Train Studied For Cancellation Kills 10

Just about one month after the new Amtrak office was considering the cancellation of a route traveled by its train "The Floridian" it was involved in an accident that killed 10 people, seven of them children.

Florida Highway patrolmen at the scene of the Sunday night tragedy said there were no survivors in the canisterback truck, but none of the 40 passengers in the train was injured.

Witnesses said they thought the victims were migrant workers. They said it may be a day or so before firm identifications are made.

Pete Medley, engineer on the Chicago-St. Petersburg route of the Floridian, said he tried his best to stop.

Amtrak officials had announced at the end of August that The Floridian was losing money and that it would be cancelled if railroad officials decide about Oct. 12 that was the best thing to do.

The train stops in Sanford and in the August news story by Amtrak officials, the public was of Tampa in a rural area billed down the tracks. The vehicle exploded into flames that Fire Chief Lester Evans of nearby Dover said could be seen for one mile.

The engineer said he was 200 feet from the crossing when he first saw the truck. "The crossing was marked with flashing lights."

Witnesses said the crossing lights were working and the train whistle was blowing but the truck went across the tracks in an apparent attempt to beat the train. The crossing is located about 25 miles east

Auto taxes can run hundreds of dollars annually in states that charge according to the value of a car. Under a new schedule adopted by the 1977 Legislature, Florida tags will range from $15 a year for small cars to $31 for the big gas guzzlers.

Calvin said his agency probably will recommend a change in the next few years, but that he opposes taxing cars according to their value.

"I think value is too much of a subjective thing because who's to say after a vehicle's initially sold how much it's worth," he said.

His agency proposed a flat yearly fee of $24 for all cars registered in Florida, but that was rejected by the Legislature.

"It's very difficult in my estimation to justify a difference in private passenger car classifications because of weight," Calvin said.

Florida should turn to another system for taxing autos because of declining revenues, it's virtually certain that most motorists would have to pay more to keep their cars on the road.

John Calvin, state motor vehicles director, says the state now nets about $180-million a year from auto-license fees, but the figure is expected to peak soon.

Calvin said revenues have been increasing by nine or 10 per cent a year, but "I think within another year we'll begin seeing a decrease in the rate of increase."

The issue was raised when Budget Director Joe Crest suggested that the state should tax cars by value rather than weight at an Advisory Committee on Intergovernmental Relations meeting last week.

Crest said smaller cars are going to cut the state's license tag revenues before long.

"If you tax autos on weight you're really taxing a source that is going to be a drying-up source because of the shortage of energy," he said.

The Energy Package

The Carter energy package, which the House did the country no service by passing, is nothing but a tax package whose principal effects, besides redistribution of wealth, would be a little conservation and a lot of cold houses in the winter time.

In its first major vote on the package, the Senate passed a coal conversion bill that would require new electric utility and major industrial plants to burn coal and other fuels instead of oil and natural gas.

The following week the Senate voted not to tax the so-called gas-guzzlers beginning in model year 1980, as Mr. Carter had proposed, but to ban them altogether.

Though the committee and the administration still have to figure out what to do with the revenues from the crude oil tax, it is clear that the Administration will be forced to plow some of them into energy development.

And either is probable, because of recent action by the full Senate. By 52 to 46 it voted to refuse to bill a bill that would decontrol the price of newly discovered natural gas.

There are megabucks involved in the nuclear power business that sometimes seem to dwarf even the survival instinct. The cool, calm voice of common sense continues to speak, however, and we have confidence that eventually it will be heard.

The news is that 15 nations of the Nuclear Suppliers Group, meeting in London recently, have reached agreement on guidelines for nuclear suppliers. The group includes the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada, Japan, West Germany, France and nine other European nations.

ANGLE-WALTERS

Nominee FBI Checks Poor Job

WASHINGTON (NEA) - President Carter has inadvertently brought to the fore an issue which long has concerned many federal officials - the quality of the FBI background checks of those in line for high government positions.

At the emotional press conference devoted to the announcement of Bert Lance's resignation as director of the Office of Management and Budget, Carter twice cited the FBI's report on its investigation of Lance as evidence of his purportedly unimpeachable character.

"I would hope that in the future the complete FBI report might be made available," Carter said. "I think that if any of you would read it, he would see that. . . all of the analyses of Bert Lance's character and ability were favorable. And I don't think any mistake was made."

"Later in the press conference, Carter added: 'If you examine the entire FBI report now. . . (and) that was all you knew about him and had never seen Bert Lance before, you would agree that he was superlatively qualified to be a cabinet-level officer.'"

Few people have seen the report on Lance because the other FBI "special inquiries" conducted for the White House, it is held in strict confidence. But the fact remains that Lance was forced to resign because other investigative agencies - not the FBI - developed evidence which raised very serious questions about the propriety if not the legality of his business activities and financial transactions.

The FBI's Special Investigative Division conducts a "full field investigation" of all men and women the White House plans to nominate for the presidential appointment, to determine both if there are any "deficiencies in the class" and if they qualify for the security clearance required for many positions.

But there are numerous problems with the system developed by the FBI over the past quarter century. Among them: - The investigation often is geographically fragmented, with FBI field offices and resident agencies scattered throughout the country each responsible for only a small portion of the background check.

The pattern of questioning developed over the years by the FBI concentrates on items such as drug use, alcohol intake, sexual proclivities, political affiliations and potentially subversive tendencies. On the other hand, complex financial transactions, commercial fraud and other sophisticated forms of ethical or legal misconduct are deemphasized.

"Applicant work," as it is known within the FBI, is one of the least favorite comments among agents, even in the case of White House "SPIN" (FBI jargon for "special inquiry") requests, according to Sanford J. Ungar.

As a result, the job is usually given to either the minor agents or to older guys who are serving their time until retirement," explains Ungar, author of "FBI" a definitive book on the bureau.

JACK ANDERSON-LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - Secret House documents accuse the Central Intelligence Agency of helping an Asian opium ring smuggle drugs into the United States and then lying to Congress about it.

An intelligence report, quoted in the sensitive House documents, unequivocally states: "The CIA was, in fact, facilitating the movement of opiate to the U.S. They steadfastly hid behind the shield of secrecy."

The strange drug case had its beginning in 1973 at New York's Kennedy Airport. Drug-smuggling dogs led authorities to 25 film canisters loaded with millions of dollars worth of opium.

The guilty finger was pointed at a dapper Asian named Putaporn Khrankhrum who, it turned out, was not only a major narcotics smuggler but a valuable CIA agent in Thailand as well.

The Justice Department proceeded to lock him up, but the CIA protested that "national security" was at stake and refused to turn its documents over to the prosecutors. The CIA brought enough pressure that the case was quietly dropped, and Khrankhrum slipped back into Thailand.

But in 1975, a House Government Operations subcommittee learned about the case and demanded hundreds of pages of CIA documents. Then CIA chief William Colby, insisted to the subcommittee that the agency had "fully cooperated" with the prosecutors. And the CIA's

BUSINESS SCENE

Danger: Foreign Imports

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Don't for a minute believe that all the economic news of late is bad, even though a good many seers are holding their heads and moaning that nothing seems to work anymore.

We are still building and buying houses and cars and we are making progress in resolving some of our pollution problems and we are enforcing equality and reducing inflation and making plans to invest in new plants.

It is true that economic expansion is slowing, but so far there is very little to indicate an actual shrinking of the economy to be expected. A slowing of expansion is still expansion. It is growth, albeit at a slower rate.

That said, there are some very real problems, as distinguished from fears, that we will have to deal with over the next few years, and the solutions aren't going to come easily. When did they ever?

What is to be done with unfair foreign competition, especially from Japan? Talk to businessmen today and they easily reveal their anger about, and even their terror of Japanese cheering for, or marching for a football team - on the Pop Warner League scene (PW is a football league, for ages 8-14). . . . And, of course, count the adults who officiate or unofficially coach, organize cheerleader squads and pep squads, make sandwiches for the concession stands, etc.

Then there are the high school teams - which have bands and drill teams, as well as the cheerleader and pep squads, and (hoorah) pom pom girls. And there are junior high teams, Jayvees, freshman squads, and more.

The girls have been getting more and more into the act lately - and the newest addition to the football scene in the past two years is the phasing out of the waterboy and ballboy, to be replaced by the water girl. Girls are even keeping statistics on the sidelines.

The more daring girls are demanding to be in the act on the field, not satisfied with the sidelines.

JOHN D. LOFTON, JR. Limit Taxes, Stop Growth Of Govt.

WASHINGTON - It's been nearly two centuries since Benjamin Franklin wrote to a friend: "Our Constitution is in actual operation; everything appears to promise that it will last; but in this world nothing is certain but death and taxes."

Well, the Constitution still stands, death awaits us all, though it has been greatly delayed thanks to modern medicine, and taxes - oh, how certain our taxes are. Since 1929, our population has increased 75 percent; our taxes however, have increased 10,000 percent.

A Library of Congress study estimates that from 1975 to the year 2,000: the total of major taxes paid directly by families as a percentage of their income is expected to rise from 18.1 per cent to 24.4 per cent; the federal individual income tax will increase from 10.9 per cent of income to 14.8 per cent; and state and local individual income taxes, as a per cent of median family income, will rise from 1.9 per cent to 4.4 per cent.

A national survey conducted by the Roper Organization for the H and R Block people has found that more than half of all taxpayers say their own income taxes are "excessively high." Sixty-nine percent of those polled say the middle class is paying too much tax. The Roper poll observes: "It seems that everyone feels that he pays 400 much in taxes."

So how did we get on this tax treadmill and, more importantly, how do we get off? According to the National Tax-Limitation Committee: Box 1000, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510) we got on it because of a basic flaw in our political system, namely that special interests are permitted to gain private benefits at the expense of taxpayers.

As the NTLC explains it: "In any government program that involves taking a little money from each taxpayer and giving a large benefit to a small group, the benefits are highly visible, and who is to argue against them? But the real costs remain real, even if they're invisible, and it's not easy to fight against the invisible, is it?"

How can the average taxpayer be rescued from this vicious cycle? Well, the NTLC says that mere "tax reform" won't do the trick because this involves merely the shifting of the tax burden from one group of productive citizens to another group of productive citizens.

Results from the Max Clark Conference of the Seminole League included Teague's 26-0 whipping of Tusculwita; Teague defeated Jacksonville Heights, 6-0; South Seminole and Tusculwita fought it out to a 7-7 tie; and Milwee topped Teague, 13-6.

In the Pee Wee division, the South Seminole win also was marked by Curtis Smith, who had a total of 121 yards in pass receptions and rushing.

Leading tacklers included Tony Andriano, Tony Carenas, Thiamronn King and Steve Berry, and Larry Lang.

In the other Pee Wee game it was Mark Schwiter who had the only outstanding day for loser Tusculwita.

For the CIA officials who have been accused of false testimony, the revelation comes at an awkward time. Their former chief, Richard Helms, is now facing indictment for alleged perjury at a Senate hearing.

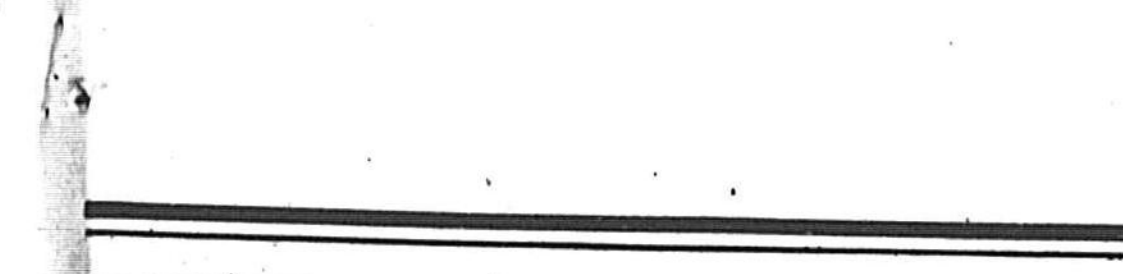

Helms allegedly lied about our story, first published in 1975, that the CIA had worked with International Telephone and Telegraph to block Chilean Senator Salvador Allende from taking office.

Both the CIA and ITT denied our story. It took a Senate investigation to get the facts out. Now a grand jury has recommended multiple-count indictments against Helms for misinforming the Senate.

This development has top CIA officials in a tizzy. They fear Helms may be forced to divulge national secrets in order to defend himself. Helms has the constitutional right to defend himself, "one CIA source pointed out to us. "This gives him the right to repeat in open court his most intimate conversations with presidents.

He called the report charges against Helms "astounding" and "unbelievable." Foreign intelligence services no longer will cooperate with the CIA, he warned, if a CIA officer can be compelled to divulge confidences in open court.

Dickey: Breaks Not His

Florida College Football By The Associated Press

Florida Coach Doug Dickey says his team just didn't get the breaks in its 36-14 defeat at the hands of Louisiana State in Southeastern Conference football.

"LSU out-executed us, out-coached us and out-played us," Dickey said following Saturday night's game.

While Dickey commiserated over Florida's losses were celebrating victories, as Florida State upset Oklahoma State 25-17; Miami dominated Pacific 24-3 and Bethune-Cookman squashed Alabama A&M 32-7.

LSU's Charles Alexander led the Tigers by riling up 103 yards. The LSU defensive squad did its job, holding Florida to two first downs while forcing two interceptions and snaring two fumbles.

Alexander scored twice on short runs and LSU quarterback Steve Ensminger added to the lead with two other touchdowns runs.

The Tiger's other score came when second-string quarterback David Weidner threw a 14-yard pass to Carlos Carson.

Florida quarterback Terry LeCount was able to fight off the pressure of an 85-yard pass to Wes Chandler. The Galat's other score came in the third quarter when tailback Willie Wilder ran in 15 yards.

Florida State overcame a 10-3 deficit against Oklahoma State with the help of one touchdown run and another touchdown pass by little-used quarterback Wally Woodham. Larry Key scored a 14-yard pass to Carlos Carson.

Florida's defense was able to hold the lead to a two-yard run. Dave Cappelen booted Florida State's field goal.

The Hurricanes brought up third string quarterback George Mason to add life to Miami's offense midway in the first half.

Mason bolstered Miami's 3-0 lead by throwing scoring passes of 14 yards and five yards to Jim Flunkert and a blocked Tom Wittum punt into a 17-point final quarter. Los Angeles may have lost leading receiver Ron Jesse for the year with torn ligaments in his right knee.

Denise Kicker of the earlier Miami field goal.

Bethune-Cookman took an easy victory over Alabama A&M behind the running of freshman Jim McMullins. McMullins had a 65-yard run in scoring the first touchdown of the game.

The Wildcats then followed with scores in every quarter to push them to a 3-1 record.

Florida A&M's Rattlers had the weekend off.

76ers Trim Club To 16

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - Second-round draft choice Herman Harris and free agent Dick Voith have been cut by Philadelphia, reducing the 76ers' NBA roster to 16 players.

James Harris and Voith were both placed on waivers Sunday. The 76ers have to cut five more players by the Oct. 19 season opener.

Milton Richman Carew Ends It In A Flurry

NEW YORK (UPI)— Nobody is any happier today than Rod Carew. He figures he is good for at least that.

"I wanted to win it in his final game but that's not what it's all about," he says.

Minnesota's silky swinger won it in superlative fashion, finishing with a .385 percentage by his sixth American League title that not only put him right up there with Ted Williams, but also right in there for MVP honors.

Last year's "mess" Carew refers to was one in which he wasn't particularly involved and has to do with the final day of the season complaining lodged by Hal McRae of the Royals that he lost the batting title by .001 because the Twins handed it to his teammate, George Brett.

Pirates still agonizing over what to do about big, hard-hitting relief ace, Rich Gossage, who had 25 saves and 10 wins for them but became a free agent today if he doesn't sign. The Phillies want Gossage and the Pirates know that. They also know if the Phillis sign Gossage they could wrap up next year's Eastern Division title 12 months early and that's what's causing the Pirates their dilemma.

Webb Ewbank has turned out. Part-author, no-argue. He, sports writer Chuck Buck and veteran sports writer Bob Arvey are out with a book called "Football Greats," and in it, Ewbank has a lot to say about John Unitas and Joe Namath, both of whom he coached during the time he handled the Colts and the Jets.

Some of Doug Dickey's players went around scratching their heads after the Florida coach told them to go for the one-point conversion instead of a two-point in their 24-22 squaker over Mississippi State a week ago Saturday. There still was enough time left. "He'd better learn how to add," said one of them. Not without Dickey's earshot, of course.

Ray Ruppemeier, the Phillies' pitching coach, is retiring to take care of family affairs in San Diego. Man being considered to replace him is former Red Sox and Pirates' catcher Mike Ryan, who did such a good job after taking over management of Phillies' Oklahoma City club in the American Association this year in mid-season.

Now that the Yankees have won their division title and Billy Martin and Reggie Jackson are getting along fine, it can be revealed what the Yankee manager said in his $3 million slugger after he jerked him in the middle of that game in Boston on June 18. This was after peace between them had been restored. Martin said to Jackson: "You think I enjoyed pulling you out of that game? But baseball is like life — it has peaks and valleys. I saw Casey Stengel yank Mickey Mantle out of a game once."

Former heavyweight champ Jack Sharkey says most fighters know before anyone else when they're all finished and he knew he was through when Tommy Loughran beat him late in 1953. But his manager had made five more matches for him, though, and wanted him to keep fighting. Sharkey stayed out for two years, came back for five more fights and finally quit for good after Joe Louis flattened him in three rounds when he was 34.

It was a personal thing with Pittsburgh's left-hander Jim Rooker. He wanted to win his 15th game so he could equal Jack's record of 15. But he never got the chance because he was in Pittsburgh's Presbyterian University Hospital Sunday. He hit a tree Friday morning when the car he was driving skidded on a wet road. His arm was in the hospital, and the only consolation being it was his right arm and not his left.

Look for White Sox to sign one of their free agents, Oscar Gamble, but not their other one, Richie Zisk. Gamble hit 31 homers for them and Zisk 30.

My vote for American League Rookie of the Year goes to Mitchell Page, who went back to the outfield from first base after his Oakland job from Pittsburgh this spring, never shorted his team once all year and wound up with a .309 average, 75 RBI and 21 homers after setting an American League record by stealing 35 consecutive bases without being caught.

Ickx; Moffat Win 'At Bathurst'
BATHURST, Australia (UPI)— Jacky Ickx of Belgium and former Canadian driver Moffat Sunday won the Harde Roader 1000 for sedan cars at the Mt. Panorama circuit to give Ford its first victory in Australia's premier motor race in three years.

More Hits Than Anyone Since '41'
By United Press International
Rod Carew reviewed his elegant season: a .385 batting average... a sixth American League batting title... the highest average since 1977 and as high as average in 1941... and the most hits by any player in 46 years.

Pirates Finish 96-66, 'No Excuses'
By United Press International
That "other" National League Pennsylvania team — the Pittsburgh Pirates — has enjoyed a superb year in 1977 and finished in high style Sunday with a 5-1, 3-2 doubleheader sweep of the Chicago Cubs.
