her first inkling of the Bolivian study was in a phone call "out of the blue" from Washington.
The mission of the team led by Stearman will be to report the probable impact—socially, economically and politically—of homesteading a 500-square-kilometer area some 800 miles east of LaPaz that is accessible only by 4-wheel drive vehicles.
When she speaks of her experience, Dr. Stearman can cite chapter and verse on survival in an environment that takes more than it gives. For a year of her earlier stay (she returned in 1975 to complete research for her doctorate) she farmed and learned first-hand the rigors that face natives. "You might say I have an intimate understanding of the problems of the small farmer," she said.
Her knowledge is compounded in her writings, which probably add up to a sizeable percentage of the total observations on the area by anthropologists." Stearman continued. That background was the key when Washington called the Center for Latin American Studies at the University of Florida, asking for an anthropologist "who knows eastern Bolivia." The phone call to FTU followed.

As she explains it, the situation facing the visiting scientists hinges to a great extent on the traditions of the very people who will be asked to become settlers. Most of them, of either Quechua or Aymara descent, are faced with the prospect of tilling a patch of ground in the high, arid, rocky country of the west.
"Because of the inheritance rules, there are families who have as little as one furrow to farm," said Dr. Stearman. "But there is still a reluctance to move to the fertile lands to the east."
If enough homesteaders do establish themselves in the "hacienda" name given the scattered communities to be studied—the action will relieve population pressures in the highlands and hopefully serve to bolster an ailing economy that receives a healthy share of support from the U. S., she noted.
While she's looking forward to the challenge—an anthropologist always has a valid passport and an up-to-date shot card!—she's traveling without two companions from the 1975 trip: Garrett, 7, and Erin, 4, will stay at home with their father, Michael, in Mt. Plymouth. The Stearmans met and married in Bolivia during their PEACE Corps days. He's now assistant planner for Lake County.
If there's one thing she regrets, it's missing fall in Florida, "just when we're starting to cool off," she mused.
The Bolivian summer began this month.

Plumber Gets Looked Over Like A Piece Of Raw Meat

DEAR ABBY: Right out of high school I started working for my father. He's a plumber and owns his own company. I decided that because my brother and I would probably inherit our father's business one day, I should go to school and learn all I could about the business I would be running. I worked days for my father, and I just got my diploma. Now I'm familiar with blueprints and estimating and everything a competent plumber should know.
I happen to be a girl, and that's the problem. People seem to think that girls who perform this kind of work have to be fat and ugly. I'm far from ugly. (I placed sixth in the Miss Minnesota beauty contest.) Men on my job try to pick me up. When I walk into a warehouse, I get whistled at and looked over like a piece of raw meat. But worst of all, people keep asking me why I am doing a man's job. This is not a man's job. It belongs to anybody who can do it right. I take pride in my work, and just once I wish people would notice my work instead of my behind! PLUMBING AWAY IN MINNEAPOLIS.
One cartoon showed a guy with a pile of leaves in his yard with no trees of his own. FIRST TIME WRITER: DEAR FIRST TIME: You can't leave leaves without leaving their leaves. You can't have it both ways; so get out the rake, and count your blessings.
DEAR ABBY: Several years ago you gave me a recipe for Southern pecan pie. Every year I bake it for my family around Thanksgiving and Christmas and it's always the hit of the dinner.
Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple day-afternoon ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 122 Lashby Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.
DEAR ABBY: Tell SYLVIA IN GREENWICH, who's looking for a chastity belt, not to be stupid.

DEAR ABBY: I hope your life is worth more than one cup of white corn syrup, one cup of dark brown sugar, one-third cup of melted butter, one heaping cup of shelled pecans, three whole eggs, a dash of vanilla and a pinch of salt.
Mix above ingredients well, pour into an ungreased 9-inch pie-plate. Bake in 350-degree oven for 45 to 60 minutes. Cool and top it with whipped cream or ice cream. But served plain, nothing tops this! (P.S. I can't understand why anyone would refuse to share a recipe. Sharing enhances the enjoyment.)
Are your pants too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby, Box 6700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gas: A Frequent And Common Problem

DEAR DR. LAMB - We would like to have your comments on the problem of gas. My husband has cut out eating all milk products and almost all fruit and juices. Does activity or inactivity contribute to the problem? We need an answer soon.

DEAR READER - Gas is a common and frequent problem. A high percentage of people who go to see a stomach specialist do so because of symptoms related to gas. About 10 percent of the general population has symptoms from gas retention.

There are two main sources of gas. A major portion of the gas often comes from swallowing air. The problem is people don't realize they're swallowing it, and if you don't know you're doing it, it's hard to stop it.

A good trick here is to hold a rubber eraser between your teeth. While doing this it is difficult to swallow. This will alert you to the fact that you are swallowing air and it will give you a mechanism to stop the habit.

The other major source of gas is the fermentation of undigested food. Milk can certainly be a cause in people who have milk intolerance. Large amounts of carbohydrates seem to do this in other people.

Then, of course, there are the well-known gas formers such as beans, radishes, onions; some people have particular foods that are real gas formers for them. If you know which foods cause you gas, it's wise to avoid them.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 64, "Controlling Gaslessness to give you more digestion about how gas is formed and what you can do about it. Often you need to improve the colon function. The digestive tract does seem to work better if a person is active. Regular walks seem to help eliminate gas and prevent distention. Patients who have not a practical consideration.

School Choice: Cereal, Juice Or Milk?

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
Herald Staff Writer

Breakfast may return to Seminole County schools. Three of the five members of the Seminole County School board said today they would be in favor of a pilot breakfast program.

Their comments were aimed at a just-completed breakfast survey conducted in all 40 county schools by the food service department in compliance with a recently passed state law.

Most Florida counties already have some type of breakfast program in their schools, according to D.F. Kirkpatrick, assistant food service director.

The survey was completed over about a two-month period.

Letters were sent to the parents listing the proposed menu and asking if their child would participate daily, two or three times a week, occasionally or never.

Parents at three schools said their children would participate in some type program while parents at the other schools indicated for the most part their children would not participate.

Principals at Rosenwald and Wilson Elementary said they would be interested in the program if certain conditions are met.

Principals at Casselberry Elementary, Goldsboro Elementary and Croons High School recommended the program be started at their schools. Rosenwald and Wilson Elementary gave a qualified yes.

School Board members Roland Williams, E.C. Harper Jr. and Pat Tolson said today when the issue comes before the board at next Wednesday's meeting they would vote to begin the program on a trial basis.

"I definitely support the idea and would hope eventually we could have an all-out program if it is desired," said Williams.

"I would go along with the program on a trial basis, because a lot of times it looks good on paper but a lot of complications can arise," said Harper.

Mrs. Tolson, chairman of the board said "I'd hate to see any child go hungry and if the staff believes it should be done I would think it should be done on a trial basis."

Charlotte Whitmore, food service director said "If the principals at the schools believe they can handle the supervisory part of it and if we are given enough lead time I see no reason why we can't implement it."

About four weeks would be needed to handle the necessary paper work and get the breakfast foods in to distribute to the selected schools, Mrs. Whitmore said.

The children could be served about 30 minutes before school begins and would be charged 30 cents for the breakfast which would consist of a package of cereal, a four-ounce carton of orange juice and an eight-ounce carton of milk, she said.

Some children in the schools would be eligible for a free or reduced price breakfast costing 10 cents, she said.

The children who would be eligible for the free or reduced breakfast would be the ones who now receive the free and reduced lunch. They are eligible for both meals based on the parents' income and the number

At Sanford PD Internal Probe A Closed Case

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

Attorney C. Vernon Mize said. The internal investigation did reveal what Mize termed "irregularities."

Among these matters was the assembling of files on the personal lives of policemen during the administration of Chief Wallace LaPeters, Mize said.

Also criticized as a result of the investigation was the exchange of police equipment without proper authorization.

The files, which Mize said

Unless other policemen come forward with new information, the investigation into rumors of wrongdoing at the Sanford Police Department has ended. "I don't foresee any further action as of this date," State Attorney Douglas Cheahine said today.

"As far as the city is concerned there would be nothing else to investigate," City and a long-standing practice of police soliciting funds for civic activities while in uniform.

As a result of the investigation, three policemen were verbally reprimanded by City Manager Warren E. Knowles. Mize said there were no letters of reprimand placed in the files of the officers in connection with "improper" activities.

GOP Boss: Why Do Demos Make Issue Of Machines?

Bill McCollum, chairman of the local Republican executive committee, said today Democratic County Chairman Rod Cable "stumped awfully long when he used Wednesday's voting machine inspection as an excuse to attack Republican candidates but they were quickly corrected and the Republican party didn't call the press and attack the county commissioner on the eve of an election."

"The presence of numbers on counters of three or four machines has no relation with the number of men working on the machines. If there had been 10 men working, the chances are a handful of machines would have had registered counter numbers," said McCollum. (McCollum had been out of town and unavailable for comment Thursday.)

Cable, Thursday, chastised the county commission for "turning up absolutely nothing wrong with any machine."

The official Republican Party inspector, Phil Hagerty spent several hours examining the machines at the same time as Cable and said he was unequivocally there were no significant problems found.

Out of 176 machines inspected, three or four had low digit numbers on the public counters left over from routine maintenance work," McCollum said.

"In nearly every inspection a few counters which are easily corrected as was the case Wednesday."

pulling a helper to the county's voting machine maintenance man, Roger Johnson, off the job Monday night rather than having him to assist with preparation of the voting machines through Wednesday when the voting machines were inspected.

"It is virtually impossible for Johnson to be at the back of the machine and the front of the machine at the same time," said Cable, yet Johnson was expected to finish the job himself."

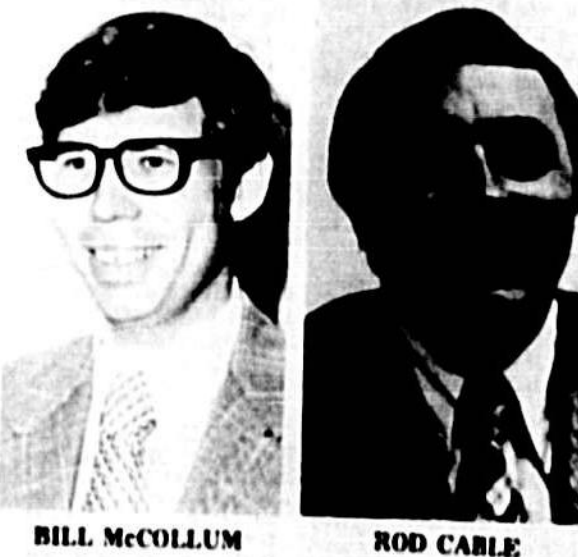

Supervisor of Elections Camille Bruce said when the helper was taken off the job,

Johnson was told by Gordon Luttrell, head of the county's maintenance department it was because the money ran out. Neither Luttrell nor Johnson works directly under Mrs. Bruce.

Mrs. Bruce said she has

Housing Panel, Realtors Target County Fair Housing

By MAX ERKLETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

Representatives of finance, civic and social service organizations met Thursday with officials of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to discuss the establishment of a Community Housing Resources Board (CHRB).

The agreement provides for the board of realtors to establish an equal-opportunity committee, ensure implementation of the agreement and receive and investigate complaints of discrimination involved in the marketing of homes.

The Seminole County Board of Realtors recently signed an affirmative marketing agreement and has established an equal opportunity committee, according to the Simpson, committee chairman.

"The CHRB would work with the board of realtors to ensure the affirmative marketing agreement is being carried out. The CHRB and board of realtors would meet quarterly to assess the program of the agreement. The CHRB will also work with the board of realtors to work out any problems which might arise and will participate with the realtors in an annual affirmative marketing review by HUD, according to former Seminole Black.

Such a panel would work with the Seminole County Board of Realtors to implement its affirmative marketing agreement for fair housing, according to Lee Black, equal opportunity specialist with HUD.

Affirmative marketing is strictly a voluntary program. "What we're really doing with affirmative marketing is reaffirming the golden rule," commented Simpson.

Later he noted the program was voluntary.

"This was a voluntary agreement," said Simpson. "No one from HUD or any branch of the federal government came down to us and said, 'you have to sign this agreement.'"

Black agreed.

"We like to emphasize the voluntary part of this program," he said. "Without voluntary agreement this would not work."

The CHRB has no legal powers to enforce affirmative marketing or fair housing, according to Black. Anyone with a complaint of discrimination in the marketing or sale of a house would still have to file a formal complaint with federal officials, he added.

In addition to affirmative marketing, realtors are to encourage minorities to enter the real estate profession under provisions of the agreement.

"That's where we'll really need the help of HUD," commented Simpson.

Also attending the meeting for HUD was Roosevelt Peay.
