"I've had cameras in the courtroom and they didn't bother me. I won't allow any 'click' cameras, though. The camera will have to be silent," he said. Williams said the key to preventing disruption of a courtroom by press photographers will be the initially in favor of allowing cameras in the courtroom, but his feeling has been modified after hearing the experiences of several of his fellow judges who particiapted in last year's trial program. Judge Salfi did not participate himself.

ability of the judge to lay down the rules before a trial begins. If a judge is lax in setting forth guidelines, he said, the door could be opened to another "Sam Shepard incident."

"I'd say at this point I have a very guarded reaction...there are areas that I didn't consider when the trial period last year started. After talking to some of my brothers on the bench and hearing their experiences I now have some reservations.'

Specifically, Salfi said he is concerned about the disruption that could occur in the event of a major trial where a heavy volume of photographers and newsmen would be present. He said the recent Zamora case in Dade County illustrated the problems. He said in that case there were so many reporters and photographers in the court that the judge was having to take time away from his normal functions to coordinate the media.

Provisional Government

Declares Victory Over Amin

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Uganda's new provisional administration declared today "we have won the war" against Idi Amin and appealed to thousands of men, women and children who had stripped most of the city bare in an orgy of looting to return the stolen goods. The arrival of the provisional government's new presidemt, scholar Youssef Lule, 67, from neighboring Tanzania was delayed, probably until Friday, and tens of thousands of people who thronged downtown Kampala were ordered to disperse.

"We have won the war," Information Director Robert Ssebunya said on Uganda Radio. "An era of peace and reconcillation will follow." The crowds that had gathered for Lule's arrival — including many peope fresh from looting nearby homes - clapped, chanted and sang, "Lu-

Burial Ground Yields Gold

MOSCOW (UPI)—A long-lost royal burial ground in northern Afghanistan has yielded themsends of photograph gold and jewelry in what may rival the King Tut treasure trove earlier this century.

A Soviet-Afghan archaeological expedition that has been working in the area for nearly a decade stumbled onto the 1st-century burial ground while carrying out a routine excavation on Mount Tillia-Tape. Russian archaeologists told the Soviet Novosti Press Agency this week that since digging began last October they have recovered 20,000 pieces of gold jewelry, some weighing as much as two pounds.

Your Car Is As Sacred As Home

At first blush, the only surprising thing about the U.S. Supreme Court decision prohibiting police from stopping motorists at random solely to check their driver's licenses and auto registration is that a single Justice dissented from the 8-1 ruling. Indeed, the dissenter - Associate Justice William H. Rehnquist — objected only because the court left open the right of states to allow license and registration checks provided they are conducted at roadblocks where all cars are stopped. While we sympathize with Justice Rehnquist's libertarian views, we are not unmindful that roadblocks can serve a legitimate law-enforcement

That is more than can be said for the random checks ruled unconstitutional. In the specific case on which the court ruled, a Delaware man was stopped by a police officer, not because the motorists was suspected of any violation of the law. but because the officer had nothing else to do. Delaware state courts and the U.S. Supreme Court rightly rejected the police argument that random checks constitute a significant confribution to highway safety. Such checks are rohibited in some states, such as California.

The Fourth Amendment forbids "unreasonable search and seizure" of a citizen and his or her property. Law-abiding motorists in the many states affected by this decision will no doubt be bleased to learn that these constitutional guarantees apply to a citizen in an automobile no less than to a citizen at home.

The matter, however, appears not to be a problem locally, for Seminole County Sheriff John Polk and police chiefs in other municipalities here say their officers do not make such random checks.

Blistering heat. The invasion of the love bugs and lizards during the summer months cating alligators that roam the streets at night.

When I decided to move to Sanford a few weeks ago, my friends in the Chicagoland area warned me about the negative aspects of Florida. The above predictions were only a few.

Secretly, I knew they were just jealous. I was eaving the sub-zero temperatures and mountains of frozen snow behind for an environment of palm trees, sand, and streets without potholes. I started my journey one early Wednesday morning in the sleeting rain with my cat, Charlie,

64 and 75, I was amazed to see the terrain change so rapidly from freezing temperatures and snow to pine trees scattered at random on the hills of Once I reached the south, I began to look forward

The European Communities is the current phase of the drawing together of the oncefractious nations of Western Europe that began following World War II with the initial purpose of preventing another Franco-German war by meshing the two economies. There are actually three communities — Economic (the familiar Common Market), Coal and Steel and Atomic Energy - with common membership: Belgium, Britain, Denmark, France, West Germany, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands. Sanford Inn Sold; Will Be Converted To A Holiday Inn

By GEOFFREY POUNDS

Herald Staff Writer An Altamonte Springs firm which recently purchased the lakefront Holiday Inn in Sanford has announced plans to purchase Holiday Isles a 99-year lease on the lakefront property, comthe Sanford Inn at Highway 46 and I-4.

National Capital Companies Ltd., headquartered at 701 Semoran Blvd. in Altamonte Springs, will convert the Sanford Inn to a Holiday Inn by June 1, company president Fred Salgado said. Salgado said his company will take possession of the Sanford Inn as soon as papers can be filed in Seminole County Court. The dance floor. title transfer should be complete sometime next week, he said.

On April 4, the new owners of the Holiday Inn were issued a building permit by the city to begin construction of a $50,000 expansion and remodeling of the property. The remodeling proposes the expansion of dining room facilities, including the addition of a Salgado said the motiff of the dining area will be somewhat "more refined" than the "Jungle Joe" restaurant now located in as soon as the papers are filed. It will be a Holiday Inn by June 1," the motel. He said designers have already been contracted to

Believer Nailed To Cross

Philippines (UPI) — A 29year old Filipino was nailed to a cross with 4-inch nails today amid tourist mobs who turned a bloody holy week rite into a rowdy carnival complete with colored balloons.

Praying that God would cure his wife of suspected cancer, street hawker Mario Bagtas dragged heavy wooden cross for heat and villagers dressed as Roman soldiers impaled him on the cross, reenacting Jesus Christ's Bagtas walked between rows of about 150 hooder flagellants who performed their own Good Friday penitence by flogging their naked backs with bamboo scourages until they were soaked with blood. When he was stripped for the "execution," his wife ran crying to him. "Can you still take it?" she

A "centurion" dressed in red drove two 4-inch stainless steel nails into the palms of the halfnaked Bagtas before hoisting up the cross where he hung impaled for five minutes.

"It's all right," he said

While aloft, Bagtas kept muttering prayers. When some people began to lower the cross as the second minute passed, the gaunt Filipino stopped them with a scream, "Don't, don't take me down."

DOT Gets 'HOV' Funds | Gas Pump Changes Due

The Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) has been awarded $40,000 to wage a publicity campaign concerning the implementation of the high occupancy rehicle lanes along I-4 in parts of Seminole County said Bill G. Gray, a spokesman for DOT.

DOT is proposing the installation of high occupancy rehicle lanes along I-4 from U.S. 192 (SR 530) Osceola County to SR 434 in Seminole County. These lanes would encourage car-pooling and could lead to a decrease in gasoline consumption, DOT officials say. The Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) met with DOT officials yesterday and awarded it the $40,000 needed to finance a public information campaign for residents in the three-county area where the high oc-Monday is the "kick off day" for the public information campaign with a briefing session for the media to be held

Before the information campaign is over, DOT will have met with various agencies like police and fire officials to discuss the implementation of the high occupancy lanes,

The high occupancy vehicles lanes would be installed on the far left lanes of the highway in the east and west direction. The lanes would be reserved during peak hours of travel for motorists carrying two or more passengers. "The high occupancy vehicles lanes will first be installed on parts of I-4 that lie north and south of Orlando now under construction for six lanes." Gray said. There are no plans to extend the high occupancy vehicle anes on I-4 to Daytona Beach, Gray said.

The idea to install the high occupancy lanes came from the Federal Highway Department as part of President Carter's program to conserve energy, Gray said.
