the Campbell-Lossing Post of the American Legion has the following members: Donald D. Mero, Chairman; L. Frank Roper, Vice-Chairman; Geo. G. Herrin, Secretary; Joe D. Chittenden, Treasurer; Percy A. Mero, Public Speaking Committee Chairman.

A. P. HAGGARD

Mr. A. P. Haggard, who was recently elected to serve the local post of the American Legion as post commander for the year 1925, was the right hand man in the previous administration. As chairman of the executive committee he recently assisted Ex-Post Commander, P. A. Mero, during his administration in the many accomplishments of the post during the past year. Mr. Haggard is a very energetic and active member of the local post of the American Legion and will make the post an excellent leader for 1925. The post commander elect has outlined his program of activity for the ensuing year as follows: 1. To complete the club house and beautify the club house grounds. 2. To put on a membership drive and strive to enroll every World War Veteran in the county with the local post of the American Legion. 3. To adopt a systematic method whereby Legionnaires will visit sick and disabled veterans in our county. 4. To assist all veterans in adjusting and applying for adjusted compensation and government insurance. 5. To assist in whatever way possible in public welfare work, co-operating with the various civic organizations of the city and county. 6. To work for better hospital conditions for the disabled veterans. 7. To refrain from any a t t y participation in politics or an organization. 8. To be ever ready to promote any progressive measure. 9. To make the post an organization of a real service rendering nature. With this program the post commander elect calls upon every member of the local post of the American Legion to place himself in readiness to render unto his fellow man that service which makes for the greater things of life. Let each member of the post adopt this as his motto: "FOR GOD AND COUNTRY—ME LAST."

CITIZENS ASKED TO ANSWER RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Mayor Forrest Lake Calls On Every Resident of Community to Share In Work Which Begins on Tuesday

Calling on every citizen in the community to renew his allegiance to the American Red Cross, Mayor Forrest Lake issued today a formal proclamation naming the days from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving as the annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross, in which membership to the local chapter will be solicited.

In regard to his proclamation, the mayor stated that "to answer the call of those who suffer in times of disaster, and to extend a helping hand to the unfortunate in our community and all over the world at all times, everyone should take this opportunity to renew his allegiance to this humanitarian organization, and have a share in its great work."

"The American Red Cross represents the highest ideals of service in our community, and no more fitting tribute can be paid us than to truthfully say that we are linked with this great force for human welfare."

"I therefore call on every citizen to have a share in its beneficent activities in every part of our land by answering the Roll Call which opens Armistice Day and closes on Thanksgiving."

The mayor expressed his personal interest in the campaign for members to Rev. E. D. King, who has charge of this Roll Call, and stated he stood ready at all times to do everything possible to foster the work.

In 718 Southern Communities Tuesday the opening gun in the annual membership campaign will be fired, when 250,000 people are expected to answer the Roll Call.

A goal of 1,000 members for the local Red Cross Chapter has been set with the expectation that it will be subscribed in the opening days of the drive. The money derived from memberships go for local work in the community with the exception of five cents for each member, which finances the national and international work of the organization.

Comrade Whom He "Buried" While In France Is Alive

EAST BROMFIELD, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Entertaining a man six years after having attended his funeral at the experience of Captain Robert W. Norton, an American Legionnaire of this city, whose house guest recently was James Wilson of Fall River, Mass., and the man Norton thought he buried in France in 1918.

Wilson, a messenger attached to Captain Norton's company, was hit by an exploding shell, October 1918 and "killed." His identification tag was found and placed on a cross that marked the place where he was laid away. Captain Norton one rainy, stormy morning witnessed the service and mourned his friend. It was difficult in the gray dawn to distinguish men, and it was not "Jimmie" Wilson who was buried, but another "Jim" who lay torn and bleeding in his agony some distance away where he was tossed by the exploding "big Bertha." After two days he was picked up by a following outfit and sent to a hospital where for two years he lay too ill to communicate with relatives and not knowing they believed him dead. When he became able, he went back to his home at Fall River, and shortly after learning his old Skipper's address, the erstwhile captain and chief mourner, received, as it were, a "visit from the dead."

Kansas Man Predicts Greater War Pending

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 10.—Another World War more terrific and on a larger scale than the late war is pending in the world and will occur within the next decade," was the prediction of Major Thomas Amory Lee of this city, who recently returned from London where he attended the 5th annual congress of the Fidae (Federation Inter-Allies des Anciens Combattants) as a delegate from the American Legion.

Major Lee stated that he had made this deduction from addresses he had heard at the Fidae Congress by some of the leaders in the world peace movements. "The feeling that the world is in danger of another such catastrophe as the World War is prevalent among even the most optimistic, he declared.

Among other observations made by Major Lee while abroad was that all nations are making an attempt to urge the responsibilities of the world upon the United States, and that the British Isles are following the example set by the United States in the Eighteenth

War Veterans' Act Is Supplying Needed Aid

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10.—Since the passage of the World War Veterans' Act of June 7, last, a total of 841 ex-service men, formerly unable to establish the connection of their disabilities with the service in the World War, have been admitted to veterans bureau hospitals, according to announcement of the official of The American Legion here, which organization was largely responsible for the enactment of the Veterans' Act. Under a provision of the act, tubercular and neuro-psychiatric diseases arising before the first of January, 1925, are automatically considered by legal presumption as having originated in the service.

Rate Conference To Be Held at Orlando

ORLANDO, Nov. 8.—Two questions concerning the growers and shippers of Florida fruits and vegetables will be argued in Orlando, on November 10, before a special examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, at which time it is the purpose of the Growers and Shippers League, represented by its secretary manager, J. Curtis Robinson, and the state railroad commission, represented by its counsel, Senator Calkins, to present arguments against a proposed increase of weights on Florida oranges from 89 to 95 lbs., and on grapefruit from 80 to 85 lbs., when destined to Pacific coast and intermediate points; and the assignment by the carriers of short cars which permit the loading of only 250 crates of celery, although the 350 crate minimum is charged. Mr. Robinson, of the Growers and Shippers League, has collected and compiled important data upon which to base the growers and shippers' contentions, and Senator Calkins is now in Orlando conferring with him on the case. The hearing has been set for 10 o'clock in the morning and will be conducted at the rooms of the Orlando Chamber of Commerce.

How to Display the Flag of the United States of America

DESCRIPTION OF THE FLAG

Flag of the United States of America—13 horizontal stripes—7 red and 6 white alternating—union which consists of white field with five points on a blue field placed upper quarter next the staff and extending to the lower edge of the fourth stripe from the top. The number of stars is the same as the number of States in the Union. The center or union new

3. When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the Flag of the United States of America should be on the right, the Flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

4. When a number of flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs with the Flag of the United States of America, the latter should be at the center or at the highest point of the group.

5. When flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same balyard with the Flag of the United States of America, the latter should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the Flag of the United States of America should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant flown in the former position should be placed above or in the latter position to the right of the Flag of the United States of America, i. e., to the observer's left.

PROPER USE OF BUNTING

Bunting of blue, white and red should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping over the front of a platform and for decorations in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle and the red below.

6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

7. When the Flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or front of building, the union of the Flag should go clear to the peak of the staff unless the Flag is at half staff. (When the Flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope, extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the Flag should be hoisted out from the building towards the pole union first.)

8. When the Flag is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosaries, or drappings are desired, bunting of blue, white and red should be used, but never the Flag.

9. When displayed over the middle of the street, the Flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

10. When used on a speaker's platform, the Flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker. If flown from a staff it should be in the position of honor, at the speaker's right. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk or to drape over the front of the platform.

11. When used in connection with the unveiling of a statue or monument, the Flag should form a distinctive feature during the ceremony, but the Flag itself should never be used as the covering for the statue.

12. When flown at half staff, the Flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half staff position, but before lowering the Flag for the day it should be raised again to the peak. By half staff is meant hoisting down the Flag to one half the distance between the top and the bottom of the staff. If local conditions require, divergence from this position is permissible. On Memorial Day, May 30th, the Flag is displayed at half staff from sunrise until noon, and at full staff from noon until sunset, for the Nation lives and the Flag is the symbol of the living Nation.

13. Flags flown from fixed staffs are placed at half staff to indicate mourning.

When the Flag is displayed on a small staff, as when carried in a parade, mourning is indicated by attaching two streamers of black crepe to the spear head, allowing the streamers to fall naturally. Crepe is used on the flag staff only by order of the President.

14. When used to cover a casket, the Flag should be placed so that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder.

The Flag should not be lowered into the grave or allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried foot first.

15. When the Flag is displayed in the body of the church, it should be from a staff placed in the position of honor at the congregation's right as they face the clergyman. The service flag, the State flag or other flag should be at the left of the congregation. If in the church or on the platform, the Flag of the United States of America should be placed on the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and the other flags at his left.

16. When the Flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the National colors, but should be destroyed as a whole privately, preferably by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our Country.

CAUTIONS

1. Do not permit disrespect to be shown to the Flag of the United States of America.
2. Do not dip the Flag of the United States of America to any person or anything. The respectful color, State flag, organization or institutional flag will render this honor.
3. Do not display the Flag with the union down except as a signal of distress.
4. Do not place any other flag or pennant above or on the same level, to the right of the Flag of the United States of America.
5. Do not let the Flag touch the ground or the floor or trail in the water.
6. Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the Flag of the United States of America.
7. Do not use the Flag as drapery in any form whatsoever. Use bunting of blue, white and red.
8. Do not fasten the Flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.
9. Do not drape the Flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. When the Flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis, or clamped to the radiator cap.
10. Do not display the Flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.
11. Do not use the Flag as a covering for a ceding.
12. Do not carry the Flag flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.
13. Do not use the Flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform. Do not embrother it upon cushions or handkerchiefs nor print it on paper napkins or boxes.
14. Do not put lettering of any kind upon the Flag.
15. Do not use the Flag in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to a pole from which the Flag is flown.
16. Do not display, use or store the Flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.

CODE OF THE FLAG

There are certain fundamental rules of which, if understood generally, indicate the proper method of displaying the Flag of the United States of America. The matter becomes a very simple one if it is kept in mind that the Flag represents the living country and is itself a living thing. The union of the Flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm and therefore the point of honor and hence the place of honor. The Flag should be displayed only sunrise to sunset, or between such times as may be designated by proper authority. It should be hoisted briskly but lowered slowly and ceremoniously. The Flag should be displayed on all national and state holidays and on historic special occasions. (However, being the flag of our country, it ought to fly every flagpole every day throughout the year, weather permitting.)

When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the Flag of the United States of America should be either on the leading right, i. e., the Flag's own right, when there is a line of other flags, the Flag of the United States of America may be in front of the center of that line.

CAUTIONS AND SUGGESTIONS: ADDITIONAL POINTS TO BEAR IN MIND IN PAYING HOMAGE TO THE FLAG

SALUTE TO THE FLAG
During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag or when the Flag is passing in review or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headwear with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the Flag in the military is rendered at the moment the flag passes.

SALUTE TO NATIONAL ANTHEM
When the National Anthem is played and the Flag is not displayed, all present should stand and face toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the Anthem, retaining this position until the last note. All others should stand at attention, men removing the headwear. When the Flag is displayed, the regular "Salute to the Flag" should be given.
The "Star-Spangled Banner" is recommended for universal recognition as the National Anthem.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG
In pledging allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, the approved practice in schools, which is suitable also for civilian adults, is as follows:
Standing with the right hand over the heart, all repeat together the following pledge:
"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."
At the words "to the Flag," the right hand is extended palm upward toward the Flag and this position is held until the end, when the hand, after the words, "Justice for all," drops to the side.
However, civilian adults will always show full respect to the Flag, when the pledge is being given, by merely standing at attention, men removing the headwear. Persons in uniform should render the right hand salute.

THE SHIELD
The shield of the United States of America has 13 vertical stripes, 7 white and 6 red with a blue chief without stars.

FEDERAL FLAG LAWS
There is but one Federal statute which protects the Flag throughout the country from desecration. This law provides that a trademark cannot be registered which consists of a coat-of-arms, or other heraldic device, or of a design, emblem or other thing, "The Flag, States or any simulation thereof." (33 Stat. L. p. 115, Feb. 23, 1905.)
Congress has also enacted legislation providing certain penalties for the desecration, mutilation or improper use of the Flag within the District of Columbia. (33 Stat. L. p. 368, Feb. 3, 1917.)

SUGGESTED STATE LEGISLATION
Based upon the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States of America rendered by Justice John Marshall Harlan, every State should enact adequate laws for the protection of the Flag. (18 U. S. 24, March 4, 1901.) State Flag laws should provide as follows:

1. That June 14th, Flag Day, be set apart by proclamation of the Governor recommending that Flag Day be observed by people generally by the display of the Flag of the United States of America and in such other ways as will be in harmony with the general character of the day.
2. That the Flag of the United States of America be displayed on the main administration building of every public institution.
3. That the Flag of the United States of America with staff or balyards be provided for every schoolhouse, and that the Flag be displayed during school days either from flagstaff or in inclement weather, within the school building.
4. That the Flag be displayed in every polling place.
5. That printing or lettering of any kind on the Flag be prohibited.
6. That the use of the Flag for advertising purposes in any manner be prohibited.
7. That the use of the Flag as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying or delivering anything be prohibited.
8. That fitting penalty (fine and imprisonment) be provided for public mutilation, abuse or desecration of the Flag.

Star-Spangled Banner

Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming;
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous flight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd, were so gallantly streaming;

And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

On the shore, dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflects now shines on the stream.

'Tis the star-spangled banner; oh! long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

When our land is illum'd with liberty's cry,
If a foe from within strike a blow at her glory,
Down, down with the traitor that dares to defile
The flag of her stars and the page of her story;
By the millions unchain'd who our birthright have gain'd
We will keep her bright blazon forever unstain'd.

And the star-spangled banner is triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Oh! thus be it ever when free men shall stand,
Between their loved home and the war's desolation,
Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n rescued land
Praise the Pow'r that hath made and preserved us a Nation
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto, "In God is our trust."

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

HISTORY OF THE FLAG

The American Flag is the third oldest of the National Standards of the world, older than the Union Jack of Britain or the Tricolor of France. The flag was first carried in battle at the Brandywine, September, 11, 1777. It first flew over foreign territory January 28, 1778, at Nassau, Bahama Islands; Fort Nassau having been captured by the Americans in the course of the war for independence. The first foreign salute to the flag was rendered by the French Admiral La Motte Piquet, off Quiberon Bay, February 13, 1778. The flag first rose over thirteen states along the Atlantic seaboard, with a population of some three million people. Today it flies over forty-eight states extending across the continent, and over great islands of the two oceans; and one hundred and thirty millions owe it allegiance. It has been brought to this proud position by love and sacrifice. Citizens have advanced it and heroes have died for it. It is the sign made visible of the strong spirit that has brought liberty and prosperity to the people of America. It is the flag of all of us alike. Let us accord it honor and loyalty.

RESPECT THE FLAG

When you see the Stars and Stripes displayed, soon, stand up and take off your hat. Somebody may utter "It is in the blood of some to deride all expression of public sentiment. You may blaspheme in the street and stagger drunken in public places, and the bystanders will not pay much attention to you; but if you should get down on your knees and pray to Almighty God or if you should stand bareheaded while a company of old soldiers marches by with flags in the breeze, some people will think that you are showing off. But don't you mind! When Old Glory comes along, salute, and let them think what they please! When you hear the band play "The Star-Spangled Banner" while you are in a restaurant or hotel dining room, get up even if you rise alone; stand there and don't be ashamed of it, either! Few of all the signs and symbols in the world began their career in the full of majesty as the flag of this country. That piece of red, white and blue bunting marks two thousand years of struggle upward. It is the full-grown flower of a century of Liberty. It is the fighting plant of human hope and honor. Your flag stands for humanity, for an equal opportunity to all the sons of men. Of course we haven't arrived yet at that goal; there are many injustices yet among us, many senseless and cruel customs of the past still clinging to us, but the only hope of righting the wrongs of men lies in the feeling produced in our bosoms by the sight of that flag. Other flags mean a glorious past, this flag a glorious future. It is not so much the flag of our fathers as it is the flag of our children, and of all children's children yet unborn. It is the flag of tomorrow. It is the signal of the "Good Time Coming." It is not the flag of your king—it is the flag of yourself and of all your neighbors. Don't be ashamed when your throat chokes and the tears come, as you see it flying from the masts of our ships on all the seas or floating from every flagstaff of the Republic. You will never have a worthier emotion. Reverence it as you would reverence the stature of the Deity. Listen! The band is playing the national anthem—"The Star-Spangled Banner"! They have let us see Old Glory yonder. Stand up, and there will stand with you. This tribute to the flag is offered of the country in appeal to all men and women of all races, colors and tongues; that they may come to understand that our flag is the symbol of liberty, and learn to love it.

—ALVIN MOWSLEY.

The conference constituted itself a permanent body, so that modifications in the rules can be made if this proves desirable. The rules as given are from the final corrected draft of the code as brought out of the conference. Legion posts will find the rules and diagrams worth calling to the notice of school pupils and citizens generally.

The Armistice Communique And The Man Who Wrote It

By John R. Tunis
(In American Legion Weekly)
Shut your eyes for a minute and imagine yourself once again a corporal of infantry. You have been wounded and, after leaving the hospital, have been sent to the replacement camp at St. Alzman. You are handed travel orders and wake up in twenty-four hours to find yourself at G. H. Q., still a dough-boy corporal. A general officer is looking up at you. He says:

"Oh, yeh, you're a newspaper man, aren't you? Well, you are to write the official communique beginning this evening."

This is what actually happened to Jean de Pierrefeu, a French journalist, who went with his regiment at the start of the fighting in 1914 and was wounded in one of the first battles in Lorraine. He recovered from his wound and was sent to French G. H. Q. at Chantilly, where he was told that from then on he was to be one of the most widely read authors in the world.

I met Jean de Pierrefeu at Cap d'Antibes last winter. Antibes is a small neck of land jutting out into the blue Mediterranean between Nice and Cannes, and here he lives in a small villa, doing a daily column for a Parisian newspaper and working on his books. He is small, with great power written in his face, his nose still bearing the scars received from the shrapnel ten years ago this summer. Sitting on the stone porch of his little villa with the sea stretching out before him and the snow-white peaks of the Maritime Alps behind, he told me of his feelings that wet afternoon at Chantilly as the door shut and he was left alone to write the message for which an entire nation was waiting.

Ten sheets of paper were handed to him on which had been written the reports from each army headquarters on the French front. From these ten sheets he was supposed to summarize in a few sentences an account of the principal events of the previous day. The whole thing had to be in front of General Joffre at four o'clock for his signature. It was two when Pierrefeu set to work.

He looked the sheets over. Before his eyes were the name of towns he had never heard of. Were they important or not? He consulted a list of communes and went to work. —Lantry was it in the Woevre or in Lorraine? The sweat stood out on his forehead as

TRANSLATION

In the 52d month of a war without precedent in history, the French Army, with the aid of the Allies, has achieved the defeat of the enemy.

Our troops, animated by the purest spirit of sacrifice and giving during four years of un-interrupted fighting a sublime example of endurance and heroism daily, have fulfilled the task confided to them by the mother country, meeting at times with indomitable energy the enemy assaults and at other times themselves attacking thus bringing victory.

They have, after a decisive offensive of four months, thrown into disorder, beaten and thrown out of France the powerful German Army. They have compelled it to beg for peace. All the conditions required for the suspension of hostilities having been accepted by the enemy, an armistice came into force this morning at eleven o'clock.

Such was the fate of the first communique attempted by Jean de Pierrefeu. As French Headquarters moved from Chantilly to Compiègne, and then from Compiègne to Peronn, he followed. Each day he drew up in a couple of paragraphs the events of the previous twenty-four hours and submitted them to the general in chief. On receiving the latter's signature he gave them to the members of the Paris papers. Joffre left, Nivelle took command, Nivelle fell from favor and Petain succeeded. By this time Pierrefeu was a second lieutenant, and it was as a second lieutenant that, on November 11, 1918, he wrote the most momentous communique of the whole war, and the last one to be sent out from French general headquarters.

All that week, he told me, rumors were circulating every hour. A hundred times in the first two days of November had the Germans capitulated. On the evening of the 10th Pierrefeu was stopped in the starway by General Bunt, Petain's chief of staff. The general's face was illumined, his hands were trembling.

"I'm going to give you some big news," he said. "The Germans have resolved to ask for an armistice. Yes, yes, it is true this time. A dispatch from Berne tells us that they have made advances to the Swiss government asking it to act as an intermediary."

The news spread through the big chateau that housed headquarters. Soon came a message to announce that the Germans had asked President Wilson to name terms for an Armistice, and that he had advised them to address themselves to Marshal Foch. For several days the French general staff devoted themselves to drawing up the terms of an armistice, and so severe were the terms that general opinion was that the Germans would never accept the conditions.

But the French staff was wrong. The morning of the eleventh, at nine o'clock, a telephone call came from the advanced post at Chantilly, requesting Lieutenant Pierrefeu. He left in a car immediately, and arrived at Chantilly to find Petain at breakfast. The general was setting out for Paris, and told Pierrefeu that in an hour the Armistice would be signed and the war would be over. He then gave him instructions for the last communique to be issued—the decisive communique in which was to be chronicled the end of the greatest struggle in history.

At three o'clock the telephone announced that the general was returning directly to Provins. Once more Pierrefeu's ear set out, coursing slowly through crowds of delirious metonymy. In every village the townspeople were dancing in the streets; soldiers and villagers like were cheering and singing. It was nine o'clock before headquarters at Provins was reached.

Pierrefeu hurried to his office and wrote the last communique. The general had returned but was not at his desk. An impromptu celebration had been arranged by the troops, and the chief was in a box in the theatre. It was a small provincial theatre, dirty, barren, ugly, with all the seats out save in the boxes, and a vast crowd standing in the pit and the galleries. In the box sat Petain with Bunt and half a dozen other generals attached to Headquarters.

A soldier was reciting as Pierrefeu crowded his way in and insisted on being taken to Petain's box. He managed to worm past the staff officers with their elegant capes and hats with gilt and braid and handed the hastily-scribbled document to Petain. The general took it, glanced at it in the light of the gas jets spluttering overhead, read it through. When he had finished he took his pen, and with a flourish signed his full name—Philippe Petain. Then, as an afterthought, before returning it, he scribbled at the bottom:

"Fermo pour cause de victoire."
"Closed on account of victory."

In about three seconds it was back in his hand. "With a great fat pen the war hall had drawn heavy lines across the corporal's efforts. Underneath he had written: "Nothing of importance, along this time Pierrefeu was a second lieutenant, and it was as a second lieutenant that, on November 11, 1918, he wrote the most momentous communique of the whole war, and the last one to be sent out from French general headquarters.

All that week, he told me, rumors were circulating every hour. A hundred times had the Germans capitulated. On the evening of the 10th Pierrefeu was stopped in the stairway by General Buat, Petain's chief of staff. The general's face was illumined, his hands were trembling.

"I'm going to give you some big news," he said. "The Germans have resolved to ask for an armistice. Yes, yes, it is true this time. A dispatch from Berné tells us that they have made advances to the Swiss government asking it to act as an intermediary."

The news spread through the big chateau that housed headquarters. Soon came a message to announce that the Germans had asked President Wilson to name terms for an Armistice, and that he had advised them to address themselves to Marshal Foch. For several days the French general staff devoted themselves to drawing up the terms of an armistice, and so severe were the terms that general opinion was that the Germans would never accept the conditions.

But the French staff was wrong. The morning of the eleventh, at nine o'clock, a telephone call came from the advanced post at Chantilly, requesting Lieutenant Pierrefeu. He left in a car immediately, and arrived at Chantilly to find Petain at breakfast. The general was sitting out for Lancy, and told Pierrefeu that in an hour the Armistice would be signed and the war would be over. He then gave him instructions for the last communique to be issued—the decisive communique in which was to be chronicled the end of the greatest struggle in history.

At three o'clock the telephone announced that the general was returning directly to Provins. Once more Pierrefeu's car set out, coursing slowly through crowds of dashing merry-makers. In every village the townspeople were dancing in the streets; soldiers and villagers alike were cheering and singing. It was nine o'clock before headquarters at Provins was reached.

Pierrefeu hurried to his office and wrote the last communique. The general had returned but was not at his desk. An impromptu celebration had been arranged by the troops, and the chief was in a box in the theatre. It was a small provincial theatre, dirty, barren, ugly, with all the seats out save in the boxes, and a vast crowd standing in the pit and the galleries. In the box sat Petain with Buat and half a dozen other generals attached to Headquarters.

A soldier was reclining as Pierrefeu crowded his way in and insisted on being taken to Petain's box. He managed to worm past the staff officers with their elegant capes and hats with gilt and braid and handed the hastily-scrawled document to Petain. The general took it, glanced at it in the light of the gas jets sputtering overhead, read it through. When he had finished he took his pen, and with a flourish signed his full name—Philippe Petain. Then, as an afterthought, before returning it, he scrawled at the bottom:

"Fermé pour cause de victoire"—"Closed on account of victory."

DODGE BROTHERS

TYPE--B SEDAN

Unquestionably, the most compelling tribute to the car's stamina is its widespread use by farmers, ranchmen, surveyors, salesmen and others who travel isolated roads in all sorts of weather.

These men will tell you that a good polishing restores the durable finish to its original brightness after the car has been caked with mud for weeks.

To them it is a matter of vital importance, too, that Dodge Brothers powerful starter functions promptly after prolonged exposure to the cold.

Nor is any group of owners more constantly impressed by those elements of excess value which characterize not only the Type-B Sedan itself, but every car that Dodge Brothers build.
