

Sharkey, Christner Battle Tonight In Tough Engagement

Stribling Faces Setup In Ralph Smith At New Orleans Arena

Sharkey Is Favored

Boston Fighter Is Said To Have Slight Edge

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(INS)—This is the night on which Jack Sharkey will be required to place his chin up there on the tee and give K. O. Christner a chance to repeat the hole-in-one he scored with Kane Hanson's countenance in Cleveland one month ago to the day and hour. That blow knocked Hanson all the way out of Wall Street or Wall Street completely out of Hanson or both, thus leaving Sharkey slightly less than a hole-in-one. For if Sharkey blows this one, there will be no $100,000 for him at Miami Beach next month because there will be no fight for him there or elsewhere. He never would be able to live the thing down.

As for Dempsey and the garden, they are very heavily obligated for a fight they wouldn't be able to promote. Figuring himself as a winner, Christner already has declared himself out of the Miami Beach party. He doesn't seem to care a whit about playmating with Willie Stribling at this time. Stribling himself is going for a strike within the next 24 hours with Ralph Smith as his companion. This means that William is in very grave danger. His night and that is the reason the whole Ralph is taking off the spring board. Christner, on the contrary, has the genuine chance that goes with any fighter. Nobody expects him to score another big fight, but everybody knows that he might and that is the reason the garden is sold to a $75,000 prize for a match between a 34-year-old tyro who was in the vulcanizing pits at Akron, two years ago and a man who hasn't made a fight since Dempsey renovated him in 1920.

However, Sharkey still is a front-rank fighter and Christner isn't apparently so. He is crude, unskilled and awkward; he hits with a hard but doesn't hit according to the accepted manner. But, of course, he lacks experience. Stribling, for that matter, has lacked almost everything, but a lot of his opponent lacks experience after the second round. Stribling doesn't think there is any particular sense in expecting Christner to be a sixth round hero. He is just a rough, tough man who should make matters very interesting for Sharkey for a few rounds at least. The fight is scheduled for 10 rounds and, for one of these, Christner may be in the money. After that, he probably will be under the left-hand of the man to go on and win. Unless he is clipped by a wild punch, Sharkey probably will be the winner.

He has too many guns, too much speed and class for Christner. There is one thing however, the Christners; they are scheduled to the hunt and rule of the road; they expect to take the prize. They are in a position to get a break with a knockout punch. Unless they are knocked out, they will be the winners.

CHICAGO STUDENT SEEKS LANGUAGE OF INDIAN TRIBE

Desires To Save Disappearing Tongue Of West's Redskins

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(INS)—Rescue for linguistic science of a disappearing Indian language is the mission of Harry Hojer, 24-year-old graduate student in anthropology at the University of Chicago who has just left for Tonkawa, Oklahoma.

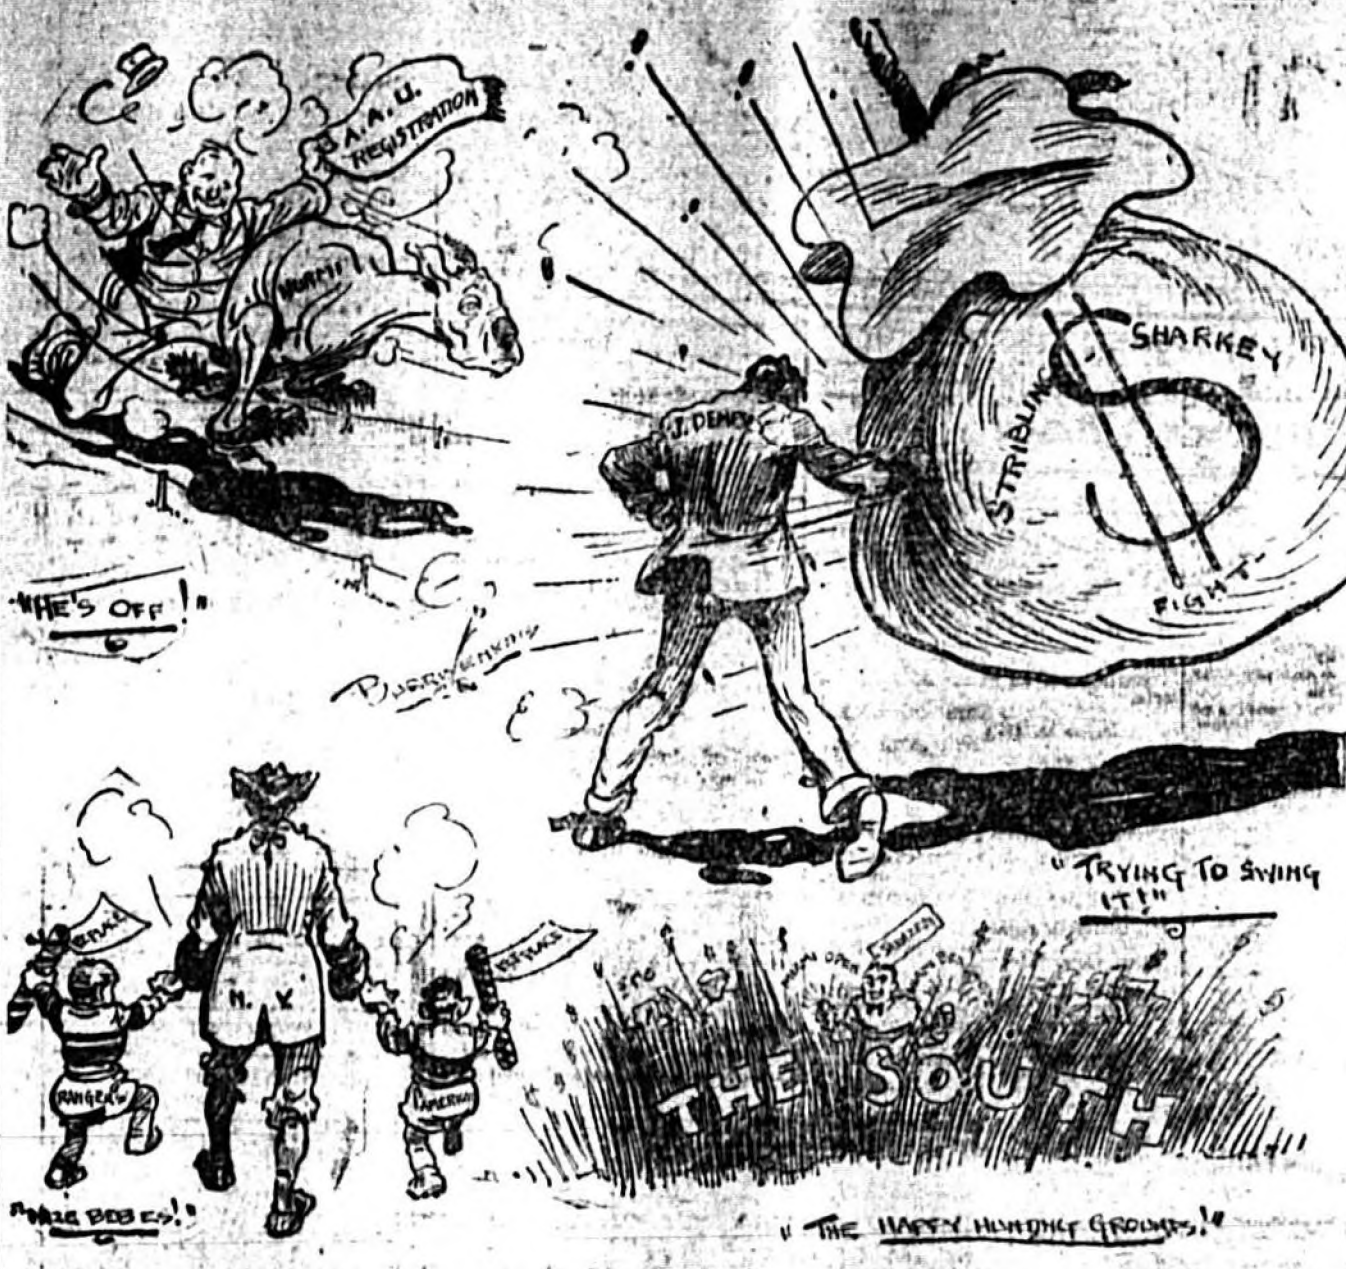

In Oklahoma the young Calceon will record the word meanings and grammar of the Tonkawa language, an obscure speech which scientists have been unable to classify and it is said that only nine old Indians, members of the tribe which flourished in southeast Texas in the rollicking days of the Spanish conquest. The entire tribe today numbers only 40.

In a preliminary study at Tonkawa last year, Hojer, who will submit his work for a doctor of philosophy degree, said that although 600 Tonkawas survived at the time of the Civil War, only sixteen full-blooded members now remain and the group will disappear entirely through intermarriage with other tribes.

The origin of the Tonkawa Indians is obscure and somewhat open in mystery. Hojer said but they are believed to be related to the Siouan and Hoka tribes. They are now farmers, he said, but originally devoted all their time to hunting buffalo. Their Indian neighbors report that they were once cannibals but the Tonkawas deny that, according to Hojer.

Hojer's project, which is financed by committee on linguistic research of the American association for the Advancement of Science, is the third project for recording Indian languages undertaken by anthropological students at the University of Chicago recently. It is the last year on the Chippewyan language in the Mackenzie river valley and Cornelius Oogoolie, a man living with Harek Indians near Great Bear Lake north of the Arctic Circle attempting to record a disappearing language of means of the Coonies.

SPORT REVIEW

Jack Sharkey Is Faced By Puzzling Proposition In Person Of K. O. Christner

Former Akron Rubber Worker Packs Punch Which Is Menace To Any Fighter But Lacks Ring Experience

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(INS)—Final dress rehearsal by Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling for their Miami Beach presentation next month take place tonight. It was a sparsely attended affair, but the Madison Square Garden ring with Kayo Chitalar, a swashbuckler of the West.

An old New Orleans prizefighter, William Lawrence Stribling will take batting practice on the huge bulk of Ralph Smith, who should be better perfect in his part after being flattened by Jack Dempsey eight times a week during the run of that historic Guller, "the big fight."

Stribling will hardly work up a sweat on Smith, who is a coxswain known from coast to coast, but Sharkey faces no such a task because he faces the Akron rubber worker's prowess are to be believed.

Report observers, such as Danny Morgan, Lou Briz, Leo Flynn and others have sounded warnings. Sharkey, they say, in form, bearing, skillfully and courageously that peculiar kind of caution and self-reliance he displays in his boxing here with Maloney and Delaney, can't permit Christner to lay a bare hand on him and should win by a knockout inside of five rounds. But nobody knows just what hood Sharkey will be in tonight.

If he is especially careless and attempts to play with his intended victim he may have a rude awakening. For the boys insist that Kayo Christner can soften any live he slanders with his right hand. Furthermore, his resistance to punishment is much greater than that of the average heavy weight, because his sturdy frame has been toughened by years of manual labor and not subjected until recently to the pounding of fists.

Even Christner's severest critics, who admit he doesn't know the finer points of boxing, will not be in danger as long as he keeps his punches in his hands. Sharkey is a professional and he knows the difference between a professional and an amateur.

FILM WILL SHOW MAN'S EVOLUTION FROM LOW ORDER

American Institute To Sponsor Picture On Scientific Subject

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(INS)—Science has been flirting with the dramatic, and the Institute has engaged Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, an anthropologist, and Dr. Harvey Brain, a physiologist, both of the University of Chicago, to prepare a preliminary synopsis of this scientific drama. They will collaborate with a playwright or dramatist in the writing and staging of the science play.

And following the dramatization of anthropology, I am told, a synopsis will be prepared of other phases of science.

I am wishing the betrothed properly, happiness and blessed matrimonial bliss, amen, but I fear for the actor as the owner remarked out of the corner of his mouth when he saw his dynamite factory on fire.

"In projecting the establishment in New York City of a Science Theatre, The American Institute, now in its second century of activity, takes a significant forward step in carrying out its avowed purpose of presenting scientific subjects to the public in a dramatic and graphic manner."

"It is our belief that the Science Theatre will be an essential instrument for the popularization of the sciences in their most field phases."

Ford Will Secure Another Relic For His Big Collection

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 25.—(INS)—Henry Ford will soon add another article of ancient vintage to his already enormous collection of antiques stored at his museum in Dearborn, Mich. Joseph E. Kelly announced that he had secured for Mr. Ford a steam engine made here almost 100 years ago. Mr. Kelly, who for many years has been the engineer at a jewelry manufacturer's plant here, acted as Mr. Ford's agent in purchasing the engine. The price paid for the ancient piece was not revealed.

The engine, which is in good working order despite the inscription "Made in 1827" was located at the plant of the Providence Coal Company, where it was used for many years for wood cutting and the operation of a machine shop. It is of the old horizontal valve type and is believed to be the first of its kind made. It is now referred to by engineers as the gridiron valve engine, the construction and operation of which formed the basis of the present type steam engine.

"The ancient piece of machinery is soon to be dismantled and sent to the museum in Dearborn to take its place among the thousands of other specimens of early American engineering collected by the Detroit manufacturer and antique collector."

CLAIMS YOUNG NOVELIST

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 25.—(INS)—Tennessee lays claim to one of the nation's youngest novelists.

She is Miss Carman, Dee Barnum, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Geo. Pullen Jackson, of this city.

Shortly before her sixteenth birthday recently, Miss Barnum completed a novel, "School Girl," which has been accepted by New York publishers of a number of literary sensations.

Another Sea Epoch

Once again Captain George Freid of the United States liner, America, has brought fame to his country and to the whole seafaring fraternity when he turned his ship in answer to distress calls and pushed its bow through mountainous seas until he finally arrived with help for the sinking Italian freighter, Florida.

His was no easy task. A "whole gale", meaning a wind of at least seventy-five miles an hour, was blowing and the difficulties of launching a lifeboat under this condition are such as to test the mettle of the toughest seadog.

It is recalled that the same George Freid thrilled the world three years ago by a similar rescue, when he took off the men on the floundering freighter Antioch amid obstacles which appeared insurmountable.

The Theater

The English playwright and temporary dramatic critic of the New York World, St. John Ervine, is very pessimistic over the condition of the drama in the United States.

"Intelligent people are steadily withdrawing their support from the theater, and the process will continue until the theater dies, possibly within the lifetime of the oldest person in this audience," he said recently.

"The Miami Herald takes a more cheerful view and takes issue with the noted critic on some of his opinions. Such words have been heard before. The theater has been dead many times since Shakespeare's day.

The Little Theater movement may be what is needed to save the drama. Miami has its Civic Theater which is successful and is giving entertainment to many hundreds.

"Local organizations are not bothered by the question of expense and the difficulties they encounter merely serve as incentives for harder work.

CONSERVING OUR PRESIDENTS

Being president of the United States is admittedly one of the hardest jobs in the world. Being chief executive of a great industrial organization or a railroad, or being general of an army, or chief justice of the supreme court, or any other job you may think of, really doesn't compare in nervous and physical strain.

Roosevelt, stalwart though he was, was glad to rest after leaving the White House, "resting" of course in his own peculiar strenuous fashion, but an elephant hunt was rest to him.

Mr. Hoover is beginning right, even before he moves the family penates into the presidential mansion. He is recognizing the need of every intensive worker for a winter vacation as well as a summer vacation.

QUESTIONABLE TASTE

Isn't there a great waste of time and energy, as well as a lot of nonsense, in the continuing visitations upon President-elect Hoover by men and groups who are urging the appointment of individuals to the cabinet? Mr. Hoover has been in public long enough either to know personally or to know a good deal about everyone in the country who is really available for these positions.

The world hath noted, and your name is great In mouths of wisest censure. "After all," thinks Colonel Lambright of the Tampa Tribune "the average Floridian's opinion as to the greatest living Floridian is controlled largely by personal friendship, contact or appreciation."

Col. Lambright himself believes Hernando de Soto, the greatest individual in Florida's history. Hamilton Holt goes as far back to name Ponce de Leon. William J. Howey agrees with Dr. Holt but gives Henry M. Flagler an almost equal place.

"Andrew Jackson," says Editor Roland Dean of the Sanford Herald. Senator Duncan (A. Fletcher) secondly the nomination to President Fletcher himself who as President of the University of Florida named the greatest living Floridian, even the distinction of a nomination for the greatest Floridian in history to "My choice would be between Governor Broward and Senator Nat Bryan," says Dr. W. A. MacKenzie, light of Leesburg.

Dr. MacKenzie mentions also John Gorrie, inventor of the process for making artificial ice. Gorrie gets the votes of Gilchrist, Stockton and Gilbert Leach also.

"William Jennings Bryan," says President Tiger point blank. Mayor D. B. McKay of Tampa takes three guesses. "In my judgment," he declares "one to whom great credit should be given is former Governor William D. Bloxham. I would also accord high credit to Hon. James P. Talliferro of Jacksonville, former United States senator, and to David Yule, the pioneer in railroad building in the state."

The count stands, therefore, as follows: John Gorrie three, Ponce de Leon two, Andrew Jackson two, Henry M. Flagler two, with one vote each to Hernando de Soto, Duncan U. Fletcher, ex-Governor Broward, ex-Senator Bryan, William Jennings Bryan, ex-Governor Bloxham, ex-Senator Talliferro and David Yule.

It is interesting to note that the distinguished gentlemen who have nominated both the greatest living Floridian and the greatest Floridian in history seem more prone to name a fellow craftsman in the latter case than in the former.

Postscript: Peter O. Knight withholds his vote—on living and dead alike.

against the appointment of any undesirable person. Mr. Hoover seems to be going about the preliminaries of his task in a business-like way and he deserves to be let alone.

INTERLUDE IN THE LIFE OF A "NOBLE EXPERIMENT"

The public in the "Noble Experiment" has been made up of many of the best minds of the South. The woman is Mrs. J. T. Graves, the man is John Temple Graves II.

It will not be long now before the charming woodland flowers begin to bloom—that is, unless foolish or heedless people have covered off the tops of what the western wild flowers grow, thereby destroying the delicate roots or damaging them so that they will not bloom this season.

BURNING UP MONEY

Education is the only constructive way in which to attack this problem, and the campaign now under way packed with a fund of $150,000, would go a long way toward teaching the people the truth in this connection.

It is surprising to what an extent the rural population of the Southern States is wedded to the idea of burning the woods at regular intervals. They have been brought up to believe that such practice improves the grazing and results in other benefits, and it is an exceedingly difficult matter to disabuse their minds of their misinformation on this subject.

THE PEOPLE AND POLITICAL JOBS

Appointment of individuals to various and exceedingly numerous public offices is one of the most odious and serious of duties that are required to be performed by executive officials, extending all along the line from the office of the president of the United States to the most minor of public officials in nation, city and county.

Of course, there always are more or less aggressive and numerous "job" applicants for every political "job" that is at all worth while especially in matters of rewards for political services rendered, or alleged to have been rendered, and in the matter of compensation to be paid, along with whatever perquisites, "rake-offs" and influences that have become attached to political offices.

Very rare occasions the seeker after an appointment to public office assures himself, first of all, that he is qualified to discharge the duties of the office to which, without solicitation, he may be appointed. But such a "hunter," as in the latter instance, is a rare avian among political applicants for places in the public service, either by election or appointment.

History Of The Hoe

After seeing Miller's world-famous painting of a homestead farmer, Edward Mackham, kneeling in prayer, the world has been reminded of the hoe. The hoe has been used for thousands of years ago. It is now used for the same purpose, but the hoe has changed. The man of those days was not a farmer, but a laborer.

The Neighbors will KNOW without being told . . .

PEOPLE don't go around telling their neighbors, "I'm progressive. I'm looking for finer things." Yet neighbors have ways and means of knowing. And one of their surest signs is the family automobile.

That's why the New Pontiac Big Six offers so much to up-and-coming Americans. It represents progress. It constitutes an impressive step up from lower-priced transportation.

The New Pontiac Big Six is a real innovation—a brand new car from beginning to end. It offers big car performance, luxury, comfort and stylish prices which make no great drain on the purse.

A NEW ALL-AMERICAN SIX BY OAKLAND

OFF TO A LONG SUCCESSFUL RUN

New SUPERIOR Whippet

Greater Beauty, Larger Bodies Made it the hit of the New York Show

The longer bodies of the Superior Whippet, the low lines, distinctive colors, higher radiator and hood, heavier one-piece full crown fenders, are bringing to Four and light Six buyers an entirely new conception of how beautiful an inexpensive car can be.

Mechanically, too, the new Superior Whippet is far advanced—faster, livelier, more powerful than ever. It is the lowest-priced car to offer such important features as the new "Finger-Tip Control," silent timing chain and full force-feed lubrication. And it carries on Whippet's unsurpassed reputation for operating economy and minimum service costs.

Roomier interiors, broader seats, longer front and rear springs, snubbers and oversize balloon tires bring you the riding comfort of costlier cars.

Be sure to see the new Superior Whippet at your first opportunity! An immediate order will aid in obtaining early delivery.
