Dramatic Reunion Enacted As Oatis Meets Wife In US

Customs Formalities Omitted For Scribe

By JAMES DEVLIN NEW YORK (AP) — William N. Oatis freed after more than two years imprisonment in Communist Czechoslovakia, was dramatically reunited with his wife here today. She was waiting at Idlewild airfield airport when the Associated Press correspondent flew in aboard a Pan American World Airways plane and was permitted to disembark for a few private minutes with him. Even customs formalities were held in abeyance as there would be no delay in their first meeting in almost three years.

Armed Services Program Draws Large Turnout

Sanford was back to normal today after a well-packed Armed Forces Day celebration on Saturday which saw something happening practically every minute from the time Police Chief Roy Williams started the parade moving at 10:30 a. m. until the last unit was marched at Municipal Stadium at 10:40 o'clock that night. Approximately 50 marching units and bands comprised the parade which took place on the reviewing stand at the foot of Magnolia Avenue on First Street. A crowd estimated at between 5,000 and 10,000 watched as a civilian and military group passed by.

Although Brig. General J. F. Morality, U. S. Marine Corps, retired, gave the main address at the speaking program which followed, the Rev. Lloyd King of Orlando and his adopted son, Cpl. John King, captured the hearts of those gathered around the speaker's platform. Cpl. King, a prisoner of war of the North Koreans for two years, was released recently and only a week ago returned to his Orlando home.

The Rev. King, a veteran of World War I, told how he and his wife had thrown open their home to servicemen and in so doing had become acquainted with the young men whom they adopted during the Korean War. Two years ago Cpl. King was reported missing in action, but the minister and his wife never gave up hope. With his voice breaking, the Rev. King told how exactly 24 months to the day after the serviceman had been reported missing they had been notified that their son was one of the exchanged prisoners.

On Iloilo, he kissed her. "I already did," he said, shaking his head. "But they posed smiling, with their arms around one another." He continued to tell her he kissed her, he laughed and said "Later." They paused several times as they walked down the ramp to allow cameramen to shoot pictures. Oatis, imprisoned on spy charges and suddenly released Saturday, appeared physically in good shape, about normal taken back at the size of the reception. His hand shook as he waved repeatedly to the several hundred newsmen and unlookers.

Greeting Oatis at the airport was Frank J. Stazek, general manager of The Associated Press, who escorted Mrs. Oatis to Idlewild. Oatis was accompanied on his flight from Frankfurt, Germany, by Alan J. Gould, executive vice president of The Associated Press, who had been visiting AP bureaus in Europe. A brilliant sun shown down on the airport and the silvery plane during the welcoming ceremonies. Two small birds landed on the craft and perched aboard it while Oatis and his wife were embracing inside.

Several Arrests On Weekend Reported

"I didn't put suit in anyone's battery," cried Irah Pringle, 31-year-old Negro, who was arrested with "assault and battery" Sunday night when he was booked at the Police Station following a cutting scrape. It seems Irah, who lives at 1000 West Sixteenth Street, got mad at his 29-year-old colored girl friend, Emma Mae Burke, and assaulted her with a cologne can and her backyard at 1000 West Twelfth Street last night. Emma was cut from her forehead down the left side of her face in the chin. She was treated at the Fernald-Laughton Hospital. Patrolman C. C. Dotson arrested Pringle at 9:00 p. m. Percy Duncan, 3500 French Avenue, was arrested by Patrolman Joe Hickson at the Yellow Cab Stand on Second Street for brandishing a fire arm Saturday night. Police Chief Roy G. Williams reported today.

Major Lee Transfers Office To Sanford

Major Gail B. Lee, regular army instructor for the 3rd Battalion, 124th Inf., Florida National Guard, has transferred his office from the Davis Army in Orlando in the Sanford Army at 915 E. First Street. The major had been contemplating the move for some time due to the fact that Sanford is nearer the center of the battalion and that the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Forrest B. Hatchel, also makes his work closely together on the administration and training of the battalion. The 3rd Battalion is composed of units from Sanford, DeLand, Guala, Orlando, and Daytona Beach. It is the largest battalion in personnel in the 124th Inf. Regiment. Major Lee, whose tour of duty with the battalion is up shortly, will continue to live in Orlando and commute to his office here in Sanford.

With Major Lee is SFC Earl C. Cole, his assistant. SFC Cole has just returned from a tour of duty in Korea and he will live in Sanford. The 3rd Battalion is composed of units from Sanford, DeLand, Guala, Orlando, and Daytona Beach. It is the largest battalion in personnel in the 124th Inf. Regiment. Major Lee, whose tour of duty with the battalion is up shortly, will continue to live in Orlando and commute to his office here in Sanford.

GOOD WORD FOR TOLL ROAD

Simpson Says Two-Thirds Could Be Built During Dan McCarty Regime

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Road Chairman Richard Simpson said today that the go-ahead is given on construction of a state-long toll turnpike two-thirds of it can be built during the McCarty administration. Simpson forecast the Legislature is going to pass some kind of a turnpike bill—either for a short road version from Stuart to Miami or one that will run the length of the state. The shorter one would run 110 miles; the longer one would be a 300-mile one. The Senate last week amended for creation of a turnpike authority to construct the Stuart-Miami road. Simpson supports the authority to build a toll road all the way to the Georgia line if necessary.

Rotarians Hear Spirited Debate On Charity Drives

Four recent graduates of the Dale Carnegie Institute debated the subject "Should Sanford Have One Annual Drive for Consolidated Charities?" The affirmative was upheld by Mrs. J. D. Cordell and Bob Brown, the negative by Mrs. Ruth Scott and W. A. Adams. The debate was a feature of the noon session of the Rotary Club today at the Yacht Club. Mrs. Cordell said that the business men of Sanford are hit from every direction by one charity drive after another and by solicitors in the shop, in the home and in the schools. And the same little group of civic leaders are called upon again and again to lead the various drives through out the year.

Mrs. Scott, speaking for the negative, declared that the Community Chest would have to set up a big organization, hire a permanent chairman and pay him a big salary. Then it would find that it would not eliminate all the other drives because some, like the Tuberculosis Association and the Red Cross, would not come under a single umbrella. Mr. Brown said that under a new ruling the Red Cross would join the Community Chest, and added that it was not necessary to have a Community Chest anyway, but that all the drives could be held at one time under a system of consolidated charities. He cited (continued on Page Four)

TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE

We soon forget an argument but we never forget a mental picture. Christ was a wonderful teacher. All these things speak Jesus unto the multitude in parables.—Mat. 13:34.

The ... Board has decided to turn loose upon the public again Nathan Leopold, a millionaire's son, who murdered a little boy in 1924 "for the thrill of it." Psychologists differ as to whether his sanity has yet been restored and he may have to spend the rest of his days in jail. But the boy he killed has been dead for 29 years.

Once upon a time the City promised to build some tennis courts for the boys and girls of Sanford, but, alas, the summers come and the summers go in endless fashion and still there is only a single playing area which can charitably be called a tennis court, and its only resemblance to the real thing is that from a long way off it looks like a tennis court.

"I have met no one in America," says President Eisenhower, "who does not want peace." What he means is that he has met no one who does not say he wants peace. But we have met some who are afraid that peace may bring with it a slump in sales, a drop in prices, a decline in wages, and that very fear helps to create a mass psychology which makes peace difficult. Of course they are wrong. No nation ever became truly prosperous in war time. No nation ever suffered economically because of peace, but sometimes we think we do.

The Seminole County Medical Society recommends Dr. Charles L. Park for appointment by the Governor to the county board of hospital trustees. Dr. Park has long been identified with the effort to obtain a modern hospital in Seminole County, is well acquainted with the various proposals in the past, as well as the needs of the future. We hope the governor realizes too that the hospital trustees are charged not only with the responsibility of building a hospital, but also with running it after it is built. There should be a doctor on the board.

Governor McCarty's dog track bill by which the State would collect another two million dollars in racetrack revenues is killed in committee without ever reaching the floor of the Senate. "I'm terribly disappointed in this action," says Governor McCarty. "I still believe and hope there are enough men in the Senate who want to see the right thing done to get it out on the floor." That will require a two-thirds vote. We take our gubernatorial campaigns in this state very seriously and vote for the man who we think will do the most for Florida, sometimes forgetting that he can do very little without the support of the Legislature.

Southern Negroes lured away from their homes by the noisy propaganda of the big cities would do well to study all angles of the picture before cutting their bridges behind them. The New York Herald Tribune tells of a Negro house in Brooklyn recently condemned by the building inspector as "worse than Tobacco House" and it had the additional disadvantage of being in a crowded tenement district instead of the wide open spaces of a big cotton field. Between the front and rear houses was a forty-foot-long section of the lot, almost entirely covered with a large pile of brackish green water. The walls of the rear house were rotten and patched with cardboard. The exterior was unadorned, the interior was unadorned, and the cracked floor was made of the floorboards and planks of the rear house.

Longer Time For Study

In 1942 Robert M. Hutchins, then President of the University of Chicago, introduced a controversial idea into education. He made it possible for an exceptionally bright student to enter the University after only two years of high school. Such a student, along with those who had completed four years of high school, could receive a Bachelor of Arts degree in two years. Hutchins believed that a student should be allowed to proceed through college at a speed geared to his own abilities.

Many educators and laymen condemned the experiment. Some contended that if the idea were generally adopted it would turn colleges into diploma factories with the primary aim of the students being to see how fast they could finish. Others admitted that the regular college curriculum might be finished in two years but doubted that students would get the other educational advantages that came with a full four year course.

Now the University of Chicago has decided to abandon the experiment. It will still be possible for students to be admitted after two years of high school but such students will have to spend five years at the University before they can receive their B. A. degree.

With all its faults there was merit in Hutchins' idea and in the fact that the University of Chicago was willing to make the experiment. Times change and if educators are to remain abreast of the times they must be willing to change also. If the old program was better it was wise of the University officials to admit it. But they need never regret trying a new approach.

An Attractive Asset

In promoting its steadily growing Summer tourist business, Florida could feature to advantage the attractions of Florida's parks.

As the Florida Park Service says: "Florida's 42 state parks and historic memorials beckon the Summer vacationist with recreational facilities, such as picnicking, playfields, camping, swimming, hiking, nature trails, lake, river and surf fishing, in a setting of tropical vistas and historic lore." Florida's park areas, representing the particular charm of each section of the state, total about 72,000 acres and have an estimated value of $50 million. The state has 10 developed state parks, four partially developed state parks, 10 parks that have not been developed, one scientific area, 17 historic memorials, and numerous privately owned attractions, such as the Internationally famed Cypress Gardens, which have brought to Florida priceless and widespread publicity.

Florida has a rich asset in its parks and pleasure grounds and these should be "played up" at all seasons in the state's invitation to visitors.—Tampa Tribune.

The Millions Who Ride

The phenomenal rise in consumption of aspirin tablets in Britain, where a population of 62 million is taking 10 million of the pain-killers each day, defines the growth of an anodyne way of life that is manifesting itself throughout the modern world.

Dr. Franklin H. Knell, the noted British health authority who reported the trend, attributes it to the fact that England is a "nation which is tired and sick." Not only in Britain, but also in the United States, there is cause for alarm over the number of people who use one means and another to escape many of the unpleasant realities of life.

Riding a vehicle of escape, leaning on a crutch, and taking a flight from reality are all a part of this serious disease that impels people to take "the easiest way out."

Organized religion faces no greater challenge than that of showing these "escapists" how to find the "spiritual experience" that will enable them to cure this dreadful malady of "taking a powder" when the "going" becomes rough.—Times - Union.

Congressman Herlong Reports

The House acted on some important legislation within a short period of time this week. We adopted the Senate version of the Tideland bill, enacted a separate bill confirming Federal jurisdiction over the Continental Shelf, passed the Treasury and Post Office Department appropriations bill, in connection with which an effort to reinstate the two deliveries of mail a day in residential areas was ruled out of order as not germane and passed a bill "to provide for special registration, classification, and induction of certain medical, dental, and allied specialist categories," the measure popularly (or unpopularly) known as the "Doctor Draft Bill."

The House version of the Tideland bill containing a section settling the Continental Shelf question which was omitted in the Senate bill. There was an argument about whether to adopt the Senate bill and pass separate legislation dealing with lands outside State boundaries, or to insist on the House version. Since the latter procedure would have meant a conference and probably another filibuster in the Senate, while a separate bill establishing Federal jurisdiction over the Continental Shelf could be filibustered by the left-wingers if they stick to the position on which they based the recently ended "talkathon," this was the way we decided to handle it.

The Doctor Draft bill was not subject to lengthy debate in the House, because everybody knew it was essential legislation; but it was backed up by long hearings and hard work on the part of the Armed Services Committee. It is admitted that this is discriminatory legislation; the Chairman of the Committee said so frankly in presenting the bill to the House. The fact remains that of the 12-

THE WORLD TODAY

By JAMES MALROW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's radio talk in the nation Tuesday night on defense spending and the budget is coming none too soon.

Confusion about what the Eisenhower administration is doing to defend, or trying to do, Democrats in Congress are protesting. So are some newsmen.

The administration has not done a good job of explaining its intentions so far. Apparently that is why the President is going on the radio.

In the 1952 presidential campaign the Republicans promised economy, leading to tax cuts. The spending program they have offered Congress is aimed at economy, including economy in national defense.

The unanswered question is: Will this be economy at the price of less defense? Secretary of Defense Wilson said last week his economy program aims at "effective defense for less money."

Of all the people in this country President Eisenhower ought to know whether the economy he's offering will provide this country with an adequate defense at home and abroad.

Not everyone is satisfied that this is so. Sen. Byrdington, Missouri Democrat, said that the Secretary of the Air Force, says Eisenhower is "putting fiscal politics ahead of military strategy."

Byrdington said the administration has "more stretch-out, more soothing syrup, more cars, more fat, less muscle."

Until Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, spoke at a luncheon here Tuesday, there was a certain amount of national puzzlement that went something like this:

Since the administration wants to cut defense, it must actually plan a smaller Air Force than previously supposed necessary, was it acting on some secret information that Russia is making a menace that is a year or two years ago?

If the answer was "yes," the Eisenhower defense reduction program could be called a "punching bag" program. But Bradley, in one of the best positions to know, said he knew nothing in the world situation to warrant cutting the rearmament program.

In that speech, with Wilson in the audience, Bradley cautioned against "putting economy ahead of security." Bradley, soon to be retired, said he was not aiming at 250 medical and dental officer replacements required in the next two to three years, hardly a third will be available through the regular draft. There wasn't any question that the bill was necessary; the only question was, how to make it as workable as possible.

There were a lot of complaints about the first Doctor Draft law, most of them fully justified. The new Act meets these criticisms as far as possible, and, we hope it is now as fair as any health-discriminatory law can be.

I had the honor of being invited to play golf as the partner of the President one day this week, and thoroughly enjoyed the experience. Very few people have had this honor, and I feel highly complimented to be one of the half-dozen Members of Congress who have received such an invitation. We went

Tomato Shipments Begin Decline As Volume Drops Off

WINTER HAVEN, (Special)—Tomato volumes are beginning to decline with only 58,415 crates moving in the past week's report period. F.O.B. prices on 80 pound crates, best quality, sold for as high as $7.00 for six with most sales bringing $6. to $6.50. Tomatoes are expected to continue moving in lighter volumes for the next two weeks.

Excellent quality watermelons are moving in good volume from the Fort Pierce, Vero Beach, Stuart and Indian-Point areas.

M. E. Williams, Manager of the Market, advised H. Lewis, Director of State Farmers Markets.

"Pepper continues to be the top commodity though showing a decrease in volume over the previous week. Prices have improved slightly due to volume decrease and ranged from 7 1/2 to 8 1/2 per bushel. Other lead in price range of $4.75 to 4.75 per bushel for Fanny, somewhat under the previous week. H. R. Hill, Manager, Plant City State Market advised, "114,849 units of all items brought gross returns of $218,314."

"The tomato movement reached its peak the past week on the Wauchula State Market, F. E. Hill, Manager, reported, with 11,133 field crates moving through the auction. Volume decline is expected to start this week with sizes running smaller, though quality about the same as the good. Cucumber volume dropped sharply last week due to hot weather bringing the deal to a close, 18,500 field crates of cucumbers averaged $4.00; 600 bushels of peppers $1.01 and 11,453 crates of tomatoes $2.81.

H. N. Beville, Manager, Zerk-Wilson's economy drive.

In cutting defense spending, it seems safe to say, the Eisenhower administration is taking a calculated risk that Russia is not going to strike any time soon.

Absence of Russian belligerence in recent months must be a factor in the Eisenhower thinking. For, if Russia at this moment was massing its armies and air forces, Eisenhower undoubtedly would be calling for more defense spending instead of less.

If this is a valid assumption then the Russians have accomplished more by being nice than by being tough. Stalin was alive, starting wars and starting the country's defenses were increasing with Stalin dead and the new Russian leadership thinking about the country's defenses spending is starting down.

Wilson's economy drive.

of State Market reports a good volume of butterbeans, white and yellow, black eyes and crow-foot peas, cucumbers and cantaloupe. The movement of the above items plus a good movement of potatoes, squash, and string beans brought the total units last week to 19,148 with gross receipts totaling $28,178.50.

Manager M. R. Ridd of the State State Farmers Market expects a light volume of sweet corn, bell pepper, peas and butterbeans to start moving this week. Red Bliss potatoes in light volume will continue for another two weeks.

Potatoes are expected to continue in good volume on the Palmetto State Market; Most tomato field are on the down grade in the Palmetto State Farmers Market area, and only a light supply of good quality tomatoes is expected this week; a fair volume of corn and celery is expected to continue moving through the Pahokee State Market, though the season is rapidly coming to an end; Watermelons are moving in lighter supply along with a fair supply of sweet potatoes on the Fort Myers State Market, and the Immokalee State Farmers Markets moved a fairly good volume of watermelons along with a light supply of cantaloupe during the past weekly report period.

Beware Of The Exception!

By W. V. BITTING

When someone tells you of the man individual who has a special way of treating certain illness, or of a doctor who achieves miraculous results by little publicized methods beware!

Advances in medicine and surgery are not secrets kept from the medical profession at large. Doctors, ethical ones, are quick to reveal the results of their research which may benefit mankind.

True there are specialists highly successful in treating the unusual illness, but these men are well known in the medical profession.

If you wish to seek the advice of another physician, ask your own doctor first. He appreciates your anxiety and will recommend another doctor.

Stepping Stones Seminole Has Program

Friday morning the children of Mrs. O. K. Goff's Stepping Stones Kindergarten entertained their parents and friends with a May Day program on the Park Avenue school playground.

Mrs. Goff welcomed the guests and the young students sang a group of songs which included "The Rose Tree," "Prayer" and "I Wish I Had a Little Birdie." The songs were accompanied by the kindergarten children.

The girls, all attired in pastel fluffy dresses and wearing massive flowers in their hair, took their places around the May Pole to sing "Wake Says the Sunshiner" and "Maypole Song" as they wound the pale streamers around the pole.

"Jump Jim Crow" and "Clap, Clap, Bow" were two dances, were then cleverly executed, and the program was brought to a stirring climax by a flag drill by the young masters of the school. In perfect unison they shouldered their flags and sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and "We Salute The Flag" and "Blue Boy."

After the program ice cream and cookies were served by Mrs. Goff and Mrs. H. T. Humphreys, school plant.

Those taking part on the program were: Glenn Chorpren, Johnny Culum, Larry D'Amico, Donnie Porter, Buddy Jeffords, Robbie Jones, Charles Leffler, Andy Lyon, Al Odum, Eddie Smith, Mike Smith, Emory Spill, Charles Stein, Both Vilhen, Lin Lon Knowles, Jimmy Robbins, Jerry Myers, Donnie Gashorn, and Kevin Edge.

But despite the danger to such coastal cities as Miami, Tampa and Jacksonville, the retired general stated that the Civil Defense request for a two-year minimum of $273,000 appropriations from the State had been slashed to $150,000 by Governor McCarthy, and then knocked down to nothing by the Legislature.

"Civil Defense is now a necessary part of our way of life," he asserted. "To me it is a fourth arm of the military services and best suited to combat the new concept of psychological warfare which, as employed by the Russians, has resulted in the enslavement of millions of people since 1945 even though few shots have been fired."

Brailley Odham, master of ceremonies, introduced the many civilian and military guests on the platform. These included Capt. J. E. Chittenden, commander of the Naval Auxiliary Air Station of Sanford; Lt. General J. C. Hutchison, National Guard, retired; Comdr. G. R. Pearson, executive officer of the local air station; Col. J. F. Moody of Orlando, CAP; Comdr. J. W. Parrish, Coast Guard Auxiliary; and A. B. Peterson, Seminole County Civil Defense director.

The state major Frank T. Conklin, USA; Col. W. E. Baker, USAF, retired; Col. John C. Watson, Pinned.

Senate conferees have agreed on $130,495,000 state donation to county public schools in the biennial appropriations act.

It contains a $350 annual pay raise for teachers which was not in dispute; and a $25 a unit increase in state aid for county school expense which was a 50-50 compromise.

The Senate had granted a $50 a unit current expense fund increase which would cost the state $2,365,000. The House voted no increase at all. The conferees were at loggerheads on the issue all day Saturday but reached agreement Sunday night.

They stipulated that the $1,182,000 finally granted must be used only for purchase of instructional materials.

The total $130,495,000 two-year school appropriation is only $147,000 more than the House voted despite the increase in current expense because the conferees took the legislative reference bureau's estimates of the amount that will be needed to finance the school program on the minimum foundation formula.

State Department of Education estimates are higher.

The figure adopted by the Conference Committee is about three million dollars below what the Senate granted.

The conferees reached tentative agreement on all items in the original budget except the universal variances during their week-end sessions. They haven't touched the construction budget where there are big differences.

In other Sunday action, the conferees:

- Gave the civil defense agency $75,000. The Senate had cut it off without any funds; the House granted $150,000. The committee wrote in a stipulation that the Budget Commission should review the agency's activities at least twice a year and abolish it if it seemed no longer necessary.

- Gave the State Board of Health $5,727,000—compared with $5,477,000 voted by the House and $6,119,000 voted by the Senate.

- The House approved fund for county mental health clinics from $340,000 to $150,000. The Senate had refused to vote any money for the clinics.

- Cut out of the state hospital budget a $300,000 contingent fund both houses had voted.

- Gave the State Library Board $100,000 where the Senate had approved $140,000 and the House $75,000.

- Gave the Public Commission $467,000 where the Senate had voted $481,000 and the House $450,000.

Lt. Governor Okayed.
TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Florida's lieutenant governor will vote for a lieutenant governor as well as a governor starting in 1956 under a constitutional amendment proposal approved by the House 38-16 today and sent to the Senate.

Passage of the measure was urged by Rep. David of Broward County who said such an official is needed, not only to provide a successor to the governor if he should die or be unable to continue in office but to lift some of the present work load from the chief executive's shoulders.

Mrs. Hoover spoke briefly in acceptance of the gavel of office, turned over to her by the retiring president, Mrs. Harvey, and enue bonds could be sold at between 2 1/2 and 4 per cent interest. After five years' successful use of the road, he went on, the bond probably could be refinanced at a lower rate of interest.

If the state loan route is approved, the authority will have to decide what route to take north of the Stuart-Miami stretch. If the tollpike were to follow the East Coast it would run about 325 miles and would cost an estimated 180 million dollars. Should it run inland it would be about 340 miles long and cost from 195 to 200 millions.

The State Road Department right now leans towards the inner route which would touch somewhere near Orlando.

Under the long tollpike plan, the authority could be deciding which way to lay down the northward leg and be ready to go while the Stuart-Miami route was being built.

Starting at 1:00 p. m. and lasting until 4:00 o'clock, open-house was held at the Sanford Air Station with many local civilians taking advantage of the opportunity to see the base.

Then at night Orlando, which had been well represented in the morning activities, staged a celebration of its own to come back from 5 to 0 and 3 to 4 deficits (finally to win the Florida State League game, 12 to 9.

Major John Bolt Bags His First MIG Over North Korea

Major John F. Bolt, USMC, whose wife and parents are Sanford residents, was credited with his first "kill" over North Korea on Saturday when he shot down a MIG while flying an Air Force Sabre jet fighter.

His wife, the former Dorothy Wiggins, and their two children, Bobby and Barbara, recently moved into a new home on Summerlin Avenue which the Marine officer hasn't yet seen.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bolt, reside at 263 West Seventeenth Street. Another son, Lt. Thomas Bolt, is serving with the Air Force in Bermuda.

The 32-year-old Marine Corps flyer earned the rank of ace during World War II by knocking out five Japanese planes while serving in the South Pacific with the fabulous Black Sheep of Pappy Boyington.

Since drawing his first Korean assignment six months ago, Major Bolt has downed 114 missions. Just this month he was assigned duty with the Air Force.

He graduated from Seminole High School in 1929 and went to the University of Florida until Pearl Harbor when he enlisted in the armed forces.

The Sanford Club members present at this final evening were Mrs. True, Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Baker, Miss Nunnally, Mrs. South, Mrs. Carhart, and Mrs. Hunter. As did all who attended this convention, the group from Sanford was stimulated and inspired to follow the Federation's leadership in making a better business world for business women everywhere.
