Man Possesses Key To Ship Mail Room

Three Postal Authorities Ship As Members Of Crew To Make An Investigation

NEW YORK, July 20.—(INS)—Archibald Chapman, 32, an Englishman, arrested yesterday when the S. S. Leviathan docked, was arraigned today before U. S. commissioner Francis O'Neill on a charge of robbing the United States mail. He was committed to the Tombs in default of $3,000 bond.

Chapman's arrest is in connection with the robbery of U. S. mail pouches on the giant ocean liner some time during June 16 and 22. He pleaded not guilty.

Postal authorities said that Chapman was employed on the Leviathan as assistant lineerman keeper and that his quarters were next to the hatch where mail pouches were stored.

On the Leviathan's most recent trip to England and France three postal authorities shipped as members of the crew. One officer was detailed to keep Chapman under close surveillance.

Although Chapman denied having keys to the door of the mail hatch or any access to its interior, one of the postal men found keys in Chapman's room field to the lock in the hatch door, authorities said.

According to federal authorities Chapman has been convicted of stealing and sentenced to prison in England. He is alleged to have stolen valuable pieces of jewelry and returned them to their owners for a reward.

Chapman will be given a hearing before Commissioner O'Neill on August 9. He has a wife and family in England.

School Board To Effect Drastic Cuts In Cost Of Educating County Pupils

Cost of educating pupils in Seminole County schools during the school year which ended June 30, 1928 totaled $234,851.14 or $2.81 per pupil, a report submitted to the board of public instruction today by Superintendent T. W. Eaton showed.

The cost of education would be decreased to approximately $200 during the coming year, report made some time ago by Superintendent Eaton indicated.

The expenses of education increased during the past year, but the actual number of pupils enrolled decreased, according to report. A total of $226,479.23 was spent by the board on education in 1927, making cost per pupil $2.21. Enrollment in the schools of the Sanford district increased, according to the report, but decreased in the outlying districts.

WOMAN ESCAPES FROM ABDUCTOR AT 6 MILLIONS IN NEAR LAKELAND CHAMBER REPORT

Mrs. Kitty Heath, Atlanta woman, forced to go with man to Florida City where she was prisoner 10 days.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 20.—(INS)—Mrs. Kitty Heath, whose disappearance from her home in July 5 led to the shooting of Jim Zink, who was mistaken for her husband, was rescued today in Tampa, Fla., today preparing to return to Atlanta.

Mrs. Heath appeared at the police station in Tampa and told a story of being abducted from her home in Atlanta, Fla., and taken to Florida City, where she was held in a house near Lakeland for 10 days.

Approximately $50,000 of the total represents income from truck crops alone, while the remainder of $400,000 represents citrus revenue. The estimates of revenue are based on an average price of $2 a crate covering all shipments.

Approximately six-eighths of the total crops shipped was citrus, including only shipments made by railroad from points in Seminole County, the celery crop totaled 6,582 carloads. That figure, according to the report, does not include shipments by truck or boat for local consumption.

Shipments of mixed vegetable required 374 cars. Escorted ships in a report on plans for the use of city property on Lake Monroe, suggested the division of the property into lots which could be rented for a nominal fee over a period of years. The property, under his plan was for the use of river transportation companies.

EFFICIENCY IN STATE AFFAIRS IS SMITH'S AIM

Reorganization Of Federal Government On Economic Basis Will Be Promised By Democratic Party Head

Merger Of Numerous Bureaus Is Planned

Constructive Campaign And Not One Of Criticism To Be Made By N.Y. Executive

ALBANY, N. Y., July 20.—(INS)—A complete overhauling of the machinery of the federal government and the consolidation and elimination of overlapping and useless bureaus, boards and commissions in the interest of economy and efficiency is planned by Governor Al Smith in the event of his election to the presidency.

This was revealed by the Governor to United States Senators Millard E. Tamm and Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, recent guests at the executive mansion.

The Governor impressed upon Tamm and Hawes that he proposed to conduct a "constructive campaign" not one of criticism.

"I want my campaign and my administration, if I am elected, to be constructive," the Governor was quoted by Senator Tamm.

"I want things to be done to better the national government."

One of the outstanding achievements of Smith's four terms as governor of New York has been his reorganization of the state government in which he consolidated the 190 bureaus and agencies into 18 main departments.

According to close friends of the Governor, he feels the same thing can be accomplished in the federal government, only on a larger scale.

Senator Tamm's authority for the statement that the Governor will stress the need for an overhauling and reorganization of the federal government in his notification speech next month.

With the aid of several of his advisers, the Governor, since his nomination, has been making a careful study of the operation of the federal government particularly its countless boards and commissions. A material reduction in the cost of the national government can be effected through a process of reorganization, and he is prepared to point the way in his notification address.

Governor Smith has no intention in the event of his election to disband any charges in the prohibition.

G.O.P. Decides Not To Limit Donations To Campaign Chest

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(INS)—The Republican campaign budget may be fixed when national chairman Robert W. Taft and national treasurer J. R. Nutt complete a study of departmental estimates today.

One thing was settled as a result of the preliminary discussions of the financial aspect of the campaign. There will be no limit on individual contributions.

In taking this attitude, Nutt declared there was no reason to restrict a donor simply because he was wealthy enough to give heavily to the campaign. He also emphasized the tremendous amount of money necessary to properly organized an election effort in a large and wealthy country.

Although $2,000,000 has been tentatively fixed as the budgetary figure, it is probably that the budget will be left open to "supplemental estimates" later on the 1928 campaign cost slightly more than $3,000,000 and neither Nutt nor Taft appeared to have hope of conducting the Hoover-Curtis fight for less money.

The Democratic national organization, Nutt predicted, will have a larger "war chest" than the Republicans. He referred to the Democratic refusal to fix a limit upon subscriptions and the financial power of the Democratic chairman, John J. Raskob.

SEVERAL FACE EXECUTION FOR OREGON PLOT

Immediate Trial Will Be Asked For Young Terral And Others Who Planned Murder

Church And State Tangle Imminent

Violence Is Expected Although Nation Is Tranquil At Present

MEXICO CITY, July 20.—(INS)—Approximately half a dozen persons may pay the death penalty for the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon by Jose De Leon Toral, a young art student.

Announcement was made at police headquarters today that Toral and his accomplices will be placed on trial at an early date. A verdict of guilty will entail the death penalty, probably executed by a firing squad.

Officials made it plain that the trial will be conducted with due regard of law so that there can be no outside criticism of the government's actions.

Belief is growing that the conflict existing between the church and state may enter a more violent phase as a result of the assassination. Deep feeling has been stirred in religious circles by the charges of President Calles and Chief of Police Zertuche that the crime involved "secret clerical action."

While the Republic remains tranquil, with soldiers on guard, there is apprehension in some quarters that violence may be attempted.

It was reported here that President Calles will form a coalition cabinet which will include leaders of the Obregonist faction.

The government has tried the cost of executing Obregon a few hours after Gen. Obregon was assassinated. The extraordinary session of congress, set originally for today, has been postponed until July 23.

The purpose of this session had originally been to take up various reform laws backed by the Obregonists, but it is now believed that at the session the Obregonists will attempt to pass through legislation which will permit (Continued On Page 4)

Proposed Pact To Outlaw War Gets Approval Of Japan

By International News WASHINGTON, July 20.—(INS)—With Japan's acceptance today of the proposed American multilateral treaty to outlaw war, all the big powers have now signified their willingness to sign.

The nations that have accepted the treaty are: Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Germany and Poland. Britain accepted the pact in behalf of four commonwealths of the British Empire—India, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand.

Canada and the Irish Free State, having their own diplomatic representatives at Washington, have accepted independently.

Czechoslovakia gave notice of acceptance, announcing that a note probably would be handed to the American minister at Prague today. Advice from Moscow indicated that Soviet Russia would sign the treaty.

Negotiations already under way which are expected to lead to acceptance by Spain. It is now believed that a conference will be held in Paris in August or September for the formal signing of the treaty.

New Orleans Chief Rebuked In Vice Drive

NEW ORLEANS, July 20.—(INS)—Although police have arrested more than 70 men and women, the association committee here demanded today that gambling be suppressed within 10 days, or that superintendent of police Healy be forced to resign as incompetent.

Through his anti-gambling committee, the association announced that business men of the city would not act as detectives or spies in furnishing evidence against gamblers, and claimed that requests for such evidence by police was an evidence of bad faith.

FRIDAY JULY 20.

POSSESSED

—In the Delicatessen—
There is so very much of you in everything I write—
You shine across my loneliness, as stars shine through the night;
You fill my mind with lovely dreams and lift my soul on high.

Until it is a silver bird that sings against the sky!
There is so very much of you in every plan I make.
For something in the strife of you can always seem to wake

The laughter and the song of me—your fingers on my own—
Create for us a garden place, where we can walk alone!

There is so very much of you in every faith I know—
Perhaps it is because my heart has come to need you so!

Mexico suffered two misfortunes almost at once: the deaths of Carranza and Obregon.

After the Noble explorers have spent a month or two wandering aimlessly about the North Pole, it begins to look as if an investigation committee were going to make it hot for them.

The approval of Secretary Jardine and the action of the American Fruit Growers in joining the Florida citrus growers clearing house association lead much strength to that organization.

When one stops to consider that there are twenty thousand chances for error in every newspaper column of type, it is really remarkable how nearly accurate our reporter did get those figures on DeCotte's receipts.

Miss Trbaikowsky, now in New York, claims to be the Princess Anastasia, youngest daughter of the late Russian Czar. We doubt if she would be so positive in her claims if she were in the now Soviet Moscow.

We regret the death of Charles D. Henry, Mrs. Herbert Hoover's father, who had hoped to live to see his daughter installed in the White House as first lady of the land.

According to the Department of Agriculture United States farmers last year made on an average $12.00. And this figure probably is pretty high when compared with the income of the average individual of the whole country.

H. D. C. members recall Hal Walker, nephew and one time private secretary of President Polk, and commander of the Tennessee Civil War Veterans. He died Tuesday, being one of a small band remaining from a once powerful army.

Peggy Joyce bought a lot of clothes at Miami and had them charged to a man in New York who the law says must pay for 'em. Who said that man doesn't pay and pay and pay?—Bradenton Herald. Nobody, except a few hundred million women.

Herbert Folkel, brilliant editor of the St. Augustine Record, and the original Smith editor in Florida, sat in at the meeting of the national committee, bearing John T. G. Crawford's proxy. If the Smith band wagon ever starts rolling toward the White House Folkel should have a cushioned seat.—Ocala Star—Whaddy's mean, "ever start"?

The Herald wishes to announce that so far as it is concerned the controversy with the City Attorney is a closed issue, to be reopened only when the case goes to trial or is dismissed. We have a couple of communications from those who disagree with our stand which we shall be glad to publish in tomorrow's Herald in an effort to be perfectly fair and present both sides to our readers. However, after tomorrow, the matter must be dropped for the time being, at least the columns of the Herald.

Mystery Still Unsolved

The body of Captain Loewenstein, Belgian financier, was found yesterday off Cape Griz Nez by fishermen. The theory that he was still alive and had disappeared merely to profit in the markets has been dispelled. No one profits in stocks after floating breathlessly in the English Channel for over two weeks. His reputation as an ethical financier is re-established.

But people will still wonder how he happened—or managed, to fall from his airplane. Tests showed that a normally strong man could not open the door, through which Loewenstein is said to have fallen, while the plane was in flight. Yet the London Daily Telegraph, commenting on the strength and personality of the man, said: "Exceptional strength and strong will power—in short, a man who, finding a door that seemed to stick, might be expected to wrench it open... lurching plane... accidental plunge."

Other theories have been advanced, all of accidental death or suicide. No one seems to have thought that foul play might have had a part. It is conceded that one man could not have opened the door; yet the door must have been opened for Loewenstein to get out. It seems entirely possible then that two men, or three, had a part in the opening of the door.

Time makes some interesting comments on the disposition of Loewenstein. He was much of an ogre, thick-set, pugnacious, and quarrelsome in disposition. Waiters or doormen who fumbled his coat, or inadvertently got in his way, were knocked down, kicked perhaps. "The prodigious Loewenstein retinue, male and female." Time continues, "have been reported to receive, in addition to highest wages, a certain amount of cuffing."

When the huge Fokker plane left Crocyden on Loewenstein's last flight, a pilot and mechanic were in the crew's compartment. Also flew with Loewenstein, his valet and private secretary, in addition to two women. When the Fokker landed at Dunkerque, France, all were there except the Belgian capitalist. His erstwhile companions seemed indisposed to talk.

"International holding shares," says Time. "Crashed from $215 to $100; and hydro-electrics from $51 to $25. When the boards of both corporations affirmed their financial soundness, announced the death of Captain Loewenstein and scouted suicide theories, the prices of shares recovered respectively to $145 and $35..." But they did not recover wholly.

And Count Van de Ponthose, close friend of Loewenstein, said, "When one is of the house of Loewenstein, one does not commit suicide!"

As To Short Men

"Big men" are not always necessarily big men. Some of the greatest men of history have been short of stature and light of weight. Apparently ignoring the fact that small men make poorer targets, the United States Marine Corps has issued orders that the minimum height for enlisted men will be five feet, six inches. The Charleston News and Courier says:

"Comes an announcement from the United States marine corps that the minimum height for enlisted men is five feet six inches, the old rule permitting the acceptance of men who were a good inch shorter.

"James Shotwell, professor of history at Columbia university, points out that great sailors and great soldiers would have been barred if the regulation had been operative in other years.

"Paul Jones, Napoleon Bonaparte, Lord Roberts and George Brinton McClellan were among the men who lacked stature enough to meet marine corps requirements.

"Were Japan to adopt the marine corps rule on height, the mikado would have to do without army or navy. But the American sea soldiers are not enlisting the little brown men of Nippon.

"Doubtless the marine corps has its reasons, but the Medical Record of December, 1918, said that 'physiological reasons' how, especially for present war methods, short men are quite as well fitted for military service as, and probably better than, tall ones."

FOUR MAIN OBJECTIVES are sought by the realtors. They are reduction of the burden of taxes on real estate in order to foster development of land and to attract more capital; a constitutional amendment eliminating the state but not the county or municipal ad valorem tax on real estate through substitution of other sources; more public interest in watching public expenditures to give property owners the right to enforce changes in the budgets before they are adopted; and the passage of the proposed constitutional amendment to provide for uniform system of county and municipal governments.—Jacksonville Journal.

HOW TO SUCCEED

MIAMI HERALD

This should be entitled how to succeed in an easy lesson. The prescription is quite simple to outline but not so easy to follow. It is dedicated to those who have ambitions who would climb out of the rut, and to the unborn generations particularly, because it is quite impossible for youths and adults to alter the courses of their lives now to conform if they have not already fulfilled the first principles of success.

The ingredients are again disclosed in the notable career of John J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee of General Motors, who has been elected chairman of the national democratic committee. The same ingredients are found likewise in the lives of the two presidential candidates, Governor Smith and Herbert Hoover.

First and foremost you must have a humble start, preferably in a simple cabin, cottage or tenement. Your family must be poor so you will know and understand and appreciate hardships. If you were born to the purple, to ease and comfort, you are out of luck.

Secondly one of the parents die while you are still a boy. That throws you upon your own resources, forces you out to battle for existence, to earn a living, receive the blows of fate. You lack the guidance, the protection and support of a father or mother, and so must learn for yourself, assume responsibilities. However, in order to meet this second requirement it is not recommended that you induce a parent to pass off or even get a divorce so you may become a part orphan. All these elements are true of the three leaders in question. Mr. Raskob began work as a book-keeper at $5 a week, and gave up a $7.50 a week position for one paying $1,000 a year, which is not surprising. Most people would.

But here is the third important factor. Become allied with some important organization or a strong and successful man, grow into the friendship and good graces of the association or the individual. Then that body or that man will boost you into fame and fortune. Raskob tied himself up to Pierre S. du Pont, and through him and his influence he gained his opportunities that led upward to wealth, power and distinction.

Men do not all get ahead because of their own inherent ability and genius. Many others contribute to their advancement. It is this wisdom which knows how to select a winner, how to win favors, that often brings success. It should be whispered, but luck also plays an important part. It is not always the great who becomes great. The supposed failure may deserve the ranks. Quaker pranks are performed by fate.

But to aid in the climb toward the top be sure and follow these three primary rules as given herewith. Then pray for the smile of Lady Fortune.—Miami Herald.

A Chicago banquet had an alarm clock to tell speakers their time was up. Incidentally it served to wake up the diners.—Newark Star Eagle.

TAMPA TRIBUNE

Alvaro Obregon had lost an arm, but never a battle. Twice elected President of his country, after a gallant record as a fighter, he was elected to enter upon his second term. Surrounded by friends, boasting his success, celebrating his exploits martial and political, the President-elect was approached by a man who offered a drawing of a check.

A shot, a grin—and Obregon died. Another bloody chapter in Mexican political history.

A fatality attending the succession to Calles? So it appears. Serrano and Gomez, candidates for the office, were accused of inciting revolution, executed. Obregon, elected, an assassin's victim. A list in the hands of the murderer indicates that other leaders had been designated for similar disposal.

Obregon, a soldier from his young manhood, craved the victories of peace. He said the Mexican people should use the toothbrush rather than the rifle—go to work instead of to the battlefield. Yet he died by violence. He was an advocate of the investment of foreign capital to make Mexico grow industrially. He was friendly to the United States.

There's doubt as to the provisions of Mexican law for the successor to the presidency. Some hold that Calles will continue in office, if he wishes to retire. Another opinion probably will be ordered.

Candidates for President of Mexico are cautious—prepared for such attack. Assassination is their elbow, murder dogs their foot-steps. Our neighbors appear to be approaching a condition of government by gun.

This country will regret the killing of Obregon. We know here of how he stood. The success may bring for us a dangers uncertainty.

THE POWER IN ORATORY

SIAM OBSERVE

The death of Chanbery Depew, a truly great American, raises the question as to how far a gift of oratory is an asset in the career of a great man. Mr. Depew was a great politician, but he was perhaps a greater man of business. His business interests were vast.

At one time he was a director of nearly forty railway companies and wielded wide power. Yet he was known universally as an orator. Outside America it is doubtful if there were many who were aware of his "big business" methods, but both inside and outside America he was recognized as one of the finest after-noon speakers in the world. When he became involved in a national investigation into the activities of the gigantic insurance corporations with which he was prominently associated, although there were many personal travesties and use of power were effaced, he retained his place in the heart of his countrymen, his position not seriously imperiled or prejudiced by the revelations against men who have led into bad system. He still retained his country's mouthpiece, and he has not been blessed with the gift of oratory, it may be concluded would have passed into

On the other hand, it was his oratory that was the lot of several of his fellow directors. Here then oratory was an asset of incalculable worth.

On the other side of the ledger we may take President Coolidge. He does not pretend to be an orator, and America does not recognize him as such. It is reported that he accepts many invitations to appear at public functions on the strict understanding that he shall not be expected to speak. Thus he is able to aid a cause with his presence without being placed under the obligation of delivering a public speech, a policy that must strike one as being eminently sensible.

To turn to England, it is held in many quarters that Lord Rosebery would have been a far greater statesman had he been a poorer orator. For his gift he had to pay with a trait of exaltation that eventually led to his retirement from the active political field, and to the plunging of his lonely furrow. Parnell, though he held together one of the most troublesome factions the House of Commons, has known, was a miserable speaker.
