Man tries to hang self at SPD

SANFORD — Wade Spencer Miller apparently didn't want to go to jail when he was arrested by Sanford Police on Sunday morning for driving on a suspended license and reckless driving.

According to Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire, Officer Ramon Figueroa had arrested Miller, 26, after a pursuit which led through Sanford, Volusia County and parts of Seminole County.

Figueroa had handcuffed him to the wall of the middle booking room at the Sanford Police station while he completed the necessary paper work.

Whitmire said that Figueroa heard "coughing and gurgling" noises from the cell and reported that he thought Miller was spitting so he continued with his work. When the noise continued, the officer investigated.

He found that Miller had tied a shoelace around his neck and through the loop which held the handcuffs to the wall in an attempt to hang himself, the report said.

Whitmire said Figueroa lifted Miller up and held him while he summoned assistance. He then cut the shoelace with a pocket knife, the report said.

Sanford Fire Department emergency services responded to the police station and took Miller to the emergency room at Central Florida Regional Hospital where he was examined and released to police who transported him to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Autopsy set in auto fatality

SANFORD — An autopsy will have to be done to determine if alcohol was involved in an auto accident late Saturday evening.

According to Sanford police, Louis Harris, 62, of 1885 Roseberry Lane, Sanford, was killed when he smashed his car head on into another vehicle on State Road 46, a short distance from Kennel Road.

According to Sanford Police Commander Dennis Whitmire, Harris was driving westbound in the eastbound lane of State Road 46 when his car collided with one driven by Roger Lawrence Livingston, 24, of 3220 Hughey St., Sanford.

"We aren't sure how he got going westbound in the eastbound lane. There is a median there like on the interstate...very wide and grassy," Whitmire said. "We don't think he turned wrong off of Perkinson and went all that way without running into someone. He may have turned off of Airport and just never went around the median."

Harris was pronounced dead at the scene. Livingston and his passenger Damon Hillery, 21, of 1985 Sipes Ave., Sanford, were transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center in Orlando, where they were treated and released for back and neck injuries.

Memorial service set for Engles

SANFORD — The grandparents of a missing Lake Mary girl have planned a memorial service Wednesday to mark her 21st birthday.

Marie and Charles Hooper, grandparents of Kathy Engles, have organized the service with Father James Spencer of All Souls Episcopal Church, Winter Park officiating. The memorial will be conducted in an area known as Four Mile Square on Americana Street, next to Kentucky Fried Chicken, behind Seminole Plaza, Hwy. 17-92. Investigators believe the girl's body was buried in the area but has never been found.

Engles disappeared when she was 14 years old. Hooper said the memorial marks three March family birthdays.

The memorial will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday. In case of rain, the service will be at the Feathers' Edge clubhouse in Lake Mary.

Convention center?

Sanford, Lake Mary under consideration

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford and Lake Mary are among four areas of the county under review for a convention center.

Locations at State Road 46 and Interstate 4, U.S. Highway 17-92 and the expressway and Lake Mary Boulevard and I-4 are under review for a center designed to attract 1,500 to 2,000 attendees, said Jack Wert, county tourism director. Other locations are State Road 436 and I-4 and Oviedo near the expressway.

The final recommendations will be made next month, said Wert.

The county hired Real Estate Research Consultants last year to determine whether Seminole

Last week, the consultants unveiled information gathered so far. The five locations were targeted because of active or growing commerce commercial activities in them and their access to major highways.

County could support a mid-sized center with a capacity larger than the Orlando North Hilton in Altamonte Springs, which can handle up to 500 people. Members of the Tourist Development Council believe such a center would attract more business visitors and could serve local civic events.

Wert said the consultants have spoken with school officials about holding graduation ceremonies in the center.

The TDC has also targeted amateur sporting events as another niche to attract visitors and their dollars. The county soccer training center was built to meet that goal.

Last week, the consultants unveiled information gathered so far. Wert said the five locations were targeted because of active or growing commerce commercial activities in them and their access to major highways.

But of the five locations, consultants found only the SR-436 area has enough hotel rooms to accommodate a large gathering.

"With an average occupancy rate of 60 percent or so, I think hotel people are going to be reluctant to come here," said Wert.

City airs leases on lakefront

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two important lease agreements will be up for discussion at tonight's Sanford City Commission meeting. Both involve major property on the lakefront marina area.

One of the items to be considered at this afternoon's commission work session deals with One Harbour Place. It has been the subject of extensive discussion during a number of previous work sessions.

The One Harbour Place building currently houses the Sanford Wellness Center, Orlando Sentinel and other office areas.

Sun Bank currently holds the lease on the building, situated on city owned property. If a new lease, as proposed, is agreed upon, the city would receive $3,353 rent for calendar year 1994, with the rent to increase by three percent for each subsequent year.

The agreement states that the leasee, "...shall not permit the operation of a motel, restaurant, lounge, marina, bar or package store on the property." It is recommended that this be removed from the lease, "...as soon as the

Commissioner names Boltz as SHS 'hardest-working senior'

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Larry Furlong said that Shawn Boltz, a senior at Seminole High School, is the personification of what his Commissioner's Choice Award is all about.

"He's a remarkable young man," Furlong said. "He has overcome some great adversity to get where he is and he is a fighter. He will achieve his goal."

The Commissioner's Choice Award is presented annually to the "hardest working senior" at each of the county's six high schools and at the Crooms School of Choice.

The winners are picked at the school level by a selection committee at each school.

"These aren't necessarily the straight A students or the students who are being given lots of other scholarships, but they are hard working and dedicated," Furlong explained.

Boltz will receive $1,000 from the commissioner to use to continue his education after graduation.

In his essay that was a part of his application for the award, he said that he plans to become a computer engineer.

"If I don't get enough money for college I still won't let that deter me from my goal of becoming a computer engineer,"

She got out of her car and began to argue with the driver of that car and then returned to her car and left the scene, the police report said.

Tomorrow day of decision, get out and vote

Tomorrow will be a day of decision for the citizens of Lake Mary. It is their opportunity to select a new city commissioner.

Four candidates are seeking election to fill the remainder of the term held by A.R. "Doc" Jore, who passed away on January 27. The term will expire at the end of 1995.

With only one political seat, and no referendums on the ballot, the tendency may be to overlook tomorrow's opportunity to vote.

In past elections, we have heard many excuses which will probably be made. "I don't know all the candidates, so I'll let someone who does make the decision." "It's only a small election, I can't waste my time." Or, the weakest excuse of all, "I don't really care who gets elected, no one in government is any good."

It's saddening, but true. We have people who just don't care. As a result, whoever wins the race, will be selected by only a small number of people.

After that occurs, those who wouldn't vote have a tendency to respond by complaining about government.

The time to take action begins just before the election. Get to know the candidates. Listen to what they have to say about the city's problems and needs. Study their character and consider what they may be able to do as a commissioner.

Then, on election day, take the time to go to the polls and cast that ballot.

Unfortunately, we have some citizens who are constantly against any person connected with politics. A few of them will brag that they vote for the person they believe is the least-rotten of the apples.

If we allow that type of attitude to continue and expand, we will have good government.

The citizens of Lake Mary need and deserve the best City Commission possible. Tomorrow, the people have the opportunity to help make it such.

Regardless of how much extra time it may take, or inconvenience it may produce, get out and vote.

There is only one voting place. The commission chamber of Lake Mary City Hall will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Stop by, look at the commission podium and think of who you believe will do the best job in the vacant seat. Then vote for that candidate.

LETTER

Stop subsidies

A Feb. 7 article in The Chicago Tribune dealt with the subject of "schnorrering." That word is the Yiddish word for "begging" or " mooching." Yossi Bellin, the deputy foreign minister of Israel, admitted before an international women's Zionist group, that Israel was indeed a "Schnorrerland."

Now Yitzhak Rabin, the prime minister of Israel, took umbrage at the remarks of his deputy foreign minister. He wanted to make sure that the American Jewish community continued to send $500 million every year to Israel. This is how he expressed himself:

"I know it sounds good to say, 'Let's not be schnorrers, but I don't feel like a schnorrer when I demand that world Jewry help the Israeli government and people to absorb immigrants.'"

Where does the leader of a foreign government get the right to demand anything of citizens of another country? Where does Rabin get the right to make demand on American citizens?

Isn't the prime minister of Israel calling into question the loyalty of Jews to the lands in which they live by his assumption that he has the right to give orders to the Jews of the world and that he must be obeyed?

Isn't it time for the American Jewish community to end its subsidization of "Schnorrerland" with its annual $500 million gift and invest that money in America? Isn't it time for American Jews to tell the prime minister of Israel that they are Americans first, last and always and that their loyalty is to the United States of America — not Israel.

How to combat tribalism in schools

The speaker holds up a rather frayed $10 bill and asks his audience — community leaders, teachers or journalists depending on the engagement — to name the five freedoms guaranteed by the First Amendment. The prize is the $10.

A frequent lecturer, he has yet to find a winner, according to his colleague, Paul McMasters of the Freedom Forum First Amendment Center at Vanderbilt University.

In visiting secondary schools and colleges, I have had a parallel experience with the Fourth Amendment. I ask what's in it, and there is a dense silence.

I tell them it's about the crucial limits on the government's right to search their homes or their very persons. That doesn't help much. They do not know that the police must have a warrant based on probable cause and particularly describing what and whom are to be searched.

Nor have I found any students — or journalists for that matter — who know all the five freedoms tucked into the First Amendment.

But I haven't visited Corinne O'Donnell's first grade class at the Campbell Elementary School outside Denver. On the blackboard, I am told, is the word GRASP, which would win any of the students that $10 prize, for they have learned that the five freedoms in the First Amendment are: Grievance (petition for redress), Religion (freedom of), Assembly (the right to), Speech and Press.

Corinne O'Donnell uses the Education for Freedom Curriculum developed by the First Amendment Congress at the University of Colorado in Denver. Its executive director, Julie Lucas, notes that in the schools now there is — with regard to the Constitution — "almost an illiterate generation, who doesn't want to participate in government and doesn't see the need. And who is quite content to let some other people make decisions for them."

In the schools there is also an increasing separation between races and ethnic groups. In most parts of the country, I have seen voluntary self-segregation at lunch tables and in the school corridors. At colleges, administrators have timidly legitimized this self-segregation by setting up separate residential buildings.

Gary Trudeau in Donesbury foresees the eventual demand by black students for separate drinking fountains throughout the university.

Ramon Cortines, the chancellor of New York City's school system, feels that a lively understanding of the fundamental freedoms that all Americans share — but they first have to know about them — might begin to transcend this tribalism.

A student in a Harlem school had said, a few days before I saw Cortines, that she did not consider herself an American. America has no use for blacks, she emphasized, and so she had no use for America. I wondered if she knew how powerfully the First Amendment was used by Malcolm X, by Jesse Jackson, by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. And, indeed, by Louis Farrakhan.

The Education for Freedom Curriculum, which has begun to unite the tribes in some classrooms, is spreading around the country, but most schools still have nothing like it.

I have seen voluntary self-segregation at lunch tables and in the school corridors.

HODDING CARTER

Keep human rights pressure on

Secretary of State Warren Christopher's retreat from Beijing this month may not have rivaled Napoleon's from Moscow, but it came close. The issue at hand now is whether the cause that took him to China — as was earlier the headaches it incurs. The answer is still yes, though it is probable that a new approach is needed to reach an old objective.

What prompted the Chinese leadership to publicly humiliate Mr. Christopher was apparently renewed fury over Washington's objections to their deplorable human rights performance. That fury had its roots in the president's decision last June to attach conditions to the one-year extension of most-favored-nation trading status to China.

"I want to make it clear to them that there has to be some progress on human rights and the use of prison labor," he said then. Renewal of MFN in June 1994 would depend on such progress, he promised.

The plain fact then and now is that the president does not want to revoke MFN. He acted to forestall Congress from going even further and faster. The president's executive order postponed a showdown, buying time for diplomacy to convince the Chinese that their self-interest should prompt human rights reforms.

What self-interest could possibly convince the old tyrants that they should loosen their dictatorial grip and thereby threaten their control? Not surprisingly, the answer is money.

Most-favored-nation status gives China equal access to the American market, where it sold over $30 billion a year in merchandise, food and machinery last year. It bought $8 billion or so from us. That $20 billion-plus surplus is a vital component of their economic modernization program, which produced dramatic, though far from uniform, growth over the last decade.

On the U.S. side of the matter, self-interest is also involved, despite the huge trade imbalance, second only to the one we run with Japan. The Chinese market, 1.2 billion people strong, is so potentially lucrative that neither American businessmen nor government officials want to see it threatened. Visions of fabulous opportunities dance like sugar plums in their collective psyches, clouded only by nightmares of a calamitous showdown over human rights.

But it is important to remember that this is not the first time this dilemma has arisen. It is also not the first time that businessmen on the one hand and regional specialists on the other have insisted that the United States had no right to "impose its values" on other countries. For that matter, the popular refrain that economic growth must precede and is the absolute necessary precondition for human rights advances in China was made earlier about places as disparate as the former Soviet Union and a clutch of Latin American dictatorships. Wrong then, wrong now.

The continuing reality, moreover, is that what is being asked of China — as was earlier asked of the Soviet Union and other despots — is that it live up to its own promises and signed agreements, not that it bow its knees to "cultural imperialism." To say to autocrats that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights is not just a collection of words, but a solemn pledge, is to echo an irrefutable truth.

But that doesn't mean there isn't a legitimate debate about the best way to advance the cause of human rights, in China and elsewhere. The opponents of linking trade to performance have an arguable point. To walk away from engagement is no way to pursue a mission. As they see it, the United States should seek expanded contact at every possible level, not shrink from it.

They are right, so long as contact is linked to unrelenting diplomatic pressure. What worries human rights advocates, however, is the fear that Washington might again prove incapable of doing two big things simultaneously. It was because President Nixon was reluctant to do so that Congress passed laws in the mid-1970s which laid the foundation for the Carter administration's human rights policy and the evolving framework of human rights diplomacy ever since. Each time someone argues for exemptions for one country or a double standard for another, the specter of retreat from hard-won human rights principles inevitably arises.

As for big business, it has repeatedly proved that its concerns about democracy and human rights are skin deep when they come into conflict with the profit motive. It's worth remembering that some of the same U.S. companies that confronted Secretary Christopher in Beijing with complaints about the administration's MFN threat once argued against getting tough with the apartheid South African government and the military junta in Argentina, among others.

Devising a workable alternative is within the competence of the president and his advisers.

The issue at hand now is whether the cause that took him to China is worth the headaches it incurs.

No Bunnies at Hooters

A report on the NBC news magazine "Dateline" sent me to my library to look up a 31-year-old magazine article. The stories reminded me of each other and I wanted to see how much had changed in three decades.

The TV segment told of a lawsuit filed by four former waitresses at "Hooters," a nationwide restaurant chain. It features waitresses dressed in skimpy shorts and midriff tops. The women are alleging sexual discrimination and sexual harassment.

Their attorney claims that the women were forced to be "sexually exploited as a condition of their employment."

Incidents the women cite include having to wear shorts from which their buttocks "hung out" and being given derogatory and sexually implicit nicknames. One woman says that when she complained about her top being too short, a manager told her, "This is Hooters. People want to see your [a slang word for breasts was bleeped by NBC]."

The 31-year-old magazine article I went back to and read again was Gloria Steinem's "A Bunny's Tale," her account of three weeks in 1963 spent undercover as a waitress in the New York Playboy Club.

Both stories were about businesses that openly acknowledged they were built around showcasing attractive women's bodies.

In both stories, the waitresses wore skimpy, sexy costumes and sometimes heard sexual remarks aimed at them, although the women in the "Dateline" report were unclear as to how often it happens in Hooters. They hinted that, if their case goes to trial, evidence of sexually offensive remarks would be presented.

In some ways, the two stories were markedly different.

Bunnies in 1963 wore tortuous, whale-boned satin swimsuits that left indentations along their ribs and they carried heavy food trays while wearing spike heels. Steinem claims that at the end of her three-week stint, her feet were left permanently a half-size bigger. Hooters waitresses, on the other hand, wear comfortable tennis shoes. They may feel personal distress at hanging out of their clothes, but the only physical discomfort from a Hooters uniform is too much breeze.

Playboy Bunnies were lured with promises of high pay, but Steinem reported that the women she interviewed were paid poorly and felt cheated out of tip money. The ex-Hooters waitresses say they made great money. One complained that she averaged five times as much salary at Hooters as she did at her present job. She wanted to keep the Hooters salary, yet do away with the uniform and offensive comments. She stayed at Hooters nine months.

One remarkable contrast was the differing expectations of the Bunnies of the '60s vs. the "Hooters Girls," as management calls them, of today. The Bunnies in Steinem's article seemed to think that all of the sexual innuendo — a few even talked of sexual reality sometimes, if a client were a Number One Keyholder — was just par for the course. It was the price they paid for getting good tips from men. The four ex-Hooters waitresses seem genuinely appalled to have discovered they were expected to dress in provocative clothes, or that men would make rude or sexually explicit remarks just because they were dressed in those clothes.

Well, at least these four young women don't believe that lecherous behavior is a natural by-product of employment, regardless of what they're wearing. The settlement of their lawsuit will tell them if they're right or not.

Both businesses openly acknowledged they were built around showcasing attractive women's bodies.

Ewing, Knicks rip Magic

ORLANDO — Patrick Ewing, held scoreless the first 16 minutes, roared back with 31 points Sunday to lead New York to a 111-90 victory over the Orlando Magic, the Knicks' 13th straight victory.

Ewing scored 23 of his points in the second half, when the Knicks held off a comeback attempt after leading by 15 at intermission and 21 in the third quarter. Ewing also had 11 rebounds and five blocks.

Shaquille O'Neal had 30 points and 16 rebounds for the Magic, but got little help from his teammates. Dennis Scott with 22 points and Nick Anderson with 11 were the only other Magic players to score in double figures.

AROUND THE STATE

Florida makes Final Four

MIAMI — Craig Brown hit 3-pointers on three consecutive possessions to break open a close game, and the Florida Gators earned their first trip to the Final Four by beating Boston College 74-68 Sunday.

The third-seeded Gators (29-7), champions of the East Regional, will play Southeast Regional champion Duke (27-5) in Saturday's national semifinals at Charlotte, N.C.

Stars forge tie with Lightning

ST. PETERSBURG — Shane Churla's goal with 39 seconds remaining in regulation gave the Dallas Stars a 2-2 tie with the Tampa Bay Lightning on Sunday.

Churla knocked in the rebound of a shot by Trent Klait during a scramble in the crease for only his sixth goal of the season.

Churla's goal came after Shawn Chambers put the Lightning in the lead at 7:23 of the third.

Expos knock off Marlins

WEST PALM BEACH — Freddie Benavides, fighting for a backup infield job, had a two-run double and rookie Rondell White also drove in two runs as the Montreal Expos beat the Florida Marlins 7-3 Sunday.

Kirk Rueter pitched the first five innings, allowing two runs and five hits. The left-hander, who was 8-0 last season, has yielded only three runs in 19 innings this spring.

AROUND THE NATION

Arkansas eliminates Michigan

DALLAS — The Arkansas Razorbacks gave President Clinton a display of their versatility Sunday as they beat Michigan 76-68 in the Midwest Regional final, denying the Wolverines their third straight trip to the Final Four.

Clinton, his wife and daughter watched from third-row seats as Arkansas (29-3) advanced to its first Final Four since 1990, when it lost to Duke in the semifinals. The Razorbacks will play West Regional champion Arizona on Saturday in Charlotte, N.C.

Michigan (24-8) lost despite 30 points and 13 rebounds from Juwan Howard. The Wolverines reached the title game the past two years, losing last year to North Carolina and in 1992 to Duke.

Earnhardt ends winless streak

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Dale Earnhardt, the six-time and defending NASCAR Winston Cup champion, overpowered the field Sunday to win the TransSouth Financial 400 at Darlington Raceway, his first victory in 17 races, dating to the July 25, 1993 event at Talladega, Ala.

Earnhardt, who won this race a year ago when it was 500 miles, led 10 times for 166 of the 292 laps, including the final 33 in an event shortened by 100 miles in the interest of competition and fan comfort.

Push for the playoffs

Von Dolteren, Raiders knock off Timberwolves

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Seminole Community College continues its push for a berth in the Florida Junior College Athletic Association's state baseball tournament by beating the Lake City Community College Timberwolves 7-2 Saturday afternoon.

The victory gives the SCC Raiders (13-10) a 7-8 mark in the Mid-Florida Conference. Lake City (11-18), which was in second place in the M-FC, falls to 7-8 in the conference.

At the end of the season, the M-FC's first and second-place teams receive automatic invitations to the state tournament. With Florida Community College at Jacksonville pulling away from the rest of the conference, the battle is for the second state tournament berth.

Tony Von Dolteren, a freshman right-hander out of Jacksonville-Sandalwood High School, tossed a complete game for the Raiders on Saturday, allowing two runs on eight hits and striking four to earn his first collegiate victory.

Three sophomores — shortstop Isaac Cruz, first baseman Pete Bezeredi, and Oviedo High School graduate Erik Jordan — led SCC's 15-hit attack with three hits apiece. Cruz, a product of Spruce Creek High School, collected a double, two None Elizer added a double.

The Raiders, who will host Wisconsin's Madison Area Technical College at 2 p.m. this afternoon, will resume their M-FC schedule with a game at FCC-Jacksonville on Tuesday. Including the game with FCC-J, SCC has 11 conference games remaining on its schedule.

Erik Jordan, a graduate of Oviedo High School, collected three singles and a run scored as Seminole Community College beat Lake City Community College 7-2 in a Mid-Florida Conference contest Saturday afternoon.

Red Sox, Cubs still undefeated

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Only three games into the season and there are only two undefeated teams left in the Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League.

The defending city champion Sunland Corporation Red Sox and Railroaders Cubs continued to run along almost unchallenged as they both won their third games by the scores of 11-2 and 11-1, respectively.

Levi Rames Jr. and Adam Frank combined on their team's third straight no-hitter as the Red Sox humbled the previously undefeated Rinker Dodgers, the defending National Division champions, at Lakefront Field Saturday morning.

In another battle of unbeaten at Lakefront Field, the Cubs jumped on the Stairs Realty White Sox for six runs in the first inning.

The final game at Lakefront Field saw the Fisher, Laurence, Deen & Fromang Blue Jays score 11 runs in the fourth inning to win its first game of the season, 17-9, over the Expos.

In the games at Roy Holler Field, the Marlins handed the Orioles their first loss of the season, 13-1; the Disabled American Veterans Royals drubbed the Freddie Howard Pirates 16-4; and the Fun World at Flea World Cardinals bested the First Union Banks A's, 13-3.

Knights of Columbus Cardinals rally

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The streak lives another day. Since the inception of the Babe Ruth Baseball League four years ago, only one team has won a city championship, the Knights of Columbus Cardinals.

After five innings Saturday at Sanford Memorial

Stadium, the Cardinals (who were 15-0-1 last year and 45-4-1 the past three years) trailed 4-1 and had been held to only three hits by the Elks Lodge No. 1241 Cubs.

But then the Cardinals came alive, scoring two runs in the sixth and two more in the bottom of the seventh inning to pull out a 5-4 triumph.

Wehmeyer stops Bellhorn, protects Metz's mark

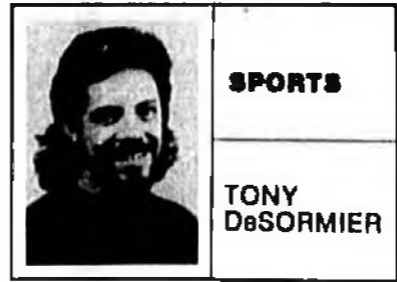

No-one knew it at the time, but Todd Bellhorn was hot on the heels of Rod Metz last week.

Bellhorn, a center fielder and pitcher for the Oviedo High School baseball team, put together a string of eight consecutive hits that ended Wednesday night when Lake Mary center fielder Brett Wehmeyer made a running, shoe-string catch of a flare in shallow left-center field.

According to Buddy Collings of the Gainesville Sun, who compiles Florida high school state records, Bellhorn's streak fell three hits short of the recognized state record of 11 consecutive safeties recorded by Metz in 1985, when he was a catcher for the Lake Mary Rams and was voted the Seminole County baseball player of the year.

"Really?" said Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle when informed that his club had defended an alumnus' record. "I didn't know it was still the state record. We were told at the time that it was a record, but I didn't realize it was still the record."

"I remember that Rod started off slow that year, but that streak came against some good clubs. He had a couple of home runs and two or three doubles in that streak. Like Bellhorn, Rod was hitting the ball on the nose. He ended up hitting around .400 that year."

SPORTS

TONY DeSORMIER

According to Tuttle, Metz went to Vanderbilt on a baseball scholarship, then transferred to Murray State in Kentucky. Metz is now married and living in the Atlanta area.

"We were teasing him the whole time," said Tuttle about Metz's streak. "It's not uncommon for a player to go 4-for-4. But when he gets to the 6th or 7th hit in a row, you start wondering when they're going to make an out."

If not for Wehmeyer's catch, Bellhorn's streak might still be alive. He walked his next (and last) time up in the Lake Mary game. In the Lions' game with Deltona on Thursday night, Bellhorn didn't see a hittable pitch all night.

"I don't know if he's going to get much to hit the rest of the year," said Oviedo coach Mike Ferrell, who witnessed Metz's streak as the coach at Seminole High School.

"Todd's a pretty patient hitter. He leads the team in walks. The combination of his patience and the fact that other teams aren't going to give him many pitches to hit may mean that he's going to draw a lot of walks the rest of the year."

The streak raised Bellhorn's batting average of .320 to .457. He has eight doubles (six coming during the streak), 18 runs scored, and 18 RBI. He's drawn 18 walks and struck out just twice. Those numbers combine for a slugging percentage of .686 and an on-base percentage of .698.

Just as Tuttle and the '85 Rams kidded Metz during his streak, Ferrell said that the rest of Lions were very aware of Bellhorn's streak and that he took some well-intended abuse after Wehmeyer's catch.

"The guys in the dugout were talking about it," said Ferrell. "We were kidding him. That ball (that Wehmeyer caught) could have dropped in very easily, but we asked him, 'What do you want, cheap hits?'"

"It was a very good catch by the Lake Mary center fielder. I've seen balls like that drop in for hits many times. The streak could have gone on."

But thanks to Wehmeyer, Metz's place in the Florida state record book is still secure. Unfortunately for Tuttle and the Rams, they didn't realize what Wehmeyer had done. "We knew that he (Bellhorn) had seven hits the week before," said Tuttle. "We didn't know the streak was still going when we played them. We didn't have the chance to enjoy stopping the streak or defending Metz's record."

This week, Oviedo will play in a tournament in Fernandina Beach while Lake Mary is scheduled to play just one game, a home contest against Sweetwater, Tenn., on Thursday night.

The two schools will resume their respective Seminole Athletic Conference schedules on Wednesday, April 6, when the Lions will host the Rams in a 7 p.m. game at Mikler Field.

What's at the root of hair loss?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 35 and occasionally color my hair, which is long and normally quite thick. Within the past two months, however, my hair has been coming out by the ton and by the root. I'm on daily doses of estrogen from a recent hysterectomy and take good multi-vitamins, but I can't seem to get to the root of the problem.

DEAR READER: Loss of hair can accompany many medical conditions, including thyroid disorders, anemia, skin diseases (such as seborrhea), and fever. In addition, many medicines may cause thinning hair, as can reactions to hair-coloring solutions.

Finally, most forms of hair loss in adults are hereditary, although spotty baldness may result in perfectly healthy persons for no known reason. Some studies have shown that even stress and anxiety can lead to hair loss.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
 What does the word "options" mean to you? To many people, it is working on a stock-exchange floor. A lot of North American bridge experts make their living trading options.

Defending against four hearts, West led the spade 10; two, jack, five. East cashed the spade king, eight, seven, queen. East continued with the spade nine, but South claimed an overtrick. He ruffed in the dummy, drew trumps, cashed the diamond ace, overtook his diamond jack with dummy's queen and discarded his club losers on dummy's two diamond winners.

The Oxford American Dictionary gives four definitions. The illustrative phrases are "None of the options is satisfactory," "Had no option but to go," "We have 10 days' option on the house" and "Keep one's options open."

At the bridge table, three of these may apply. You hope never to face only unsatisfactory options; sometimes you have no option but to adopt one line of play or defense; and ideally you can keep your options open while you learn more about the lie of the cards.

How many options did East give himself in today's deal?

Did East misguess or miscalculate?
 East was a little unlucky when West couldn't overruff dummy's heart nine. Even so, East should have used his eggs to make two overtricks, not one. At trick three, East should cash the club ace. If West discourages, East returns a spade. But when West encourages with the club seven, East plays a second club to defeat the contract.

Keep as many defensive options open as possible.
