Brothers Charged With Keeping House Of Ill Fame

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A 47-year-old Casselberry man and his 50-year-old brother are accused of operating a prostitution ring out of the Seminole Referral Dating Service in the Regency Square Plaza, Casselberry.

The pair were charged Thursday at 10:08 p.m. with living off the earnings of prostitutes and keeping a house of ill fame after Seminole County undercover agents completed an investigation of the operation.

In November the agents began checking out complaints by people who alleged that the dating service was a front for prostitution. The agents were unsuccessful in several attempts to negotiate an agreement for sex from any of the 10 women who were allegedly working for the men.

A sheriff's report said the women were well versed in Florida law related to procurement, so informants were called in, who could proceed to negotiate with the women beyond the limitations that restricted the lawmen's ability to complete their investigation.

On two occasions in January the informants allegedly paid two of the women $150 per hour each for their services. When the women were leaving the motel rooms where they allegedly had sex with the informants they were approached by agents. The women agreed to cooperate with the lawmen and were not charged because, according to sheriff's spokesman John Spolski, the officers considered the pending arrest of the men to be more critical. The men allegedly received 50 percent of the money the women earned.

After reviewing information provided by two of the women and evidence obtained from recorded conversations between the brothers, one of the women and an informant, during which the suspects allegedly accepted money from the woman and describe their operation, saying it netted them between $5,000 to $8,000 a week, the agents made the arrests.

William Maxie Grainger of 241 Lake Griffin Circle, Casselberry, and Alfred David Grainger of 1600 33rd St., Orlando, are being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond each. They were arrested at the dating service, located at 15-Regency Square Plaza, State Road 436, Casselberry. Both men are scheduled to appear in court at 1:30 p.m. today.

Challenger Streaks Into Orbit

Smooth Countdown And A 'Great Ride'

By Al Rossiter Jr.
UPI Science Editor

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The shuttle Challenger streaked into orbit today carrying five men, three arthritic rats, two communications satellites and a pair of jet backpacks designed to turn two spacewalkers into human satellites.

With Vance Brand and Robert "Hoot" Gibson at the controls, the ship blasted away from Earth on schedule at 8 a.m. EST after one of the smoothest countdowns ever at the sprawling spaceport.

Mission specialists Robert Stewart and Ronald McNair rode on the flight deck behind the two pilots and the fifth crewman, Bruce McCandless, was seated on the lower deck for the 9-minute acceleration to the 17,000-mph orbital speed.

The veteran rocket plane soared into a final orbit, about 180 miles high, 47 minutes after launch on the push of twin maneuvering engines.

"It was really a great ride," said Brand after being told by mission control in Houston that all was going well.

"It looks like we're on the way to a real good one," said launch director Robert Sieck.

The mission, 10th for a shuttle, is a vital rehearsal for a satellite rescue mission in April. Next week's unprecedented spacewalks without lifelines also will demonstrate men can fly about to construct the space station President Reagan wants built by the early 1990s.

The rocket plane is scheduled to return to the space center Feb. 11, making the first shuttle landing on the spaceport's new 3-mile-long runway.

The early stages of Challenger's planned 127-orbit voyage made it look routine.

Preliminary orbit was achieved at 8:13 a.m. and Brand said, "Everything's going good." Mission control in Houston said all systems were operating as planned on this fourth flight for Challenger.

The ship, weighing 2,252 tons at liftoff, rode a now-familiar pillar of orange flame into the partly cloudy sky and shed its twin solid-propellant booster rockets 33 miles above the Atlantic 2 minutes later.

Challenger's three main engines shut down as planned 9 minutes after blastoff. Then the big orange external tank separated as planned to fall back into the Indian Ocean.

The prime objective of the eight-day flight is to launch two communications satellites for Western Union and the government of Indonesia.

But the final six days will be devoted to rehearsing procedures for the next shuttle flight, set to start April 4 when five astronauts will attempt to catch and fix a crippled $77 million, 310-mile-high sun-watching satellite called Solar Max.

McCandless and Stewart will try out new $10 million jet backpacks during spacewalks Tuesday and Thursday. They will fly up to 300 feet away from the shuttle without lifelines for the first time, becoming true human satellites, orbiting Earth at 17,500 mph.

One of those nitrogen jet backpacks will be used to propel George Nelson 300 feet over to the Solar Max satellite in April. He will latch onto the satellite and then use the backpack's jets to stabilize the satellite so the shuttle's mechanical arm can place it into the payload bay.

Not only will the two flight 10 spacewalkers try out the manned maneuvering units, but McCandless will practice hooking up to a slowly rotating instrument package to simulate April's satellite hookup. He also will duplicate a repair operation.

And on Sunday and Monday, Brand and Gibson will eject a 6 1/2-foot plastic balloon and then use it as a rendezvous target — another rehearsal for April's satellite chase operation.

McNair, the second black to fly on a shuttle, will concentrate on a variety of experiments aboard Challenger.

One involves the observation of six rats, three of which have been injected with a killed bacteria solution that causes severe arthritis. The experiment was designed by Dan Weber, a sophomore at Cornell University, after he noticed that swimming eased the arthritis of his grandfather, presumably because the body's buoyancy in the water reduced pressure on joints.

Weber hypothesized that weightlessness in orbit might have the same effect.

Helicopter Crashes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. Army troop-carrying helicopter with 10 people aboard crashed in mountainous terrain in Honduras because of bad weather Thursday, killing four people and injuring the other six, a Pentagon spokesman said today. No further details were available at press time.

The space shuttle Challenger, as seen from the Sanford marina, rises out of the fog and clouds at 8 a.m. today in what was described by astronaut Vance Brand as "a really great ride." Pilots Brand and Robert "Hoot" Gibson are scheduled to land the shuttle on the 3-mile long Kennedy Space Center runway Feb. 11. It will be the first Kennedy landing.

Protester Arrested For Theft

Spotted by sheriff's deputies at a protest in front of the Seminole County Courthouse, an Apopka man was arrested on a charge of grand theft.

Sean C. Davis, 31, of 3202 Holiday Ave., was arrested at about 1 p.m. Thursday after participating in a protest regarding a divorce decree issued by Circuit Court Judge Dominick J. Salfi.

While Davis' arrest was unconnected with the 12-person protest, it was his visibility in the protest that allowed deputies to recognize him, one of the arresting officers said. Davis was a protest organizer for his aunt, Laurel K. Ising, of the same address, who is suing Salfi over a provision of a divorce decree ordering her to sell her house and give her ex-husband $25,000.

State Attorney Sued In Case of Mistaken Identity

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

You know you've done nothing wrong, but an assistant state attorney says you robbed a store and the store manager says you robbed the store.

Before the trial starts however, your fingerprints prove you not only did not rob a store, but that you've never been arrested.

The state drops the case, and you try to forget it. But you can't. One day before a statute of limitations can take effect, you file a civil suit against the state.

Seminole-Brevard State Attorney Douglas Cheshire is being sued in civil court by a woman who claims one of his assistants falsely charged her with robbery and refused to verify that she was not the person arrested for the crime.

The suit, which seeks unspecified damages in excess of $5,000, also names a Sanford business whose representatives allegedly accused the woman of robbery and theft.

On March 4, 1980, Cheshire, or his assistants, decided not to prosecute the case, according to the complaint.

In the suit filed in Seminole Circuit Court Jan. 24, one day before the most common statute of limitations would take effect, Joan Ann Johnson, 42, of 6143 Arundel Drive, Orlando, claims she was falsely charged with a Dec. 20, 1979, robbery of a Walgreen's store in Sanford.

Ms. Johnson said in her complaint that she received a notice in January 1980 to appear in court Jan. 25, 1980, on the charges of robbery and theft. At the hearing, she stated that she told County Judge Harold F. Johnson, she had never been arrested or charged with anything. The judge, according to the suit, told the assistant state attorney, Patrick J. Deese, to check with the booking office regarding her claim.

Mrs. Johnson states in the complaint that the assistant state attorney refused to check the photographs and fingerprints of the person arrested for the crime and told her to go to his office and wait. There, she asserts in the complaint, he arranged a confrontation between her, Walgreen's store manager Edward Hambrecht, and himself.

According to records on file in the misdemeanor division of the Seminole County Courthouse, a Joan Ann Johnson, 37, of 6143

To Match Unique State Grant

SCC Starts Fund Drive For High-Tech Equipment

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

A fund-raising drive to match a state grant for "much needed" technical equipment for Seminole Community College was kicked off at a breakfast meeting at the college this morning.

Dede Schaffner, an alumnus of the school, and Bill Schaffner, a former chairman of the SCC Board of Trustees, are co-chairing the effort to raise $25,000 for the SCC Foundation Developmental Council to match state funding. The drive will be conducted throughout February and the deadline for receiving contributions to match the grant is March 1.

The drive was developed, said Dean of Students Dr. James Sawyer, because of new state law setting up a state Academic Improvement Trust Fund to grant community colleges $4 for new technical equipment for every $6 raised locally.

"It's a unique grant program, the only one of its type in the nation," Sawyer said. "It was set with the hopes of fostering a closer relationship between colleges and the community."

Contributions are tax deductible. "We hope not only the general community, but also the business and professional community in the county will participate," Sawyer said.

Sawyer said SCC President Dr. Earl Weldon views the real goal of the drive as laying the foundation for future efforts.

"If the public believes the community college has had a significant and positive influence on the community, they will support us in this effort," Sawyer said.

"Every year the college identifies unmet equipment needs at the school," Sawyer said, and this year it is estimated that those needs total $2 million.

"We need this equipment to bring the school into the high technology area and must add computers to the classroom and institute robotics into the technological programs," Sawyer said.

Contributions for scholarships will also be gratefully accepted even though funds for that purpose cannot be used for matching the state grant, Sawyer said.

Seminole Community College opened in Sanford near Five Points in 1966 with 733 students. Today the college serves 21,000 yearly and thousands of Seminole County residents have earned college credit toward a baccalaureate degree, have acquired occupational skills and have participated in adult and continuing education programs at the school.

In the 1983 fall term, 3,947 SCC college credit students and 1,540 occupational students listed Seminole County as their place of residence.

The number of in-state residents attending the college comprise 90 percent of the total enrollment.

In the past fiscal year the college brought $14 million to Central Florida through personnel salaries and materials purchased from local vendors. Since 1966 the college has brought more than $90 million to the community, not including the $21 million invested in buildings.

IN BRIEF

Police Suspect Link In 5 Murders In 10 Days

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UPI) — Five women have been killed in the Tidewater area in the last 10 days and a police task force is working to determine if the slayings are the work of the same person.

The deaths have yet to be conclusively linked, police say, but all occurred within a 30-mile area. Each victim was shot once in the head, each about lunchtime. All the slayings occurred near busy downtown streets, and there have been no witnesses.

The body of the latest victim, described as about 35 or 40 years old, was discovered in the parking lot of a downtown Newport News church Thursday. Police said the unidentified woman was wearing nothing but a wrist watch.

That case was the first involving a nude victim and police said they are not sure it is related to the other slayings. Sexual molestation has not been ruled out in the latest case.

Judge: Man Can Starve

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Doctors will obey a court order and respect the wishes of a dying 85-year-old patient who wants to starve to death rather than live a life of pain.

State Supreme Court Justice Donald Miller Thursday ordered the nursing home in which the unidentified man lives not to force feed him and his doctors promised to obey. New York State Health Department officials said they would not appeal the ruling.

The ruling was opposite of the recent California Supreme Court decision in the case of Elizabeth Bouvia, a cerebral palsy victim, who wanted to be allowed to starve herself to death at Riverside General Hospital.

The 26-year-old woman, who is confined to a wheelchair, checked herself into the hospital last September saying she wanted to starve to death rather than live in what she called a "useless body."

The state's highest court rejected her petition last month, saying the United States Constitution does not give citizens the right to kill themselves.

Klansman Condemned

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — An Alabama judge, ignoring a jury's recommendation for a life sentence, condemned to death a Ku Klux Klansman for the killing of a young black man.

Mobile County Circuit Judge Braxton Kittrell Thursday sentenced Klansman Henry Francis Hays to die in the electric chair on April 30 for the killing of Michael Donald, 19, who was beaten with a tree limb, strangled and slashed across the throat before his body was hanged from a tree.

A predominantly white jury convicted Hays, 29, of capital murder on Dec. 10, 1983, then recommended that he spend life in prison without parole.

Defense attorney M.A. "Bubba" Marsal refused to comment on Kittrell's sentence, which carries an automatic appeal.

Ex-Firefighter: No Appeal

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Former Iowa City firefighter Linda Eaton, who lost her sex discrimination suit against the city, says she cannot afford to appeal the verdict.

A Johnson County District Court jury Thursday rejected Ms. Eaton's $940,000 suit, in which she alleged her co-workers harassed her after she won a civil rights suit letting her breast-feed her infant son while on duty.

The jury, after three days of deliberations, agreed with defense arguments that a certain amount of horseplay and rough behavior is common in a firehouse.

Unemployment Down Again

Improvements Show Up Throughout The Job Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped for the fifth consecutive month to 8 percent in January, with improvements in nearly all segments of the job market, the Labor Department reported today.

The continued decline from the recession high of 10.7 percent gives President Reagan a healthy boost as he starts his re-election campaign, with the overall civilian rate closing in on the 7.4 percent jobless rate prevailing when Reagan was inaugurated three years ago.

The over-the-month drop in the seasonally adjusted rate was 0.2 of a percent point from December's 8.2

percent level. Joblessness now has declined for five straight months, and has not increased since December 1982.

Administration economists have predicted a generally stable situation for the remainder of 1984, projecting in the fiscal 1985 budget sent to Congress Wednesday that joblessness will average 7.8 percent this year.

An alternative unemployment rate that includes 1.7 million members of the military as a part of the work force, declined from 8.1 percent to 7.9 percent in January.

Labor Statistics Commissioner Janet Norwood, in testimony prepared for a congressional Joint Economic Committee hearing, said the employment situation in January, "continued to move upward, and the unemployment rate continued its steady decline." A comparison with the post 1973-75 recession period highlights the vigor of the current recovery, she said.

"Overall joblessness in the current recovery has, in fact, declined at twice the rate of 1975-76," Mrs. Norwood said. "With all major worker groups showing greater improvement in the earlier period."

She also noted that factory hours, which usually decline sharply in January, were up 0.4 hours after seasonal adjustment.

The data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed the number of jobless persons dropped to 9,026,000 in January, a decline of 169,000 over the month. It is now 2.9 million below the recession high.

Total employment continued to rise to 103.2 million, but at a slower pace in January than the previous two months, as adult men saw a significant increase, but the women's category remained unchanged.

Use Of Deadly EDB Suspended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency today suspended use of the powerful cancer-causing pesticide EDB for disinfecting stored grain and grain milling machinery.

Moving to restrict contamination of the nation's food supply by the chemical, EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus said the emergency action — coupled with the EPA's previous suspension of EDB as a soil fumigant — will eliminate about 97 percent of the chemical's agricultural use.

On the question of EDB contamination in fruit, Ruckelshaus warned that just four days ago, the EPA received information showing EDB "levels higher than we expected in some imported citrus."

"In just a few weeks I will announce my decision as to how we will address that use (in citrus)," the EPA chief said.

Most of the remaining 3 percent of EDB use is as a "quarantine fumigant on fresh citrus and other tropical fruits," the agency said in a statement.

The EPA's emergency suspension of EDB use on stored grain and grain milling machinery — the strongest action the agency can take under law — immediately halts all sales and uses of the substance for those purposes.

"The levels EPA is now recommending are designed to drive down the average dietary burden of EDB to near zero over a three-year period," the agency said. "The primary concern about the dietary risks of EDB is for chronic effects of long-term exposure, such as cancer, and not for an immediate or short-term toxic effect."

—In raw grain intended for human consumption — wheat, corn, oats — the level should not exceed 900 parts per billion.

—For "intermediate products such as flour, various mixes for preparing baked goods, soft cereals and other products that require cooking before eating," the recommended level is 150 parts per billion.

—For "ready-to-eat products such as cold cereals, snack foods, bread and all baked goods, the residue levels should not exceed 30 parts per billion."

Senate Approves Anti-Crime Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved 91-1 a package of bills to aid in the war against crime and today turned to related measures much more difficult to pass.

The crime package passed Thursday after a week's debate narrows the insanity defense, abolishes parole for federal crimes and allows judges to deny bail for dangerous defendants.

Broad support for the package was possible by sorting out controversial provisions for later consideration. The Senate today planned to take up a measure that would limit the time in which criminals could appeal state verdicts to federal courts.

Also up for consideration will be attempts to reinstate the death penalty for federal crimes and to relax the exclusionary rule to permit use of evidence obtained illegally by authorities in some cases.

House passage of the bill is uncertain because of opposition to its sentencing and bail provisions, despite the pressure to pass such popular legislation in an election year.

Senate leaders had expected swift action on the package after culling the controversial items. But debate bogged down over an amendment that would ban federal workers from taping of conversations without permission. The Senate rejected the amendment, 51-41.

The addition grew out of secret tapings by U.S. Information Agency chief Charles Wick of telephone calls with officials, including former President Jimmy Carter and White House chief of state James Baker.

Republicans charged the amendment was aimed at embarrassing Wick and his close friend, President Reagan, and warned it was drafted so hastily it would damage intelligence-gathering and criminal investigations.

A chief sponsor, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said national security was not threatened.

...Mistaken Identity Leads To Suit

 Arundel Drive, Orlando, was arrested Dec. 20, 1979 at 6:30 p.m. in the parking lot of Zayre's on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford, and charged with petit theft, no valid driver's license and careless driving. A woman calling herself Joan Ann Johnson was arrested in 1979 about three minutes after the store manager of Walgreens told Sanford police officer Paul Little that the woman tried to take three bottles of liquor.

The same Ms. Johnson was to appear in court Jan. 4 of 1980 but according to records, did not. She did appear Jan. 25 and the judge entered a plea of not guilty. Her attorney, Richard L. Wilson of Orlando, appeared for her Feb. 4 and a trial date of Feb. 18 was set.

According to Wilson, while the woman arrested Dec. 20 1979 said she was Ms. Johnson, she was in fact another woman in her early 20s, approximately 15 years younger than Ms. Johnson who was 37 at the time. He said when the fingerprints of Ms. Johnson were compared to the ones taken of the person arrested Dec. 20, it proved his client was not the person who committed the crime.

He said the car of the woman arrested was traced to a well-known criminal in Altamonte Springs who is currently serving time for soliciting minors for prostitution. Through the car registration, the woman was located. Wilson said he knows who she is.

The state attorney's office — without a reason entered — decided not to prosecute the case on March 10 of 1980. Deese no longer works for the state attorney's office in Seminole County.

W.J. Patterson, executive director of the State Attorney's office in Titusville, said that the paperwork on the civil suit has been sent to the Florida Division of Risk Management.

Ms. Johnson states in the suit that during the confrontation she was held against her will without probable cause and was unable to freely move about or return to her home or place of employment. She said she was identified, while in the presence of her sister and a friend, in a manner similar to a line-up. She said she had to remove her jacket and turn around for the attorney and the store representative.

The complaint states that the store representative said Ms. Johnson was a thief and a robber and that she had stolen several articles from the store. She states in the complaint that the assistant state attorney said she was a thief and was guilty, could not be innocent, and that she should get an attorney.

Her suit further claims she was restrained against her will, was arrested without legal cause, had her civil rights violated, received "grievous bodily harm," damage to her reputation and has suffered from the "malicious and unwarranted criminal charges."

She stated that the state attorney acted beyond his authority with malice, moral turpitude, wantonness, willfulness or reckless indifference to her rights and asks that the issue be settled by jury trial.

Amtrak Stockholders To Meet In Sanford

The Amtrak corporation will hold its annual stockholders' meeting in Sanford tentatively scheduled for March 22, according to Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce President Jack Horner.

Horner said various corporate officers of Amtrak, including its president, W. Graham Claytor, are scheduled to attend the all-day meeting set to begin around 10:30 a.m.

Horner said Amtrak officers will fly in or train in from around the country to attend the annual meeting at the Sanford chamber offices. Some of the officers and stockholders will visit the local Auto-Train facility and view one of the trains when it arrives.

Horner said more than 70 Amtrak officials are expected to be on hand for the meeting, which will include a luncheon at the chamber. He said the meeting is open to any Amtrak stockholders.

Robbery Victim Tries To Run Down Thief, Misses

The victim of a strongarm robbery in Sanford apparently took violent exception to being ripped off and tried to run down the thief with his car.

Christopher Rizzo, 61, of 2610 Hartwell Ave., Sanford, told police he was on his way to a hardware store about 10:25 a.m. Wednesday when he stopped at the intersection of First Street and Jasmine Drive to ask directions to Airport Boulevard.

According to a police report, the man Rizzo asked said he was going that way and got in Rizzo's 1978 Ford. After the pair had traveled only a short distance, Rizzo's passenger turned off the car and took $41 from Rizzo.

After the robber got out of the car, Rizzo started the car and aimed for the fast-walking bandit, the report said. Just before Rizzo caught up with the man, who was by then running back and forth trying to dodge the oncoming vehicle, the robber jumped out of the way and Rizzo struck a palm tree, doing $1,500 damage to his car.

The robber got away.

"If I could have caught him, I would have killed him," Rizzo said.

Rizzo was not the only victim of strongarm armed robbers in Sanford recently.

Between 11 p.m. and midnight Thursday, Kelly Ann Medlin, 24, of 152 Brayton Road, Winter Park, was walking in the 200 block of U.S. Highway 17-92 when a man grabbed her, ripped her dress, and stole her purse. Ms. Medlin said she told the robber there was no money in the purse. She told police she removed a shoe and threw it at the robber then chased him south on 17-92 but lost him.

Also, a Sanford man told police two men struck him from behind when he was in his back yard and took his wallet.

Gustaf R. Ornberg, 73, of 219 Holly Ave., told police he was in his back yard Tuesday at 9:35 p.m. when two men robbed him.

APARTMENT FIRE
 A second fire in a month has damaged a Fern Park apartment complex, leaving three people homeless.

A New Year's Day fire at the same complex but at a different building forced 26 from their homes.

No one was hurt in the latest blaze.

According to Seminole County fire investigator Ray Pippin, a fire began at about 1 p.m. Thursday in an 18-unit building at the St. John's Village complex on Oxford Road.

The fire, fought by 12 firefighters, started in the heating portion of an air conditioning-heating unit in the apartment, Pippin said. The exact cause of the fire has not been determined.

The three people living in the apartment escaped the fire — which did $25,000 worth of damage, Pippin said.

2 Arrested On Counterfeiting-Related Charges

Seminole County sheriff's deputies joined Winter Park and Orange County investigators to arrest two people on counterfeiting-related charges.

The officers, armed with an Orange County search warrant, raided Ad Watch, Inc., an answering service at 1950 Lee Road, Winter Park.

The raid came after a two-month investigation during which officers gathered evidence indicating the business was a storehouse of hundreds of sheets of blank bank paper, counterfeit drivers licenses, birth certificates, military papers, car titles and checks. Winter Park Det. Gary Collins said that some of the phony items had been tied to at least four Seminole County counterfeiting cases.

Collins, who headed the investigation, said that photo copying equipment, printing instruments, stolen property and a 1979 Lincoln Continental, allegedly driven by a female suspect when she passed a counterfeit check, were seized by the lawmen.

Robert E. Carrano, 41, was charged with grand theft, forgery and manufacturing counterfeit drivers licenses. He is being held in the Orange County jail in lieu of $100,000 bond. Dawn E. Jackson, 18, who was charged with three counts of forgery, posted $100,000 bond and was released from the Orange County jail, Collins said. Both were arrested at Ad Watch late Thursday.

The investigation is continuing and lawmen may make additional arrests related to the passing of the bogus items, Collins said.

IN BRIEF

INS: Hunger Strikers Feeding Publicity Contest

MIAMI (UPI) — Some 130 illegal aliens at a federal detention center who refuse to eat have been separated from the general population and cannot leave except to be escorted to the bathroom or use the telephone, officials say.

The refugees, at Krome Avenue Detention Center, refused to eat Thursday for the 10th consecutive day. They are at the Immigration and Naturalization Service detention center awaiting resolution of their immigration cases.

INS spokesman George Waldrop said the participants were feeding erroneous information to the press and INS was not going to succumb to the "publicity contest" they were trying to create.

The aliens — mostly Indians, Haitians, Bangladeshis and Latins — are protesting slow processing of their political asylum claims.

Police Shooting Accidental

ORLANDO (UPI) — A circuit court judge says law enforcement agencies may want to tighten safety procedures, but ruled the fatal shooting of a construction worker during a drug search at his apartment was unintentional.

Judge Dorothy Russell on Wednesday said Bruce Evans, 26, was killed accidentally Jan. 11 when his apartment door swung open and triggered a 12-gauge shotgun on which the safety device had been disengaged. She said there were no grounds for criminal charges against police officer Raymond Hughes, who was holding the shotgun.

Orlando Mayor Bill Frederick said he would order Police Chief William Koleszar to review police procedures on executing search warrants and safety procedures and a report would be submitted to the city commission within two weeks.

Hughes, 33, still faces a department investigation. The 10-year veteran was suspended without pay following the shooting, but was reinstated Thursday "in a non-combat, non-hazardous duty capacity," Koleszar said.

White: U.S. Covered Up Slaying Of Archbishop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top House Democrat wants the administration to spell out all it knows about accusations that Salvadoran rightist Roberto d'Aubuisson ordered the 1980 assassination of popular Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero.

Robert White, who was the ambassador to El Salvador when Romero was shot, said Thursday the administration has covered up evidence that d'Aubuisson, running for president in El Salvador, ordered Romero's death.

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., the No. 4-ranking Democrat in the House, who with two other members met with White for a briefing on his charges, said the charges raise "serious questions about our government's knowledge of official or semi-official terrorism in El Salvador."

Romero, gunned down March 24, 1980, as he said a funeral mass, was known in El Salvador as the "poor man's bishop" who brushed off death threats to "speak for those who cannot speak."

White, who was replaced soon after Reagan assumed office in 1981, charged that d'Aubuisson set up a lottery to select the architect of Romero's slaying and the winner ended up being an army friend of d'Aubuisson's, Lt. Francisco Amaya Rosa. He said a disgruntled loser who wanted the assignment himself subsequently described the death plot to U.S. officials. The actual triggerman was later killed himself when d'Aubuisson decided he was untrustworthy, White said.

D'Aubuisson denied White's charges while campaigning in El Salvador Thursday.

"He's a liar and worth no more than a cockroach," d'Aubuisson said.

"I call upon the administration to make a full disclosure of the facts in its possession" on the matter "and about the terrorist activities alleged to be supervised from our own territory," Alexander said.

Alexander noted that Reagan recently vetoed a measure that would have required the administration to certify to Congress twice a year that El Salvador was improving human rights conditions if the country was to keep receiving U.S. military aid.

Alexander said Congress may try to "reinststate a reliable certification procedure to govern potential aid to El Salvador," and said the time has come for a congressional probe of the violence "and the support, indirect or otherwise, which our aid provides for it."

White was to have testified Thursday to a subcommittee of the Foreign Affairs panel. The session was rescheduled for Monday morning for reasons unrelated to White's testimony.

Education Or Just Fads?

When poorly educated students move out into professions, they inevitably lower professional standards. Even worse, they become poorly qualified teachers and inculcate incompetence in a whole new generation. Second-rate education has a way of perpetuating itself in a vicious cycle.

Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California, brought these thoughts to mind in his recent address to the Association of American Colleges. He described the state of general education in our nation's universities as "as absolute disaster."

Dr. Kerr places much blame on campus presidents, 80 percent of whom spend their time raising funds and increasing enrollments without much thought to improving curricula.

It used to be that every college graduate could be counted on to have certain basic knowledge. He or she had to pass through a core curriculum that included the great books and ideas of western civilization. Not any more. During the 1960s, requirements were watered down, enrollments were increased and students were given the choice of more and more electives. Today, the emphasis is on technological and professional training. Universities are becoming trade schools for science-based industry and the professions.

This is not altogether bad. It has made students more responsible and more realistic. Indeed, it is difficult to criticize this latest shift in higher education precisely because the humanities aren't what they used to be. While history, literature and philosophy once held sway, college catalogs offer Contemporary Performing Arts programs, Women's Studies and pop sociology courses.

Speaking at the same conference as Clark Kerr, Dr. Charles Muscatine, a professor of English at the University of California at Berkeley, blamed the decline of liberal arts education on the increasing specialization of university disciplines. The idea of a classical general education has given way to esoteric fads and job-related skills.

Part of the responsibility for this decline must go to professors who devote themselves to research, neglecting their role as teacher, and to administrators who encourage this neglect by promoting professors on the basis of their publishing records rather than their teaching abilities.

Our educational institutions need invigorating. Academic standards should be improved, core curricula renewed, and the liberal arts restored to their former place as a crown jewel of education.

More than any other form of government, a democracy requires its citizenry to be equipped for intelligent decisions. And there is no better way of learning about man and society than through the liberal arts. Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire shows what can happen to a society that loses its cultural moorings.

Shut The Loophole

We hope someone high up in the Reagan administration glanced at a page one article of The Wall Street Journal recently. There, he would have seen a detailed description of an astonishing loophole in this country's counter-espionage defenses.

For obvious reasons, Soviet citizens are prohibited from visiting military installations and defense plants in this country. Incredibly, no such general prohibition applies to citizens from Eastern European countries. One guess, then, as to whom the KGB uses to carry out espionage activities in areas of the United States that are closed to Soviet nationals.

The FBI and the CIA have cracked two major espionage cases involving Polish intelligence agents since 1981. In both cases, Polish agents with relatively easy access to the U.S. defense industry obtained reams of highly classified information.

So why are Eastern European nationals left to roam so freely? The rationale is political. American interests would be served by encouraging a more independent Eastern Europe. To that end, many of the restrictions applied to the Soviets are waived for Eastern Europeans.

But where is the connection between making things easier for Soviet intelligence and promoting an Eastern Europe less rigidly controlled by Moscow? This nonsense should be stopped immediately.

INFRASTRUCTURE...

By Jane Casselberry

If you would like to know to be more informed and articulate on the influences and power struggles behind the international news and have a chance to express your opinions on various subjects, "Great Decisions" is for you.

The nationwide program is offered in conjunction with the Foreign Policy Association, a non-profit educational organization in existence for 50 years under the sponsorship of the Casselberry Rotary Club and Seminole Community College.

The first program at the Casselberry Senior Citizen Center, 200 N. Lake Triplet Drive, got underway at 2 p.m. Wednesday with 15 attending. Moderator James L. Whitmore, retired aviation consultant, who has served all over the world with the Federal Aviation Authority, will lead a general discussion of the overall program.

Registration is still open and the only cost is for materials. If someone can't afford the $6 fee for the books, two will be available to read at the senior center, according to manager Valerie Barber.

The goal of the program is to develop understanding of vital issues facing the U.S. and to give individuals a chance to express their views to the nation's foreign policy makers.

Materials are available on these subjects: USSR under Andropov; Central America, Mexico and the U.S.; U.S. Security and World Peace; South Africa, International Debt Crisis; and International Drug Traffic.

Whitmore, a Rotarian who has lived in more than 60 countries and has had experience with people of many backgrounds, will be a great asset in aiding in understanding of world problems, according to Duane Bailey, coordinator of the series.

Sessions will also be held in other locations, dates and times. They include Mondays, 7:30 p.m., Westminster Presbyterian Church, Red Bug Road, Casselberry; Mondays, 7:30 p.m., Seminole County Library, Seminole Plaza; Tuesdays at 7 p.m., at Seminole Community College; and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. at the Community United Methodist Church, Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

JEFFREY HART

Human Mind's History

Author-educator Joseph Campbell is embarked upon a majestic, nay, staggering enterprise of the first importance. It is nothing less than a history of the human mind in terms of its guiding myths, from the silent cultures of prehistory through the present.

The first of his four volumes has now appeared, "The Way of the Nammal Powers" (Harper and Row), and it concerns the myths of the ancient hunting cultures. With its maps and photographs, the volume is itself a stunning work of art — about stunning works of art by people we can never know otherwise.

Campbell's second volume, he told me over lunch recently, is virtually complete. "The Way of the Seeded Earth" will deal with the ancient planting cultures.

"Far more violent than the hunters," Campbell tells me, "human sacrifice." The work on Volume Two is complete. The third and fourth volumes, "The Way of the Celestial Lights" and "The Way of Man," will move from the sky myths of the cities of the ancient cosmos to post-Renaissance man and his computers.

Clearly, this is a project of heroic importance, a summa of Campbell's career as a student of man's myths. It is also one of the great works of our time, an intellectual and artistic effort on the scale of Pound's Cantos, or, even, Dante's Divine Comedy.

Talking with me in that New York restaurant, Joseph Campbell at 79 looked no more than 50, a thin and handsome man in a tweed sport jacket and slightly non-businessman blue shirt.

It quickly became clear that the roots of his interest in myth lie back in the 1920s, in the modern movement in the arts.

I remarked that, all of a sudden, not long after the turn of the century, the now great names began to make myth central to their work: Picasso, Stravinsky, Joyce, Eliot, Pound, Yeats and the rest.

Campbell agreed. "I got a fellowship, and went to Paris in 1927. I discovered Joyce. Later I studied Sanskrit in Munich. I discovered Jung and Mann."

"You found that they had a lot in common."

"Yes. They are all fascinated with the great patterns or archetypes that characterize the human spirit and find expression in myth, art and religion."

We both speculated aloud about why a preoccupation with PATTERN appeared so suddenly early in the 20th century, though it had roots further back in the 19th.

Over wine and good pasta, we agreed on a theory. Art became interested in these profound patterns because the multiplicity of modern life was slipping out of emotional and intellectual control. Things were moving so fast, indeed accelerating, and becoming so complex and contradictory, that the sensitive mind naturally sought some deeper pattern to unify them.

Thus, in Eliot's "Waste Land" or Joyce's "Ulysses," the baffling details of the surface — which suggest our daily experience of the formless — find a reconciling pattern below the surface through an appeal to ancient forms.

Egypt Uses American Cash For Weapons

WASHINGTON — The financially strapped Egyptian government has come up with an ingenious plan to meet overdue payments on the military hardware it has been buying from the United States: Use $103 million in U.S. aid funds.

With one hand, Egypt would take economic aid from Uncle Sam and, with the other, pay some of the money back to Uncle Sam for military aid. And the Reagan administration is apparently encouraging this flagrantly illegal scheme.

Ever since the 1978 Camp David accords, the United States has been pumping more than $1 billion a year in economic aid into Egypt — a sort of baksheesh that ex-President Carter was willing to give Egypt for signing the peace treaty with Israel.

But the billions in aid have been soaked up like so many teacups of water poured on the desert sand, with little visible result except for the enrichment of a few contractors, Egyptian middlemen and corrupt officials. Part of

WILLIAM RUSHER

Warning To The GOP

NEW YORK (NEA) — As any observant reader of this column knows, I have not gone along with those conservative leaders, such as Richard Viguerie and Howard Phillips, who have become profoundly disenchanted with Ronald Reagan and would, if the opportunity presented itself, repudiate his administration altogether. On the contrary, I think Ronald Reagan has been an absolutely superb president — the only authentic representative of the conservative movement that has had in the White House in modern times — and I believe that any conservative who isn't on balance pleased with his administration probably can never be pleased at all. What's more, I think the vast majority of conservatives, and probably a majority of the entire American electorate, agree with me.

But for that very reason I think the time is appropriate to issue this public warning to the so-called "pragmatists" who are taking over the management of this year's Republican campaign: Get over the breezy notion that serious conservatives have "nowhere else to go" this year, and that accordingly you can afford to spend your time wooing this or that liberal clique to round out your vote total on Election Day. Nothing could be further from the truth.

In the first place, if there was ever any validity to the theory that the GOP could win nationally by pursuing marginal liberal voters — and personally I never believed it for a moment — it certainly isn't true in 1984. The liberals may be down and out, but they know an enemy when they see one, and they will fight Ronald Reagan's Republican Party with every ounce of strength they possess.

In the second place, the notion of winning by picking up stray liberal votes betokens a fatal misunderstanding of the nature and deepest concerns of the American people. This is not a liberal nation and hasn't been for almost 20 years. The really important movable bloc of voters — "movable" in the sense that it can and will vote for either of the two major parties, depending on circumstances — is the lower and lower middle class blue-collar and "ethnic" white voters who were dependably Democratic until Kennedy's election in 1960.

In 1964 that bloc, though profoundly alienated from the Democratic Party's sirenous liberalism, stuck with Texas' Lyndon Johnson. In 1968 it split between Nixon and George Wallace, and defeated Hubert Humphrey. In 1972 it joined the rest of America in re-electing Nixon over the leftist McGovern. In 1976 it returned to the Democratic Party at the soft beckoning of Georgia's Jimmy Carter — and retired a Republican president who'd had no better sense than to pick Nelson Rockefeller as his vice president. In 1980 it conferred its enthusiastic approval — and the presidency — on Ronald Reagan.

In 1984, the Republican Party had better take blessedly good care to keep this bloc of voters, or most of it, in its pocket, or it could be in for a bleak surprise. Moreover, some of the shrewdest political observers on the scene today are growing seriously concerned over the danger of defeat.

Take Paul Weyrich, by far the ablest nuts-and-bolts political operator active today in the conservative movement. Weyrich is close to such New Right spokesmen as Viguerie and Phillips, but has firmly refused to join in their interperate denunciations of Ronald Reagan. Yet Weyrich is warning, both publicly and privately, that the Republican Party cannot, on its record to date, count on the sort of enthusiastic blue-collar support that, added to the GOP's natural base, put Reagan over the top in 1980.

Blue-collar voters are vulnerable to an economic downturn, and even those who weathered the recent recession will be sensitive to the slightest hint of possible future trouble on that front. They can also be influenced by Democratic charges that this administration has tended to favor large corporations and big banks with soft overseas loans. In addition, Weyrich warns, millions of Americans motivated chiefly by the "social issues" — abortion, school prayer, etc. — may not feel nearly as fervent about registering and voting in 1984 as they did four years ago.

Ronald Reagan is aware of these problems — but what about his managers and advisers? They had better start learning: fast.

DON GRAFF

What Next Argentina?

Is Argentina overdoing it? The news out of Buenos Aires for the last several months has been consistently good for the democratically inclined. Almost too good.

In October's presidential election, the Argentines did not repeat their dismal history of the past half century, in which the pendulum of power has swung monotonously between military dictatorship and the institutionalized demagoguery of Peronism.

Instead, to almost everyone's surprise except possibly his own, Raul Alfonsin, a center-leftist of the European social democratic type, won.

Not only that, the generals and the Peronists accepted the decision of the electorate and allowed him to take power, which he has been wielding energetically to deal with Argentina's problems.

To say these problems are legion is a considerable understatement. Just about everything that can go wrong in a country — short of total collapse — has gone wrong in Argentina.

Alfonsin has attracted the most attention with his moves to bring to justice military leaders, including past junta presidents, implicated in the torture and murder of thousands of Argentines during seven years of government terror.

Economic initiatives, however, could prove to be of much greater import in the long run.

Alfonsin's administration has set itself some formidable tasks:

- Bringing under control an inflation that, at a rate last year of more than 400 percent, has been the world's highest.
- Beginning to trim a budget deficit that, relative to the size of the national economy, is worse news than Americans are getting accustomed to hearing from Washington.
- Raising taxes and limiting wage increases.
- Self mismanaged, money-losing state enterprises.

The agenda would be ambitious for an incoming government with solid public support in a stable democracy. For the fragile Argentine political consensus, it looks almost foolhardy.

Alfonsin's policy makers may be correct, however, in seeing Argentina's problems as so numerous and so pressing that there is no option but to counterattack immediately on all fronts.

But there are dangers. A lot of oxes are going to have to be gored.

Alfonsin is probably right in taking on the officers immediately. Discredited by the Falklands defeat and the shambles of their latest attempt at government, they may never be in a less advantageous position in dealing with civilian authority.

The danger may be in pursuing justice too far, and too deeply into the ranks, provoking a coup of desperation. Or an alliance of convenience with the Peronists, who will be the most disturbed by the economic housecleaning.

We must hope not. The impact of the Argentine effort at national regeneration is not limited to Argentina. It is being watched closely — in some places fearfully — throughout Latin America, especially in the immediate neighborhood.

assistance to a foreign country is not allowed to be used to buy weapons.

So the administration has proposed giving Egypt a $103 million cash transfer of "deobligated" AID funds. It has told Congress that Egypt needs the money for unspecified reasons.

But a State Department cable, stamped "Confidential," makes clear that the money would be used to meet Egypt's Foreign Military Sales payments. My associate Lucette Laguarda obtained a copy of the cable. It describes meetings early last month in Cairo between Peter McPherson, AID administrator, and Moustafa El Said, Egyptian minister of economy and foreign trade.

McPherson "asked if the $103 million would be sufficient to enable the GOE (Government of Egypt) to meet its FMS (Foreign Military Sales) debt servicing obligations through the elections," the cable reported, adding, "El Said responded affirmatively...."

McPherson told the Egyptian minister the administration was having a hard time persuading Congress to approve the $103 million transfer. This is true: House and Senate leaders have expressed concern over the proposal.

McPherson suggested to El Said that perhaps the best way to get approval for the cash transfer was to level with Congress about Egypt's shaky financial situation and its intention to seek IMF help after the May elections.

Ironically, one important reason for the IMF's reluctance to bail Egypt out is the government's refusal — for obvious political reasons — to raise the price of bread. Millions of AID dollars have been spent to build bakeries that will help solve the bread problem. As I have reported in past columns, much of this AID money has been wasted.

Footnote: AID Deputy Administrator Brad Langmaid insisted that the Egyptians would not use the foreign aid money to meet their FMS obligations, but he and other officials admitted the funds were "fungible." This means they are interchangeable with other funds.

were planning to do some drastic pruning, better wait a month or so. For citrus, wait until late May or June to prune. Freeze damaged branches may sprout only to dry up later. Then, you will need to prune again — double work — best to wait.

Shade trees, such as Sycamore, Sweet Gum and the oaks should be planted as soon as possible to get a good root system started before the hot weather arrives. Trees grown in containers obtained from your favorite garden center or nurseryman are your best bet. Be sure you water them thoroughly to eliminate any air pockets, and continue to water at least once a week for the first year.

Lawn grasses are slow to get moving this year due to the continued cool weather. Normally, lawns can be fertilized early in February, but you may want to wait until the end of the month. We still could suffer frost or a freeze and any new growth would be damaged.

While you're waiting, break out your trusty lawn mower to be sure it's in tip top shape. Clean it up, especially underneath. Also, fresh oil change for the engine, perhaps new belts, and a sharp blade. If you don't feel mechanical, have a mower shop spruce it up for you.

Hand tools need help, too. Sharpen blades of shovels and other garden tools with a metal file or grinder then spray a rust protector on the metal parts.

With the tremendous leaf drop due to the freeze, why not start a compost heap? All plant debris such as leaves, grass clippings and vegetable waste contain nutrients that can be returned to the soil to benefit living plants. Our sandy soils at short on organic material and adding compost will aid in moisture retention, air movement through the soil (roots need to breathe, too) and holding nutrients in the root zone. If you don't have a compost heap and want to start one, a leaf sheet entitled, "Making and Using Compost," is available from the County Extension Office at the Agricultural Center in Sanford. Stop in or call and we'll be happy to provide you a copy.

Your Christmas poinsettia should be going dormant now. Allow the plant to dry out and go into the dormant state. Water it occasionally — just enough to prevent it from drying completely. When the danger of frost has passed, remove it from the pot and plant it in your flower or shrub border. Choose a location protected from artificial light for a beautiful burst of color next Christmas.

Gardening is more popular now than ever before. And, we usually refer to it as backyard gardening. That's not always fair to those who live in mobile homes, apartments and condominiums — where there's little or no backyard to be had. Just because you don't have a big yard with lots of room, doesn't mean you can't garden.

In fact, you can enjoy gardening working with a strawberry barrel or a half-dozen tomato plants as much as any backyard garden. How about mini-gardening? Growing plants and vegetables in containers. Depending on the kind of plants or vegetables you plan to grow, there's practically no limit to the kinds of containers you can use — pots and pans, milk jugs, hollow concrete blocks, baskets, barrels — even plastic bags. Just be sure the container you choose will hold soil and let excess water drain out.

Soil can come from a garden or you can obtain a prepared soil mix from your local garden center. If you want to grow plants, but are cramped for space, give mini-gardening a try. Happy Gardening!

Boyfriend In Bedroom Gets Boot From Parents

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, Roger (not his real name), is in big trouble with my parents because they caught him in my room at 2 a.m. My father told Roger that he was not to come back until they (my parents) told him he could.

I totally understand their reasons for this, but I am afraid to even bring up the subject because my father might blow up. Roger would like to come over and apologize to my parents and ask for a second chance, but I'm afraid to even mention his name.

I love Roger and want to be able to see him again, but how can I arrange it?

Dear Abby

could kiss her boyfriend goodbye. The mother said the child fussed and spoiled her evening when she took her on dates with her boyfriend.

If her boyfriend can be upset by a 3-year-old, then she should kiss him goodbye now. What would he do if they married? Slap the child around for fussing?

I speak from experience. I was a 21-year-old widow with a baby. When I met the man I eventually married, I took the child everywhere we went. That way I had a "father" for my baby as well as a boyfriend.

Many a widow and divorcee will marry a great guy, who isn't any kind of a father — thus child abuse, and in the end, no marriage. I say, take your child with you on dates. You will sure weed out the bums fast.

HAPPILY MARRIED FOR 34 YEARS IN TEXAS

DEAR HAPPILY MARRIED: I agree that a single woman with children to raise should not marry a man who doesn't love children. But I wouldn't recommend taking a child along on the first date, or there might not be a second.

(Every teenager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send 42¢ and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Hillery Dominates Gordon, Girls Move Closer To Title

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

DELAND — Going into Thursday night's crucial conference clash with DeLand's Lady Bulldogs, Sanford's Lady Seminoles weren't worried about DeLand's impressive home record or its being ranked seventh in the state 4A poll. The Lady Tribe just wanted to go in and do whatever they had to to pull out a victory.

And they did just that. Behind Dielre Hillery's dominant play inside, and some clutch free throw shooting down the stretch, Seminole came away with a 56-52 victory over the Lady Bulldogs in Five Star Conference basketball action at DeLand High School.

Seminole pretty much clinched the Five Star Conference title Thursday as it improved to 20-4 overall and 14-1 in the conference. DeLand now stands at 18-5 overall and 12-3 in the conference. The Lady Seminoles tied for the Five Star Conference champion two years ago with Mainland but have never won an outright title. Seminole's remaining conference games are against Five Star doormats Apopka and Spruce Creek and upset-minded Lake Brantley.

Hillery poured in a game-high 24 points and pounded the boards for a season-high 25 rebounds. The senior center clearly outplayed her DeLand counterpart, 6-1 junior Bridgette Gordon. Gordon scored 19 points, but hit just 7 of 28 shots from the floor and ripped down 15 rebounds. Nikki Williams added 13 points for the Lady Bulldogs and Robyn Swartz tossed in 10.

"I made up my mind before the game that I wasn't going to let her (Gordon) intimidate me," said Hillery, who for some reason was not ranked among the top 16 seniors in the state by a recent Orlando Sentinel poll. "I wanted to prove myself against her and prove that I could play defense."

Hillery's 25 rebounds is a

Prep Basketball

single-game, season-high for Seminole County, breaking Lake Howell's Christy Scott's single-game high of 23. Hillery had just one rebound less than the entire DeLand team. Seminole out rebounded the Lady Bulldogs, 53-26.

Hillery was joined in double figures Thursday by Gene Stallworth who turned in a clutch performance with 11 points and eight rebounds. Maxine Campbell added nine points, including 7 of 9 from the free throw line and Catherine Anderson helped out underneath with 14 rebounds.

Seminole started to crash the boards as soon as the game started as the Tribe out rebounded DeLand, 17-8, in the first quarter. However, Seminole hit just 4 of 23 shots from the floor and missed numerous layups on offensive rebounds, and the score wound up tied, 8-8, at the end of one quarter.

The Lady Seminoles started converting the offensive boards in the second quarter and went up by as much as six points. DeLand came back to cut it to three through 24-21, at the half. Hillery scored 12 points in the first half while Gordon was held to seven.

Neither team could find the shooting touch in the third quarter, but Raysha Roberts kept the Bulldogs in front most of the quarter with six points. A short jumper by Roberts gave DeLand a 32-30 lead with 50 seconds remaining and, after a Seminole missed shot, the Lady Bulldogs went for the last shot of the quarter and a four-point lead. However, Seminole's Andell Smith came up with a steal with six seconds left and raced down court for a layup at the buzzer to make it 32-32 going into the fourth.

DeLand scored the first four points of the final period and held on to the lead for the first five and a half minutes of the quarter. The Lady Bulldogs took a five-point lead, 47-42, as Gordon hit a pair of free throws with 3:31 remaining.

Campbell then hit one of two free throws to cut the lead to four, 47-43, and Hillery then scored six straight points to give the Lady Seminoles a 49-47 lead with 1:45 remaining.

However, Hillery was whistled for her fourth foul with 1:30 remaining and Gordon hit one of two free throws to cut the Tribe's lead to one, 49-48. Campbell came back with 17 remaining to convert both ends of a one-and-one and give Seminole 51-48 lead.

After a missed shot by Gordon, Seminole came down with its three-point lead still intact and tried to run some time off the clock. Campbell was fouled, though, with 7 seconds remaining and missed the front end of a one-and-one. Hillery thought came up with her most crucial rebound of the game and banked in the follow up for a 5-48 Seminole lead.

Campbell then hit two free throws with 18 seconds left and Mona Bnton in one of two with six seconds left to sew up the victory for Seminole and send DeLand coach Clifford Cox into one of his infamous tantrums.

"We didn't execute that well, but we played hard enough to win," Seminole coach Ron Merthie said. "This is the first time we've ever won here (DeLand) since I've been at Seminole. There was a lot of emotion in this game, but we reached down and came up with the victory."

Seminole is back in action Monday as it hosts Spruce Creek. The Lady Seminoles host Orlando Evans in a non-conference battle Wednesday.

In other girls action Thursday, Tammy Johnson connected for 22 points. Janene Brown added 13 and Mary Johnson tossed in 12 as Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks outlasted the scrappy Lady Patriots of Lake Brantley, 64-50, in Five Star Conference play at Lake Brantley High.

Lake Howell improved to 17-8 overall and 10-5 in the conference while the Lady Patriots fell to 6-13 overall and 4-11 in the conference. The Lady Hawks are back in action Monday at Apopka while the Lady Patriots travel to DeLand Monday.

The Lady Hawks built an eight-point lead, 36-28, at the half, but Lake Brantley fought back to within five points in the second half. Not long after that though, Lake Brantley's Michelle Brown picked up her fourth foul, and the Lady Hawks went on to build a 10-point lead. Lake Brantley never got closer than six points the rest of the way.

Christy Scott continued to work well underneath as she pulled down 14 rebounds. Tammy Johnson added nine rebounds and Mary Johnson and Brown pulled down eight apiece. Mary Johnson also handed out eight assists and Tammy Johnson dished out four.

Linda Nunez led the way for Lake Brantley with a game-high 26 points and Michelle Brown added 11.

Lake Brantley was without two players Monday while another played injured. Kim Lubenow has been out for the past three games with an injury and Kim Wain, the Patriots second-leading rebounder, was in a car accident before the game and didn't make it to the game. Sherry "Ice" Asplen, who was on crutches all day due to an ankle injury, played only sparingly Thursday night.

Pari-Mutuel Players Try To Out-Handicap Each Other

If you don't understand pari-mutuel wagering — don't fill bad — very few people do.

When you come out here to the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club to bet on the greyhounds you are not playing against the house. What you are doing is competing with everyone else out here. You are trying to out-handicap your fellow greyhound race fan.

The track doesn't care who wins or how much they win. It matters not to us. We act strictly as a money-handling agency for the state — our cut comes off the top.

There has to be a winner every race. If a "pool" has no exact winners then we must pay out consolation payoffs to the people who come the closest.

Okay, what do I mean by "pool"? Every dollar that is bet out here on every wager that we have goes into a pot or pool for that wager. In other words, every dollar that is bet on a dog to win goes into the win pool, every dollar that is bet on a trifecta out here goes into a trifecta pool, and so on.

So, let's say that in race number eight $1,000 is wagered on all eight dogs to win. First we take out 10 per cent for ourselves and then we take out 7.6 per cent for the state.

That leaves $824.00 to pay back to the winners of the win pool. (176 subtracted from $1,000.00 leaves $824.00.) Now, suppose you placed a $2 wage (the minimum bet here) on the seven dog and the seven dog won the race. If you were the only person to wager on the seven dog to win then you would get the entire $824.00. If two people bet $2 each on the seven dog, then it would pay $412.00 to win. If three people bet on it then it would pay $274.666666 on into infinity.

But because we do not pay off in oddcents out here "breakage" would be involved. I'll get back to that later.

Remember — I said there had to be a winner in every pool. If no one gets the exact winner of a pool we pay out consolations.

This happens the most in the perfect and trifecta pools. The perfecta wager is when you try to guess the top two greyhound in a race in order. The trifecta is picking the top three in order.

So let's say a race runs 7-6-1. Andell's say that no 7-6 perfectas were sold. We would then pay a consolation to everyone who had a perfecta ticket with the seven on top or the six on the bottom. This is why it is so important not to throw away our ticket until the final results are posted. If you had a 7-5 perfecta or an 8-6 perfecta you might throw your ticket away thinking it was no good. But if no one had the 7-6 combination then we would pay everyone who had a 7-1, 7-2, 7-3, 7-4, 7-5, 7-8, 1-6, 2-6, 3-6, 4-6, 5-6 and 8-6. This would make your 7-5 a good ticket. But if you tossed it on the floor it automatically becomes an "outs" ticket. I'll cover outs tickets later too.

The same holds true for the trifecta. If nobody had a 7-6-1 then we would pay everyone who had a 7-6-2, 7-6-3, 7-6-4, 7-6-5 and 7-6-8. If you have any question at all about whether your ticket is a good one take it to any mutuel clerk and they will check it for you.

What are "outs" and "breaks?" In our mythical race above where only three tickets were sold on the seven dog to win the actual payoff would be $274.60. We pay to the nearest low dime figure.

So, if you multiply 274.60 times three you get $823.80. We had $824.00 to pay out — so the $.20 is breakage and it goes to the State.

That doesn't sound like much. But when you get say $20,000 or more in a trifecta pool (which is not uncommon out here on the weekend) and 300 plus people hit it for say $60.99 and you only pay out $60.90 — then your breakage for that one race alone is $27.00.

Figure that we run 117 races out here every week, and all of a sudden it comes into big money. By the end of the year it runs about one-half of one per cent of the total handle. That's right around a quarter of a million dollars for this one track alone.

The state picks up another half a per cent or so on the "outs". You have exactly one year from the time you purchase your ticket to cash it. If you do not cash it within that year the money automatically goes back to the state.

The majority of "outs" tickets come from people throwing away winners. Once that ticket hits the floor it legally belongs to the state. To bend over and pick up a ticket off the floor is called "stooping" and is against the law.

Not all pools have the same amount taken out of them. For instance, more is taken out of the trifecta pool (20 per cent) than is taken out of any other pool. Nineteen per cent is taken out of the pick six. The extra percentages are used for purses and for improvements around the track.

Why, even a certain amount is taken out to help the horse tracks around the state, they are in such financial trouble. The money which we and the State take out is divided up as well. The state must pay its employees it has at the various tracks and frontons as well as its staffs in Miami and Tallahassee. The vast majority of what is left over after operating expenses is poured into the Florida school system. Every county shares equally in the revenue, whether they have a pari-mutuel plant within their boundary or not.

In fact, there are several small counties in the state, especially in northern Florida, whose entire school budget is comprised of race track funds.

As for the tracks' cut. Three per cent of the total handle must be paid to the dogmen in purses. While we get some relief from the trifecta pool — that is a big chunk.

Another big chunk is the payroll. We have over 500 full and part time workers. We are a big industry.

Seminoles Entertain Erratic DeLand Patriots Host Hawks

Sanford's Fighting Seminoles look for their 16th victory tonight at 8 when the DeLand Bulldogs invade for a Five Star Conference basketball game.

DeLand has had its ups and downs this year. Seminole nipped the Bulldogs in a close game at DeLand earlier this year, something not too many teams have done. Coach John Zeuli's team blasted Mainland 21 points a couple of weeks ago in the conference upset of the year.

The Tribe, 15-6, is pretty much out of the conference race with 9-4 record. Spruce Creek is 12-1 while Mainland is right behind at 1-2. Coach Chris Marlette said the main aim of his 'Noles is to get tuned up for the district tournament which will begin Feb. 21 at Lake Mary High School.

Seminole turned in one of its best performances Tuesday when it murdered Lake Howell, 80-3. Marlette used his whole bench in that one and is hoping for another stellar effort tonight.

Elsewhere, Lyman takes on Lake Mary at Milwee Middle School. Lake Brantley hosts Lake Howell and Oviedo travels to Leesburg.

Clowning Stops For Starling, Battles Don Curry For Title

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Marlon Starling has hung up his big, red rubber nose and oversize sneakers. The clown days are over.

Starling faces World Boxing Association welterweight champion Don Curry Saturday in a scheduled 15-round title fight at Bally's Park Place Casino. The fight will be nationally televised by ABC starting at 5:24 p.m. EST.

Starling and Curry have met before with Curry scoring a 12-round split decision on Oct. 23, 1982. The loss was the Starling's only as a pro in 31 fights. Since then, he has reeled off five straight victories, four of them by knockout in five rounds or less.

"I think it showed me that this is a business, not entertainment and not a show," said the 25-year-old resident of Hartford, Conn., who did a lot of showboating in their first fight. "I'm much more business like."

"In the first fight, people saw about one-third of Marlon Starling. I'll stay more active this time, concentrate for three minutes every round. I'll never clown. This fight is the key to my life. I've always wanted to fight for the championship of the world all my life. This is the only man that squeaked out a decision on my record."

Curry had to drop over two pounds in the steam room the day of that fight, which two judges scored 116-112 for Curry while the other had it for Starling 117-113.

In his next fight, the unbeaten (17-0, 13 knockouts) Curry won the vacant title with a 15-round decision over Jun Sok Hwang. His first title defense was a one-round demolition of Roger Stafford last September.

"He (Starling) was kind of awkward," said the 22-year-old Curry, who is from Fort Worth, Texas. "He was hard to get at because he had a pretty good defense. He tried to make me fight his fight. By the ninth or 10th round, I started lateral movement and he had lots of problems with that.

"I'm anxious to fight him again. I was weak the first time. The big thing was I had to finish. I don't know exactly how good he is. I certainly was not 100 percent that day."

Saturday's winner could see a megabuck payday against Sugar Ray Leonard, the former world welterweight champion.

was that the first two dogs ran first, the next dog ran second and his dog, the fourth dog, ran third. Wrong. The state has very clear rules which we must follow when making payoffs. In this case it states that we shall have one quiniella payoff with the two dogs that finished in a dead heat, in this case the 1-5. We had to pay win and place on both greyhounds, plus we had to pay two perfectas — 1-5 and 5-1. In the trifecta rules it clearly states that two trifecta shall be paid off the 1-5-7 and the 5-1-7 (the seven dog ran third). The eight dog that finished fourth did just that — he ran fourth — by state law he did not hit the board.

Sims: Nothing To Lose DETROIT (UPI) — Billy Sims claimed he had nothing to lose by signing a contract with the Detroit Lions after he already had agreed to one with the Houston Gamblers, says the general manager of the U.S. Football League team.

Gene Burrough made his remarks Thursday during testimony on the running back's suit against his former agent Dr. Jerry Argovitz and the Gamblers.

Sims claims Argovitz, a part-owner of the Gamblers, used fraud and misrepresentation to get him to sign a $3.5 million contract with the team on July 1. Sims says he signed with Detroit for $4.5 million in December after learning details of a previous Lions offer.

Defense attorney Steve Susman was expected to call one more witness today in the case before final arguments began in front of U.S. District Court Judge Robert E. DeMascio.

Burrough, who also helped Argovitz represent Sims, said he met with the former Oklahoma star one day after he signed with the Lions.

"I told Billy, 'You really got yourself in a mess,'" Burrough testified. "This is going to land you in court... and your whole life is going to be exposed."

Campbell Wants Out SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Disgruntled running back Earl Campbell, who has said he wants to be traded from the Houston Oilers, is meeting with officials of the U.S. Football League's San Antonio Gunslingers.

Campbell, who has two years remaining on his contract, attended a Gunslingers workout Thursday and met with Gunslingers general manager Roger Gill and team official Bud Haun, according to Clinton Manges, the team's principle owner.

"If he wants to sign with us, we'll sign him," Manges was quoted by radio station WOAI. Manges said he would meet personally today with Campbell, who spent Thursday night in San Antonio, in hopes of negotiating a contract. During the 1983 season, Campbell stated publicly that he wanted to be traded from the Oilers, but seemed to soften his position near the end of the year.

Implanting Lenses Considered Low Risk

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've been told I need to have my cataracts removed. I'm only 57, so my eyesight is very important to me. The doctor has recommended implants, but I'm a little frightened because I've heard implants may not work or may cause other complications. I'd like to know how safe implanted lenses are and if there is any reason I shouldn't have an implant.

DEAR READER — You are a little young for implants, according to the Food and Drug Administration. They recommend that lenses be reserved for people older than 60. However, some ophthalmologists disagree and believe there is no arbitrary age at which an implant can be used.

Each case must be judged on an individual basis. If you have other eye diseases, a cataract operation may not really help. In other cases, it can almost be a miracle.

At this point in research, the risk involved in implants is low. More than 70 percent of cataract operations in the United States today include implanting a lens.

Another option is extended-wear contact lenses. Many of these can be used for long periods, making it much easier for the patient. As this technique develops further, it's not inconceivable that contact lenses may be worn for months at a time.

To give you a more complete understanding of cataracts, I'm sending you The Health Letter 13-6, Your Cataracts Are Coming.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I just returned from a trip to Florida and have a very nice tan. My friend and I decided to split the cost of a tanning booth to keep our tans for the rest of the winter until the spring and sun return.

How safe are these tanning booths? I'm a little skeptical about artificial sun.

DEAR READER — From a practical point of view, consider tanning booths as continual exposure to sunlight. Chronic or excess sunrays can be damaging to skin and cause premature aging of skin.

There are two types of ultraviolet light that cause tanning. UV-A are the longer ultraviolet rays and UV-B are the shorter ones.

The UV-B rays are largely responsible for sunburns and that is why it's sometimes called the "sunburn ray." Many tanning booths are said to use UV-A. It's probably true that you are less likely to have skin damage with UV-A, but there is no guarantee it won't cause skin damage.

Ask yourself if you want chronic sun exposure.

How damaging it might be depends a lot on your specific skin type. If you have a reasonably dark complexion or tan easily, a moderate amount may not be harmful. Otherwise, chronic exposure to ultraviolet radiation will speed up the aging process of your skin.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Table with columns for NORTH, WEST, EAST, SOUTH, and Dealer: South. It lists card counts for various suits and an opening lead.

his partner's jump to three diamonds showed a good hand but was not forcing. He won the heart in his own hand, cashed his ace of diamonds and got the bad news about trumps. He had to find some way to avoid a club loser or, failing that, to end play East in clubs. He led a spade to dummy's ace and a club toward his hand.

Waldy knew that his Q-J of clubs might catch him in an end play, so he contributed his jack.

Declarer played swiftly to a five-card ending in which dummy held Q-10-6 of diamonds and 8-5 of clubs. Waldy, who had followed suit, held J-9-8 of diamonds, jack of spades and K-7 of clubs. Now South led his spade jack and ruffed with dummy's queen of trumps.

Waldy undercuffed with the eight of trumps, the only play to defeat the slam. A club was played from dummy, and Waldy played his queen. South won with his king and led his last club.

West was in with the 10 and, whatever he led, Waldy was sure to collect a trump trick.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby Waldemar von Zedtwitz is 87 years young. Bad eyesight keeps him from playing in bridge tournaments but it has not dulled his keen interest in the game. He knows all the tricks of the trade, as may be seen from this defense he put up some 45 years ago. South thought of seven but settled for six, since
