Sanford cops are complaining, city commissioners say

By MIGK PPEIPAUP Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Morale is a problem among Sanford police officers, three city commis-sioners reported this week. Commissioners Bob Thomas, Lon Howell, and Kerry Lyons all said they have re-ceived telephone calls from officers and family members, expressing concern over situa-tions at and within the police department. Commissioner Thomas was the first to bring up the matter during the portion of the Monday city commission meeting designated for individual commissioner comments. "I have received many calls," he said, "mostly from police officers, complaining that there are problems within the department that they believe the city should look into." Thomas said most of the officers who called refused to identify themselves for fear there would be repercussions.

"I've had calls just like that," Howell added. "Some of them say they have no one to talk to about their problems." Howell suggested, "I think the city should obtain, probably an outsider, to alt down and listen to the complaints from each of these policemen, and ask the officers to cut loose and really let the city know how they feel."

Mayor Bettye Smith however, said she didn't believe Howell's suggestion was proper. "I believe this is something which may involve union efforts," she said, "and if we get involved in this we may end up in violation of a labor agreement."

Commissioner Lyons said he also had heard from a number of police officers, and agreed □Ses Cops, Page SA

SANFORD — The old Little Red School House, 519 Palmetto Avenue in Sanford, will be the new home for Tajiri Arts, Inc. The Sanford City Commission has drafted a lease which turns the building over to Taliri for a period of three years.

Tajiri is a performance academy with a touring repertory company. The Seminole Community Boys Glee Club is a component.

During a work session presentation on the lease, the city's Community Development Director Charles Rowe explained that the city had found several problems with the building including termite damage, and three minor roof leaks. "What we have planned," Rowe naid, "is for the city to take care of those problems, and have the Tajiri people handle any others which may come up." Rowe estimated the amount of money needed would not exceed $2,000.

City Manager Bill Simmons acknowledged that the money could be taken from the contingency fund. During the discussion, Commissioner Lon Howell questioned the □Boo Tajiri, Page SA

It's time for Longwood arts festival

SANFORD - The ultimate Christmas shopping experience for those who appreciate fine, handcrafted gifts will take to the streets of the downtown historic district of Longwood this weekend.

A several block area in the district will be transformed into a wonderiand of art and craft shops filled with creations large and small.

The annual Longwood Arts and Crafts Festival is filled to capacity as always, said organizer John Bistline.

"There are some 330 artists in the 375 spaces that are available," he said. "Some artists have two booths."

According to Bistline, most of the same artists who were at the event in previous years will return this year. There are about 70 new artists who will join the event this year.

"There's a waiting list of about 100 artists still hoping to get in," he explained. "But this is still a very popular event and we haven't got room for everyone."

About 200 volunteers who had helped search lakes and fields were told to go home Wednesday as authorities became increasingly convinced blue-eyed, blonde Shelby Marie Cox was abducted.

The barefoot girl disappeared at 6 p.m. Monday from this west Osceola County town.

For two days, volunteers formed human chains and swept through fields and woods near where the girl vanished. But as time passed without sign of the girl, authorities shifted their focus to a black or dark blue Jeep — described as a military-styled vehicle with a soft top — seen by several residents about the time Shelby disappeared. Witnesses said they saw a white male behind the wheel.

"Our No. 1 priority is locating the operator of this vehicle," Osceola County Sheriff Charlie Croft said.

Something new about fertilizer

ORLANDO - A California landscaper learned something new about fertilizer at Orlando International Airport: If you leave a bag of it in your rental van, you could shut down half the airport's parking.

And you'll miss your flight and be questioned by police for nearly two hours.

Thomas Fair, 43, of Chico, Calif., left a 50-pound bag of fertilizer and two jugs of kudzu-killing chemicals in a rental van outside Dollar Rent a Car on Wednesday afternoon. Orlando police Sgt. Mike Holloway said. Kudzu is a fast-growing Southern weed.

Fair told a Dollar employee he had forgotten the fertilizer and suggested she keep it and use it on her lawn, Holloway said. But he might as well have said the van was full of live grenades.

Fertilizer was an ingredient of the Oklahoma City federal building bomb, and because every airport employee has been told to watch for suspicious packages and people, it wasn't long before the parking garage on the B side of the terminal was closed as a security precaution. "There was inconvenience for passengers but in today's environment any substance like that needs to be checked out," airport spokeswoman Carolyn Witnesses said they saw the ex-boyfriend, 40-year-old James R. Busby of North Palm Beach, leave the scene of the gasoline-fueled blase, sheriff's deputy Fred Tysoe said. Busby was arrested by West Palm Beach police, charged with arson and taken to the Palm Beach County Jail. He has a criminal record dating to 1978.

A judge issued a 90-day restraining order against Busby on Oct. 30, after Stojanovski, 32, filed a complaint with the sheriff's office alleging that Busby threatened to "burn down the house" on Oct. 15.

The complaint, filed on Oct. 16, also said he shoved her, tore a necklace from her neck, threatened to break windows and doors and steal her pets

Cope suspect murder-suicide

MIAMI — A 16-year-old and her 30-year-old boyfriend were found dead in what police are calling a murder-suicide.

The bodies of Maria Maldonado and Emiliano Palacios were discovered Wednesday in a car at a south Dade County park. Police also found suicide notes.

"They wrote that they both had a desire to die together." said police spokseman Juan Del Castillo. The two had been together about nine months.

Investigators believe Palacios shot Maldonado in the left temple, then turned the gun on himself.

The couple, each married to others, met at work and fell in love, said Orlando Menendez, owner of Hi-Land City Nursery in Homestead. Palacios' wife and four children remain in Mexico:

he left two years ago.

"When Emiliano first arrived here, he often spoke of his wife and children," Memendes said. "He even showed me pictures of them. But then one day, he just stopped."

According to Maldonado's twin brother Ismael, his sister loved both her husband and Palacios, and she gave no hint of her impending death when the two dropped him off at work the morning before.

Union head: Too little done to keep schools safe

TALLAHASSEE - The head of a teachers' union says school administrators aren't doing enough to keep classrooms safe. pointing to early responses to a union survey.

Three restaurant employees killed during robbery in Naples

By The Associated Press

NAPLES, Fla. - A statewide alert was issued for whoever killed three people during a robbery at a Cracker Barrel restaurant and left their bodies in a walk-in freezer.

This area usually has only about 12 murders in a year, The Miami Herald reported today.

"To have something like this happen is the rarest of circum-stances," Lt. Jim Waller of the Collier County Sheriff's Department said of the Wednesday slayings.

Investigators combed a field near the family-style restaurant. following a trail of money from the crime scene. The bills and coins stopped abruptly halfway between the restaurant and a highway patrol station.

'He lost a good portion of what he murdered three people for," said Dennis Wilholte, manager of a nearby convenience store.

The restaurant had been ransacked and there was some blood, but a police forensics team had not determined how the two women and one man died, said Damian Housman, a Collier County sheriff's spokesman. There were no signs of forced entry.

The bodies were not removed from the freezer until about 5 p.m. Wednesday. The medical examiner is expected to issue an autopsy report revealing causes of death today, Housman said. However, Donna Howell, the worker who called police when she couldn't get into the restaurant, said police told her the workers had been "brutally beaten, bound and put in the

A partial jaw some 3 million to 3.5 million years old was found in Chad in central Africa, far from previously known sites on the continent's east coast and southern tip.

The find greatly extends the knownrangeof australopithecines, human predecessors that appeared after the evolutionary split away from the ancestors of modern apes. Australopithecines gave rise to the group called Homo, which includes modern people.

In a second report, scientists presented new evidence for the relatively recent idea that Homo had left Africa and reached Asia by around 2 million years ago. Researchers reported that a partial jaw, a tooth and some stone tools found in a Chinese cave are 1.78 million to 1.98 million years old, making them the oldest known remains of human ancestors in China and maybe all of Asia.

The Chinese report also suggests that one member of Homo, called Homo erectus, evolved in Asia rather than emigrating from Africa.

Clean campaigns

For persons planning to seek election or re-election, words of caution. Be extremely careful who you have on your team.

As most people know by now, Florida's Governor Lawton Chiles had some campaign workers in his 1994 campaign who reportedly made some rather damaging phone calls about Chiles' opponent in the gubernatorial race.

Now, Chiles is faced with having to eat crow, even though he says he knew nothing about it. Opponents of course, would respond that he was fully aware of the situation, but we must, for the present, accept his word that the campaign workers did so without his knowledge.

This of course, is nothing new. Avid campaign supporters have often taken it upon themselves to become involved in campaign smear tactics against an opponent. Some have gone undetected. Others were alleged. A few were proven to have occurred.

Often, when allegations were made against an opponent's campaign supporters by a winning candidate, they were washed aside and not pursued.

Our political world has reached a sad state when this happens, especially when it is known to be taking place and allowed to continue.

Right here in our local area, in Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood, Seminole County, during past years, we have heard such accusations of currupt campaigning.

accusations of currupt campaigning.

There should be little doubt that perhaps such actions resulted in the best candidate for office not being elected. Probably, candidates who have been maliciously attacked, never bother to run for office again. As a result, we may have lost what could have been excellent government officials.

There has been no extensive elections in the local area this month. Next year however, it will be a large-scale political season. Candidates are already announcing their intentions and setting up campaign funds.

We would like to see a political season coming up where candidates run on their promises, capabilities, experience, and honest integrity. If such is not the case, it will provide a great deal of news for the pages of the Sanford Herald. If this upcoming political season is honest and well-conducted however, not only we, but everyone, will be happier.

Under whose influence?

An article published in the Nov. 1, Sanford Herald reported 6 time DUI offenders being targeted in what was called "operation roundup". There are, the article states, 3284 people in Florida with 6 or more convictions. A limit of 6 was set for the target group because the number of people with 4 or 5 convictions was many thousands more, an unmanagable number, said the article.

With 3284 6+ offenders and let's say twice that many again as a very conservative guess of 4 and 5 time offenders, enough convictions to revoke driver licenses for life, that's about 10,000 revoked licenses by D.U.I. and that doesn't include the 1-2-or 3 time offenders which must be an astronomical number, Florida is obviously a haven for doubles.

Or wait---maybe---could it be? Could there possibly be something wrong with the law or its enforcement procedures? Have high visibility, high pressure organizations forced our lawmakers to pass unfair laws that are clearly unconstitutional in any offense except D.U.I.? These laws may have ruined or severely damaged many more lives and families than the drunk driver has. Maybe its time to ask for honest answers, honest statistics on alcohol-caused accidents rather than the misleading term achohol-related, a term many feel was adopted to purposly inflate the numbers in order to justify unreasonable laws. Yes, drunk drivers are dangerous. So are speeders, reckless drivers, persons who fail to stop at traffic lights or stop signs, who drive unsafe vehicles, or are careless and inattentive, the list is endless, but these hazards are accepted as everyday risks. If each "alchohol related" accident was honestly investigated, one or more of the listed offenses, I'm sure, would also be involved, and in many, many cases, it wasn't the drinking driver who committed the offense or caused the accident. Maybe, it's time to look around before it's you who has to learn to survive and to support his family without the right to drive that we all know is a necessity in today's world, not the privilege to which it was reclassified to make it casier to deprive you of it, and also to make our lawmakers look good to these groups that so many of their wives, husbands, and family members have joined in an effort to impress you.

Stay the course the GOP has charted

In the fall of 1962, President Reagan, who had forced a major tax cut through Congress just a year earlier, saw a worldwide recession make hash of his hope that the economic activity spurred by the tax cut would actually result in higher, rather than lower, tax revenues (as it had for John Kennedy, 20 years seriler).

for John Kennedy, 20 years earlier).

The Democrats yelled bloody murder, and demanded higher taxes. Mr. Reagan, however, refused. "Stay the course," he instructed his administration and the Republican-controlled Senate. And in the 1964 presidential election, with the economy on the upswing and the country well into the longest boom in postwar history. Ronald Reagan carried 49 of the 50 states, and lost Minnesota by just 3,000 votes.

Once again, as in 1962, the Democrats think they have the Republicans down for the count. As soon as they realized that the new Republican majorities elected last year in the House and Senate seriously intended to balance the budget, and to do so in seven years, the congressional Democratic leaders adopted a cynical but effective strategy: Propose no alternative, but raise unshirted hell over every Republican proposal to reduce federal subsidies to key voting blocs.

Mr. Clinton signed on to this strategy, taking care only to float a proposal that would purportedly balance the budget painlessly in 10 years (though the Congressional Bud-Congressional Budget Office, whose predictive powers Mr. Clinton had incautiously praised, pointed out that his budget would actually fall $200 billion short of balance). Then he joined the congressional Democrate in trashing the Republican efforts.

As a result, 1995 has consisted of little but one wild shrick after another, as the Democrats and their allies in the media highlighted various Republican plans to bring the budget under control.

Almost invariably, the expenditure in question will not diminish over the next seven years under the Republican plan, but actually increase. But because the increases are usually less that the amounts previously budgeted by Democratic Congresses for the out-years, the Democrats and the media have decided to call them "cuts," or even "slashes."

First, you will recall, it was our children, whose school lunches were going to be swept away. Then it was college students, whose financial aid would all but disappear. Next it was the poor in general, whose "safety net" would be "shredded" -- above all, Medicaid.

Is it any wonder that polls indicate that a growing number of Americans "think the Republicans are going too far," "hope President Clinton will veto the Republican budget bill," etc.? As any accomplished debater will tell you, there is no truly effective way of demolishing a prediction: It is immune to disproof.

But the Republicans, who after all weren't born yesterday, know that the election won't be held until a year from now, long after their plan to balance the budget in seven years has been signed into law by Mr. Clinton (for in the long run, after cosmetic changes, he will sign it). And what the voters will see around them in November 1996 is not starving children, or poor people without medical care, or elderly corpses in the gutter, but a country that has, at long last, had the courage to tackle its problems head-on, and set itself on the road to financial health.

The welfare reform bill won't

BOSTON—Daniel Patrick Moynihan was on his car phone. It was October and the senator's voice was soaring into a falsetto of outrage as he described the "thundering silence" greeting the Republican plan to dismantle welfare.

fare.

Progressives and child advocates had accused him of being "punitive" in his early, milder, welfare reform proposals. But when they charged Gingrich & Company with being punitive, the conservatives just replied, in the senator's words, "Damn right we are! " And, Moynihan exclaimed, the same folks retreated in silence!

His car phone complaint came just as the Republican revolution was roaring down the legislative turnpike. Their version of welfare "reform " was packed in the same 18-wheel Mack truck that contained the rest of the Contract With America.

Progressives who had been working to change welfare had indeed been struck down or at least dumb by the drivers passing them in the right lane. Even when they did protest, child advocacy groups couldn't be heard above the traffic. So much was happening so quickly—if this is Monday it must be Medicare—the public couldn't keen up.

child advocacy groups couldn't be heard shove the traffic. So much was happening so quickly—if this is Monday it must be Medicare—the public couldn't keep up.

But things are looking a lot different now. As Congress shifts gears from rhetoric to reality, Moynihan is no longer a lone voice. The public has begun to get an uneasy feeling that the new kids in town are going too far. The welfare "reform " bill is nearing a final vote and the child advocacy community has regrouped enough to operate some traffic lights.

Marian Wright Edelman, chair of the Marian Wright Edelman, chair of the Children's Delense Fund and the left's answer to Bill Bennett, wrote a public letter to her certified friend. Bill Clinton, entreating him to oppose the Republican plan. She used the word "moral" nine times, reminding him that this ian't just another piece of policy, it's a matter of right and wrong.

At the same time, two studies drew public attention by calculating that the welfare bills in House and Benate would land somewhere between one million and two million more children in poverty. A million here, a million there, pretty soon you're talking about lots of people. Now a reluctant, lane-changing president has said be'd veto the bill as written. The man

Now a reluctant, lane-changing president has said he'd veto the bill as written. The man who desperately wants to "end welfare as we know it." doesn't want to be known as the man who drove a generation of have-nots deeper into poverty. And that is how stark the choices have become.

it's hard to find anyone—on or off APDO who's in favor of the current welfare system. It's archaic and thoroughly broken.

The Republicans call their bill "welfare reform" and say that anyone who's against it is a fan of the status quo. But this bill doesn't repair anything.

It eliminates AFDC, ends the federal commitment to poor children, wraps up welfare money with other social programs into block grants, and hands the job over to the states with less money. It's not about improving anything; it's about budget cutting. It cuts $81.5 billion out of programs for our poorest families in five years. And lets the money trickle up.

When most Americans think about welfare reform, they think about moving families from welfare to work, not to the streets. We know what families need in order to work: child care, education, training and living-wage jobs. To make sure that work is worth more than welfare, poor families need the Earned Income Tax Credit and a higher minimum wage.

The current bil either underfunds or opposes real reforms.

If we provide these things, we can put a time limit on AFDC for most families. Two years and you're on your own. That's a tough but reasonable trade-off. It's the reform we almost got before the right wing revved up the motor on this debate.

The current bill either underfunds or opposes real reforms—and dumps the issue in the lap of the states. These states might indeed make work worth more than welfare ... If only by making welfare shrink and disappear. If you want to look at that future, try the Walker Evans photos from the 1930s.

It is an article of belief among conservative ideologues that nothing could be worse than the current system of welfare. They have a limited imagination.

As for the president, well, he has a deep desire to end the welfare debate as we know it. I don't blame him. But the only hope for welfare reform is to veto this un-reform.

That Mack truck the Republicans are driving is beginning to look less formidable than it did a few months ago. The president still has the big red stop sign. This time, he better hold onto it. With both hands.

Remembering man of peace

WASHINGTON -- Long before he became the world's most prolific peacemaker, Yitzhak Rabin was an expert in the art of war.

Drew Pearson, who founded this column in 1932, caught up with a young Rabin during a visit to Israel in 1968. It was 18 months before the famous Six Day War, in which israel routed the combined armies of its Arab neighbors and captured the land that Rabin would later give back to the Palestinians in exchange for peace.

Talking with Pearson, Rabin bemoaned the new threats to Israel borne by modern weaponry. With a weary eye to the future, he pointed to a map he laid out, and noted that modern technology meant that a war plane could reach Tel Aviv in just nine minutes from Cairo. Bombers from nearby Jordan. Rabin noted, could reach Tel Aviv in a mere four minutes.

"We depend for our defense first, on being alert; second, on our ability to buy arms from the West to counterbalance Russian arms in Arab hands; third, on our reserves," Rabin said. "We cannot afford a huge standing army, so we depend on a small, well trained, well armed reserve, ready to be called up within 48 hours."

For a decade leading up to the Six Day War,

For a decade leading up to the Six Day War, Israel's neighbors had been systematically building up for a military showdown. With help from the Soviet Union, they had acquired modern weaponry to go with a sizable manpower advantage. With such a buildup, Rabin lamented, Israel was in danger of losing one of its most important advantages -- the element of surprise.

Eighteen months later, however, with Rabin and then-Defense Minister Moshe Dayan planning strategy, larsel surprised its Arab neighbors by giving 100,000 reserve troops the weekend off just before the June 5, 1967, attack. As a result, Arab intelligence services reported that larsel was relaxing, and that the threat of war had diminished for the moment.

One week later, Rabin was a national hero in his native country, though Dayan took most of the credit for the successful strategy.

about in the past year, Democratic Party officials treated the results of last week's elections as the political equivalent of winning the Super Bowl.

In case you missed it. Democrats did alightly better than expected last week. While the Democrats lost their gubernatorial bid in Mississippi, they broke even in the Virginia Legislature and won the governorship and several key state offices in Kentucky.

But in a memo marked "urgent," Democratic National Committee Chairman Don Fowler reacted as if his party had just been brought back from the dead.

"You all should have received post-election talking points this morning," the memo begins, which was written to Democratic campaign officials. "As the talking points indicate, we have a lot to brag about. The American people are clearly repudiating the Gingrich 'revolution' and the extremism it represents."

Some Democratic staffers were less than impressed. One staffer, whose boss is facing a tough re-election fight next fall, said this may be a case of too little, too late. "When (Democratic lawmakers) switched parties, where were the press releases?," he saked. "Where were the talking points last year?"

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Defiant Clinton

WASHINGTON - A defiant President Clinton says he will veto the latest Republican attempt to end the three-day-old federal shutdown because it would corner him into accepting 'highly objectionable' spending cuts.

The Senate planned to give final congressional approval today to a bill letting shuttered agencies call employees back to

The House approved the measure early today 277-151 — not far from the 289 votes that would be needed to override a veto. Forty-eight Democrats voted yes, while only three Republicans

The legislation would keep the government operating through Dec. 5 while lawmakers and Clinton continue their struggie over GOP plans to balance the budget by 2002. In exchange, it would commit the president to balancing the budget in seven years — a deadline to which the administration objects, but which Republicans feel highlights the difference between themselves and the White House

Study: Talk shows are shock shows

WASHINGTON - Television talk shows have turned into shock shows, according to a study that counted an average 16 'personal disclosures' per hour — a third about sex and a majority coming as a surprise to guests.

The Kaiser Family Foundation released the study it commissioned today, saying it was an independent attempt to analyze the content of top-rated TV talk shows in light of criticism over their content.

The study of nearly 200 videotapes and transcripts of daytime talk shows over the summer presents what any casual viewer already knows: hosts and guests talk mostly about family, personal relationships and sex. But the high number of unexpected on-air disclosures was itself a surprise.

O.J. may tell his side of story

SANTA MONICA, Calif. - The public may get to hear O.J. Simpson tell his side of the story sooner than he wanted.

A judge on Wednesday refused a request by Simpson's lawyers to seal written transcripts of his upcoming deposition in a wrongful death lawsuit filed by the families of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Superior Court Judge Alian B. Haber also said he would allow the deposition to be videotaped if a mediator supervises the testimony to keep attorneys from becoming abusive. The mediator would then take charge of the videotape.

'if there ever was a case that called for a discovery referee, this is it," Haber said.

ALGIERS, Algeria — The government assigned 200,000 soldiers and police to guard politing places after insurgents threatened with death anyone who voted in today's presidential election.

Polls opened this morning for Algeria's first multiparty presidential contest since the North African country won independence from France in 1962 and the National Liberation

President Liamine Zeroual, hoping for a strong turnout, has called today's balloting a chance for Algorians to oppose religion-based politics and a 4-year-old civil war in which 40,000 people have died.

But the Armed lelemic Group and other radical groups have pledged to continue attacks against both civilian and military targets in their attempt to topple the government and replace it with strict lelemic rule. They also have said anybody who votes today is a legitimate target.

WASHINGTON — The United States has too many doctors, nurses and pharmacists and should reduce the glut by shutting down at least 20 percent of its medical schools over the next decade, a private commission recommended today.

The Pew Health Professions Commission urged a similar retrenchment in the pharmacy schools and elimination of at least 10 percent of the nurse training programs.

The study, funded by the Pew Charitable Trusts, a private philanthropy, predicted that dramatic changes in the marketplace, especially the shift to managed care, will force health care providers to operate more efficiently, and as many as half the nation's 5,000 hospitals will close.

Richard Lamm, the iconoclastic former Colorado governor who chairs the commission, said closing a medical school will be as politically difficult as shutting a military

"But West Virginia's got to ask itself, do we need three medical schools? Does Ohio need six? New York fourteen?" Lamm asked. "Politicians are going to be dragged kicking and screaming into making some tough decisions."

The panel recommended that the nation's 141 medical colleges admit 20 percent to 25 percent fewer students by 2005. That would mean reducing their entering classes from 17,500 to 13,000 or 14,000.

'These reductions should come about as much as possible by the wholesale closing of schools, not the less painful, but far more inefficient, reductions in class size," it said.

The commission endorsed a 10 percent to 20 percent reduction in the 1,470 nursing education programs, and elimination of 20 percent to 25 percent of the 75 pharmacy schools.

It also urged that the number of graduate training slots for hospital residents and interns be limited to 110 percent of the number of U.S. medical school graduates.

There are now 135 percent as many training slots, with foreign-trained doctors filling a quarter of them.

Congress is considering restricting subsidies for training doctors who are not U.S. or Canadian citizens.

The commission said visa restrictions should be tightened to ensure that foreigners return to their native countries upon completing training.

Dr. Jordan Cohen, president of the Association of American Medical Colleges, criticized the report, saying it would be foolhardy "to dismantle the best medical education system in the world while still importing gradunten of schools in other countries."

Cohen cautioned that some hospitals depend so heavily on foreign-trained doctors it would be much harder to constrict their supply than to cut back on seats in U.S. medical schools.

Bill Gradison, a commission member and president of the Health Insurance Association of America, said medical schools are "more likely to shrink than close." They will encounter heavy pressure to downsize and reduce costs, just as many hospitals are doing, he added.
"The individual medical schools are going to have a really tough time adjusting to this new world of managed care," said Gradison, a former Ohio con-

The commission said. "Change is moving across the United States at every level of the health care system. ... It is largely an ungoverned transformation, unplanned and undirected by central authority.

"Its pace is uneven - rapid in areas where market forces work freely, glacial in academic and bureaucratic arenas — but it is inexorable."

The commission forecast surplunes of:

First fall champion Crazy Wings wraps up Wednesday softball title

SANFORD - Hopkins Meats pulled off another seventh inning miracle, but Crazy Wings made the result moot as it became the first champion of the fall in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Fall Wednesday Night Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

Hopkins Meats, which rallied from a 9-6 deficit to hand Crazy White its first loss of the season last week, did it again last night coming up with five runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to defeat Wella Contracting 9-8 and move within a game and a half of the league lead.

A loss by Crasy Wings in the late game would have forced a game to be played next week that was rained out back on October 18th.

But it was not to be, as Crazy Wings quickly erased a 2-0 first inning by scoring eight runs in the bottom of the first inning, then added five runs in each of the third and fourth innings to Wells Contracting defeat ASP Incorporated 18-2.

Crazy Wings wraps up the regular season with a 7-1 record. Trailing the champions were Hopkins Meats (5-3), Wells Contracting (3-5) and ASP Incorporated (1-7).

There will be a post-season mini-tournament for the four teams with the schedule to be announced later. Hopkins Meats took an early 3-0 lead and led 4-3 when Wells Contracting exploded for five runs in the fourth inning to take an 8-4 advantage.

The score stayed the same until the fateful seventh. Things still looked bleak for Hopkins Meats as it had one run in and a runner on first base, but there were two out. But six consecutive hits, capped by a game-winning single by Allen Dow, gave Hopkins Meats the victory.

Hopkins Meats was led by winning pitcher Tom Szabo (double, two singles, run, two RBI). Brian Jones (triple, single, two runs), Jeff Dow (two singles, RBI), Bobby McRee (double, run, RBI). Jay Johnson (single, run, two RBI), Bobby Shaw (single, run, RBI). Tim Barkley (single, two runs), Allen Dow and Manny Silvia (one single and one RBI each), John Searles (single, run) and Dan Dougherty (single).

Providing the offense for Wells Contracting were Bob Wells Jr. (triple, two singles, run, two RBI), Randy Brown (two singles, RBI), Rick Wells, Tim Cooper, Bo Sellers, Eddle Hunt and Bob Wells Sr. (one single, one run and one RBI each), Ken Brown and Mark Whitley (one single and one run each) and Jeff Kipp (single).

end the quarter for a 12-6 lead. Kate Carlough helped give Lake Brantley a 22-11 haiftime lead with eight points in the second quarter, which included an 6-for-6 performance at the free throw line. Carlough finished the game with 11 points. Kim Collins scored seven points in the third quarter as the Greyhounds outscored the Patiota 17-3 for a 28-25 lead going into the final quarter. Collins gave Lyman a 22-21 lead with 4:01 remaining in the period, and extended the margin to 25-21 with a three-point play. Jill Goldies responded with a three-point basket to pull Lake Brantley within 25-24.

We had mental breakdowns," said Lake Brantley coach Karen Baewczyk. "We had no defense in the third quarter and we only scored three points. You can't win games like that. It's disappointing."

Simply put, the fourth quarter was a battle royal. The Patriots took a 29-28 lead on a jump shot by Heather Hall, then extended the lead to 32-28 on a threepoint goal by Carlough with 5:00 remaining. A Rhodes field goal and two Idoshia Wess free throws tied the score 32-32 with 3:50 remaining, but Hall answered with another field goal to give Lake Brantley a 34-32 lead.

Wess then hit three out of four free throws to put Lyman ahead 35-34 with 2:04 remaining. Caltie Swingle's only field goal of the night put the Patriots out in front 36-35 with 1:36 to play, but Rhodes' field goal with 51 seconds remaining proved to be the game winner for the Greyhounds. Lake Brantley had one last shot, but it bounced off the rim as time expired.

HWY. 17-82 & 498

Meghanne Hickey had six points for the Greyhounds, while Wess added five and Brianne Hickey four. Hall had eight points for the Patriots, while Leah Reese added six. The tournament wraps up today with Lake Brantley facing Lake Howell at 6 p.m., followed by Seminole against Lyman at 7:30 p.m. Wine by the Silver Hawks and Greyhounds would throw the tournament into a three-way tie for the champion-

Deeper meaning for holiday apathy

Dear Mr. Stewart, It's that time of year again when I'm supposed to give gifts to various people because it's holiday time.

Well, I have had a bad year. Furthermore, I don't feel that I want to give anyone anything this year, anyway. And I don't expect anything either. Do you see me changing my mind or do you think there's some other reason I feel like this.

Dear Screege, (I mean Andy) You must really be bent out of shape and have been for some time. Your vocalizing to me through this column apparently ta your plea for help. You must have some idea about what it is rattling your chains and aren't afraid to reach out to someone (in this case, me) for some kind of an answer. I hope that you can isolate your problem, and soon.

Apparently you passed control for some of your actions or responsibilities in a manner that has made you feel "left out". You must regain your position of strength again by being resolute and firm in your stance with the principles that you have chosen to live by in the past: the ones you have found success and happiness with before.

I feel that you are going through a phase in your life right now that is testing you for even greater things and that you will "not be left out" of this holiday season and that the choice "is yours to make".

Thank you, but really thank yourself for having the courage to face this problem and bring your reality to the others as well. You are not alone and might you be blessed in the future for your efforts. Angels are smiling upon you!

I don't think that you have anything to worry about at the present time. I would, however, not just be sitting around waiting for any eventuality.

I remember, years ago, when someone got a job, you generally could count on retiring from almost any position, (providing you liked being where you were). Modern technology was sup-posed to enhance everything and help us ALL have a better life, not a shorter 'job life expectancy". Hang in there!

His doctor treated him for shingles for several weeks and kept insisting that there was no cure. However, you had written that shingles sometimes is caused by a hidden cancer. I showed the article to my husband's doctor, who then ordered a chest Xray. That same day, the radiologist obtained a CT scan that confirmed the presence of a lung tumor.

This was followed by a biopsy and surgery, during which part of my husband's lung was removed. He is now doing well and is scheduled for chemotherapy. The doctor believes that the sons when used according to the manoutlook is quite favorable because the cancer was discovered early. My husband's shingles went away.

We know it will be a long recovery but are truly grateful to you for your words of wiadom

Shingles, virus blisters that appear on the skin, are common in older people and while the disease isn't always triggered by hidden malignancy, it can be. Thus, in some cases - such as your husband's — shingles actually acts as an early warning that something serious needs attention.

Although the virus blisters themselves can often be cured by drugs such as Zovirax or Famvir, the disorder can be quite resistant to therapy until any underlying cancer, if present, is treated or removed. This is the reason that most physicians order additional tests, such as chest X-rays, in certain individuals at high risk for example, smokers or people whose immune systems may seem, for one reason or another, to be substandard. As you've discovered, early detection is a fundamental aspect of successful cancer therapy. I hope that

Learn about Australia

By Phillip Alder

All the major industrialized — and many unindustrialized — countries have international bridge teams. But when you factor in the population of the country, few have been as successful as Australia. Its teams have won several Far East Championships and have never been a pushover in World Championships

If you would like to learn about bridge in Oz from 1930 to 1990, buy Cathy Chua's interesting book, "The History of Australian Bridge" ($22.95 postpaid; 800-525-4718).

Chua has represented Australia at both bridge and chess. She found the key defensive play in today's deal.
