BOTH SIDES IN WEST VIRGINIA CLAIM VICTORY

Hoover Opposition Is Elated Over Result Of Election Which Named Favorite Son

Secretary's Side Happy At Result

Governor Smith Comes Out Of Election In Strategic Position

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(INS)—All hands claimed a measure of victory today in West Virginia's presidential preference primary. The "A. I."s against Herbert Hoover were encouraged over his defeat by Senator Goff, favorite son candidate, by a margin estimated at between 12,000 and 15,000. It received this morning that the Secretary of Commerce, who has promised to sign a bill which would give the delegates, can be stopped at King City. They plan to pass the "Hoover" bill, which would give Hoover the nomination, but they are not sure they will do so.

Hoover nominees refused to be publicly discredited, claiming that they will have at least 150,000 votes in West Virginia. The result is not bad for Hoover, they claim. They believe that they will get a majority of the votes. Hoover's defeat is a blow to the Hooverites, but they are not sure they will do so.

The result was not a revelation of the strength of Hoover's support in West Virginia. It was a surprise to many who had expected a Hoover victory. The result was a surprise to many who had expected a Hoover victory.

CARLTON GETS BIG OVATION AT MEET IN MIAMI

Senator Pat Whitaker, Tampa Man And Supporter Of Oppons Hathaway Loses His Nerve After Crowd Shows Enmity

Looks Nervous As Rally Progresses

West Coast Candidate Covers His Platform Before Large An Enthusiastic Audience

MIAMI, Fla., June 1.—A crowd that filled the front park to capacity here tonight to hear Doyle Carlton, candidate for Governor, showed such an unkindly disposition toward Senator Pat Whitaker of Tampa, who had announced he would attack his record, that the Senator decided it better not to deliver the attack after all. Senator Whitaker was very apparently ill at ease during Carlton's address, as he listened to the repeated applause and the ovation at his class which lasted for several minutes. He marked the crowd's disfavor for James M. Carson of Miami, when Mrs. Gertrude B. Fuller, his representative, was repeatedly interrupted with roars of disapproval and jeers for Carson.

Mrs. Fuller had got well under way when a shower interrupted, driving the crowd to cover. A big portion of it came back, however, and called loudly for Senator Whitaker. He stood on the platform for some time, but when he came forth from the recess of the stand, where he had taken refuge from the rain, he did not make the "hoos," he said and the crowd of "hoos" for Carlton" a being in his favor. Back again he went into the recesses of the stand, but he decided not to face the crowd again. He tried to get away to the radio studio, but he was refused and he had to stand before the audience for some time before he could get away.

There was a wild rumor of an explosion from the crowd as Judge James F. O'Connell, who introduced Carlton, explained over the "hoos" that Hathaway's record was not so good as he had been made out to be. Carlton had been afflicted with the "hoos" since he had been elected Governor. He had been elected Governor of Florida in 1920, but he had not done so well as he had been made out to be.

Carlton's address was the most comprehensive of his campaign, covering all points upon which he is basing his campaign. Mrs. Harriet E. Works, president of the Women's Voters League, presided at the meeting and opened the program by asking that the audience kindly allow Mr. Carlton to finish and not, as on the occasion of his former appearance here, shut down his opponents.

Collision Happens Off Vineyard Sound

Details Of Crash Are Meager; Cause Of Mishap Mystery As Clear Moon Was Shining

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., June 1.—(INS)—Between six and nine men, it was believed, were to their doom in the waters of Vineyard Sound off East Cape early today when the freighter Kershaw, Boston to Norfolk, Va., was rammed at the bottom by the Dollar liner President Garfield, enroute to Boston from New York, as part of a war emergency.

A late wireless message from the President Garfield states that 29 survivors of the crash were aboard. Six were reported missing. The full complement of the Kershaw, however, was 35 officers and men.

The President Garfield, carrying passengers, reported she was only slightly damaged and was proceeding to Boston. The Kershaw was reported to have sunk in the waters of Vineyard Sound. The cause of the collision was a mystery. The moon was shining brightly at the time of the collision.

WRECKING CREW DESTROYS FORT LONG IMPOTENT

One of France's "Impregnable" Fortresses Which Proved To Be Harmless in War Is To Make Way For Industry

WASHINGTON, June 1. (INS)—One of France's "impregnable" fortresses—these massive fortifications surrounding the town of Maubeuge between Paris and Brussels—has been attacked this day by a wrecking process to make way for growing French industry.

The story of the gallant fighting around Maubeuge in the Franco-Prussian war and of the worthlessness of the great pile of cement and granite when the Germans swept through Belgium and northern France in 1914 is told in a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society.

"Maubeuge lies almost on a direct line between Paris and Brussels and is just three miles within the French border," the bulletin said. "It was long recognized as a strategic point at which to obstruct the advance of hostile forces, striking down from the north toward the French capital."

In the early days of the Franco-Prussian war, the town of Maubeuge was the most important of military activities. The town, produced Vauban, at once the world's master fortress-builder, and besieger. He constructed a chain of forts across northern France and considered Maubeuge one of the most important.

Vauban's most valuable legacy to military engineers who have attacked the "entrenched camp," a great central fortress ringed round with detached forts. The Franco-Prussian war of 1870 emphasized anew the importance of Maubeuge, and after the conflict France made of the place a striking example of the "entrenched camp."

At the beginning of the World War, it was thought that Maubeuge would stand like a rock. But the fortresses were built to combat gunpower. The terrific detonations at Liege and Namur, where the huge German siege guns poured tons of high explosive on other "impregnable" forts sounded the doom of all fortifications of this class.

Fell Before Germans

After the Belgium forts fell the retreat passed Maubeuge and left it like an island in the advancing German stream. With its 40,000 men Maubeuge held out for 11 days.

"Modern military engineers believe that they have developed a defensive system much more efficient than that of Vauban and his school," the bulletin said. "Mobile is the latest slogan. In the place of the fixed forts, the present day defender will pin his faith to great guns mounted on railway carriages, which can pour out high explosives from one location today and another tomorrow. This mobile system is used by the United States in some of its important coast defenses."

Maubeuge, with the destruction of the forts, becomes an open town with a population of 20,000 lies in a great industrial region.

Memorial Overseas Association gave the Paris branch of the American Legion one dollar for each American soldier's grave to defray the cost of decoration.

Each one of the six American war cemeteries was visited by a delegation that placed flowers upon the mounds. Several delegations also visited the 140 isolated graves spread out through France along what was once the battle-front. Crossed American and French flags were placed upon each grave as well as the flowers.

At 10:00 A. M., there were simultaneous religious ceremonies at the American pro-cathedral on the Avenue George V., and at St. Joseph's Church on the Avenue Rich. After the services at the churches the color guard united and marched past the Arc De Triomphe where Myron T. Herrick, the United States Ambassador, placed a wreath on the tomb. Here at the tomb, Departmental Commander Julian Thomas, of the American Legion, placed a wreath on behalf of the Legion.

THURSDAY, MAY 31.

Men who object to police court stories are men who anticipate being in them.

A copy of "Our Dumb Animals" has found its way to our exchange table. No, it was not Catts' campaign propaganda.

Another reason some of our politicians are not running for the presidency is because they prefer to spend their winters in Florida.

Everyone should turn out Saturday night for the final rally of the local office seekers. The meeting will be held in the City Hall.

The Seventieth Congress has adjourned and there are now a thousand more laws to be observed. What chance has a man got?

Senator Walsh, Senate investigator, calls the Teapot Dome deal the most "contemptible private steal." Oh, mercy! Stud-slinging!

Twenty-four carlots of tomatoes were shipped recently from Plant City in three days. The price varied from $1.75 to $3.00. Agricultural Florida!

Senator Taylor says he is not attacking any of his opponents. No, and none of them are attacking him, probably because they know he hasn't a chance of election.

According to a poll of the Jacksonville Journal majority of the newspaper editors of Florida are for Fons Hathaway, but we hope it isn't because Fons has so much more money to spend for advertising.

Yes, MacKenzie hits about as hard as an infant in swaddling clothes. Does MacKenzie think the people are going to take his word against Carlton's affidavits? —Sarasota Times.—Same situation here.

Mr. Catts complains that the newspapers are not fair. If not supporting gambling and immorality and being opposed to the rank and file demagogue that ever stumped a state, is not being fair, then we're it.

The opposition is trying to prevent the nomination of Herb Hoover by saying that the South would never vote for him because he is a "nigger lover." The South would never vote for him anyway, because the South always votes according to the dictates of northern Democrats.

Here's what the Orlando Reporter Star says about Doyle Carlton: "That Doyle Carlton is a clean-cut, courageous and capable man must be true. Throughout a long and strenuous campaign no man has dared to attack his record either in private or public life."

If Doyle Carlton is indulging in personalities, as the frightened Hathaway followers contend, why doesn't he tell something about that automobile wreck Fons had early in the campaign? In fact, we haven't heard Doyle say anything about the Crown Prince's personal life.

Two Tampa flappers were hauled in by the police and sent home when they were caught, walking down town without any stockings. That's right, they should be made to wear something.—Eustis Lake Region. Why be so old-fashioned? —Gainesville News. That's the way it goes, Mac. The minute a man gets married he immediately begins to get old-fashioned about such things.

The most interesting development in the political situation for the week is the announcement that Dr. Lincoln Hulley, president of Stetson University, will take the stump to advance the candidacy of Doyle Carlton. And the fact that he is willing to campaign for a former Stetson boy because of friendship and admiration for him, and not because he has more weight with those who have been his boss all the hot days of the Hathaway lead speakers tour, is a good sign.

This So-Called Weaker Sex

In a day of jazz and bobbed hair there are a number of solemn-faced gentlemen who hark sadly back to the pioneer days when "wcmnan's place was in the home" and when it was unadvisable for her to go forth into the business world to support herself or her children. There are few places in the U. S. A. where the pioneer days still linger, but British America, far richer in open spaces, is still partly early Victorian, so far as the luxuries of civilization are concerned. And it was from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, one of the outposts of Canadian civilization, that Mrs. Peter Storm drove a motorcycle twenty-five hundred miles to Toronto to answer a call of distress from her son. Twenty-five hundred miles, or thereabouts, a little farther in British America than anywhere else on this continent. Her ride was a long and lonely one, over desolate stretches of prairie and through still more desolate regions of scrub pine. She must have ridden hundreds of miles on end without meeting a human being. Yet she did only what many a pioneer woman has done before her, except that her mother or grandmother would have gone horseback instead of on a motorcycle. If woman's place were in the home in our neighbor to the north, and if it had been in the home in the country in the days of '49, the present generation would have had a far less valuable heritage of health and will power.—New York Herald Tribune.

"Don't Go Back!"

History recounts the utterance of many potent sentences when the exigencies of the moment bring out the best that is in man. Putnam's "Don't fire until you can see the whites of their eyes," Captain Lawrence's "Don't give up the ship," Admiral Dewey's "You may fire when ready, Gridley," General Jackson's "You can lick your weight in wildcats" and Colonel Bee's "There sits Jackson like a stone-wall," are milestones which stand out in the minds of everyone as indicating the courage and fortitude of American leaders.

If the campaign in Nicaragua has served no other purpose in this world, and if it is another proof of the ineffectuality of Republican administration, it has served at least to add one more page of glory to the story of American deeds of heroism. We refer to Captain Robert Hunter who, though shot through the neck and head, lay on the ground and shouted to his small command of Marines, "Don't go back; go ahead!"

If all of us, occupied more or less with peaceful pursuits, could adopt some such slogan as that, we would find it would help tremendously when slumping business slams us on the head, when thoughtless friends shatter our heart with the shrapnel of rumor and lies, or when any failure of one kind or another knocks us down and leaves us flat on our back. "Don't go back; go ahead!" You can't keep a good man down; and you can't hold an American Marine back.

On Top Of The World!

The fate of the dirigible Italia, either sitting somewhere on top of the world or drifting helplessly over the trackless wastes of the Arctic regions may never be known. Overdue now for nearly a week, General Nobile and his intrepid crew of seventeen men have been the objects of great interest and of sympathy manifested by practically all the people of the world.

Whether the giant airship is being wafted about by every puff of changing breeze or whether it is down somewhere upon an icy resting place, is a problem of mere speculation. In either case the plight of this unfortunate expedition is one, the continued contemplation of which is not conducive to peaceful sleep. We cannot imagine a situation which would try the heart of man more than the one these Italian explorers may now be experiencing.

We have read harrowing stories of shipwrecked sailors drifting about in open boats or marooned on some lonely island; but the ocean is small and well travelled compared to that inaccessible and uninhabited frozen tract of the far north. To be stranded there would be to suffer intense cold, to stare at a glazed expanse with only an occasional polar bear or seal to break the monotony; and to know that if help is coming it is only by the merest chance of fortune that it will be successful.

But being, of necessity, men of courage and dauntless spirit whose foresight caused them to be equipped with all manner of devices to meet every contingency that might arise, the world is clinging to the hope that in some way this beleaguered band will work out of a predicament which to say the least, is very dark. To be "sitting on top of the world" in ordinary parlance, express a condition of infinite satisfaction but in the case of the dirigible Italia it expresses anything but.

SANFORD FORUM

Editor, The Herald: The brightest hope for the agricultural future of Florida—and consequently, her real future prosperity—rests in the result of the desperate and determined fight being made by the citrus growers of the State, for a genuine growers organization, owned, controlled and operated by the growers themselves, with the Clearing House idea predominant.

There is no great industry that has been handled with so little regard to business principles as the farming industry in general and the Florida fruit and produce industry in particular. Farmers need no legislative relief from the Government, except a reasonable protective tariff; what we need is the same kind of organization and control of our products that other big business enjoys. This can be brought about only by ourselves through just such an organization as the citrus growers, represented by the committee of 50, and the fearless fight being made by their spokesman, Judge Walker and Mr. Corey, for the signing up of the growers, marks the beginning of a new era in the agricultural industry in Florida; just what all thinking growers have longed for during the past 20 years.

A very large percentage of the growers are, and always have been more or less dependent upon shippers and marketing agencies for finances with which to operate their farms and groves; and for this reason have not been able or willing to make this independent stand. But now comes the Florida United Growers, Inc., headed by some of the biggest, and best men of the State, organized for the purpose of relieving these growers from this embarrassment. All of these activities constitute a long step forward for the citrus industry of Florida.

But, how about the celery and trucking industry? What about a Clearinghouse plan to establish standardization of grade and pack, Nation wide advertising, and a reasonable control over the flow of Florida celery into the markets of the World?

At present, some six large shipping agencies at Sanford market practically the entire celery crop. These agencies are strong, competent and reliable business organizations, thoroughly experienced in the marketing of produce in general and celery in particular. Several of them consist of growers organizations. They provide funds to assist a large number of growers in producing the crops and their charges are not inconsistent with good business. We have no quarrel with them. Never-the-less, they are in competition with each other in the markets of the country with the growers celery. Each agency does its best to get all the money it possibly can for its growers, but operates independently and in competition with every other agency. This is not good business for the growers.

How beautifully the clearing house idea could be worked out in the celery deal here, and with very great advantage to the producers, and no loss to the marketing agencies. Every thinking grower realizes this, but legality is

IOWA DIVORCES

MIAMI HERALD

Iowa might be regarded as a typical Midwestern state. It has no tremendously large city, the largest being Des Moines with about 130,000 inhabitants and no other with more than 100,000 and only half a dozen with more than 25,000. Consequently the figures just issued by the census bureau concerning marriage and divorce in Iowa are worth studying.

There were 8.68 marriages per 1,000 population in Iowa in 1927, compared with 8.65 the previous year, an increase that was not particularly significant. In 1927 there were 1.74 divorces per 1,000 population, compared with 1.63 in 1926, an increase considerably larger than that shown by marriages. In each year there were practically one-fifth as many divorces as there were marriages. The figures for the various counties show some surprises and some things that are difficult to explain. Blackhawk county granted 171 divorces and issued 561 marriage licenses, which is considerably above the average for the state. Chickasaw county had only eight divorces while 567 couples set sail on the matrimonial sea. Why should there be more than 29 times as many divorces in the one county as in the other when the number of marriages was about the same? Neither county has a large city.

As would be expected by those who have watched the divorce figures there was a large number in Polk county of which Des Moines is the county seat. In 1927 there were 1,574 marriages there and 823 divorces, more than half as many divorces as marriages. In nearly all states the proportion of divorces to marriages is much larger in cities than in small towns and rural districts.

The contrasts in Iowa counties are striking and offer features that are puzzling. Pottawatomie county, of which Council Bluffs is the largest city, almost equaled Polk county in the matter of 1927 with only 105 divorces. One wonders why divorces are almost three times as frequent in one county as in the other. Warren county and Webster county also offer a striking contrast, the first having 302 marriages and only eight divorces in 1927 and the second having 328 marriages and 67 divorces. While there are exceptions, as a rule the larger towns have a larger proportion of divorces than the smaller places. The moral would seem to be that those who want their marriages to possess elements of durability should take up their residences in villages and avoid the larger cities.

NOTABLE CAST TO BE SEEN IN FILM AT MILANE THEATRE

Names prominent in motion pictures are lined up behind that of Bebe Daniels in her latest Paramount starring comedy, "The Fifty-Fifty Girl," which will come to the Milane today. James Hall plays the male lead opposite Miss Daniels and rejoined the start for this picture after an absence of four months. His last previous appearance with Miss Daniels was in "Swim Girl Swim."
Hall is a former New York stage player and, in motion pictures, has played opposite Miss Daniels in "Sensation" and "She's a Shock." He made his screen debut with Miss Daniels in her picture, "The Campus Firt." Hall returned to the Paramount studio for his part in "The Fifty-Fifty Girl" after playing several engagements with other film organizations. He recently completed an important role in "Hell's Angels."
One of the leading male roles is taken by William Austin, comedy screen comedy man. The featured Paramount player recently completed an important part in Clara Bow's picture, "Red Hair," and it was largely through his exertions that he was chosen for the important role in "The Fifty-Fifty Girl."
George Houston, noted in the "Hollywood" world, is teamed with Johnnie Morris, in an important comedy role and John O'Hara is also featured in the cast.
The picture was taken from an original story by John McDermott and was directed by Clarence Ralston, who recently completed work with Clara Bow in "Red Hair."

MRS. OWEN WILL POLL LARGE VOTE

It is not unreasonable to say that 80 per cent will be in the Owen column. The estimate for Duval county was given to the Journal by one of the most conservative men of the county whose political prognostications in the past have established his reputation. Members of the Duval County Ruth Bryan Owen Club declare that her majority will be much larger.
The survey shows a number of interesting items, among them that the number of qualified voters in the district totals 109,965, nearly three times the total number of votes cast for both congressional candidates in 1926. It will be remembered that the 1926 returns showed Mrs. Owen in the lead of her opponent until Duval County 24 hours after the polls had closed. Possibility of this being the first time for a woman to be elected to Congress by the largest majority ever given a congressional candidate in the history of Florida and will poll over 20,000 more votes than her opponent, according to a survey of the Fourth Congressional District which has just been completed by editors of leading papers in the 18 counties of the district, says the Jacksonville Journal today. Her majority, if estimates of these editors are to be taken at face value, will total more than the total vote given her, or her opponent, in the 1926 campaign when she lost the nomination by but 774 votes.
Fifteen of the eighteen counties of the district will give Mrs. Owen upwards of 300 votes, the survey shows. The three counties which have been placed in the doubtful column are Ocala, the home county of Mrs. Owen's opponent where it is said that there are 3,000 qualified voters; Okechobee, an adjoining county to Ocala, where there are 1,500 voters and which Mrs. Owen lost by 48 votes in 1926; and Flagler, which polled 367 votes in the 1926 primary. A belated report says she will carry Flagler "by a safe majority."
According to the report received by the Journal, Duval, St. Johns and Volusia will give Mrs. Owen more than 19,000 majority. Duval tops the list with an estimated majority of 10,000 votes. Volusia will give her 6,000 majority, Duval 2,000 and St. Johns 1,000. Duval, the home county of Mrs. Owen, has 27,000 registered and qualified voters and supporters declare International News Service. It came shortly before eight o'clock last night, 900 miles of sea was behind the plane, before it was 1,500 miles of darkening sea as his gasoline gauges. They showed the fuel supply diminished far beyond the expected point.

"Then we thought," he said, "that our gas would hold out. Anxious moments followed. And then we found it was all due to failure of the gauges to register, and all is O. K."
From the experience, the crew turned to marveling at the sight around them— sunset in mid ocean, seen from above the clouds. It was at 8:21 that the sun dipped beyond the horizon and left an additional danger element in the darkness which engulfed the plane. That didn't worry Kingsford Smith and his companions. They enjoyed the view.
"One can't help marvel" they radiated, "at the splendid sight of clouds rolling below—solid clouds beneath us, and the sky turning to a pale hue in the West."

SURVEY REVEALS MRS. OWEN WILL POLL LARGE VOTE

INVESTIGATIONS COMPLETED BY EDITORS OF LEADING PAPERS INDICATE CANDIDATE WILL BE ELECTED BY GREAT MAJORITY

JACKSONVILLE, May 31.—Ruth Bryan Owen will be swept into the United States Congress by the largest majority ever given a congressional candidate in the history of Florida and will poll over 20,000 more votes than her opponent, according to a survey of the Fourth Congressional District which has just been completed by editors of leading papers in the 18 counties of the district, says the Jacksonville Journal today. lie office to advance themselves politically.
The governor and his cabinet should exercise strict supervision of all state affairs, he said. Eight months school with properly trained and adequately paid teachers, financing of the Agricultural Department so it can carry experimental and extension work into every county and encouragement of industry were advocated by the speaker. Study of Florida soils must follow scientific reclamation of the Everglades, he said, and reorganization of the drainage board, with local representation is necessary.
He pointed to the money being expended by one candidate in the race for governor, and said these funds were coming from the pockets of the tax payer. He reviewed irregularities he has previously charged existed in the road department and cited instances where promises of public improvement are being made to secure political support.
As a recent instance he read a copy of a telegram from Fona A. Hathaway, candidate for governor and chairman of the State Road Department, to the Tropical News of Fort Myers, saying that maintenance of the Tamiami Trail from Fort Myers to the Collier County line would be taken over shortly. This information was not given to the officials to whom it should have gone, the speaker pointed out, but to a paper favoring Hathaway's candidacy and was first read at one of his meetings.

Carson Makes Talk To Marianna Crowd For His Candidacy

Marianna, Fla., June 1.—James O'Connell, candidate for Governor, spoke tonight to a large gathering in the Jackson St. Court House. The candidate told of last night's meetings in Pensacola where Sidney J. Carson, candidate for Governor, spoke to two different audiences. "We were both advertised," Carson said, "and I was there but the old man had moved his meeting. He has never been willing to meet me anywhere since our last debate on Apr. 20. I said to Sidney here in Miami, the candidate said, all I had been saying behind his back. Old Sidney did not reply to my proof but sang songs and recited poetry and then left the platform rather than face my rebuttal."

Last night in Pensacola "Carson declared that the old man was going to run for the last time straight to political oblivion. Turning to Hathaway," the Miami man repeated his charges of graft corruption and extortion in the State Road Department, and tabled compared Briar Hill with Teapot Dome.

Carson speaks in Tallahassee Thursday afternoon and in Plant City, Lakeland and St. Petersburg on Friday. A meeting in Key West on Saturday night and a final address in Miami on Monday night will close a strenuous campaign.

Atlantic Flyers Will Enjoy Great Saftety

NEW YORK, May 31.—(INS)—The possibility of assuring a maximum of newly developed radio apparatus, will be tested out when Commander Cesare Sabelli, Italian ace, Rodger Q. Williams and Captain Pete Bonelli attempt their hop from New York to Rome, the Radio Corporation of America announced today.

The flight which is scheduled to take place within the next 10 days will have the cooperation by radio of the Atlantic coastal stations in America, in France, Spain, Italy and Portugal as well as the Azores. When the final decision to start is made, and before the wheels of the plane have left the ground, a protective network of radio communication will be spread out over the ocean by the Radio Marine Corporation. A general call will be broadcast to ships at sea to stand prepared to give every possible assistance to the plane in relaying messages.

New Metal To Aid Airplane Building Because Of Weight

BERLIN, June 1.—(INS)—A revolution in the construction of aircraft is predicted by aviation experts as a result of the discovery of a new manufacturing process by which electron metal can be manufactured in large quantities.

Electron metal is just as durable as forty per cent lighter than aluminum. This is of the greatest importance to aviation, because it reduces the dead weight of the craft and enables it to carry that much more freight and fuel. The crew of the "Bremen" which flew from Baldonnel to Greenley Island had even peeled the oranges it took along as food in order to take a few more drops of fuel along, and these additional few drops proved its salvation.

The discovery of the new process has been made by the I. G. Farbenindustrie, the great German dye trust, whose chemical laboratories have brought forth more than one revolutionary product. It has constructed special plants at Bitterfeld for production of this metal.

Electron metal was discovered before the war and has already been used in the construction of auto and airplane engines. Until the I. G. Farbenindustrie process, however, it was impossible to produce this metal in commercial quantities.

The basis of the new metal is magnesium.

Nitrate Explosive Kills Two Men And Injures 3 Others

KEARNEY, N. J., June 1.—(INS)—Two men were killed, three probably fatally injured and two missing today after an explosion that razed the nitrating plant of the Dupont Viscold Company. Buildings within an area of half a mile rocked by the forces of the blast, which blew off the roof and puffed out the walls as if they were made of paper.

A dozen doctors with a fleet of ten ambulances were mobilized and the injured were taken to the West Hudson Hospital. One man died a few minutes after being admitted. Three others lay at the point of death while physicians combed the debris for the bodies of other victims.

The dead are Jack O'Brien, of Kearney, and John King, address unknown, a Dupont employee and Davidson, of Arlington, entered a fractured skull and thigh. Two others, so badly injured that identification was impossible, were taken to the hospital. One man was killed after the firemen and Dupont employees combed the debris for the bodies of other victims.
