Rental scam

LAKE MARY — Mack Ramsey and his family returned home yesterday after a Christmas vacation, to find a "for rent" sign in the front yard of his home on Silversmith Circle in the Sheffield subdivision.

According to a report from the Seminole County sheriff's department, a short time after Ramsey returned, a family came to the house and told him they had signed papers to rent the house, and were about to put down a deposit with an unknown person. Ramsey reportedly assured the family the house was not for rent.

Investigators are trying to determine who placed the sign in Ramsey's front yard.

Accident fatal to DeLand youth

DELAND — The Florida Highway Patrol investigated a three-car collision yesterday afternoon, at the intersection of Betsford Avenue and SR-15A. According to the investigating trooper's report, a 1993 Nissan pickup, driven by Jason Lewis Puckett, 24, of DeLand, reportedly approached the intersection in a westbound direction. The incident report says the vehicle ran a red traffic light. It subsequently collided with a southbound 1987 Volvo driven by Gayle Lee Bouie, 41, of DeLand, and a northbound 1994 Cadillac, driven by Frederick Huber, 80, also of DeLand.

One of the Bouie children, Alicyn Leigh Bouie, age 12, was reportedly killed in the accident. Carlton Vernon Bouie, 15, received minor injuries. The mother, Gayle Lee Bouie, was airlifted to West Volusia Hospital and rated in serious condition.

Puckett was also hospitalized in serious condition. Huber was reportedly not injured.

The FHP said there was $10,000 damage to the Volvo, $4,000 damage to the Nissan, and $3,000 damage to the Cadillac.

As of yesterday afternoon, no charges had been filed, pending a further investigation.

DAV holiday activities

SANFORD — The Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Chapter 30 in Sanford, is having several special events for the remainder of this year as well as early in 1995.

This Thursday, Dec. 29, the DAV Chapter 30 is sponsoring a holiday luncheon for the Veterans Affairs Day Care Center in Daytona Beach. According to Al Townsend, an estimated 30 persons, including the veterans and people who will help bring them to the event, are expected to attend.

Local as well as district DAV officials will be on hand to assist in serving the roast pork dinner. The event will begin at 11:30 a.m. at the chapter building, 3512 Orlando Drive.

A donation of $4 is requested from DAV members and their guests.

On New Year's Eve, the DAV Chapter 30 will be holding a special New Year's party for members and their guests. The cost of the event

Cops concerned ammo could fall into wrong hands

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The manufacturer of a new armor-piercing bullet promised today to delay its release because of fears that criminals could get their hands on it.

David Keen, speaking on the NBC "Today" show, said he's made "a management decision to put the Black Rhino on hold — even if it is approved" by federal authorities.

"We're seeing a change in what the law enforcement wants based upon the response that they're seeing from the public, and that is fear that the rounds will fall into the wrong hands," Keen said.

"There's a genuine fear out there that the rounds could fall into the wrong hands. ... We're going to be a responsible manufacturer," he said.

The government wants to regulate firearms. I think they should also regulate the type of bullets which are made and sold."

Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell said Tuesday there must be government restrictions placed on the manufacture and sale of Rhino-Ammo, a new ammunition that is capable of penetrating bulletproof vests.

Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary said the big problem isn't as much the ammunition, but who will regulate it and how it will be regulated.

The ammunition is reportedly capable of penetrating body armor, the type used by law enforcement officers.

In addition to the Rhino-Ammo, a second type of new hyper-destructive bullet is also being developed. It is said to be capable of maximum damage to the human torso.

Russell said he joins with other police officers who have voiced angry objections over the bullets.

"The government wants to regulate firearms," he said. "I think they should also regulate the type of bullets which are made and sold."

Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger also referred to firearm regulations. "So far," he said, "the gun control legislation hasn't had much of

Crime takes a holiday?

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — Although Monday was a holiday for many government employees and office workers, crime didn't take a holiday, especially on French Avenue in Sanford.

While some of the crimes are believed to have actually occurred on Monday, some may have taken place over the Christmas weekend, but were not discovered until Monday.

Police incident reports filed Monday listed the following:

● In the 1000 block of French Avenue, a 1993 Chevrolet, reportedly stolen in Volusia County from a Deltona resident, was located by Sanford police.

● Nearby, also in the 1000 block of French Avenue, a business owner discovered a 5-ton air conditioning unit, valued at $1,500, had been stolen from his business. When police arrived at the scene, they reported finding a vehicle parked nearby, which had been listed as stolen.

Hospital to expand in Lake Mary

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The building has been largely unused for some years and could possibly remain so for a few more, but Florida Hospital is in the process of purchasing the medical facility on Sand Pond Road in Lake Mary.

Though the Adventist Health System/Sunbelt Inc., the parent company of Florida Hospital, doesn't have any specific plans for its use, they have agreed to pay $2.5 million for the 48,000 square-foot building on 11 acres of land.

"The deal is not finalized yet," said Ann Hiles, shareholder relations manager for Comprehensive Care Corporation of Chesterfield, Mo., from whom the building is being purchased.

Hiles foresees no problems with the sale and expects the final papers to be signed by the end of January.

Barbara Grossman, a spokesman for Florida Hospital, said the hospital is "still reviewing the space" and will make a decision "at some later date" regarding the future of the facility.

"It will be used for some sort of outpatient services," Grossman said. "I don't know if it will be rehabilitation or some sort of other services. We're still evaluating the situation."

Hiles said that the facility was used for a behavioral health care facility (alcohol and drug treatment) until February, 1991.

"It has been empty since then," she said.

Florida Hospital already owns and operates several facilities in the Seminole, Orange and Osceola SANFORD — Things could start heating up at the Sanford City Hall. Then again, they could start to cool off.

Efforts are underway to have the heating/ventilation/air conditioning (HVAC) unit which services the building repaired, along with other related changes.

For several months, complaints have been voiced by persons at City Hall that half of the building is often too warm, while the other half is too cool. Yet it is supposedly handled by one major HVAC unit.

The city commission recently authorized City Manager Bill Simmons to renew a contract with Bosek, Gibson & Associates, (BGA). Back in 1992, the city had entered into a three-phase contract with BGA. Phase I was to evaluate the existing system and develop alternatives for future study. Phase II was to explore the economic alternatives to define a course of action. Both of these have now been completed.

Phase III is for a design of the ### Rally 'round the Derby race

Billy Daly, left, Samantha Akers, Jeffrey Akers and mom MaryAnn Akers get ready to try out racers at Sanford's Derby Park this morning as parents and youngsters confer with officials. Daly was Stock Division Champion in the qualifying races in Sanford earlier this year, and finished seventh in the nationals in Akron, Ohio. The Holiday Soap Box Rally continues until 5 this afternoon, with a second day of racing from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. tomorrow. Several dozen boys and girls from many states and throughout Florida are participating in this event. Sanford's Derby Park is located on Oregon Road, just off the Rinehart Road extension between S.R. 46 and S.R. 46-A. The public is invited to the races with no charge for admission.

Health care plan scaled back

TALLAHASSEE — Reformers are expected to resurrect an insurance plan to help working families obtain health coverage by offering a scaled back version pitched earlier this year by Gov. Lawton Chiles.

"As much as we've done to restrain health insurance costs, there are still about 2.8 million Floridians out there without it," said Doug Cook, the governor's top health reformer.

"We have 145,000 businesses that don't insure their folks. If a business does not feel it can afford it, those people just aren't going to get insurance."

Chiles' plan calls for using savings from federal Medicaid payments to welfare recipients to help lower income workers buy private health insurance.

Earlier this year, federal officials approved the use of up to $2 billion over the next five years.

The governor's original plan called for providing subsidies to workers earning up to 250 percent of the federal poverty level, or about $18,400 a year.

A Republican-backed plan called for restricting state subsidies to workers making 150 percent of the federal poverty level, about $11,400 a year.

With elections looming in November, neither group was willing to budge on eligibility thresholds earlier this year and health care died despite a special session devoted to it.

Lobbyists and lawmakers are more optimistic a health reform package will pass in the 1995 regular session, though they doubt it will include everything Chiles originally sought.

Election-year gridlock shouldn't be a factor, observers say.

Chiles is back for four more years, and Republicans will have less to gain with steadfast opposition. Chiles and Democrats may be more inclined to compromise now that Republicans hold a majority in the Senate and nearly half the seats in the House.

Net restriction takes effect

TALLAHASSEE — Some fishermen on Florida's east coast will get an early taste of the state's upcoming ban on commercial fishing nets under a plan to protect endangered sea turtles that begins next week.

Beginning Jan. 3, commercial fishermen along a 150-mile stretch from Ponce de Leon Inlet north of New Smyrna Beach to Jupiter Inlet will be prohibited from setting their nets after dark and face further restrictions for using gill nets. In addition, they will be limited to one gill net per vessel.

The Marine Fisheries Commission, which formulated the rules earlier this year, is attempting to protect green sea turtles that flock to east coast beaches every summer and fall to lay their eggs. The coast represents some of the most productive green turtle nesting sites in the Western Hemisphere.

The winter months are critical to sea turtle survival because juvenile turtles congregate near shore reefs, said Erik Martin, senior scientist and sea turtle expert at Ecological Associates Inc., a Jensen Beach-based consulting firm. Gill nets pose a serious threat to juvenile turtles, who can become entangled and drown.

Jerry Sansom, director of the Organized Fishermen of Florida, said the ban will most severely affect Pompano fishermen, who do a large portion of their fishing by night. Sansom said about 200 fishermen will be affected by the ban.

Sansom said the restrictions represent a compromise between the industry and environmentalists, who wanted an outright ban on all netting beginning Jan. 3. Florida's commercial fishermen already face an overall ban on most netting in state waters until voters in November ban their use beginning July 1.

Trump's club lures Di, Chuck

PALM BEACH — The Prince and Princess of Wales have signed up for separate memberships in Donald Trump's Mar-a-Lago Club but missed out on the two-for-one deal available if they had stayed together.

The royal couple, who stopped being a couple when they separated in 1992, each filed their own application and paid their own $50,000 initiation fee, according to membership director Katharine Merlin.

Ordinarily, a single membership is good for the member's spouse and children as well.

Merlin, who has handled applications for the likes of Steven Spielberg, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Elizabeth Taylor, didn't see any of the paperwork for Charles or Di.

"That, Mr. Trump handled," she said.

Since October, rumors have circulated — following a news report — that Princess Diana is negotiating to buy a 12-room apartment worth $3.5 million in Trump Tower on Fifth Avenue, Buckingham Palace called the report "rubbish."

The Mar-a-Lago Club, which must limit membership to 500, is about half booked and is expected to open in mid-January, Merlin said. She said interest has been so high, the initiation fee will rise to $75,000 on Sunday.

Season in full swing

Tourists, football fans jam roads, theme parks

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — One of Central Florida's busiest tourist seasons is in full swing, with vacationers and football fans jamming theme parks, restaurants, hotels and other attractions.

Thousands filed through turnstiles and entry gates at Orlando-area attractions early Tuesday, mirroring a busy Sunday and Monday.

Walt Disney World, Universal Studios Florida, Sea World and Spaceport USA at Cape Canaveral reported "strong and steady" attendance, surpassing expectations for the holiday weekend in some cases.

Sunshine and cool weather, with high temperatures in the lower 70s, helped draw crowds.

"The weather is cooperating. Everybody's having a ball," said Gail Fein, spokeswoman for Universal.

Roads and parking lots overflowed.

Disney's three parks were forced to close their parking lots on Christmas Day, spokesman Bill Logan said, but attendance eased somewhat on the following two days.

At Sea World, attendance at each show "exceeded our projections," said spokeswoman Toni Caracciolo. "The holiday spirit definitely is still felt — a lot of people are here in their new Christmas clothes."

Orlando International Airport reported an easing of traffic Tuesday after one of its heaviest days of the year on Monday.

"The airlines reported last Friday and Monday as their busiest days of the holiday," said airport spokeswoman Carolyn Fenell. "Traditionally, the Christmas period is our busiest, surpassing Easter, Thanksgiving and New Year."

The Ohio State football team spent much of Monday at Universal and Tuesday at Disney. The Buckeyes play Alabama at the Florida Citrus Bowl in Orlando next Monday. The Crimson Tide players and supporters began arriving in town on Monday.

Theme parks do not report daily attendance, but this week and Easter week are generally the area's busiest tourist periods.

Counties seek fee on cell phones for 911

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A plan to help establish a statewide 911 emergency response system would require cellular phone users to pay an extra 50 cents a month.

The proposal would generate an estimated $8.4 million a year from 1.4 million cellular phones being used in Florida, officials said.

Rural counties with limited or no emergency response communications systems need the money to establish or upgrade 911 systems. Other counties with more advanced systems say they need the extra funding to offset an increasing volume of calls from mobile phones.

Emergency response coordinators settled on the cellular phone fee proposal as the fairest way to develop a statewide system. As much as 17 percent of a county's emergency calls come from cellular phones, officials said.

"This appears to be the most logical way to assist small counties to come up with a method of implementing 911," said Jim Martin, the state's 911 coordinator.

Coordinators of 911 systems from 40 counties voted in October to ask the Legislature to approve the 50-cent surcharge.

The fee would be similar to the fee of up to 50 cents a month now paid by home and business phone customers. That money goes to counties to operate their 911 systems.

State and local officials said they expected cellular phone companies to oppose the proposal when lawmakers are asked to consider it next year.

Lipson said the cellular industry supports 911 and emergency response programs but expressed concern that the fee would amount to a form of double taxation on customers.

"Many if not all our customers have a home phone and are already paying this fee," she said. "You are in effect hitting these customers twice."

Lipson added that the company doesn't charge customers who make 911 calls. She said the company considers those types of calls "a good Samaritan issue."

Bruce Thorburn, information service director for Lake County, said cellular phones account for an increasing number of the calls handled by 911 operators. In Lake, it amounted to almost 10 percent in a six-month period earlier this year, he said.

The county tried to get cellular companies to pay the existing 50-cent fee paid by home and business phone customers but the companies refused, Thorburn said.

Instead, the county commission adopted an ordinance last month that requires cellular companies "doing" business in Lake County to obtain a license to operate there, he said. The license fee could end up costing more than the 50-cent fee.

Where, oh where has my master gone?

Mike Harrison of Sanford, handled a doggie-sitting chore over the Christmas holiday. The "master" of Quartz, a 3-year-old Southeastern Guide Dog, went out of the country for the holiday period, and Harrison volunteered to take care of the dog.

U.S. technology helping nations get ahead

By The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — The United States is falling behind in solar energy technology development and other countries are using American research to get ahead commercially, a solar energy expert says.

The United States is relying on false security provided by falling oil prices and has become complacent about the energy situation, said Yogi Goswami, director of the University of Florida's Solar Energy and Energy Conversion Laboratory.

Goswami also said there was a lack of commitment in this country to commercialize new technology once it is developed.

"Every $10 million of research we do requires another $1 million to $2 million to become of practical use, but our government typically stops short of that," Goswami said. "The problem is that governments from other countries pick up our developments, put in the extra money, make a product and sell it back to the United States."

This has already started to happen in the solar industry, with development and commercialization of systems for solar detoxification — a process that can clean contaminated groundwater and industrial wastewater. The Japanese are spending more money to develop this idea further, and will most likely develop a superior product and sell it in the United States.

The UF solar energy lab, one of the oldest and most complete labs of its kind, designs solar collectors, heating and cooling systems, solar electric power systems and solar detoxification systems.

In light of the United States' solid commitment to helping other countries conserve energy and prevent pollution, an important function of UF's solar lab is to share new solar technology and applications with developing countries, Goswami said. Over the years, people have come to UF from more than 50 countries to receive training in alternative energy technology.

One coup for the lab was the successful collaboration of American and Indian companies to develop solar thermal systems for India.

POLICE BRIEFS

Concealed weapon

Sanford police arrested Mark E. Grzeskowiak, 36, 2550 S. Mellonville Ave., in a store in the 1300 block of Celery Avenue Friday. Police said they responded to a call regarding an alarm, and found Grzeskowiak standing by the counter of the store, with a handgun visible in his pants pocket. He was arrested on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Fight

Brenda Joyce Patterson, 35, 2651 W. 22nd Street, Sanford, was arrested in front of a business on Lake Emma Road by Lake Mary police Friday. Officers said the woman had been reportedly involved in a dispute with several other persons. She was charged with aggravated assault and battery.

Dispute

Sheriff's deputies arrested Leon Francis Lowman, 20, of 200 Pineview Drive, Oviedo, at his residence Monday. Deputies say he had been involved in a dispute with another man over his apparent refusal to paint Lowman's residence. During discussions with the men involved, the deputy said Lowman voiced foul language and insults at him, and was subsequently placed under arrest. In the patrol car, the deputy said Lowman continued to make threats against the deputy as well as the deputy's wife. Lowman was arrested on charges of corruption by threat against a public servant, and resisting an officer without violence.

Stolen car

Cal H. Stubbs, 36, of Apopka, was arrested by Longwood police Monday. Police say they were responding to a call regarding a suspicious vehicle in a parking lot on County Road 427. When they arrived, they reported seeing Stubbs both in and out of the vehicle. A computer check revealed the car was listed as having been stolen in Fort Lauderdale. Stubbs was arrested on a charge of grand theft auto.

Construction items stolen

Three separate incidents of construction items being stolen were reported over this past weekend. Two of them were reported Monday in the Midway Commerce Center area. In the 5000 block of Benchmark Lane of the Center, an estimated $2,588 in items were said to have been taken from a business building which was under construction. In the 2700 block of S. Financial Court, also in the Center, sky light panels and other items with a total value of $2,100 were reportedly stolen. On Saturday, an estimated $240 in construction tools were said to have been taken from the cargo bed of a truck parked in the 100 block of Temple Drive.

Warrants

● Jammie Jerome Brown, 26, 111 McKay Blvd., Sanford, was located Monday by Sanford police at 12th Street and Mangouline Avenue. He was wanted on an Orange County warrant for violation of probation on a conviction of possession of cannabis.
● Lance C. Harris, 33, 3200 S. Orlando Drive, was located at his residence Monday by sheriff's deputies. He was wanted for failing to appear to pay a fine.

Domestic cases

● Javier Martinez, 23, 2541 Myrtle Ave., Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Sunday following a reported fight with his wife. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.
● Gladys Maxine Cleveland, 34, 2430 Randall St., was arrested by deputies in the 3300 block of S.R. 46 Sunday. Deputies said a man tried to break up a fight between Cleveland and another woman, when Cleveland reportedly stabbed him in the lip with a knife. Cleveland was charged with aggravated battery, and aggravated assault.
● Leroy Ervin, 38, 108 Academy Ave., was arrested by Sanford police at Eighth Street and Bay Avenue Saturday following a reported fight with a female. He was charged with domestic violence.
● David M. Schmidt, 35, 102 Blue Spruce Court, Sanford, was arrested by police at his residence Friday, following a reported altercation with a female. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.
● George E. Mitchell, 41, 1511 Terrace Drive, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Monday, following a reported fight with a juvenile female at his home. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.
● Gary Michael Loxton, 32, 144 Myrtle Ave., Lake Mary, was arrested by Lake Mary police Monday at his residence following a reported dispute with his wife. He was charged with battery, domestic violence, and resisting an officer with violence.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

● A red and white 1977 Cadillac, license number QJZ-805 was reported stolen Friday from a business in the 3000 block of Beardsall Avenue.
● Twelve roosters, reportedly bred for fighting and valued at $1,700, were said to have been stolen Saturday from a pen in the 100 block of S. Henderson Lane near Paola.
● Three sweaters valued at $75 were reportedly taken Friday from a vehicle parked in the 400 block of Sun Lake Circle, near Lake Mary.
● A gas generator valued at $900 was reportedly stolen Saturday from a garage in the 300 block of Alba Lane, near Lake Mary.

Yearend-crime Florida's Death Row swelled in 1994

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE — Death in the electric chair. That's the fate awaiting serial killer Danny Rolling, rapist-slayer Oba Chandler and abortion clinic killer Paul Hill.
With Florida again hitting No. 1 in FBI crime rankings, there was no shortage of murder, rape and mayhem in the state this past year. But 1994 may well be remembered as the year that some of the state's most notorious criminals were convicted and sentenced to die.

As 1994 ended, Florida had almost 360 men and women on Death Row, about 20 more than the previous year. A look back at how some of the state's most notorious cases ended.

Almost four years after his murderous spree in Gainesville, Danny Harold Rolling, a 40-year-old career criminal from Shreveport, La., was sentenced to death in April for the murders of five college students in Gainesville.

Rolling pleaded guilty to the 1990 savagery, but a jury empaneled to recommend a sentence still had to deal with the gruesome photographs of the murdered and mutilated students, listen to Rolling's campsite audio tape and watch as he confessed to the killings in videotapes at Florida State Prison.

"I regret with all my heart what my hand has done," Rolling told Circuit Judge Stan R. Morris. "I have taken what I cannot return. If only I could bend back the hands of that ageless clock and change the past."

In mid-February, Rolling entered guilty pleas to five murders, three sexual assaults and three burglaries. One of his victims was decapitated, her head placed on a bookshelf.

Juries unanimously recommended five death penalties for the murders of Tracy Paula, Manuel Taboada, Christina Powell, Sonja Larson, and Christa Leigh Hoyt.

The penalty portion of the trial cost the state $607,106, said Will Irby, a spokesman for the State Attorney's Office in Gainesville.

The bodies of three Ohio tourists, nude from the waist down, were found in Tampa Bay in 1989 and for many months authorities were at a loss to find the killer.

Boat owner Oba Chandler, 48, was convicted and sentenced Nov. 4 to die for the murders of Joan Rogers, 36, and her two teenage daughters, Michelle, 17, and Christie, 14. The three, from Willshire, Ohio, were vacationing in Tampa.

"You have not only forfeited your right to live among us — you have forfeited your right to live at all," Circuit Judge Susan Schaeffer said as she sentenced Chandler to death three times.

Prosecutors said Chandler lured the women onto his boat with talk of a sunset cruise, raped them, bound and gagged them, weighted them with concrete blocks and threw them alive into Tampa Bay. Their bodies were found three days later.

In late July, Dr. John Bayard Britton and retired Air Force Col. James Barrett, 74, and Barrett's wife June, 69, pulled into the parking lot of the Ladies Center women's clinic in Pensacola. Anti-abortion activist Paul Hill walked up to their pickup truck and opened fire on them with a shotgun.

Britton, 69, a Fernandina Beach abortion doctor, and Barrett were killed. Mrs. Barrett was wounded.

Hill, a former minister, contended the murders were justified to prevent abortions, but he was not allowed to make that argument to jurors during his state murder trial, largely because abortion is legal.

Before ordering Hill's execution in early December, Circuit Judge Frank Bell described how the former minister had stalked his victims. The judge described how the abortion doctor could see his executioner moments before Hill opened fire, and how, after the shooting, Hill took a few moments to view the carnage before discarding his weapon and walking away calmly.

The top ten news stories

Associated Press members, consisting of newspaper editors and broadcasters, have presented a list of what they consider the top 10 Florida news stories for 1994. It's certainly nothing the citizens can be proud of.

Of the 10, only three could be considered anything but tragic. They were the elections (No. 3), juvenile justice reforms (No. 8) and refunds for auto fees (No. 10). In two of these, the building of new juvenile boot camps, and repayment of money collected in taxes, will be drawing from the state treasury, which is drawn from our own pockets.

There are no doubt, some who believe the re-election of Governor Chiles will have a similar result.

The seven other stories amount to saddening events. They include: abortion fights (No. 1), immigration crisis (No. 2), tropical storms (No. 4), Gainesville slayings by Danny Rolling (No. 5), a decline in tourism (No. 6), fake abduction of a 7-year old girl police found had actually been killed by her stepfather (No. 7) and the tourist murder trial involving the shooting of a British tourist near Monticello (No. 10).

No doubt, these stories were selected because they attracted the most viewers to TV newscasts, and the largest newspaper sales. People at times seem to be attracted by violence and will ignore "good news."

Let's face it. For the majority of people, only violence attracts attention. This is clear when one considers the popularity of the TV shows containing severe violence, even for our children.

We can't blame the people who present TV news or write and publish for newspapers. This would be a case of blaming the messenger.

We have a new year facing us, and there are several approaches people can take. Next December, we can continue as we have been, and persist in having crime and violence topping the public interest, or we can make a complete U-turn and bring our cities, counties and state back in the hands of individuals and families.

One person making a vow to do better next year will help, but just slightly. Tens of thousands of people however, pledging to work hard to improve the lifestyles of everyone, could bring about a dramatic change.

As for those who are involved in criminal activities, it's time for them to think of others rather than themselves. Crime may appear to be tempting or an easy way of making money, but it's also a show of stupidity and laziness.

These people are showing that they are incapable of obtaining enough education with which to handle a job. They have no compassion for the rights, properties, even the lives of others.

They will eventually pay for their actions, and as the crimes get worse, we hope the punishment will become more severe.

Let's see a turnaround. Every person, individually and collectively, will create what Associated Press will report as the top news stories of 1995. Let's do what we can to make this coming year good and beneficial for everyone.

White House disarms war on drugs

The nation's war on drugs has taken a turn for the worse. Two separate surveys released recently show that an increasing number of American teenagers have fallen prey to illegal narcotics.

Nearly one in three high school seniors has used marijuana at least once in the past year, according to the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research. And one in six eighth graders, aged 13 or 14, has smoked grass.

Some may not find marijuana use among teens particularly distressing. After all, many baby boomers smoked pot at some point or another in their youth — including the president of the United States, the new speaker of the House and at least one Supreme Court justice.

But Lee Brown, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy, cautions against a cavalier attitude toward pot smoking. He notes that the marijuana on the streets today — which is known in rap culture as "the chronic" — is up to 10 times more potent than the strain that was available to teens a generation ago.

That is why Columbia University's Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse predicts that of the 1.8 million teens reporting marijuana use in 1994, nearly half eventually will become regular users of such hard-core drugs as heroin, cocaine and LSD.

What has happened in the past few years that has reversed the trend of declining drug use among American teens?

Clinton administration officials — like Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala and Education Secretary Richard Riley — seem to agree that the entertainment industry bears much of the blame for glamorizing drug use in movies and song lyrics.

But Hollywood is only partly culpable. (After all, drugs have been celebrated in films and music for decades, and not just in recent years.) The ultimate responsibility for the disturbing rise in teen drug use resides with Washington, specifically those charged with waging the war on drugs.

It seems clear that the Clinton administration really does not consider the war on drugs a national priority. Last winter, the White House announced an 80 percent staff reduction in Brown's drug policy office, from 146 employees to 25. Meanwhile, the president acceded to a $231 million cut in funding for drug treatment and prevention programs, including a "drug-free" schools program.

Indeed, at a national drug conference last year, Attorney General Janet Reno proposed that people arrested for illegal drug use be "counseled" rather than jailed.

Recently deposed Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders — whose own son was convicted for drug trafficking last year — would have gone a step further. "I do feel that we would markedly reduce our crime rate if drugs were legalized," she told a National Press Club audience.

The White House was careful to distance itself from Elders' and Reno's remarks. But it is almost certain that at least a handful of folks on the president's staff secretly share the sentiment that drug use should be decriminalized or even legalized.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Walk over to a brave new year

BOSTON — As a journalist, I have long been a connoisseur of corrections. I am drawn to the little boxes in the corner of the newspaper to see what errors of omission and commission were committed by some writer or editor.

I find the corrections particularly appealing now that public apologies are so few and far between. The art of begging pardon has become an endangered species of speech. Having a lawyer means never being able to say you're sorry.

Politicians and CEOs offer only their most choked regrets. "If I may have inadvertently said or done something that you may have misconstrued as something that offended you..." Companies pay enormous settlements to clients, employees and customers as long as they don't have to admit guilt.

Corrections are equally rare in the broadcast world, where many words go into the air and few are taken to task. How often, for example, are pundits forced to match one month's prediction against the next month's reality?

But here in Ye Olde Gutenberg world of the printed words, we tend to hold ourselves accountable. Indeed, my favorite correction/apology of 1994 came from the Chicago Tribune which omitted the last line of a Mike Royko column. The last line should have said: "Eecyaaach." The Tribune regrets the error.

Well, "Eecyaaach" is what I shriek when I make a mistake. So, each year, in an attempt to wipe the slate clean, I fuss up to the errors, misstatements and mix-ups that have snuck past my private error-check software. And therefore, I once again offer my Media Culpas.

This being a political year, three culpapas were culled from election coverage. This doesn't count, by the way, the miscalculation that led to my defeat in the office pool.

Media Culpa 1. In a post-election daze, I put the right words in the wrong person's mouth. It wasn't Ellen Malcolm of EMILY's List who said that many women were reluctant to run for office "because they see the process as ... totally unappealing." It was Harriet Woods of the National Women's Political Caucus. Not all political women joined at the head.

Earlier, in writing about Bob Massie Jr., the candidate for lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, I created a double byline where none existed. I said that the book "Nicholas and Alexandra" was co-authored by his parents Robert and Suzanne Massie. Nope. They co-authored another book. Robert Sr. did this one by himself.

The third wrong, I am happy to right. In October, I thought that the Massachusetts Senate race was turning into a beauty contest and Ted Kennedy was a fading contestant. Oh me of little faith. By November, Kennedy turned the voters' heads.

Now onto sexual politics. I also thought Lt. Paul Coughlin had been sunk in the Tailhook sexual harassment scandal. Well, the Navy brass got away with the gantlet gambit, but, irony of irony, Paula did win a case — against the convention hotel, not the conventioners.

In civilian life, I wrote that what America needed in this post-Brady Bunch era was a three-parent family. A reader offered this footnote: The Bradys were a three-parent family of sorts. Mom, Dad, and Alice, the longtime nanny. Do you suppose they paid her Social Security?

In honing my skills this year, I also let a "camera hone in on" its subject. Unless the camera had a very sharp edge, I was wrong. The camera homes in. So do the word police, who let me know of my error.

The word police also caught me making two other whoppers. I spoke of a "preemptory pat on the butt." Oops. I'm said that the Bangladeshi writer Taslimi Nasrin "boldly, maybe foolheartedly, spoke out." I not only misspoke, I made up a word. That was indeed foolhardy of me, but not foolhearted.

My language problems followed me into translation. While the French were talking about banning Franglais, I thought we should ban English but in that column, I used the French singular, le airbags and le jumbo jets, when I meant the plural, les airbags and les jumbojets. Pardon my French.

Pardon my Eskimo too. In writing about the white stuff, I repeated the common wisdom that the Eskimos had 21 words for the white stuff. The common wisdom is wrong. According to a linguistics professor, there are just two Eskimo words for snow: ganik, meaning snow in the air or snowflake, and aput, meaning snow on the ground.

On that note, I shall now pull on my boots, walk over the apt and through the ganik and into a brave new year. One last word before I go: "Eecyaaach."

I find the corrections particularly appealing now that public apologies are so few and far between.

SARAH OVERSTREET

Bidding farewell to a woman's voice

This month America says goodbye to Anna Quindlen's weekly newspaper column. I'm feeling as sad as the time radio personality Garrison Keillor put "A Prairie Home Companion" to bed several years ago and hoping that, like Keillor, Quindlen will someday return to her old haunt.

Anna Quindlen is a literary voice we hear only rarely, uncompromisingly brave and honest, and brutally personal. I use the word "brutal" because no other word seems to better describe a columnist's knowing that even though there may rise up a cry among readers for dogs to drag your rotting carcass through the streets, that if you write the truth there is someone out there feeling the same things and that what you write will enrich that reader's life.

The late New York Times sports columnist Red Smith once said that writing a column is easy: you just sit down at the typewriter and open up a vein.

One of my favorite Quindlen passages was an anecdote she related about contrasting her life with her mother's. "My mother began to die on the cusp of the '60s and '70s, at the same time that the religion and the rules that had circumscribed her life and mine died, too. And I was left with a self to do with what I pleased. I felt as though someone had handed me a grenade with the pin pulled."

"Now I know that I was one among many, that all over America and indeed the world women were beginning to feel this same way, beginning to feel the great blessing and horrible curse of enormous possibility. Oh, you girls," an elderly woman once sighed, talking to me of my job and looking down at my belly big with child as we sat together in a nursing home in New York City. "All these choices for you," I smiled and she sighed. "I feel so sorry for you," she added, and I smiled again, for I knew she was right."

Quindlen, who won a Pulitzer Prize for her columns in 1992, is leaving The New York Times to become a full-time novelist and spend more time with her young children. She had decided to quit once before when she was pregnant with her second child, and Times executive editor Abe Rosenthal gave her a column so she could work only part time. Three years later she tried to leave again, and he gave her a berth on the op ed page, something unprecedented for a woman in her late 30s.

Also unprecedented is Quindlen's candidacy for managing editor of the Times, the paper which was sued in the late 1970s by a group of women reporters. She is walking away from a shot at one of the most powerful positions in American journalism.

One Christmas Quindlen eloquently described the contradictions so many women feel today, the professional ambition and love for the new, playing against the need for family, tradition and stability.

"Sometimes this makes oil and water of my life: getting married in Alencon lace and pearls, and yet keeping my own name; answering all my sons' questions absolutely truthfully, and then assuring them that Santa does exist; questioning church teachings in my mind, and yet reading the Christmas Gospel in church and feeling the power of its message in my heart..."

"The echo I hear is the sound of the years passing: a little girl in a navy-blue wool coat with a velvet collar, a teen-ager in a camel-hair coat with big bone buttons, a woman in fur, in tears, enamored of the ridiculous notion that some things need never change, that some things are safe, holding the hand of her firstborn son in the blood-red shadows of stained glass."

The late sports columnist Red Smith once said that writing a column is easy: you just sit down at the typewriter and open up a vein.

The defendant was looking at what he had accomplished with pride and satisfaction," Bell said.

After his sentencing, Hill was driven straight to death row at Florida State Prison to await his fate in the electric chair.

"To be quite frank with you, I am hoping (my conviction) will be upheld and that I will be executed," Hill said in an interview at the prison. "I think I can save more people dead than alive. And that's what I'm called to do — save as many innocent human beings as possible."

Although they won't be occupying cells on death row, three people were convicted in 1994 for the contract murder of Grady Stiles Jr., a carnival performer known as Lobster Boy for his claw-like hands and stubby legs.

A hit man who had been paid $1,500 (kept out of a back room where he had been hiding and fired two .32-caliber bullets into the 55-year-old carnival performer's brain. The killing took place in November 1992.

The Lobster Boy's wife, Mary

Teresa Stiles, 56, was sentenced on Aug. 29 to 12 years in prison for manslaughter. She was later freed on bond while she appeals her case.

She is still puzzled that jurors didn't fully buy her argument that she was battered by Lobster Boy, a powerfully built, hot-tempered drunk who vented his rage on the whole family. She said she had no alternative but to have him killed.

Mrs. Stiles turned to her oldest son, Harry Glenn Newman III, who was from another marriage, and gave him money to hire a killer. Newman, himself a carnival performer known as the Human Blockhead, hired a classmate, Christopher Wyant, 19, who was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to 27 years in prison.

Newman, 20, fared worse. At his trial, Newman claimed he joined the plot only to protect his mother. The jury took about an hour to convict him of first-degree murder. On Oct. 14, he was sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole for at least 25 years.

The 1993 murder of a British tourist at a highway rest stop near Monticello remains unresolved after the trial of a 17-year-old youth ended in a mistrial when the jury could not reach a verdict.

Gary Colley, 34, was shot and killed during a botched robbery at a rest stop on Interstate 10 on Sept. 14, 1993. His companion, 36-year-old Margaret Jagger, was wounded.

Two of the four original defendants have pleaded to lesser charges and await sentencing. Two other youths are awaiting trial, including 17-year-old John "Billy Joe" Crumitie, whose first trial ended in a hung jury last month. One of the accused, 15-year-old Aundra Akins, is seeking to have charges against him dismissed. His trial is scheduled for January.

In early December, Gary Ray Bowles, wanted for a series of killings of gay men and added to the FBI's "Most Wanted List," was arrested in Jacksonville Beach. Bowles confessed to six killings in Florida, Georgia and Maryland.

Bullets

an effect on reducing violent crimes, and if they let these bullets get out on the market, it will cause an even bigger threat to law enforcement."

Eslinger commented that the use of body armor by his deputies "has proven, without question, that they have been real life savers in Seminole County."

In Lake Mary, Chief Beary observed, "We already have all types of ammunition on the market that we, law enforcement and the general public, would need. I don't see any reason why this new type is considered so important for law enforcement."

The inventor, a research chemist making his first venture in ammunition, defends Rhino-Ammo, the flesh-ripping bullet, as "a strictly defensive round" for citizens protecting themselves against attackers and intruders.

"The beauty behind it is that it makes an incredible wound," said Keen, chief executive of Signature Products Corp. in Huntsville, Ala. "That makes the target stop and worry about survival instead of robbing or murdering you."

What makes police stop and worry is the concern that criminals will get hold of the armor-piercing rounds, which make officers' bulletproof vests worthless.

"There is no way the manufacturer can give any guarantee on how these bullets will be used and by whom," Russell commented. "Try as they might, there is always a way from the criminal element to get these bullets, and that could be disaster for law enforcement."

"Once they're on the market, they're out. They can get into the wrong hands," agreed Beth McGee of the National Association of Police Organizations.

What if an antitank round falls into the wrong hands? Keen said Tuesday, "I cannot promise anyone this round won't fall into the wrong hands. I can assure you we will sell only to the right people."

In response to the AP story, Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said today he would introduce legislation banning any bullet that can penetrate bulletproof vests.

The packaging for Rhino-Ammo claims the bullet breaks into thousands of razor-like fragments when it strikes human flesh.

"Each of these fragments becomes lethal shrapnel and is hurled into vital organs, lungs, circulatory system components, the heart and other tissues. The wound channel is catastrophic. Death is nearly instantaneous."

The Black Rhino version has a convex point designed to penetrate bullet-stopping material such as Kevlar. Once it reaches soft flesh, Keen says, it is as destructive as Rhino-Ammo. According to its package, "Nothing stops a charging Rhino."

Signature Products originally made coatings for radar-evading stealth aircraft. But when the Cold War ended and defense contracts dropped off, Keen needed new markets for his technology. Ammunition seemed the ticket, particularly bullets designed to be highly effective even in weapons wielded by inexperienced shooters.

When (Rhino-Ammo) hits somebody, they're going to die," Keen says. "It causes a horrific wound. That's not by accident. It's engineered by design. The round disintegrates as it hits. There's no way to stop the bleeding."

"I don't care where it hits. They're going down for good."

Keen originally said Black Rhino bullets will be sold only to police and federally licensed firearms dealers. But there are approximately a quarter million such dealers in the nation, according to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and opponents of the bullets fear they will wreak high-tech devastation.

"It's non-sporting ammo. The concern is that it's basically increasing firepower that's out there," says Bob Walker, a lobbyist for Handgun Control Inc., the group formed by Sarah Brady, wife of former White House press secretary James Brady, who was disabled by a bullet meant for President Reagan in 1981.

Keen acknowledged taking calls from worried police but insisted he is abiding by federal laws.

In 1986, Congress banned the manufacture of "cop killer" bullets that were Teflon-coated or made of certain metal alloys. This year's crime bill broadened the ban to include other metal alloy bullets.

"Cop killers" are any bullets that can penetrate a bulletproof vest, like the Black Rhino can. But because Rhino rounds are made of carbon-based plastics called polymers, rather than metal, they sidestep the ban.

"There's nothing illegal under federal law" about Rhino bullets, confirms Jack Kilorn, spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

New types of ammunition come onto the market all the time, with little rhyme or reason: why some types get banned.

One especially destructive bullet was yanked off the open market voluntarily after public uproar. Black Talon bullets, which peel back upon impact and create gaping wounds, prompted several congressmen to propose stiff taxes on them to offset the costs of treating such wounds.

Black Talons, made by the Winchester division of Olin Corp., are now legally available only to police, but knockoffs are readily available, forensic experts say. And they still figure in crimes: Black Talons killed six commuters and wounded 19 on a Long Island Railroad train last year.

Black Talons belong to a category of metal bullets, commonly called hollow points, that fragment or flatten on impact. As deadly as hollow points can be, they pale in comparison to Rhino-Ammo: a typical hollow point loses about 10 percent of its mass to fragmentation upon impact, while 90 percent of a Rhino-Ammo bullet breaks into pieces.

That means Rhino-Ammo makes a bigger hole. Rhino rounds test-fired into gelatin molds produced holes the size of baseballs, Keen says.

Rhino-Ammo will sell for $4 per round, or about seven times as much as traditional bullets, and come with a money-back guarantee of complete satisfaction, Keen says.

"The mentality on the street is that if something costs more, it's better. Every look in the world is going to go out and buy it," says George Kass of Forensics Ammunition Service, a consultant to local, state and federal police agencies.

Keen says he supports gun control and favors the federal ban on assault weapons, but he's not concerned over criticism of his Rhino products.

"I think we should only have guns in the hands of law-abiding citizens. And the only reason people should have guns is to defend themselves until they can summon law enforcement," Keen says.

Study: 13.5 million Americans homeless at least once in life

By LAURAN NERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Some 13.5 million Americans have been homeless for at least a few days sometime in their lives, and an additional 12.5 million have stayed off the street only by moving in with friends or family, Columbia University researchers contend.

The new study provides the highest estimate yet of the prevalence of homelessness — and concludes that the biggest risk factor these millions had in common was low income.

Thus, the study debunks beliefs that "homelessness is an aberration affecting Americans who have distinct personal histories or who are situated on the fringes of society," Yale University's Dr. Robert Rosenheck wrote in an editorial accompanying the study in today's American Journal of Public Health.

But the research, based on a telephone survey that asked 1,507 adults whether they recalled ever being homeless, drew prompt criticism.

Michael Horowitz of the Hudson Institute, a conservative think tank, called the numbers overblown. People could easily have recalled incorrectly, misinterpreted a night or two between homes or defined homelessness as a brief teen-age runaway or even a hitchhiking trip, he said. "They've got to be phenomenally suspect, these numbers," he said.

Estimates of homelessness fluctuate greatly. The 1990 Census said 400,000 Americans were homeless while advocacy groups have put the number between 700,000 and 3 million.

Last May, the Clinton administration said 600,000 Americans may be homeless on any given day.

But most of these estimates are based on "snapshot" tallies of people in shelters and on the street that give nightly totals but can't tell for how long people are homeless.

Columbia professor Bruce Link tried to better determine the prevalence of homelessness by asking whether his subjects recalled ever being homeless, for how long and where they slept — in the street, a shelter, abandoned buildings or someone else's home.

His conclusion: 26 million U.S. adults have experienced some form of homelessness, including being forced to live with someone else, and 13.5 million of those have been forced to live in shelters or on the streets.

recommended system. This third phase has not been implemented to date, and was the aim of the latest commission decision to continue with the project.

In a report to the city on the situation, Simmons explained that the most critical weak link in the system is the pneumatic controls and variable volume control boxes which modulate the amount of air flow in various zones.

He noted that the Phase II study showed that the existing components are rapidly approaching the end of their useful life. He said a replacement of some of the parts would only extend their eventual replacement for four to seven years.

During commission workshop discussion recently, it was determined that the entire project needed to be done together. There was also some talk on replacing some of the insulation on the roof of City Hall.

Simmons said he expects the HVAC work to possibly range from $200,000 to $300,000, but the amount would be better determined after the commission agreed to put the actual work out to bid.

The commission instructed Simmons to investigate possible methods of financing the project, whether the money comes from reserves or borrowing.

Mayor Bettye Smith suggested Simmons bring some proposals for financing the HVAC back for consideration at some future commission meeting.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Agriculture secretary tapped

WASHINGTON — In his first major appointment since the November congressional elections, President Clinton is turning to a defeated veteran Democratic congressman to serve as his agriculture secretary.

Rep. Dan Glickman of Kansas, turned out of Congress by a Republican who capitalized on Clinton's unpopularity, was to be named to the Cabinet in a Rose Garden ceremony today, said administration officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He will replace Mike Espy, a former Mississippi congressman who is leaving the Cabinet under an ethical cloud.

Glickman's selection comes at a time of retrenchment at the Agriculture Department. The sprawling bureaucracy is being forced to trim its staff by 11,000, reduce spending by up to $2.5 billion and close nearly 1,100 of its 3,600 county offices.

Clinton marches toward political center

WASHINGTON — In his post-election realignment, President Clinton is marching toward the political center with many of the same folks who gave his administration its more liberal overtones early on.

Clinton jettisoned one high-profile liberal — Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders — and clipped the wings of a few others. But aides say a wholesale purge of a spate of defections is unlikely as the president bids to reclaim the mantle of a centrist "New Democrat."

It's unclear what a shakeup would accomplish anyway.

Liberals insist they never had that much influence to begin with; conservatives believe Clinton can't win, no matter who is on his team.

Weight training can help

CHICAGO — Forty minutes of intensive weight training twice a week can help older women avoid the devastating hip and spine fractures that are linked to thinning bones, a study suggests.

Post-menopausal women who followed this regimen for a year built up their bones, increased the size and power of their muscles and improved their balance, researchers said.

"The study shows for the first time that a single treatment can improve several risk factors for spine and hip fractures in older women," said study leader Miriam E. Nelson, a physiologist at the Jean Mayer USDA Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University in Boston.

"Bone density is only one element in these fractures," she added. "It may be even more important to improve women's muscle strength and balance to prevent falls, which are the greatest risk factor for fractures in the elderly."

WORLD BRIEFS

Diplomat crosses into North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea — A U.S. diplomat crossed over the Demilitarized Zone into North Korea this morning to seek the release of American pilot Bobby Hall.

Thomas Hubbard, a deputy assistant secretary of state who has negotiated with North Korea before, is trying to defuse an already tense international incident that has taken a sudden turn for the worse.

Hall has been held since his U.S. Army OH-58C helicopter went down Dec. 17 in North Korean territory. Fellow Chief Warrant Officer David Hilemon died. His body was returned last Thursday.

At the time, there were hopes Hall would be released by Christmas as part of a deal negotiated by U.S. Rep. Bill Richardson.

But as the holiday came and went, concerns grew. Then on Tuesday, North Korea accused Hall of spying and demanded that Washington apologize.

U.S. officials have claimed the helicopter was on an unarmed training mission and crossed into North Korea accidentally.

Concern for economy mounts

MEXICO CITY — Concern about Mexico's economy following last week's devaluation of the peso is pressuring the currency further and bringing calls for government action from the business community.

"Mexican society must have a clear vision of where this country will be headed in the coming months," said Antonio Sanchez Diaz de Rivera, head of the powerful business lobby Coparmex.

The peso slid another 10 percent against the dollar on Tuesday, closing at 5.60 to the dollar, down from 5.025 on the previous day of trading. Mexican stocks also were hurt, losing 2.81 percent on Tuesday to 2,276.90, a decline of 65.89 points.

Investors in Mexico and abroad were stunned last week when the government lowered the peso's trading floor, triggering a devaluation that has shaved more than one-third from the currency's value against the dollar.

Warplanes bomb Chechnya

MOSCOW — Russian warplanes reportedly bombed rebel Chechnya today, a day after Chechen leaders rejected President Boris Yeltsin's offer of new peace talks.

The ITAR-Tass news agency said Russian combat aircraft delivered a missile strike on the outskirts of Grozny, the capital, at 9 a.m. Another air attack was made on the village of Ursus-Martan south of the city. Casualties were reported in that attack, but no details were immediately available.

Today's attacks came after Chechnya's rebel government, its forces badly outnumbered, showed no sign of compromise in response to Yeltsin's announcement that he would end the bombing of Grozny.

Yeltsin called a halt to the air strikes on the capital and proposed new peace talks in a nationwide speech Tuesday.

Help is long distance

BASSETERRE, St. Kitts — When police are stumped in the English-speaking islands of the Caribbean, their call for help is long distance, all the way to London.

The tiny former British colonies still turn to the mother country to solve tough cases like drug trafficking, money laundering, disappearances and murders — especially those with a political twist.

"There's always somebody from Scotland Yard somewhere in the Caribbean," said Superintendent Alex Ross, a detective with the London metropolitan police force known worldwide by the name of its headquarters.

Scotland Yard, which has solved cases in the Caribbean since the start of this century, has worked on a half dozen cases in the region this year. Detective Inspector Terry Burke, of the force's Miami-based white-collar crime unit, said in a telephone interview.

The detectives are called in for cases that require specialized expertise or are politically sensitive, said Ross, who came to St. Kitts and Nevis to investigate a series of crimes that led to the resignation of the deputy prime minister.

"We have very limited resources," Prime Minister Kennedy Simmonds told The Associated Press, explaining his decision to call on Scotland Yard. "They're always willing to help when requested."

Social vs. medical

Women with HIV die sooner than infected men

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO — Women who have the AIDS virus die faster than men with the infection, a study found, and the reasons may be social rather than medical.

The study tracked 768 women and 3,779 men — all HIV-positive — for about 15 months. The women were 33 percent more likely to die than men who were comparably ill when they enrolled in the study.

No medical reason for the difference was apparent. The women didn't seem to get sicker any faster than the men, they just died sooner, said researchers led by Sandra L. Melnick, an epidemiologist at the University of Minnesota School of Public Health.

In women twice as often as in men, death was the first sign that HIV was progressing, the researchers found. In men, the first signs of the infection's progress were much more likely to be pneumonia or fungal infections.

That led researchers to speculate that women may wait longer to seek care or may be treated differently by the medical system.

Women represent only about 15 percent of U.S. AIDS cases, but women and children are the fastest growing group of people with AIDS, a co-author of the study, Dr. Rowland Sherer, said in today's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

"We're still way behind in reaching women at risk nationally," said Sherer, director of the Cook County HIV Primary Care Center in Chicago. "This study just shows the devastating impact of HIV in women."

Dr. Alexandra Levine, chief of hematology at the University of Southern California School of Medicine and a researcher on HIV in women, said her own findings suggest nonmedical factors play an important role in how infected women fare.

"It is extremely common for a woman to say she wants an HIV test but was afraid to ask the doctor," Levine said in a telephone interview. "When she does ask, he says, 'No, you don't need one, you're a nice girl.' Then, she has to say, 'No, I'm not a nice girl.'"

A woman also may come to the emergency room with pneumonia, and a doctor may not suspect it's related to HIV, although with a male patient, the doctor might suspect HIV and test for it, Levine said. The treatment for the two types of pneumonia is different, she noted.

The study, conducted at primary health care centers in 13 U.S. cities, is the largest and longest to explore differences in HIV disease between men and women, Sherer said. It also is one of the most representative — 50 percent of subjects were black or Hispanic, he said.

But the study's breadth came at the cost of detail, including information on homelessness and poverty — two important factors in life expectancy for people with HIV, Sherer said.

Also, he said, "we know that there's a very high incidence of domestic violence in women with HIV — in some cases extremely high," and that may cause deaths, he said.

Causes of death in the study were unavailable or unknown for 46 percent of 105 women who

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

1st day for Sanford returnees

SANFORD — Today is the final day for returning teams to register for the Sanford Recreation Department adult polar bear softball leagues that will begin play the week of Jan. 9. After today all teams who have not paid will be considered new teams and leagues will be filled on a first-come, first-serve basis. The entry fee is $205 (including $15 ASA fee). For details, call 330-5697.

O'Neal, Magic blast Heat

ORLANDO — Shaquille O'Neal scored 28 points and grabbed 11 rebounds as the Orlando Magic remained unbeaten at home this season with a 103-83 win over the Miami Heat. The Magic are 12-0 at Orlando Arena. Anfernee Hardaway scored 19 points and had seven assists for the Magic, who blew the game open with a devastating display of 3-point shooting in the fourth quarter. The Magic hit five 3-pointers in the final period, four of them in a 20-2 spurt when Orlando broke away from a 78-73 lead with just under seven minutes left. Glen Rice led Miami with 29 points. Ledell Eckles came off the bench to score 16. Kevin Willis and Matt Geiger both had 12.

Tars rip Milwaukee Engineering

WINTER PARK — David Martino scored 13 points to lead the Rollins College Tars to a 76-44 win over the Milwaukee School of Engineering. Milwaukee only scored 14 second-half points. Others in double figures for Rollins (5-2) were Ray Carter and Frode Loftnesnes with 12 and Lake Brantley graduate Travis Certo with 11. Kevin King led Milwaukee (11-8) with 17 points, which included five 3-pointers.

AROUND THE STATE

Bowens top defensive rookie

MIAMI — A longtime weakness for the Miami Dolphins is now a strength, thanks to the 1994 Associated Press Defensive Rookie of the Year. Tackle Tim Bowens, whose run defense helped Miami win the AFC East, earned the award by collecting 41 votes from a nationwide panel of 98 sports writers and broadcasters. Bowens beat cornerback Antonio Langham of Cleveland, who had 28 votes, and tackle Bryant Young of San Francisco, who got 21.

AROUND THE NATION

Falk named offensive rookie

NEW YORK — Just as he did on the field, Marshall Faulk ran away from the competition in voting for the 1994 Associated Press Offensive Rookie of the Year. Faulk, the No. 2 selection in the draft, rushed for 1,282 yards and 11 touchdowns for the Indianapolis Colts and picked up 96 of the 98 votes from members of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Tampa Bay's Ernie Rhee and Washington's Heath Shuler split the other two votes.

Goals don't come easy for locals in Pizza Hut

By TONY DABORNIER
 Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO — With the exception of Oviedo High School's Scott Thelen, scoring goals has become a frustratingly difficult task for Seminole County soccer players.

In Tuesday's first round of the Pizza Hut Invitational, Thelen scored two goals — equaling or surpassing the total of the other four county schools in the tournament — to lead the Oviedo Lions to a 3-0 win over the Dr. Phillips Panthers at Bishop Moore Memorial Stadium.

Also at Bishop Moore, the Lake Brantley Patriots shocked the Daytona Beach-Seabreeze Sanders 1-0 on penalty kicks and the Tampa-Leto Falcons routed the Lake Howell Silver Hawks 4-2.

At Edgewater High School, the Lyman Greyhounds outlasted Clearwater Central Catholic 2-1 and the Lake Mary Rams knocked off Winter Park 2-0.

"We created plenty of opportunities, we just didn't finish them," said Lyman coach Ray Sandidge, summing up the sentiments of the other county coaches.

In the final game played at Bishop Moore Tuesday, defending Class 5A state champion Melbourne blanked Bishop Moore 3-0. Miami-Killian edged Boone 1-0 in the day's first game at Edgewater while Tallahassee-Leon ripped Edgewater 3-0 in the day's last contest.

Today at Bishop Moore, Lake Howell plays Dr. Phillips at 11 a.m. and Seabreeze takes on Bishop Moore at 3 p.m. in consolation bracket games while Oviedo faces Leto at 1 p.m. and Lake Brantley squares off with Melbourne at 5 p.m. in quarterfinal contests.

At Edgewater, the consolation bracket has Boone and CCC battling at noon and Winter Park playing Edgewater at 4 p.m. Quarterfinal matchups pair Lyman against Killian at 2 p.m. and Lake Mary with Leon at 6 p.m.

Lake Mary (12-2-1) carried most of the play against Winter Park but weren't getting many quality chances, due largely to the acrobatic play of Wildcat goalkeeper David Cook, who repeatedly parried or intercepted crosses to interrupt Ram attacks.

Alon Seifan gave the Rams a 1-0 when he headed a throw-in from Nathan Garcia over Cook in the far post in the game's 11th minute. It took 56 minutes and another 18 shots for Lake Mary to score again. Aren Cook ripping a one-time volley of a cross from Jason Tindell past David Cook.

Lake Mary goalie Greg Veltho made five saves on 10 Winter Park shots to notch the shutout.

"That's our season in a capsule," said Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle. "We're so inconsistent about scoring goals. We had our chances, but Winter Park did well to keep us from creating many outstanding chances."

"Defensively, we played well. Ace Delaney, Scott Heath, Chase Greene, and Sean Creaman really played well. We're just not clicking on offense like we did last week (when the Rams scored 11 goals in two victories)."

Seminole, Hawk girls advance in Hornet play

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO — One team romped and the other squeaked by, but the Seminole Fighting Seminoles and Lake Howell Silver Hawks both won their first round games Tuesday in the girls' half of the Hornet Holiday Classic at Bishop Moore High School.

Lake Howell (15-3) used a 17-7 rally in the fourth quarter to get past Erwin, Tennessee's Unicoi City 42-40 while Seminole (14-1) blew open its game with a 25-5 second quarter and rolled by Colonial, 66-33.

In the boys' bracket of the tournament, Tavares beat Colonial 54-48, Cypress Creek and Deltona played the late game.

"I'm happy just to get a win, especially after not playing for so long," said Seminole coach John McNamara, whose team last played on Dec. 15. "I told the girls that the more we win, the less we'll have to practice, so they're pretty motivated to play well."

COCONUT CREEK — Seminole Community College's men's basketball team showed little effects from a 2½-week layoff as the Raiders bested the host Broward Community College Seahawks 83-78 in the Sunshine Holiday Classic at The Omni on the Broward Community College North Campus in Coconut Creek.

SCC ran to a 41-33 halftime lead and Don Tillman took advantage of a 'trick' Broward defense to score a game-high 28 points as the Raiders improved to 8-5 on the season.

"We played pretty well considering we hadn't played since December 9," said SCC head coach Bernard

FORT WALTON BEACH — Seminole is on the warpath.

Jeff Merthie came off the bench to score 14 points, including the game-winning tip-in with six seconds remaining, as Seminole High School recorded a 67-66 victory over Winnboro (La.) in the opening round of the Playground Area Shootout boys basketball tournament at Choctawhatchee High School.

It was the third consecutive win and eighth in nine starts for Seminole's Arrow Force III (10-3), which advances to this afternoon's quarterfinal contest against New Orleans-Jesuit (14-3) at 4 p.m. CST (3 p.m. locally).

"That was a pretty talented team we played today," said Seminole head coach Bob Traina. "They had the best team of athletes that we've faced all year, including Mainland. They don't have a player the calibre of Vince Carter, but all around, they were better."

"They shot the ball well from outside, and hurt us inside early. We were down 15 points in the first quarter, but Brad (Traina) kept us in the game in the first half. Eric (Roberts) took over in the second half and got (Nate) Hall and (Jeff) Merthie involved. We really played well in the second half."

Arrow Force III was down 23-12 after the first period and 35-26 at intermission. But Roberts, who had only two points in the first half, hit three three-pointers during a 16-point second half to key the comeback.

Merthie tied the game at 65-65 with a pair of free throws with less than a minute left on the clock. After the Wildcats missed, Seminole held the ball for the final shot.

"Eric (Roberts) lost track of the See Boys, Page 2B time and put up a three-pointer with 15 seconds left," said Traina. "But we got the ball back on a jump ball. We put the ball in play but got the shot blocked."

"The ball was loose on the floor and we picked it during a scramble and missed the shot, but Merthie tipped it in with 0:08 left. Actually I wasn't sure who tipped it in."

Winnaboro, who had its seven-game winning streak ended, still had a chance to tie from Orlando Santiago and 14 points each from Bryan Matthew and Curtis Wiggins in a 92-83 victory over the Atlanta Metro College Panthers, which lost despite 30 points from Clifton Clark. Bayonne Taty added 16 for Atlanta.

In addition to Tillman's 28 point performance for the Raiders, other big games were turned in by Sheppard (19 points, 10 steals, six assists, five rebounds), Kevin Wilson (11 points, four assists), Dwayne Richardson (nine points, seven rebounds), Bib Allen (eight points), Sanford's Andre Hall (six points, 10 rebounds) and Stanley Thompson (two points, five rebounds).

Merv Patrick led the Seahawks (2-12) with 22 points, while Keith English added 17 and Stinson 15.

SCC will play Miami-Dade Kendall today at 3:30 p.m., then face Atlanta at 5:45 p.m. on Thursday.

"Howard tried to box and one Mike off pick and they ran two men at him, and that left Don Tillman open on the wing, and he was making the shot."

Tillman's performance was a huge boost for the Raiders, who are playing short-handed.

"We did miss William Fitzgerald (the team's second leading scorer)," said Merthie. "He hasn't returned from Virginia yet. We really don't expect him back for the rest of the tournament."

In other first day games, Miguel Hernandez scored 17 points and Andre Taylor and Julio Jimenez added 15 each as the Miami-Dade Community College-Kendall Acres Jaguars ripped the John Abbott College Islanders from the Bahamas, 93-46. Sunday Emmanuel led John Abbott with 11.

The Daytona Beach Community College Seals got 17 points

Lawyer turns rich author

By CONNIE CASS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — By day David Baldacci seemed like any other young corporate lawyer. At night, after his towheaded daughter was tucked into bed, he would sit up late with a yellow legal pad, writing a novel.

He tinkered with the dialogue on the subway ride to work. As he built a patio in his back yard brick by brick, he laid the plot in his head. Over dinner, he and his wife fine-tuned the characters. The book took two years.

"No one at my firm even knew I was writing it," Baldacci said. "It was like I was leading a secret double life."

Lots of people write novels. They ship them off to New York literary agents who get thousands of submissions they don't have time to read. Only a fraction of a percent of those manuscripts ever get published.

Baldacci is different.

He sold his first novel, the political thriller he wrote on nights and weekends, to Warner Books last month. For an astounding $2 million.

Then Castle Rock bought the movie rights to "The Executive Power" for $1 million, and foreign publishing rights brought in another $1 million.

If he didn't want to, Baldacci, 34, would never need to work again.

Financial independence is a great thing," the grinning author said. How did this affable attorney with a boyish face and reddish hair, son of a trucking company foreman, hit the jackpot?

He started with a good yarn, weaving together a U.S. president, his mistress, a fatal shooting by the Secret Service and a scandalous cover-up.

And he followed that old chestnut: Write what you know. One of the main characters is a lawyer with a big Washington firm.

Baldacci is following the path set by two other lawyers turned best-selling authors: John Grisham and Scott Turow.

He worked for years to hone his talent, carefully studied the publishing business, made connections with the right people and refused to give up.

"I was really desperate," he said. "I wanted to carve a career for myself as a writer, and I never thought about quitting once I started."

Baldacci had wanted to write since he was a boy in Richmond, Va., haunting the local library. He studied creative writing at Virginia Commonwealth University, but chose a more pragmatic career in law.

After University of Virginia law school, he earned a comfortable living in Washington, enough to buy an Alexandria, Va., town house and let his wife stay home with 13-year-old Spencer.

All the while, he studied the characters and pacing of his favorite authors, including Mark Twain, John Irving, John Updike, Robert Ludlum. He wrote and rewrote, scrapping thousands of pages.

He turned out numerous short stories and four screenplays, shipped them to magazines and movie studios, and received a stream of rejections in return.

Then he began his novel, spending countless hours with his legal pads and his home computer. "Sometimes I felt like a single parent," his wife joked.

When the 500-page book was finished, a friend in the movie industry helped Baldacci promote it to New York agents.

Five agents wanted to handle "The Executive Power," but Baldacci picked Aaron Priest.

It was Priest who in 1993 helped Allan Folsom get $2 million for "The Day After Tomorrow," a record sum for a first novel at the time.

Priest thought Baldacci had a good shot at six-figure advance — a rare thing in publishing.

He sent the book to major publishers on Nov. 7. The next morning, Warner Books offered $500,000 for it. Other publishers were interested too.

So Warner offered $1 million. Then $2 million. It would be stupid not to take it," Priest said. Baldacci took it.

When he heard the offer, he said, "my knees literally buckled." When his wife heard the news, she "ran upstairs and got sick."

The book is due out next fall. Meanwhile, Baldacci has a new screenplay and a second novel under way. He also will spend a couple of days per week at his firm, Holland & Knight, to take care of his longtime clients.

The couple's plans for their new wealth are modest. Buy a video camera, get a new computer, pay off their bills, find good investments. He's setting up college funds for their daughter and two nephews.

'Colon cocktail' adds bulk to diet

DEAR DR. GOTT: You often mention the value of bulk in the diet for people with elimination problems. Our local visiting nurse's office has developed a "colon cocktail" consisting of equal parts of unprocessed bran, applesauce and prune juice. You let the combination sit in the refrigerator for at least an hour to blend, then take 1 to 2 tablespoons a day, or more as needed. This potion may take two weeks to be fully effective, but it is a safe and natural formula. Perhaps it will help your readers.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your "recipe" is a good one. In fact, it is now used routinely in one of our local nursing homes. Thank you for writing.

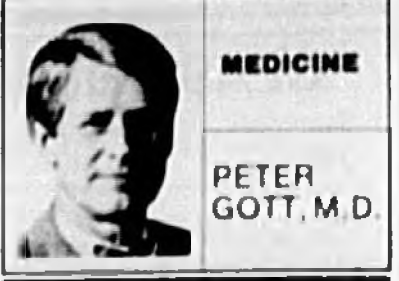

DEAR DR. GOTT: For years I've tried everything my doctor recommended, plus everything advertised on TV for hemorrhoids. Sunday evening I had dinner with friends and one of the women is a nut about Jell-O, thinking it is good for everything that ails you. In desperation I gave it a try the following morning. I cooked it according to the directions on the package and applied it to the affected area. Not only did it do absolutely nothing to alleviate the pain, but it made a horrible stain on my new white linen slacks. Perhaps I shouldn't have used strawberry. Do you think either lemon Jell-O or perhaps plain gelatin would be better? Someone else at the dinner table suggested roasted garlic, but I don't think he was serious. What do you think? Please don't use my name.

DEAR DR. GOTT: OK, no names. Lemon Jell-O won't help. Troublesome hemorrhoids that don't respond to suppositories (prescription and non-prescription) should be examined by a physician, because surgery may be necessary to control the pain and bleeding of this uncomfortable disorder.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from congestive heart failure, water retention, peptic ulcer and a high cholesterol level. I take furosemide and aprotinactone daily. What herbs would be safe for me to use for my problem?

DEAR READER: No herbs will help your condition. However, you might find relief if your doctor prescribed an ACE inhibitor, in preference to the diuretics that you are already taking. ACE inhibitors, including Vasotec and Capoten, reduce the work of the heart and can alleviate the symptoms of heart failure (fluid retention, weakness and breathlessness). Ask your doctor about this.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

When should you overbid? In today's deal, North had all three classic situations in his favor. He was partnering a good declarer, they were vulnerable at rubber bridge and most of the opponents' strength was in one hand.

Against three no-trump, West led his higher heart. When the dummy was tabled, South saw that he stood no chance if the club finesse was losing. Yet if the finesse was winning his nine tricks (one heart, three diamonds and five clubs) wouldn't be so easy to cash because of the blockage in diamonds. How could he get into the dummy without having to overtake the diamond queen with dummy's king?

Suddenly South saw the answer. He had to assume West held the spade ace. If so, South could get home as long as he played dummy's heart 10 at trick one. If South plays low from the dummy, East puts in the eight. This keeps communication with his partner and forces South to win the trick in his hand.

How could East defend? If he ducked, declarer would be in the dummy. He would pick up the club king, unblock his diamond honors, run the rest of the clubs and cash dummy's diamond king as his ninth trick. So East won with the heart queen and continued the suit. South won the fourth round, discarding one spade and one diamond from the dummy. Now South led the spade king from hand. West ducked this, but then South overtook his diamond queen with dummy's king and ran the clubs. His nine tricks were one spade, one heart, two diamonds and five clubs.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 29, 1994

Conditions look generally favorable for you for this cycle. Resist making changes just for the sake of change, though.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might have difficulty keeping secrets today. Unfortunately, things you should keep to yourself may be broadcast to the very persons who shouldn't be informed. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not a good day to try to mix business and pleasure. If things go wrong, you might suffer some type of loss or complication.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Success could elude you today if you lack determination. Persistence will pay off, so keep working even when the going is slow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you might be inclined to invent problems to make things harder on yourself. Try to operate along the path of least resistance instead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not treat the possessions of others with indifference today. Make it a point to take better care of their things than you would your own.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If associates are not in complete accord with your aims today, they're not apt to assist you. Attempting to solicit their aid could be a waste of time.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) A tinge of jealousy might make it difficult to praise the accomplishments of a co-worker today. This would be counterproductive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone you know quite well is an expert manipulator and has had you do his/her bidding in the past. Do not allow yourself to be a puppet again today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid all types of disagreement with your mate today. Small arguments might escalate and cause lasting problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you brush aside tasks that demand your immediate attention today, you'll be creating additional problems down the line.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though your overall financial prospects look good, this is not the time to be extravagant. Avoid impulsive spending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are usually a pretty good self-starter, but not today. If there is something you want done, do not rely on others; use your own initiative.
