Article erred about Seminole High weapons

A story on Page 1A Friday about scuffles and weapons at Seminole High School in Sanford erroneously attributed a statement to Assistant Principal Bobby Lundquist. Lundquist did not say, as reported in the article, "many many" knives and other weapons are confiscated from students.

Furthermore, Lundquist said later, regardless of who said it, the statement is not true.

BRIEFS

Free chiropractic exams set

LAKE MARY — A proclamation was arranged too late, but it could prove to be beneficial to Lake Mary residents.

A number of weeks ago, Governor Lawton Chiles declared October as Spinal Health Month in the State of Florida. It was Nov. 7 however, before the proclamation was re-written and presented for declaration to the Lake Mary City Commission.

Chiropractor Dr. Lewis Bixon made a presentation to the Commission, and took the occasion to invite all Lake Mary residents to attend the Community Appreciation Day at Bixon Chiropractic Center, operated by Bixon and his wife, Dr. Christine Bixon, also a chiropractic physician.

The Bixons will be offering free services at the clinic, including an examination, and an x-ray if it is deemed necessary.

Appointments for the free service will be necessary. Phone 834-2225.

The Community Appreciation Day will be held today between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., at the Bixon Chiropractic Center, 209 W. Highway 434, in Longwood.

Miami ticket wins jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — A single ticket sold in Miami had the six numbers drawn in Florida's latest Lotto game and will give whoever owns it sole claim to an estimated $15 million jackpot, officials said.

Drawn late Saturday were the numbers 5-7-12-28-35-47.

The exact amount of the jackpot, to be awarded over a 20-year period, won't be known until Monday when state officials open bids on long-term investment bonds that will provide the payout, officials said Sunday.

The game also produced 478,782 other winning tickets, 507 of which had five of the right numbers and can be validated for $2,738 each. There were 25,770 four-of-six tickets, worth $78.50 each, and 452,505 worth $4 each for having three of the six numbers.

Next week's Lotto jackpot will be worth an estimated $7 million if paid to a single winner in 20 annual installments.

Veterans Day observed

$$ sought for medical benefits

From Staff and Wire reports

SANFORD — While some military service veterans marched in parades this morning, efforts continued to help all of them with improved veterans benefits.

Sanford was the setting for this morning's Veterans Day observance. Led by 94-year-old WW-I veteran Sam Levy of Sanford, the parade featured veterans from the various wars as well as militarily related clubs and groups. Shortly before 11 a.m., they marched from the Chamber of Commerce Building, down First Street to the center of Downtown Sanford, then north on Park Avenue to the lakefront.

Mayor Bettye Smith welcomed the veterans to the city in brief ceremonies at the veterans memorial on SANFORD — Seminole High School, the oldest high school in the district, is beginning its Homecoming celebration today.

Today, students are wearing the colors of their favorite colleges and universities.

Tomorrow has been dubbed "Hippie Day." Students will don peace signs, bell bottoms and fringed leather vests and travel back to the 1960s.

On Wednesday, grass skirts and flowered shirts will take over the wardrobes of the students and teachers. Hawaiian Day will be tacky fun in preparation for the big happenings on Thursday and Friday.

Students will dress in their finest clothes for "GQ Day" on Thursday, but that is just the beginning of things.

At 5 p.m. downtown Sanford will become the Seminoles' stomping ground for the annual homecoming parade.

Beginning on First Street at Ft. Mellon Park, near the New Tribes Mission, the parade will slowly make its way to the Magnolia Mall.

Representatives of many of the school's clubs and other extra-curricular groups will be riding in

Building demolitions considered

City to conduct public hearings at meet tonight

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The City Commission will hold a public hearing tonight, on possible building condemnations. Five structures will be considered for demolition.

The owners of one house, at 1109 W. 9th St., have requested the city demolish the structure. The abandoned building was described by city building official Linda Gentry as having, "Doors open or missing; windows broken or missing; interior and exterior deterioration; trash; debris; signs of transient use; and possible crack house."

Although the City informed the owner, Ralph Jarvis, that he could present evidence to determine whether or not the property should be condemned, Jarvis has requested, "...that there be no time extension granted on this condemned property."

The second structure, at 1800 W. Airport Blvd., being held by Johnny Walker, as Trustee, has also been reported by Gentry as showing signs of transient use. The property was reported to be in a deteriorated condition.

The third building, owned by Michael A. McKenna, is located at 144 Country Club Drive, in Unit 2 of Country Club Manor. Gentry reported the building was "open to vandalism," as well as being in a generally poor condition.

The fourth structure to be discussed is a fire damaged 2 story building at 1010 W. 13th Street. The property is owned by Mary Smith, of 1703 W. 13th Street.

Christmas Parade

Sanford gears up for holiday season

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Don't make other plans for Saturday, Dec. 14. It's going to be a very busy day in downtown Sanford, and you won't want to miss it.

It's a day with two parades and the St. Lucia Festival activities.

Activities begin with the annual Christmas Parade in the morning, followed by the festival activities all day and climaxed with a lighted boat parade on the Sanford lakefront at night.

Entries are now being accepted for both the Lake Monroe Christmas Boat Parade and the annual St. Lucia Festival Christmas Parade. Entry forms are available for both parades at the First Street Gallery, in downtown Sanford. Information may also be obtained on the boat parade from Archie Smith, at Sanford Boat Works, 322 6613.

There is a double theme for the Christmas parade this year, "Christmas Around the World," and entries in keeping with the tradition of the St. Lucia Festival.

Parade Chairman Lane Wood stressed the importance of aiming presentations, designs, decorations, and even cars, at one of the two themes. All entries will be screened before the parade date, and the parade committee reserves the right to accept or reject any entry.

Each of the entries must be sponsored by a civic, school, business, professional or religious group. An entry fee of $30 per unit will be charged when the entry form is submitted. Wood commented, "It may seem like a large amount to pay for an entry fee, especially for some of the smaller organizations, but we have to obtain insurance permits, and the money is needed to support that need." The parade maintains public liability insurance.

Parade committee officials have not commented on whether or not a float, expected to carry a visitor from the North Pole, would be charged the full amount for an entry fee, or if the jolly old man will be declared a special guest of the City, and participate without charge.

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith commented, "I think Santa so very much represents the true spirit of the parade's theme. I think the city should be able to declare him an official visitor."

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Boy lost in woods is safe

CRESTVIEW — An 11-year-old, lost in the Florida Panhandle woods and clad only in a T-shirt and jeans, weathered a night in 30-degree temperatures by building a lean-to before being found.

James Carey Davis of Crestview got lost near his home at about 5 p.m. CST Friday while gathering firewood with two brothers. He was found at about 7 a.m. Saturday after about 100 searchers looked for him most of the night and into the morning, said Okaloosa County sheriff Sgt. Jim Griffith.

"He was a smart little rascal for an 11-year-old," Griffith said. "We were real glad to seek him — not only the fact that he wasn't hurt, but he was in pretty good shape to have spend the night in 30-degree weather."

The youngster built a lean-to of logs and branches to shelter himself from the cold and wind that drove the wind-chill temperature down to the 20s, Griffith said.

The boy was taken to the North Okaloosa Medical Center for treatment and was released without suffering any apparent ill effects, he said.

Animals for surgical practice defended

PENSACOLA — A Navy official has defended the use of live goats for surgical practice following criticism of the procedure by an employee of the Naval Aerospace Medical Institute.

The use of the animals, which are anesthetized and then killed before pain-killing drugs wear off, is the only way to teach doctors lifesaving procedures, said Lt. Gene Smallwood, an administrative officer for the institute. It is ethical and painless for the animals, he said.

"Animals are required because there is no substitute for living tissue when learning surgical procedures," Smallwood said.

The institute, which trains Navy flight surgeons at the Pensacola Naval Air Station, used about a dozen goats during a two-day weekend seminar for military doctors and nurses from throughout the Southeast, Smallwood said.

An employee, whose identity was not disclosed, told the Pensacola News Journal for a story in Sunday editions that he was drafted to help with the seminar against his will. He also contended the use of the animals was inhumane.

Escaped inmates recaptured

PENSACOLA — Two inmates were recaptured after escaping from the Escambia County Jail by breaking a sixth-floor window and crawling down a makeshift rope of bedsheets.

Escambia sheriff's deputies said they received tips that led to the recapture Saturday of Robert David Bennett, 30 and Gary E. McLaughlin Jr., 20, both of Pensacola, after two days of freedom.

Bennett was found in a vacant house at Cantonment, about 10 miles north of Pensacola, and McLaughlin was discovered hiding in a Pensacola mobile home believed to belong to relatives, which he had broken into, said sheriff's Sgt. LaRon Summerlin and Lt. Jim Lowman.

McLaughlin was being held on a bank robbery, Bennett was facing kidnapping, armed robbery and firearms charges when they escaped Thursday. Each now faces an additional charge of escape.

Both gave up after police dogs were sent into their hiding places ahead of officers, the deputies said.

They were the first inmates to break out of the jail since it was built 10 years ago.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

1 in 3 credit reports erroneous

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — Mysterious car loans, unrecognizable credit cards and even a mother's catalog account were among the erroneous items uncovered in a survey of credit reports conducted by The Palm Beach Post.

Forty-eight employees, their friends or family members volunteered to request reports from TRW Inc.

Errors occurred in nearly one in three that have been returned, the Post said.

The survey began in July. Five survey participants have yet to receive reports that cost $15 each and were paid for by The Post.

Of the 43 reports returned, 30 were correct, while 13 contained errors including incorrect names, addresses, Social Security numbers and — potentially more serious — information about other people.

One report listed two GMAC car loans and four department store cards that the woman had never seen.

Another woman's report included a catalog account belonging to her mother.

An employee was surprised to find herself "also known as" a name she has never used.

One man found a credit card account he didn't recognize.

Several people found what they considered an outdated or incomplete picture of their credit history, though this wasn't counted as erroneous for purposes of the survey. For example, one man said anyone reading his report would think he worked for a newspaper that has been closed three years.

The Post's survey, while not scientific, is consistent with research by Associated Credit Bureaus Inc., a Washington-based industry group. It has reported that about 9 million people request to see their reports each year, and close to 3 million seek corrections.

The industry group notes that the errors discovered are less than 1 percent of the 450 million credit reports existing.

Nixed in Washington state, Florida ponders term limits

By BRENT KALLESTAD
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Voters in the state of Washington have decided against term limits, but that isn't likely to keep Florida politicians from worrying about a similar constitutional amendment.

The two states, politically, are as different as the apples and oranges that boost the states' respective economies.

"They've got one of the strongest congressional delegations in America, and those congressmen successfully argued that one of the things that could come out of term limits was that the small states could be wiped out," said Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay, a former congressman and state legislator.

"You think about the leadership Washington (state) has got right now, it's a pretty compelling argument," MacKay said. "Not only are they in strong leadership positions, but they've got very high caliber people serving in those positions."

The Washington measure would have taken effect immediately and among others, KO'd U.S. House Speaker Tom Foley.

"That stepped over what I would describe as the bounds of reasonableness, and made it very personal," said Orlando entrepreneur Phil Haney, whose "Eight is Enough" organization is spearheading the Florida petition drive.

"The impact would have been immediate and while people want change, they were a little bit reticent," added Handy, who said the Florida measure would have passed in the state of Washington.

Florida's proposed amendment is not retroactive and would limit politicians from seeking the same office after eight years, beginning in the year 2000.

"Getting some of the abuses out of the system has to happen and that's what term limits is all about," said Handy. "There is no evidence that longevity in public office generates a better result."

"Getting more people into the system and opening up the system will yield a better result," said Handy.

"I basically think it's got a head of steam in Florida," MacKay said. "Florida is sort of a cutting-edge state and it's out front on this issue."

Handy's organization has budgeted $750,000 to get the required 365,000 signatures of registered voters by next August to get the proposal on the 1992 general election ballot.

"It's an issue the people feel very strongly about and we haven't noticed any flagging of support or enthusiasm since the results of Tuesday," said Handy. "We're not discouraged by Washington (results) at all."

However, some Floridians like former House Speaker Hyatt Brown of Daytona Beach, believe the state's voters would make the same decision as those in Washington once the issue is understood better by voters.

Shuttle managers face staff streamlining, penny-pinching

By MARCIA BUSH
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA is on the verge of setting sail with a full space shuttle fleet and unprecedented flying potential. There's just one problem — money.

Shuttle managers have been ordered to reduce spending by 3 percent a year over five years. The cuts began last month with the start of the new fiscal year in response to a $330 million budget shortfall.

"A lot of the fun has disappeared from this job," space flight budget chief Michael Mann said last week.

Welcome to the new shuttle era, an age marked by job streamlining, management changes and penny-pinching. Among the more drastic plans being considered: mothballing one of the four shuttles, shutting down one of the two shuttle launch pads or a hangar, and trimming the number of flights.

"For the first time in the space shuttle program, we have the capability, the facilities, the hardware, the software, the people and the know-how to fly more shuttle flights than we can afford to fly," said William Lenoir, head of NASA's space flight program.

The outgoing director of Kennedy Space Center, Forrest McCartney, questions whether NASA can fly all four orbiters next year as planned, given the budget constraints, work remaining to modify Columbia for two-week flights, and equipment problems with the new Endeavour. Preparations for Endeavour's maiden voyage next spring are six weeks behind schedule.

About 1,800 problems have been reported with Endeavour since the $2 billion replacement for Challenger arrived in May. They include scratched and gouged structural beams, crossed wires, exposed electrical connectors, misaligned bolts and dirty fuel lines.

Engineers expect more problems by the time Endeavour flies. About 3,000 problems were found on the other orbiters when manned space flight resumed following the 1986 Challenger accident.

"I have seen no indication at all that anyone is going to degrade safety," said McCartney. "But can we fly the four orbiters with all that's on the plate?"

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans eight shuttle flights in 1992 at a cost of about $330 million each. That's two more flights than in 1991: Atlantis is scheduled to leave on the year's final mission Nov. 19.

Officials anticipate eight to 10 shuttle launches a year as the agency moves toward building a space station later this decade.

"I'll tell you one thing now. It's going to be a full-court press," McCartney said.

Top women gather as 'global housekeepers'

By BETH DUFF-BROWN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Florida's pre-eminent environmentalist has a simple explanation for why environmental work is women's work: "It's women's business — it's just an extension of housekeeping."

More than 1,500 women from 83 nations have joined Marjory Stoneman Douglas in Miami to build upon their perceived role of the world's environmental housekeepers.

From well-known feminists such as former Congresswoman Bella Abzug to lesser known women from the African bush, they came for two international conferences to share success stories, offer one another suggestions and prepare for their role in the 1992 U.N. Conference on Environment and Development in Brazil.

"Women know what to do," Abzug, co-chair of the Women's Environment & Development Organization, said in her opening speech Friday at the World Women's Congress for a Healthy Planet, which is meeting in Miami through Tuesday.

"We have seen that while government leaders have been dragging their feet on what must be done to reverse the damage to the Earth and the growing economic disparities between North and South, the world's women have been at work," she said.

SANFORD — Fourth graders at Hamilton Elementary School, 1501 E. 8th St., began to collect aluminum cans and other aluminum products Friday in a fund-raising campaign for the school.

"It's just a way to get some money to buy basic supplies for the teachers," Gloria Beasley, an instructional assistant to the fourth grade team, said.

Students and parents stood along the student drop-off ramp to gather cans they will later take to the Reynolds' Aluminum Recycling Center on U.S. Highway 17-92 near 27th Street.

"For now they're just doing aluminum," Beasley said. "Maybe later they'll add newspapers and glass."

Severe budget cutbacks from the state have caused schools across the state to tighten their belts. Teachers are forced to buy greater numbers of their own classroom supplies.

Teachers will not earn any additional recompense for their services, yet they need to spend more of their own money on supplies if they hope to maintain the quality of education at least at last year's level.

"There's no other way to do that," Beasley said.

The fund-raising effort will take place every Friday morning as students arrive at school between 8:10 and 8:40 a.m. It will continue throughout the rest of the year.

"We want everyone to get involved in this," Beasley said.

Madeline Anderson, fourth grade teacher at Hamilton Elementary, holds a poster reminding students that every Friday is recycling day while Katrina Yawn, 9, places aluminum cans in a plastic bag held by Bill Anderson, Dividends volunteer.

Grindle to run for Senate seat

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Art Grindle has entered a horse race for Florida Senate, but it's a race he where he says he can win as the only contestant.

Saying he can do more for Seminole County constituents and advance his own political career, Grindle will abandon his House District 35 seat to run for state Senate in 1992. Because of his residence, that Senate bid, today, places him in Senate District 15, currently held by Toni Jennings, R-Orlando.

Jennings has filed her intention to seek re-election with the state Division of Elections and an Orlando Democrat, Benjamin J. Everidge has also filed for the seat.

Grindle's decision to depart from House District 35 has opened the field for several candidates. The district includes portions of Sanford and central Seminole County between Interstate 4 and the CSX railroad line. Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Lee Constantine and Wes Pennington, a leading county Republican, have both filed for the seat. Democrat Eric Adam Kaplan of Altamonte Springs had also filed papers for the office.

But Grindle said Friday because he lives in Seminole County and the other two candidates live in Orange County, it is likely he won't face either current opponent in 1992.

"There are no districts right now," Grindle said. "All of them are going to be changed by reapportionment, but we have to file in the district where we live."

Grindle, who serves on the House Reapportionment Committee senate subcommittee, said he doubts Senate District 15 will remain in Seminole County and said it will likely be fully contained in Orange County.

The district includes only portions of Seminole County South of State Road 436. The remainder of District 15 is in Orange County.

"One of the main objectives this year is to respect city and county boundaries," Grindle said. "We have to get the numbers to (balance) first, then create minority districts next, then respect jurisdictions next."

When asked if he'll seek to massage his sought-after senate district for his own advantage, Grindle chuckled and said "I'll keep my hands on it."

Grindle formally announced his senate candidacy Sunday before a crowd of supporters at the Park Suites Hotel. Grindle said as a senator, he will be able to accomplish more, particularly in the area of health care reform.

"There's a real chance of a (Republican) majority in the Senate next year so I can accomplish more," Grindle said.

Art Grindle

"It will be fulfilling if I win," Grindle said health care reform continues to be his main goal.

'Romance' expansion approved

By NICK SPINAPPA
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The rivership Grand Romance can now start an expansion program. The city's Planning and Zoning Commission has approved a site plan for the project.

President of the dinner cruise operation, Nancy Yuronia said, "The next move will be to obtain all the permits that will be needed for the project, then we can get on with the work."

Gary Briggs, another officer in the company reported, "Our first work will actually be on the dock area." The Company has rights to all three docks on Lake Monroe, in the area between Myrtle Avenue and French Avenue.

"We expect to begin rebuilding the eastern most dock first," Briggs said. "It's the one in the poorest condition. Then we'll work on the other two docks and get them finished before we even consider working on the land."

A 20 foot long wharf is to be built along the docks. All three docks will be rebuilt to be at the same level as the seawall.

The actual property for the additional construction is on the south side of Seminole Boulevard, just west of the Sanford City Hall, from the lakefront to near Fulton Street.

On the property, plans call for a two phase program. Phase I will include development of the land to include parking areas, smaller buildings, drainage, detention ponds, and some landscaping. Phase II will feature a 2-story office building and a number of covered employee parking areas.

"Although we have the site plan established," Briggs said, "we still need a detailed design for our building." The design is being handled by Blount Sites & Associates, a civil engineering and surveying firm from Orlando.

The Grand Romance will continue floating in the waters of Lake Monroe. "We have no plans for cruise operations out of other cities," Yuronia said.

Public asked to attend forum on 'Chalk Talk'

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

Sandy Robinson, a member of the Seminole County School Board, will once again be making herself available to the public this evening.

She will host her second "Chalk Talk," a public forum at which she will answer questions and listen to suggestions from whoever attends. The event will begin at 7 p.m. at the Community Building on Warren Avenue, across from City Hall in Longwood.

Robinson met with members of the public in early September at a Lake Mary forum. She hopes to attract other constituents to the Longwood meeting so as to hear some fresh ideas.

Robinson is a strong advocate of community involvement in education. She also said she believes community can help her do her job more efficiently. "Everyone is welcome."

Robinson said, "Parents, teachers, administrators, students and concerned citizens."

Robinson will bring a synopsis of the public meeting to the next meeting of the school board on Nov. 19. The ideas she gets from the citizens who get involved in her citizens forum are, she believes, among the most important she can bring to the board.

"I've found that frequently the best ideas come from those whom the school system serves," Robinson said.

Free trade

The giant 12-nation European Community and the European Free Trade Association, a smaller, seven-member grouping, have agreed to turn all of Western Europe into one vast free-trade area, starting in 1993. Assuming that the parliaments of all 19 countries ratify the accord (insular Switzerland may be a problem), a single marketplace with 380 million people will be created.

At first glance, it looks good both for Europe and its trading partners, including the United States.

Officially, the two organizations would continue as separate institutions. But as EC and EFTA begin to harmonize social and economic policies, the likelihood of a complete merger into a single European Community will increase.

The two blocs already have extensive trade, but the removal of all barriers (except in agriculture, always a special problem) will expand opportunities, especially for small- and medium-sized firms now less able to meet two sets of trade standards.

The EC will benefit because, although EFTA is much smaller, it's also considerably richer in per capita terms. (Its members include Sweden, Norway, Austria and Switzerland.) Thus, as part of the price of admission, EFTA will pay $2.4 billion into a special fund that aids poor areas of the EC such as Ireland, Portugal and parts of Spain and Italy.

U.S. business also is likely to gain. No longer will American companies have to differentiate in complying with host-country standards, between what's acceptable in Switzerland and in Germany. That could lead to increased U.S. investment in EFTA countries as barriers between the two areas fall.

But while the EC-EFTA agreement looks good in itself, it's also part of an emerging trend toward the formation of regional free-trade blocs — in Europe, North America and, potentially, in Asia — which skeptics fear may become more protectionist toward each other. What drives that fear is the current impasse in global negotiations to craft new agreements covering agriculture, textiles, financial services and telecommunications, areas not adequately covered by existing accords.

The challenge now is to reinvigorate those talks so that Europe, America and Asia can benefit, both from their own increasing cohesion and a continuous expansion of world trade, which has so enriched them all.

A new prime minister

With recent attention focused on Madrid, it was easy to overlook election of a new Japanese prime minister, ruling Liberal Democratic Party stalwart Kiichi Miyazawa. This would be a mistake. U.S.-Japanese relations are too delicate and too important to ignore.

Miyazawa, 72, who replaces the popular Toshiki Kaifu, comes to power when the Japanese economy is slowing and some of his people are beginning to vent their hostilities on the United States. In its most virulent form, anti-Americanism is known now as kenbei.

Americans have done their share of Japan-bashing, which has in part led to the new anti-Americanism. Each country's leaders are being forced to respond to the rumbles of domestic discontent. Miyazawa, no doubt, will come under pressure to stand up to the Americans.

When President Bush visits Japan later in November, he may find that instead of persuading Japan to lower its trade barriers — difficult even in the best of times — the kenbei phenomenon is causing Japanese political leaders to dig in their heels and talk more belligerently.

This will be hard to take from a country running a $40 billion trade surplus with the United States. But Japan is an important U.S. ally and an economic powerhouse fueled by the U.S. market. Both countries have enjoyed the fruits of their postwar trade relationship, even if it has become a friendship with serious problems.

This is not the best year for Bush to visit Japan with tough talk and a list of demands. Relations are strained enough, and likely will suffer more if a North American free-trade bloc robs Japan of some of its trade advantages.

In this time of recession and simmering xenophobia, fostering good will with Japan should be high on Bush's priority list — along with pulling down Japanese trade barriers.

Is there no stalling the ad rush?

I'm not one who minds much when telemarketers call, as long as the telemarketer is an actual human and unless it is someone from the department-store chain that calls about every two weeks wanting me to buy insurance to protect the credit card it so charitably issued me.

Once in a while a telemarketer will have an offer I'm interested in — about as often as I have a yen for stowed beads, I'll admit, but it happens — and I usually empathize with the person on the other end. During my freshman year in college I was an Olan Mills telemarketer for the seven days it took Ulan and me to discover that one week with zero family portrait packages sold does not a telemarketer make.

I've learned to carry and read two or three newspapers a day with seven or eight slick advertising inserts trying to fall out of each of them. I can completely shut out a television commercial and use that time to think about something else, and billboards don't usually bother me anymore unless I can see them from my own house.

I get around the excessive commercials on most radio stations by listening to cassette tapes while I drive. I'm so savvy to all the envelope tricks that I can sort out junk mail from stuff I want to open almost as quick as I can flip it toward the trash can. In fact, I was beginning to think I could successfully negotiate any mine field of unsolicited advertising unscathed.

Then I went to the bathroom. Perhaps if I hadn't been at the most unentertaining seminar since the Susanne Somers Sitcom Festival I could have stood it. But for two hours I'd been gulping iced tea and sucking in deep breaths of air to stay awake, when the tea did me a bigger favor and insisted I exit the seminar room or explode.

I have to go to the bathroom! Yes! And I can probably get away with staying out of here a full FIVE MINUTES!

There I was, finally

Ads covered the entire inside of the door.

away from Monotone Man and looking forward to five free minutes to stare at a soothing gray door and think about what I was going to do when I got out of that seminar. If I survived it, I closed the stall door.

Ach! Instead of sea-fluff gray, there were advertisements covering the entire inside of the door: For fitness centers, hair extensions, diet plans, artificial fingernails, cellular phones, rental cars, realtors and restaurants. And in the one place I thought I could always count on to make the world go away!

Is nothing sacred? Once they've wormed their way into our bathroom stalls, what's next? The toilet lids? The paper? The bottoms of our shoes?

Any book can come up with the next place to sell advertising, and if he puts the right spin on it, it should be a piece of cake. Church tithing down a little? Forget about trying to coerce members into signing those little pledge cards, just take "Life is fragile, handle with prayer" off the magnetic sign in front and put up "For the perfect after-church brunch, Faye's Family Fiesta at Walnut and Main."

PTA tired of having bake sales and bazaars to raise money? Take the alphabet off the top of the blackboards and sell the space to Toys R Us and Little Debbie Cakes.

With Sununu, who needs Cuomo?

Relax, Mario. The Democrats may not need you, after all, to make their strongest case against the re-election of President Bush. John Sununu is doing it for them.

In a political tour de force (of sorts), Bush's own chief of staff managed to cram into a single episode of CBS News' "Face the Nation" all the essential arguments on what's wrong with the Bush presidency: Bush's mute response to the economic crisis, his myopic response to the health-care crisis, his myopic response to the in-house sleaze crisis, his mime response to the leadership-at-home crisis. The ever-eloquent Sununu covered in a mere half-hour what your standard Democratic stump cover in a day and a half (and Bill Clinton covers in a week and a half and Michael Dukakis in a campaign and a half).

Hear Sununu's case against Bush: ON OUR ECONOMIC CRISIS — Sununu was asked if Bush, who vetoed two bills to extend unemployment benefits, will offer a legislative package to solve the recession that has brought agony to middle-class Americans.

Sununu answered: "... he has crafted that package. He submitted it in his first State of the Union Address." Bush hasn't wanted to call our attention to our own pain by giving a speech on the recession; but if he does, "He's going to underline what he has already asked for" — the Grand Old Party standby, capital gains tax cut (which helps the well-to-do), IRA incentives for saving more money (which helps those who have it), and his transportation bill (every president has one).

Translation: Bush's anti-recession plan is to do nothing except what he proposed upon taking office — when he told us we were bathing in prosperity.

ON OUR HEALTH-CARE CRISIS — Sununu was asked why the president has not given a single speech on how to solve our crisis in health care — at a time when more than 34 million Americans have no health insurance at all, when millions more lose their family's savings in fighting catastrophic illnesses, and when America's infant mortality rate is worse than that of many Third World countries.

Sununu answered: "Health care is a wonderful issue for those who just want a demagogue. ..." Bush will speak on the issue sometime, but Sununu warned that we won't be satisfied "in terms of what it touches on and doesn't touch on."

Translation: Bush and Sununu don't know people who can't pay their health bills.

ON BUSH'S IN-HOUSE SLEAZE CRISIS: Sununu was asked about his own aide, Ed Rogers, age 33, who'd never practiced law — not for a single day in his life — but left the Bush White House and got a $600,000 contract to represent a Saudi sheik who had loads of legal problems with the U.S. government over the BCCI bank scandal and who already had very experienced lawyers. What did the sheik think he was getting for his money when he hired young Rogers — a knob for Sununu's office door?

Sununu answered: "I have no idea." White House and Justice Department lawyers found "no wrongdoing." (They found a legal fig leaf to cover their once-jolly Rogers; he never worked on that specific issue, so Rogers had no conflict of interest.)

Translation: Nobody with grade-school literacy needs one.

ON OUR LEADERSHIP AT HOME CRISIS — Sununu was asked why Bush would not openly endorse Democrat Edwin Edwards for Louisiana governor against ex-Ku Klux Klan and American Nazi leader David Duke, who says he's a Republican.

Sununu answered: "I think the president's made it clear he's opposed to David Duke." But he added that he and Bush wish Louisianians could just vote "no" on both candidates.

Translation: Even on a white supremacist scumbum, Bush can't help but hedge; he hinted maybe people shouldn't vote at all. That's not hypercautious; that's unconscionable.

So, Mario, easy on the angst. No need to rush. Hold the bumper stickers; call Tim Russert, your old press agent who's now a veeep at NBC. Surely he owes you something. Maybe he'll book Sununu on "Meet the Press."

Bush hasn't wanted to call our attention to our own pain.

Bush remains loyal to Kennebunkport

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — George Bush already has plans for when he leaves the White House. He wants to go out to sea, either on an ocean cruise ship or maybe on a boat that he pilots himself with his family as crew.

Friends of the president told us about his retirement wish, which he said he would make come true in 1997, but has also acknowledged could come as early as 1993. Bush doesn't consider the 1992 election to be in the bag.

The president loves this coastal town, but was careful not to be too morose about the damage to his vacation home by a storm that pummeled the East Coast earlier this month. It wouldn't look good for the president to bemoan the temporary loss of a vacation home to an act of God when so many Americans are homeless, jobless and buffeted by the winds of recession.

For the same reason, the locals are speculating that the Bushes may not vacation in Kennebunkport next August as they usually do, even if the house is back in shape. Bush will be distracted by the campaign, and, more important, he doesn't want to look like the idle rich three months before the election. With the economy in a mess and the recession dealing a severe blow to Bush's popularity, there will be few photo opportunities at Walker's Point next year.

If Bush stays away, it will be only the second summer in his life that he did not have time for Kennebunkport. The first time was in 1944 when Bush was in World War II.

When Bush does come to Kennebunkport to roost, the lobstermen who have been plying these waters for decades grumble. His jaunts out on his boat and the restrictive cordon thrown up around him by the Secret Service make commercial fishing more difficult. The Secret Service uses Coast Guard boats armed with M-60 machine guns and one 155mm cannon to make sure no one comes too close.

Still, the locals admit Bush has tried to be accommodating, and they don't fault him for wanting to get away from Washington. They do fault the hordes of journalists who come with the package — all except the boat owners and others who service the journalists for jacked-up prices.

Bush's maternal grandfather and namesake, George Herbert Walker, a New York stockbroker, bought the point in 1903 to escape summer polio epidemics in the city, and he built the house. Bush bought the compound with cash in 1981 using money from the sale of his house in Houston. It was worth $2.2 million before the storm damage and is the only house the Bushes own.

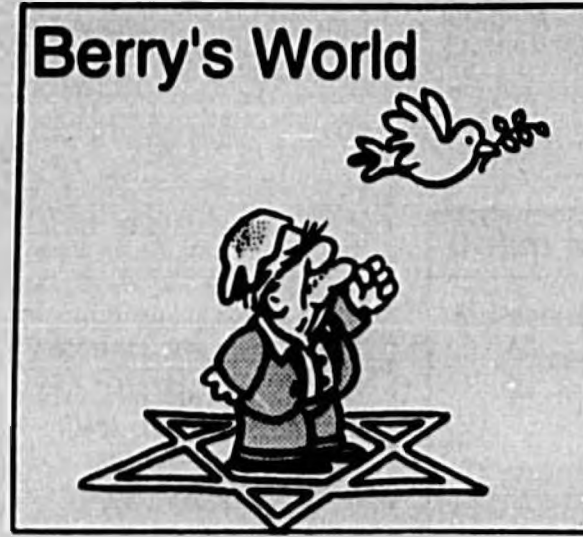

Horseshoes, tennis, golf and fishing are the president's favorite pastimes here, although he sometimes lacks the patience it takes to catch the bluefish that abound in the ocean. Bush is fond of repeating an old saying that the time a man spends fishing shouldn't count toward the time God has allotted him on earth.

His true love is his speedboat "Fidelity," which he named after the stock he sold in 1973 to buy the custom-built 28-foot "Cigarette" boat for $18,000. Designed by Don Arnow of Miami, the boat is one of only a few in existence. Other owners include Kings Hussein of Jordan, Gustaf of Sweden and Carlos of Spain; daredevil Evel Knievel and oil firefighter Red Adair.

Bush shows off in the boat, jangling it to its top speed of 50 mph, leaving the Secret Service awash in sea spray and wake. He loves to make full-throttle leaps out of the water, once throwing NBC newsmen Tom Pettit to the floor of the boat. Pettit threw out his back and had to take time off from work. It was one of several occasions when Bush used the boat to dispel his "wimp" image.

Lobstermen who have been plying these waters for decades grumble.

Women to indulge in Karaoke

Tonight, the Heathrow Women's Club will be welcoming members to the world of Karaoke, a phenomenal new form of live entertainment sweeping the United States today.

"It promises to be the future of entertainment in the 90s," Sarabecca Rosier, programs chairman and first vice president said. "Karaoke is now just becoming popular throughout the country, but it is still the best kept secret."

Sarabecca said Karaoke has been a multi-billion dollar industry in Japan for over 20 years. There are over a million Karaoke systems throughout Japan, in homes, schools, country clubs, restaurants, lounges, and amusement parks. Experts project the same impact in the U.S. over the next three years, Sarabecca explained.

Pronounced Kah-rah-o-kay, the word is Japanese and means "empty orchestra." It is a sing-a-long presentation based on Mitch Miller's concept of just "follow the bouncing ball." The laser Karaoke system provides the background music, along with background vocals, to over 500 popular songs. The lead vocal is missing. Each song includes a music video with easy to read lyrics displayed on a TV screen.

"Karaoke is all about audience participation. Jeff Zachary will be our professional M.C. and will introduce the Karaoke concert and our nights presentation. It will be an absolutely fun-filled evening," Sarabecca excitedly said.

Members will gather at the Heathrow Country Club, 6:30 p.m.

Bonham takes the challenge

Lake Mary resident Rosella Bonham had her work cut out for her when she was the guest speaker at Sanford Middle School this past week.

Sixth grade teacher Jill Crooms in conjunction with the Dividends Program, invited Rosella to address an auditorium filled with students. Rosella lectured on "How to Write a Speech in Five Minutes."

"It was great. The kids participated. They threw out topics for me to use when inventing a speech on the spot. One boy suggested football, something I know nothing about.

A captive audience.

But I lasted a minute and a half. When someone else said soccer, I said no thanks," Rosella chuckled.

The past district governor of Toastmasters, a group that encourages communication, Rosella said she spoke about 50 minutes to the sixth graders.

"Did you know speaking in public is the number one fear in America? It's ahead of flying and dying," Rosella said.

Some trees change colors here

Although people do not flock to Central Florida to see our fall color display, there are a few trees around our area that provide some seasonal color changes. The leaves on many of our native and landscaped trees are beginning to change color now that temperatures are cooler.

In the fall, chlorophyll production slows as the trees prepare for winter. When the chlorophyll is finally depleted the brilliant reds, yellows and oranges associated with autumn are evident. Sunny dry days and cool nights produce the best fall colors. Cloudy rainy days and warm nights dull the vividness of the colors.

In Central Florida, there are certain plants that display fall colors as the weather cools. Unlike most flowering trees which display their colorful blooms for only a brief period, trees that turn color in the fall usually do so for an extended period of time, up to a month or longer depending on the weather conditions. This is a good reason to include the fall coloring characteristics when selecting a tree for your landscape.

The golden-rain tree is probably the most common tree to change color in the fall. It's brilliant yellow flowers are already gone but the decorative pinkish papery seed pods are evident now. These may last a month or more on the tree. The golden-rain tree is well adapted to our growing conditions. It is extremely drought tolerant and easily found at most garden centers.

There are native trees that also provide a color display in the fall. The sweet gum tree is seen along the highways and is a good selection for home landscapes. It can grow to 100 feet and has a majestic, pyramid shape. In the fall, the leaves turn red then golden yellow. The sweet gum is best identified by the woody burr-like fruits that it produces.

The sycamore, like the sweet gum, is a Florida native. The leaves of the sycamore turn yellow early in the fall and also produce a woody fruit. Sycamores can be identified by their shedding bark, one of the few native trees that does this.

Other natives include dogwood and red maples which both turn a glorious red in the fall. The berries of the dahoon holly are deep crimson now and will stay that way throughout the holidays. The Chickasaw plum and wild cherry trees can be seen while driving in vivid reds and yellows. Fall color can be incorporated into your landscape by selecting one of these species.

For more information about selecting a native tree for your landscape, plan now to attend a seminar titled Native Plants for the Landscape on Tuesday, Nov. 12, 1991 at 2 p.m. in the Agriculture Center auditorium. Special guest speaker will be Mike Minge of the Florida Native Plant Society. The Agriculture Center is located across from Fica World off 17-92. The program is free and open to the public. For more information, just give me a call.

Operation Dear Abby boosts troops

DEAR READERS: It's time to hoist the flags, keep your powder dry, damn the torpedoes and full speed ahead! In other words, Don Grimes (president of the 1991 America Remembers Campaign) sent the new addresses for our young men and women serving in the military.

This year, for the first time, troops stationed in the United States will be included — thanks to the help of the Armed Services YMCA. (These troops will be on duty over Christmas. Some are patients in a military hospital.)

Your cards, letters (and goodies) will be wonderful morale boosters. I hope that you will open your hearts to those who must be separated from their families for the holidays.

half to distraction — as we still do.

The Great Depression wasn't all bad, for if we could have honeymooned in style at a ritzy hotel, we would have missed that experience.

We are in our late 70s now and don't camp much, although my husband takes our grandchildren camping, while my old bones stay at home with the cat for company.

Somehow, we stretched those precious dollars and had a glorious weekend during which I got a terrible sunburn and was "untouchable" for a week. We bathed out of a dishpan, relieved ourselves in holes he dug for the purpose, and loved each other

Curbing the cycle of venereal warts

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 21-year-old female with human papillomavirus. My doctor doesn't seem to know much about this and indicates there are over 50 different types of the virus. What should I know, and what should my partner know, if anything?

DEAR READER: Actually, there are 48 types of human papillomavirus, a common virus infection that causes warts. Ordinarily, these warts — which may appear on any skin surface — are harmless nuisances.

However, types 16, 18, 31 and 33 are associated with venereal warts in both men and women. Recent studies have shown a strong relation between these warts and cancer of the penis, cervix and vaginal opening.

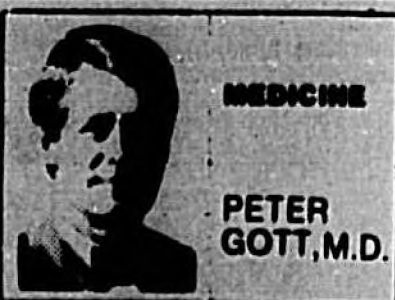

The infection is spread by direct contact, including sexual relations, with an infected person. Virus infection may be present in either partner when no warts are visible to the naked eye. Newborn infants can contract life-threatening respiratory infection (laryngeal papillomatosis) during birth if their mothers have venereal warts.

The diagnosis is confirmed by special testing, such as Pap tests and tissue biopsy.

Because of the risk of cancer, treatment of genital papillomavirus infection is mandatory. Therapy includes surgical excision, burning with liquid nitrogen, application of podophyllin or injection of a drug called interferon-alpha directly into the warts.

In my opinion, you should be under the care of a gynecologist who will aggressively treat your infection with one of the methods I mentioned. In addition, because your sexual partner — or partners — is almost surely infected, he should be examined by a urologist and treated to interrupt the cycle of infection/treatment/reinfection. Human papillomavirus infection should not be taken lightly. And, I am convinced, your family doctor should refer you to a specialist. If you are already seeing a gynecologist and he or she is vague about what to do, ask for a referral to another

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

After the "Get Smart" TV sitcom was discontinued, the two rival spy organizations, Control and Kaos, continued to battle at the bridge table. After two rubbers, Kaos led by six points.

For the third rubber, Control was represented by Maxwell Smart, known as Agent 86, and Harry Hoo, the famous Hawaiian detective who wears white suits except in the summer. Kaos fielded Siegfried, a German who runs a prison camp somewhere in New Jersey, and Leadside, a genius with a soft spot for art.

On the first deal, Max led the heart four against Leadside's three-no-trump contract. Declarer could see that if the club finesse worked, he would win 10 tricks. But if it lost, there was a risk the defenders would run the spades.

The normal play is low from the dummy at trick one, guaranteeing two heart tricks. But Leadside realized that if Hoo played the queen, denying the 10, and the club finesse lost, even Max would switch to spades. So instead Leadside made the deceptive play of the heart jack from dummy.

Hoo covered with the queen, and Leadside won with the ace. Declarer entered dummy with a diamond to the queen and took the losing club finesse.

Max cashed the heart king, in case declarer had started with A-10 doubleton, and led another heart, expecting his partner to have the 10. Leadside won with that card and claimed an overtrick.

Harry Hoo said: "Beware Mr. Leadside, Confucius, he say that you can fool smart people some of the time, but you can't fool

Smart people all the time. "Oh no?"

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 12, 1991

It looks like you may make several important changes of your own volition in the year ahead. These will be both bold and imaginative, and they will be in areas where you previously were rather timid.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your self-interests are intertwined at this time with individuals with whom you're involved. You continue to be the strongest force for mutual good, so use your initiative. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Individuals you treat kindly today will not readily forget what you do for them. In their own time and in their own way, they'll reciprocate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If there is an important objective you feel you must achieve today, intensify your efforts, but do so in ways that do not put you in the spotlight. A low profile is helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not underestimate your competition today, but by the same token, don't perceive them as having power they do not possess. In actuality, the odds tend to favor you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a chance you could talk yourself out of a good idea today — if you sound it out on the wrong listener. Limit the discussion of your thoughts to those who can properly evaluate them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today's developments could lead to an opportunity for you that might be materially rewarding. This will be due to someone else's efforts rather than your own.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An individual whose cooperation you need remains undecided whether or not to help you at this time. More convincing on your part is essential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Things that happen today where your career is concerned could be much more significant than they initially appear. Make sure you consistently do your best in all of your assignments.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone with whom you once had a strong emotional attachment might enter your life again in this cycle. There's a chance you'll pick up where you left off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Timing and circumstances are now propitious for making the changes you've been thinking about that could benefit your family as well as yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Plans you're presently formulating should be given adequate time in which to come together properly. Don't get off to a false start today by being impulsive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial trends are somewhat uncertain today, but perhaps not in your instance. If you see a way to add to your resources or holdings, pursue it with vigor.
