Terry named city administrator

LONGWOOD — Donald L. Terry was named as Longwood's new city administrator Monday night, following a day of interviews, meetings with various department heads and a special meeting of the Longwood City Commission. Terry, who has been city clerk since 1978 had also been serving as acting city administrator since the dismissal of Mike Abels last year. He was one of four candidates who made presentations and underwent a series of questions during a meeting with the commissioners yesterday afternoon.

Following the session, the commission held a formal meeting and made a split decision.

Commissioners Anderson and Perry voted against Terry's nomination, saying they believed some of the other candidates might serve the job better, but Mayor Hank Hardy and Commissioners Hefter and Lovstrand voted in favor of Terry's nomination.

High-tower record tied

Cellular phone company erecting 250-foot tower

By NICK PFEIFAUFF
Herald Staff Writer

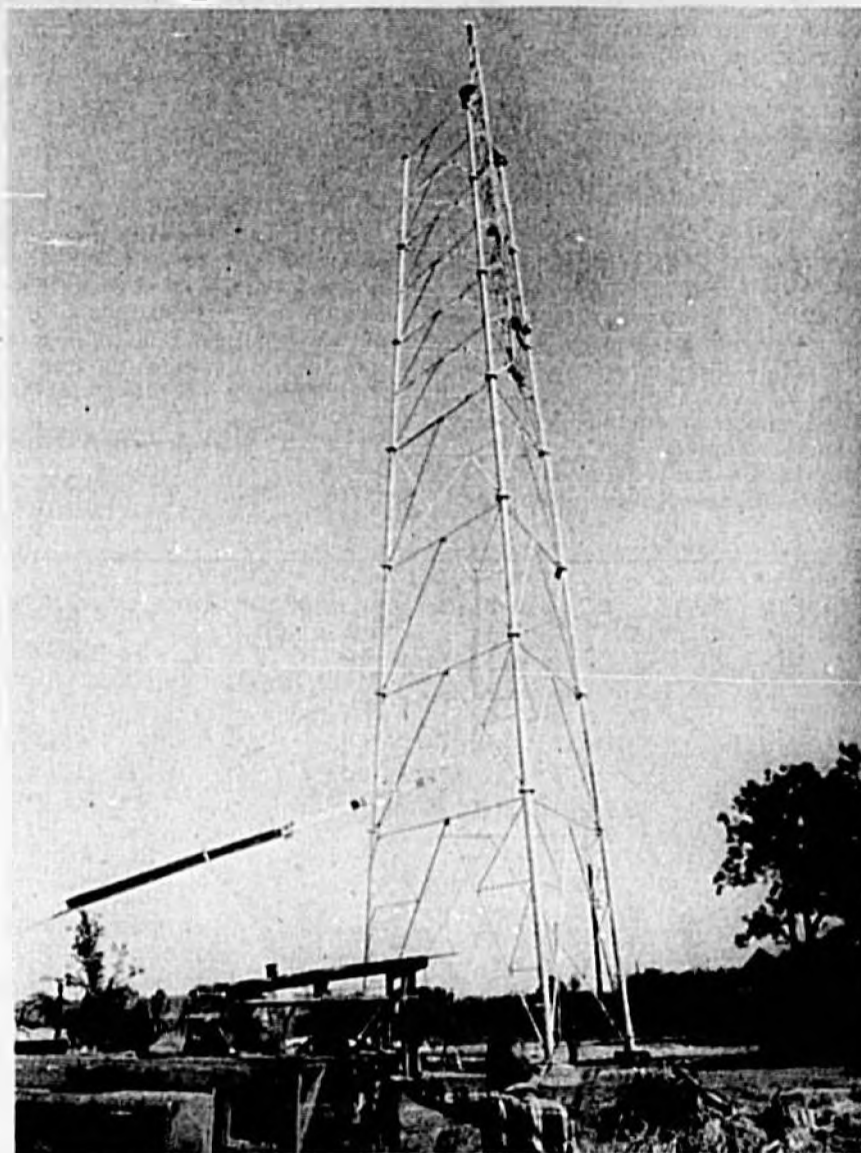

SANFORD — The skyline in the western part of Sanford is about to change with the completion of construction on a 250-foot-high tower for BellSouth Mobility.

The construction of the new tower by Casey's Tower Service of Orlando is about two thirds complete on Narcissus Avenue, just west of Rand Yard Road. A crew member said he expected the physical work on the steel part of the structure might be finished by the end of this week.

BellSouth is a cellular mobile phone service offering 24 hour automatic service throughout this area of Florida, and is one of the largest companies of its type in the South East United States. Although the company already offers service in the Sanford area, the new tower will enable this service to be greatly improved.

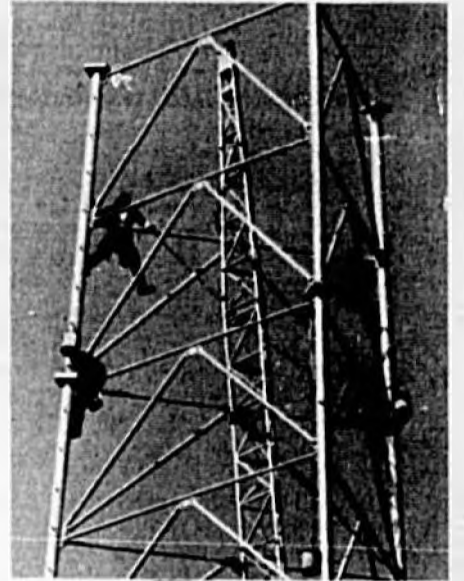

Mark Fuller, general manager for the four county Orlando district said, "We expect to put that new tower into operation on April 1."

He explained, "At the present time, BellSouth has been serving customers in the Sanford area from a tower near Winter Springs, but the new structure will give them better coverage." Fuller said his company is building a similar tower at this time, in Clermont. "They are both very rapid growth areas," he added.

John Horcher operates winch to raise equipment to tower workers.

Staplejacks assemble support and braces high above ground.

The Sanford City Commission approved construction on Nov. 1. Although the new tower is in a farming area, it is located within the city limits of Sanford.

Depending on how the height is measured, this could be the tallest tower in the Sanford area. Frank Vaught, manager of Radio Station WTRR in Sanford said his tower, east of the city on Celery Avenue, is just three feet shorter at 247 feet. "But when you add the height of the light beacon we have on top of it," he said, "it ends up being 250 feet tall."

If it's not broken, why try to fix it?

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — One of Sanford's thoroughfares wasn't broken, city officials are pleading, so why is Seminole County trying to fix it?

Sanford commissioners said Monday night the county's test of a three-lane 25th Street isn't working. The four-lane street has been temporarily narrowed to two through lanes and one left turn lane between U.S. Highway 17-92 and Old Lake Mary Road.

"I've never seen somebody take something that's working and turn it into something else," Mayor Bettye Smith said. Since the road was narrowed, she said, her home has been bombarded with phone calls complaining about the change.

"Can we beg the county not to leave 25th Street the way it is now?" she asked City Manager Bill Simmons, who said he would relay the commission's concerns to county officials. All four city commissioners joined in Smith's plea.

County traffic engineer Steve Decker was not available for comment this morning. After the first few days of the test, however, he had said the test appeared to be working.

About 12,000 cars travel the narrowed stretch of 25th Street every day, Decker has said.

The road was built in the 1950s, when few roads provided for left-turning cars and most roads were built with narrow lanes. The lanes fit 25th Street were built to be only 11 feet wide, with no medians or left-turn provisions.

Two weeks ago the county restriped the road with two 13-foot through lanes and a 12-foot turn lane. Three-foot shoulders on either side leave room for right-turning traffic, pedestrians and bicyclists.

When the road is resurfaced within the next weeks, road crews will put down permanent striping — for either four or three lanes, depending on the outcome of the test.

Decker has said the county may conduct a similar study on Sanford Avenue.

School attendance zone plan wins approval

Plan A picked for Sanford-Lake Mary

By VICKI DeSORMIER

LONGWOOD — The Seminole County School Board decided last night which of two rezoning plans it wants to adopt in an effort to realign attendance zones to fill Heathrow Elementary School in Lake Mary and Parlin Elementary School in Oviedo.

Following a pair of public hearings the board has decided to go with Plan A in reassigning Sanford and Lake Mary students for Heathrow Elementary School.

"There has been much public support for Plan A," said Ken Boyio, area director of elementary education.

Plan A calls for the following changes in attendance zones:

• 88 students who now attend Woodlands Elementary School, 1420 E.E. Williamson Rd. in Longwood, will attend Heathrow next year. The students are all those who live in the area from the south entrance of Wingfield Reserve, north on the west side of Markham Woods Road to the present Woodlands attendance zone boundary, including all homes and side streets which are on the west side of Markham Woods Road.

• 190 students who now attend Lake Mary Elementary School, 132 Country Club Rd. in Lake Mary, will attend Heathrow Elementary School. The students are all those who live in Lakewood, north of Greenway Boulevard, south of Lake Way Road and west of Lake Park Drive, including all side streets which exit on to Lake Park Drive. Also, all students who live in the Higgins Terrace housing project will

After two months, half of Sanford's residents recycling

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Participation in Sanford's city recycling program is still at about 55 percent in its second month, according to city Public Works Director Jerry Herman.

During February, 60 24 tons of 1,120 56 tons of solid waste collected by the city were recyclable materials, Herman reported. That figure included 39.52 tons of newspaper, 15.51 tons of glass, 3.97 tons of plastic and 1.24 tons of aluminum, he said.

Curbside recycling in February reduced the city's haul to the county landfill by 5.4 percent, Herman said. That reduction saved the city $903.60 in landfill fees, he said.

Curbside recycling participation has lingered at about 55 percent since bins for recyclable materials were distributed in late December. City crews began collecting recyclables in January.

Participation in some outlying subdivisions is as high as 80 percent, Herman has said.

In central Sanford where trash pickup is done from alleys behind homes, Herman said, participation has been lower because homeowners must remember to place recycling bins in front of their homes. Alleys are too narrow for equipment on recycling trucks, he said.

Herman said he is working on an education program to increase participation among Sanford residents.

Visitor suffers head injury after fall

FORT WALTON BEACH — A spring break visitor from Memphis State University was in critical condition with a severe head injury after falling from a third-floor balcony, authorities said.

Tim McCage, 19, described by witnesses as a fraternity pledge from Memphis, Tenn., fell Sunday night at the beachfront Sandman Motel Apartments on Santa Rosa Island near this Florida Panhandle city.

"He was crawling from balcony to balcony, starting from room 300, cleared the first barricade and lost it between 301 and 302," said Okaloosa County Sheriff's Deputy Whit Hannah.

Witnesses said they found him face down in the three-story motel's parking lot, bleeding from his ears and not breathing. He was resuscitated and taken to Humana Hospital in Fort Walton Beach. Hospital spokesman Todd Leach said he remained in critical condition Monday.

Electronic stores target of burglars

JACKSONVILLE — Police say burglars who smash windows and make off with televisions, video cameras, VCRs, computers and scanners have hit 14 Radio Shack stores 30 times since Nov. 1.

In addition, some other electronic stores also have been hit, including Quality Auto Stereo & TV Inc. and Rolling Sounds, police said.

"We were hit three times within 10 days. I'd get called in the middle of the night, watch while the window was being replaced and then clean up the mess," said Jim Havard, manager of a Radio Shack in Mandarin.

Police have arrested two men and charged them with one of the Radio Shack burglaries, police Detective Jesse Tomlinson said.

Darrell Glen Bennett, 18, and a 17-year-old male were arrested Feb. 28. Police found Radio Shack equipment in the house and are comparing it with serial numbers to see if it matches the stolen equipment, Tomlinson said.

Airship to search for whales

TAMPA — A whale-like airship soon will be cruising the Atlantic coast off northeastern Florida looking for real whales.

Jim Hain, an associate scientist with Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute in Massachusetts, plans to use the blimp to study endangered North Atlantic right whale cows. They travel south from Maine and Nova Scotia each winter to bear their young in the shallow waters off Georgia and Florida.

Only an estimated 350 right whales are left in the North Atlantic. Scientists say the warmer waters off Georgia and Florida are the only known birthplace. So far, 22 whales have been spotted in the nursery grounds — eight cows with calves and six others.

Little is known about their behavior. Hain said the blimp travels slowly allowing a closer look. He hopes to learn how protective mothers are and how much they move around.

The blimp is being donated by Metropolitan Life Insurance Corp. for use through March.

Tourists top 40 million

TALLAHASSEE — The number of tourists visiting the Sunshine State in 1990 topped 40 million for the first time in 1990, Commerce Secretary Greg Farmer announced.

Overall, the 40.8 million visitors who came to Florida last year represented a 5.8 percent increase over 1989. Air travel was up 14.5 percent but people arriving by car dropped 1.8 percent.

"Florida crossed a milestone in 1990," Farmer said Monday. "Not only did we have more than 40 million visitors for the first time, but we exceeded our tourism forecast for the year."

The Florida Hotel-Motel Association reported occupancy rates for 1990 at 69.3 percent, down a bit from the 69.9 percent of a year earlier.

Bill imposes campaign tax on media

TALLAHASSEE — The way Rep. Jim King sees it, the media would benefit from public financing of campaigns, so the media ought to pay for it.

King, R-Jacksonville, floated a proposal Monday to impose taxes on newspapers and broadcasters to raise $20 million every four years for public financing of statewide campaigns.

The bill, backed by Gov. Lawton Chiles and House Speaker T.K. Wetherell, would impose a surcharge on government trust funds to finance campaigns. Trust funds are those collected for a specific purpose ranging from manatee protection to education.

King's proposal would impose a 0.4 percent tax on sales of newspapers and flat fees of $8,000 annually per television station and $2,500 a year per radio outlet.

Most of the money would be returned to media outlets in the form of political advertising by candidates for governor and the Cabinet who accept public financing, King said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Economic growth predicted

By 2000, Florida will offer 1.4 million new jobs to 2.8 million new residents

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — While the 1990s may see the slowest growth in key economic yardsticks since pre-World War II days, Florida's overall growth will remain more vigorous than the nation's, a University of Florida economist said Monday.

David Lenze, co-author of the 1990 Florida Long-Term Economic Forecast, said state growth will be the slowest since 1940 in the four most commonly used state economic measures: employment, real personal income, per capita income and population.

That growth will generate about 1.4 million new jobs over the decade, adding $66.9 billion to personal income, raising per capita income by $1,809 and gaining about 2.8 million new residents, he projects.

Moreover, employment growth for Florida is projected to be 2.4 percent per year through the 1990s, compared to 1.2 percent for the nation as a whole.

"The growth in the 1980s was very heady, more vigorous than most other places in the nation. We're not going to see that again. But it's still going to be stronger than the 1940s, 1950s and 1960s," Lenze said.

The forecast is a compendium of economic statistics through the year 2000 for the state's 20 Metropolitan Statistical Areas and five non-metropolitan areas.

Florida's economic composition is expected to shift during the decade, Lenze said. The percentage of jobs in the retail trade, finance-insurance-real estate and services sectors will continue to grow, while the percentage of jobs in the goods-producing, transportation-public utilities and military sectors will continue to decline, he projects.

Lenze, associate director of UF's economic program, said the health care industry, as well as business-related services, food stores, printing-publishing and eating and drinking places will provide about 575,000 new jobs in the 1990s.

By 2000, total personal income in the state will have increased more than 37 percent compared to 1990 figures, from $178 billion (in 1982 dollars) to $244.8 billion, according to the UF forecast.

The forecast, which details historical and projected data for both the state and its regions, is published annually by UF's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

Fort Myers will be the fastest-growing metropolitan area in Florida in the 1990s, with growth rates for real personal income and jobs ranking at the top of the 20 MSAs in the state, the forecast says.

But Tampa is projected to show the most absolute growth.

"Tampa already ranks first in population, has the largest number of jobs and generates the most income of any metropolitan area in the state — as much as $38 billion in total personal income by 2000," Lenze said.

Five areas (Tampa, Miami, Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach and Orlando) are projected to have more than $20 billion in total personal income by 2000. Only three areas (Tampa, Miami and Ft. Lauderdale) had reached this level by 1989.

Labor markets in Tampa and Miami are projected to grow to more than one million jobs each by 2000. Orlando, Fort Lauderdale, Jacksonville and West Palm Beach will each have at least 500,000 jobs by 2000.

Stone wants DUI suspects held til sober

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — An education leader critical of a bill designed to increase school accountability called the measure another example of micromanagement. A second lobbyist dismissed it as a "blank contract."

But their comments failed to stop the House Public Schools Committee from voting 18-3 for the legislation, which moves next to the Appropriation Committee.

In other action Monday, the House Criminal Justice Committee approved a bill that would let a judge order a person to forfeit a car or boat after a third conviction on drunken driving charges.

The panel also heard from a woman whose son died in an accident that happened minutes after a still-intoxicated DUI suspect was released.

Johnnie Mueller of Rockledge, whose 19-year-old son Chris died in the October accident, spoke for a bill (HB 759) by Rep. Frank Stone, R-Oviedo. Stone's bill would require suspects to sober up before they are released on bond.

Bikers, hikers and joggers may replace trains

Associated Press

LAKE CITY — Bikers, hikers and joggers may soon be using the corridor through North Florida where trains once rumbled taking goods from Palatka to Lake City and from the Santa Fe River to Branford.

The proposal to place a 67-mile stretch from Lake City to Palatka along Georgia Southern and Florida Railway Tracks and another to use a 20-mile abandoned CSX railbed linking the Santa Fe, Ichetucknee and Suwannee rivers are under consideration. "People need a safe place to jog or bike. Right now, you're at the mercy of every car on the road. We need to keep spaces like this for recreation."

-Charles Cornett

Some 1,200 people a month already are using a trail built on abandoned rail property from Tallahassee to St. Marks.

About 50 people attended a meeting in Keystone Heights last week to voice their support to include the Palatka-Lake City railroad right of way in the state Rails-to-Trails program.

"People need a safe place to jog or bike. Right now, you're at the mercy of every car on the road. We need to keep spaces like this for recreation," said retired Navy Capt. Charles Cornett of Orange Park.

The trail running from Palatka to Lake City would pass through Clay, Putnam, Bradford, Union and Columbia counties, said Greg Diehl, a trail planner with the Florida Department of Natural Resources.

While most of the people attending the meeting favored the proposal, others feared it would interfere with future development of their property and restrict access to their land.

Fleeing man arrested

Terry Judson Jacobs, 24, of 124 Krider Rd. in Sanford was arrested on Sunday and charged with fleeing and attempting to elude law enforcement officers and attaching a tag not assigned to his car.

When a Seminole County sheriff's officer tried to stop him for a traffic violation, he allegedly made a wide turn around the officer's car and headed away from the scene.

A computer check of the license plate on the car revealed that it had been reported stolen.

When Jacobs was later stopped, a search of the car allegedly revealed another license plate, which was also allegedly reported stolen, in the trunk of the car.

Jacobs was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held in lieu of $500 bond.

Illegal hunting charge made

Donald Rena Campbell, 27, of 2371 Greenway St. in Sanford was arrested on Sunday.

He was charged with failure to appear in court on an illegal hunting charge.

A Seminole County Sheriff's Officer made the arrest after he ran a computer check on Campbell.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where bond has not yet been set.

Teen kidnapping suspect jailed

A second man, caught napping by FBI agents at a carnival in Orlando, Fla., has been arrested in the kidnapping of three teen-agers, FBI spokesman John Anthony said in Detroit.

Kenneth Paul Stuebaker, 26, of White Pigeon "was sleeping when agents found him around 3 p.m." Monday, Anthony said.

Stuebaker was jailed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility in Sanford and was expected to be arraigned today. He awaits extradition to Michigan to face kidnapping charges.

Anthony said.

Stuebaker's alleged accomplice, David Alan House, 33, of Michigan, faces almost 15 years in prison after pleading guilty Feb. 6 in U.S. District Court to conspiring to kidnap Jamie Lee, 18, of Detroit; Rebecca Batten, 17, of Harrison Township; and Angela Bastianon, 16, of Warren.

The pair ordered the three teen-agers into the back seat of the car Lee was driving in front of a Michigan restaurant Nov. 24, House said. Bastianon and Batten were dropped off in Chicago, and Lee was found bound and gagged in a Las Vegas motel room.

Sentencing for House is scheduled for April 24.

DUI charged

Teresa Ann Heylin, 25, of 1910 Malrose Ave. in St. Petersburg, was arrested on Sunday and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, failing to carry her drivers license and failure to maintain a single lane while driving.

She was stopped by police when she was weaving between lanes of traffic on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

She was given a roadside sobriety test and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where she is being held without bond.

Petit theft charged

Johnathan Jermaine Martin, 18, of 902 Holly Ave. in Sanford was arrested on Sunday.

He was charged with petit theft and attaching a tag not assigned to his car.

A Lake Mary police officer observed the car in the parking lot of the Lichfield theatre on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Lake Mary. The occupants went into the theatre.

A computer check of the license plate revealed it to be stolen.

When the occupants returned to the car Martin, the owner of the car, was arrested.

A search of Martin's person allegedly revealed a .38 calibre gun in his pants pocket. A search of the car allegedly revealed another .38 calibre weapon and a full face ski mask.

Martin was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $100 bond.

Reclaimed water available soon to some homeowners

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — A few Sanford neighborhoods may soon have a way around lawn-watering restrictions.

The city has completed design of a residential reclaimed water system, where treated wastewater would be offered to utility customers for irrigation purposes.

According to Bill Simmons, Sanford city manager also acting as director of engineering and planning, the service will be offered to homeowners in the westside subdivisions of Idyllwilde, Kaywood Estates, The Oaks of Sanford, Country Place and Mayfair Villas.

After surveying applications from interested customers across the city, Simmons said, offering the system in those neighborhoods was determined to be the most cost-effective design. Soil type, lot size and other variables determine cost-effectiveness, he said.

The city commission Monday approved a $758,000 contract for installation of reclaimed water lines in those neighborhoods.

City officials have also designed systems for Central Florida Regional Hospital and New Tribes Mission, Simmons said. City crews would be able to install those lines, he said.

The city's reclaimed water system is already on line in city parks and on other city projects.

LONGWOOD — The Special Operations Division of the Longwood Police Department had started offering regular publications dealing primarily with the Neighborhood Watch Programs but also including educational information on crime prevention. The information is free to the public.

Longwood Police Investigator Steve Falk is in charge of the publication which he hopes will be released every three to four months. "We have many active Neighborhood Watch organizations," he said, "but there are many areas where we have just a row of homes with no specific subdivisions or districts where such a program can be started if we can get their interest up. Even if we can't," he added, "these people need the information on home protection as well."

The first publication was issued in January, Falk said he distributed it to every known subdivision where organizations have been established, then put copies of the publication in the main office of City Hall as well as at the Police Department, hoping people would pick them up. "We put out about 3,000 copies the first time," he said. The next edition is expected to be released some time next month.

The news letter is called All Points Bulletin, and features information on how to establish a Neighborhood Crime Watch program, home safety suggestions, special reports on individual subdivisions, and various informational items about the work done in home and business protection by the Longwood Police Department.

"Our main concern," Falk said, "is to help those older sections of the city where they don't have any organizations. But," he added, "there are some subdivisions with possibly 100 homes that ended up with a turn-out of only ten or so when they tried to form a watch program. They need our help as well."

The printing of the bulletin is being donated without charge to the city, but Falk said there is a need for volunteers to help compiling the publication, and urged anyone who may be willing to help, especially in providing specific community news, to contact him at the police headquarters in Longwood, 260-3400.

Poor health

The myth that everyone who is sick or injured in this country is entitled to equal medical treatment is a myth that dies hard. Something about health care is special, and we hate to think that just because a man has a million dollars, he is going to get better treatment than the next guy.

But he does, especially if the next guy is poor and uninsured. The health-care business is essentially just that, a business, not a charitable enterprise. That needs to be recognized if we are to think realistically about solutions to the health-care problem.

Some aspects of the problem are the steeply rising costs, the number of people (30 million nationally) who have no health insurance, and the limited amount of public funds available to buy health care for those people and for others whose health insurance is inadequate or has run out.

What needs to be faced, and faced squarely, is that health care and the money to pay for it are limited. Accept the limits, then develop priorities and give care in those cases and in that manner that will do the most good for the greatest number.

That is what Oregon is doing. The leaders of the Beaver State are laying down a table of priorities for health care for the poor; taking into consideration costs and benefits. The result is a table ranking 808 medical conditions according to the cost-effectiveness of medical treatment for them. The available money (now $350 million a year for 190,000 on Medicaid) will be spent on all of the state's medically indigent people for those procedures most likely to provide the most benefit for the buck.

For instance, huge sums will not be spent on babies of extremely low birth weight, whose chance of surviving to a normal weight is disproportionately slim compared to the cost of their treatment, if spending such money would deny treatment to poor patients with pneumonia, tuberculosis, peritonitis or other disorders that can be treated at relatively low cost with high expectations of full recovery.

Yet Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., who is chairman of the House Health Committee, piously objects that the Oregon plan would set up a two-tier medical system, one tier for the insured, one for the uninsured — as if that is not what we have already.

Put aside the pious platitudes. Think anew. Follow the lead of those good citizens and medical men whose pioneer ancestors developed common sense trudging west on the Old Oregon Trail.

War protesters' scare tactics failed

The Gulf war zipped by so fast that the predictions of a long war and heavy death tolls are only a few weeks old, and we can conveniently compare the forecasts to the reality.

Most of the protesters put the likely U.S. death toll in the "tens of thousands," and added a little color to the statistic by depicting the dead as being "brought home in body-bags." This image so excited certain television producers that they actually sued the Pentagon to force it to allow them to televise the scene at the Dover (Del.) Air Force Base where the dead were expected to arrive for routing to their hometowns. Alas, the war was over before these Emmy aspirants could find a liberal judge to rule in their favor.

The grand prize for sheer intellectual terrorism, however, must surely go to Claudio Clifton-Revilla, director of the Long Range Analysis of War Project at the University of Colorado. He hit on the idea of getting a computer to tell him "how many soldiers, of all nationalities, will die in the battlefields of Kuwait and Iraq." (Computers don't lie, see?)

With a warfare model based on the patterns of 118 wars fought since 1816, "the computer's forecast was relentless," reported Deborah Blum of McClatchy News Service: "Hundreds of thousands dead, with the possibility of final totals creeping over 1 million."

Most of these would be Iraqi, but "the Colorado group — and other experts in war-fatality estimates — think U.S. military deaths are likely to top out at 40,000 to 50,000. Most agree that the Pentagon's casualty estimates, projecting 10,000 to 20,000 U.S. deaths, are too low."

Which just confirms the oldest rule in the computer game: "Garbage in, garbage out."

Over on the right, the small clutch of conservatives who opposed the war at least had the good sense to be more cautious in their casualty forecasts. My old friend Joe Sobran wisely eschewed statistical predictions altogether and stuck to a gloomy impressionism: Condemning the "warrior pundits," he asserted that, "They gaze beyond the mangled bodies and burning cities in the foreground and see a happy ending on the horizon. I don't."

Pat Buchanan did get into the numbers game, but only just: "Before we send thousands of American soldiers to their deaths, let's make damn sure America's vital interests are threatened." The actual total of American war dead over the entire six weeks, as we now know, was 98 — and that includes not only those killed by enemy action but those killed accidentally as a result of "friendly fire" and those who died in plane crashes, unrelated to enemy action, that might have occurred right here at home and killed just as many or more.

When President Bush rejoiced that "we have kicked the Vietnam syndrome," a large part of the reason can be found in the quotations above and thousands of others like them. The opponents of the Gulf war wildly overplayed their hand, drawing on painful recollections of Vietnam to try to terrorize the American people into opposing future military operations of any type, anywhere.

Perhaps the most important single lesson of the Gulf war is that the American people aren't that easy to scare. The great majority of them know that in this dirty world it is sometimes going to be necessary for Uncle Sam to use force.

The computer's forecast was relentless.

Slandered salad may talk back

BOSTON — If you are traveling through Colorado, watch what you say about the food. Cast no aspersions on the asparagus. Slander not the celery. Don't libel the lettuce.

The folks who live in the Rocky Mountain State have become unfriendly to the sort of people who might ruin the reputation of a rutabaga. They have a bill, about to face its last legislative hurdle, that would make it possible to take legal action against someone who knowingly and falsely trashed the turnips.

People could be sued, in the words of the bill, for disseminating "any false information which is not based on reliable scientific facts and scientific data, which the disseminator knows or should have known to be false and which casts doubt on the safety of any perishable agricultural food product to the consuming public." With such an anti-defamation of fruit, grains and veggies rule, it would be safer to say something against a person in Colorado than against a pear.

The originator of this peachy new limit on free speech is Steve Acquafresca, an apple farmer and state legislator who has had it up to his Adam's apple with food-safety critics. Ever since the Alar scare left the McIntoshes to rot in 1989, many farmers have looked for a pesticide to feed the critics.

Acquafresca — living testimony to that age-old adage, "An Apple A Day Keeps The Sense of Humor Away" — thinks he has found it. He says, deadpan, that his bill "will provide encouragement for food-safety critics to look at legitimate safety information."

What precisely is "legitimate" safety information these days? Health news in America bounces from one study to another. Coffee is in and then out and then in again. Oat bran is touted as a cure and then becomes a joke. Cholesterol is tagged as a villain and then it's divided into twins: good and bad.

Even with solid research, the public has trouble comparing the risks of Alar with the risks of asbestos. If you are what you eat in America, you are confused.

Could you then be sued in Colorado for saying "meat is bad for you" or "don't eat eggs" or even "chemicals can cause cancer"?

Acquafresca answers unequivocally without even checking the scientific data, "I don't know."

As often happens when people start figuring out new ways to slice and dice free speech, this bill would muzzle alarms as well as alarmists.

Yelling "cancer" in the middle of a harvest, says Acquafresca, "is like yelling fire in a crowded theater." That's the classic argument about the limits of free speech.

The classic response is that this sort of bill is designed to have a chilling effect. Chilling may be good for a head of lettuce, but not for the flow of information. If there's a match burning in the theater, would every critic or reporter have to call a lawyer to see when it's okay to yell "fire"?

Heaven and the Great Pumpkin know, there isn't a real dearth of lawsuits in America. We don't need a law targeted at speech. And surely we don't need one that gives special rights to a new class of litigants: fruits and vegetables. Can it be that the lawyers, having run out of clients, are looking for, uh, new and fertile soil to plow?

About twenty years ago, Justice William O. Douglas put forth the notion that valleys, meadows, rivers, lakes and trees should have legal standing. But even he didn't suggest rights for the radichio and the radish.

If a salad can sue because its safety has been questioned, how long till it can sue for alienation of affection, or invasion of privacy, or all the other abuses and misunderstandings heaped upon its lowly platter. Indeed, with all the rules against "hate speech" on college campuses, it could soon be illegal to spew epithets about eggplants.

As for the long-disparaged garlic bud, how long must it listen to those horrible accusations without hiring a lawyer? Shouldn't the maligned Brussels sprout have a right to its day in court? Doesn't the attitude toward onions bring tears to your eyes?

Somewhere I can imagine what the lawyer for a head of broccoli could do to the current head of state. So sue me, but will all due respect to the almond crop, the latest idea from Colorado is nuts.

Oat bran is touted as a cure and then becomes a joke.

Texas pressures NASA for projects

WASHINGTON — Texas congressmen are on a scavenger hunt for projects to bolster the Johnson Space Center in Houston and are scheming to snatch space agencies from other states if that's what it takes to bring jobs to Texas.

The lawmakers fear that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will centralize the space shuttle program and other NASA projects in Florida and that the Johnson Space Center will fall by the wayside.

In anticipation of that, the Texans are trying to persuade NASA to move other projects to Houston.

In a tug-of-war with other states for precious jobs, the Texas lawmakers will be a formidable foe, especially with a nationwide recession compounding the oil slump Texas has been in for years.

In a recent letter to NASA Administrator Richard Truly, 22 members of the Texas delegation urged him to move the Space Station Freedom headquarters from Reston, Va., to Houston. The Texans told Truly that the move "makes sense for the space station and for NASA as a whole."

But it doesn't make sense for Virginia. Sens. Charles Robb, D-Va., and John Warner, R-Va., are fighting to keep the facility in Reston, outside of Washington, D.C. They have met with Truly to discuss the issue, but they may be out-gunned by the Texans. The proposed move to Texas is gaining momentum in NASA.

The Reston facility is the brain trust of the space station — a project with a total annual budget of $2 billion. Parts of the space station project are scattered across the nation and in three foreign countries, but Reston is the headquarters. Space Station Freedom, scheduled for launch in late 1995, is a manned laboratory in the sky for the study of low-gravity sciences.

Moving the office to Texas would cost at least $26 million, according to internal NASA estimates. But the big cost would be the inevitable delays. One highly placed source in the space station project told our associate Jim Lynch that the move could delay the launching of the station by at least a year and possibly two. At $2 billion a year, that's an expensive wait.

Sources told us that NASA could also lose as many as half of its top space station engineers who would refuse to move.

The move would also contradict the recommendations of a string of government commissions that said the headquarters for the project should not be alongside one of its primary manufacturing facilities. That is the reason that NASA moved the space station headquarters from Houston to Reston in 1987. Now, only four years later, all signs point to cuts at the Reston facility.

Special language in this year's budget specifies some belt-tightening at Reston, but there is no such frugality spelled out for the Johnson Space Center. Instead, Congress found $10 million for improvements to the Johnson visitors' center.

A NASA spokesman told us that nothing has been decided yet about the move, and that it was unlikely all of the Reston functions would go to Texas.

Fiscal wisdom should dictate what happens to the space center headquarters, but it appears more likely that pork barrel politics will make the decision.

Sanford's future plan advances

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Copies of the 12 elements of the city's comprehensive plan lined the back wall of Sanford City Hall free for the taking last night, but there were no takers.

Land use maps incorporated into the plan circled the auditorium seats in the commission chambers, but they served as only a backdrop for the city commission's brief discussion of the document.

And no one came forward to speak during the last public hearing on the document before it is submitted to the state Department of Community Affairs.

With such little fanfare, the nearly 1,000 pages outlining Sanford's growth were set to undergo intensive review by the state. The plan must be submitted to DCA by April 1. The commission set the second and final public hearing on the document for September.

Under the 1985 Growth Management Act, all Florida cities and counties are required to outline growth through comprehensive planning documents. The plans show how communities will support new developments through roads, infrastructure and services.

Sanford adopted an initial version of its plan in 1987 and revised that plan last year. The plan the commission authorized for transmittal to the state last night is a much more detailed version of the initial plan, said City Planner Jay Marder.

"All the pieces of the puzzle are ... in your hands," Marder told the commission during last night's hearing.

Solith and Associates, an Orlando planning firm, helped the city compile its comprehensive plan.

transfer to the new school next year. The latter group includes those who live on the east side of Lake Emma Road from Boy Road north to Lake Mary Boulevard.

At public hearings in the past few weeks, parents from Sanford and Lake Mary have presented modification proposals regarding Plan A which would include their neighborhoods. Those modifications were not included in the plan which was approved last night.

District officials used a computer program called Edulog to help draw up the attendance zones.

Edulog analyzes the numbers of students, including information about minority make up, in each neighborhood that could be affected by rezoning.

The moves which were approved last night will put 692 students in the classrooms at Heathrow Elementary next year. There will be a 7.5 percent minority population at the school.

Heathrow Elementary is currently under construction. It is expected to open in November 1991.

Census confirms America's rich ethnic mix

By TIM ROVER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The number of Hispanics and Asians in the United States exploded in the 1980s, the census shows. Whites had a smaller share of the nation's population at the end of the decade, and blacks gained only slightly.

The numbers underlined the vast changes in the nation's composition in the past decades. In 1950, less than 1 percent of the country was counted as something other than white or black — 40 years later, it was more than 7 percent.

The nation's white majority declined from 89 percent of the population to 80 percent. Blacks remained the largest minority, at 30 million, a 13-percent gain over the decade and 12 percent of the population.

The number of Asians and Pacific Islanders living in the United States more than doubled in the 1980s — the fastest-growing group by far. At 7.3 million, they are 3 percent of the population.

Hispanics grew by 53 percent, to 22.4 million, and were 9 percent of the nation.

People declaring themselves Hispanics could also be counted as members of a racial group, such as white or black. It was impossible to say how many of each race also considered themselves to be culturally Hispanic.

Two million people said they were American Indians, up 38 percent from 10 years earlier. Nearly 10 million people said they were of a race other than the choices given on the census form.

The richer mix suggests ethnic politics will be important in the 1990s, with immigration policy and equal opportunity the hot issues, said Dave Simcox, director of the Center for Immigration Studies.

"I think as the new ethnics assert themselves, it has the effect of pushing the old ethnics into discovering their ethnicity and wanting a share of the pie," he said.

The rapidly growing minorities may identify themselves more with their nation of origin, however, than with the general census categories.

"I think Asians and Latinos are more diverse," said Bill O'Hare of the Population Reference Bureau, a Washington research group. "We talk about Asians, but among themselves I suspect they talk about Koreans and Chinese and Vietnamese."

Likewise, national differences among Hispanics are also great. "The fact that those are growing the fastest increases the diversity of minority populations in general," O'Hare said.

The ethnic numbers released Sunday by the Census Bureau covered broad categories that obscured differences within ethnic groups. More detailed ethnic information will be released, state by state, beginning in the late summer or fall of this year.

The ethnic breakdowns were given to state governments to use in redrawing the boundaries of congressional districts and other legislative seats.

Historian says Reagan a mystery to him, and Nancy

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's official biographer says the former president is "the most mysterious man I have ever confronted," and even Nancy Reagan is bewildered by him.

The remarks by prize-winning historian Edmund Morris were made at a closed meeting last October at the White Burkett Miller Center of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia.

They were published, apparently prematurely, in the organization's current newsletter.

"He is the most mysterious man I have ever confronted. It is impossible to understand him," Morris was quoted as saying.

Morris won the Pulitzer Prize and the American Book Award in 1980 for "The Rise of Theodore Roosevelt," the first volume in a projected three-volume biography of the 26th president.

He has been working on the Reagan biography since 1985, and it is expected to be published next year by Random House.

"I went through a period of a year or so of depression because I felt that with all my research, how come I can't understand the first thing about him?" Morris said of Reagan.

"He grew more puzzling the more I tried to study him. I only came out of this despair when I found out that everybody else who had ever known him, including his wife, is equally bewildered."

Kenneth W. Thompson, director of the Miller Center, said the writer took part in two sessions, one off the record and one on the record.

"I am afraid our people jumped the gun a little bit, because he was supposed to see both versions before there was any release of them," Thompson said. Robin Kuzen, editor of the newsletter, said the quoted remarks were made in the on-the-record session.

Morris' telephone in Washington was answered by a recording.

Bill Garber, Reagan's spokesman in Los Angeles, said the former president and his wife were out of town but he did not believe they would have any comment.

As part of the arrangement with the White House, Morris sat in on many closed meetings conducted by the president.

Miller said his interest was piqued when, watching on television, he saw the "agony" on Reagan's face as he emerged from a museum at the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp during a visit to West Germany in 1985 that included a controversial stop at a cemetery

Baker sees change in Arabs

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

JERUSALEM — Secretary of state James A. Baker III, finding signs of new Arab attitudes toward Israel, met with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir today in an effort to push the nascent peace process forward with a positive Israeli response.

They met for 75 minutes in "a very friendly, warm and cooperative atmosphere," Shamir's media adviser, Avi Pazner, reported.

He said Shamir agreed with Baker on a two-track approach to a Middle east settlement. "We have the feeling we can start to try to make the process of peace go," Pazner said.

The parallel tracks are aimed at opening

Israeli talks with Arab nations on the one hand and with Palestinians on the other.

Pazner maintained the Israeli government actually had originated the strategy. He provided no details of Baker's session with Shamir and said they would meet again this evening at dinner.

Baker, setting the stage for his talks with Shamir, said on Monday night of the Arabs: "I have seen what I consider to be, at least, signs of new thinking. I have seen what I consider to be a willingness to consider new approaches."

But, Baker said, apparently directing his remarks to Shamir, "whether that ripens and materializes into specific, concrete commitments will depend on large part on whether or not there is a similar attitude coming from the other side of the equation."

For the time being, though, Baker and Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy said at a joint news conference, Arab attitudes toward the Jewish state were changing.

Baker reported to Levy in advance of his meeting with Shamir on the talks he held in Saudi Arabia and Egypt with leaders of eight Arab countries.

"I am pleased they are beginning to show signs of change," Levy said.

Apart from his campaign to draw Israel and the Arab nations closer, Baker is meeting with a group of Palestinian Arabs in an opening bid to set up a dialogue with Israel.

In fact, the Palestinians due to see Baker at the home of Philip Wilcox, the U.S. consul general in Jerusalem, have met in the past with Israeli and U.S. officials.

Electoral gains could wean rebels from rifles

By DOUGLAS GRANT HINE
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — The left's impressive showing in weekend elections may contribute to peace by reinforcing a recent rebel conclusion that armed struggle has reached the point of diminishing returns.

This small volcano-studded country has been bed for 12 years by a class-rooted civil war fraught with ideology and fomented by intolerance.

That seven political parties running the gamut from arch-conservative to Marxist could compete at all in Sunday's vote demonstrates El Salvador's political culture has matured since the violent days of the early 1980s.

The Republican Nationalist Alliance, the governing rightist party known as Arena, received more ballots than any other in Sunday's municipal and legislative balloting.

MacKay aides' pay up under Chiles

By BRENT KALLESTAD
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles ran into controversy after taking office when he decided to pay his agency heads $98,000 — a big jump over in salaries for those positions under his predecessor.

But not only the bosses are bringing in higher salaries in the new administration, secretaries also are being paid at unprecedented rates.

Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay is paying his personal secretary, Nancy Cowart, $45,000 annually — $7,000 more than Chiles' secretary Nina Martinez earns, and $18,500 more than Gov. Bob Martinez paid his personal secretary, Alisha Davidson.

When former Gov. Bob Graham left office four years ago, his personal secretary, Bonnie Kidd, earned $20,600.

MacKay said the secretary salaries were set by Chief of Staff Jim Krog, whose personal secretary, Tena Pate, earns $28,000 annually. She is a veteran state employee and holdover from the previous administration.

Cowart, 54, is among the increasing number of Washington hands being brought to Florida by the new administration. Chiles' spokeswoman Mary Jane Gallagher said Cowart's responsibilities exceed the normal functions of most other Capitol secretaries.

"It's not a fair comparison to look at this lieutenant governor and compare him to previous lieutenant governors," said Gallagher. "He has a ... very small staff to help him carry out the mission the governor has given him."

The governor's office has at least three people handling the responsibilities Cowart has in MacKay's office.

In addition to the governor's $38,000 personal secretary, longtime MacKay aide Samella King is paid $50,000 as appointments director and Michalene Tall is a $40,000 special assistant to Chiles.

Salaries for the secretaries working for the six independently elected Cabinet members range from $31,534 to $38,160.

MacKay also found well-paying jobs for two young women from the campaign.

Longtime MacKay aide Julie Fletcher, 29, was given a $69,000 job as assistant secretary in the Department of Commerce while 26-year-old campaign fund raiser Allison Rainey is paid $21.50 an hour in a temporary position as a policy adviser.

Fletcher works for Greg Farmer, who managed MacKay's unsuccessful U.S. Senate campaign in 1988 and now runs the Department of Commerce.

"She has all of my confidence," Farmer said Monday, noting Fletcher earned the same as her predecessor in that position. "She runs the day-to-day operations of the department."

Sole survivor recalls fatal boating accident

Associated Press

VERO BEACH — A survivor of a dramatic weekend boating accident that left one dead and three others missing says he watched one of his friends perish in the Atlantic and another die before his eyes.

The search is expected to resume today for three men missing since they reported engine problems Saturday and capsized in the pre-dawn hours Monday.

"I have a son and I kept thinking, 'Who's going to take care of him?'" said Michael Joseph. "I wasn't going to die — no matter what."

Joseph, 43, of Fort Lauderdale, and Kendrick Lochan, 25, of Golden Beach, both were in fair condition Monday night, after being airlifted by a Coast Guard helicopter to Indian River Memorial Hospital. Both suffered complications from hypothermia.

Their 21-foot boat was located about 10:30 a.m. Monday morning about 33 miles east of Vero Beach by the coastal freighter Chemical Explorer, said miami coast Guard spokesman Petty Officer Joe Dye. Joseph and Lochan were standing on the capsized hull, waving their arms. Joseph said the boat capsized about 2 a.m. Monday.

The three who were still missing this morning had left the boat in an attempt to swim to shore, Joseph said.

"One guy just perished," he said, uncertain which of his friends he had watched being pulled under the water during the ordeal.

The dead person was identified by the Coast Guard as Neal Perriera Lochan, 16, the brother of Kendrick Lochan. His body was tied to the boat to prevent it from drifting away.

Joseph said he tried to revive Perriera Lochan, begging him to hold on.

"He just didn't have the courage anymore," Joseph said from his hospital bed.

Still missing, according to the Coast Guard, were Peter Rambilly, 45, of Margate, along with the Lochans' father, Bamphille Lochan, 45, and Jose Valentine, 25, of Golden Beach.

Valentine made the initial distress call to the Coast Guard on a cellular phone about 5:20 p.m. Saturday. The group had left Haulover Park in Dade County earlier that day, venturing into 30 mph winds and 10 foot seas.

"He said they had engine problems and the boat was disabled," Dye said. "He said they had enough life jackets for everybody, but we don't know if everybody was wearing one."

Let Julie Help You Like Your Hair

Julie McGhee is a stylist at The Mane Event on the corner of Park Avenue and 25th Street. With 13 years experience and a few miles under her belt. She has been licensed in Minnesota, North Dakota, Texas and Florida; Julie has developed a common sense, no nonsense approach to hair styling.

"You wear your hair everyday, whether you like it or not. I can help you like it." This is the motto Julie has adopted. And with her background and training, she ought to be able to live up to her motto. Julie started her career in Minnesota, going to Beauty School in Rochester and working there till she had a job offer to open and manage a command performance in Grand Forks, North Dakota. While in Minnesota she held office as treasurer and Vice President of the NHCA Hair-dressing Affiliate, turning down the position of President to take the job position in Grand Forks. She moved back to Minnesota to open her own salon. She did quite well there till she got a job offer to manage a new salon in Austin, Texas. Warm weather won out and she went to Texas.

She has been in the Sanford area working since May. Some of you may have seen her in the Winn Dixie Marketplace. She'd like to invite all of her present clients as well as any new ones to her new location at The Mane Event.

Not satisfied with her basic training, Julie has continued her education by attending various hair shows, the biggest being the 1984 Hair Olympics in Las Vegas, seminars held by internationally known hair dressers, and in-shop training programs.

Julie specializes in mens and womens cuts, perms, colors and braids. She also is experienced in facial waxing and ear piercing.

Give Julie a call at The Mane Event 330-0506, to schedule your experience with a common sense approach to beauty.

Minosos to play

POMPANO BEACH — Former Chicago White Sox star Minnie Minoso has found a way to play professional baseball in a sixth decade.

Mike Veeck, president of the Florida State League's Pompano Beach Miracle, said Monday that Minoso will play April 13 in a home game against the Fort Lauderdale Yankees.

The 68-year-old Minoso, whose regular playing career ended in 1964, was blocked by baseball commissioner Fay Vincent from playing in a White Sox game last season. Minoso, who played his first major-league game in 1949, had made token appearances in 1976 and 1980 to claim participation in five decades.

IN BRIEF

Orchid show slated

The Central Florida Orchid Society presents its 36th Annual Spring Orchid Show March 22 thru 24. It is held at the Winter Park Mall, Orlando Avenue, Winter Park.

The Show, which is open to the public, as always, features thousands of live flowering orchid plants, exhibited in beautiful naturalistic settings. Orchids will be offered for sale to the public by commercial growers and on Saturday, society members will report plants for a small fee.

Of special interest this year is a one-man show of oriental floral designs featuring orchids. These arrangements are the creation of Mme. Henny Dickenson, famed worldwide as a floral designer and instructor.

Admission to the show is free and is open to the public Friday, March 22 from 1 to 9 p.m., Saturday, March 23, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Sunday, March 24, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. Anyone wishing to enter an orchid for competition in the show may bring it to the Mall Thursday, March 21, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Preserve freedom, speak up for others

DEAR ABBY: The Nazis killed my aunt not long before I was inducted into the service in 1945. My father's last days at age 94 (some 45 years later) were consumed by that terrible occurrence.

Just today I watched a television talk show where a vocal minority made some very convincing comments against our involvement in the war against Iraq. Although I would not wish to silence that group's warnings, because I, too, felt uneasy about our entering yet another war, I'm enclosing a gem of a piece that appeared in your column. Please print it again. It is timeless.

ADVICE

a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

ERIC SCHOENHAAR, GREELEY, COLO.

DEAR ERIC: That "gem of a piece" has appeared in my column several times, and I agree. It is indeed timeless. And it's also timely.

It was written by the Rev. Martin Niemöller, a German Lutheran pastor who was arrested by the Gestapo in 1938. He was sent to Dachau concentration camp where he remained until he was freed by the Allied forces in 1945. It was titled "I Didn't Speak Up" — and here it is:

"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't which he nursed her devotedly, and he doesn't want me to have to go through the same thing with him. I try to tell him that growing old does not necessarily mean getting sick and becoming a burden.

I want to marry this man and enjoy whatever time we have left together. What words of wisdom do you have to help me convince this wonderful man that we must live in the present, take our chances and hope for the best?

IN LOVE WITH IRVING
DEAR IN LOVE: Your own words of wisdom sound pretty good to me. None of us has a contract with God, and it's just as well that we don't know what the future holds for any of us. Think positive, take good care of yourselves — and each other — and hope for the best.

DEAR ABBY: Someone told me he had recently read in your column that if a man or woman has lost a family member in the war, that person is automatically exempt from active duty if a war should break out.

Please clarify this in your column. I need this information immediately in writing.

BALTIMORE MOM
DEAR BALTIMORE MOM: I published the information in November 1990. But for anyone who might have missed it who now needs it:

According to the Public Affairs Office of the Department of the Army, if a member of the armed services has lost an immediate family member (father, mother, brother, sister or child) in a designated hostile-fire or imminent-danger area (the loss may be due to death, missing in action, or from a 100 percent physical or mental disability), the service member can apply for exemption. It is not "automatic."

The service member initiates action by contacting his/her company commander. For an immediate family member to make application, a request must be made in writing to: HQDA, DAPC-EPO-C, Alexandria, Va. 22331-0400. And the service member may waive a request initiated by an immediate family member and still serve in the hostile-fire area.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "MY TURN IN TORONTO": Seize the opportunity to be superior. "By taking revenge, a man is even with his enemy, but by passing it over, he is superior." (Noah Webster)

SISTER's join trust

President Emy Bill presided at the SISTER, Inc. monthly luncheon meeting held at the Bowl America Building recently.

During the business meeting members voted to join the Sanford Historic Trust. Shown drafting a check for club membership are Martha Yancey, Jean Fowler, Beth Welebob (back row, 1 to r) and Viola Frank and Emy Bill, front row. Bill introduced guest speaker, Dr. Richard O. Gregory, M.D.

Gregory is from the Center for Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery at Florida Hospital, Plaza and an international leader in laser surgery. He is considered one of three experts in this country. His presentation included plastic and reconstruction techniques for birth defects, accident victims, burns and birthmarks, as well as the many aspects of cosmetic surgery and skin peels.

Hurrah for Do-Do-Day

Do-Do-Day held last Saturday at the First United Methodist Church turned out to be a "real good day," according to Ashby Jones. Over 200 attended the fish fry and the bake sale and plant sale were sell-outs. Ashby said.

A steady stream of shoppers strolled through the premises searching for the bargains offered at the huge yard sale. The event was termed a big success.

See your urologist about incontinence

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For the past year, my 10-year-old daughter has had a problem with urinary incontinence. Within minutes upon standing after urination, she experiences an involuntary release. Urinalysis is negative, but the problem persists. Could it be anatomical?

DEAR READER: Yes, it could. The sequence of events you describe suggests to me that your daughter may be unable to empty her bladder completely; then, when she stands, the internal sphincter — one of two rings of muscle controlling urination — relaxes, leading to incontinence.

Pediatric urology is a complex subspecialty because children's urological problems are often unique and result from congenital abnormalities of the genitourinary tract. Therefore, I urge you to have your daughter examined by such a specialist. After appropriate examination, which should include an IVP (kidney X-ray) and cystoscopy (during which the specialist introduces a lighted instrument into the bladder), the doctor will be able to advise you about treatment.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Kidney Disorders" and "Bladder." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 for each report to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has leukoplakia. The areas in his mouth become large and tender but never go away completely. Is there a medication you would recommend for treatment?

DEAR READER: Leukoplakia are flat, painless, pearly-white irregular skin lesions in the mouth, commonly caused by tobacco products. In the past, dentists and doctors were incorrectly taught that leukoplakia are pre-cancerous; this is not true: Less than 5 percent ultimately prove to be malignant. Skin cancers in the mouth appear most often as red, inflamed areas.

Because your husband's lesions are large and tender, they should be biopsied because skin malignancies may exist adjacent to (or beneath) such areas. To my knowledge, there is no medicine that will cure leukoplakia or mouth cancer. Your husband should be examined by an oral surgeon.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Today's hand bears a certain similarity to yesterday's in that there is a chance to ruff a club loser in the dummy. However, appearances can be deceptive. How would you try to make four hearts against a spade lead?

You might think South is a little weak to jump straight to four hearts. However, he has a useful side-suit singleton and excellent controls (aces and kings). Also, the game bonus is so large that any time you can smell a game, bid that game!

It looks as if you should play to ruff the fourth club in the dummy, but the defenders have the jump on you. The play would go something like this: Club to East's 10, trump return, club to East's king, trump, club to West's queen, trump — and no club ruff.

There is a better route to 10 tricks. Win the first trick in hand with the ace or king of spades, play a diamond to dummy's ace, ruff a diamond in hand, lead a trump to the dummy, ruff a second diamond with the king of hearts, return to dummy with another trump, and ruff the last diamond with the ace of hearts. Now overtake the carefully preserved jack of spades with dummy's queen, draw the final trump and cash the last spade winner.

Your 10 tricks are three spades, three top hearts in the dummy, the ace of diamonds and three diamond ruffs in hand.

This is called a dummy reversal and is one of the prettiest — and rarest — of declarer-play techniques.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 March 13, 1991

Your year ahead might not be measured in ordinary terms. A number of beneficial surprises could be in the offing, of both the esthetic and material kind.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A commercial endeavor that you have been contemplating should not be left to gather dust any longer. Properly handled, this might provide you with that second source of income you've been desiring. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avail yourself of any opportunities today to go places where you can establish fresh contacts. You may be introduced to someone who could be important to your future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something may occur at this time that will enable you to reap benefits disproportionate to your involvement in an endeavor. Lady Luck will have a hand in the dispersal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could be luckier than usual today where new ventures are concerned, provided they are not too avant-garde or bizarre. Steer a middle course.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are presently in a cycle where you might do things on a scale bigger than the one to which you're accustomed. Don't be intimidated by big shots or big numbers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You shouldn't have too much trouble promoting support for a matter you believe in today. Others will be interested for the same reasons you are, and you'll effectively make your case.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You should be able to take charge of an important arrangement currently being mismanaged by someone you like today. You'll do a good job.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) One of the principle reasons you'll be warmly received by contemporaries today is your ability to make them think that the sound suggestions you supply are actually authored by them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your luck is focused in ways that could help you achieve meaningful objectives today. Tune into the trend and do something worthwhile.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should be extremely charismatic today in involvements that have social overtones. Don't be surprised when others cluster around you like months to a flame.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even though your goals may not be readily apparent to associates today, the results you achieve will be. Keep in mind, in the final analysis, it is the bottom line that counts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If there is a written agreement you've been wanting to get signed, this is a good day to push for the "John Hancock." It should work out well for all parties concerned.
