EL PASO, Texas - A man found out he had accidentally fed marijuana to his pet rabbits after flagging down a police officer to say the animals were sick.

The man, whom police refused to identify, on Sunday asked police Sgt. Andres Yslas to help the rabbits he keeps in his back yard.

"The rabbits were behaving unusually, jumping around a lot, and he was worried about it.'

"I asked him what he had been giving them. and he said he had fed them some grass he found in the trash, it was grass, all right - the smoking kind."

The officer said the man often went through a nearby trash bin for lettuce and other discarded vegetables to feed the rabbits. But what he found Saturday was a 50-pound stash of marijuana. Yslas said. The animals had already caten a significant amount when the officer got

The man was not charged with drug possession because he didn't realize what he had. As for the rabbits, Yslas told the bewildered pet owner not to worry.

"I just said the rabbits will be doing OK, as long as they drink a lot of water," he said.

Police speculated the pot, with an estimated street value of $50,000, was left by drug dealers to be picked up for distribution.

Mail carrier shot; man gets 21 years

TALLAHASSEE - A Massachusetts man was sentenced to 21 years in federal prison for shooting a Florida mail carrier during an attempted robbery in Monticello.

Thomas Dwayne White, 20, of Boston, was convicted on Oct. 27 of charges he assaulted James McDaniel, who was wounded in the leg, and used a gun to commit a violent offense. The sentence was imposed Monday by U.S. District Judge William Testimony showed that McDaniel was driving his mail truck on Nov. 6, 1991, when he was flagged down by White, who was visiting friends. White pointed a 9mm pistol at his head, struck him in the face and attempted to take the mail truck's keys.

The mail carrier told White he wasn't going to give him the keys, no matter what.

Another car pulled up, and White told McDaniel to drive away. As he did, White shot McDaniel once in the leg.

U.S. Attorney Kenneth Sukhia successfully got Stafford to impose a sentence tougher than federal guidelines because of the weapon used by White.

Poet's home added to National Register

KEY WEST — The former Key West home of poet Elizabeth Bishop was added to the National Register of Literary Landmarks in ceremonies that came at the start of the island's annual literary festival.

Bishop came to Key West in 1938 and lived in the white clapboard house, located at 634 White Street, until 1948 when she left to visit Mexico and subsequently moved to Brazil where she lived prior to her death in 1979.

Approximately 50 writers and literary buffs joined Pulitzer prize-winner James Merrill in the Monday unveiling of a brass plaque on the wooden gate outside the home.

"I think Elizabeth is the poet I most admire," said Merrill, who first met Bishop in 1948. "She's the antidote to enormous toward of the CC 2. Plate because her mark is an antidote to enormous towering figures like (T.S.) Eliot because her work is on such a human scale."

Bishop's house, which is privately owned, joins several other Key West homes that have been designated as literary landmarks, including the dwellings of Tennessee Williams and Ernest Hemingway

"American people generally don't pay too much attention to their literary figures." Merrill said. "People visit Hemingway's house because it's like a fertility shrine.

"They go there as a place to get recharged, rather than because he was a great writer," Merrill said.

The Jan. 7-10 Key West Literary Seminar will focus on Bishop's work and include seminars moderated by 1990 Nobel Prize-winner Octavio Paz, Merrill, and Pulitser winners Richard Wilbur and Anthony Hecht.

Fuel tank may burn until weekend

JACKSONVILLE — Firefighters say it may take until the end of the week to put out a fire burning in a fuel storage tank in Jacksonville's Talleyrand area.

After several attempts to extinguish the blaze using foam and water failed Monday, fire officials say they may have to let the fire burn itself out — a process that could take three or four days and was continuing Tuesday morning.

Glenn Domen, a fire spokesman, said officials plan to pump fuel out and water into the tank, which holds some 56,000

About 125 Jacksonville firefighters continued to battle the blaze which began Saturday afternoon at a Steuart Petroleum Co. tank farm. A company terminal operator was killed when the tank erupted into flames. The cause of the fire has still not been determined, officials

Health care plan for all

Chiles promises coverage for all Floridians by 1994

By CURT ANDERSON Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Lawton Chiles unveiled a plan Monday to provide access to health care for every Floridian by the end of 1994, including the 2.5 million working poor who have no health insurance.

Chiles, a Democrat, said Florida cannot wait for President-elect Clinton to design his promised national health care overhaul because medical costs, estimated at $86 million a day, are eating away government budgets and business profits.

"If we don't restructure the system, by the end of the decade the salary of working people will seem like a fringe benefit, because their main compensation will be health benefits," Chiles said at a news conference.

Chiles' plan could foreshadow that of Clinton by proposing a system called managed competition, which sets up government-business cooperatives to act as purchasing agents for employers and others who buy health insurance and services.

Those cooperatives, set up in several areas around the state, will seek the best price on health care plans and contract with insurers, health maintenance organizations, government and independent networks to provide the serv-ices. No one would be excluded from coverage.

"Every man, woman and child in Florida — everybody — is entitled to basic health benefits," Chiles said. "Health care has become an expensive luxury for too many people and businesses in our state today.

Congressional aides working with Clinton's transition team say the incoming president is likely to offer something similar as a first step toward bringing down health care costs and providing access nationwide.

"We just can't wait, given what the costs are," Chiles said. "Our greatest fear is that the federal government will come out with another top-down plan, like Medicaid and Medicare are now."

So far, Chiles' "Healthy Homes" plan has drawn broad support from business groups, hospitals and doctors.

PENSACOLA — The Navy is reviewing a rule that excludes women from the Blue Angels, and an admiral predicted it is only a matter of time before they will be able to join the aerobatic team.

That prospect doesn't sit well with team leaders who say women lack the right stuff because they don't have combat aircraft carrier experience as required by a Navy rule.

Rear Adm. Riley Mixson, director of air warfare in Washington, said his staff is reviewing whether to recommend changing the rule to open the door to women by allowing otherwise qualified pilots to apply without carrier combat experience.

Mixson told the Pensacola News Journal for a story Sunday that he believes most women would prefer to gain access through a lifting of legal limits that prohibit them from combat flying. The Presidential Commission on Assignment of Women in the Agused Person recently voted 8-7 to recommend against liting that prohibition.

"In the hidney, I do think there will be women qualified to serve on the Blue Angels," Mixson and. "It's a matter of time."

Capt. Greg Wooldridge, the squadron's leader for the past two years, said women should be allowed to apply only if also permitted to join carrier combat units, which he supports, and gain the experience the rule requires. "We're highlighting naval aviation as being different from aviation in general, and what makes it different is landing aboard aircraft carriers." Wooldridge said. He said some women have the skills to fly with the Blues but cannot speak with the full understanding of combat carrier pilots.

"That's exactly the way I feel," said Cmdr. Bob Stumpf, who recently took command of the squadron after Wooldridge finished his tour. "I think it's a credibility issue as much as anything That argument doesn't wash with Lt. Liz Steinnecker, one of only 44 female jet pilots in the Navy, who serve in non-combat roles such as instructors and test pilots.

"I don't know what carrier aviation has to do with the Blue Angels," said Steinnecker, pointing out the team doesn't fly off ships.

State salutes Sanford's MLK celebration

Due to the superior work of the Sanford Martin Luther King Steering Committee in working with the state, the city has been selected as the first site of the Florida Commemorative Commission celebration on Jan. 12-18.

The people of Sanford should come out in force to support the event that will be attended by state dignitaries, including Gov. Lawton Chiles, who will take part in the Unity

In past years, while the commemorative banquet that is the culmination of the celebration has been sold out, the other events have not drawn the kind of spectator support they deserve from the community.

This is a communitywide event that celebrates and reaffirms the ideals of freedom. justice and opportunity for all. It is not just time off from the job.

The people of Sanford, regardless of race. creed or color, should make it a point to take part in the Sanford celebration of Dr. King's life and of his dream.

Sanford's Martin Luther King celebrations in the past have been almost the exclusive realm of the African-American community. despite the support of Mayor Bettye Smith. Why is this?

Did not Dr. King support all people standing together to fight oppression and injustice? Did he not call for the removal of barriers that divide communities and prevent real change?

Perhaps, the celebration of the Martin Luther King holiday, where the eyes of the state are focused on Sanford, would be the place for a new alliance to form where all people join hands to celebrate the dream that. King had for a better place.

We applied the work of the local committee in bringing the state celebration to Sanford.

We urge the community to support this effort and show the state we are joining hands to make an above the state we are joining hands.

There is no question abut the damage that entanglement nets are causing to Florida's sea life. The Florida Department of Natural Resources reported that in 1990 alone at least 110 green sea turtles were drowned by nets in the Contral East Const. There is irrefutable syldence of gill net destruction of birds and bottlenose dolphins. Protected fish species also are caught by gill nets.

The net-base amendment will provide many direct and indirect benefits for citizens in the Sanford area and I certainly urge everyone to support the reform. Petition forms and information are svallable from 1-800-272-6287 (NETS). Orlando.

The marine resources belong to each of us, our children, and future generations. The waste and destruction generated by a very small segment of the fishing industry must be stopped. We'll all benefit in the long run.

Unholy war over Dead Sea Scrolls

The Dead Sea Scrolls continue to provoke much sound and fury. The latest eruption was occasioned by release of a new volume by two respected university professors. Robert Eisenman and Michael Wise, who dared publish without the blessings of the tiny cabal of scholars who control access to the ancient manuscripts.

The controversial new book, "The Dead Sea Scrolls Uncovered," includes a total of 50 scroll texts. Half the texts were attherto utipublished. The other half was previously available, but not compiled in a single volume. The authors also include English translations of the texts from the original Hebrew and Aramaic, which, for the first time, makes the scroll material accessible to lay readers.

To many minds, Elsenman and Wise have performed a valuable public service. But in the covetous minds of the three dosen or so scholars who have jealously withheld the scrolls from public domain for almost a half-century, the authors have committed a sacrilege.

At a recent international scrolls conference, hosted by the New York Academy of Sciences, Eisenman and Wise were subject to the most unseemly ad hominem attacks by the gathered scholars. When all was said and done, the dispute came down to footnotes. The scrolls scholars thought the authors should have included more of them in their volume, crediting the work of others.

It is all a tempest in a teacup, says Eisenman, a pro-fessor of Middle East religion at California State University at Long Beach, You don't do this thing without taking kneeks... Eisenman is willing to take the knocks, he says, because he believes that it is wrong for a tiny group of scholars to monopolize access to the Dead Sea Scrolls. The same people have occupied all the best chairs since very near the time the scrolls were found, he complains.

The Dead Sea Scrolls continue to provoke much sound and fury.

The scrolls generally are considered the manuscript discovery of the century. They were stumbled upon by a Bedouin shepherd boy in 1947 in caves northwest of the Dead Sea. They date from roughly 200 B.C. to 100 years after the birth of Christ.

The scrolls comprise 800 manuscripts and 15,000 fragments. More than 100 of the manuscripts are biblical texts, including all or part of every book of the Old Testament except Eather. Other manuscripts are thought to provide important insights into the development of both Judaism and Christianity.

For the past 45 years, the scrolls have been under the tight control of a small team of editors (which presently numbers 12). Scholars like Eisenman have asserted over the years that this Eisenman have asserted over the years that this cosy coterie of editors has treated the scrolls like their personal property, denying access to the material to anyone other than their own students and favored colleagues.

This did not offend so much early on when the editors regularly published fresh new transcriptions of the scroll texts. But, in recent decades, precious little of the remaining unpublished scroll material has been brought forth from the editors, who explain that all this time is needed to prepare a definitive edition of the texts.

Military cleans up environment

It is with some pride that Thomas E. Baca cays, "We have more people working on the environment than the EPA." Baca is the Fentagen's deputy content secretary of defence for the environment. The reason more people there are working on the environment is that the Fentagen has a bigger environmental mass on its lands than any other single institution in the country.

One of the Cold War title finally coming due is the cost of self-inflicted environmental contamination. During the decades when military preparadoes was at overriding priority, the environment was barely a big-on the radar acrees. Defends installations were enough from most environmental legislation. The military side 't year language and testine it depends of vist giantities, of testine it constants. It is with some pride that Thomas E. Baca environmental cleanup is the flatest-growing parties of Pentagon expenditures. Up shout 34 percent this year to a total of nearly 64 billion. That's on top of the 66 billion already spent and the 625 billion total (very conservatively speaking) that the military thinks will be needed to complete the jet. And wheel that will be "in haird to say," Buts acknowledges. "I am willing to say by the year factor will have militaritiely cleaned it up. If we haven't cleaned it up, we will have it at least in a state where we are alreading it up."

That assessment doesn't include the costs to clean up nuclear weapons facilities, (a multibilities-dollar job facing the Department of Energy), or to detoxify foreign military bases before turning the land back to host governments, which o far is being handled in case-bytovolved.

One there in the military's side is that it has found it can't move ahead on the to. Forty percent of the cleanup costs are the cleanup costs are being eaten up in prolonged studies defining the work to be done and in nego-tiations with other federal, state and lossi agencies over the application of regulations. "In sther words," Baca says, "we spend a lot of money going through the process before we ever get to the cleanup, I have seen many situations where we will spend eight to 10 years going through the process and two years to clean up the problem." He says that in contrast to some European nations that are dealing more expeditiously with similar problems, "we do a lot of who done it, who do we fine, who do we penalise and who do we extract money from before we ever get into cleaning up the problem."

As part of its program to prevent a repetition of the problems, the military has an ambitious plan to reduce the amount of hazardous waste it generates. In the last four years, Baca says, the military's use of new processes and the substitution of benigs products has resulted in a 50 percent cut in its hazardous waste stream. A cut of another 25 percent is expected by Those figures are impressive. They also demonstrate that once the environment is put on the radar across, a great deal of unnecessary damage can be avoided.

Line-item veto isn't the answer

Thanks to former President Ronald Reagan's persistent calls for a line-item veto during his two terms in office, the proposal has become a pet cause for most conservatives. Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford support it. George Bush wanted it.

So why do such flaming liberals as Sen.
Paul Simon, D-III., and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., also think it's a good idea? I suspect it's because they're good poker see one.

A brief prologue: C o n g r e s s appropriates money like a Cajun cooks. It's a big medley of things, and the rules any the president has to swallow it all, or throw, it out. If he could pick, out the attiff he dran't like, it is argued, he could reduce waste and trim costs.

That's what a line-item veto would do: give the president the power to strike individual expenditures from the mega-measures passed by Congress. There would be no more general vetoes and no more threats of government shut-

Those are the alleged advantages. There are also a few shortcomings, it would wreak havoc, for example, on the separation of powers doctrine by which we govern ourselves and hand the White House a fearsome advantage. Every time a member of Congress opposes one of the president's multibillion dollar projects — an excursion to Mars, say — the chief executive could swing the line-item club and threaten to smash the the line-item club and threaten to smash the legislator's multimillion dollar pork barrels.

The scheme would also fail to live up to its promise. The campaign for a line-item veto is based upon the assumption that Congress wallows in waste and is thus responsible for the deficits that pile up year after year. This is manifest nonsense. On budget matters, Congress follows where presidents lead, and it has been 30 years since any of them oversaw a budget with a bottom line written in black.

The bulk of the budget, moreover, is edicated to untouchable entitlements — Social Security benefits, food stamps pensions — and interest on the national debt.
Only 40 percent of the budget would be vulnerable to the line-item ax, and nearly two-thirds of that goes for defense and foreign

In short, pork-barrel waste is peanuts. When Ronald Reagan dramatically lifted up a 43-pound omnibus spending bill during his 1988 State of the Union speech and complained about the money being spent on cranberry research — money that he could not excise because he didn't have line-item upon the second of the not excise because he didn't have line-item veto power — he was talking about $30,000. That was .0000028 percent of the budget.

An organization dedicated to cutting the fat from the federal budget. Citizens Against Government Waste, recently added up the money that goes down the drain because the Internal Revenue Service fails to collect delinquent taxes, and because the Defense Department have too many apare parts, and Department taxes, and because the Defense Department buys too many spare parts, and because bureaucrats manage their money imperfectly, and because the military has too many obsolete bases, and because the Forest Service subaidizes logging roads, and because of a lot of other things — and came up with a grand total of $280 billion that could be saved over a five-year period.

grand total of $280 billion that could be saved over a five-year period.

That would pay the $200 billion annual interest on the $3.1 trillion national debt for about three months and 12 days.

I believe the line-item veto was a hokey notion the day it was dreamed up. It is just one more form of the bash-Congress game, and it's time the lawmakers called the president's bluff:

Student, financial info released to districts

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The state has sent school districts the student performance and finan-cial data that will be used to grade their progress as they assume more local control over programs, Education Commissioner Betty Castor said.

As districts release the reports over the next two weeks, parents will get some information, such as comparative trusney rates and "mobility" rates, for the first time, Castor said Monday.

The school reports are part of the state's effort to decentralize control over schools and give districts more power. The demographic, scholastic and financial information will be used to measure their progress.

The department produced individual reports for 2,576 schools, totaling 25,977 pages with 16,776 individual graphs. "With these reports in hand, parents, teachers and business leaders - working as school advisory countils and achool improvement teams — can begin to map out a road to even better schools," Castor said. "There aren't any schools in Florida that I'm satisfied with,

Some figures may be adjusted. An Orange County report re-leased as a sample said the state reported the county's public school graduation rate as about 74 percent, while county achool officials estimated it at more than 82 percent.

The report included a memo saying the difference was being investigated. It said the state didn't include 972 people who completed graduation require-ments outside regular classes. and may have overlooked one of the board's computer files in making the calculation.

School districts will add their own information before releasing the reports. The target date is Jan. 18, though some districts may release them before that, Castor said.

district's woes. The committee believes that Lyman and Lake Howell high schools, both of which have already reached their maximum student capacity, should be put on the year round calendar by the summer of 1995. Other high schools would follow by the summer of 1997.

By the 1995 summer session, all the district elementary and middle schools will already be on the YRE calendar. Some elementary schools in Seminole County awarding only incentive time for good behavior. Currently, prisoners receive up to 15 days off their sentences for every months served, just for being there.

The non-violent offenders would be placed in community based alternative programs which include operation of a tri-county, (Marion, Sumter, Citrus) work camp currently under construction. Chiles said he believes that the infamous McDougall case has generated necessary public support for overdue criminal justice reforms. "In fact," he added, "the 1993 Florida Legislature has an opportunity to build a legacy for providing residents with the safe streets they expect."

The governor was referring Donald McDougail, scheduled to be released on New Years Eve. after having served only 10 years of a 34 year sentence for the brutal murder of a 5-year old girl in Altamonte Springs.

At the last minute, he had five years additional prison time returned to his sentence, although he will still be released after three years because of additional time earned.

In making the decision which kept McDougall in jail, Attorney General Bob Butterworth also tackled prisoners who have already been given early releases since July 6, 1992.

He wrote. "I am of the opinion that an inmate who has been convicted of murder and is in custody on or after July 6, 1992. is no longer eligible for release based on an administrative calculation of provisional credits regardless of when such calculation was made."

As for those already released, he wrote, "The early release of an inmale without statutory authority does not excuse the mmate from serving the balance of his or her sentence, and he or she may be recommitted by prison authorities."

"We haven't been contacted about rounding up any early-release prisoners yet," said Sem-Inole County Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel this morning. "Most of that will be handled through the DOC. (Department of, Corrections), but I imagine we will eventually be called in to assist."

Procchel said he did not know at this time if any of the persons released during the past six months were in the Seminole County jurisdiction. "I imagine there are some here," he said. "but we won't know for certain until we hear from the DOC."

The major criminal justice summit announced by Chiles, is to be held before the legislative session. Aides report it will address both short and longterm eriminal justice issues.

Confederate flag barred from Alabama dome

By Jeseica Sautem Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY - Black legislators have won a court fight to remove the Confederate battle flag from atop the state Capitol dome.

in a defeat for Gov. Guy Hunt, Circuit Judge William Gordon ruled Monday that an 1895 law allows only the state and American flags to fly there.

"I am very, very happy and thankful to all the people, black and white, who helped in this effort." The state Rep. Alvin Holman, who led the fight against the Bosel beautiful the flag is a symbol of racial oppression, and should not be state's image.

"We don't see it as a blackwhite issue. We see it as an issue to usher the state into the 21st century." said Johnny Hardwick, a lawyer who helped argue the case for the legislators. The flag went up on the Capitol dome during the 1961 Civil War Centennial and again during pro-segregationist Gov. George Wallace's first term in 1963 in an act of defiance just before a visit by then-Attorney General Robert Kennedy. At the time, the state was locked in a court battle over integrating the University of Hunt press secretary Terry Abbott said the governor was out of town and had no immediate comment. Hust has said that the flag has historic importance and that most Alabama residents want it atop the Capitol.

Lawsuits challenging the flag were filed twice before in federal court, and both were rejected. Holmes said the Legislative Re-search Office this fall uncovered the 1895 law, giving him new grounds to return to court.

Hunt's attorneys had argued that the legislators could not employ the 1895 law because they aid not mention it in the two federal lawsuits. But Gordon rejected that argument. Hunt's attorneys also argued that the 1895 law didn't expressly prohibit the flying of the Confederate flag.

Syrian Jews flee, leave homes, jobs

BY LOUIS MEIXLER Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK - The Syrian government gave the Jewish doctor and his wife a choice: they could leave, but they would have to abandon everything good jobs, their home, even their daughter's big toy car.

They didn't hesitate. With just $2,000 in their pockets, the family fled to Brooklyn, joining a modern day exodus from Syria, whose harsh anti-israeli stance has produced a climate of fear for its own Jews.

"We lost our home and our money and I don't know when we will be able to work again," the doctor's wife said. "But we have our lives and the life of our daughter."

benefitted along with more than 2,500 other Syrian Jews from President Hafez el-Assad's attempt to polish his harsh reputation by easing travel restrictions

State Department officials, including former Secretary of State James A. Baker III, had joined Jewish leaders in urging Syria to case restrictions on Jews, said Malcolm Hoenlein, an American Jewish leader.

"I think the U.S. has made it clear they consider this a critical test of Syria's human rights policy," said Hoenlin, executive vice-chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations.

Officially, there is no emigration. Jews, like all Syrians

The family, which spoke on wishing to leave, must purchase condition it not be identified, a round-trip flight ticket and a round-trip flight ticket and have a tourist visa issued by another country. Travel to Israel is forbidden and as tourists the Jews may only take $2,000 per person out of the country.

They traded their spacious Damascus house for a cramped one-bedroom apartment above a noisy street. They speak little English. It could take the doctor two years to qualify for a U.S. medical license so that he can again support his family. The family must also apply for permanent residence, although most Syrian Jews have had few problems gaining such status.

Nevertheless, the doctor grinned as he recalled the day he learned his family was free to go.

It was the seventh day of Passover, the celebration of the biblical exodus from Egypt. The doctor had just left the morning prayer service at synagogue when state-controlled radio announced that Jews traveling abroad no longer had to leave behind a family member.

"People began to congratulate each other," the doctor said. "We were so excited in our hearts, but we couldn't really show it. After all, we were in

Challenge to Hastings' election denied

From Staff and Wire Reports

FORT LAUDERDALE - A judge refused to block Alcee Hastings from taking his seat in Congress today, rejecting a law student's contention that the former federal judge was disqualified by his 1989 impeachment conviction.

Hastings, from Altamonte Springs, was the first person ever convicted through impeachment to be subsequently elected to Congress. Chief U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger said Monday the challenge was "particularly fascinating" because such arguments had never been made in court in Jerry Don Waggoner, who said he is a 20-year Army veteran in his second year at nearby Nova University law school, went up against Terence J. Anderson, a University of Miami law professor who has represented Hastings since the judge was accused of bribery in 1981.

"Mr. Hastings has been burdened too much already and ... he may not properly be burdened further." Anderson argued, saying Waggoner's suit came too late, lacked standing and went against historical precedents on impeachment. Anderson said Hastings, his new 12-member staff and 300 supporters were already in Washington for today's ceremony, and he added that blocking Hastings would "irreparably harm" him and his constituents by putting his seniority behind that of 100-plus other freshman repre-

Hastings, a 56-year-old Democrat, handily won election in November from Florida's 23rd con-

'Very clearly the young man ... created at what best can be described as an annoyance." Hastings said from Washington on Monday evening. He has said he has been assured by congressional officials that there will be no challenge to taking his seat.

Anderson said he would take a copy of the brief order to Washington to present to congressional officials.

He told the judge that the Constitution left disqualification from future office as a possible penalty, but was worded to leave that to the discretion of the Senate. There was no Senate vote on whether to disqualify Hastings from future office.

Anderson also noted that Waggoner, 41, didn't live in Hastings' district, that citizens can present such grievances in petitions to Congress, and that any of Hastings' electoral opponents could have challenged his candidacy before his election.

"This is an issue that the voters in the 23rd District get to decide ... and they have decided," Anderson said.

A federal judge in Washington last September reversed Hastings' conviction, saying he was improperly tried by a 12-member panel instead of the full Senate. The judge stayed the ruling pending a Supreme Court decision, not expected until summer, in a similar case.

Waggoner, who says he is a political independent who voted for Ross Perot, told the judge he probably could have used some legal help.
"I'm in this alone," said Waggoner, who carried his legal briefs in a $1.19 manila folder. The courtroom was packed with Hastings supporters who were cautioned by Roettger for audible responses to Waggoner's arguments.

Teen-agers pacify selves in latest fad

By JEFF DONN

Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. '- Yesterday's rebel without a cause wore a leather jacket and white T-shirt, James Dean-style. Today's sucks a pacifier.

In the tradition of bobby sox, madras shirts or "X" hats, pacifiers are becoming the latest teen craze in some places. The pacifiers are worn on a string or chain around the neck and are traded like class rings or friendship bracelets.

Some educators worry the baby accessory is really a way of advertising gang ties or drug use. Others see it as a harmless - and largely pointless - craze.

"These kids need to create symbols of a belongingness to a social ... group, and this is another one of those," said Jim Peters, principal of Greenfield Middle School. He said about 20 of the school's 590 students tote pacifiers.

Among them is sixth-grader Colin Drouin, who said the mouthpiece helped him kick a pack-aday smoking habit.

'You have something in your mouth. It just does it." Drouin said.

Some are alarmed by the fad, which developed after the release of the movie "Boyz N the Hood." The film about Los Angeles-area gangs includes a character who sucks a pacifier.

Sage Valley Junior High School in Gillette. Wyo., banned the pacifiers last year and sent out a notice saying: "Pacifiers are associated with drugs, gangs and infants. None of these associations is appropriate for junior high school."

"It's just a distraction in class," said Principal Dan Espeland. "You're trying to get a question-and-answer session going, and you have students with pacifiers in their mouths."

Some aficionados say pacifiers help them relax. Jon Unaitis, an 11-year-old at North Parish Elementary School in Greenfield, was quoted in the Springfield Union-News as saying he just likes "how it goes 'cheet, cheet," when you suck it:

Daniela Alloro, a psychologist who counsels teen-agers in the Los Angeles suburb of Downey. said pacifiers among teen-agers are "a regression and a way to be cool" at the same time.

"The youngster ... needs to separate from the parents emotionally, but it's a transitional phase. so he still needs to go back to the parents for emotional support," she said.

"I think this fad of the pacifier reflects this ambivalence: When there is a problem of stress. the adolescent regresses to earlier behavior. she said. "But he can be cool."

Hollywood has third best year

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES - Hollywood had its third best year on record in 1992 - in part because movie tickets cost more than ever.

The 1992 season grossed an estimated $5 billion, according to figures released Monday. But the number of tickets sold appeared to be down. at fewer than 1 billion in North America. At the same time, the price of admission has reached about $5 on average.

A string of big-budget Christmas disappointments — including "Toys." "Leap of Faith." "Hoffa" and "Chaplin" — suggested that audiences need compelling reasons to part with their money at the theater instead of waiting for the movie to come out in video.

"When the economy is tight, you're going to be more careful about how you spend your money, said Martin Shafer, co-owner of Castle Rock Entertainment, producer of "A Few Good Men." "People are still going to the movies, but the more marginal movies are not doing as well as they were 10 years ago."

The year's list of the top-grossing movies was led by "Batman Returns," with an estimated $163.7 million. It was followed by "Home Alone 2: Lost in New York." "Lethal Weapon 3," "Sister Act" and "Wayne's World."

The most profitable films were modestly financed movies such as "Sister Act." "The Hand the Rocks the Cradle" and "Wayne's World."

Several independent films — especially "Enchanted April," "The Player" and "Howards End" — were hugely profitable because they were made on the cheap.

Final 1992 sales figures are released in late

Loan guarantees for farm exports said to carry risks, few benefits

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON - The Agriculture Department has guaranteed billions of dollars in loans to countries that may never repay the money, and taxpayers could get the bill, congressional investigators say.

The General Accounting Office, which reviewed USDA's export credit guarantee pro-grams, also found no evidence that the credits have increased total U.S. farm exports and said they may have merely rerouted

In a report obtained by The Associated Press, the congressional auditing agency said large loans have been made to high-risk countries, including Iraq and the former Soviet Union.

Iraq has refused to repay $1.9 billion in loans guaranteed by the department. Russia has defaulted on $127 million in loan payments since early December although LINDA officials lines years under GSM 103. USDA argued that of the $40.9

billion in guarantees extended since 1961, the government has only been required to cover $3.6 billion.

But GAO investigators said Agriculture's calculations are misleading and that the actual cost to taxpayers is much higher and will mount every year the program is in operation. The GAO said the cost to taxpayers, had the program ended June 30, 1992, would be $6.5 billion.

Stephen L. Censky, acting administrator of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, argued that the programs' history does not bear out the GAO's estimates of future losses

He said Iraq is the only country that has refused to repay its loans; only Russia is not current with its payments; and only one country in recent memory, Poland, had its loans, worth more than $1 billion.

The program has apurred experts for dountaile growers in countries that would otherwise be unable to pay cash or get commercial credit for their purchases, Censky said. But the GAO said it was unable to find any evidence to suggest the programs resulted in an overall expansion of U.S. farm exports.
"While costs have been incurred, the extent of any tural exports," the report said.

Rep. Bob Wise, D-W.Va.,
chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on agriculture, said the fact that taxpayers could be stuck with a bill for more than 96 billion in sour loans "is very unsettling."

Wise also noted that $383 million of the defaults result from the Banca Nazionale del Lavoro scandal. The Italian bank's Atlanta branch lent Iraq millions of dollars with USDA guarantees before the invasion of Kuwait: investigators believe some of the money was used to help lraq create its military USDA estimates BNL claims for payments in default will total $410.5 million, although none has been paid. The matter is under investigation by USDA and the Justice Department.

103rd Congress opens amid high turnover, bare offices

By ALAM PRAM Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The 103rd Congress that convenes today brings record numbers of blacks, women and Hispanics to the Capitol at a time when many lawmakers, new and veteran, are pledging action and change.
Receptions galore were on tap as members of both the House and Senate were to be sworn

But the real work was to start almost immediately. Lawmakers prepared to do everything from holding early hearings on Presi-dent-elect Clinton's new Cabinet to considering the new chief executive's still-evolving plans for revitalizing the languid "It's of critical importance to Congress and the new administration that we move fast on addressing our economic problems," Sen. James Basser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said Monday. "The American people are expecting that." The need for congressional speed was inspired by voters' frustration with an institution widely perceived as hidebound In one attempt at change, Democrats were hoping today to grant delegates from Washing-right to vote on the House floor. But Democratic leaders Monday endorsed a watered down version of the plan that, in effect, would deny the five delegates power to play a deciding role in

The compromise plan would mandate a new vote whenever the votes cast by the delegates could determine passage or rejection of any issue on the House

All five delegates are Demo-crats. Besides the capital, they represent Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samos and Puerto Rico.

Despite the calls for action, a lot of celebrating and a little bit of chaos were the order of the day Monday.

Members' families, friends and constituents flooded the Capitol complex, searching for offices, restaurants and restrooms.

The visitors picked their way through corridors that often were littered with furniture and files, and offices with few desks and bare walls. The reason - a massive number of office moves, triggered by the greatest con-gressional turnover since 1949.

In one office, Rep.-elect James Talent, R-Mo., stood shoeless on his deak, hanging mementoes of his home state on the empty walls. When he was complimented on the relatively good ton. D.C., and four territories the condition of the desks in his office, Talent replied, "That just means my A.A. (administrative assistant, or top aide) is a better

This Congress will have 110 new House members - more: than one-quarter of the 435-member body — and 13 new senators out of 100. A 14th will be appointed to succeed Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D.Texas, Clinton's nominee for treasury; secretary.

But change is evident not justin the overall numbers, but in the people who will be serving in Congress.

Both chambers will have record numbers of women: six in the Senate and 47 in the House.

The House also will have 38 blacks and 17 Hispanies, records in both categories. The Senate will have its first black member in two decades, Democrat Carol Moseley Braun of Illinois; and its first American Indian in more than 60 years, Ben Nighthorse Campbell, D-Colo.

With Clinton's inauguration just 15 days off, Democratic leaders planned quick Senate: hearings on all of his Cabinet; appointees in hopes they could confirm them as soon as the new president takes office. The first hearings begin Wednesday.

Another early priority is: Clinton's economic revival plans and how to attack the record-

Rep. Leon Panetta, chairman of the House Budget Committee, is doing much of the inside work on the Clinton proposal, said transition and Democratic congressional aides who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Clinton, who has received a set of options by his top economic advisers, must make the hard choices himself on how to make his budget reflect his campaign promise to "grow the economy" without exacerbating the deficit.

That is a difficult task, given the size of the national debt, which has quadrupled to more than $3 trillion over the past decade.

One major item still unresolved, transition aides said Monday, was how big a short-term "stimulus" job-creation plan to propose in addition to the regular budget for the fiscal year; that begins next Oct. 1.

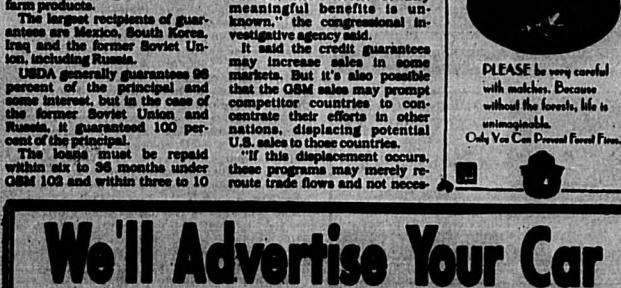

Clinton has called his top economic team to Little Rock, Ark., on Thursday to discuss the budget and other pressing economic matters. He also agreed to meet in Little Rock with the chiefs of the Big Three automakers and the president of the United Auto Workers union.

Although Clinton's nominees for top economic posts frequently talk by phone, it will be the first time they have gathered in one place since the president-elect's economic conference in Little Rock last month.

"He (Clinton) wants to get an update on the options before them and the choices that the economic team faces as we head towards inauguration and taking office," transition communications direct. George Stephenopolics said Monday.

The president-elect most likely will not be able to meet a congressionally imposed deadline for the budget document of Feb. 1.

Lions repel Warriors

Late score gives Oviedo boys 2-1 soccer victory

From Staff Reports

Despite almost totally dominating the game at John Courier Field the Lions got a late second half goal to break a 1-1 tie and then sweated out the final minutes to pull out a 2-1 victory over the visiting West Orange Warriors Monday night.

"We can't get any breathing room no matter what we do," said Oviedo liead coach Dave Jekanoski. "We played three games in the Pizza Hut Tournament and all three games were 1-0 scores (one win, two losses),"

The Lions got on the scoreboard first 15 minutes into the game when Midfielder Scott Thelen took a pass from Defenseman Sean Creasman and nailed a beautiful shot past the West Orange goalkeeper from 20 yards out.

Five minutes later, however, the Warriors got the tying goal off the foot of James Harris and the teams went to halftime with the score fied 1-1.

"That (Harris' score) was the first real shot they got in the game," said Jekanoski. "We had played great defense up to that point." The second half was a duplicate of the first half as Oviedo dominated the majority of the action. The Lions got the ultimate winning goal when Midfielder Brad Franz was knocked down as he was moving through the box by the Warrior goalkeeper, who grabbed the senior's leg.

resulting in a penalty kick. Midfielder Josh Itkor took the penalty shot and rifled the ball into the goal for the score.

We dominated about 75-percent of the action in the second half," said Jekanoski, "And we could only score one goal. We've got to find a way to finish better."

Ovicdo outshot the Warriors 19-6 and had four corner kicks to only two for West Orange.

Lions goalkeeper Darren Ockwig had a good game, turning away six shots.

Oviedo improved to 8-4-1 with victory and will play a Seminole Athletic Conference contest at Lake Brantley Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

West Orange fell to 2.5.3 on the season.

An impressive aspect of the victory was the fact that the people doing most of the damage for the Lions were underclassmen. Thelen, Cresman and Ockwig are all sophomores, while liker is a junior. There are 11 other juniors on the squad, which gives Jekanoski a positive outlook not only for the rest of the season, but for next season as well.

"Our four losses have come at the hands of state ranked teams (Coconut Creek, Lyman, Tampa-Leto and Lake Mary)," said Jekanoski. "We're 8-0 against everyone else. We feel real good about ourselves, but we just wish we could finish better. It's frustrating."

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - And they're off. The 1993 Sanford Recreation Department Polar Bear slowpitch softball season opened with a bang Monday night at Chase Park, as the heavy hitters of the Super C League combined for 43 runs and 74 hits, including 10 for extra bases.

Carrying the biggest bats were the newly formed Mudfish team, which rapped the ball for 22 hits and scored 18 runs in an 18-0 whitewashing of Sunchase, another new team to the Sanford leagues.

Mudfish made its presence felt immediately as Rich Cobb followed Rob Kerr's leadoff single in the bottom of the first inning with a two run, home run and the winners went on to have 10 different players get at least two hits each.

In the other games, TRC (Tim Raines Connection) made its return to the Sanford diamonds a successful one, overcoming a slow start to top Coaches Locker Room 9-2 and Ken Rummel Chevrolet picked up where it left off in the Fall League by whipping Cafe Sorrento 9.5.

The 10-week season will continue with three more games at 6:30 p.m., 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. next Monday at Chase Park.

Tim Raines drove in three runs with a triple and a double to lead the team that bears his name, but his three brother's, Sam, Ned and Levi, as well as a strong defense led by pitcher Tom Gracey were also an integral part of the win. Sam Raines started TRC on its winning ways by driving in two runs with a two out single in the third inning to crase a 1-0 deficit.

Dolphins' offensive line to get stress test

By STEVEN WINE AP Sports Writer

MIAMI - The Miami Dolphins' pass blocking and ground game. sources of concern for much of the season, will undergo a stress test against San Diego in the AFC playoffs Sunday at Joe Robbie Stadium.

The Chargers' niuch-Improved defense led the conference with 51 sacks, while Miami quarterback Dan Marino was sacked a career-high 28

San Diego tied for the AFC lead in run defense. Miami ranked thirdworst in rushing yards, and leading rusher Mark Higgs will miss the game with a knee injury.

Those matchups could spell trouble for the Dolphins. The last time the teams met, in December 1991. San Diego needed a fourth-quarter rally to win, 38-30. The Chargers' defense appears unlikely to give up that many points Sunday.

"It seems like every week they have a different player stepping to the forefront," Dolphins guard Keith Sims said Monday. "Their defensive tackles are getting a good push upfield, and it seems like they're not having breakdowns or giving up that big play like they did last year."

In 1991, the Chargers ranked 19th among NFL teams in defense. This season they ranked fourth.

Coach Don Shula, who uses the "superstar" label sparingly, applied it to two Chargers - defensive end Leslie O'Neal and linebacker Junior Seau. But he said the bulk of the credit for San Diego's improvement belongs to first-year defensive coordinator Bill Arnsparger, a former Shula assistant.

"He hasn't lost it," Shula said. "Their defense is playing well, and Bill certainly has to be the main reason. He has given them the same thing he gave our defense. They have stability, and they don't make mistakes."

The Dolphins' defense also stiffened this season, rising to sixth-best in the NFL against the run, compared with second-worst in 1991. But the Chargers, eager to establish ball control, will still try to move on

"They pass if they have to," Miami defensive end Jeff Cross said.

"Our defense has improved against the run," Shula said. "But this is going to be a big test. You can't let them play keepaway on

A potent defense and running attack helped the Chargers beat Kansas City 17-0 in a wild-card game Saturday for their eighth consecutive win.

"They're on a roll, no doubt about it." Cross said. "But they have to beat us in our back yard. And we haven't been playing too badly ourselves the past few weeks." Miami won its final three regular-season games to earn the AFC East title and a first-round bye.

Couple bring joy to others

Parents of 25 foster children live for others

By Hansian school Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - Barbara and Roy Richey have a way with people. Since they moved to Deltona seven years ago, they have given of themselves to the community.

They spent 30 years in Chat-tanooga and another 30 years near Detroit where they raised two children of their own, 25 foster children and two adopted children.

Today, they are spending their retirement years bringing joy to

For six years, they have visited nursing homes to entertain and cook for the residents.

Regularly, they visit Hillhaven Healthcare Center and make their rounds. In October, they made homemade doughnuts for the residents while in November they prepared old-fashioned potatoes and onions. During December the Richeys served the residents bean soup and also brought along a display of beautiful dolls and a doll house they made.

DEAR ABBY: In the York Daily Record in York, Pa., you recently perpetuated a ocmmon error regarding a woman's maiden name. You said, "Many professional women have retained their maiden names after marriage."

Abby, a woman does not have a maiden name until she takes a married name. What she has is a surname. "Maiden" refers to a former name that was given up in favor of her husband's name. Women who retain their own names (or their surnames) after marriage do not have a maide

DEAR ABBY: I am recently divorced after a brief marriage to a nurse who works at a local hospital. Apparently, many of the people she works with know who I am and where I work.

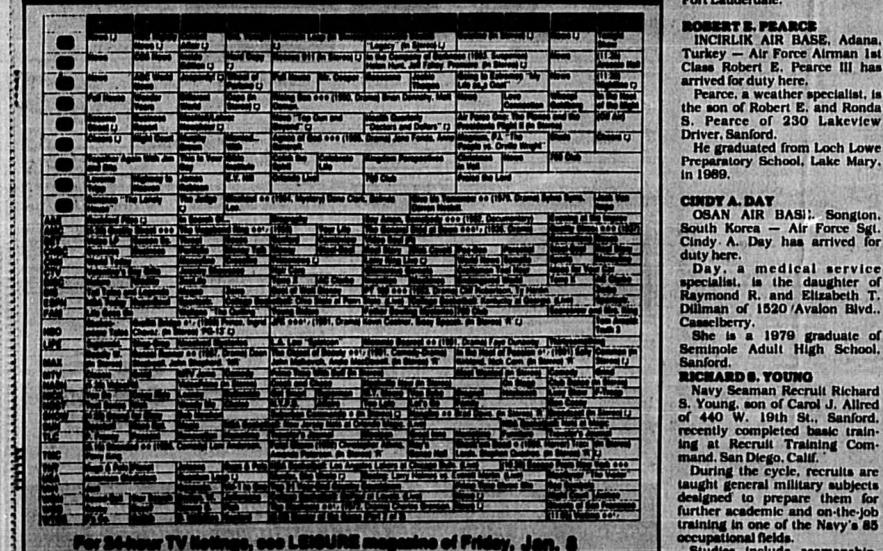

Not many of my co-workers know that we are divorced, and they ask me how she is, etc. When I tell them that we are no longer married, they ask why. I tell them about her involvement with a doctor from the hospital. and they usually ask, "Who?" I then write the doctor's last name on a piece of paper and tell them that I would appreciate it if they did not reveal how they found

I recall in past columns you have referred to people who would reveal such information as "cade," and I feel uncomfortable telling others when asked, but how can I dodge the ques-tion when I am still recovering from the hurt of our divorce, and I'm not very good at hiding my emotions?

I am in counseling now and have been assured that total honesty is essential to my recovery. Do you have any advice for me? I am still hurting because I cared deeply for this woman.
TRYING TO MOVE OF

DEAR TRYING: I am all for total honesty, but you do not have to answer every question you are saked. And to those who are so prying and tasteless as to ask you "why" your marriage ended, a more gentlemanly re-sponse would be, "I would prefer not to discuss it."

Hair loss in women may reflect illness

What could cause this? I'm too embarrassed to discuss this with my doctor and will value your opinion.

DEAR READER: You don't say whether you're male or female. It makes a difference.

As men age, they lose body hair -- and scalp hair as well. This is probably due to withering of the hair follicles and thinning/drying of the skin. Age-related decreases in male hormone probably play a role.

Women do not ordinarily lose body hair as they age to the extent that men do. (Perhaps because they have less to begin with.) Thus, hair loss in women may reflect an illness, such as anemia or infection, of which they are unaware.

See your doctor. Or, if you wish, pass GO and proceed directly to a dermatologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please tell me the facts about chronic and acute pancreatitis. I had a CT scan last week and was told my pancreas is gone, shriveled and calcified, yet I'm not a diabetic.

DEAR READER: The pancreas, an organ located near the stomach, manufactures digestive juices and insulin. Because it is connected to the liver by a tube, any liver blockage -- as can occur with galistones - will also affect the pancreas, usually leading to acute inflammation. Over-use of alcohol also causes pancreatic inflammation; this and liver problems account for more than 80 percent of hospital admissions for acute pancreatitis.

Repeated bouts of acute pancreatitis (or, more commonly, continuing alcohol

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an abuse) will eventually progress active, healthy 53-year-old with no health or thyroid problems, yet I am losing all my body hair, while a problem of the cland.

Arguably the greatest-ever advertising coup occurred when person A. as I shall call him. persuaded person B to buy a T-shirt with person A's company logo on it. Person B had paid for the privilege of advertising person A's company.

In bridge, it usually doesn't particular honor-card in an effort to mislead an opponent about the location of another honor.

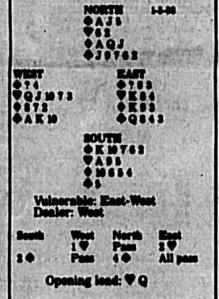

In today's deal, the bidding was bizarre. North might have made a take-out double over one heart. And South entered the auction with a skeletal two-spade overcall.

West led the heart queen and, when it held the trick, continued with a low heart to the king and ace. Declarer took a diamond finesse, but it lost. Back came a diamond to dummy's queen.

Now South had to find the spade queen, and all the indications pointed to West. As he hadn't led a top club at trick one. it was clear East had a club honor. Apparently that left West needing the spade queen for his opening bid.

However. South was Estee pay to advertise your cards. But Griffin, a board member of the ciation for over 20 years, who died last November. She asked herself why East, an expert, had won trick three with the diamond king. The normal play would be to duck. Griffin concluded that he wanted her to know he had the king. Backing her judgment, Griffin immediately played a spade to her 10 and it won! Declarer ruffed her heart loser with dummy's spade jack, cashed the spade ace and led a low club. The contract was

It could prove to your advan-tage in the year ahead to function as independently of others as possible. If circumstances require you to form an alliance, do so with care.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Strive to be self-sufficient today, because allies upon whom you can usually depend might not be there when you most need them. Capricorn, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Capricorn's Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper. P.O. your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Make play out of your work today, but don't play and avoid your work. The former will make things easier, but the latter will create complications.
PIECES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Try not to be too demanding of friends today, because they will resent it if you make them feel they must be held accountable to you for their actions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Unfortunately, others might be resistant to your methods and procedures today and not do things the way you want. There is a chance this may unduly trigger your anger. Guard your

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
It's not like you to deliberately put someone down in the presence of others, so don't do it today. A painful lesson could result if you do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be prudent in the management of your resources today, even if people with whom you'll be involved aren't. Set your own standards instead of being a "me too" person. CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Even a harmless rendezvous could be seriously misjudged by others today. Don't step out of line in the romance department.

Walk the straight and narrow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It may be a serious mistake today to play favorites where friends are concerned. If you do something for one pal and ignore the request of another, it could cost you the good will of both.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not presume that you are the spokesperson for your peer group today. Unless you're elected by the majority, your reign could be short-lived.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be realistic regarding what you hope to achieve today or else you might trip over your own limitations. Keep objectives within your capabilities. SCORPSO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you talk too much today there's a chance you might be forced to defend positions about which you know little. To be on the safe side, focus on listening instead of expounding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be reasonable regarding the terms and conditions you hope to get today in a business deal. If the specifics are too harsh, the endeavor could fall apart in front of your eyes.
