EDITOR'S NOTE: (The Western Powers say the Berlin blockade is a threat to peace. Soviet Russia says there is no blockade, and it's all a matter for the Foreign Ministers Council to settle. This is a look into the background of the Berlin situation while the United Nations Security Council, over Russian protests, seeks a solution. Later stories this week will tell how Berliners are living and describe the ideological warfare in Berlin.)

Freshly grated coconut is delicious served with curry, or with plain cake or cottage pudding and lemon sauce for a dessert.

It began around a conference table in London in 1944. At the table was the European advisory commission set up by Russia, the United States and Great Britain. Victory was in the air. Soviet armies were advancing on Germany from the East. The Western Powers had smashed into France and stood on the German borders. Allied air bombs shook the Reich from end to end. Berlin was not the least of the targets.

Russia, the United States and Britain were united with a common aim—to smash Germany. The watchword was cooperation. The men around the table set up lines for the occupation in Germany without too much trouble.

Then it became a question of which city should be the seat of government for the victorious powers. The Russians wanted Berlin—which was deep in their assigned zone. The Americans were opposed. First, they felt centering of German activity around the traditional capital would revive German nationalism. Second, they felt a harder city which required no special corridors would be better.

The Russians insisted on their choice. It seemed not too important at the time, when all stress was on cooperation. So, the West gave in. Berlin was set as the Allied capital. U.S. State Department realists said specific and formal agreements should be drawn up providing means of getting in and out of the city through the Soviet-occupied zone.

The American representative, Ambassador John Winant, demurred. He said it was more important to show good-will to the Soviets than haggle over specific agreements. He won out. The right of the Western Powers to be in Berlin as occupying powers was clearly established by the London agreements. The getting in and out was left to the good-will of the Russians.

Finally, U.S. General Lucius D. Clay and British representatives worked out agreements with the Soviet Commander on moving Western troops to the city and supplying them. The Western Allies were given the use of one railroad and the international highway between Berlin and Helmsdorf, on the British zone border.

Subsequent four-power agreements provided air corridors and worked out the exact number of trains to be moved over the rail lines daily. The Western Powers undertook to feed the hungry population of their sectors as well as their occupation troops. The Russians agreed to this.

These agreements were clear and worked for nearly two years with only minor difficulties.

Rural Common Sense

By SPUD JOHNSON

Recent editorials in the Florida Times-Union, one of our state's leading newspapers, called attention to the rapid growth of the Men's Garden Club of Jacksonville and expressed the opinion that the increasing interest among men in gardens, home grounds, and in improving the attractiveness of the community in general would result in much good for Jacksonville.

With more than 200 members now, the Men's Garden Club, inspired and urged on by the women's garden clubs, is striving toward two very worthwhile goals. First, its members are going to do all they can to improve their own home grounds and gardens, and second, they are going to coordinate their efforts with those of the women's garden clubs "to make Jacksonville the most beautiful city in northern Florida."

There was a time when garden clubs generally were considered organizations for women, but it's different now. Rightful and logical, the women have come to the conclusion that the men should be as much interested in having attractive home grounds and a beautiful city as the members of the fairer (but not weaker) sex. The men not only can do some good work in this field, but the work itself, after devoting most of their time to business and "making a living" is a good hobby or diversion and also offers many of them much-needed physical exercise.

Men's garden clubs are now functioning and doing good work in several Florida communities, including West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Miami, Gainesville, Jacksonville, and other cities, and the result is all to the good for the members, their communities, and the state as a whole. This does not mean that the men will ever equal the accomplishments of the women in garden club work, but it does mean that the women are getting very valuable help along this line.

Hints To Housewives

NUTRITION-WISE COOKING: When a housewife's cooking is needlessly wasteful of vitamins and minerals that fresh foods offer, it may take heavy toll of what the food can contribute to health and well-being. To help answer the big question, "What constitutes good cooking from a nutritive standpoint?" a group of food nutrition specialists in the U. S. Department of Agriculture have systematically cooked some familiar foods in family-sized quantities.

These specialists of the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics have boiled, baked, fried, and used other common cookery methods suitable to the foods under test. Before and after cooking, they checked up on 12 nutrients, including not only vitamins sensitive to heat, air and water, but also minerals that escape into cooking water and the ash and mineral content of the

RELEASED LAST DECEMBER after thirteen years and nine months in prison, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynkoop, 77, who was convicted in 1933 of murdering her daughter-in-law, is given a lie detector test by Dr. Orlando Scott in Chicago. Dr. Scott said the tests, recorded on his own invention, the "psycho-detectometer," proved "without a doubt" that she was imprisoned for a crime she did not commit. Authorities said the State will take no official cognizance of Dr. Scott's test. (International Soundphoto)

M. Louis, who just returned from Paris, says "there is no short hair in Paris. Even the chic models of the haute-couture have long hair. It is combed in an imitation of the short coiffure. When they model small clothes and side swept-berets, they twist their hair into buns over each ear or bring all the hair to one side for a sleek effect."

Beet cups make an attractive addition to a summer salad plate. To prepare them, cut a slice from the bottom of each beet so it will stand straight. Then scoop out center from the top to make a hollow. Fill hollow with finely diced celery mixed with cooked green peas, salad dressing and seasonings. Leftover meat from a veal roast may be used to stuff green peppers; add them to a cream sauce and season with salt and pepper and grated onion, top with buttered crumbs. Leftover rice may also be added to the stuffing if desired. Add a little Worcestershire sauce and finely grated parmesan to the gravy that is prepared to accompany veal cutlets.

Symington Cites Need Of Having Best Aircraft

Whitney Outlines Future Plans Of Air Force At ARA Meet

ORLANDO, Oct. 15, (AP)—Merger of the Air Force Assn. and Air Reserve Assn. was discussed this morning at the ARA convention session here, but a vote on the proposal was delayed until tomorrow morning.

ORLANDO, Oct. 15, (AP)—Just having the most planes isn't enough, Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington said today.

"It would be disastrous to maintain obsolete planes equipped with ineffective weapons, even in numbers many times greater than the force of any other nation."

That is the way he summed it up in an address prepared for the convention of the Air Reserve Association.

"We must have the best," Symington said. "What makes it hard is this: the nature of the military airplane is such that generally, a combat plane is to a degree obsolete from the moment it goes into the air. Luckily for us, these conditions exist for other countries as well as ourselves."

"In airplane production policy, we face perhaps the most difficult problems involved in developing air strength. We cannot freeze a design, say to ourselves, 'this is it,' and turn out thousands of the models. Other nations are moving ahead hour by hour with new designs and we must not be left behind."

Symington said the regular Air Force has first priority in planning, the Air National Guard second and the Air Force Reserve third.

It was decided that the Guard should be trained and equipped to augment the regular Air Force immediately in any "mobilization day," the secretary said, adding: "The M-day force mission is plain. It must absorb the first blow against the nation and launch the counter-attack. The reserve's job is to step into the line and fill the gaps."

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Asst. Secretary for Air, outlined here yesterday Air Force plans for wedding regulars and reserves into a "balanced, smoothly running machine."

Speaking to Air Reserve Assn. members attending the three-day national convention, Whitney said the blueprint for fitting reservists into the Air Force structure is based upon "past experience, future contingencies and drawn within the framework of available funds."

"We think it is, above all, realistic," she added. Mentioning the "extremely limited" aircraft assignments to reservists in the past, Whitney said prospects are somewhat brighter. "Funds have been allocated to the Air Material Command to provide for the out-processing from storage of more than 400 tactical type aircraft."

Delivery of these planes to the Reserve, he stated, will assist in the training program.

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15—(AP)—The gal with the most famous figure in the world tells how to save yours: Dance!

"I've found the best way to take off weight is to dance," said Betty Grable, "The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend." A catch phrase that has become one of her current film, "Frosted Sugar," she ran it up.

"About 10 years ago, I started putting on a little weight in places, because I hadn't been dancing. So I took a few aerobically lessons and the poundage came off in no time."

Betty assured that you don't have to throw yourself around the living room if you're not the adagio type. Any kind of dancing will help.

"It's important to start dancing when you're young," she added. "I began taking four lessons a week when I was five. It helps you in more ways than just your figure. Dancing gives you grace. Because I started it early, I never went through the awkward age." However, if the Grable figure ever got out of hand, she'd just let it. "I'd just have to get fat, because I'm too lazy to do exercises," she said. "And if dieting made me unhappy or irritable, I'd say to heck with it."

There's no danger of such a catastrophe at this point. Her 112 pounds is spread admirably upon her 5 feet 3 1/2 inch frame. Here's how it all adds up, at latest count:

Bust—36 in.; waist—23 in.; hips—35 in.; thigh—19 1/2 in.; calf—11 in.; ankle—7 in.; shoe—4 1/2. The girl who puts on Betty's Stanwyck (Sorry, Wrong Number) and Chiva DeHavilland ("Snake Pit") into cinch Academy body makeup had an interesting commentary on the famed frame. "Everyone talks about Betty's figure," she said, "but no one mentions her feet. She's got perfect feet."

Now I'll bet that's something you've never noticed. Short takes . . . Director Anatole Litvak is popular with the ladies. He has directed Barbara Hutton's film "The Sign of the Cross" . . . Dennis Morgan will get a chance to coar off some real opera as the singer in "Serenade" . . . "Confession" . . . The two Taylors (Liz and Bob) in "Confessions" . . . Five different books are being printed to help lullaby "Joan of Arc" . . . Don't feel sorry for Garry Moore. He won't have to make good the 30th he claims he mistakenly gave to Mrs. Betty Noyes on take it or leave it. P.S., she's from Inglewood, no, San Diego, Garry.

Polk Was Killed By Reds, Athens Newspapers Say

Papers Assert Greek Government Will Announce Same Charge

By JUDSON O'QUINN
ATHENS, Oct. 15, (AP)—Athens newspapers said today the government will announce in Salonika Sunday that Greek Communists killed CBS correspondent George Polk.

The Ministry of Justice ordered legal action against four newspapers for violating a ban against publishing stories on the Polk case. The conservative newspaper Embros said Justice Minister George Melas had requested that publication of the story be held up pending official announcement by Melas and Constantine Rentsis, the minister of public order.

However, three other Athens newspapers—Oi Karoi, the organ of Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris; Acropolis and Eleftheris—carried virtually the same account of the killing. One newspaper carried an artist's conception of the crime.

For nearly two months Greek police have held for questioning, without charges, an avowed leftist newsman, Gregory Staktopoulos, and his mother. Embros reported recently that Staktopoulos met Polk before the CBS man's disappearance.

Polk's body, with a bullet hole in the head, was found floating in Salonika Bay last May 16. The 34-year-old Fort Worth, Tex. correspondent had been missing from his hotel room for a week. He was reported to have told his colleagues he intended to try to interview Communist Markos Vafiadis, the Greek Guerrilla leader. When Polk's body was found the hands and feet were bound tightly with coarse hemp rope. The muzzle of a gun apparently had been pressed close to the back of his skull when he was shot.

The case received wide attention. Maj. General William J. Donovan, former head of the United States Office of Strategic Services, came to Greece to investigate as special counsel in the case for the Overseas Writer's Committee.

For the past month publication of developments in the Polk investigation has been banned in Greece.

The chief editor of Embros said he told his story of the Polk case to Melas and that the latter did not deny it.

A-Energy Control

Waymack went on, "are various: 'One is the tendency for secrecy in government to creep, to cover ever more and more. Security' is a wonderful cloak. 'Another is the security-through-secrecy idea; it is so easy to grasp, it is so tempting as a retreat from complexity. 'Another is the fear psychosis to which timid public servants can react by 'playing it safe' always. 'Underlying all these reasons and others there is the want of public education as to what this problem is.'"

Waymack noted that Germany and Japan relied on secrecy to develop blitz warfare, "better airplanes and better torpedoes and two 65,000-ton battleships with 18-inch guns."

The fact that their experience was unsuccessful "may be irrelevant or may not be," Waymack said. But he added that those examples are "Not comparable with what major reliance by America on secrecy in atomic energy could develop into."

"If the nation in effect comes to rely on secrecy above progress for security," Waymack declared, "it means that fewer and fewer will participate in progress. 'What becomes of the principle and reality of Democracy if the people as a whole know nothing as to where they stand securitywise, as to what is being planned and done and why, and even as to what it is that they must themselves be prepared to meet and deal with?"

Waymack said "fifth columnism" is a reality that cannot be dodged. While the Army was in charge, he said, some 600,000 people worked at one time or another on the A-bomb project and the commission itself now has some 60,000 workers "subject to very thorough background investigation."

"The net of it is," Waymack continued, "that for the first time in our history we have in the files of government confidential dossiers about a significant number of our people, a number that grows daily. The personal histories on file have to do not with loyalty
