Advisory Committee Takes Issue With Eisenhower Road Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Commission on Intergovernmental Relations took issue today with President Eisenhower's highway financing program and called on his administration to assume full command of civil defense.

The 25-member commission, created by Congress two years ago to recommend boundary lines for overlapping taxes and encroaching governmental authority, filed with the President a 311-page document proposing:

1. Withdrawal of the federal government from some fields of taxation—leaving to the states and cities—as rapidly as tax reduction becomes possible. It named no specific taxes.

2. Federal "payments in lieu of taxes" cities and states, in compensation for real estate stricken by their tax rolls because of federal ownership.

3. Increased federal appropriations for a stepped-up, state-administered highway construction program to be financed on a "pay-as-you-build" basis, not by borrowing.

Action by Congress to transfer responsibility for civil defense to Washington from the states and cities—which the commission said are ill-equipped financially and otherwise to carry the burden.

Continuance with some important changes and curtailments, of federal grants-in-aid, under which more than two billion dollars annually is furnished to states and local governments. The federal grant, the report said "has become a fully matured device of cooperative government."

The commission headed by Meyer Kestnbaum of Chicago, president of the Hart, Schaffner & Marx, clothing and tax specialists, emphasized this view:

"A fundamental objective of our system of government should be to keep centralization to a minimum and state-local responsibility to a maximum."

It called on the government to exercise "forbearance" in encroaching on the jurisdiction of states, counties and cities, but emphasized that the states must modernize their constitutions and tax systems and reorganize their administrative machinery to serve the public better. It proposed that each state launch "a searching reappraisal of its fiscal policies."

While the states are at a disadvantage in competing with the federal government in the same fields of tax collection, the commission said, "substantial potential for more revenue exists in almost all, if not all, states."

It concluded that complete elimination of tax overlapping "is not feasible" while so large a part of national income is being taken by taxes, but went on:

"The best chance of reducing tax overlapping probably lies in a major reduction of the overall level of taxation since this may result in the full repeal of certain taxes by one jurisdiction or another."

"... Tax overlapping can best be reduced by action of the national government... When further tax reduction is possible, the commission urges the Congress to give full consideration to the problems of tax overlapping."

The report, although sprinkled with dissents, mustered a majority on all major issues. Sens. Morse (D-Ore) and Humphrey (d-Minn) contributed most of the dissents, and Morse ended by filing a general dissent.

As a "constitutional liberal," the Oregonian said, he feels the report "goes too far in playing down the doctrine of federal sovereignty." Still, he paid high tribute to the "very sincere, thorough and studious work" done by the commission. He said Kestnbaum merited "special commendation."

Kestnbaum took over the chairmanship following resignation of Clarence E. Manion, former dean of the Notre Dame University Law School. Manion had been criticized by some members of Congress for some fields.

Today's report was considered certain to disappoint such groups as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce which have been urging wholesale withdrawal of the federal government from aid programs. The chamber contends that federal grants carry with them excessive government control of local affairs.

The commission also rejected the proposal of the Conference of Governors that the government relinquish the federal gasoline tax, letting the states increase their own gas taxes as a source of revenue for highway department.

Eight commissioners joined in dissents on this point. They included Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas and four former governors - Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, John S. Battle of Virginia, Sam H. Jones of Louisiana, and Dan Thornton of Colorado.

The report lent support to congressional critics of Eisenhower's plan to finance part of a 10-year highway program through long-term borrowings. The senate has already rejected this provision in favor of a democratic plan for bigger annual appropriations; the house has not acted.

"The commission recommends," the report declared, "that the expanded highway program be financed substantially on a pay-as-you-go basis and the congress provide additional revenues for this purpose, primarily from increased motor fuel taxes."

The report also urged that "no federal aid be given for any toll road."

Two administration officials on the Commission—Secretary of Welfare Hobby and Undersecretary of the Treasury Marion B. Folsom—stated by the Eisenhower plan.

Weaknesses in Civilian Defense—conceded officially after the recent h-bomb alert exercise across the country—were attributed by commission largely to diffusion of responsibility among the 48 states and 80-odd critical target areas.

The Kestnbaum commission called on Congress to "liberalize" appropriations for Civil Defense, and to vest primary responsibility in the national government "with states and localities retaining an important supporting role."

Congress should authorize also direct dealings between the federal government and the target cities, it was stated, instead of routing the lines of responsibility through the state capitals.

Navy Blacklists Schlesinger's Uniform Cap Firm

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy yesterday blacklisted Sol Schlesinger's Ideal Uniform Cap Co. of Freeport, N. Y., because he refused to give senators his records.

Schlesinger on June 23 declined to let the Senate Investigations Subcommittee see the company's books and records. It had sought them in its search for evidence of graft in the purchase of armed forces uniforms.

Schlesinger pleaded that the records contained information which "might tend to incriminate me." But he insisted he had paid no bribes to get government contracts.

The Navy said it was canceling Schlesinger's contract to manufacture 30,000 blue sailor caps.

Nehru Arriving For Week's Visit In Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—India's green, white and gold flag waved over Belgrade today in honor of Prime Minister Nehru, arriving for a week's state visit.

The Indian leader and his party were flying in from Austria on a tour which already has taken them behind the Iron Curtain to large parts of the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

President Tito and his wife Jovanka headed the greeters.

News papers stressed the importance of the Indian leader's visit, pointing out that much has changed in the international picture since he and Tito last met seven months ago in India. The "active coexistence" policy favored by both Yugoslavia and India is "appearing on a broad international scale," they said.

During the visit, Nehru and Tito are expected to reaffirm their support of the coexistence policy which they jointly advocated when Tito was in New Delhi.

Education Board Discusses Policy

DAYTONA BEACH (AP)—Members of the Southern Regional Education Board are discussing policy at a series of closed committee meetings here.

The organization was set up seven years ago to help the 16 Southern states collaborate on an interstate program for higher education. Under the program, states whose universities do not furnish certain instruction may send students into other states for professional courses.

Gov. Frank Clements of Tennessee presided at yesterday's meeting attended by educator members who took up the needs for graduate courses in various fields. Govs. Collins of Florida and James Folsom of Alabama are expected to arrive tomorrow. Also expected to join in the discussions which end Saturday are state legislators from Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

THE BOSS OF BROKEN SPUR

STORYSIS
Rob Mallory had hoped his Western, Karry Riordan, would settle down now. But that rugged rancher, Chris Toledo, took over the management of Broken Spur when Mallory had built into a Texas cattle empire. But there was a wild streak in the boy which drove him on drinking sprees, into the arms of the earthy Lila Dawson. It was because of Lila that Chris had broken with Karry and had turned her attention to Wayne Carson, an ice-cream straggler. Trouble in the area had long threatened, for farmers had begun to nest on the land. Riordan as to rights and boundaries arose, and rage was seemed inevitable. At a local dance, physical violence fared sharply when Tim Larabee, farmer, and Karry Riordan rancher, fought for the favor of beautiful earthy Lila. And when Mallory learned of the latest "mess" involving his boy with Lila, he whipped the lad soundly, wounding his pride, driving him from Broken Spur in quest of adventure.

"We're lettin' them alone," Sandy protested. "If they'd just—" He broke off short. "What's that?"

The other two looked where he pointed. From his tone, he might have seen a snake. But a snake would have been less unexpected, and considerably less of an outrage to his feelings, than what lay plain and unbelievable before his eyes—a barbed-wire fence stretched across what was unquestionably Broken Spur range.

"Without speaking, Rob spurred his horse over to the offending object. Sandy and Chris close behind him. Two men in blue overalls dropped what they had been doing somewhere behind the fence, and strode over to the barrier as the three riders approached. Jim Larabee's steel-blue eyes, without a flicker of humor in them now, and his son's smouldering black ones, faced the boss of Broken Spur with an unflinching challenge.

"You put that fence up, Larabee?"

"I did."

"Get it down," Rob's voice laid down a flat command.

"Tim fang the answer back at him. 'We're not takin' our orders from you, Mallory.'"

"You're on my land—"

"The hell we are!"

Rob's steel-bright glances raked the younger man, then turned to the father. "Has this boy of yours gone off his head, Larabee?"

"No, Mr. Mallory. For all his unshaven cheeks and patched, sweat-stained denims, the nester wasn't without dignity. 'When we heard you were claiming our farms were on your property, some of us got a lawyer to find out just where we stood. He found out some real interesting things, Mr. Mallory. Your title's no good. The old Man said it so it is. You didn't have it to sell. The rightful owners of this land died out years ago, and it's gone back to free range. And it's ailing on this piece of it.'"

Negro Sentenced To Chair For 'Lover's Lane' Slaying

WACO, Tex. (AP)—A Negro soldier chewed gum without a flicker of expression as a jury ruled before dawn today he must die in the electric chair for the "lover's lane" pistol slaying of an airman.

The all-white, all-male jury convicted M. Sgt. Marion Washington, of Ft. Hood, of murder in the death of A. I. C. Henry Poole 21, of Spartanburg, S. C. Poole was shot the night of April 2 while reportedly defending his fiancée from a stranger who loomed out of the shadows and vowed to rape her. Poole and the girl were parked on a lonely road.

The verdict at 12:30 a. m. came after 1 hour and 20 minutes of deliberation. Defense attorney, Fred Finch, of Dallas, indicated he would file an appeal.

Washington went on trial Monday morning. Miss Dorothy Papendorf, Waco secretary who pointed a finger at Washington as the man who shot Poole, was not present when the verdict came.

Washington told cross-examiners he "never pointed a gun at anyone in my life." Asked whether he shot Poole, he replied, "No." He said he was in the Dallas-Fort Worth area when the slaying occurred.

Miss Papendorf, 20, said that as she and Poole were parked a stranger appeared, pulled a gun and demanded Poole hand over his money. Then she said, he ordered them into the woods and told her to undress.

The girl said Poole told the man: "You are not going to rape that

House Considers Move To Curtail U.S. Aid To Tito

WASHINGTON (AP)—At least two proposals to curtail aid to Yugoslavia come up for House decision today along with a number of other moves to revise President Eisenhower's foreign aid program for next year.

Rep. Edna F. Kelly (D-N.Y.), said she will propose eliminating all aid to Marshal Tito's Communist government. Rep. Fulton (R-Pa.), is sponsoring an amendment to bar shipment of latest model jet planes to Yugoslavia until American and other Allied air forces are completely equipped with them. The administration has opposed such curbs on aid to Tito.

The House resumes debate on the $3,285,000,000 foreign aid measure before considering amendments later in the afternoon. A final vote on the bill is not expected until tomorrow.

Yugoslavia has become a main target since Tito's agreement with Kremlin leaders on some major aspects of international relations. It is earmarked for 40½ million dollars in economic help, plus unspecified military funds, for the year starting Friday.

Chairman Bonner (D-NC) says the House Merchant Marine Committee will fight to require that half of all government aid goods be shipped on American vessels.

Tommy Manville To Pay $260,000 To Ninth Wife

NEW YORK (AP)—Tommy Manville has agreed to settle $260,000 on his estranged ninth wife Anita Roddy-Eden Manville.

In State Supreme Court yesterday, the 60-year-old Manville promised to pay his 32-year-old wife $140,000 in cash plus $12,000 a year for the next 10 years.

The agreement frees Mrs. Manville to go to Nevada or Florida to obtain a divorce. However, her attorney Amos S. Basel, said she "has no immediate plans."

The Manvilles were married July 10, 1952. They separated 12 days later.

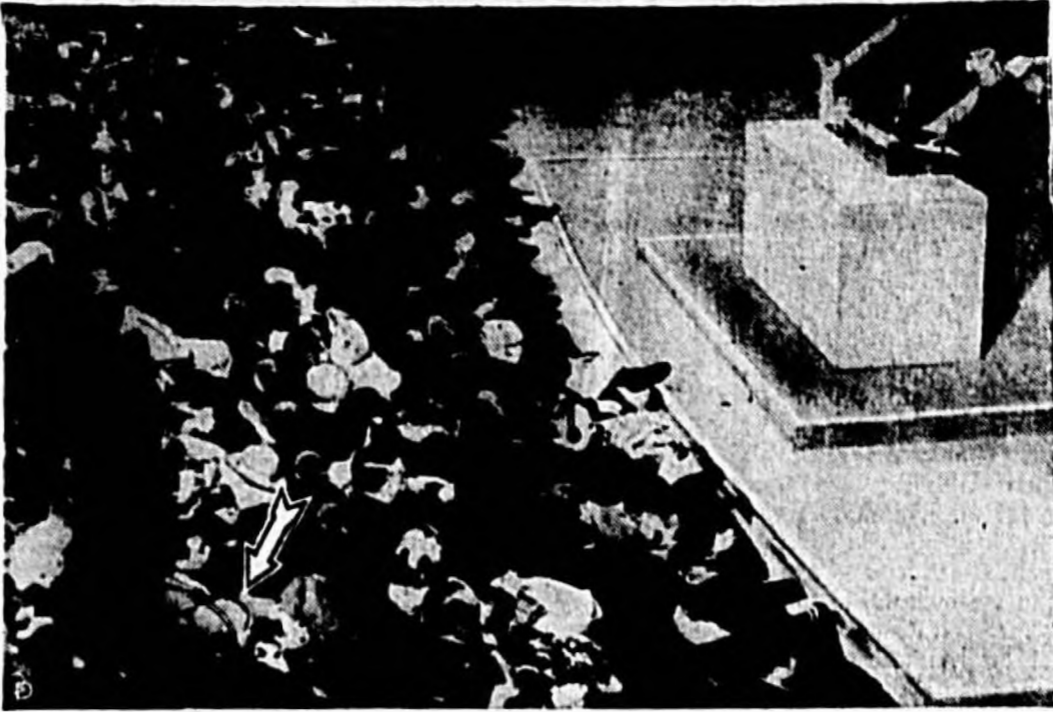

Lead is the end product of several types of radioactive decay.

The Foreign Affairs Committee has proposed eliminating this provision of current law for surplus agricultural products.

Chairman Richards (D-SC) of the Foreign Affairs Committee urged the House yesterday to continue the aid program because he said "the enormous investment which we have made in providing to other nations is beginning to pay off."

As for Yugoslavia, Richards expressed belief that "Marshal Tito is merely following his own selfish interests will take action that will benefit the United States."

This would result, he said, if the half of all government aid goods be shipped on American vessels.

Police Clean-Up Ordered In Miami

MIAMI (AP)—City Manager E. A. Evans has been told to clean up the Miami Police Department by July 20 or give up his job.

The ultimatum was delivered yesterday by Mayor Abe Aronovitz who spoke for a majority of the five-man city commission.

Aronovitz told Evans that he is being held directly responsible for cleaning up the department, recently rocked by scandals.

Only Commissioner H. Leslie Quigg, a former police chief, refused to go along with the commissioners.

The ultimatum carried a hint that Evans should prefer removal charges against Police Chief Walter E. Headley.

"They (a majority) feel if it is necessary to bring charges against the chief of police that should be done," Aronovitz told Evans.

One policeman was jailed last week on charges of being the brains behind a burglar gang and two others stand accused of taking bribes in a gambling payoff.

Pravda Attacks American Film

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda has denounced the American film "Carmen Jones." What seems to shock the organ of the Soviet Communist party more than anything else is the fact that this version of the Bizet opera is played by an all-Negro cast.

"The entire dramatic personnel consists of Negroes," the paper remarks and then goes on to give a resume of the plot as it was revised to be set in the American South.

"We see before us standard music," Pravda remarks. "How can such cheap trash be combined with the deep artistic and realistic music of Bizet?"

"Why was it necessary to turn

New Records Set By Auto Industry

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry today winds up the biggest six months in its history. Dozens of new records set since Jan. 1 attest to the hottest competitive effort in production and sales the car makers ever have known.

Final figures will show a January-June output of close to 4 1/2 million passenger cars. Retail deliveries are estimated at more than 3 1/2 million. Dealer inventories now are estimated at around 800,000 cars.

Retail sales, of course, include part of the 350,000 cars on hand Jan. 1. Something like 155,000 units of this year's output were shipped to foreign markets.

Besides new records in assembly volume, retail sales and dealer stocks, new high marks were made by most individual car makers both in output and retail deliveries.

Aside from record smashing production, the outstanding single development of this year's first six months obviously was the jobless pay program agreed upon between the CIO United Auto Workers and Ford and General Motors.

The history making program expected to be extended within the next month by Chrysler Corp, undoubtedly averted a strike that could have been more paralyzing than were the sit-downs of nearly two decades ago.

Also marking the first half of 1955 were announcement of expansion programs involving additional expenditures of 625 million dollars by Ford Motor Co. and 500 million dollars by General Motors, and substantial progress by Chrysler in its 300-million-dollar comeback program.

For Ford the additional expansion fund brought its total postwar investment for this purpose to $2,325,000,000; the GM addition brought its postwar total to four billion. Chrysler which took slightly less than 18 per cent of the 1953 car market has boosted this to an estimated 1 per cent so far in 1955.

Bird-Killing Owl Shct By Shaffer

By CLAUDE ROSE
A killer met violent death early Saturday morning on Magnolia Avenue.

Charles Shaffer, 1204 Palmetto Avenue, shot a hoot owl which had been killing small birds in the vicinity of Palmetto and 12th for the past few months. A story about Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer and the 20 pairs of Purple Martins which live in their yard appeared in Friday's edition of The Herald.

Mrs. Shaffer was awakened just before dawn Saturday by the incessant chattering of birds in her yard. She knew by instinct that they were in trouble so she woke up her husband and then went out to see what was wrong.

Spotting the owl, she told her husband and he shot it from its perch high in a tree near the Shaffer home.

The Shaffers had placed a floodlight in their yard to keep the owl away from the homes of their pet Martins after three families had been wiped out earlier this summer. Since all the young Martins are now out of the nest and none of the birds stay in their houses at night now, Mr. Shaffer had not turned on the light for the past few nights. "That must have been the reason he came back," says Mr. Shaffer.

Some 30 or 40 birds of many different species were attacking the owl when the Shaffers found it. Since daylight was approaching the owl was slightly handicapped. The birds would fly up and take nips at him but were too fast for him to catch.

"When I shot him, they even took swipes at him as he tumbled out of the tree," said Mr. Shaffer. "And then they started following me home as I carried the owl to the house. But they must have sensed that he was dead because they soon went away."

"I was expecting to find just a little screech owl," he said, "because I never heard of a hoot owl coming into the city like this."
