

SPORTING GOSSIP

Base Ball
The Rollins College base ball team were in town Monday and defeated the local team in a close and hard fought game by a score of 3 to 1, and it was only after the last man was out in the ninth inning the Rollins team was sure that they had won a ball game.

This so called college base ball is a joke. You would imagine a college as large as Rollins would be able to dig up nine ball players from their student body and would not have to rely on outside talent. When the Rollins team took the field we found "Dai" Mason, a professional coach and class A pitcher on the firing line; Valden, the "Tin Soldier" of Fort Dade and Orlando fame at short; Pike, formerly a catcher for Orlando behind the bat and Lee, the best outfielder Orlando had last season in left garden. These are the school boys we recognized and it is possible there were others in the same class that got by us. It's more than likely they had one or more Rollins men on the team to prove an allbl.

There is little to say about the game as it was simply a straight, clean, business-like affair, with no particular features.

Wallace pitched a faultless game, allowing only four hits and no bases on balls and the balance of the team fielded behind him in big league style, though the base running was very much of the "rock me to sleep" variety. Sanford lost several good chances to win by lost opportunities on bases.

The only disappointing part of the afternoon was the attendance and it's up to the fans to do better when Kissimmee comes up Thursday. They came through with a horse shoe win last week and we'll prove it. Come out and be in on the kill

Woodland Park Notes

The picnic given by Miss Reasoner for the Paola school was held at Woodland Park Saturday, and a nicer day could not have been asked for. The Boy Scouts Troupe No. 1, under the leadership of Rev. Waldron, also came for their usual swim. Those boys simply hate to wade the pool long enough to eat dinner. To say that everybody enjoyed themselves would be putting it mildly.

Sunday being regular park day, and also a beautiful day, it is but natural that a good many people came. A number of people waited at the city dock, but could get no launch to bring them. You will have to make arrangements early next Sunday to get transportation. Better club together and engage a launch in advance. A sailboat came Sunday which made the trip in 35 minutes. The Boy Scouts intend to have a row-boat soon and will make the trip that way, getting training in rowing and handling the boat. A good idea.

The Railroad crew made a beginning at that long-promised crossing last week and promised to have it in in time for the Paola School picnic; but left the work unfinished, to do another job elsewhere.

This is a great land of (fake) promises.

Distinguished Visitor Here

Baron Oscar Van Loo and Leopold Van Archer of Ghent, Belgium, were in the city yesterday looking over the Celery Delta.

They were accompanied by Ernest H. Every, manager of the Fellsmere Farms Co., and are interested in the colonization of Florida lands for Belgium farmers. Since Sanford represents the real vegetable center of the South it was necessary for the party to come here in order to see real vegetables grown for the northern markets.

The distinguished gentlemen were greatly impressed with all that they saw in the famous celery deltas and their trip here will probably mean the purchase of land at Fellsmere or Celery City or some other lands that are "just as good as Sanford" but have never made good yet.

Early Green Beans

H. Mendenhall will take the medal this year for early string beans and expects to begin shipping this week which is extra early. A. E. Brown also has a fine piece in beans and will ship at the same time. These are about the earliest beans on record and will bring a good price.

SANGER'S EUROPEAN SHOWS

Costs to Feed a Circus—Elephants and Horses a Drawing Card

The excellent parade is a guarantee that the show is all right. The menagerie part of the show is one of the best extant, and from the variety of its exhibits is instructive and interesting alike to adults and children.

The animals are all interesting to look upon. The elephants and the monkeys are on deck to beg for peanuts and popcorn. The ponies are a delight to the children, and it is often noticed that many of the older people become enthusiastic to the play, simply because it is so pleasing to the children.

This show will leave a lot of money in town, paying out enormous sums as it does for supplies. The question of meat alone is quite an item. Each lion eats 80 pounds of meat a day, and each tiger 30 pounds; other cat animals eat from 12 to 18 pounds. "Ding Dong," the largest elephant in the world, and which weighs 10,000 pounds, is eating all the time.

Any one who has an opportunity of learning something about the supplies purchased for a large show knows that they include two entire beaves daily, hundreds of loaves of bread, nearly 20 bushels of potatoes, 150 pounds of steak and stew meat, 25 pounds of butter, 30 gallons of milk, dried fruit and canned goods to the value of $50 each day. In addition to this there is consumed large quantities of eggs, poultry, fish, vegetables, etc. For the horses there are provided oats, hay, straw, bran, corn, etc. One of the most commendable features of the Great Sanger Shows is the gentlemanly conduct of every one connected with it. This is a subject of much comment in almost every place this big show exhibits.

There will be special excursion rates on all the railroads. Don't forget the date. Sanford Friday April 5th

HAPPENINGS DURING THE WEEK

Here the Readers Will Find a Brief Historical Spring Flowing For Hurried Readers

Mrs. Zoe Runge McRoe, who shot her young friend, Allan Garland, to death in her home at Opelousa, La., September last, was to-day acquitted by a jury of the charge of manslaughter. The jury stood eleven for acquittal and one for conviction as charged.

Except for reiteration of their belief that they are close upon Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards, the two remaining members of the Allen gang yet at liberty, the detectives, who were so sanguine yesterday morning that the two men would be captured before nightfall of yesterday, had nothing to say before starting for the hills yesterday evening.

The places most seriously affected by the Mississippi river flood are: Hickman, Ky.; Memphis, Tenn.; New Madrid, Mo.; Columbus, Ky. Total lives lost 4. Total damage to date, estimated at $1,000,000. Number driven from homes, 8,000 to 9,000. Volume of water is six to ten feet above danger line between Cairo, Ill., and Arkansas City, Ark. The crest of the flood possibly will be reached in the district affected between April 14 and April 18.

Milwaukee citizens in Tuesday's city election repudiated the socialist administration which has had charge of the city's affairs the past two years. Emil Seidel, the socialist mayor, was defeated by approximately 15,000 votes out of a total of nearly 75,000. Dr. G. A. Badling, the non-partisan candidate, was elected mayor. The Socialists also lost control of the city council, electing but seven out of a total of thirty-three.

Detective Baldwin, head of the detective agency whose men have been hunting the Allen outlaws ever since the tragedy at the Hillville court house three weeks ago today, states that a rumor has reached him that Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards were killed near Volunteer's Gap, but that he has been unable to secure a confirmation of the story.

President Taft today sent to Congress his second message of the present year on economy and efficiency in the government service. He recommended the passage of legislation designed to save more than $11,000,000 annually to the people of the United States. Probably his two most striking proposals were that the local government offices in the treasury, postoffice, justice, interior and commerce and labor departments be placed in the classified service be consolidated with the lighthouse service in the department of commerce and labor.

It has been discovered up in Macon, Ga., that water runs from six cents per thousand gallons for big consumers to thirty cents per thousand gallons for small consumers. To charge the poor man five times as much as is charged the rich man is questionable, but if it is true, as charged, that six cents does not cover the actual cost of furnishing the water the difference must be made up in some way.

Another Aviator Killed

Col. P. Rodgers one of the most noted aviators of the time was killed on Wednesday at Long Beach, California his machine taking a sudden plunge to earth and pinning Rodgers beneath the engine. Rodgers was giving an exhibition flight, and had done some fancy air stunts. He was making what was to have been the last ascension of the day, and was preparing to fly back to the pier at Long Beach, when suddenly his machine was seen to dip and Rodgers making frantic efforts to right it. He could not alter the course of the machine and it plunged into the shallow water close to shore. The weight of the motor was on his body when those who plunged into the surf to save him reached the wreck. He died before he could be taken to a hospital.

Rodgers was a noted aviator. He flew across the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific some months ago. He was killed within 500 feet of the place where he landed on completion of his cross-continent flight December 30, 1911.

Dr. Forster came in Wednesday night and returned Thursday to The Shelter at New Smyrna. Fr-55-1

Entertainment For Playground Association

The Committee of the Civic Department of the Welaka Club will give an entertainment at the Imperial Theater on next Friday night, April 12th

There will be a regular program of moving pictures, and also 50 slides depicting the children of the various cities enjoying the benefits of the playgrounds that have been established by the Play Ground Association of America

This movement is becoming world wide, and is not confined to the larger cities by any means. In Sanford for instance, a public playground provided by the city, fitted up with every form of amusement, and presided over by an able instructor, would be of inestimable value to the parents who are confined by the narrow lots of the heart of the city, and have no suitable place for the children to indulge in the harmless amusements of childhood.

Come out next Friday night! See the pictures, and help the Welaka Club in their efforts toward civic reform.

The Wednesday Club

The Wednesday Club held their regular meeting at the residence of Mrs. Henry Wight, Wednesday afternoon.

The minutes were read by the secretary Mrs. S. O. Chase, after which the committee of five, who were appointed some time ago to ascertain from the members of the club their preference of a subject for the next year's study, made their report through the secretary who is also a member of the committee.

The program for the afternoon, was mainly civic topics. Mrs. Forrest Lake gave "A Brief Resume of the Conditions which have led up to the Question of Convict Reform in the last Legislature, and Reasons for the Governor's Veto of the Measure that was Passed by Them."

Mrs. Henry Wight, gave a very clear and comprehensive account of a visit which she made in company with a friend from Jacksonville, to the Reformatory at Marianna last week.

Mrs. Geo. H. Fernald, read a letter from the superintendent of the Reform School at Louisville Kentucky, which was written in reply to a request for information on the conduct of the school by a member of the Legislation committee of the State Federation. Mrs. E. A. Philips, read a fine article on "How to Make Men out of Prisoners." A very interesting and earnest discussion of the topics touched upon followed that of the State Reformatory especially interested the club.

It was moved and seconded that the Sanford Wednesday Club, espouse the cause of the inmates of the reformatory using their influence and efforts, and their behalf in trying to make the physical, mental, moral and spiritual uplift of those young criminals, who are the wards of the state, a branch of their civic work, as a club and also as a member of the State Federation.

After an announcement by Miss Mell Whitner, from the Welaka Club of a benefit to be given for the club assisted by the New York City Playground Association, at the Imperial Friday evening, April 12th, and one or two, minor announcements the club adjourned.

From Lake County

Hon. J. G. Hatcher, from Groveland, and Hon. T. B. Lanier, of Tavares, were in the city on Wednesday. Mr. Hatcher is a prominent business man of Lake County and also has large interests in adjoining counties.

He is a candidate for the Legislature from Lake, and has a good chance of going to Tallahassee.

Mr. Lanier is manager of the Tavares Opera House and expects to put on that first play "Sappho for clean Politics" in a few weeks.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR SANFORD

Building Operations Will Total $15,000 For Week

Sanford expects to build some new structures if the record at the City Clerk's office is any criterion.

Clerk Lovell this week issued building permits for over $15000 worth of new buildings.

Following is the list:
One one-story brick block size 103 feet front by 115 feet long on Sanford avenue, owner H. L. Dohart, cost $9000.

One two-story frame building on Magnolia avenue cost $2,100 for Jack Adams.

One two-story frame building on Oak avenue for Mrs. Alice Messenger, cost $4150.

Contractor G. B. Pope has the contract for all of these buildings and will begin operations at once.

Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Perkins celebrated the fifth birthday of their daughter, Ethel Goodwin, Thursday afternoon, at their residence on Magnolia avenue. A number of the neighborhood friends of the little girl, were invited to enjoy the auspicious occasion with the little hostess.

Mrs. Perkins was assisted in caring for and entertaining the little guests by her sisters, Misses Emma and Estelle Beard, who amused the little folks with various games, until the delicious refreshments were served. The color scheme in the decorations was red and white. The beautiful birthday cake was the center of attraction, with its five little lighted candles. The pretty place cards were decorated with rabbits. The children were delighted with the cut-down little chickens, peeping out of their shells, which were placed by their plates. Ice cream, cake, candy and peanuts were served. Little Miss Perkins guests were Jenn Maxwell, Bettie Householder, Helen Gonzales, Theodora Miller, Esther Miller, Walter Brakefield, Joe Caldwell, Albert Connelly, Junior, Dutton, Christie Summers.

Helping Hand Society

The Helping Hand Society of the Baptist church held their regular meeting at the home of the Misses Millen Tuesday evening. The mission study class was conducted by Mrs. E. E. Cox after which the members and their invited guests enjoyed a very pleasant social hour together entertained by music, games and a very interesting and romantic cake contest. Several parties were successful in giving the correct names of the different cakes, the names of which were used to make up the pretty love story. About twenty-five were present.

Welaka Club Notes

On Tuesday afternoon was held the regular business meeting of the Welaka Club. The new president Mrs. J. W. Dickens opened the meeting with her address of acceptance of the office and outlined the work of the new year. The keynote of this was "loyalty." She thought that perhaps the members do not give sufficient weight to the true meaning of this word, or perhaps we do not think it necessary to apply it to club life, and if we can not be loyal in our support, let us at least have the loyalty of silence. She also asked that we strictly observe club days, for it is not only discourteous to the hostess but so discouraging. In closing she said, "You see how much there is to be done and how urgent it is to be up and doing, so once more your president asks for hearty co-operation and harmony, so that we can in very truth live up to our club motto and "Be not simply good but good for something." This address was full of energy and enthusiasm and every member not present lost something. With this start we ought to do wonders this year.

The treasurer was instructed to send a check of $5.00 to the Sanford Hospital Association.

Mrs. Dickens of the Playground day asked the club to join her in giving an entertainment at the Imperial Theatre on Friday evening April 12th. The Playground Association of New York has loaned fifty slides of the work that is being carried on in this country. The entertainment will consist of these slides, three reels of moving pictures, music and other features. One-third of the proceeds will be given for civic work in this town. The committee asks the help and interest of all the members in making this a success.

The following chairman of the different departments for new years work were appointed: Art and Literature Miss Keeler; Civic, Mrs. Lake; Household Economic, Mrs. Keeler, Social, Mrs. Puleston, Music Mrs. Brady; Programs Mrs. Geo. Fox Jr.

The following house committee were appointed: April 9th, Social, Mrs. Fatjo and Miss Bowler; April 16th, Music, Mrs. Holly and Miss Alice Whitner; April 23rd, Social, Mrs. Smith and Miss Hand; April 30th, Audubon Day, Mrs. Higgins and Miss Frank. Mrs. Lake the hostess for April.

CULLED FROM THE STATE PRESS

An Epitome of the Week's Most Important Happenings in the State's Domain.

One of the biggest cargoes of spirits of turpentine that has ever been brought to Pensacola by river craft arrived there a few days ago from Choctawhatchee river on the schooner Magnolia.

The Plant City Courier says that the strawberry season of 1912 is practically over. During the past week 37,151 quarts of berries were shipped.

Twenty-five crates of beans were shipped from Plant City Thursday, for which the grower received $2.50 per crate. The shipping of early potatoes will soon commence.

A large brick hotel building is to be erected at Bushnell in the near future.

Largo is to have a canning factory. The site has been settled on and building operations will begin in about ten days.

The Woman's club of Ocala has published a handsome booklet under the title of Woman's Club Easter Edition, which is a credit to the ladies and to the city. Its thirty-six pages are crowded with artistic advertisements and illustrations of attractive buildings.

A young white man named Evans, employed by the Rodman Lumber Company, as a laborer, was run over by a log locomotive at Rodman Wednesday afternoon with the result that his right leg was so badly crushed that it had to be amputated below the knee. The other limb is fearfully lacerated and the bone shattered, and Dr. E. W. Warren, of Palatka, who performed the operation and who is attending the unfortunate man, is almost positive that it, too, will have to be taken off.

The proposed supreme court building at Tallahassee is to be a handsome structure which will be an ornament to the city and should be the pride of all Floridians.

County Commissioners of Pinellas county in session yesterday in Clearwater adopted a resolution calling for a bond issue of $370,000. Of this amount $300,000 is to be used for good roads in various parts of the county and the $70,000 will be used in the erection of a jail and court house.

A party of Miami citizens have just returned home after a history-making pleasure trip by motor-boat from the Atlantic, through the Everglades, to the Gulf coast. This is the first boat to make the trip through the canals from ocean to gulf.

Bryan is Here

Not the William Jennings Bryan but a man who is equally as popular and who has done as much and more for the state than the Great Commoner could ever do. Capt. J. A. Bryan is no stranger in Sanford or in the south and for many years has been actively engaged in business enterprises, as a river captain in the phosphate business of the government employ and finally in the piano business where he stuck his gait and has probably sold more pianos than any other salesman in the south.

Capt. Bryan is president of the J. A. Bryan Piano Co., of Jacksonville and wishing to put on a great bargain sale in Sanford came here to personally take charge and help his Sanford friends to a good piano. This big bargain sale of fine pianos will commence today and will be held in the Stone-Gove block next door to Abernathy's furniture store. In order to fully convince the people that he has the best piano, Capt. Bryan will demonstrate the pianos for ten days and then put on the sale. Read the advertisement in this issue of The Herald.

Two Mass Meetings for Wednesday

Every man in Sanford is urged to be out at the Rally for Men at the Methodist church next week Wednesday night. The meeting is a union of all the churches of the city and is in charge of the Men and Religion Forward Movement of Sanford. It is intended to prepare the way for the four day Rally that is to open the following Sunday. Good local speakers will be provided for the occasion.

There will be a similar meeting for the women of the city at the Congregational church at the same hour, 7.30 next Wednesday night. No one who believes in better things for Sanford can afford to be absent from these meetings.

An Appreciated Gift

"O, the good we all may do, while the days are going by."

The Hospital Association and every citizen of Sanford were given a beautiful demonstration of this statement last Friday evening at the benefit given for the hospital fund at the Imperial Theatre, the result of the kind impulse and enthusiastic work of Mrs. A. W. Moses, who was so willing to lend a hand, where she saw it was needed. As a result of her interest and appreciation of the efforts of the association to secure the means to build and equip a hospital for Sanford the association is today richer by $73.50, every penny of which is due to the work of Mrs. Moses, which was made possible and effective of course by the generous and public spirit shown by Mr. Geo. A. DeCottes, who gave the use of the theatre, retaining only his actual expense in showing the pictures. Mrs. Moses was indefatigable in selling tickets and arranging an attractive program. She was assisted in selling tickets by some of the Ladies Hand Club, four of whom—Misses Madge and Veda Ward, Mabel Bowler and Florence Frank—acted as ushers for the occasion, dressed as hospital nurses. The association also appreciates the kindness of the charming little Miss Margaret Davidson, whose beautiful singing contributed so much to the pleasure of the audience. Also to Mr. Crosby, whose artistic dancing was very much enjoyed.

Mrs. Moses is planning another benefit for the hospital fund to be given at the Star in the near future. The interest in Sanford, her enterprises and welfare manifested so kindly and willingly by Mrs. Moses is doubly appreciated when it is remembered that she is not a citizen of the town, but of New York City, where she always engages in benevolent work. She comes to Sanford only as a winter resident when her husband's business calls him here. The good work that she is doing and humanitarian spirit manifested is rather the exception than the rule, and will everywhere and always be appreciated and honored.

Some Well-Deserved Bouquets

If you want to raise money for a good cause just call upon Mrs. A. H. Moses. The Sanford Hospital Association was in need, is yet, in fact, and will be just as long as there are any sick to be cared for in the city. Mrs. Moses has been working in just such lines for years and felt those needs as much as anybody in town. So she generously got under the burden, thought out a plan and then put it through with all the vigor and skill of which she is capable. The result was that entertainment at the Imperial last Friday night.

It took pretty vigorous work to canvass the city on two days' notice and make sure that the theatre would be filled, but it was done and mostly by Mrs. Moses herself. About ten dollars of the receipts of the evening came through a band of young women who afterwards donned nurses caps and served as ushers for the occasion. These were Misses Florence Frank, Mabel Bowler, Madge Ward, Veda Ware, Louise Shepard, Gene Wicker and Hoskins Jones and they richly deserve high praises for their services.

Another who deserves praise is Mr. George A. DeCottes who made possible the entire occasion by generously opening his theatre for the use of the Hospital Association and donated five dollars himself toward the expenses of the evening. If Mr. DeCottes' election as County Solicitor depended upon these ladies he would have a walk-away at the coming primaries.

The total receipts of the evening were $106.00. When all expenses are paid a very substantial sum will be added to the hospital fund. The ladies are so much encouraged by the results that they are planning other good thing for the near future.

Mrs. Moses wishes to give public appreciation of the generosity of the Jewell Kelly Stock Co., who are showing here this week. At her request they donated a very liberal share of the receipts of their show of last Thursday evening to this same hospital fund. The Jewell Kelly Stock Company is all right.

Card of Thanks

We wish to return our heartfelt thanks to each one who so kindly and readily assisted us last Sunday morning in saving our household effects from the flames.
C. S. SAINT AND FAMILY.

J. M. BASS

We have never heard the gospel preached in greater power. Simplicity, fearlessness and intense earnestness characterized the preaching. Mighty conviction came upon all the people in the church and out of it. One man remarked that before Bro. Bass had preached a week every church member in town saw that he had been living as crooked as a snake. There must have been two hundred church members brought back to God who have been living in sin. The business men of the town were profoundly moved and you could scarcely find one who was not ready and anxious to help. Many of them were saved. People came in from the country for miles around Rotan. No sensational methods were used. The plain preaching of the gospel did the work. Bro. Stapleton has the best combination of qualifications for a gospel singer that we have ever heard. He sang with power, led the choir with skill, exhorted with love and did more personal work than would seem possible. There were one hundred and seventeen applicants for church membership.—Comer M. Woodward, P. C. in Texas Advocate.

BLOOD POISON

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY THAT CURES OLD SORES, SCROFULA AND ALL DISEASES CAUSED BY IMPURE BLOOD.

Remedy for Disease of the Blood Sold on $1000.00 Guarantee.

The old-fashioned sarsaparillas, specifics and other blood medicines of our grandfathers won't do in this advanced age.

Your great-grandfather didn't take Leonard's Blood Elixir any more than he used the electric light or the telephone.

But his children and grandchildren, the grown ups of today, are taking this great modern medicine and getting rid of the terrible blood diseases—scrofula, tumors, syphilis, rheumatism, pains in the bones and all diseases arising from impure blood that the old unscientific preparations were unable to cure and are unable to cure today.

Leonard's Blood Elixir has as little in common with any of these old-fashioned remedies as modern life-saving surgery with the practice of a few years ago which was attended with so fearful a death rate. The half century since these old-time medicines were first made has been the most fruitful age in medical discovery. It has seen the most effective discovery of medicine the world has ever known.

As a remedy for blood poison, rheumatism, boils, tumors, debility, catarrh, skin diseases and all troubles arising from impure blood, Leonard's Blood Elixir has been welcomed by physicians and publicly recommended for the cures which it has accomplished. No other medicine ever equalled Leonard's Blood Elixir in its wonderful success in all diseases and ailments due to impure blood and nervous debility.

It is as unlike any remedy that has gone before and as superior to all of them as the electric light is more brilliant than the tallow dip. It is not a mere improvement or development of any of the old-fashioned remedies. It is a totally new departure in the cure of blood diseases and cures where others fail because it embodies the latest knowledge and the newest investigations into the source of blood diseases.

And that is the reason why Leonard's Blood Elixir is the most successful remedy in the world.

Leonard's Blood Elixir is the one remedy for diseases caused by impure blood that is sold on a $1,000.00 guarantee of money back on first bottle if it fails to cure. This unusual guarantee proves conclusively the great superiority of this remedy.

Purify the blood with this great remedy and there will be no headaches, no indigestion, no nervous troubles, no weakness nor debility. You can't afford to be without it in the house.

Sanger's Greater Shows Arrive
Sanger's Greater European Shows arrived in the city yesterday morning in their own special train and proceeded to erect the great "white top," the magnet for the small boy, be he ever so young—or old.

The general appearance of the show far surpasses that of any show having visited the city for some time. The canvas is all apparently new, the wagons are clean and bright and the stock consists of the best horse flesh we have seen in a long time.

In fact, from all outward appearances the Sanger Show bids fair to be a first-class organization in all respects.

This show comes to our city heralded by the press of our neighboring towns as one of the cleanest and best performances that has ever visited Florida. Col. Sanger, the owner, has long since enjoyed the distinction of being the premier showman of England and the American branch is now entering into its second season in this country.

In connection with the "big show" is a large menagerie of wild animals, consisting of elephants, camels, lions, leopards, llamas, tigers, monkeys, snakes, etc.

The Sanger Shows gave a very creditable street parade over the principal streets of the city this morning. The parade was headed by a good company of musicians and followed by a first-rate colored band.

An excellent performance was given by a company of artists this afternoon and another will be given tonight at 8 o'clock near the High School. Courteous attention rendered by all employees of the show is one of the strongest features.

Easter Souvenirs

The ladies of the Presbyterian church have devised a very unique and ingenious plan to secure a nest egg for the beginning of the fund with which to build their new manse.

Sixteen recipes for preparing eggs are neatly printed on yellow paper and cut in the shape of a large egg; these are covered with stiff white paper cut in the same shape, fastened together, and the words "Easter Souvenir" in gold letters on one side of the cover, thus making a pretty Easter remembrance for one's friends. These souvenirs can be obtained from any one of the Presbyterian ladies. A large number have been sold by the young ladies of the church. They only cost ten cents and are well worth buying.

Bouquet For Lake

Hon. Forrest Lake swooped down on us Tuesday, spending two days in this neck of the woods. We were glad to see him. His genial smile is contagious. His handshake is the same when not running as when a candidate. It is the same Lake today and tomorrow. A good business man, a good legislator. We need such men to represent us in the Legislature.

He has the courage to battle for the right and will ever be found where the smoke is thickest if the interests of his constituents are at stake. Let's send him back. There was never a time in the history of our county when we were more in need of such men in our Legislative halls. Lake and Robinson is our ticket.—Oviedo Advance.

Norman Lang

At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Willis, Wednesday, April 10th, Miss Harriett Annie Lang and Mr. Marshall Guinness Norman, of Altamonte Springs, will be married.

Mr. Norman is the agent of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, at Altamonte Springs. Mr. and Mrs. Norman will leave on the midnight train Wednesday, for Virginia, where they will spend a month visiting Mr. Norman's relatives. On their return to Florida, they will make their home at Altamonte Springs.

Band Concert

The delightful concert given by the band in the park last evening was very much appreciated and enjoyed by all who had the pleasure of listening to the fine selections given by the band. It was unfortunate that there were so many other attractions, and social events going on Thursday evening, otherwise there would have been a much larger attendance at the concert. Sanford, as a people, are very proud of their excellent band.

Sanford will have a number of new buildings this summer and next fall.

Now for a summer of big business interspersed with a few ball games and other amusements.

There is a rumor that the Sanford Hotel Co. will sell their stock to a new company and a new tourist hotel will result.

Hon. A. M. C. Russell is a candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction and favors Free School Books. Not a bad idea and Russell will get the solid support of the man with a large family.

The Orange County Citizen has issued another illustrated edition, this time of beautiful Altamonte Springs. No better subject could be taken and no better man to reproduce the beauties of Altamonte than Howard of the Citizen.

Bro. Howard of the Orlando Citizen likes the Baunterer's stuff and is averse to the "non-de-plume" whatever that means.

Well, never mind, brother. Holly will back anything that appears in The Herald whether it appears in the non-de-plume or the ostrich plume. The editorial column of the Herald is not the "big noise."

WATCH US GROW

Sanford is growing so rapidly that few of the people are aware of the many new buildings in the course of erection and contemplated. A perusal of the permits granted this week by the city clerk reveals the fact the $15,000 or more is the list of new buildings for the week which is going some even for Sanford.

THE DELINQUENT TAX LIST The Herald was designated as the official organ of Orange county to publish the delinquent tax list of 1911 by the County Commissioners.

Those wanting to get the official paper should subscribe for The Herald now for only in this paper will you be able to get the list.

One year $2.00. Six months $1.00. Three months 50 cents.

OBITUARY RATES

A Western Kansas editor got off the following: Ten cents straight will be charged for all obituary notices of business men who do not advertise while living. Delinquent subscribers will be charged 15 cents a line for obituary notices. Advertisers and cash subscribers will receive the best in the shop free when they shuffle off. Better send in your advertisements and pay up your subscriptions now, as the hog cholera is abroad in the land.—Kansas City Journal.

MODESTY'S RETRAINT

Editor Holly's "Curbstone Gleanings" would secure for him a state-wide reputation if he would sign his name or produce the witty articles in the editorial column. So much waste of rare material with no one to receive credit, is a real shame.

Not being much on the non-de-plume sort of journalism ourselves, we believe in saying our say and being personally responsible.

Holly's wit increases as his head grows more bald and shiny. His article on Orlando sewerage is rich and deserves a place with Mark Twain's best.—Orlando Citizen.

'Tis modesty, kind sir, and when you toss such a beautiful bouquet, modesty will not permit our walking across the stage to pick it up. Blushes overwhelm us. Exit!

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS

Sanford has gained name and fame as being—the greatest vegetable growing section in the world and the greatest proof of this reputation is the advent of people from every state in the union and from foreign countries coming here to look over the celery delta and have the Sanford system explained to them. Every land company that wants to demonstrate the growing of vegetables bring their prospective customers to Sanford first and then explain carefully to them that other land is just as good but has never had the chance to demonstrate the possibilities as yet. Just why they have made demonstration farm for other localities that are just as good according to the land men is beginning to make the average investor suspicious and his natural question is why the other lands could be cheaper in price and yet be just as good, and why they have come to Sanford to see vegetables growing. The investor will soon sit up and take notice that there is only one great vegetable growing section in the south and Sanford is the place.

All the natural advantages of climate and water and location have combined to make Sanford great and all the fairy tales written about the "just as good" cannot take one jot or tittle from Sanford. As one well known gentleman remarked this week "Sanford has become the demonstration farm for the entire state."

MEANING OUR CANDIDATE

Hon. W. M. Toomer has announced his candidacy for the position of Congressman at large and in commenting on his platforms and the candid statements as to his opinions the Miami, Metropolis has the following:

"Col. Toomer's honesty will fail to win him support in southeast Florida. Our people have discovered that during all these years in which the affairs of the second district have been left to the management of the hirelings of the lumber trust, the railroads and kindred corporations, that their welfare has been injured. They want a man who stands for the things they believe in and whose strong championship will be for the common people."

Which means that the people are clamoring for a man like Braxton Beacham for Congress.

BACK TO COLD STORAGE

The same predicament confronts the grower this year that confronts him every season—that of keeping a glut from striking the market when the bulk of the celery begins to move. The price starts out too high to begin with and though we are all prone to attempt to get all there is at once, there is no doubt but that the more reasonable plan would be to adopt a reasonable selling price and stand by it getting the money here on all shipments. The only way to control the celery market and stop a glut in the market is the cold storage idea. In conversation with experts in the ice game the information is gleaned that this idea is far fetched because of the great expense attached to the plant and the fact that an expensive plant would have to be maintained by the year to use for a few months during the season. This of course precludes the establishment of a plant in Sanford and then the scene is shifted to a more northerly point, as for instance the Potomac yards where all the cars go and are diverted to various points. Following out this plan the cold storage could be used by all the fruit and vegetable growers of the entire south and at this rate could be made a paying proposition. The cold storage would not be confined to one crop but to all the perishable crops raised in Dixie and the growers could be united in a common cause—that of protection and conservation of resources. If it is good business for the commission men to have a cold storage and buy in the celery after the market goes to pieces and the product can be purchased at their own price, then in all reason, wouldn't the same plan hold good for the man who tills the soil and makes the crop? Of course this plan will never be worked out by individuals. It will of a necessity be fostered and nurtured and brought to a successful head through organization only, and until the growers of the south get together under one head, just as other "big business" is done there will never be any certainty about the price of fruits and vegetables.

The farmer spends his money for land, clears it, works it, buys fertilizer, machinery, seed and pays for help, makes a crop and trusts to luck for a market.

No other business in the world is operated in such a manner, and yet they go on year after year never profiting by misfortune, and despite the reverses the farmer seems to make a better living than the city business man.

But what a good thing, what a sure thing the farmer could have if he would provide for a market for his product before he began to manufacture it—an idea that has predominated all other forms of business or manufacturing.

He should solve the question before he goes ahead to put in his crop and the important step in the solution is to provide a place for the product at the flood tide and avoid a glut in the market.

The editor of The Herald is not a farmer and does not take upon himself the task of advising the farmer how to operate his own business, but all business is operated much along the same lines and a strong point in selling celery and lettuce would be first cooperation among the growers and a system of storing the product when prices fall.

If we can't have a storage plant here have one at the other end of the line, but have it.

Ice Cream and Strawberries Mrs. Moses expects to arrange an ice cream and strawberry social in the park next Wednesday night for the benefit of the Hospital Association. The Glow of the Rubies

by FRANCIS PERRY ELLIOTT
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY DOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY
SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Richard Lightnut, an American with an affected English accent, receives a present from a friend in China.

CHAPTER II—The present proves to be a pair of pajamas. A letter hints of surprises to the wearer.

CHAPTER III—Lightnut dons the pajamas and late at night gets up for a smoke. His servant, Jenkins, comes in and, failing to recognize Lightnut, attempts to put him out. Thinking the servant crazy, Lightnut changes his clothes, intending to summon help. When he reappears Jenkins falls on his neck with a knife, confirming Lightnut's belief that he is a spy.

CHAPTER IV—Jenkins tells Lightnut of the encounter he had with a hideous Chinaman dressed in pajamas.

CHAPTER V—In a message from his friend, Jack Billings, Lightnut is asked to put up "the kid" for the night on his way home from college. Later Lightnut finds a beautiful girl in black pajamas in his room.

CHAPTER VI—Lightnut is shocked by the girl's drinking, smoking and slangy talk.

CHAPTER VII—She tells him her name is Francis and puzzles him with a story of her love for her sister's room-mate, named Frances. Next morning the girl is missing and Lightnut hurries to the boat to see her off. He is accosted by a husky college boy, who calls him "Dicky," but he does not see the girl.

CHAPTER VIII—Go on—tell me—what's she like?

"Of course, you don't know!" I said significantly.

"Me? Of course I wouldn't know—I want you to tell me. Say, is she really so pretty?"

"Pretty," indeed! It was like this adorable child of nature not to understand that she was the most perfect and faultless creation on earth! I leaned toward her. "Is she pretty?" I repeated reproachfully.

She eyed me slyly.

"Oh, of course I know how you feel," she said, "but draw me a picture of her."

"A picture!" I laughed. "All right, here goes: Eighteen, a daughter of the gods, divinely tall and most divinely fair—that sort of thing. Features classic—perfect oval, you know, and profile to set an artist mad with joy. Eyes? Blue as Hebe's, but big and true and tender. Hair, a great, shining nugget of virgin gold. Form divine—the ideal of a poet's dream—the alluring, the elusive, the unattainable, the despair of the sculptor's chisel."

"My!" said Miss Billings, staring. But I was not through. "Complexion? Her skin as smooth as the heart of a seashell and as delicately warm as its rosy blush when kissed by the amorous tide."

"Gee!" ejaculated my darling.

I looked at her closely. And in one matchless cheek a dimple divine such as might have been left by the barbed arrow of Cupid when it awoke Psyche from her swoon of death. In short, she might be the dainty fairy princess of our childhood fantasies, were she less superb in figure. On the other hand, she might be the sunny-haired daughter of a Viking king, were she not too delicately featured and molded."

That was all I could remember from the description as I had read it in a novel, but I was glad I had stored it up, by Jove, for it suited her to a dot. She didn't say a word for a moment, but just sat there eying me kind of sideways, her little upper lip lifted in an odd way. Then of a sudden she shook her head and swung her knees up over the arm of her chair.

"Well, Dicky, as a describer you sure are the slushy spreader. Say, you've got Eleanor Glyn backed off the boards."

She went on eagerly: "I don't care, though; slushy or not, your picture's just perfect for her. Why, your girl must be a ringer for the girl at Radcliffe. Only thing you left out was the freckle on the chin."

Freckle on the chin! By Jove, I left it out on purpose, for I thought she might not like it. I wondered if all girls at Radcliffe had freckles on the chin.

She lay back, regarding me inscrutably. "If she looks like that," she sighed, "you ought to love her very much, Dicky."

I couldn't say anything, for words are so damned inadequate, you know. But I just made an effort to look it all.

"Of course," sighing, "you ought to feel that way; and, another thing, Dicky, you'll never forget where you first saw her, will you? One of the things one never forgets."

"Right in this room," I murmured; "and in that wicker chair."

"Really?" Her surprised ejaculation was delicious. By Jove, how entrancingly coquetish of her! How jolly clever!

"Go on; tell me how she was dressed—never mind any more picture business; just tell me in four or five words. But you can't do it!" She slipped over again to the arm of my chair.

In her eyes was a challenge and I took it up.

"In black silk pajamas," I said daintily.

Her blue eyes opened wide. For a moment I feared she would be offended at my audacity, but her birdlike carol of laughter reassured me.

"Say, you're not so slow, are you?"

And her hand came down on my back with a force that made me jump.

"Only shows," she gurgled merrily, "how little Jack knows about you. Say, you'd better never tell him about those black pajamas!"

She spoke chokingly through a storm of laughter as she rocked there against my shoulder.

"And say—the joke of it!" She banged me on the back with a clublike blow, incredible from that little hand.

"The joke of it is, he thought I'd be so safe with you! Oh, mamma!"

And off she went again.

"But I'll never say a word, Dicky," she said, coming out of her laughter and panting breathlessly.

"Never! And don't you, Dicky—don't you ever! Understand? Mum's the word!"

"But—"

"Oh, but me no 'buts'—promise!"

"Why, then—er—of course, if you wish it."

"That's right because I want to come again—that is, if you want me. But if Brother Jack was on to you, Dicky, as I am, he would sooner have me at a hotel, that's all."

"But my dear Frances—"

"I tell you I know, Dicky, he doesn't approve of young ladies in pajamas."

She chuckled. "Not even black ones."

She stood up, looking at herself and performing a graceful pirouette before the long pier glass.

"Now, if they had been crimson," she proceeded, "he might have felt different. Old Jack's great on Harvard, and so am I."

Of course. All Radcliffe girls were, I knew.

By Jove, how I wished I could show her the lovely crimson pajamas Mastermann had sent me from China! But I would have to summon Jenkins to find them, and besides, it would be of questionable taste to present them to her attention.

"Great idea, this, having pajamas in your college colors," she said. I thought so, too, as I noted admiringly the rich effect of her golden head above the black silk. But I thought the color a devilish odd one—somber, you know—for colors of a young girl's school.

"My! my!" she murmured, "wouldn't I just love to live in pajamas—just go about in 'em all the time, you know! Why can't we, I wonder?" Her face flashed me a ravishing smile; and while I was blinking over her question, she went on: "Funny how the girls even are taking to 'em—even Sis wears 'em!" She chuckled. "Here are gray flannellette. But the girl I'm telling you about—she don't. Sis told the matter about it. It seems that before she left China, some high muck muck gave her governor a swell pair of silk ones—something like these, I guess, but I don't know of what color. But, anyhow, they were too delicate and fine to be wasted on an old stiff like that, and he had sense enough to know it. So he passed 'em down the line to her—Frances, you know. Well, sir—here she sidled to the table and half leaned, half perched, upon its edge; and I was so distracted watching her graceful pose and gestures, that I lost what she was saying, by Jove."

It was her trill of laughter at something she had said, and the question: "Wasn't that funny?" that brought me back to what she was telling me.

"Yes, sir—said she just scared her maid—oh, batty! Because she looked so ugly in 'em—that's what she thinks, but of course—shucks! Anyhow, she never wore 'em any more, and a day or two later some coolie stole them—sold 'em probably."

Suddenly she yawned, stretched her arms above her head, and flashed me a dazzling smile. By Jove, in the loose-fitting garments she looked for all the world like an Oriental houri, or some jolly lovely thing like that.

"Gee; but I'm sleepy!" she said behind her little hand. "If you'll excuse me, Dicky, I believe it will be off to the springs—the bed springs, for little Frankie. Good night, then. See you in the morning."

And with another radiant smile, she moved toward her room.

"Good night," I said wistfully.

By Jove, somehow I had hoped she would offer to kiss me, now that we were engaged in a way. But then, of course, it wouldn't do—she knew that.

A Statement of Facts Backed by a Strong Guarantee.

We guarantee immediate and positive relief to all sufferers from constipation. In every case where our remedy fails to do this we will return the money paid us for it. That's a frank statement of facts, and we want you to substantiate them at our risk.

Regal Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night, do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Regal Orderlies are unapproachable and ideal for the use of children, old folks and delicate persons. We cannot too highly recommend them to all sufferers from any form of constipation and its attendant evils. That's why we back our faith in them with our promise of money back if they do not give entire satisfaction. Three sizes: 12 tablets 10 cents, 20 tablets 25 cents and 50 tablets 50 cents. WHAT ARNOLD
A Clark Everglades Investigation Witness
Says About Mr. Clark

Joseph A. Arnold, Editor in Chief of the Division of Publications of the Department of Agriculture, a witness in Congressman Clark's Everglades investigation, whose statements were made upon oath and as a party of that investigation, says that Mr. Clark declared that if the Everglades report was very favorable "it would hurt SOME OF HIS CONSTITUENTS who owned Florida land outside of the Everglades that was just as good as the Everglades."

Let us have a Congressman who will represent ALL OF HIS CONSTITUENTS fairly, whether they own lands in or out of the Everglades and whether they own lands at all or not.

R. HUDSON BURR
Candidate for Congress, Second District

Bo ought I. Perhaps in the morning at the boat!

But all in vain my early rise the next morning, my careful toilet and my dash in a taxi to a florist and then to Tiffany's for a ring. At the pier I dodged about in the crowd, the boy trailing behind me with the big purple box, but not a devilish thing could I see of Frances. By Jove, I almost broke my monocle straining! At last I was sure she must be left, for the last passengers were passing over the gang-plank.

"Hello, Dicky!"
The voice, coarse and hearty, came from an athletic young man in a hurrah suit. On his head, perched jauntily above a mass of yellow hair, was a straw hat with a crimson band.

I stared at him through my glass, but it was any one I knew at all. I looked at him coldly, for there's nothing so devilish annoying as familiarities from strangers. I thought I could freeze him off.

But he only grinned. "Looking for Miss Billings?"

"I—I haven't seen her," I answered stiffly. But his question alarmed me. He chuckled in my face. "Guess you don't know her in her clothes, eh, Dicky?" And I did not need the punch he gave me in the side to make me stagger backward. "A thousand thanks, and good-by, old chap. I see they're hauling in the plank."

He lingered for one bearlike grab at my hand.

"And say, don't forget—for I know Jack Billings better than you do—don't ever let him know about all that Scotch last night."

He called over his shoulder with a grin: "Keep it dark—as dark as those black pajamas, Dicky!"

And as long as I could see, he stood on the deck, waving his hat at me, as I stood here with my mouth open, my eyes following him with horror.

By Jove, who was he, and what did he know?

CHAPTER VIII.

Her Brother Jack.

"Good night, Dicky!" came up the elevator shaft. And then more "good nights," growing fainter with their laughter as the car shot down. "Good night," I called after them. "Devilish sorry you fellows won't stay longer!"

"Jolly good lie, Jenkins," I said, yawning sleepily, as I dropped back into my own apartment.

"Yes, sir," assented Jenkins demurely. "It's sleeping on the divan the other night, sir. Eight hours there ain't nothing like eight hours in bed and in your pajamas."

"Pajamas!" I ejaculated, startled. For all day I had been thinking of her. I wondered if Billings would happen to invite me up for the week end. But he had so many times, and I had never gone.

"By Jove, that reminds me," I said. "Those red silk pajamas!"

"Yes, sir," Jenkins' face hardened in an odd, wooden way.

"I was wondering, Jenkins, if those pajamas were torn any in our little row the other night."

Poor Jenkins winced a little. "I think not, sir," he muttered humbly—"leastwise, they were all right last night when Mr.—" He seemed to catch himself abruptly. "I mean when I found them this morning, sir."

He returned with the garments I had received from Mastermann, and again we spread them under the lamp on the table. They looked singularly smooth and unwrinkled. There was not a single tear or break, not even with the delicate cords that twisted to form the frogs of the seat.

"My, sir! But ain't they red!" breathed Jenkins. "Them cords look like little red snakes."

I cut an anxious glance at Jenkins, for I did not like his reference to snakes. Seemed ominous, somehow. But his appearance was composed and reassuring. And, by Jove, come to look, the cords did look just like tiny, coiled serpents of glowing fire. Why, they were so jolly red they hurt your eyes. Fact! And thin as the beautiful stuff was, this brighter red ran all over the other, covering every inch of it and forming the closest, finest what-you-call-it embroidery. It was as faint and dainty a pattern as that on a soap bubble! Fact is, I could not trace it, even with my glass.

The only part that wasn't covered with this embroidery business was the stuff used to cover the knots, or little balls, over which the cords were meant to hook. In working with some of these cords, idly fastening and unfastening them, I got a little impatient with one that seemed tight, you know, and I used my manicure knife to pull the knot through.

"Careful, sir," warned Jenkins. "Likely to cut something."

By Jove! No sooner said, than I did it!

The dashed blade slipped somehow and cut into the threads that tied the covers or caps or whatever-you-call-'ems, over the knots. And when I pulled, the beastly piece of silk came off in my fingers.

And then—oh, but I say! I just gave a sort of yell and dropped the whole thing!

Ever have some silly ass try to scare you by poking a red hot cigar at you in the dark? Know how you jerk back? Well, there you are! For, give you my word, when I peeled off the little cloth cap, regular blazes of crimson fire seemed to shoot from the end of the knot.

Fact is, it wasn't a knot at all, but a button—a devilish glassy button, something bigger than a dime, perhaps, and thick as the end of your little finger. And there it lay against the silk, burning its way through it like a red coal of fire.

And it was just then that Billings rolled in.

I say "rolled in," because it always looks that way. That's the way Billings is built, you know.

"I say, Dicky," he panted, "just missed another infernal express! Plenty more trains, but I had a great inspiration strike me that I'd let you put me up for the night. Hat, Jenkins! Now, don't say a word, Dicky, old chap. Cane, Jenkins! Great pleasure, assure you—won't inconvenience at all. Gloves, Jenkins! Just give me something to sleep in, and I'll be as comfortable here as I would be at the club—so don't worry any about me, old chap. By the way, want to thank you for taking care of the kid. Got home all right, I understand."

He plunked like a jolly elephant into the largest and most comfortable chair in the room and wheezed for breath.

"And, Jenkins!" He raised one fat finger while he took a gasp. "Don't mind if I do have a package of Dicky's Koroskos and a slice fix—not too sweet, you know; and you may—"

Billings broke off suddenly. Then he climbed heavily to his feet, and without warning, heaved himself across the room and seized the button I had just uncovered. Dashed if he didn't almost upset me.

"Here, I say!" I protested. "Don't lose that cap." I picked it up from where he had jerked it to the floor. "It's the cover to hide that glass, you know."

"Wh-a-a-t!"
Billings swung round, staring at me with the most curious expression.

"See here, Dicky," he exclaimed rather excitedly, but in a low tone, as he cut a side glance at Jenkins sipping the fix over at the cellarette. "What in thunder have you been doing now?"

By Jove, I turned cold for a minute, I was that startled. I thought he was going to use the pajamas as an introduction for reference to last night. But in a minute I saw that he did not mean that.

"Where on earth did you get anything like this?" And he held up the button and the garment.

"Oh, I say now!" I remonstrated, alarm changing to a mild dodge. Billings' devilish rude manners are so offensive at times. "What do you mean? It's a present from a friend in China."

"Present!" Billings' eyes bulged queerly. He stooped toward me, whispering: "Did he know what this button was?"

"Why, of course he didn't," I answered indignantly. "Never dreamed of it, of course. I tell you, it was all nicely covered, was what-you-call-it—upholstered, you know—with devilish nice silk. I cut it off accidentally, trying to force the thing through that loop. That left the marble exposed."

Billings took the glass mechanically from the tray tendered by Jenkins and sipped it slowly, eyeing me curiously over the top. Then he set it back, very deliberately, wiped his mouth with the bit of napery, and without taking his glance from me, waited until Jenkins had left the room. Whereupon, after another searching look at the button, he dropped it with the garment upon the table, and with hands jammed deep in his pockets, faced me with a long-drawn whistle.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" he exclaimed. Just a coarse, vulgar outburst, you know—no sense to it; no point at all, you know—that's Billings.

He caught up the coat again. "And these others—four of them—are they just the same?" he demanded sharply.

"Dash it, how should I know? I suppose so," I answered indifferently. And I closed my eyes and leaned back, feeling a bit—just a bit—weary. Somehow, Billings is always so exhausting when he gets started on something.

"Oh, cut it out, old chap," I protested, drowsy-like.

"I will," I heard him say. Then I guess I must have dropped off a bit, for the next thing I knew he was shaking me.

"Dicky! Dicky! Say, look here! Look, I tell you!"

I did look, and—well, I was jolly vexed, that's all.

"Oh, I say now!" I spoke severely—just that way, you know. I went on, remonstrating: "Devilish silly joke, if you ask me. You've gone and ruined the thing, Billings! Flashy buttons like that, you know—too tawdry, too cheap."

"Cheap!" He almost shouted it. Then he leaned over the back of the leather chair and pounded his fat head against the cushions, writhing his big bulk from side to side.

"Quite impossible," I said firmly. "Not en regle at all, you know!" And I fixed my glass and stared gloomily at the things. The five shiny buttons just lay there against the delicate silk like so many fiery crimson cherries.

He leered at me, chuckling. "Look cheap to you, eh? What you might call outre, so to speak?"

"By Jove, of course," I answered ruefully. "I can't sleep in the things now, you know. What would people say?"

Billings stared at me disagreeably a moment and said something under his breath. Then he caught up the buttons and the silk, and crushing them in his hands, buried his face in the mass.

"Oh you beauties, you darlings!" I heard him murmur.

Then he looked at the buttons again, and dash it, he kissed me. Maudlin—jolly maudlin, I say, if you ask me!

"I say, Dicky," he said carelessly. "You may not care for them, but I've taken rather a shine to these buttons. Mind letting me have one, eh?"

He flashed a quick glance at me and then away.

"Mind? Why, certainly not; take 'em all, old chap, and welcome." Yet I responded gloomily enough, scarcely polite, you know. And I felt too jolly prostrated to be curious as to what he could possibly want with the things. Waistcoat buttons, likely—Billings was given to loud dress and other boulder stunts. But he just sat there looking down after I spoke, and presently stole a queer glance at me.

He suddenly held up the row of red buttons again.

"Look here, you blessed dodo," he exclaimed brusquely. "Have you really no idea what these are, these glass buttons you are yapping about? Of course you haven't, you jolly chowder head, but I'm going to tell you."

He threw the coat into my lap.

"They are rubies, old man, that's all," he said quietly. "Oriental rubies, at that—flawless and perfect—the rarest and most precious things in the world."

CHAPTER IX.

An Amazing Revelation.

I stared blankly at Billings. "Rubies!" I gasped.

He nodded. "Genuine pigeon bloods, my son, no less."

"Oh, come now, Billings," I protested. I felt a little miffed, just a little you know. So jolly raw to try it on that way.

"By Jove, old chap, you must think me a common ass," I suggested disgustedly.

Billings grinned at the very idea.

"You a common ass, Dicky?" he

"Have You Really No Idea What These Are?"

ejaculated. "Nobody who knows you would ever think that, old man."

"But, I say—"

"See here, Dicky boy, I'm in dead earnest," he interrupted eagerly. "Don't you remember my one fad-gems? Got enough tied up in them to build two apartment houses as big as this. Best amateur collection in New York, if I do say it. But I haven't anything like one of these rubies, and neither has any one else—no one else in this country, anyhow. There's nothing like them in all New York, and never has been. I never saw anything like—near like any of them—except the one in the Russian crown of Anna Ivanovna. That's bigger, but it hasn't the same fire."

I just laughed at him. "Why, Billings, these pajamas were sent me by a friend in China, and I assure you—"

"Assure? What can you assure—what do you know about it?" said Billings rudely. "What did your friend know, or the one he had these things from—or the one before him—or the one still before that? Pahaw!" And he snapped his fingers.

With his hand he swept up the little caps and the long, wirelike threads that held them and sniffed the handful curiously.

"H'm! Funky sort of aromatic smell—balsam, cedar oil or something like that," he muttered half aloud. "That accounts for the preservation. Boy, still—"

He crossed his legs and puffed thoughtfully.

"Tell you how I figure this out, Dicky," he said finally. "These night-tea your friend has sent you are awfully rare and old; and for delicate

HAPPENINGS DURING THE WEEK

Here the Readers Will Find a Brief Historical Spring Flowing For Hurred Readers

Crowds have already begun to pour into Nashville for the Fourth Annual Southern Commercial Congress which will meet today for a three days' session. Preparations have been made for 10,000 visitors and the early arrivals indicate that this number doubtless will be present.

Thirty thousand persons are homeless, 2,000 square miles of country inundated, thirty persons drowned and a financial loss estimated at $10,000,000, constitute the result of a two weeks' flood in the Mississippi valley. They figures were arrived at last night by government engineers and officials of state levee boards engaged in battling with the ravages of the Mississippi river from points in Illinois to threatened points in Mississippi and Arkansas.

Money may prove superior to mountain strategy in capturing Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards, the two outlaws of the Allen clan still at large. With no definite prospect of locating the fugitives by raiding the mountainside, the detectives now are said to be attempting to secure information of the hiding places of the two men by paying $1,000 or more for knowledge that would lead to an immediate arrest.

Senator sand representatives are becoming impatient over the senate's delay on the tariff and other important legislation, but the leaders, figuring that the ways can be cleared quickly on emergency, express confidence can congress can adjourn before the national party conventions in June.

Ohio, the state which has been the scene of countless political battles, the land of "Sunset" Cox, "fire alarm" Foraker, John Sherman, William McKinley, William Howard Taft, and Judson Harmon, is to witness another gigantic struggle within the next few weeks. Harmon is fighting to hold the state. Wilson is struggling just as hard to wrest it from him, and William J. Bryan, it is said, will enter the commonwealth in the interests of the New Jersey governor. Thus, so far as the interests of Wilson and Harmon for the presidency are concerned, the pivotal stage of the present fight may be said to have arrived.

J. W. Wolters, Jr., solicitor of the city court of Albany and one of the most prominent attorneys of South Georgia, shot and killed himself in the office of a local manufacturing plant today.

The queen of Holland has given 300 gulden to the fund being raised by Gen. Booth for prosecuting the work of the Salvation Army in Amsterdam. The queen is very much interested in the work of the army, as she is in everything that may be for the good of her people.

General activity prevails in all the coal mining districts of Great Britain today. In Scotland and North Wales there is a large increase in the numbers of miners descending into the shafts, while in England and South Wales preparations are made for a general resumption of work tomorrow.

Further legislation to protect waterways against railway competition; to establish amicable relations between the two and to promote federal co-operation with local interests in construction of canals are urged in the first report of the National Waterways Commission made public today.

The first move to save the life of Clarence V. T. Richeson, the confessed murderer of Avis Linnell, sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week beginning May 9, was made today. Attorney Morse, for the minister, conferred with Executive Secretary Hamlin, at the State house, after which it was announced that Richeson's counsel will appear before the governor April 26 and argue the question referring a petition to executive clemency.

BENEFIT OF THE HOSPITAL

An Added Attraction At The Imperial For This Week

Miss Ida Root-Gordon, Actress and Dramatic Reader who is the added attraction at the Imperial this week is a daughter of Laura Ammonet Gordon native of Memphis, Tenn., and of Wellington Gordon, a well known and distinguished Missouri lawyer, and granddaughter of John B. Gordon of that state who was a first cousin of the late Gen. John B. Gordon of Georgia. Miss Gordon is a member of the American Daughters of the Revolution, her direct descendant being Capt. John Boyle, of Kentucky, Oren Root, Gen. Manager of the Met. Railway of New York City, and a nephew of Elihu Root, is a first cousin of Miss Gordon.

Miss Gordon is a graduate of Christian College, Columbia Mo., holding the B. L. and B. O. degree and of Emerson College of Oratory Boston it was Mr. Dore Davidson of Charles Frohman's forces who advised Miss Gordon to give up her contemplated career as a dramatic teacher in favor of the stage. Her first opportunity was in 1902 in the English production in this country of "Hearts Are Trumps," under Mr. Davidson's direction playing the principle engine lead before the close of the season. Miss Gordon's best feature work has been "en tour" under her husband's management. The parts that she has achieved success in are, "Parthenia," "Juliet," "Katharine," "Lady Macbeth" in the legitimate, "Virginia," in "At Valley Forge," "Katusha," in "Resurrection," and "Forget Me Not." The dual lead of Vera and Alice in "The Rosary" last season, "Mrs. Howard Jeffries" in "The Third Degree" this season appearing in Sanford this winter.

In 1902 Miss Gordon was married to the late Willis Dunlap, eldest son of A. H. Dunlap, a prominent lawyer of Minnetonka, Mich.

Sanford Celery Crop

Sanford, Fla., April 5.—The celery crop is about half marketed. There are around 250 cars to be cut and these will move more gradually from now on. About 140 cars should roll this week, as against 183 last week, the banner week of the season on celery. Prices have naturally eased up under heavy shipments, starting at $2 early in the week and winding up around $1.50 to 1.65 on No. 1 stock, with inferior cars bringing less money. Lower values will lead consumers to take hold of celery in large quantities, particularly the middle-class of trade, which has really not been in a position to handle any celery since New Year's owing to its scarcity and extreme high prices. Lower than $1.50 is not anticipated at present.

In all, about 20 cars of lettuce went forward last week, and about 10 will move this week. This practically closes the season here on that commodity. Buyers took all cars this week, ranging $1.75 to 2.00 per hamper. There is some blight in a few celery fields, but the recent cool nights have proven beneficial and indications are now that the quality will be maintained and a good crop will be loaded right along.

Potatoes are progressing nicely. The fields look thrifty. If there is anything like favorable weather, the yield per acre should be heavy and the crop early. Tomatoes are progressing nicely. In fact, all of the diversified crops are in splendid condition with the outlook good for a steady movement until June. Despite the heavy movement, the crops are being well handled this year by experienced representatives of marketing companies, who supervise the grading, packing and loading and are doing everything possible to facilitate the proper handling of all crops.

Quite a number of buyers, representing many markets, are on the ground, and Sanford is a mighty busy spot at present. Among the leading distributors here who maintain fully equipped offices are: M. O. Ciggins Co. of Pittsburg and Jacksonville; Chase & Co. of Jacksonville, Sanford and other points; J. E. Paces, the largest individual grower and independent operator, and others.—Produce News.

The Hospital Fund

The per cent given to the Hospital Fund by the Kelly Stock Company last Thursday evening, at the solicitation of Mrs. A. W. Moses, added $9.40 to the fund. Several of the members of the Lend A Hand Club were present in the costumes of hospital nurses. Mrs. Moses' perseverance and increasing efforts in behalf of the contemplated hospital is an object lesson that could teach many to "do with their might what their hands find to do."

CELERY STILL MOVING

Shipments Are Almost Cut in Half This Week

MARKET CONDITIONS ARE EASIER

Product Getting Scarce And Lower Prices Will Sell More Off The Later Stuff

The recent cool weather will have a tendency to improve the late celery and the growers are very hopeful of a better market now that the bulk of the crop has gone forward. There is but little of the first crop of celery left and the growers are getting $1.50 for good stuff and $1.00 for the poorer grades. It is the estimate of both the growers and buyers that the cooler weather has materially assisted in boosting the price this week and with the scarcity of stuff going forward the price will get better. The spring crops are looking fine and potatoes will go forward in a few days. The S. & E. Railway has orders for seventy cars, which would indicate a large acreage on the east side. Potatoes never looked better and prospects for a good market are very good. Tomatoes will be the real thing this season, as the crop is short on the East Coast and Sanford will have an early crop.

Beans and cucumbers will also come in for a share of Sanford's vegetable growing and many other crops. The farmers are learning to diversify the crops until now no grower ever thinks of making celery and lettuce the sole crop.

Corn is king here and nowhere else can this great staple attain the luxuriant growth that it does in the subirrigated district of Sanford. The farmers are all busy planting corn, now that most of the celery is off and none of them will need to buy corn or hay for their stock. Verily, no misfortune can put the Sanford farmer down and keep him down for he has the world where he wants it.

Isham B. Williams

Isham B. Williams died at his home on Magnolia avenue after a short illness. Mr. Williams was born in Crockett county, Tennessee some forty-two years ago and while yet a young man came to Sanford to make his home. For the past twenty years Sam, as he was called by his many friends lived in Sanford. For several years he resided in Tampa and other cities, but called Sanford his home. He was engaged in various lines of business here, among them being furniture, groceries and other lines.

For the past year he served the city faithfully and well as sanitary inspector and special policeman, only relinquishing public service when his failing health called a halt.

Mr. Williams was a familiar figure on the streets, being most optimistic by nature and despite ill health always had a laugh or a joke for everyone he happened to meet.

Several weeks ago his health became a matter of grave concern and at the advice of physicians Mr. Williams tried living in the open piney woods, but the insidious disease was not stayed in its approach and death claimed him.

The funeral services occurred from the late residence last Sunday, being largely attended. Rev. C. H. Summers officiated and the Sanford Aerie of Eagles had charge of the funeral ceremonies. Interment was made in Lakeview cemetery.

Mr. Williams left a wife and two brothers, J. B. and T. W. to mourn his loss.

Lake in Orlando

Mr. Forrest Lake, of Sanford, was in town today giving his friends some breezy ideas about booming a town.

Mr. Lake is in the legislative race, and when he gets into a race there is something doing, as the Orange county people well know. And he should be returned to his work. As this newspaper has said many times before, a chance in representation without good and sufficient cause, is dangerous and destructive practice. Not only is there no good cause why Mr. Lake should not be returned, but there is positive reason why he should be returned.—Reporter-Star.

Death of Raymond Schucht

Raymond, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schucht died at their home in Jacksonville last Saturday. Interment was made in that city on Sunday. Mrs. Schucht will be remembered in this city as Miss Emma Randall, and both Mr. and Mrs. Schucht have many friends here who will sympathize with them in their loss.

GROWING WINTER VEGETABLE

Florida Has No Competition in The Winter Vegetable Market

Homeseekers looking for locations in Florida frequently ask what can be grown that will bring the quickest returns after a tract of land is cleared and fenced and plowed?

That depends entirely upon the section of the State the homeseeker selects, and the season of the year that he gets his land ready for planting and the cultivation of vegetables. Many of these homeseekers forget that the great vegetable season in Florida is in the winter months.

Many of these homeseekers, after they become settlers, work entirely too slow in getting their land cleared and ready for cultivation, and as a result they frequently miss an entire season for some of the very best paying crops. Those who wish to succeed must make "hay while the sun shines." They must get their land ready and get their crops in the ground at the same time as their neighbors, or they will not begin to receive the returns that others receive for their produce.

It would be folly for a Florida producer to plant his crops so late that they would come into competition with the crops from north of Florida. The difference in the freight charges alone would take about all the profits, and then the difference in time in reaching the northern markets would have to be taken in consideration.

The big profits that are made from Florida vegetables is largely due to the fact that they reach the market when there is absolutely no competition from any other part of the United States. Lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, etc., will not bring the same prices in the late spring and summer months as they do in the winter. In all the late spring they can be raised in all parts of the country but in the winter they can only be grown in Florida.

There is big money to be made in lettuce. This is a winter crop in Florida. The seed bed is made about September 1st, and the plants are ready to transplant about October 1st, and planting may continue up to February 1st. Cucumbers follow lettuce, and are next in value.

Following the cucumber the season for planting field crops has arrived, and corn and peas or corn and velvet beans should be planted. The bean and pea being a fertilizer, putting nitrogen in the soil, the land is much improved. Such land may be counted on for a yield of thirty to forty bushels of corn to the acre, and the bean, a rank grower, has closely shaded the ground, smothering out grasses and weeds, will yield about thirty bushels per acre, and should be planted together, as the corn holds up the bean and the bean shades the ground.

It is the custom of a successful farmer in Florida to put about five or six cattle to the acre, with eight or ten hogs to run under them, and in thirty days the cattle and hogs are ready for the market as a by-product to the rich industry vegetable raising.

Florida has long been noted for the excellence and great yield per acre of sweet potatoes, and the ease with which they are grown. The planting and digging constitute almost the entire labor, and the yield on good land is from 200 to 400 bushels per acre, and follows early vegetables.—Florida Grower.

For Wednesday Night

The first gun of the Sanford campaign of the Men and Religion Forward Movement is to be fired Wednesday night. The central committee has provided for two big union meetings that night, one for men at the Methodist church and one for women at the Congregational church.

The women's meeting is to be in charge of Miss Allie Trafford and is to be largely a prayer service for the success of the great four days rally of "Men and Religion" that is to open next Sunday.

Mr. John D. Jinkins will be in charge of the men's meeting and an exceedingly interesting program has been arranged. If you believe in your city, or in the church, or in the work of men for men, be on hand at one of these meetings and help prepare the way for the big Sunday rallies. These rallies take the place of the regular prayer meetings in the churches—7:30 next Wednesday night.

Milton Will Be Here

Hon. W. H. Milton, candidate for Governor will be in Sanford next Saturday and address the people from the platform opposite the Herald office at night. This is the first real political meeting of the present campaign and a large crowd is expected to attend.

CULLED FROM THE STATE PRESS

An Epitome of the Week's Most Important Happenings in the State's Domain.

The Florida Bankers' Association which met in Key West adjourned Friday afternoon after a very successful meeting. A great deal of business was transacted in the two days and the sessions were well attended. Bankers from New York, Georgia, Louisiana, the Carolinas and Alabama were present.

Pensacola is quarantined against all foreign ports now, the quarantine having gone into effect April 1st. This means that all boats from foreign countries will have to first go to quarantine stations and be inspected before they are allowed to dock in Pensacola.

The Hillsborough county commissioners at their recent meeting voted to improve the county hospital service for those unable to go to private sanitariums. The board granted $100.00 to hire two nurses, along with other important improvements badly needed.

The world's record was made in torpedo firing in Pensacola Thursday night by the U. S. torpedo boat destroyers that have been engaged in target practice in that harbor for a week.

The Supreme Court now in session at Tallahassee has had a very busy week, handing down its decisions in quite a number of very important cases.

Lakeland is fast forging to the front as one of Florida's leading cities, and every day some new enterprise is put under way, the latest step forward being the granting of a franchise by the city council to W. R. Peters and associates, of Minneapolis, Minn., for the erection of a $50,000 gas plant, same to be completed within one year.

While laying off the site for the new town of Harwood in the vicinity of the Tomoka river, Surveyor D. D. Rogers unearthed the ruins of an old Spanish fort built of coquina rock, the general plan of which is very much like old Fort Marion at St. Augustine.

Palm Beach county, which was aliced off from Dade, has just paid the last of its obligations to the Dade school fund and is now free from debt.

Fort Myers has a civic club which is doing a wonderful work in beautifying the city. Through its efforts the city now has a pretty park and the streets are kept neat and clean.

The Lakeland Woman's club has decided to have a clean-up day there at an early date and put the city in fine shape for spring. The school children will be invited to co-operate with the club in its work.

Assessments of Candidates

Under our Primary System it is necessary to assess candidates to pay expenses of holding the election. These assessments are made as we understand, as near as can be, according to the pay of the office. This is as it should be. Now, we do not want to criticize anyone, but the Executive Committee make an itemized statement of receipts and disbursements. We understand that this has not been done in the past and we get this information from a number of different parties that are in a position to know. Does it take more to hold a regular election, than it does to hold a wet or dry election? Should not one of the Committee act as secretary and treasurer and save the expense of employing one, or if the secretary gives services as do the members of the Committee, should he not furnish an itemized statement of the receipts and disbursements and refund, pro rata, to each candidate, should there be a surplus? We only speak of these things in fairness to the candidates as we all know that it is very expensive to go through a campaign at best. We believe the Committee will look at this matter as we do and have this done. The law says the candidate shall keep an accurate account, and why not the Committee?—Oveld Advance.
