American marines were ordered to advance carefully and search every building for men bearing arms. Scores of prisoners were taken, most of them protesting that they were not guilty of any unfriendliness whatsoever toward the Americans.

off the snipers and prevent the bombardment he believed would follow if they continued their shooting. Even before the messenger had climbed the stairs into the consul's office Captain Rush was informed of the contents of the note and immediately sounded "cease firing" and "halt."

If You Don't Happen to Go to Church Don't Scoff at Those Who Do

If you don't care to join the ever increasing GO TO CHURCH throng DON'T BE A SCOFFER. Words are inadequate to describe the man who seeks to ridicule or make a jest of the uplift GO TO CHURCH movement.

THIS GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT IS A WINNER. IT IS SPREADING LIKE A PRAIRIE FIRE. IN THIS THE MOST MATERIAL AGE IT IS GRIPPING THE BIG MEN OF THE COUNTRY. THEY SEE THAT IT IS A FORCE FOR GOOD NOT ONLY TO THE INDIVIDUAL BUT TO THE NATION.

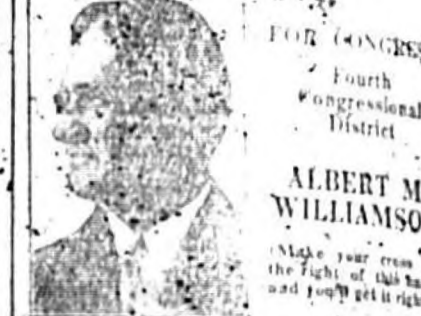

If the man who scoffs at the GO TO CHURCH movement could see himself as others do he would realize what a mistake he is making. The GO TO CHURCH movement is a serious, broad minded proposition. It will not be denied. In any city, town and hamlet in the United States there is a genuine religious awakening.

IT IS PLAIN THAT THERE NEVER WAS A TIME WHEN RELIGION WAS REALLY DEAD EVEN AMONG THE WORST. IT WAS SIMPLY DUMBERING. IT REQUIRED AN AWAKENING. AS IT GRADUALLY DAWNED THAT THE CHURCHES WERE BEING EMPTIED AND THAT FACT WAS BROUGHT TO THE MINDS OF THE PEOPLE, THEY WERE AROUSED.

The GO TO CHURCH call found a quick and powerful response. As the call became generally disseminated there was a magnificent advance on the house of God. If you haven't joined the throng do it at once. If you have a social engagement for next Sunday break it for an engagement with God.

GO TO CHURCH!

THE FLORIDA PRESS ASSOCIATION HELD ITS 35th SESSION

FORT MYERS HONORED BY DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

R. J. HOLLY ELECTED AS NEW PRESIDENT

VICE-PRESIDENT MARSHALL AND WIFE GRACED THE OCCASION BY THEIR PRESENCE

The thirty-fifth annual meeting of the Florida Press Association has passed into history of the organization and it was one of the best in any way. The distance made it almost prohibitive for many from West Florida and points on the lower East coast to attend but a large crowd had assembled on Thursday morning in the Gate City of the Tropics, beautiful Fort Myers. The fact that Vice President Marshall and his wife would be honored guests of the meeting brought many visitors to Ft. Myers and the hotels were crowded for the three days of the meeting.

The association was called to order on Thursday night in the High School Auditorium by President Russell. The address of welcome delivered by Dr. Porter on behalf of the city of Ft. Myers was responded to by Editor Triplett of the Kissimmee Gazette. The President introduced Vice President Marshall and for one hour he held the vast audience upon his every word in one of the most masterly addresses ever delivered before the Association. All were anxious for his opinion upon the Mexican trouble and he touched upon that subject as follows: "There is no war with Mexico unless one has been declared since I began speaking," said Vice President Marshall in addressing the Florida State Press Association.

"The taking of the customs house at Vera Cruz was not an act of warfare. Under international law it was simply an act of reprisal. Whether there is to be war or not I do not know. Nobody can tell. The gambler would say that it lay at the feet of fate. The poet would say that it rested upon the best of chance. But, for myself, looking back over the 125 years of glorious history, realizing all that it cost to lay the foundation of country, I believe this thing rests in the hands of God and I hope it may be the purpose of Him who rules the destinies of nations as He does the destinies of individuals that this cup may pass from the lips of the American people."

Mr. Marshall also equaled the patience of press and people with the transacted at the meeting held on Thursday and on account of the many visitors who were obliged to leave early, the election of officers and the selection of the next meeting place were held in the afternoon. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

R. J. Holly, Sanford, President; Chris. G. Robinson of Deland, Vice President; T. J. Appleby of Tallahassee, Secretary; J. W. White of Jacksonville, Treasurer.

Jos. Humphreys of Bradentown, National Committeeman. The night for the next place was very spirited and a large delegation of Kissimmee people were on hand to boost for their city, headed by Mayor May, H. C. Sanford representing the board of trade and many other prominent citizens.

Miami was the place selected after a close vote, as many had promised their support last year, to Oyster T. Conklin who has made a spirited fight for that city for the past two years.

The editors and their wives and Vice President Marshall were taken a trip down the river by steamer and passed through some very fine orange groves in which the county of Lee excels. The party was also taken in automobiles for many miles over the fine shell roads surrounding the city of Fort Myers and stopped at the home of Thomas A. Edson where cocktails were gathered for conversation.

A reception tendered Mrs. Marshall in the afternoon of Thursday was attended by the visiting ladies. The reception was given by the ladies of Ft. Myers and was a brilliant affair and greatly enjoyed by all present.

On Friday night the Ft. Myers board of trade tendered the editors and visitors a magnificent banquet at the Hotel Bradford and witty toasts from many prominent people present proved to be a most enjoyable affair.

Before the banquet the business session was held at the Methodist church owing to the fact that the Lyceum was conflicting and the Gwynne auditorium was to be used. The meeting opened with invocation by Rev. G. F. Scott. President Russell presented Dr. J. A. Evans of the Agricultural Department at

STRONG ANTI-HUERTA SENTIMENT

IN THE CITY OF MEXICO AND IT LOOKS AS IF THE MEXICAN TIGER MAY HAVE HIS CLAWS CUT AT HOME

Vera Cruz, April 28.—Refugees from Mexico City state strong Anti-Huerta sentiment beginning to be manifested. "Conspirators attempted Saturday to oust Dictator but failed. Huerta hid during the demonstration as his advisers feared assassination."

Washington, April 28.—War and Navy departments today continued actively preparing for extended campaign in Mexico. Diplomats of South America are bringing all possible pressure on Huerta to establish peace.

Washington, April 27.—Spanish Minister Riano today informed Secretary Bryan that Huerta unconditionally accepted principal mediation as involved in the proposed Brazil-Argentine-Chilean government envoys.

Independent Steamship Line. The introduction of the auto freight truck by the Ferrans, described last week, is a 2-ton Rino capable of 42 miles per hour, suggested to some business men the idea of starting a freight line to the St. Johns river to connect with the river steamers. When asked for their opinion they stated that this general class of freight seemed destined to be compelled to go through life without direct communication with Jacksonville via Aator and Seville, Barboursville or Durson, hence they might as well do the next best thing—establish an auto overland to St. Johns river.

This calls to mind the proposals of the Sanford real estate men to set up an independent steamship line as thus described in the time of the Sanford Herald.

"The very latest wrinkle for making a greater Sanford is the idea of an independent steamship line incorporated by Sanford merchants

THIS INTERESTING MAN DREW A LARGE CROWD OF SANFORD PEOPLE

Thursday evening at the Congregational church in response to an invitation from the Welfare Department of the Woman's Club Mr. Marcus Fagg, late superintendent of the Children's Home Society addressed the club women and citizens of Sanford.

Mr. Fagg is a student of child laws and their application, as well as of the classes for whom they are provided and he had been requested to explain the widowed mother's right and pension law, which will probably be presented before our next legislature. This he did at length in the various forms in which it has operated in seventeen states during the past four years. Mr. Fagg is deeply sympathetic towards the mothers which shall prevent the separation of mother and child and shall lighten the burden that in the light of the experience of the states which have tested the law it seems one difficult to apply with justice. Mr. Fagg believes that if other laws were made and enforced whereby men were required to support their families that would furnish a better solution of the matter.

Mr. Fagg also told of improved conditions at the Marianna Reformatory, of the change of the name from the State Reformatory School to the State Industrial School for Boys, and of a provision by which boys may be committed to its shelter through probate judges instead of through regular criminal courses. And that under improved conditions there the state may expect in two or three years to have an institution of high order. The best feature of all, however, is that the stigma of criminality is removed and unfortunate and dependent boys are given a chance. A bill for a similar institution for girls will be strangely presented before the next legislature. The people of Sanford are always pleased to receive Mr. Fagg and appreciate the noble work which is being so splendidly accomplished by him and his society for the helpless children of the state.

SEN. FLETCHER IS HOPEFUL WAR MAY BE AVERTED

IF DECLARED U. S. MUST GET FULL PAY FOR ALL DAMAGES SUSTAINED

BLACK POINT MAY GET NATIONAL ENCAMPMENT

IS CONFIDENT OF RE-ELECTION. WILL REMAIN IN STATE UNTIL AFTER THE PRIMARY

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher returned last night from Washington to remain until after the primary election, in June, unless recalled to Washington because of urgent Mexican matters, which he does not expect.

Last night, to a representative of the Times-Union, Senator Fletcher said that when he left Washington officials were hopeful of a speedy settlement of the difficulty, without a declaration of war, and that no declaration from Mexico was looked for as press reports from the fighting republic have stated.

Not speaking for the administration, but solely from his personal standpoint, the senator said he believed the sooner the thing was begun and well attended to the better, and he did not approve of this country getting into war with Mexico, pledged to get out at any particular time or under any certain conditions. He thinks that the best thing to do in case there is open hostility declared, is to do just what was done in the case of Cuba.

"This country," he believes is not going to show itself to be dragged in and then get out without taking care of itself, and it should have ample reparation for all damages inflicted.

Huerta, he said, has wealth in Europe. Villa has an immense amount on deposit in New York and Texas; and he doesn't know about Carranza, but he doubtless is like the others, looking out for himself.

Both Villa and Huerta, he said, are issuing paper money, and it is being printed in Washington. They are having no trouble in financing their military operations.

Speaking of his senatorial campaign, the senator said that he was not in a boasting humor but must say that he is extremely gratified at all he is hearing from the state and that he is confident of his reelection.

Senator Fletcher brought good news relative to the National Guard encampment, which has taken away from South Carolina because of trouble the secretary of war had with Gov. Cole Bleas.

He said that in event of no declaration of war with Mexico, which would of course prevent, it now looks like Jacksonville will get the encampment as asked for at Black Point.

NO WORK FOR COMMITTEE

THE BRYAN PRIMARY LAW HAS SHORN THE COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF POWER

Miami, April 27.—Why is the county executive committee? asks the Miami Metropolis.

J. E. Lummus, member of the committee from the Miami central precinct, is of the opinion that the committee has been legislated out of business, that it has been shorn of practically all its powers, and that now its only excuse for existence lies in perpetuating itself by providing for the nomination of new members of its own body and to fill any vacancies in the balance of the ticket that might occur.

Mr. Lummus has come to the conclusion after a careful reading of the new Bryan primary law and a perusal of a legal opinion from the firm of McCaskill & McCaskill furnished by C. D. Laffer, chairman of the committee. This opinion is as follows:

"Pursuant to our conversation relative to the duties of the committee under the new primary law we have gone over the matter carefully and shall take the liberty to refer to it at length, and when reference is made to sections it shall be to those of Chapter 469, Laws of 1913, beginning on page 242."

"The old primary law is entirely abrogated and not to be followed in any respect. Reference to Section 63 discloses that primary elections required by the new act, now in question, except as herein otherwise provided, shall be held in accordance with the provisions of Article I of Title III, First Division of General Statutes. A reading of the new law shows that the general election laws are followed in many instances.

"It will be well for a thorough comprehension of the new primary law to remember that it is to be held on a specified day by all political parties, and since all are concerned none of them have control of the election. Formerly the Democratic Executive Committee called and held its primary election when it suited them and for the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates only to be placed on the general election ballot. Political party is defined in Section 2.

"This primary is held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June of every year, in which a general election is held, and at this election the members of your committee are elected for two years, as has been the law since 1907. See Sections 5 and 7. Within thirty days after their elections they shall meet at the county seat for the purpose set out in Section 7, paragraph 3.

"You will observe that the expenses of the elections are to be paid by the county or state as is done in general elections. Section 16. The Secretary of State will prepare registration and all other books and forms required by the new law. See Section 17.

"The state executive committee, only of the respective parties have power to determine upon what terms and conditions the prospective elections shall be taken. See Section 16. Each party, county executive committee shall meet not later than March 15th of the year when the election shall be had and adopt a resolution setting forth what assessments, if any, it will require of candidates and cause a certified copy thereof to be delivered within five days to the clerk of the circuit court in his capacity as clerk of the Board of County Commissioners. Section 21. The fact that you have not already done this already is, in our opinion, not enough to invalidate any assessment you may make before the 20th. This should be looked after, an at early date if you intend to make any assessment. The assessment to be made shall not exceed 2 per cent of the salary of any candidate for such blanks. See against whom the assessment is made, and your committee may assess only candidates to be voted for only in this county. See Section 20.

"Every candidate for nomination is required to make and subscribe an oath as is provided for in Section 22. The only thing your committee has to do with this however is to furnish the blank upon request. It might be well to call upon the county commissioners at your early convenience for such blanks. See Section 23. County candidates will fill this oath and pay to the clerk of the circuit court as is provided in Sections 24, 25 and 26. With this you are not concerned.

"Since the day for the election is permanently fixed you will not have to call the election. Nothing is said in the new law as to giving notice of the election. It has been the law before in both primary and general elections to give notice, and since Section 63 provides that the elections, except as therein otherwise provided, shall be conducted in accordance with the general election laws, and since the expenses of the elections are to be paid from the county and state treasuries, it is our opinion that the Secretary of State will look after the notice.

"Heretofore you have named the inspectors for the primary, but this matter is now the duty of the county commissioners. See Section 23 which leaves the appointment of inspectors to be made in accordance with Section 295 of the General Statutes. The inspectors will make oath, etc., in accordance with the general election laws and when they make their report it shall be to the supervisor of registration and the canvass for the county will be made by the officials who make the canvass in general elections, so that you do not have to give any attention to the inspectors or the conduct of the election. These things are not specifically provided for in the new act, but Section 62 is the authority for the operation of the general election laws in these matters.

"Under certain circumstances your committee might be called upon to make nomination when such nomination has failed in the primary. See Section 50.

"In making the assessment referred to above you will assess only for your body's expenses, not including any expense of calling or holding the election, for the election expense will be paid by the state or county (Section 8) who will receive monies to defray such expenses from the filing fees paid by candidates as is provided in Section 4.

"We do not find any other duties than those above outlined for your committee to perform.

"Your committee has the power usually exercised by such committees including the right to appoint from its membership sub-committees. See Section 7, 4th paragraph.

Yours very truly,
(Signed):

CLASS ANT WITH FLY

BOTH ENEMIES OF THE HUMAN RACE, SAY SCIENTISTS.

Flies Are Equally Active in Carrying Disease Germs—Experiments in Panama Canal Zone Have Substantiated Theories.

No suspicion until lately has arisen that the industrious ant might upon occasion act as the transmitting agent of infection to man, says the London Lancet. It was known that some species, such as the white ant, has very destructive tendencies in certain parts of the tropics and that the bites of some large tropical ants caused a good deal of general disturbance, being attended with faintness and shivering and sometimes with temporary paralysis. It was also known that some savage races used the dried bodies of ants, beaten into a paste, as an arrow poison, but it is only of late that suggestion has been made that this insect might convey pathogenic bacteria to man. The ant is commonly found in and around the dwellings of people residing in the tropics. It is indeed a matter of difficulty to keep this insect away from foodstuffs in such houses, and it is equally difficult to keep them away from human excreta when these are not properly disposed of. So that it cannot be doubted that the ant has the opportunity of carrying from infected excreta the specific organisms of disease to the food stored in human dwellings.

Little or no experimental work, however, had been done to obtain proof that ants were capable of transmitting disease to man, but in 1912 Dr. L. H. Hates, bacteriologist to Ancon hospital in the Panama Canal zone, undertook a series of experiments with a view of putting to the test whether or not the ant acted as a transmitting agent of such infections as enteric fever and bacillary dysentery. His investigations were carried out with the large yellow ants which are found in and around the houses in the canal zone. He fed a number of these insects on bread soaked with cultures of bacillus typhosus for five days, killing and examining some of them at certain intervals, but in no instance was he able to recover the typhoid bacillus from the intestines of the ants. The experiment was carefully repeated with like negative results. He then tried to determine if the ant could carry the specific organisms on its legs or body in a purely mechanical way in human food.

To this end a number of the insects were dropped into a broth culture of the typhoid bacillus and allowed afterward to crawl out and walk over dishes in such a way that their footprints could be "cultivated" for bacteria. The typhoid bacillus was easily found in every instance. This experiment was repeated several times, and in the majority of cases positive results were obtained.

Rising Generation.

For one, I like to believe that the young people of the coming generation are not less able or less earnest, not less willing or less devoted, than those of our own young days. Those men in buckram whom we boast of having fought, were they indeed so much more formidable than the giants in the path of the youth of today? Were we never "cowards on instinct," pluming ourselves on our "discipline?" I feel that we, the talking generation, might suffer in comparison with the youth of today, did not our memories so often play us false. Certainly not all of us have achieved even honesty and courtesy and common human kindness. Did we all once have learning and wit and zeal? Where are our seal and wit and learning now? Are our sons and daughters so much our inferiors? No, by my halldom! And we know it!—Fannie H. Eckstorm, in the Atlantic.

Chinese Market Expanding.

Now that the Chinese in many provinces are adopting foreign dress, foreign food and foreign-style houses they are demanding a larger quantity of foreign merchandise. The sale of foreign clothing, shoes, hats and jewelry is rapidly increasing. Foreign-made furniture also is coming more and more into use, and while a great deal of it is being made in China there is a growing demand for foreign locks and hardware of all descriptions. A considerable increase is noticed in the consumption of foreign food and canned provisions are enjoying a wider sale. Foreign food is displacing Chinese food to such an extent that a local guild of Chungking which formerly made huge profits by selling sharks' fins and other Chinese delicacies has suffered heavily of late on account of the growing preference for foreign food.

Abandoned and Unsinkable Vessels Inspire Sailors With Terror in Foggy Weather—Danger of Lumber Ships.

New York.—The dismayed, battered bulk of a derelict, floating so low in the water as to be almost level with the waves, is, of course, a very great danger to navigation, especially in foggy weather. The majority of derelicts are sailing ships laden with lumber. They may have been dismantled and rendered absolutely helpless in storms, partly demolished by fire, by collision with an iceberg or by the mere force of the waves themselves. The crew, unable to make their ship seaworthy, may have abandoned it in the boats, or have been rescued by some passing vessel, but, whatever their fate, their forsaken ship, if laden with wood, remains practically unsinkable and is driven hither and thither over the ocean at the mercy of the winds and currents.

In course of time the swelling of the wood cargo may burst the hull around, but until this happens, or until the vessel is driven ashore and broken into matchwood against some freshwood coast, it will remain a terror to passing ships. Now and then a steamer may be rendered helpless owing to its machinery becoming disabled by a fire of equal, by fire or by the loss of its rudder or propeller in heavy weather. Its crew may decide to abandon it and take to the boats, but if they neglect to open the sea cocks on their departure their ship may float for many a long day.

The erratic movements of some derelicts are almost uncanny. Not so very long ago a Norwegian sailing ship called the Crown left Nova Scotia for a South American port. It was laden with lumber and, while still in the North Atlantic ocean, was overtaken by a terrible storm, which derailed and left it a battered wreck. The crew, realizing it was useless to remain on board, abandoned it and took to the boats, never to be heard of again; but their ship, although it vanished completely for no less than three months, was sighted at the end of this time on the edge of the Bering sea, a good 700 miles from where disaster overtook it.

Soon afterward it was sighted off Bermuda, but then disappeared again and may still be drifting about the ocean. Another sailing ship was abandoned off Cape May. The crew endeavored to destroy it by fire on their departure but, although it blazed furiously, the sodden, waterlogged cargo eventually extinguished the flames. A few weeks later the hulk was off the English coast and it was thought it would be dashed to pieces on the shore but, miraculously, it proceeded to the southward along the Portuguese coast and was next seen near the Azores. Having got thus far, it proceeded to cross the Atlantic and, after covering fully 6,000 miles in its wanderings, finally drifted ashore near Panama.

Derelicts are sometimes salvaged and bring in large sums in salvage money to the crews of the ships which tow them into port.

THOUSANDS OF TROUT DIE

Cancerous Tumors Causing Much Trouble, Says Head of Bureau of Fisheries.

Washington.—The federal bureau of fisheries objects to taking care of land animals, declares Dr. J. M. Smith, head of the bureau, in his annual report to Secretary Redfield. He expresses the opinion that the duty of looking after the fur-bearing animals of Alaska should be transferred to another branch of the service.

Attention is called by Dr. Smith to the need for an experiment station to study fish diseases and problems in fish breeding. As a result of work in investigating cancerous tumors in trout, the commissioner says there is necessity now of preventing and curing the disease in streams and hatcheries.

He points to the economic value of this work and cites the case of one hatchery at Holden, Vt., where last year more than 350,000 trout, the entire stock on hand, died of an epidemic.

CHILD WEDGED IN TIN PAIL

Chicago Mother Has to Take Baby to Plumber's to Cut Bucket From Head.

Chicago.—Excitement was created on a street car when a woman entered carrying a baby that was muffed completely with the exception of one hand. Several women protested to the mother, saying that she would suffocate the child. The mother threw back the covers and showed the child with a tin pail tightly wedged over its head. In playing it had fallen into the pail. She announced she was on her way to a plumber's to have the pail cut off.

FLORIDA AND HYDROPHOEBIA

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

Which do you consider more valuable, your dog or your life? Which is really worth more to the community? Have you any right, moral or legal, deliberately to imperil any human life, your own or that of another citizen, when such risk arises entirely from the fatality of a sentiment personal to yourself alone?

The answer seems to be quick and ready in words. At least, but their acts hundreds of Floridians are placing a higher value on their dogs than on the God-given privilege of human life. Not many weeks ago the police of one of Florida's largest cities were instructed to enforce the dog muzzling ordinance which for months had been a dead letter of the municipal law books. The police were told to arrest the owners of dogs who allowed their pets to roam unmuzzled, and in case the owners could not be found or identified, to shoot the dogs. Both parts of the order were carried out and a large number of dogs were killed.

The office of the police captain was stormed by angry dog owners. Some of them even threatened to bring suit for alleged damages against the city and in other ways made themselves ridiculous. The officer stood firm by his men and told the frate kickers: "The ordinance we are trying to enforce positively asserts that no dogs shall be allowed to run at large unmuzzled in the streets of the city. Before the police began shooting dogs, publicity was given to the matter and the dog owners were warned. In compliance with orders, there is no distinction between a fine dog, a pet dog or a worthless canine. All dogs look alike, and if the owners care enough for their pets to complain of their death, they should certainly take the measure which will prevent their animals from being killed."

Rather plain talk that, and refreshing too. It's too bad that public officials who are clothed with authority to protect the community, don't indulge in that kind of conversation oftener and then back it up by performing their sworn duty.

If you a citizen and a householder in Florida, owned a pet lion or a Bengal tiger that you were fond of, and allowed it to roam at large, it wouldn't be very long before the officers of the law would kill it and they wouldn't ask your permission before they shot. In the meantime this pet of yours had breakfasted on one or two of your neighbors, you would probably be held on the charge of manslaughter in some town or another, and unless you had some kind of "pull," it is quite likely that you would contribute your services to the state for several years with only your board and clothes for wages. And it would be your right.

A mad dog is a wild animal, not as wild and as dangerous as a lion or a tiger. It is quite as likely to cause the death of some innocent person and you would be just as responsible for that death as if it had been caused by a wild beast from the jungles which you were harboring as a pet. Your dog is quite as likely to become infected with the virus of hydrophobia as that of any other citizen. Your personal ownership doesn't protect your dog from the malady, neither does it protect the community from the danger of that dog being at large, a menace and a nuisance.

Human life is more precious than a dog, more serious than the sentiment that insists on maintaining the dog when it is known that he may become a cause of death to innocent persons. Already there has been the great sacrifice in Florida to a mauling sentiment about dogs, in the horrible deaths of infants and adults, on the altar of absolute, obstinate, selfish perverseness. Not only on the streets and highways of Florida's cities and rural sections does this danger threaten continually and increasingly, but even in the very homes where, if anywhere, it would seem that life should be safe from violence. Literally this is true, for twice within recent months in Duval county, have mad dogs rushed through open doors and attacked helpless children in the privacy and supposed safety of their homes. It may be your child and your home next time.

This is a matter potentially personal to every citizen of Florida and to the stranger within our gates. Many communities in our state have wisely adopted laws to protect them from the menace of the mad dog, and wisely and wickedly have failed to enforce these laws. When the effort is made to revive these ordinances by aggressively enforcing them, the responsible offenders howl. They declare that their individual rights as free American citizens have been infringed. They insist that they have the right to allow these dogs to run abroad by day and by night unmuzzled, and if by chance some unprotected child, a defenseless woman or a strong man is attacked and death comes to its most horrible form, they declare that it is no affair of theirs.

Modern science has discovered by other or surer way of protection against this danger, than by muzzling the dog. The moral and legal rights of the dog demand WWW rights of the public demand protection, and it is only a selfishness that arises to the seriousness of a crime, which objects or refuses to comply with the laws that provide such protection. This plain talk, but the time has come when public sentiment must be aroused to action and nothing short of plain talk can arouse it. How long, oh how long, are the people of this state going to submit to a toll that exacts dozens of lives each year besides thousands of dollars of valuable property, a tax that finds its only justification in the satisfaction of a maudlin sentiment about dogs?

Corollaries.

Henry K. Alder the prominent western detective, and somewhat despondent as he boarded a train in Lincoln.

"Yes, I have failed here. I am leaving this fine town of Lincoln, but I suppose I haven't attended properly to my corollaries."

"In detecting you know everything depends on your corollaries. Every fact, that is to say, has its corollaries, or interlocking facts, and it's the detective who works out his corollaries best who best succeeds."

An example of a corollary? Will you see? Here they are: When you find a young man at a woman's door, and she is a social street with a muffled collar in zero weather, the corollary to that is that a pretty girl is tiptoeing upstairs in a nearby house in the dark, with her shoes under her arm and her hair all rumpled."

Successful Marriage.

Happiness is always the woman's pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. In her quest for it she is surrounded through fear and unacquainted constantly before her how the vision of the bliss fades to a shadow or of musicians put the crowd into melody to gully the poet's words, novelists make their living by exploiting it."

When we consider the patency of this requirement in the face of the few even comparatively happy marriages and the myriads that are either negatively or positively unsatisfactory, we may feel with complete justification that here is one of the most astounding illustrations in the world of the triumph of faith over experience.—Mother's Magazine.

GIRLS WHO SCRAP.

Where is the man who has the power and skill to stave off the torments of a woman's will? For if she will, she will, you may depend on it. And if she won't, she won't, and there's an end on't."

When a girl has a "beat" who has been calling "regularly" she shouldn't jump to the conclusion that she's over him if he has not declared himself. If she hears that he was walking with a pretty girl she shouldn't imagine that an expectation is due her. Instead of a scrapping about it, she should let him take the initiative to mention it if he cares to.

Above all else, a girl should know better than to scrap with her folks. Her mother has the best right in the world to influence her, while her sister, if she has a young sister whom she has loved all her life, she cannot wholly ignore her wishes to please a sweetheart.

A man likes a sensible, reasonable girl, one who is not suspicious of his motives and always questioning them—either sulky or having a downright quarrel with him for no good reason. For instance, if a young man has a sister who is calling upon friends and asks him to fetch her bag, his sweetheart should not raise an objection if he quits her home half an hour earlier for this purpose than is his wont.

Many a girl has lost an excellent lover, by declaring he will have to choose between his sister and herself and absconding herself the evening after when he calls.

He whose affection is strongest may experience a change of heart over a mere trifle, if he has a stubborn, unreasonable sweetheart, who appears to love to scrap better than anything else, though she knows this torment is growing unbearable to him. The girl who stops to reason the matter out calmly must see that even the most ardent love cannot blind a man long to such a grave fault; that he will realize he would have little peace with a wife who cared so little for his feelings as to scrap over every trifle.

It's a habit which grows upon a woman. It is easily checked in the beginning, but like the avalanche, impossible to stem later on. Yet selves of this kind wonder why they lose their fascination for their husbands and they stay at the club with their boys until the wee small hours as it were. The woman with hurried thoughts cannot expect to retain her beauty long. The girl who has lost one great lover by scrapping should take warning. One man might endure it awhile, but it would soon become irksome to spend an evening with her. Let's the girls who don't scrap, whose society men seek.

NO FAMILY TIES.

"There is no man more to be pitied than he who has no family ties, who must feed upon the friendship of strangers or go about hungry. With out kith or kin in some part of the great wide world he is like a ship without a compass on the great turbulent ocean of life. The closest of friends have interests apart from his own. Others are warmer still and dearer to them than he is. The man who is alone in the world must find his own pleasures as best he can. There is not one human being who would make a great sacrifice for him and be glad of the opportunity to serve him as one who was bound by kinship ties. If he meets with reverses of fortune, the friends whom he relied upon would not follow him for the sake of his companionship from luxurious rooms at his club to a bleak room in a tenement. There are few human friendships that would stand such a test. Only those who are flesh of his flesh, blood of his blood, would hold him as dear in poverty as in wealth. No lone man ever knows peace and comfort in his heart until he anchors his affections to a woman."

Then commences the delight of homemaking. He has a place to come to. He has cemented another human heart into his own. When children come to him they form his world. He is no longer a wanderer, dependent upon the companionship of strangers. Within the four walls of the home which he has built are human hearts with love for him, a deep and so strange that they make his life one long, continued gleam of sunshine and joy. The old existence drops into the vanished past. He has a life to cheer him onward in his grapple with his fellow man for honor and the wherewith to make the family live from care, and children to attend to his ambition. In watching them grow up, seeing their pranks and listening to their laughter, he imagines himself almost a boy again. Let not the envy the lone man who has no family ties. He has a weary enough pliancy of it. Women may snipe up to him, but unless he comes across just the sort of woman who appeals to him he will never have that longing to settle down feeling in his heart. Every man who would make his life a success should feel it his duty to marry and to surround himself with home loves. If he shirks this responsibility in his early manhood, the blessings which might have been his may not come to him. The older a man grows the more he needs love. The older man grows the more dependent he is upon a helpmate. No matter how rich he is, he is poorer than the poorest pauper if he has not love. He should heed the heart's earnest call ere it is too late. The workman who has a large family at home, sings at his bench no matter how hard his toil may be. His heart is warm with the thought that there will be a little less of every window waiting and waiting eagerly for him as he comes whirling home. When he is old the hair he is working so hard for now will lift the burden from his shoulders and make his olden years comfortable and contented by the fireide. The lone rich man who has no family tie, growing older day by day in the gilded splendor of his hotel, must pay the hard toll that holds a glass of water to his parched lips in sickness or the slightest mishap extended him. The worst of it is, he realizes that the fault is largely his. If every man turned a cold shoulder toward matrimony in his youth, cupid might throw away his arrows.

WHY HE IS INDIFFERENT TO HER.

Why they alone have need of sorrow and they alone are poor? For whom in heaven's holy annals hadst thou spent the door? No matter how charming a girl may be, beautiful of face and attractive of manner, if she does not follow that one particular man who cares most for her, she should be interested in her. There's a little saying that "kissing goes by favor." This may be said to be equally true of a man's likes and dislikes. A girl may be a blonde and be beautiful yet to one man she may appear but a faded human picture. This ideal may be a girl dark of eye and of hair, who could boast of no trim waist or tapering fingers. And he may be calling often upon such a one. The blonde beauty regards him with gossip of hair and patches of her adoration of the traces of the fashionable crowd at her reception which she attended to that one, may be up to the minute in the style now in vogue, six like a nightingale and play the piano di- vine.

All of these accomplishments may have weighed as nothing to him compared to the interest the other girl had awakened in his breast. The plain, inconspicuous girl cannot devote herself to him any evening he may happen to call. Her household duties prevent. If he finds it agreeable to talk with her on the evening when she has a basket full of crockery to take to a party, she has plates and glasses to wash in the kitchen. She does not like to bring up the subject. Above all, she is a good listener, and appreciates having him do the greater part of the entertaining. She is deeply interested in his daily work and in the people who surround him. She sympathizes with the sorrier that come to him and always urges him to look on the bright side and anxiously admires in regarding him to the best of her power.

She is not a bigot; she is not to be kept at bay by her heart's aversion, when chimes with all the virtues which make women lovable. She is a home girl, takes on herself the household cares and the management of her younger brothers and sisters, that her father and tired old mother may enjoy an evening at the theater now and then. She knows more about cook books than fashion magazines, and knows about bread baking than poetry. She has an unflinching temper, is whole-souled and practical. When there is this sort of girl in the background, the most fashionable of beauties may try all their subtle arts to fascinate a man, but fail to make an impression on his heart.

There is sufficient reason as to why he is indifferent to their. No man can have his heart in two places and love sincerely two women at one and the same time.

It does not have to be angled for. When it is apparent to a fair woman that a man whom she has sincerely admired does not reciprocate her sentiment, she should not place her hopes upon winning him ultimately, but should console him without ado to her list of friends. She should understand that he is not decreed to be nearer and dearer to her than all others.

Of course, friendship is the stepping stone to the tenderer passion. But no girl of pride would think of taking the initiative, letting a man know that she has more than a friendly interest in him.

A man is indifferent to a sweet, beguiling woman. Trust my word for it that he has his own good reasons. It is best and wisest for her to let it go at that. The girl who feels disappointed should remember that there's a better man for her in the background who is waiting patiently to come forward.

Ballard's Snow Liniment

Is a Healing Remedy for All Ailments of the Flesh of Man and Beast.

The speed with which this splendid liniment heals up a bad wound or sore has surprised and pleased those who were accustomed to the slower and uncertain effect of less powerful remedies. It mends the lacerated flesh so quickly that there is but little time lost from work. In relieving rheumatic pains, neuralgia, sciatica, it has done and is doing a wonderful work. Many chronic victims of these diseases have found to their great satisfaction that it cures an attack in a fraction of the time required by the ordinary treatment. It is equally effective in the flesh ailments of animals. Owners of blooded stock value it highly for two reasons: It heals sores and wounds quickly, and leaves no disfiguring scars. This remedy is needed in every home. If its great power and efficacy was generally known, no family would be without it.

We spent a pleasant time in the city of Tim Callahan and Frank Kellow.

Vice President Marshall is a true American and real Democrat and the Florida editors are strong for him.

Oscar Conklin captured the convention for Miami though Triplett and Johnson and Co. worked hard for it.

Sanford will soon be a city of churches as well as a city of magnificent distances.

Recognition, if we remember rightly was what Huerta demanded. Well, he has it, hasn't he?

Huerta it appears is only 69 years of age, yet that's nearly old enough to know better.

Sanford was highly honored by getting the President of the Florida Press Association—an honor bestowed upon few cities.

Now that the Florida Press Association has met and adjourned the candidates will have the floor for a few weeks.

After being away one has a more friendly feeling for the old home town. There are other cities in Florida, but none that have the future possibilities of Sanford.

"The army is demoralizing the youth," writes "Mother" this morning, but if he stays at home he'll dance the tango. My country, I offer my son on the altar of patriotism!

If we ever get to the point where our suggestions are worth anything we are going to recommend to the city council to keep the gasoline pure and void of dirt which gets into the carburetor and drives a man to the street car. Also we shall urge that every pedestrian wear a headlight when on the street after 6 o'clock.

We salute Oscar Conklin of the Miami Herald. He captured the press meeting for Miami last year. Kissimmee deserves credit for the strong effort she put forth. The board of trade sent a strong delegation to pull the meeting to Kissimmee, but Oscar had pre-empted it last year. There's nothing like getting in the game early.

Almost before we have had time to realize the magnitude of the honor that has been bestowed upon us by having the privilege of entertaining the editorial association, our friends of the quill and the keyboard have come among us, have conducted and concluded their deliberations and operations and for the most part are gone. We have enjoyed having you with us. Every moment of your stay here has been a pleasure to us, and we sincerely hope it may have been both pleasant and profitable to you. We would be glad to have you oftener, but since it is the custom to go from place to place, we wish you good-bye with reluctance, and wish you Godspeed, and hope to meet with not only all of you who were present at this convention of the Florida Press Association, but all the others who, for reasons best known to themselves did not find it expedient to come and be with us. Each and every one of you will be welcome to the "Gate City of the Tropics" at any time. Au revoir. Ft. Myers Press.

EDITORIAL BROTHERLY LOVE

Rivalry among newspapers in the same city sometimes becomes more than merely competition. Frequently when one paper in a town espouses a cause, the other paper conceives it imperative that it must immediately take an opposite course. This may apply to city affairs, government, political candidates and every other proposition. Take, for example the two excellent dailies of Tampa. Both of high character, one a morning and the other an afternoon paper, each with a distinct field of its own, they are far from agreeing on every proposition and they sometimes make it quite lively for each other. This keen competition, however,

NATION'S CAPITAL FULL OF WAR

WASHINGTON HEARS NOTHING THESE DAYS BUT WAR AND RUMORS OF WAR

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Washington, D. C., April 27.—(Special)—War, war, war, everywhere you go nothing but war and its horrors is heard, the past week having been given up solely to the passage by the Congress of a joint resolution "justifying" the President in blockading the ports of Mexico, seizing the custom houses and other public offices in the cities and establishing American supremacy, even though it cost many precious lives. After this had been accomplished as adopted by the House was considerably broadened by the Senate, the name of General Huerta being stricken out as having the appearance of making war upon a single individual, the members of both branches of the national legislature indulged in oratory over the private soldier and what was expected of him.

Probably no more dramatic recital of a great achievement has been heard in the halls of Congress for many a day than was for the simple, unaffected story of Captain Hobson who told how he and seven picked men sank the Merrimac under the guns of the Spaniards, how they were taken prisoners and how they were liberated. While Captain Hobson failed to bottle up Cervera's fleet, yet the undaunted courage of the attempt will remain an imperishable record of bravery under fire.

So tense has been the situation the past week that Congress has done little in the way of public business, even the committee hearings being perfunctory and without heart or spirit, with the possible exception of the hearings now going on before the Inter-oceanic Canals Committee of the Senate with the bill repealing the free toll section of the act providing for the civil administration of the Panama and Colon. These hearings have brought to Washington a very large number of the big men of the nation, big in law, in commerce, in economics and in trade. Even the women have been participating in the hearings, showing the wide interest the subject has aroused. Had not war intruded itself, it is believed that these does not reach the sore spot to the extent that personally the editors show a rancor toward each other, as in some other cities.

A striking illustration of this is noted in the tribute paid the editor, Wallace Stovall of the Tribune, by the talented and courtly editor in chief of the Times, Judge Harrison, in which he states that Tampa cannot spare the versatile Stovall.

We like this spirit. It proves that though men may differ and be at odds they are up against a competitive situation the pace may be mightily lively still the fraternal spirit may be cherished and the heart may jump out volumes of brotherly love.

ADVISE FROM BRYAN

Candidates Should Qualify Once And Get Ready

In an interesting communication from Washington, D. C., United States Senator N. P. Bryan calls attention to several important facts relative to the election of the members of the state, congressional and county executive committees, and also calls attention to the fact that there is not much time before it is necessary for candidates to qualify in order to get upon the ticket, May 2 being the time limit for state and congressional committees and May 12 for county committees.

The letter of Senator Bryan is as follows: Importance of Matter "The election of members of the state, congressional and county executive committees is provided for by Section 7 of the primary election law of 1913, and is of so much importance that I trust that the papers of the state will point out that it is very desirable, from a party standpoint, that members be elected at the June election.

"The state committee is required to be made up of one committeeman from each county, the congressional committee of one member from each county in the congressional district, and the county committee of one member from each election precinct or district. Of course these are largely honorary positions, but not to the extent suggested by some of the papers. It is true that the election will not hereafter be held by the committees, but, aside from this, they have all the powers heretofore enjoyed. Good men will be required upon these committees as hearings would have taken the center of the stage and held it until action had been taken on the bill itself.

The display of flowers, jewels and clothes at the twenty-third annual congress of the D. A. R., holding its sessions in Washington this week represents something into the hundreds of thousands of dollars every day. The president general of the society, Mrs. William Cumming Story never wears any thing but lavender, heliotrope or purple. She appears in a different costume every day and every evening, always in some tint of those shades varying from the palest to the deepest. The daisy is her emblem. Her friends and constituents wear a silver pin, the perfect reproduction of a daisy in filigree work, as an inevitable article of adornment. She always wears a daisy or daisies somewhere about her gown. In her choicest bouquets of orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley, such as she always has on specially important days, the gift of her adoring husband, a daisy may invariably be found tucked away in the midst of it.

Among the last public appearances of the daughter of the President, Miss Eleanor Wilson, and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, before their own wedding, was their presence a few days ago at the wedding of another Washington belle, Miss Maitland Marshall and Paymaster Knapp of the Navy. Miss Wilson was a bridesmaid for Miss Marshall, wearing a costume of the shepherdess variety, with a shepherds hat and leghorn with pink roses and a blue bow. Miss Wilson was prettier than in anything she has yet worn, and she and her distinguished fiancé were the observed of all the observers, for the White House wedding, May 7 is rapidly approaching. Mr. McAdoo and Miss Wilson by the way would make a fortune on the professional stage with the Tango, the Hesitation and the Maxixe, so light, agile and skillful are both the President's daughter, and the Secretary of the Treasury.

much as ever, and for the following reasons:

Four Reasons

"1. In the first place, Section 16 of the act authorizes the state committee to declare the terms and conditions upon which voters may be members of any political party. This is a specially important provision for the Democratic party in view of the race problem.

"2. These committees are authorized to levy assessments upon candidates of not exceeding 2 per cent for the purpose of meeting legitimate party expenses and maintaining party organizations. This, also, is a very important matter. It may very easily happen that opposition to candidates of the Democratic party, for instance may be such in a given county, as to render necessary united and official support. I believe it would be a good plan for executive committees to assist the candidates in providing meetings for the public, discussion of the issues always arising in a campaign.

"3. It has been the custom of governors, in recent years to call upon committees for recommendations where vacancies have occurred. If that policy should obtain hereafter, it is in the interest of the people to have reliable men on the various executive committees.

"4. The primary act requires the nomination of officers to be elected by the people, but it leaves discretionary with the state executive committee the selection of national committeemen, delegates to national conventions, and direct nomination of president and vice president, and also leaves to the discretion of the state the question of whether state officers appointed by the governor shall be nominated. Judges of the circuit of court, criminal courts of record, state attorneys, county solicitors, and, perhaps, other officials of importance will be nominated or not, in primary elections, in the discretion of the state executive committee.

Valuable Service

"Surely these matters are of great importance to the people and members of these committees will render valuable service to their party, and to the state, congressional districts and counties as well.

"The fact that the holding of the election, the fixing of the date, and the paying of expenses is otherwise provided for ought to be a relief of the executive committeemen, and the fact that hereafter, they will only be called upon to shape the larger policies of their party will, I believe,

Saving money is merely a matter of spending less than you earn, and it becomes easier to save when you once acquire the saving habit. An account with the Peoples Bank of Sanford will act as an incentive for you to deposit a portion of your income each week.

If the matter is understood, attract rather than repel men from service upon the committee.

"There is not much time before it is necessary for a candidate to qualify in order to get upon the ticket. Candidates for state and congressional committees must qualify by May 2, and candidates for county committees by May 12. Yours very truly, N. P. BRYAN.

New Waterway from St. Johns

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(Special)—In order that there may be a free waterway from the St. Johns river to Key West, Senator Fletcher has just introduced an important amendment to the river and harbors bill looking toward such a plan.

The measure which Senator Fletcher has offered and which he will urge when the rivers and harbors bill is taken up in the senate, provides as follows: "That the President of the United States is hereby authorized to appoint a commission, consisting of an officer or retired officer of the engineering corps of the United States army, an officer of the United States navy and one person from civil life to examine and appraise the value of the work and franchise of the East Coast canal from the St. Johns river to Key West with reference to the desirability of purchasing said canal by the United States and the construction over the route of the said canal of a free and open waterway having a depth and capacity sufficient to accommodate vessels drawing ten feet of water at mean low water."

Said commission, to the extent that the same can be done from surveys heretofore made, under the direction of the war department and within the limits of the appropriation herein made, shall also examine and investigate the feasibility for the purpose of such a waterway of any parallel route between said points. The said commission shall make a report of its work together with its conclusions upon the probable cost and commercial advantages and military and naval use of said route or routes, to the secretary of war, who shall transmit the same to congress at its next session.

That the sum of $10,000 is appropriated to pay the expenses of said commission, including such clerical assistance as may be deemed necessary to said commission, and such reasonable compensation for the services of the members as the president may see fit to allow."

Paying Toll on Tigris River

At one ferry on the Tigris river the toll is as follows: For a poor Arab, two cents; for a prosperous Arab, four cents; for a soldier, ten cents; for a pilgrim, twenty cents; for a European, eighty cents. The scale of prices for nearly everything along the way is similar. But many of the Arabs are so poor that they prefer to swim across in the ancient manner. They bind several old gourds together and then, sitting upon them, paddle their way along.—Christian Herald.

Something New! Several weeks ago the Young Ladies Society of the Baptist Church announced a supper to be served in the old Duckworth store. The people who dined with the young ladies were loud in their praise of the supper served, as well as the service rendered. The same organization promises the public something better in the Chicken Pilau supper, which will be served in the Duckworth stand next Saturday, May 2nd. Come and see what they will have for you.

Death of Mrs. Henry Stevenson. Seldom have we been called upon to chronicle such a sad death as that of Mrs. Henry Stevenson. Leaving here for Washington to place Mr. Stevenson in a hospital for treatment the faithful wife fell ill of pneumonia and the skilled physicians of the hospital could not save her. The grief stricken husband was obliged to defer his operation and carry the remains to Maine where the burial was made at the old home near Portland.

The friends here did not learn of the sad occurrence until Mr. Stevenson returned home last Friday, and the sympathy of the community goes out to the grief stricken husband. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson have been residents of this city for many years, coming here from DeLand and taking up their residence on Celery avenue, where Mr. Stevenson was engaged in the trucking business. Mrs. Stevenson had a large circle of friends in this city and in Volusia county who will be grieved to learn of her sudden demise. Together hand in hand these two had walked down the pathway of life together, sharing its joys and sorrows as partners should, and the loving husband is left desolate to light the battle of life alone with no loving hands to lighten his burdens, no loving helpmeet to gird up his loins for the fray. For many years they had lived for each other and the breaking of such strong home ties is sad for the broken hearted husband.

But now she sleeps where the daisies nod. And the clover hangs its head, Where the wild birds come and the wild bees hum. Above her lonely bed she fought the fight, she kept the faith. Her lone shines bright and clear, And her memory lives in all our hearts. Which will hold it ever dear?

Osteen Village Board of Trade. Osteen, a village some eight miles east of Sanford is preparing to have its name placed on the map in large letters. Today morning there was a gathering of some 125 of its best men for the purpose of organizing a board of trade. The meeting being held in the Woodman's hall. The question had been well talked up and there was a great deal of interest manifested in making the village a feature in the future.

Notice. K. B. Bates, secretary of the Sanford Commercial Club had been invited to make an address on the usefulness of such an organization to the town and community in which it was located. The meeting was called to order by Mr. F. M. Purdy, who stated the object of the gathering and introduced the speaker, who further elaborated upon the object which had called the citizens together. After the remarks of Mr. Bates were given as charter member of the Board of Trade.

The relation of officers for the ensuing year was then made, those who were chosen are: K. B. Bates, President; W. S. Hayman, vice president; F. M. Purdy, secretary; A. A. Brooker, treasurer. The directors are H. J. Chalker, Chairman of the board; R. H. Wells, R. H. Johnson, T. C. Hutchinson, B. D. Thompson, Sam Brooker, Harry Lee Rouse, J. W. E. Allman, P. A. Leonard, John Bell, J. N. Allen and W. J. Murry.

After the officers had been chosen the ball was turned over to the young people who proceeded to give this shining touchest to the popular tango, while the "old folks" retired to the first floor to play having with a good supply of cards of various kinds which had thoughtfully been furnished for the occasion.

There is a well defined movement on foot for the organization of a board of trade in each of the towns adjacent to Sanford and when these organizations have been effected they will form a central organization and meet at stated periods for the purpose of interchanging ideas relative to the upbuilding of their various communities.

Notice to Tax Payers. The 1913 assessment on your property was made by Orange county officials. The completed books were delivered to Seminole county in October, 1913. If the assessments in your neighborhood were not equalized, come in and talk to me about them and we will get them on the 1914 rolls as they should be. THOMAS K. BATES, Assessor. 63-tf

WOMAN'S CLUB

The Ideal Club Woman, No. 3. By Ethel Wheeler Waddell (Gen. Fed. Mag.)

A pity to be irresponsible. The irresponsible woman is a trial whomever you meet her, and never more so than in a woman's club. She cannot be trusted nor called upon to do anything she promises to do. It is this type of woman who undermines the program committee on the morning of the day on which she is scheduled to read a paper, that she is awfully sorry but she cannot find a thing in her library on the subject.

The woman with a sense of responsibility does not wait till the last minute to find her material, and put her paper together, and whatever she promises to do, you know will be done without having to remind her of it. And she is willing to do her share of work. And she is willing to do her fair share of work, and generally more than her fair share of work.

Should be good losers. One of the hardest things women have to learn in their association with each other is the necessity of being good losers. It is the natural tendency of a woman to make a personal matter of it when she is defeated for some office or fails to carry some measure which she has strongly advocated. And she feels she has no responsibility for carrying out plans which she opposed, no matter if the club has adopted them.

But an ideal club woman has learned to take her medicine gracefully when she is beaten. She feels it is necessary to advocate as for a club. She can plan and measure which seem to her the wisest and that it is equally her duty to oppose those on matter who offers them when in her judgment are against the best interests of the club.

But having advocated or opposed with the best arguments of her command if she loses she accepts the will of the majority without any personal pique and does her best to make a success of plans adopted, even though she feels that they are not at all what she would like to see done.

The status of Mrs. Fannie McMillan, the spouse of a very distinguished musician given by Mrs. Chapman in honor of the Literature Department of which she was a valued member. This musical by an annual event of great interest and interest the members of the Literary Department and their friends.

The program was opened with the singing of the new church hymns, which were given by the church choir, and they were followed by being allowed to play. They were Miss Allie Traylor and Mrs. C. M. Williams.

Little Virgie Horne Hymen, the five year old daughter of the pastor, came next in the shovel line after which all the gentlemen and ladies who were the interest of the occasion.

Today the workmen are busy getting ready for the foundation and the corner stone laying will mark another epoch in the life of the First Baptist Church of Sanford. The Baptists are taking the lead.

A. R. Phillips' delightful piano recital. An Old Soreheart, of Mendelsohn, being accompanied on the piano by Mrs. D. L. Thrasher. The Music Department Chorus, with Mrs. Geo. Gray as the efficient director, gave the splendid numbers, "Dreaming" and "When Daylight Begins" by Mrs. Neidlinger. A special flourish by the orchestra, "San Diego" was greatly enjoyed.

The hostess was assisted in caring for her guests by Mrs. D. L. Thrasher and Mrs. Sadie Williams, and the large number of guests present proved their appreciation by enthusiastic applause, and at the suggestion of Mrs. G. L. Harris, chairman of the Literature Department, a rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Munson and those taking part in the program, for the delightful affair enjoyed by all. The occasion was one long to be remembered in the musical circles of Sanford.

FIRST SHOVEL OF DIRT. Thrown in Baptist Church With Appropriate Exercises. Yesterday was a great day in the history of the First Baptist Church of Sanford, for the hopes of the pastor and congregation seem about to be realized in the starting of the new church and the ground was broken with appropriate ceremonies.

The Baptist Bible and Drum Corps paraded the streets about two o'clock and at three thirty the exercises began by the Baptist Quartet rendering "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," followed by a prayer by Rev. E. E. Strong, pastor of the Congregational church. The church choir then rendered some special music and Rev. George Hyman, the pastor introduced Prof. Perkins, who gave an address on the work of the ladies of the Baptist church and to hear him one would think the men were considerably in the background and the ladies do the work. He paid a beautiful tribute to the ladies and was warmly applauded by them upon the conclusion of his remarks.

He was followed by Cruise Barnes, who gave an outline of the church work and the plans of the new church and he was closely followed by his audience, the facts and figures being a revelation to those present.

R. J. Holly, was then called upon for an address upon the church work in Sanford and briefly stated what had been accomplished by the men, ladies and pastors and of the great awakening that had taken place since the church was organized.

Rev. George Hyman then spoke about the work of the Baptists and announced that the first shovel of dirt was to have been by four of the oldest members, but one of them, Mrs. J. E. Turner was unable to be present on account of sickness, and she then other would officiate for the purpose of Mrs. W. S. Hubbard, Mrs. Joe Lamm and Mrs. E. E. Fox and these ladies shovelled dirt with the assistance of their friends.

Then came the two who had been the first contributors to the new church some months ago and they were honored by being allowed to shovelled. They were Miss Allie Traylor and Mrs. C. M. Williams.

Little Virgie Horne Hymen, the five year old daughter of the pastor came next in the shovel line after which all the gentlemen and ladies who were the interest of the occasion.

Today the workmen are busy getting ready for the foundation and the corner stone laying will mark another epoch in the life of the First Baptist Church of Sanford. The Baptists are taking the lead.

Afterwards a visit was made to the colored school of Sanford. Here great preparations had been made, though the teachers and pupils had been given very short notice. The blackboards had been adorned with drawings, including words of welcome and a program of music was given, which was highly complimented by the visitors. The address of welcome and the introduction by advertisement groups was complete in every particular. Besides the help, interesting talk by Mr. Watrous short addresses were made by Mr. Thrasher and Mrs. Torheim.

It is believed that this visit from one who is unquestionably one of our highest authorities in civics and who studies the general good of our cities will be productive of much good in the city of Sanford.

FINE LECTURE ON CIVICS

Citizens of Sanford Have an Opportunity to Hear Watrous. Richard B. Watrous, secretary of the American Civic Association with headquarters in Washington, D. C., gave a splendid illustrated lecture in civic improvement at the Imperial Theater Friday night, to an appreciative audience. The lecture was free to the public and was given under the auspices of the City Council, Commercial Club and Woman's Club of Sanford. Mayor D. L. Thrasher, representing the City Council, with a few well chosen remarks in a pleasing way introduced the speaker.

Mr. Watrous prefaced the illustrated part of his lecture with complimentary remarks concerning the conditions which he found existing in Sanford, but especially congratulated the residents on the fact that their Councilmen were so greatly interested in the progressive welfare of the city, and also upon the attendance upon a lecture bearing on civic matters. In the course of his remarks he said it was seldom the case in towns where he lectured that the Mayor could be induced to attend, while in Sanford, the Mayor not only attended, but also introduced the speaker at the evening.

Many slides illustrating in a practical manner the conditions and in different conditions existing in some of our large cities were shown.

Among the collection were cities of foreign cities, particularly those of Germany, showing the way many civic problems had been solved abroad.

In the afternoon preceding the lecture, Mr. Watrous accompanied by Mayor D. L. Thrasher, who is also County Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mrs. R. A. Terhune, chairman of the Welfare Department of the Woman's Club, and Mrs. J. W. Dickens, president of the Woman's Club, visited the High School where Prof. N. J. Perkins, superintendent of the school of Sanford, had assembled all the pupils including the third grade to the High School. Mayor Thrasher introduced Mr. Watrous to the children and their teachers with a few appropriate remarks. Mr. Watrous immediately won the close attention of the children, giving most practical advice and suggestions. A Junior Civic League has recently been organized in Sanford and the service was most valuable and opportune.

Afterwards a visit was made to the colored school of Sanford. Here great preparations had been made, though the teachers and pupils had been given very short notice. The blackboards had been adorned with drawings, including words of welcome and a program of music was given, which was highly complimented by the visitors. The address of welcome and the introduction by advertisement groups was complete in every particular. Besides the help, interesting talk by Mr. Watrous short addresses were made by Mr. Thrasher and Mrs. Torheim.

It is believed that this visit from one who is unquestionably one of our highest authorities in civics and who studies the general good of our cities will be productive of much good in the city of Sanford.

ON GENERAL'S STAFF

NO AID-DE-CAMP OF SUCH IMPORTANCE AS THE BEE. Treasured Secret of the War Department of the United States Seems to Be Rendered Valueless by This Publicity.

News that will be of interest to all army men was received here in a copy of La Gazette de Hollande. The Gazette, which is published at The Hague, has discovered a secret long cherished in the war department—the use of bees as messengers.

No longer will the aid-de-camp spur his staggering horse through shot and shell to carry the message to the front. Instead he will don his gloves and mask and, going to the portable bee hive back of headquarters, seize one of the faithful little insects and send the well-trained messenger through the air.

Whoever possesses a receiving outfit can read the secrets of the wireless, says La Gazette de Hollande. "One can cut the wires of the ordinary telegraph; the pigeon does not always escape the bullet. Therefore other means have been searched for. In America the general staff dreams of using, as a dispatch bearer, the bee.

The bee, like the homing pigeon, guided by his marvelous instinct, returns to the hive from wherever he may be liberated. Tiny dispatches, which can be deciphered with the magnifying glass, can be attached to its breast.

But something better still has been found. By an ingenious process the wings of the tiny insect are sensitized and by means of microscopic photography the message is imprinted on the wing, doing away with extra weight.

"And there you are," says La Gazette de Hollande, "tiny aerophanes of war." The secret is out, but all is not lost. La Gazette de Hollande has not discovered the wonderful process by which to dispose of the furies that an up-to-date enemy would send to ruin the sensitized wings of the trained bees.

The details of course can not be divulged. Suffice it to say that as soon as an enemy's trench reached the dark hole where the bees are waiting to have their wings photographed, its presence is made known by the action of the metal selenium, which is sensitive to light, and the alarm is given to a corps of trained dragon flies, who speedily make away with the intruder.—New York Herald.

and sign his name until his good right arm grew lame. He had a wondrous wad of wealth, but it was injuring his health. The tramp observed him, with regret. Extremes in these two persons met—a man with riches at his call; a man who had no coin at all. He couldn't give the tramp a dime. True Story. "The hat is very becoming to you," declared the salesman in one of the Broadway stores. "I'm not sure, I can't make up my mind," says the customer, studying the mirror.

"Oh, but it is. It suits your face exactly. You have a face, if you will pardon me for saying so, that calls for hats of a style few can wear. Now, put that hat on anybody else, and they wouldn't wear it with the distinction you will."

Accidentally. "I wonder how so many forest fires catch?" said Mrs. McBride. "Perhaps they catch accidentally from the mountain ranges," suggested Mr. McBride.—Christian Register.

Literary Note. "If boys tried to read between yellow covers some of the fiction that girls read these days under the name of late novels they would have to take their meals standing up."

ACCORDING TO ORDER

MISSIONARY IN INDIA TAKES HELPMATE CHOSEN.

Generally Better, However, as in the Case Herewith, That There Should Have Been a Little Preliminary Courtship.

Almost every one who has friends in mission work in India knows that one very important function of the missionary is to play the part of matchmaker to his flock.

On New Year's day, 1911, as I was seated in my little mud cottage at Tuticorin, a number of people entered the veranda and ceremoniously came into my room bearing trays of flowers, fruits, raisins and sugar.

It happened in school. The story is told of a teacher who recited to her pupils. The landing of the Pilgrims, after which she requested each pupil to try to draw from the description a picture of the Plymouth Rock.

Waist Occupation. Some, what's the trouble, old chap? You look angry enough to bite your own lip, I'm sizzling it took me an hour to button up my wife's waist in the back, and then I told her a joke and she laughed so much the buttons all flew open.

Important Thing to Know. If a man is dependent upon his life-work by means of his thinking it is just as important that he should choose that time when he is best qualified to think, as it is important that he should look before he crosses a street.

Proving the Obvious. A magazine writer who has gone back to the farm tells about sixteen hours of nothing but play. We'll leave it to any three farmers, picked from any community, to determine what kind of a liar that writer is.—Denver Republican.

Had Her Instructions. Mrs. Sabbus (to neighbor's child)—"Oh, this is the dozen of fresh eggs I asked your mother to send over. How much are they now, Mary?" The Child—"Please'm, it's 40 cents. But mother says if you grumble, it's 35."

From an Ancient Diary. August 7, 1641.—Soon after dinner my wooman and I did fall out, she favouredly, and so we both continued sullen, till worthily I did acknowledge the error to be mine, when all became well again and we to supper and bedd.—London Athenaeum.

Typewriter Expert. "We want someone who knows all about a typewriter." "I know a whole lot about a number of them. Perhaps I know something about the one you have in mind, if you'll just tell me her name."—Houston Post.

It Depends. The Springfield Republican, replying to an inquirer who wants to know if children are worth while, says it depends on whether they're yours or the neighbors'. That goes for dogs and chickens, too.—Kansas City Times.

Dr. Gordon's Lack of Tact. Such a good story is floating around the ministerial circles of Greater Boston that we yield to the temptation to pass it along, says the Congregationalist. The other Sunday morning in the course of his sermon Dr. George A. Gordon, in one of those delightful impromptu "asides," in which he occasionally indulges, remarked that it did seem to him sometimes as if Christians were about the most stupid people in the world.

By at once spoke up and said: "But, mother, do you think that was a very tactful remark? There might have been some Christians there." No one has laughed more loudly or frequently over this incident than Dr. Gordon himself.

Bird Pocketed the Diamond. At the Pittsburgh poultry show, the other day, a Madagascar crane suddenly changed its own valuation from $300 to $500. The crane, the property of William Cook & Sons, of Orpington, England, snatched a diamond stud from the necktie of P. A. Cook, who was in charge of the Cook exhibit, and before it could be interfered with swallowed the jewel.

Shortly after noon, Cook, while passing the lake, stopped to speak with the secretary of the poultry exhibition. The crane, ignored, set up a terrific racket and began pecking at a desk in front of them. Before it could be restrained, it grabbed the stud tearing it from the necktie and swallowing it.

The bird is valued at $300 and the diamond at $200.

The ladies in white faces wore evening gowns and garden hats of black lace and the black face minstrels wore black waists, white aprons, black skirts with red and on their heads they wore white caps...

The opening song, "Sing Me the Rosary," by Lillian Russell (Miss Aspinwall) was rendered as only this gifted singer can and she won new laurels during the evening...

"A Little Bit of Rag Time" by Lily Belle White (Mrs. Marlowe) opened up the real fun and showed the audience that this performance would be a professional one from every standpoint...

"I'm Going, I'm Gone" by Maude Delmar (Mrs. Frank Gonzales) was certainly going some and they would not let her go at the end but made her go all over it again.

Vance Douglass was a distinct surprise to the audience for it was rendered as well as the great Fritzie herself could have rendered it and brought down the house by singing part of it to the editor of The Herald...

"Mamma Jenny's Jubilee" by Cynthia Primrose (Miss Florence Frank) was all to the good and aside from the catchy air Cynthia was most graceful in the rag time steps and a good looking "Cullod Pussan" on the stage.

"Hello Little Sweetheart" by Anna Held (Miss Junie Stumon) was considerably better than the great Anna and Miss Stumon was as pretty and petite as Anna Held ever dared to be.

"Down in Monkeyville" a jungle song by Trilbyana Johnson (Mrs. Tolare) was most realistic and Miss Johnson was assisted in the chorus by the end ladies in a cute little evolution that would have shamed any monkey in the forest.

"I Want a Regular Man" by Miss Rogers was well rendered and well received. They expected something good from this dainty little thing.

Anderson Wolcott Last evening Miss Margaret Louise Anderson and Mr. O. G. Wolcott were quietly married at the home of Mrs. Lydia Barclay...

WHILE ALL THE NATIONS ARE SEEKING TO BRING ABOUT PEACE IN THE MEXICAN TROUBLE

FIFTH BRIGADE NOW IN CONTROL

IF MEXICO WANTS TO START ANYTHING UNCLE SAM IS READY AND WAITING TO RENDER A GOOD ACCOUNT

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Secretary Bryan announced today that South American envoys seeking to mediate in the Mexican crisis had been notified that this government would assume that there would be no hostilities between the United States and the Huerta government during the progress of mediation.

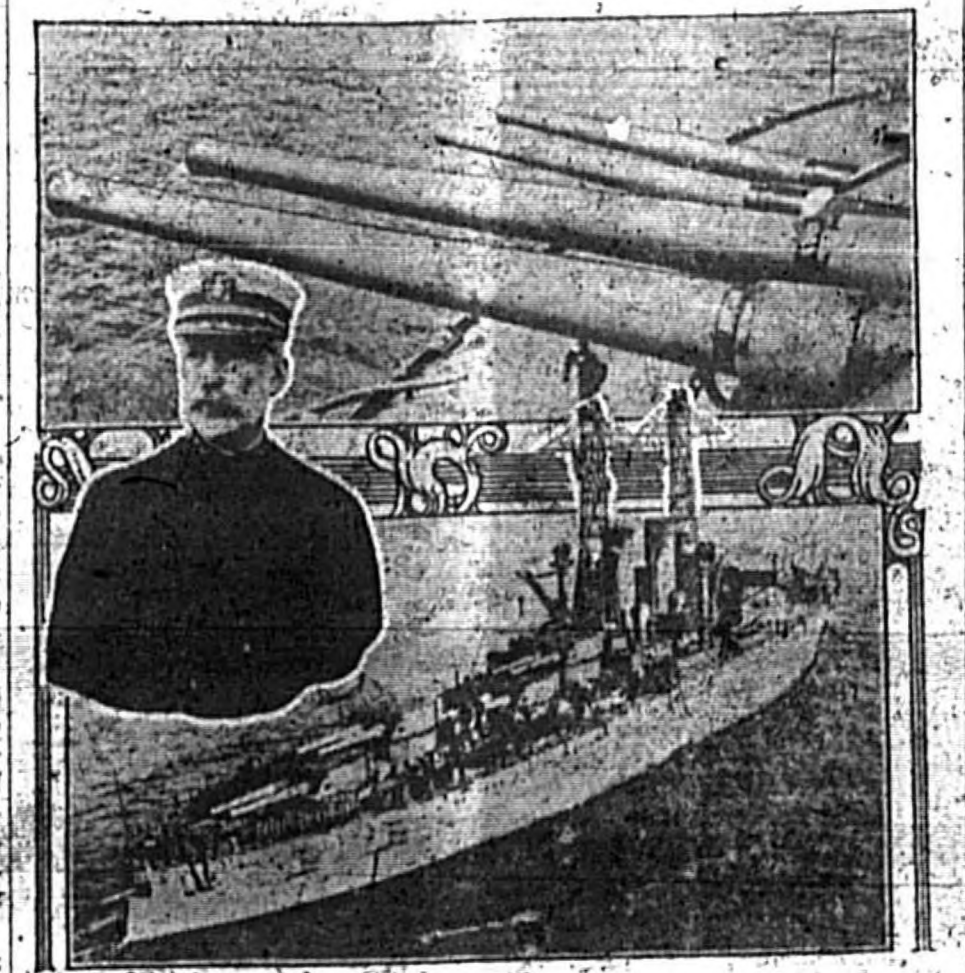

Washington, D. C., May 1.—It was asserted here today on unquestionable authority that the South American envoys who are seeking to avert a crisis in Mexico have appealed to European governments for friendly offices to facilitate mediation between Mexico and the United States.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—It was reported from abroad that the powers use their influence upon President Wilson to name conditions which would insure success of the negotiations. It was also learned that a proposal to General Carranza, as head of the constitutionalists, to join the armistice proposed between the United States and Huerta, had been made by the mediating envoys.

The request of the powers, it is declared, already has borne fruit, as several diplomatic representatives of union nations have consulted with Secretary of State Bryan with relations to the negotiations. Denials of previous reports from abroad with regard to this matter, it was pointed out, were based on the report that the powers had been asked to insist upon a modification of the attitude of the United States.

The release of the prisoners from the water soaked dungeons of Fort San Juan de Uloa, where many came forth blinded from the years spent in darkness, was a revelation of the character and attitude of the United States. Mexicans of the better class openly express gratification at the restoration of order and the resumption of business.

General Maas, who commanded the city, has fled far inland and is over the mountains in the City of Mexico. There seems to be no soldiers to oppose the Americans within 100 miles at least.

Refugees continued to arrive and preparations are being carried forward for their departure. The navy transport Hancock today is lying at Puerto Mexico to take aboard those coming down from Mexico City.

Late last night the refugees from Mexico City had not arrived at Puerto Mexico. It could not be learned where they were detained, but it is known that in the surrounding country there is no evidence just now of federal activity.

The troops from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., arrived in Canon City yesterday, and took charge of affairs in that section, which earlier in the week was the scene of desperate fighting.

Osceola Cattle Sold Kissimmee, Fla., April 30.—One of the biggest cattle deals that has been made recently closed here for a shipment of cattle from the ranch of C. W. Bass to some northern cattle merchants.

Another deal of perhaps 1,000 head of fat cattle is now pending between some of our leading cattle men and the Miller Brothers of Ranch 101 of Oklahoma.

WONDERFUL CROPS OF SANFORD FARMS SURPRISE THE WORLD

TIMES-UNION IN EDITORIAL MAKES FAVORABLE COMMENT

MONEY THIS SEASON BEYOND ALL DREAMS

A FEW INSTANCES CITED WHERE SANFORD GROWERS HAVE MADE FORTUNES THIS SEASON

Our Sanford correspondent, in a letter published Tuesday, gave an account of the results of the season just closed at that great celery and lettuce growing point. It has been one of the most profitable the Sanford growers have ever had.

Another instance comes to us in a private letter. A grower near Sanford is said to have raised this season what he believes to be "the best crop ever raised anywhere in the world."

The killing of Major P. P. Lester, a prominent physician of Walsenburg, while trying to save the life of a wounded guardsman, was one of the agencies which added to the tense feeling today.

The battle of Forbes, where seven mine guards and two strikers were known to have been killed yesterday, caused state officials to announce that drastic action would have to be taken immediately to prevent further bloodshed.

The soil in the Sanford district, and that in the Hastings district, is no richer naturally than that in many other parts of Florida.

We refer to their scientific methods of agriculture, of which their sub-irrigation, sub-drainage system is the most conspicuous.

Many a farmer would gladly expend money in such improvement of his lands if he could borrow it at any but ruinous rates. When farmers can borrow money for long terms of years at a reasonable low rate of interest, on an amortization plan, then will Florida blossom as the rose and become more than ever the winter market garden of the rest of the country.
