CHAPTER THIRTY

THINK had been other things Joan had learned, also. About fire insurance. About having a variety of stock. About advertising. About changes in public taste and interest. About reproductions which must be distinguished from genuine old articles.

"You could easily be fooled," Mrs. Cochran had warned her. "A lot of glass patterns, for instance, are reproduced nowadays. And it's hard to tell them from the original. But you'll get the feel after a while. And you'll learn by the look, too, when you've had some experience. One way you can tell—there are irregularities in old glass. Leachedness, imperfections, bubbles. Even sand and dirt are sometimes left in it. But the new stuff, which is factory made, is uniform and perfect."

She had gone on to talk about furniture, then, until Joan's head had spun. Goodness, how much Mrs. Cochran knew!

"Dear child, I should hope so. I've been in this business more than 25 years. And I've made a study of it. You'll have to, too. You'll have to read and go to art museums and exhibits and auction galleries. Take 'em all in when ever you can. And ask questions. Whenever you get a chance, ask questions."

Joan had made a rueful face at that and had told Mrs. Cochran how she had been asking questions only last week and the dealer had nearly taken her head off. "Look! she had snapped. "You want to know too much! What do you expect? A free lecture? I get paid for my lectures! I have a price for telling what I know."

"I tell like a whipped puppy," Joan had said, laughing a little. "But I was mad, too. I meant to buy something there. Only I wanted to find out more about the piece first, because I was buying for Diane's mother and it had to be authentic. Well, believe me, I walked out of there without buying a thing. What's more, I'll never go back into her shop again."

Mrs. Cochran had nodded. "I don't blame you. That dealer, who ever she was, didn't know much about building good will. You have to make your customers want to come back, you know. And the best way to do that, in my opinion, is to be honest and frank with them."

Joan had learned a great deal. Mrs. Cochran had opened up her books for her and had shown Joan how she kept accounts. It had all been fascinating. Of course, Joan had taken notes so that she would not be in danger of forgetting anything. And today she had to start her first chapter. If she did not have too many interruptions, she thought, she might get a rough draft written before Mrs. Cochran returned tonight.

But the hope was not to be fulfilled, for it turned out to be a day of activity, accidents and excitement.

First, three women came in together and each bought a trifle. Then came a middle-aged couple who said they were interested in old silver but who ended by buying a small table. Hardly had they gone when Mr. Caldwell appeared. He was a tall, stonop-shouldered, gray-haired man who seemed not to be in any hurry to make his purchase but prowled about, peering up a piece of china here, a bit of glass there, and who finally settled down in the corner to chat with Joan.

He appeared to know as much about antiques as Mrs. Cochran, and when Joan remarked that she was just a beginner in the business and was here to learn more, he spent a full half hour leading her around and explaining what the different marks meant on the underside of the china.

"I'll tell you about silver marks next time I come, if you like," he said finally. "But now I must be on my way, for my wife will be sending the police to look for me. That's the trouble with this as a hobby. It's too absorbing. It's worse than a disease. He laughed and moved to the hall to pick up his hat. "Well, good luck to you. Tell Mrs. Cochran I'm still thinking about that grandfather clock there in the corner. I'll be back soon."

"I'll tell her. And thank you so much, Mrs. Cochran," she called after him. He went out and the bell pinged into silence.

The door opened and the doorbell pinged. It was Miss Slavovskaya, the slim, small woman with a dark, narrow face and quickly moving dark eyes that were set too close together.

"Mrs. Cochran isn't here?" Miss Slavovskaya asked. "Oh! Where's Mrs. Cochran? She's gone, isn't she?"

"Yes," said Joan. "Well, I'm a regular boy. Mrs. Cochran shows me she put up all her gloves and started them in her fur coat pocket. I'll just look around for a bit, she went in, moving into the room on the right of the hall. I don't know what I want to see. I've looked around 'em heavily ringed about, like a small claw ending in one, dark red nails, reached out and casually picked up a decanter, turning it upside down to see the base. I don't know what she said, gazing up at Joan and showing very white teeth in a mechanical smile. "Go right ahead with whatever you were doing. I'll wait when I'm ready to do business," she pointed to open her capacious nothing that hung from her left wrist and pulled out her glasses case from it.

"I'm blind as a bat without these," she said, and slipped case spectacles on her nose. "Don't mind me, it takes me a while to make up my mind."

"Oh, that's all right. Take your time," Miss Slavovskaya moved on between two tables where silver spoons and small glass salt dips were spread out in rows, each with a label with a price under it. She examined them all, her tips purred.

"Mrs. Cochran ought to put her souvenir spoons," she said. "Nobody wants them much any more. That's a nice set upon but the gold's worn off. Anyway, it's too high-priced for me."

She nipped up a shoulder and walked casually to the cherry corner cupboard, which she opened. "What have we here?" She inspected a few articles with a bored air. Finally she picked up the Dresden trinket box and turned it over.

"I'll take this little china box," she said finally and dropped it into her bag with a careless snap that made Joan stifle a gasp. "Don't you want me to wrap it for you?"

"Oh, no, you needn't bother. It isn't worth much. But it's the kind of thing that will go quickly in the Christmas trade."

"It's worth twenty-five dollars," Joan said.

"Oh, no, my dear. It's not. It's only worth five."

"It's marked twenty-five."

"You're mistaken, I assure you. The ringed mark, with its red-tipped clawlike fingers, reached back into the bag and took out the box again. "See? That's a five on the bottom there. Not twenty-five."

"Let me look. I was sure," Joan reached out a hand and obtained possession of it, her heart beating fast. Sure enough, there was only a figure five to be seen on the bottom.

"There's a mistake," she said, lifting her head and looking quickly at Mrs. Slavovskaya. "This is worth twenty-five dollars. It was marked twenty-five dollars and not an error. I know because I was looking at it."

"Miss Slavovskaya's thin lips curled in a mean smile. "Be careful, my dear. That's smart of you, but I'm just as smart. And if you think you're going to pocket a five, you're wrong. For you, I'll report you to my friend, Mrs. Cochran. I don't think she'll like it. Not a bit. Here's a five for you. Now hand it over."

The color flew up into Joan's face. Her voice stung, but she held tight to the box.

"You ruined the figure five! All the time you were talking, I saw you doing it with your thumb! You just thought because I was new here."

"Are you wanting me out of being a— Why, you impudent hussy! I most certainly will report you to Mrs. Cochran! And I shall tell her I'll buy nothing more from her while you're in the shop!"

She yanked off her glasses, tossed them into her bag, snatched it and marched in high dignity out to the hall. At the door she paused and looked back, her eyes glittering with anger.

"Are you going to make a sale for your loss or aren't you?"

"I'll sell it to you for twenty-five dollars less the discount, because you're in the trade."

"I'm not interested."

"I'm sorry."

Miss Slavovskaya hesitated. Then she shrugged. "Listen, you're a greenhorn at this game and you've got a lot to learn. One thing is that accidents can happen. I may have done that—rubbed out a number. I don't know. In the nervous type, I fiddle with things when I'm talking. I can help it. I'm nervous, like I say. And I remember now I liked the smooth feel of that porcelain." She snatched, then, finished slowly. "I'll give you twenty bucks for it," she said.

Joan shook her head. "Twenty-five less ten per cent," she answered at once. "That's Mrs. Cochran's price and she never bargains."

"You little fool! I was going to divide the difference with you. For a dollar and a quarter you lose a sale."

"I'm sorry," Joan said again.

With a muffled exclamation, Miss Slavovskaya turned, snatched open the door and slammed out. (To Be Continued.)

Troubled Tunisia Lacks Government

TUNISIA, Tunisia (AP)—Nationalist forces backed by the French government today to handle the troubled affairs.

Mohamed Salah M'Zali's call for a republic in Tunisia, which would not allow any more administrative functions for the French, with African protests. The French administrative government was spending the protectorate's funds on a stop-gap basis.

When the minister resigned June 16, they cited as the reason the return to methods of violence and the incorporation of certain groups.

The day before three pro-French leaders were assassinated. The act was blamed on Nationalist forces.

strengthen Western Europe's security against Communist forces. Eisenhower said that the goal of a German contribution to defense, "convincing that the bomb and jet treaties provide the best way."

These treaties would give West Germany self rule, set up a six-nation European army including French and German forces, and tie the whole to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

They then welcomed a statement made by the new French Prime Minister, Pierre Mendès-France, about a week ago saying that France's allies had a right to know France's answer.

In the words of Eisenhower and Churchill, the new government, "The French assurance that an end must be put to the present uncertainties."

The French government was in a hard position against any new attempt to reopen negotiation of the Bonn and Paris treaties. The communiqué recalled that "EDC" has been raised by West Germany, followed by the Netherlands and Luxembourg, and that only Italian and French ratification are needed. That of France is the last one.

Eisenhower and Churchill warned that the four ratifying nations "naturally are unwilling to disregard their previous legislative approvals, to reopen these complex questions."

The Rev. Richard O. Knight, newly appointed associate pastor of First Methodist Church, preached his first sermon in Sanford at the morning worship hour last Sunday. His topic was "The Challenge of Christianity." The Rev. Mr. Knight, whose home town is Vero Beach, was graduated from Morris Harvey College in Charleston, W. Va., and Duke University Divinity School. Following graduation from the latter school in 1952, Mr. Knight spent the summer in Vero Beach. From June until September in 1953, he was a member of a Methodist Youth Caravan in Europe. He came to Sanford from West Palm Beach where he was pastor of Mangonia Park Community Methodist Church.

spread through the city during the day as the Communist-dominated labor unions sent their members circling through the city in jeeps, shouting "Go home, Yanks!" They also fired several shots.

U.S. families kept close to their homes, but the sentiment appeared to subside after Arbenz' broadcast last night. Later Diaz told newsmen he would protect U.S. interests.

He and other army leaders declared that Arbenz must go at an all-day meeting yesterday. Then Diaz, 14, Col. Carlos Sarti, head of the National Superior Council of Defense, and Col. Enrique Parinello communicated their decision to the President.

Arbenz was reported extremely angry at their decision but finally agreed to get out after the army guaranteed the safety of himself and his family.

Arbenz announced his resignation personally in a broadcast at 9 o'clock on the government radio. He said he was stepping down "with bitter pain but with the firm conviction that the people will retain what has cost so much in the struggle of tears and blood."

"The day will come when there will be triumph for loyal Guatemalans under Col. Diaz," he declared.

Arbenz bitterly attacked the United Fruit Co. of Boston, which he has accused of backing the rebel invasion in revenge for his government's expropriation of part of the company's vast holdings in Guatemala.

Commission Extends Time Limit For Conforming To Zoning Rules

Strolling In Sanford

The City commission ended its meeting last night before 10 o'clock—something a bit unusual. Maybe it's the heat.

RECREATION ACTIVITIES— If you are a youngster 10 years or older, and you are interested in a free meal—but you've got to bring your own food—John Angel is planning a "cookout" for the summer playground participants. A bus will leave the Seminole High School at 10:30 o'clock. Friday morning for Mullet Lake park, and activities include archery, scrub-ball and the like. For convenience Angel has arranged for the youngsters bring hot dogs or sandwiches.

A dance has been scheduled for playground age youngsters Friday night at the City Hall "Cafe" beginning at 8 o'clock. A Juke-box will provide music for dancing and the affair, which is free, will terminate at 11:30 p.m.

Playground youngsters are invited to a Nature Hike set for Thursday afternoon, according to director John Angel. A study will be made of plants, birds, trees and other natural features. Those interested are urged to meet at the Elks playground at 2 o'clock.

Water skiing classes for playground youths over the age of 15 who are advanced swimmers, will begin tomorrow afternoon through the cooperation of the Elks Club, Department and the Sanford Outing and Ski Club. Youths who meet the qualifications and are interested in learning to water ski are requested to meet at the Elks playground at 2:15 p.m.

Stenstrom Is Backed As Candidate

The Sanford Herald today definitely confirmed rumors drifting about Sanford for the past weeks that County Judge Douglas Stenstrom will run for the seat of Stenstrom when a vacancy is announced.

The seat was vacated by the recent death of State Senator Lloyd P. Boyle who died of a heart ailment last month. The 55-year-old Sanfordite had represented district 37 since 1941.

Heavy support today is rallying to Stenstrom, who has been definitely emerged as a candidate for the position. "Let's keep the senatorship in Seminole County," is heard in every political discussion and thus far Stenstrom has emerged as the only serious contender from Seminole County.

1st Federal Board Declares Dividend Of Three Per Cent

Directors of the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. authorized dividend payments at the rate of three per cent a year on the savings accounts of the institution, President Howard Faville announced.

The first six months of the year, according to the association officer, have been ones of continued progress. While the final figures for the month are not yet available, Mr. Faville said that the resources at First Federal would be almost $14 million. Savings accounts have continued to increase and thus enable the association to meet the demand for home loans.

The office will be closed all day tomorrow to permit the staff to post the dividends to over 1,800 savings accounts.

GET NEW PHONE RATES The State Utilities Commission has authorized the Southern Bell Telephone Company to charge a new "community rate" for telephone service to Delray and Esplanade subscribers from the Sanford exchange, effective next billing date, according to the Association of Press.

City Manager Reshuffling Departments

City Mgr. Warren Knowles was granted a free hand last night by the City commission to go ahead with his plan for reorganizing several municipal departments.

As the City manager explained it to the body, he planned the changes in two phases—first, to combine the trash and garbage departments into one department under the classification of "refuse," and second, take all utility men from the various departments and combine them all under a unit, labeled "maintenance."

In the former, he explained, consolidation would streamline with duplication which is experienced now. Formerly, trash and garbage were hauled to two separate places for disposal, but now, with the sanitary land fill, both are taken to the same place. The refuse is all covered with dirt together in the land-fill operation.

In the latter, he explained, skilled utility men are scattered through various departments and must be borrowed back and forth when the occasion demands. Also, Knowles said, these men could work on building maintenance at odd moments.

The City manager said the plan has been in operation on a trial basis for a week and that it had worked out "very well" and that the department heads were "very satisfied." The matter will continue to be carried out on more or less of an experimental basis.

Undercover Work In Bolita Racket Brings 42 Arrests

ST. PETERSBURG (AP)—Preliminary hearing continued today for 42 men charged with lottery violations as a result of the undercover activity of Det. Sgt. Harry Dietrich.

The St. Petersburg police officer was on the stand all day yesterday telling how he pretended to go along with an offer of money, clothes, automobile and television set in return for protection of members of a two-county bolita ring.

Dietrich said the first approach was made in December by Al Pool, a St. Petersburg Negro taxi driver. The officer said Pool introduced him to Henry Trafficante, Tampa bar operator with whom Dietrich had most of his dealings.

Henry Trafficante and his brother, Santo Trafficante Jr., also of Tampa, are accused of heading the ring in Hillsborough and Pinellas counties. They are charged with operating a lottery and attempted bribery.

Dietrich said he met Santo Trafficante only once.

The undercover agent said he had a portable tape recording machine concealed in his clothing when he talked with Santo Trafficante and during some of his conversations with Henry Trafficante and Pool.

He said he received the names of 38 persons he was told were bolita salesmen and whom he should protect.

The defendants were arrested in a series of raids May 14-15 by Hillsborough county and state officers, with Pinellas officers by-passed. Most of those nabbed were Negroes, charged with aiding in operating a lottery.

Officials Face Five Charges

KEY WEST (AP)—Circuit Court met again today to take up the five charges remaining against Brooks Bateman, former general manager of the Overseas Highway and Toll Bridge District, and Alvaro Cochran, Keys contractor.

Six of 12 counts against the pair were dropped yesterday by John Marsh, Dade County solicitor assigned by Acting Gov. Johns to investigate the district's affairs.

The original information charged that Bateman and Cochran conspired to defraud the state of $10,000 and the same counts dropped last week accused of the theft of $10,000.

Cochran was charged with falsifying claims to have performed work and being a contractor for which he billed the district. Bateman was accused of aiding and abetting him by approving invoices while knowing the work had not been performed or the machinery used.

Presiding Judge Thomas S. Carr denied a defense motion to quash the entire information on grounds that Johns had no authority to appoint Marsh to the case.

Six state witnesses, most of them former toll district employees, were sworn in and both Bateman and Cochran testified in Monday County. Qualified the jury panel but no jurors were selected when court adjourned for the day.

Guatemalan Gov't Reports Col. Diaz Resigns His Regime

GUATEMALA (AP)—President Ydigoras Fournier today reported the resignation of the regime headed by Col. Enrique Diaz, who had rebelled against President Jacobo Arben Guzman Sunday night.

The announcement came after Col. Castillo Armas, leader of the anti-communist rebels, in the final formal war demand the unconditional surrender of the junta headed by Enrique Diaz.

The Guatemalan broadcast said the rebels had been ordered to lay down their arms by the president in the three-man junta which succeeded Arben Guzman.

It said Alfredo H. Monton, who was the third member of the junta headed by Enrique Diaz, now headed the new ruling group. The other two were listed as Jose Luis Salazar and Manrico Ibarra.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP)—Col. Carlos Castillo Armas' anti-Yankee rebel forces today reported they had overthrown the Guatemalan government after defeating the "provisional junta" headed by Enrique Diaz, and heading the junta gave up.

Diaz, former army chief of staff took over Sunday night after the army forced resignation of late President Jacobo Arben Guzman. The new military regime promptly outlawed the Communist Party but failed to disband the anti-Red rebel drive toward the capital from the Honduras border.

The Associated Press Correspondent Jack Rulledge, in a dispatch from Guatemala City delayed 18 hours by censorship, reported that the junta had started a roundup yesterday of Communist Party members and members of Parliament had taken refuge in the Mexican Embassy.

He said among the first acts of the military regime had been a shift in the top police command with Jose Luis Morales Melendez named to replace Enrique Diaz as chief of the civil police and J. Antonio Saravia supplanting Jaime Rosenberg as general police chief.

At New Orleans the mercury climbed to 95.

Fans Discussed At Lions Meet

At today's regular weekly meeting of the Sanford Lions Club, William Livingston, chairman of the group's fan committee, reported that he had contacted each of the three other clubs in regarding purchasing fans.

The Lions Club which originated the idea of placing fans in the yacht club will propose that each of the other clubs that use the building club in on a pro-rated basis.

Cost of the fans has been estimated at $225. Present plans which have not yet been approved by all clubs involved, call for four 16-inch fans and one 12-inch fan.

There is a possibility that the city may install all necessary wiring in the building and save the clubs approximately $10.

Today's program was presented by Marcelle, his wife Madeline and her sisters Yvette. All three received their American citizenship at ceremonies yesterday.

It was revealed at the meeting that Harold Pate, Lions Club representative for Holy State, has been elected to the House of Representatives and a seat on the Tallahassee "city council."

Temperatures During Month Aren't Unusual—Moughton

It might surprise you, but the month of June, thus far 23 days isn't particularly hotter than usual. The secret, according to E. J. Moughton Jr., our authority, is the lack of heavy afternoon showers. In fact, rainfall is only below normal.

The average high for June a year ago was 91 degrees. This month the average has been 92.

And it isn't any more humid, but the hottest day of this month was June 19, 94 degrees. Identically the first 23 days of June, 1953, there have been this month 22 days when the temperature reached 90 while seven have reached their peak in the 90's.

Total Eclipse Tomorrow To Darken Strip Of U. S.

MEETROPOLIS (AP)—A total eclipse of the sun, of a nature rare and dramatic phenomena, will cover parts of the United States and several other nations tomorrow.

A period of about three hours, the shadow of the moon will move from northeastern Nebraska across the top of the globe to India.

The shadow will plunge into the darkness of total eclipse a 70-mile-wide strip in Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Then it will sweep through Canada, Greenland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, and finally leave the earth in India.

Dr. Willem J. Luyten, chairman of the University of Minnesota Astronomy Department, says United States residents east of a line from Brooksville, Fla., through Salt Lake City, Utah, to Seattle, Wash. will see at the least a partial eclipse. If they get out of bed early enough, the eclipse will start at 5:07:07 a. m. (CST).

40-Foot Crest Is Expected

LAREDO, Tex. (AP)—Police in this border city hurriedly evacuated residents of low areas today in the face of the Rio Grande's greatest flood.

Police said an expected 40-foot crest would send flood waters boiling into the business section of this city of nearly 52,000.

Across the steadily rising ramping boundary river the twin Mexican city of Nuevo Laredo abandoned attempts to sandbag the levee. Workers started moving everything possible, including the population, to higher ground.

Police expected the waters to envelope the already closed International Bridge at any moment. Thousands of homes on both sides of the Rio Grande in the rich and fertile country of far west Texas. It is now generally believed that after a flash flood swept through Orma.

Flood stages 5 to 15 feet higher than ever before were expected for the latter of today. But an International Boundary and Water Commission (IBWC) spokesman, after a plane flight over the river, said:

"How much the river will rise after this crest passes is anybody's guess."

The IBWC had last contact with its gauging point north of Laredo, some 60 miles upstream from Del Rio.

Back of the picturesque border river's churning, debris-laden crest were shattered bridges, flooded towns and washed-out railroads and highways. Thousands were forced from their homes, but—except for tragedy—men Orma—had been no loss of life reported.

Newtown city folks quickly evacuated their homes. Farmers had been warned and plied the thousands in the Mexican hills. Much of the Mexican side of the river is lower than the U. S. side.

The rains, some up to 22 inches were spiced by fast winds. Hurricane Alice, which lashed the Texas coast, left a trail for 12 hours last Friday.

Ahead of the rushing floodwaters lay the great international Falcon from Del Rio, less than a year ago by the presidents of the United States and Mexico. It was expected to keep the dramatic floodwater from the high vegetable and citrus growing lower Rio Grande Valley and its 122 population.

For the lower valley the prospect was a blessing. Beyond Falcon Dam, the river has been healthily dry. Now the flood will be used in future months to plant the mammoth third of the orange and grapefruit groves, the valuable fruits and cottonwood area.

At least half of Ciudad Acapulco, across the river from Del Rio, was under water. Some 10 people huddled in the Federal Hill. Water, medical supplies, and clothing were being flown by the American Red Cross.

Universally named International Bridge was swept away, but the Grand Area and Del Rio.

Fifty-five miles north of Del Rio between Pedroza, Mexico, and Pecos, the raging flood beat the out of International Bridge. A winding chute a pipe cut Eagle Pass, only hospital and the last of the remaining waters and could be reached by boat.

Both the United States and Mexico hurriedly mobilized to combat the mad waters. The U. S. Army flow field kitchens, blankets, and clothing to battered towns.

Library Work To Start Soon

According to City Manager Warren Knowles the City will start renovation of the Public Library work.

Plans for the remodeling will start next week, but start work has been held up because of the flood, according to Knowles.

The city plans to refine the concrete floor, hang draperies and furnish the library with new books.

Big Turn-Out Is Not Satisfactory To John Angel—He Wants More

The annual City summer recreation program has met with more than 500 children turning out the opening day last week. Supervisors of the program's activities, which are under the direction of John Angel, Seminole High School coach and instructor, were swamped by this large number of children, but adjustments quickly were made to compensate for the turn-out. You would think Angel would be well satisfied to keep up with this terrific undertaking. Instead, he is asking for more—he wants more children.

If that's what he wants let's give him some more kids. Is your child participating in this summer program? If not, why not? Wholesome recreational and educational ac-

All-Women Safari Being Organized

NEW YORK—Any girl who fails to amuse a husband during the summer open season on beaches can soothe her pride by going to Africa and moving down an elephant.

Mrs. Beverly Putnam is organizing the first all-girl elephant safari in history. The 49-day trip, starting Sept. 10, will cost $3,120, plus $214 for a license that "allows one elephant only."

"But the ivory from an elephant ordinarily sells for about $300," said Beverly, practically, "so that about every five days the ivory will be necessary to buy an elephant gun. They can be rented."

Beverly, tall, pretty, dark-haired and 32, is no stranger to Africa. Since her childhood days in a convent, she had dreamed of adventure in far places. Last winter she threw up her job with Samsan Airways to lead a group of 14 girls on a 28-day safari to Africa.

The party, ranging in age from 27 to 60, included housewives, single girls, widows and divorcees. Two of the ladies took one long look at Africa, and headed back home. But a durable dozen stayed and had a fine time, basking away at the landscape.

"Oh—6 hunted with guns—the rest used cameras," said Beverly. She herself bagged a buffalo, a zebra, two gazelles, a wildebeest and a hartbeest.

Can a dozen or more women actually have any fun together on a safari?

"Of course they can," said Beverly. "We'll have 5 white hunters and 45 native boys in the party."

"We'll have hot water, at all times, plenty of ice cubes, we take along a refrigerator, home-made ice cream, and fresh eggs every morning. The native chef specializes in dishes such as antelope soup and gazelle barbecues."

"The first three days are rough—personally-wise. You average 50 to 75 miles a day in hunting cars, and your bottom gets real sore. The sun gets you down at first, too, and sometimes the tsetse flies are bothersome."

"But there is so much else to make up for it—the excitement during the day, the nights around the campfire, listening to the coughing of distant leopards and the howling of hyenas."

"The women soon learn to get along—if they are ever going to get along. Of course, sometimes there are some petty jealousies."

Five People Get Tar Baths In Pit

BOSTON—Five persons suffered dunking in a tar pit Sunday but none of them was worse for it yesterday.

Four-year-old John Sullivan fell in while playing at the brink of the tar pit, eight feet in diameter and about five feet deep, which had been left behind by a construction gang.

His brother Francis, 7, tried to help and also fell in.

Their mother Geraldine heard their cries and boldly stepped in and began sweeping the tar away with her hands.

Herbert Foreman, a passer-by, spotted the trio and leaped in to rescue Francis. Patrolman Louis Spina then waded in and pulled out John and his mother.

CLOTHES STOLEN

TOKYO—Down a main street of suburban Asakusa, recently paraded a line of men draped only in towels. They were walking home from the public bath house, where someone had stolen their clothes.

The 'New Look' In Farming

We hear much of the great efficiency and productive power of American industry. We do not hear as much as we should of the efficiency and productive power of American agriculture.

Farm Journal recently said editorially, "Farmers produce so abundantly that 85 per cent of the population can now choose other kinds of jobs. If farmers were not so efficient, a lot more people would have to go to work farming. This is an efficiency that since before the war has increased farm output by about 40 per cent, and does it with 17 per cent less labor."

That speaks well for the progressive spirit of the American farmer. It is also a tribute to tools and techniques, often actually revolutionary in effect, which have been his allies. Electric power has been a tremendous force for better living and work on the farm. Chemistry has provided fertilizers and weed and insect killers of remarkable potency. And the farm equipment industry has come along with machines which produce more crops at a declining cost in time and money—and which are invaluable in the equally important task of conserving the land not only for future years but for future generations.

It is no exaggeration to say that the machines and the other tools do much to make the difference between an exceedingly well-fed nation and a nation on a subsistence or a near-famine basis. This will become all the more evident as the years roll by and there are millions more mouths to feed each day.

Smathers Urges Action Against Guatemalan Reds

WASHINGTON—Senator George Smathers urged the United States today to discard any thought of "neutrality" regarding the revolution in Guatemala.

The Florida senator charged in a speech to the Senate that the seizure of the Central American republic by a handful of Soviet-trained Communist leaders meant "the chips are down in the fight against Communism in the western hemisphere."

Pointing out that the United States has spent billions to fight communism in Asia and has been on the verge of intervention in the Indo-China war, Smathers asked: "Is it not now the height of absurdity and unreason for us now to adopt a policy of non-interference, hands-off attitude?"

"This battle against Communism in Guatemala is not eight thousand miles away (as in the case of Korea) or ten thousand miles away (as in Indo-China) but is 800 miles away from our shore and 800 miles from the Panama Canal."

Smathers said his information was that battle lines were forming in Central America for a "show-down struggle which will determine whether or not some of our Communist-run neighbors will impose their totalitarian will upon a free people."

"In my judgment," he said, "the Guatemalan anti-Communist patriots go into battle with the hopes and best wishes of the majority of the American people riding with them."

Some Americans, he said, "from fear or confusion believe we should have no concern over the outcome." But many, he recalled, had criticized England, France, and India for neutrality in the face of Asiatic communist expansion and he asserted:

"The policy of neutrality has been demonstrated to be a policy of self-destruction."

"In the face of these facts, how then can we in the name of common sense and consistency fall in to the same errors when obviously the danger in Guatemala is the greatest threat to the security of

Defense Action Remains Indefinite

WASHINGTON—No howling success. That's a fitting footnote on the big Washington conference between President Eisenhower, Sir Winston Churchill, Secretary of State Dulles and Britain's Foreign Secretary Eden.

The four men, meeting when the United States and Britain are further apart than any time since the war, got together last Friday. They talked in a quiet and in private Eisenhower and Churchill yesterday issued a joint statement on their talks. It was as vague as a statement of its kind could be.

"They said they 'would press forward with plans for collective defense of Southeast Asia against the communists.' But they didn't say what kind of alliance it would be, or how it would work or even when.

"They said, in fact, they'd consider two plans for collective defense: one in case the French reach agreement with the communists on a truce in Indochina, another if they don't."

That line—no doubt, the uncertainty about a truce—made it impossible for the President and British Prime Minister to be exact on when their plans would be ready or the collective agreement could go into effect.

It might be a year. Yet, time is important. The longer the alliance or any organized opposition is delayed, the more time the Communists have to infiltrate and subvert Indochina's neighbors in Southeast Asia.

Even if there was an alliance—which seems to be all the United States can think of at the moment—it might never be able to go into action if there was no direct aggression—say by the Chinese Communist—across a frontier.

The Communists by now may look upon direct aggression as unfashionable. Why waste men, material and the chance of defeat by open attack if they can gain the same end by internal revolution?

The British, judging from the joint statement, yielded nothing and added nothing new on the problem of Southeast Asia. Eden before the Geneva conference on Indochina began April 28, said Britain would be willing to consider an alliance.

He laid down a condition: Britain would not take part in such an alliance before the Geneva conference had a chance to show whether it could achieve a truce in Indochina.

According to the language of the joint statement, Britain is still sticking to that point since the collective defense mentioned in the statement is contingent upon a final settlement or failure, in the Geneva talks.

From this it would seem that if anyone yielded in these Washington talks it was the United States, which—judging by Dulles' earlier pleas for an alliance before the Geneva conference—wanted it in a hurry.

The joint statement also talked of another problem which has been

Herlong Reports

The Army-McCarthy hearings are over. Reaction on Capitol Hill among Democrats and Republicans is "Thank goodness." The hearings have had the effect of slowing down the work of the Senate to the point where there were so far behind the House that the House leadership was contemplating a two-day recess in July in order to give the Senate a chance to "catch up." We are still trying to figure out just what was accomplished by the hearings. We certainly hope that the general public doesn't get the idea that that was a fair sample of the Congressional committee work. The big job ahead of the House includes a couple of department appropriation bills and the general farm bill. Our Committee on Agriculture still hasn't completed its work on this bill. We should complete it this week. I was successful this week in getting the Committee to write in an amendment which should be very helpful to Florida agriculture. It provides, in effect that wherever our growers of oranges and other standard vegetables voluntarily place restrictions on themselves as to the grade, size, or quality of the produce they may ship in interstate commerce, the Secretary of Agriculture shall require that any imports of the same fruits or vegetables from other countries must comply with the same restrictions. It doesn't hurt our grapefruit market, for in place of it we have high maturity standard. Before our grapefruit can ship it Cuba or the Isle of Pines is permitted to dump inferior and green fruit into the same market. A grapefruit is a grapefruit to most people. If they buy one and it is bad, they'll be afraid to buy all grapefruit. Our growers then lose because some one else ships into the United States fruit of an inferior quality.

I had limited the amendment to Florida, but the Committee liked it so well that they tentatively extended it to give it general application.

We had visitors in our Committee this week. All the 411 delegates to the annual "Can" in Washington came to see the Committee on Agriculture at work. We were delighted to have them. They asked most intelligent questions included in the from some 100 girls and a boy from Florida.

MRS. WARREN A. BISHOP

Warren A. Bishops Taking Extended Honeymoon Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Bishop are presently traveling through the New England States, Niagara Falls, and Canada on a honeymoon following their June wedding, recently solemnized in Miami Springs. Mrs. Bishop is the former Betty Jean Hayman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hayman, 2205 S. Palmetto Ave., Sanford. Mr. Bishop is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bishop, 481 Mimsia Drive, Miami Springs.

The ceremony took place in the First Baptist Church at 6:30 p. m. with the Rev. Alfred Staples officiating. The couple spoke the nuptial vows before an altar of palms banded behind candleabra and two standing baskets of chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The bride chose a gown of imported French white cotton lace over satin, fashioned in a full waisted length style. The fitted jacket featured point-on-hand sleeves, rounded collar and tiny lace buttons up the front. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a white lily with a white orchid and unusual streamers of small silver bells on ribbons. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Sister of the bride, Miss Mary Jo Hayman, served as maid of honor. Her full waisted gown of powder blue, pure silk, featured a tucked bodice and small jacket with puffed sleeves. Miss Hayman carried a colonial corsage bouquet of pink feathered carnations with matching floral piece for her hair.

Gilbert A. Bishop, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Mrs. Paul Jones was accompanied by Mrs. Walter Frazer in two traditional wedding roles.

Mrs. Hayman chose a dust pink lace albatross dress, white accessories and white orchid corsage for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Bishop wore a light dust pink lace gown with white accessories, a purple orchid, and pink straw hat with pink mist veiling.

The reception following the ceremony was held at the Miami Springs Villa. A few close friends and both families were present.

For traveling the bride was attired in a lilyacanth blue linen suit with satin trim. Her shoes and rhinestone hat were of the same shade. The outfit was accented with white gloves and a corsage of white orchids.

The former Miss Hayman attended Seminole High School in Sanford and Huntingdon College in Montgomery, Ala. She has been a stewardess and purses for Pan American Airways, Latin American Division, based in Miami, New Orleans, and Houston. The bridegroom attended the Univ. of Conn., Univ. of Miami and Univ. of Miami Law School. He is presently a Hialeah attorney partner of Bishop and Crim. He is a member of Hialeah, Miami Springs Kiwanis, Elks, Chamber of Commerce, and Dade County Bar Association.

The young couple will be at home to their friends at 358 De Soto Dr., Miami Springs, upon return from their honeymoon.

New Leathers To Appear Soon

CINCINNATI—Gaily colored leathers which can be tossed into the washing machine and even dried in an oven if you're in a hurry are being developed at a University of Cincinnati laboratory.

Key to the process is a chemical named skelt, says Dr. Fred O'Flaherty, director of the U. C. laboratory, where tanning and leather industries have centered their research.

Within 4 months, gloves and either wearing apparel from the leather may be on the market, he says.

"We have developed leather which you can put into a washing machine for 30 minutes and then dry on a line, radiator, or even in an oven," Dr. O'Flaherty says.

In addition to its washing and drying features, the new leather is said to be highly resistant to precipitation.

Eddie Fisher Rises To Top Of Ladder; Tells Background

HOLLYWOOD—It's now do you figure a success like Eddie Fisher's?

That's our topic for today. Eddie, who was born Edwin Jack Fisher in Philadelphia almost 28 years ago, is the biggest record seller today. His take may reach a million dollars this year. All this with out having been in a movie!

How has he done it?

"I've been lucky," he said. "Yes, but luck isn't everything. I suggested that perhaps the public was ready for a full voice singer like Eddie after an era of crooners."

"That might be part of it," he agreed. "I can remember when I got a job at the Copacabana in New York at 125 a week! That was eight years ago, when Sinatra was at his peak of his career, that is."

"Setting the scene. Now giving them everything I had. I can't remember when I didn't know anything about love then. People told me I should sing softer, that I ought to croon. I could not see it that way."

"Other things in my favor? I'd say timing. Timing and management. I was fortunate in coming to the attention of Mill Blackstone, my manager. He channeled my career in the proper direction, avoiding the mistakes I would have made by myself. He also steered me to Eddie Cantor, who gave me my first big break."

"I think my Army service helped me too. I look back on them as two of the best years of my life. I got to troupe, which most young people don't have a chance to do these days. I sang before all kinds of audiences all over the world. I was a GI like the rest of them, but I was on a spot too."

Much of Eddie's success is due to his choice of songs to record. He gave much of the credit to Hugo Winterhalter, the musical mind of Victor Records. For every song he puts on, Eddie said, he might listen to hundreds of prospective tunes.

Miss Violet Kess Exchanges Vows With William L. Shoemaker June 19

In a lovely wedding performed in the First Hungarian Reformed Church, 244 East Sixty-Ninth Street, New York City on Saturday, June 19, Miss Violet Kess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kess of 29-21 61st Avenue, Sunnyside, Long Island, N. Y., became the bride of William L. Shoemaker of New York City, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Shoemaker Sr. of Sanford.

The Rev. Imre Kovach performed the double ring service against a background of gypsy and white gladioli.

The church organist rendered a program of appropriate pre-nuptial music and the church soloist sang, "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding matches were also used.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of embroidered nylon chiffon which featured a fitted basque waist and long tight fitting sleeves. The full skirt terminated in a graceful ethereal train. Her fingertip length veil of imported illusion was fastened to a tiara of seed pearls and her cascade bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and carnations.

Miss Marian Tolsted, maid of honor, wore blue nylon net over taffeta and carried an old fashioned bouquet of pink carnations.

The bridesmaids, Misses Dorothy Gans and Terry Disabaton and Mrs. A. K. Shoemaker, Jr. wore identical floor length gowns of pink nylon net and carried bouquets of blue flowers. All of the attendants wore pearl necklaces, gifts from the bride.

Little Patty Dank, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her gown, a floor length model, was quaintly styled of pink taffeta and she carried a basket of pink rose petals.

A. K. Shoemaker, Jr. served his brother as best man and groomsman. He wore a dark suit and carried a cup of chopped nuts.

Sanford, now stationed at New Port, R. I., Carl Nelson of New Jersey and George Kess, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Kess chose a cocktail length dress of pink lace with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Shoemaker, mother of the groom, wore a blue dress with blue lace, and with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Holiday Inn in Flushing, L. I. The bride's table was placed in the center of the large ballroom and guests were seated at smaller tables which were placed about the room. A beautifully decorated wedding cake centered the bride's table. After the guests were seated the official party entered to the strains of the wedding march played by an orchestra.

After spending some time with their guests Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker left for a wedding trip to Florida. For traveling Mrs. Shoemaker wore a Navy blue suit and the corsage of carnations from her wedding bouquet. They will be at home to their friends after July 5 at 62-42 Woodhaven Blvd., Apt. N-1, Rego Park, Long Island, N. Y.

Poisonous Plants: Many, Dangerous

One or more kinds of poisonous or acrid plants occur in abundance in almost every part of the United States, says Merle W. son, Home Demonstration agent. The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports campers, picnickers, and also families who are working on home grounds. Because so many cases of accidental poisoning, especially among children, occur when people don't recognize these poisonous plants or know that they are harmful, the Department suggests as a first safety measure learning to know the plant on sight and thus avoid it.

Though the plants vary considerably throughout the country, the old rule, "Leaves three, let it be; leaves four, let it go," is a reminder of one common characteristic—that only one three-part leaf leads off from each joint on the stem. The leaves never appear in pairs along the stem.

Unfortunately, these dangerous plants are very hardy and adaptable. They may flourish in the deep woods or in very dry soil or sunny hillside. They may be woody vines attached to trees for support, trailing shrubs mostly on the ground, or erect, bushy shrubs. They frequently grow along fence rows and edges of paths and roadways, over walls or up posts, trees, or even sides of houses.

Plants growing on home ground should be eradicated, either by chemical or mechanical means, for the safety of the family. But eradication needs to be done with the most careful precaution. It's taking a long chance, plant specialists say, for anyone to assume he is immune to poisoning just because he has never suffered from it.

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colver

CHAPTER THIRTY ONE

JOAN put the box back in the corner cupboard with fingers trembling. "What a woman!" she thought. "Goodness, you certainly meet all kinds of people in this game. I guess you just have to get tough."

It was at that moment that she heard a faint crackling noise out in the kitchen. What was it? Had the water boiled off the soup kettle? Heaven forbid! But that was probably what it was because it was after twelve now. Oh, why had she forgotten it? Hurrying down the narrow hall, she sprang up the three steps at the rear and came into the old wing of the house.

To her horror, she saw flames leaping up the curtains that hung at the window next to the range. In a flash she knew what had happened. A dish towel had dropped from a rack above the stove down next to the boiling soup pot. She could see a charred remnant still burning. The fire must have spread from this source to the curtains. Perhaps the draft from the front door when Miss Slavovskis had slammed out had blown the burning rag and then sent the flames upward.

For an instant she stood paralyzed, thinking of all the valuable antiques out front for which she was responsible, and then of the small town fire department which was probably a volunteer one and which might take fifteen or twenty minutes to arrive.

"It's up to me," she knew swiftly, and she sprang forward, seized the curtains in her bare hands and jerked them hard. Red and all came tumbling down onto the linoleum at her feet. She bent at a crouch and then slipped to the floor. A kettle that had been left to cook stood there full of dirty water. She caught it up quickly and flung its contents into the burning pile. Black smoke curled up and an acid smell filled her nostrils. But the fire was out.

Joan cleaned up the mess. And afterwards she cleaned up herself. Then, feeling shaky, she sat down and had a bowl of soup and her sandwiches. "Why do I feel like this?" she thought. "I haven't had a day's sleep and I haven't dreamed that the antique business could be so exciting. Almost too exciting," she told herself. It had been too narrow an escape.

A quiet afternoon, however, helped to calm her down, so that when Mrs. Cochran came home at a quarter to one she could tell the incidents of the day quite composedly.

Mrs. Cochran listened, nodding. "Well, I think my lucky stars it was you here when this happened and not Mrs. Slavovskis. She loses her head too quickly. Besides she's a heavy sleeper and since no one fact, she would never have been able to get that fire out before it spread. Like as not she'd have called the fire department and then my house would certainly have been a mess."

"She might have handled Miss Slavovskis better, though," Joan said with a smile. "I'm afraid she's a customer who definitely wasn't made to test the must come back. It's all my fault, I know. I never should have accused her outright like that. But I was so mad

I didn't think."

"Oh, she'll be back there forever trying things like that. It she gets away with them, fine. If she doesn't, well, no matter. Better luck next time. That's her philosophy. Of course, she thought you didn't know anything. Well, she found out differently. Don't worry now. She'll be back all right. She likes my stuff." She nodded at Joan.

"A good day's work, my dear. But I don't believe you got any writing done."

"I didn't," Joan admitted. "However, I certainly gathered more material I can use."

Joan was late reaching home that night and she noticed with surprise, as she came up the drive that the whole house was aglow upstairs and down. What was going on? There wasn't any party that she knew about. Why then this extravagant display of electricity? Usually the Hunters were so careful about economizing on things like that.

The drive around to the back and it was then that she saw the dining car. Todd! Oh, no! Todd! Nothing more must happen to Todd!

With her heart in her mouth, she hurried into the house. But it was not Todd, thank heaven. There was, coming to meet her, sound and whole, though his face was tense and anxious.

"Todd, what's the matter?" He took her arm and drew her toward the stairs.

"It's bad. He's had a bad heart attack. Mother called me home from school. 'Come up to our rooms and I'll tell you.'"

Commission

adoption would be allowed 10 years in which to move.

Folios Chief Roy Williams was authorized to employ an attorney to prosecute criminal cases in Friday's session of City Court in the absence of Mr. T. J. Attorney.

The commission authorized the payment of $25,000 in an account to E. H. Holcombe, contractor, for work on sewer project A. Other expenditures included payment of $11,000.50 to the fiscal agents in connection with the recent bond issue for sewer and water improvements.

Action taken last night included referring a request by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for a site at the municipal wall field to the City Manager for a study of the feasibility of allowing a building there.

Thomas Clay Products Co. of Oconee, Ga., was awarded a contract for a carload of four-inch sewer pipe. The Oconee Co. was low bidder with a bid of $218.00, less freight.

Two requests for traffic changes that have previously been referred to the traffic committee were acted upon by the commission. The committee suggested changing a request to the National Guard that diagonal parking be allowed in front of its quarters. A request that 18th St. be made through at Oak Ave. was disapproved by the committee and commissioners voted, on recommendation of the committee, that Oak Ave. which is a through street most of its distance, be made through at 18th Street.

Trouble Expected

WEST HARTFORD, Conn.—Police Sgt. Everett T. Ferdin, on duty, received a telephone call from a woman. The utility pole in front of her house, she said, was too close to her driveway. "Could the pole be moved, please?"

"My daughter and I have just learned to drive," she explained, "and I just know that I'm going to hit that pole."

Fish Men Don't Eat Fish

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Members of the Southeastern Fishermen's Assoc. in convention here were reprimanded by their president, Harry E. Sahlinman of Fernandina Beach, for going to a restaurant and eating steak instead of fish.

"Only one person ordered fish, he said—adding, apologetically, that the fish eater wasn't himself."
