Recall, referendum proposed for charter

SANFORD — Seminole County voters would be allowed to recall county officers and propose legislation by petition if a proposed charter being drafted by the county's charter advisory committee is approved by county commissioners and then voters.

The committee decided to include in the charter provisions following state law on the number of signatures on petitions and deadlines for collecting them to remove a county officer from office.

The committee also decided to include in the proposed charter a provision giving voters the right to propose legislation on any subject except finances through a referendum.

Seminole roars to twin district titles

WINTER PARK — Seminole High School thoroughly dominated the 3A & District track meet as both the boys and girls easily claimed championships Thursday night at Showalter Field.

The girls squad piled up 122 points with Jones finishing a distant second with 76 1/2 points. The boys were equally as strong as they totaled 116 points as St. Cloud finished second with 49. Details, Page 8A.

Oviedo group recognizes teachers

OVIDEO — The Oviedo Parent Teachers Students Association plans several events next week in recognition of National PTA Teacher Appreciation Week.

Sandy Katsiras, association president, said the activities include presentation of certificates of appreciation to all teachers Monday, distribution of "OHS Teachers Have Class" bumper stickers Wednesday and a teachers' luncheon Friday, sponsored by the organization and Oviedo High School parents.

Mallonville and 20th becomes 4-way stop

SANFORD — As of Monday morning, the intersection of 20th Street and Mallonville Avenue will become a four-way stop.

Motorists using the intersection Monday morning will witness the installation of stop signs and flashing red lights in both directions by city work crews.

The intersection has been the scene of 15 automobile accidents in the last two years, according to Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett, prompting the change to a four-way stop.

Ruling may affect DUI convictions rate

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Convictions for drunken driving charges may be more difficult to obtain in the future based on a state appellate court ruling which was handed down Wednesday.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal ruled that the .10 percent blood-alcohol level used as the threshold for drunken driving charges is unconstitutional because it puts defendants in the position of proving their innocence.

A three-judge panel said equal weight must be given to other evidence of impairment, such as glazed eyes, slurred speech, staggered gait or erratic operation of a vehicle.

The ruling has the force of law within the court's jurisdiction, which covers the Florida counties of Broward, Palm Beach, Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Okeechobee. The Fifth District Court of Appeal has jurisdiction over Seminole, Brevard, Orange and Osceola counties.

However, the decision could be cited as precedent in challenges to the .10 percent standard throughout the state.

"It certainly sounds like an interesting decision," said Misdemeanor Division Attorney Bob Kilfeather of the state attorney's office in Sanford. "I am sure everyone will be looking at it, but to make any predictions without actually seeing the decision cannot be done."

The decision drew criticism from Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett.

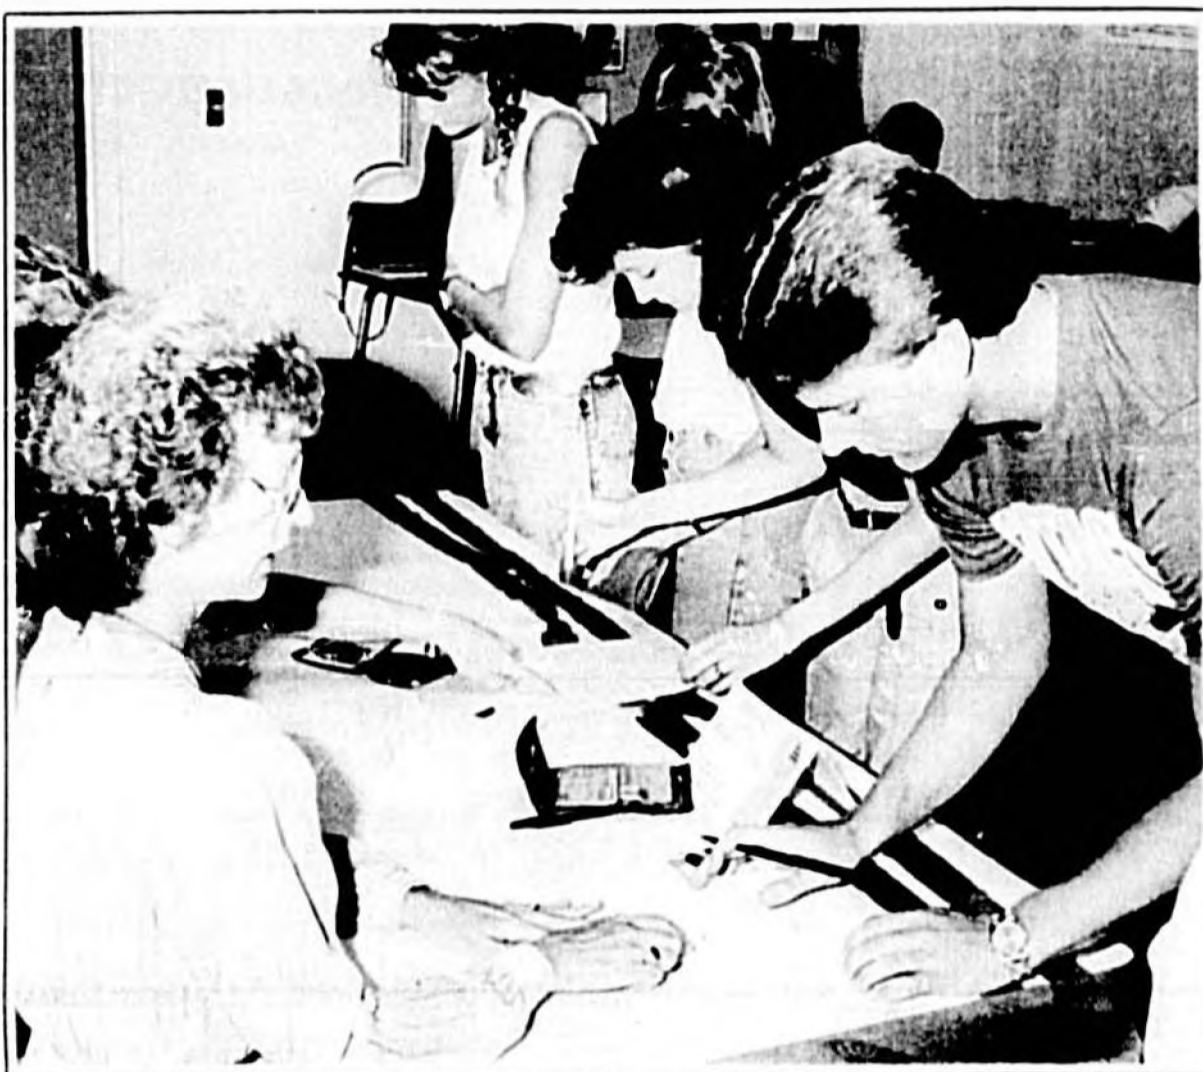

"Personally speaking, I think it is a step backwards," said Harriett. "Driving under the influence is the chief contributor to fatality accidents. I think it (the ruling) will have some serious ramifications."

"Certainly we urge the establishment of the .10 level and this is a setback," he said. Seminole County Sheriff John Polk does not believe the decision will have much effect locally, at least initially.

"I don't think it will have that much of an impact on us," said Polk. "Because of all the other evidence we gather, sidewalk test, video taping and the like. As long as we just keep doing what we're doing, I don't see any problem. Though it might make it harder to get convictions in the future."

Future voter

A privilege of adulthood in the United States is being able to cast your ballot for elected representatives. Students at Lyman High School elected student council representatives this week, and seniors were given the opportunity Thursday to register to vote in this year's September primary elections and the November's general election. Sandra Goard, county election supervisor, left, points out to Kenny Day the instructions on how to fill out the voter registration form. Goard and clerks from her office registered about 400 students and a dozen Lyman staff members during the two hour session.

Post cuts funding for Games; board authorizes price raise

SANFORD — Post Cereals, chief financial underwriter for the Golden Age Games, cut its funding for the Games by two-thirds last year, prompting the executive committee to increase entry fees for this year's event and begin looking for additional sponsors.

Participants in this year's games will pay $3 for each event entered instead of $1 as in the past.

Officials say the increase is necessary because Post only contributed $10,000 toward the cost of the games last year. The company has underwritten the costs of medals, printing jackets and/or T-shirts for Games of trophies and free items for entrants. The 1,500 gold, silver and bronze medals alone, purchased locally from United Trophy Manufacturers Inc., cost $6,500.

The annual Games, which are held in Sanford and various other sites around the country for people 55 and older, are co-sponsored by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and Post. The Chamber has begun looking for other sponsors to share the financial burden of putting on the Games in light of Post's cutback in funding.

The executive committee approved the schedule for the 14th Annual Golden Age Games this week, as well as a new competitive event—windsailing. This year's games will be held Nov. 6-12.

New intersection design at Sanford Plaza due in May

By Klone Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — An engineering consultant design of the intersection of the proposed Seminole County Expressway, Highway 17-92 and Airport Boulevard has been delayed until May, according to Gerald Brinton, expressway authority director.

The alternate design was suggested by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Transportation Committee to save the Sanford Plaza shopping center, which was to be demolished to make way for the intersection in original plans.

A design making the loops in the entry and exit ramps wider to pass behind the shopping center was delayed while new aerial photos of the area were completed. However, Brinton said the firm hired to make the photos mistakenly did not include the buildings at the intersection in the picture.

Consultants will now construct a preliminary engineering design of the revised intersection using existing maps and photos. That design is expected to be ready for presentation to the expressway authority next month, Brinton said. He added that he has walked the area with officials of the Department of Environmental Quality which is a first step in getting an environmental impact plan for a new design accepted.

At the expressway authority's regular meeting Wednesday, members were told 33 engineering consultants have submitted qualification and experience statements seeking to provide final design services for the expressway between S.R. 426 and Highway 17-92.

Brinton said the 33 consultants would eventually be narrowed to 10, seven of which would be involved in design services for five roadway projects and three more delegated to design services for the Lake Jesup bridge.

The six proposed projects within the county include:

- From S.R. 426 to Mikler Road (2.4 miles).
 - Mikler Road through relocated Red Bug Road Interchange (1.7 miles).
 - Red Bug Road Interchange to South of Lake Jesup (2.5 miles).
 - Lake Jesup bridge (8.500 miles).

Manning not being set up for dismissal

New administrator denies he plans to get rid of chief

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The city's new city administrator, Gene DeMarie, scheduled to begin his job on a part-time basis next week, has denied allegations by recently reinstated Police Chief Greg Manning that DeMarie has plans to fire him before his six-month probationary period ends.

DeMarie said he has never met Manning, but talked to him once on the telephone since being selected as Longwood's new city administrator. He said Manning had called him previously at his request.

"I wanted to assure Manning that I was not coming into the job with any pre-conceived ideas about him," DeMarie explained. "I had heard a lot of things about him, and thought I should speak to the man himself. I don't know why he thought it was necessary to call with his attorney on another line. I felt really uncomfortable not knowing what they were up to. The discussion was very general and very subtle."

DeMarie, now the Florida City manager, spoke to a Herald reporter from his home in North Miami Beach where he is recovering from a bout of food poisoning.

"I'm beginning to get a little upset," he said. He (Manning) is using the press to develop a sense of mistrust in me."

DeMarie said he is coming in "at the end of the entire Greg Manning controversy, and I made it very clear to him I have not seen the management audit of the police benevolent fund or a record of the police review board hearing."

"I have no idea where he got the idea that I'm going to fire him," DeMarie said. "He brought up the settlement offer and I told him if he took the

Who: Gene DeMarie, who has been hired as Longwood's new city administrator.

On what: Recently reinstated police chief Greg Manning's statements that DeMarie said he was "too political" and would be fired before the chief's six-month probation is completed.

Denial: DeMarie said he has only spoken briefly with Manning, never said he was "too political" and has no plans to fire him if he performs his job in a professional, productive manner.

settlement offer I would support his decision and that it would leave the door open for me to hire a new police chief which would give me more flexibility with a new team approach."

DeMarie was referring to a tentative proposal the city made to Manning before his Feb. 22 suspension calling for the city to withdraw pending administrative changes and pay Manning his $61,105 salary (including benefits) through Sept. 30 if he would resign. After that time he would be required to receive his biweekly paycheck until all compensatory time owed him was used up.

In December 1987, the city commission voted 3-2 to pay Manning for the 358 hours of compensatory time or approximately $11,000. Two days later city Attorney Michael Kramer stopped resumption of the check because the money had not been budgeted and it would take an ordinance to transfer the funds from the contingency account.

Spying different from leaking

The recent ruling by a federal appeals court in Richmond, Va., upholding the espionage conviction of Samuel Loring Morison is a disturbing development that could have a negative impact on how the news media cover national security issues.

The basic facts are not in doubt. Mr. Morison, grandson of the famed naval historian, was a civilian naval intelligence analyst who gave Jane's Defence Weekly, a British magazine, classified U.S. spy satellite photos of a Soviet aircraft carrier under construction. He did it for personal gain, and he was wrong to do it. But rather than punish him under some lesser statute, the Reagan Justice Department charged him with violating the 1917 Espionage Act.

His initial conviction under this law—and the appeals court's upholding of the conviction—set dangerous precedents. The original World War I law was aimed at individuals who passed military secrets to the enemy in wartime. It was not written to punish government workers who leak information to the press in peacetime.

Only once before was there an attempt to use the 1917 Espionage Act to punish a leaker. That was during the famous Pentagon Papers case, when the Nixon administration tried to convict and jail Daniel Ellsberg for leaking the material to the press. The federal courts threw that case out.

Some will argue that the Morison conviction is a special and isolated case and that the misuse of the 1917 Espionage Act is not a threat. That belies reality; in the hands of a paranoid, preemptory administration this could become the weapon of choice to punish even honest patriotic whistle-blowers. If the Supreme Court does not overturn this decision, Congress should rewrite the Espionage Act to prevent this abuse.

Let parties decide

Who should set the rules for American political parties—party members or state government? Two years ago, the U.S. Supreme Court said that the parties, not the states, should decide whether independent voters can cast ballots in partisan primary elections.

Now, the court has agreed to determine whether a California ban on party endorsements in primary elections "is a form of paternalism" that "patently infringes on both the right of the party to express itself freely and the right of party members to an unrestricted flow of political information." That's the language used by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in a 1986 ruling that struck down California's longtime ban on such endorsements.

There are good arguments to be made both for and against party endorsements in primary elections. But we are convinced that decisions on such vital matters of party policy should be made by the parties, not by government.

Reagan, Gorbachev in pre-summit sparring

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Michael Gorbachev are doing a diplomatic dance — mainly for home consumption — as they move toward their fourth summit meeting, this time in Moscow.

Wild horses could not keep Reagan away, although to hear him talk he is about to meet with people you wouldn't invite into your home.

The president's high profile rhetoric in the days leading up to the May 25-June 3 summit journey is something to behold. He has made a series of three speeches in recent weeks: in Las Vegas, before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington, and before a regional World Affairs Council in Springfield, Mass., all focused on what he used to call the "evil empire."

There are more pre-summit addresses on tap before the president takes off on his first journey to the Soviet Union, with a rest stop on the way in Helsinki, Finland.

Reagan has come a long way from that polarized view and speaks admiringly of Gorbachev. The two leaders have set aside some private talking time, with only interpreters present, in addition to the meetings covering the formal agenda.

The president's recent tough talk appears aimed reassuring his jumpy conservative constituency, who are wary of any rapprochement with Moscow. But it's a little late in the game for his right flank to weigh in heavily, since it is clear that the only real mark Reagan can make in his remaining days in office is in East-West relations.

The headline speeches have made headlines and hardly enhance the political climate in advance of the summit meeting. But the White House has indicated it is not concerned about that aspect. The Soviet leadership, through the official Tass News Agency, denounced Reagan for expressing doubt that the Kremlin would keep its word in a total withdrawal of its forces from Afghanistan.

Reagan also irked his future hosts by hammering away at regional disputes and the human rights issue, meaning emigration of Soviet Jews.

In response, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater accused the Soviets of "needlessly inflammatory" attacks on Reagan.

Gorbachev indulged in the same tactics to hold off the Soviet hawks while he pursued glasnost and his summit meeting last December in Washington.

The new Reagan policy, shying away from detente, is called "realistic engagement," but a rose is a rose by any other name. It signifies more coexistence, with or without warmth, and a realization on the part of the superpowers that they have indulged in no-win involvements in regional wars such as Afghanistan, where the Soviets invaded to prop up a puppet, and Nicaragua, where the United States conducted a proxy war with its surrogates.

Nevertheless, Reagan intends to continue striving for a START accord before he leaves office, and it is conceivable that he could go to a final summit meeting with Gorbachev to sign it. If that is the case, he would achieve the title of peacemaker.

Bridges falling down?

NEW YORK (NEA) — Not since late 1973, when an elevated section of the West Side Highway suddenly collapsed under the weight of a truck, has there been so much hullabaloo about the decay of New York's public structures.

This renewed concern was inspired by the mid-April decision of municipal engineers to shut down the deteriorating 85-year-old Williamsburg Bridge.

That action added to the burden of the other already-overloaded bridges and tunnels spanning the East River, as 240,000 motorists and subway riders who depended upon the Williamsburg Bridge during their daily commute were forced to seek different routes.

The alternative was risking a disaster on the crumbling structure. Its suspension cables are corroded, its structural supports are cracked, its steel towers are decayed, and its roadway beams are severely rusted.

Failure to detect similar defects elsewhere in the country has led to three major collapses in the past five years.

(BU) In 1983, a Connecticut Turnpike bridge fell into the Mianus River, killing three people and disrupting traffic on a heavily traveled section of Interstate 95. The disaster was caused by a corroded support system.

(BU) In 1985, the Chickasawogee Bridge in Alabama collapsed as a result of deterioration of its underwater steel piles. Nobody was killed or injured, however.

(BU) In 1987, a New York State Thruway Bridge crumbled into the swirling water of Schoharie Creek, killing 10 people. The soil that held its underwater footings in place had eroded.

Although there have been no such calamities here, 654 of the 1,468 bridges owned by the city and state in the five boroughs — almost 45 percent — are structurally unsound.

That means they must be rehabilitated or replaced by the end of the century — but budgets are tight and there is no ready source for the uncounted billions of dollars required to perform the work.

"It's hard sometimes to tell the falling bridges without a scorecard," notes the New York Times.

Wright targeted by tricksters, fund-raisers

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, has reached the top of the heap in Washington. The proof is not in adulation, but in the amount of vitriol poured on him by frustrated Republicans.

They feature Wright as the consummate bogymen in their fundraising literature. Wright and his aides believe that political opponents are probably behind a whisper campaign and "dirty tricks" that are reminiscent of the Nixon era.

A friend of Wright's consoled him about all the attention. "It's a game called sack the quarterback," Rep. Bill Gray, D-Pa., told Wright.

Like him or not, Wright has become more effective as Democratic quarterback in the last year than the Republicans ever imagined he could be. He can take perverse satisfaction if the antics are the work of his opponents. It means his influence is being felt. But the dirty tricks are still unnerving.

Last December, an unknown number of residents in Wright's Fort Worth district were awakened by late-night phone calls. The timing was rude enough, but then the calls began with one of those obnoxious taped messages: "This is an urgent message from the speaker of the House." Those who didn't

GEORGE MCGOVERN

Seek a compromise

No issue on the international scene threatens to create deeper conflict and greater danger than the worsening clash between Israel and the Palestinians.

Israel appears determined to hold the Arab territory it has occupied since 1967. It has rejected all claims of the Palestinians to a homeland comprised of those disputed territories, and it has brutally attempted to suppress the rebellion that has unfolded among Palestinian youths on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Recently, Israel reportedly sent a highly sophisticated commando assassination team to Tunis to kill one of the key leaders of the Palestinians. This killing set off more protests in the occupied territories, which in turn prompted Israeli soldiers to kill another 13 Palestinians.

At the same time, it seems clear that the Palestinians will never give up their struggle to have a homeland. Although the youths are armed only with stones, they have not hesitated to assault heavily armed Israeli soldiers. Scores of Palestinians have died.

Faced with a growing adverse reaction abroad to its harsh tactics against the uprising, the Likud government of Israel has barred the press from witnessing its activities on the West Bank and has cracked down all the harder on the protesters.

These developments are causing deep concern on the part of at least a significant minority of Israeli and American Jews. The leaders of the Labor party in Israel have expressed concern with the harsh tactics of the Likud government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir. They have called for negotiations with the Palestinians at an international conference to end the conflict.

It is difficult to assess whether such negotiations are likely to take place. While leaders and some supporters of the Labor party appear to favor such a course, the militant, hard-line position of the Likud's Shamir seems to be carrying the day.

Obviously under pressure from Jewish groups before the New York primary, even Jesse Jackson, who has previously met with Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat, was at pains to explain that he would not as president meet with the PLO leader again unless the PLO first recognized Israel.

The sterile debate between Israel and the PLO over which one should recognize the other first is one of the most maddening aspects of the Middle East conflict. Arafat insists that he does recognize Israel's right to exist but that Israel must also recognize the PLO claim to an independent Palestinian homeland.

Given the enormous investment of money, effort and risk that the United States has made in supporting Israel from the beginning, we have a right and an obligation to press hard for such a settlement.

SCIENCE WORLD

Scientists patenting for future

By Dessy Hamilton
OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — Researchers at government nuclear plants are developing more than energy and bombs — they are coming up with innovations that may lead to improvements like cars without radiators.

The scientists work for Martin Marietta Energy Systems, a government contractor that runs the Oak Ridge National Laboratory and the Y-12 nuclear weapons plant. But not all their time is spent refining uranium for reactors or developing the implements of destruction.

Martin Marietta spokesman Ed Aebischer says the researchers spend a good deal of time developing innovative materials and ideas for industrial applications.

Aebischer said many of the newly patented items may seem at present to be of little or no use to the average person, but some eventually find their way into practical applications.

For example, a technique for implanting nitrogen ions in metals. "It may never wind up on American coffee tables, but Johnson & Johnson is marketing the concept for replacement hips and knees. Implanting (nitrogen) ions on the surface of a titanium ball creates an extremely hard surface that is very resistant to corrosion and erosion. It last about 10 times longer than regular titanium implants."

Most patents developed by scientists at Martin Marietta are the property of the federal government, which pays for the research, but a few are made available for the company to license for commercial use.

Jon Soderstrom, who is in charge of licensing Martin Marietta's patents, said one such patent is for a super-hardened ceramic that is toughened by reinforcing it with silicon-carbon "whiskers."

Soderstrom said the initial use of the new ceramic will be in cutting tools that will operate at speeds 10 times faster and last seven times longer than carbide-tipped cutting tools, now the standard for long-lasting cutting tool applications.

"In the long run, we hope to see a lot of useful applications (for the new ceramic), perhaps even as a new type of automobile engine."

pressed stockyards of northern Fort Worth.

"It may be good for the folks in Fort Worth to see that money coming in, but that absolutely is not the way government ought to do business," Swindle said.

The Council for Inter-American Security recently sent out a fundraising letter attacking Wright. The letter was so vicious that it caused at least two CIS advisory board members to resign. CIS calls itself a non-partisan outfit and boasts a few Democratic members, but the bulk of its members are Republican conservatives who push the Reagan foreign-policy agenda.

CIS sent out about 20,000 copies of the letter accusing Wright of "treasonous acts" because he had private talks with Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega last November. The letter said Wright "has broken the law" and should at the least "be put on public trial for his crimes against the Constitution!" Further, the letter charged that no member of Congress "has done more to help the communists than Speaker of the House Jim Wright."

This incendiary, latter-day McCarthyism was never shown to the CIS advisory board members before it was sent out with their names on the letterhead. Former Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., and Sen. Jake Garn,

R-Utah, resigned from the board over the letter. (Garn, incidentally, said he never agreed to be on the board in the first place.)

A CIS spokesman said the letter was a mistake, not because of its acerbic tone, but because it wasn't supposed to go out on stationary listing the board members. Unrepentant, CIS is sending out 500,000 more copies of the same letter over the signature of its president.

Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., snuck up on his audience with a fund-raising letter and a slam at Wright last year. The envelope looks important. "Congress of the United States/Official Business," it says in the corner. Then there is the attention grabber: "1987 federal tax information enclosed." The "tax information" is that Wright plans to raise them. The solution? Send money to Vander Jagt's GOP Victory Fund.

On the cover of the March issue of the Moral Majority magazine, Liberty Report, Wright is pictured as a grinning vampire sucking the life out of everything the Moral Majority stands for. The article says, "His critics call him corrupt. They compare him to Mussolini. His critics link him to so many scandals that Gary Hart's wrongdoing pale in comparison."

NATION IN BRIEF

Senate kills amnesty extension; deadline remains May 4

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For illegal aliens in the United States who have not yet applied for legal status under the one-year amnesty program, estimated by some at 500,000, the deadline is midnight May 4. There is no extension.

The last, feeble hope of extending the deadline ended Thursday when the Senate voted 56-40 not to kill a Republican-led filibuster blocking action on the House-passed extension until Nov. 30.

"The ballgame has nine innings," said Assistant Senate Republican leader Alan Simpson of Wyoming. "The ninth inning is here."

Urging colleagues and others to spread the word that there will be no amnesty extension, Simpson said. "With this vote, we have indeed sent a signal. May 4 is the deadline... amnesty will end."

The refusal to kill the filibuster assured no Senate action before the May 4 deadline, at which time the Senate will be in a week's recess.

Reagan seeks drug war tactics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two months after suggesting the tide had turned in the war on illegal drugs, President Reagan has issued an urgent order for new ways to boost the federal government's fight against dealers and users.

Acting on a major election-year issue, Reagan ordered an interagency task force Thursday to draft recommendations within 30 days to step up what he has touted in the past as an encouraging anti-drug effort.

"We don't have much time," Reagan said in a directive to members of his National Drug Policy Board, which represents 17 federal departments, agencies and offices. "But I want to do all I can to expand the drug fight."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater announced the move after Reagan was briefed on the scope of the narcotics problem and the status of current law enforcement and other anti-drug efforts by officials of nine federal agencies.

Iran-Contra deadline arrives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense lawyers in the Iran-Contra case faced a deadline today to file arguments against a law that has prevented their clients from reviewing some classified documents on the matter.

Under an April 13 court order, attorneys for the defendants had until today to state their concerns about the Classified Information Procedures Act, which they said could deprive their clients of "a fair and expeditious proceeding."

Debate over top-secret data in the documents is threatening the case, raising the possibility that it could be dismissed before it ever goes to trial.

Questions of access to the classified information took center stage in court once again Thursday as defense lawyers objected to a prosecution proposal to have them, but not their clients, winnow through the sensitive documents.

Independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh said he is concerned some of the files the defense claims as crucial to its case may be too sensitive for disclosure on a broad basis. That could short-circuit the trial.

Lady Bird Johnson honored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Welcome back Lady Bird, it's good to have you home," President Reagan said in presenting the widow of President Lyndon Johnson a congressional gold medal for her humanitarian efforts and continuing campaign to beautify America.

The ceremony took place Thursday in the East Room, a nostalgic setting for the former first lady who lived in the White House from the end of 1963 until January 1969.

Johnson initiated the national beautification program as her "first lady project" and Washington, exploding in spring blooms, was testimony to its success.

With her family in the front row, Reagan presented the former first lady with the medal, saying, "Welcome back, Lady Bird. It's good to have you home."

Failure of ban carries no effect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democratic arms controllers stand three-for-four on this year's defense bill, and the one they lost hardly matters in any case.

After refusing to spend $100 million on a new ground-based anti-satellite weapon, the House broke with a three-year arms control pattern by rejecting Thursday, 205-197, a proposed test ban on the current ASAT system.

The action had no practical effect, however, because the Air Force, tired of trying after three defeats, did not seek any money in fiscal 1989 for its ASAT missile fired from an F-15 jet. With no program, there was nothing to ban.

Back on track with recent tradition, the Democratic-led House voted 214-186 Thursday to ban for one year nuclear weapons tests of more than 1 kiloton as long as the Soviet Union holds testing to that level.

The votes on amendments to next year's defense bill made arms controllers three-for-four this week. Wednesday the House ordered the administration to stay within weapons launcher limits of the unratified 1979 SALT 2 agreement and ordered "Star Wars," the Strategic Defense Initiative, held to a narrow interpretation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

Lawmakers push 'sunshine' amendment

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Four maverick Democratic lawmakers pressed Thursday for Gov. Bob Martinez to make good on his campaign pledge to open legislative strategy sessions to the public, but came away with no firm commitment.

Two senators and two House members met briefly with Lt. Gov. Bobby Brantley to ask that Martinez help pressure committee chairmen in both houses to permit debate on a proposed constitutional amendment to apply open government laws to the Legislature.

The Legislature exempted itself when it wrote the "sunshine" laws requiring local governments to conduct all business in public.

"Let's just put it out there so it can be considered," urged Sen. Pat Frank, D-Tampa, co-sponsor of the measure.

"You can assume that I will talk to him about our conversation," Brantley said.

Later, the lawmakers expressed disappointment the governor's office was not pressing harder for an idea that had been a central tenet of Martinez' campaign for the governor: the end of closed-door meetings in which key lawmakers strike deals on the budget and other important bills.

Sen. Larry Plummer, D-South Miami, accused Martinez of ducking the issue. The fact the meeting was with Brantley instead of Martinez himself "tells us the governor is trying to isolate himself," Plummer said.

Martinez promised his own meetings with lawmakers would be open to public scrutiny. But he reneged shortly after the beginning of the 1987 legislative session, saying he could not negotiate publicly when legislative leaders reserved the right to meet in secret.

Rep. John Cosgrove, D-Miami, and Rep. Mike Friedman, D-Miami Beach, are pressing the legislation in the House.

Palestinian youth killed in West Bank uprising

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli soldiers killed one youth while battling hundreds of Arab protesters in a West Bank village, and an Israeli-appointed West Bank mayor's bodyguard wounded a Palestinian who was demanding the official's resignation.

The death of the young protester Thursday in the remote village of Kafr raised to at least 168 the number of Palestinians killed in the anti-Israel uprising that erupted in the occupied territories Dec. 9. A Jewish teenager and an Israeli soldier also have been killed.

At least two other Palestinians suffered minor gunshot wounds Thursday in clashes with Israeli troops during demonstrations in the occupied West Bank, the army said. The Gaza Strip was reported quiet.

A general strike called to protest Israel's deportation to Lebanon of 20 Palestinians kept businesses throughout the occupied territories closed. Most Arab workers with jobs in Israel stayed home.

Hundreds of Palestinian youths throwing rocks and Molotov cocktails attacked an Israeli patrol that entered Kafr, about 20 miles northeast of Jerusalem, an army spokesman said.

Contras reject aid offer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — In a major concession, the government offered to let U.S.-backed rebels inside Nicaragua receive humanitarian aid before retreating to designated cease-fire zones, but a guerrilla leader rejected the proposal.

The leftist Sandinista government proposed to allow the immediate distribution of aid for the rebels, known as Contras, possibly through the International Red Cross, during Thursday's first day of renewed peace talks on ending the 7-year-old civil war.

The rebels rejected the proposal late Thursday. "We don't want to convert ourselves from combatants to refugees," said Adolfo Calero, a member of the Contra directorate.

Calero told United Press International that the government proposal was not in line with agreements reached by the two sides at the southern Nicaraguan town of Sapoa March 23.

Banning of militants urged

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (UPI) — A minister for overseas territories urged Thursday the banning of a militant separatist group he blamed for a wave of killings and kidnappings in the troubled South Pacific island group.

Minister Bernard Pons said he asked French leaders to ban the Kanak Socialist National Liberation Front, or FLNKS, after visiting a remote site where negotiators worked to release 22 officials held hostage by Melanesian extremists.

Authorities said Capt. Philippe Legorjus, head of an elite anti-terrorist unit, shuttled between French military authorities and the radical Melanesians, or Kanaks, holding 21 French policemen and a state prosecutor in a cave.

Worker's strike gains support

KRAKOW, Poland (UPI) — A strike by 20,000 steelworkers demanding a 70 percent wage hike entered its fourth day today and was supported by at least 4,000 workers in two other cities, dissident sources said.

Meanwhile, university students called for campus sympathy strikes in support of the steelworkers.

Leaders of Solidarity and other outlawed groups rallied followers Thursday to back the steelworkers amid signs that authorities were toughening attempts to rein in growing unrest.

Witnesses said today detachments of motorized riot police arrived in Warsaw and Krakow.

Police bullet kills officer during raid

NEW YORK (UPI) — A police sergeant gunned down during a drug raid was killed by a police bullet, a law enforcement source reported.

Police initially said Sgt. John McCormick, 43, was killed by a bullet fired by a pregnant woman during the raid Wednesday in the drug-infested upper West Side of Manhattan.

Police scheduled a news conference to discuss the surprise revelation that police fired the bullet that killed McCormick, a highly decorated 19-year veteran of the force.

McCormick was pronounced dead at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, becoming the third city police officer killed this year in drug-related violence.

Mercedes Perez, 23, the pregnant woman who was shot in the arm and stomach and initially charged with the fatal shooting, gave birth to a healthy baby girl by Caesarean section at the same hospital about 15 minutes later.

Police had said Perez shot McCormick in the face at point-blank range through a closed door.

Perez and her 3-pound, 1-ounce infant, born a month premature, were listed in stable condition at the hospital.

A highly placed law enforcement source revealed Thursday investigators found that the .38-caliber slug that struck McCormick was fired by police during the gun battle that ensued as he and other officers stormed an uptown Manhattan crack den.

Before the source of the bullet was revealed, an enraged Mayor Edward Koch had renewed his call for a mandatory death penalty for those who kill police, saying escalating violence associated with the drug trade has placed officers at increased risk.

"I believe our cops are going to be in great danger," he said. "They are entitled to the added deterrent of the death penalty."

There is no death penalty in New York state.

McCormick, who received 10 commendations in nearly 20 years of service, was killed while executing a search warrant about 12:45 p.m. with 14 other officers of the Bronx Narcotic Unit at an apartment in the drug- and crime-plagued Inwood area of upper Manhattan.

The officers kicked in the door of a fourth-floor apartment where they had been told a quantity of drugs would be found, said police Commissioner Benjamin Ward.

Perez and another woman,

Maritzer Batista, 36, fled to the rear of the apartment, where a pit bull was tethered in the kitchen, Ward said.

"One (woman) entered a back bedroom and fired two or three shots through a closed door, one of which hit the sergeant in the jaw," Ward said.

McCormick was wearing a bulletproof vest, but the fatal shot entered his jaw, passed through his spine and lodged in his chest, authorities said.

Twins shoot down winless (0-21) O's

United Press International Blackjack! The Orioles have hit 21; surely it's time to stick.

The flab bowl is getting smaller and smaller every day, said catcher Terry Kennedy after winless Baltimore set an American League record Thursday afternoon by losing its 21st consecutive game.

One might think teams would be lining up to play the Orioles but Twins first baseman Kent Hrbek doesn't see it that way.

"It's nice to have them over with," Hrbek said after smacking a two-run homer in Minnesota's 4-2 triumph. "We have to play them again in a few days. Hopefully they'll have won by then to ease the pressure on them. It doesn't seem like they're giving up."

Left fielder John Moses, who drove in the Twins' other runs with a double, agreed: "I think there's a lot more pressure on teams playing Baltimore than anyone else. Nobody wants to lose to them."

Next up on the Baltimore futility train — Chicago, where the White Sox hope to avoid the embarrassment of being the first club to lose to the Orioles in 1988.

The three-game series begins tonight at Comisky Park. Baltimore's Mark Thurmond, 0-4, faces Chicago's Jack McDowell, 1-1, at 8:30 p.m. EST. If the Orioles are swept, they'll set a modern major-league mark. The 1961 Philadelphia Phillies lost 23 straight.

The old AL standard was held by the 1906 Boston Red Sox and the 1916 and 1943 Philadelphia Athletics, and Baltimore has long since eclipsed the record for 13 losses to start a season.

As in recent games, the Orioles scored first Thursday. Tito Landrum led off the first with a single against Allan Anderson, 1-0, who arrived this week from Portland of the Pacific Coast League. Landrum eventually scored on Eddie Murray's ground out.

And, as in recent games, Baltimore couldn't hang on.

Hrbek connected in the fourth against Mike Boddicker, 0-5, who lost his 10th straight decision, most in franchise history. Moses drilled a two-run double off the wall in right-center in the sixth.

Trailing 4-1, the Orioles squandered a chance to come back in the seventh. Despite receiving four walks that brought home one run, they failed to produce a key hit.

Mark Portugal, who also was in Portland earlier this week, relieved with the bases full and one out. He fanned pinch-hitter Fred Lynn and got Cal Ripken to fly out, ending the threat. Portugal finished up for his first save.

Mariners 3, Indians 1 At Cleveland, Mike Campbell, 2-2, pitched his second complete game, a five-hitter, to pace Seattle. Henry Cotto led the offense by going 3 for 4 with two RBI. The Indians, who have the best record in baseball (16-5), played in front of 3,762 fans.

BASEBALL

Tigers 5, Angels 1 At Detroit, Frank Tanana, 5-0, allowed five hits in becoming the first Detroit pitcher in 34 years to win his first five starts. Mike Henneman earned his eighth save. California's Kirk McCaskill, 1-3, pitched his first complete game in more than a year, giving up four hits.

Athletics 6, Blue Jays 2 At Toronto, Dave Parker launched a three-run homer in Oakland's five-run fifth to make Dave Stewart, 6-0, baseball's first six-game winner. Stewart committed two balks to bring his season total to 11, breaking the AL mark and tying Steve Carlton's major-league standard set in 1979.

Rayals 6, Yankees 3 At New York, George Brett drove in three runs with a homer and a double as Floyd Bannister, 3-1, allowed five hits over 7 2/3 innings. Dan Quisenberry earned his first save. Kansas City took two of the three games at Yankee Stadium, where last season they were 0-6.

White Sox 6, Red Sox 0 At Chicago, Dave LaPoint, 3-1, lowered his league-leading ERA to 0.95 in throwing his first shutout of the season. Kenny Williams smacked a three-run homer off Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 2-1, to help snap Boston's six-game winning streak.

BRUNANSKY BLASTS PADRES

On his first swing through a new circuit, Tom Brunansky's old swing works just fine.

A perennial home run hitter for the World Champion Minnesota Twins before being traded last Friday to St. Louis, Brunansky is making his inaugural tour of the National League. Thursday at San Diego, he hit two home runs — giving him three in his last two games — to help the Cardinals claim a 6-4 triumph over the Padres.

Brunansky, who has averaged 28 homers the last five seasons, attributes his early success in the National League to his aggressiveness at the plate. "You've got to be aggressive, situations in the American League are very rare when you are going to see three or four different pitchers in a game. I kind of like it this way."

Pirates 2, Giants 1 At San Francisco, Darnell Coles singled home Bobby Bonilla with one out in the 10th inning, lifting Pittsburgh. Pirates reliever Jeff Robinson, 2-0, made his first appearance against his former teammates and threw 3 2/3 for the victory. The Pirates have won all 10 games in which Robinson has appeared this season. Jim Gott retired the last batter for his third save.

Cubs 5, Dodgers 1 At Los Angeles, Andre Dawson broke open a scoreless game with a two-run triple in the sixth and Calvin Schiraldi combined with Frank DiPino on a five-hitter to lift Chicago. Schiraldi, 1-2, who came to the Cubs from Boston in the offseason trade for Lee Smith, registered his first National League victory since June 2, 1985, when he was with the Mets. The right-hander struck out seven and allowed just four hits and an unearned run in 5 1/3 innings.

Porter takes 25-lap event at Speed World

LeRoy Porter continued his successful drive on the comeback trail by winning his second 25-lap Late Model feature in a row last week at Orlando Speed World. Ron McCreary, a former late model driver, beat 61 cars to the finish line in the 200-lap Enduro.

Mike Howell made the long trip down from West Palm Beach to win the Late Model feature at New Smyrna Speedway. The Sportsman feature was won by the Sanford sponsored Kar Supplies Mercury Cougar driven by young Marc Kinley of Osteen. Other Sanford top finishers were Bobby Sears, Bill Martin, Randy Smathers, Joey Warmack, Chuck Rush and Ed Meridith.

After several weeks of motor problems, Rob Underwood returned to Winston Racing Series action with an impressive win Saturday night at Volusia County Speedway. By virtue of his poor finishes in past weeks, Underwood started on the front row. Underwood was never challenged and was able to lap every car but Dennis Bennett and Tuck Trentham.

A rumor that the Melling-Coors team which fields cars for Bill Elliott would be associated with Coca-Cola in 1989 has been denied. "This is the final year of our contract with Coors, but we already are in process of discussing the future," stated a team spokesman. "Right now, the discussions are in a very preliminary stage. We don't have any contracts with Coca-Cola and we don't know where the rumor originated." In addition to no longer having Coors as a sponsor, the rumor also said Elliott would leave Ford at the seasons end.

The 19th Annual Winston 500 will be held at Alabama International Motor Speedway this Sunday. Davey Allison is the defending champion. Bill Elliott holds the Winston Cup qualifying record of 212.809 mph set on April, 1987. Elliott also holds the 500-mile race record of 186.288 set in 1985. The 188 laps on the 2.66 mile track will start at 1 p.m. and can be seen live in ESPN for all of you who have cable TV.

Thomas (34), Jordan (50) highlight playoff openers

Two of basketball's most luminous guards stepped to the front Thursday night in the opening round of the NBA playoffs.

Ishai Thomas awakened the Detroit Pistons by scoring 26 of his 34 points in the second half and pacing the Detroit Pistons to a 96-87 victory over the Washington Bullets.

Michael Jordan scored 20 of his 50 points in the second quarter as the Chicago Bulls posted a 103-94 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers to end a three-year postseason winless streak.

In an opening game at Dallas, Mavericks sixth man Roy Tarpley outbatted Akem Olajuwon down the stretch to pace Dallas to a 120-110 victory over the Houston Rockets.

In the other Western Conference game, Clyde Drexler and Jerome Kersey each scored 26 points to lead the Portland Trail Blazers to a 108-96 victory over the Utah Jazz.

On Friday night the other best-of-five conference quarterfinals open. New York is at Boston and Milwaukee is at Atlanta in the East. In the West, it's San Antonio at the Los Angeles Lakers and Seattle at Denver.

helped Detroit erase a 9-point deficit in the third quarter, during which he scored 12 points. The Detroit guard scored 12 points in the first eight minutes of the final quarter to help the Pistons to an 85-76 lead.

"Ishai came on in the second half and dominated the game," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "He made seven or eight in a row. That's why he is who he is."

Washington did an excellent job defending Adrian Dantley, holding the Detroit forward to 21 points, 12 in the first three quarters. But the Pistons were able to hold the Blazers' Moses Malone to 21 points.

Dantley drove the lane for a sweeping hook with 1:11 that cemented the decision, giving Detroit a 91-85 lead. He pushed in another layup in traffic with 29 seconds to go to make it 93-87.

Jeff Malone scored 33 points for Bullets, 15 in the final period. Game 2 is Saturday night at the Silverdome.

At Chicago, Jordan's 50 points helped the Bulls win their first playoff game since 1985. The Boston Celtics swept Chicago in the opening round the last two seasons. Dallas vs. Houston At Dallas, Tarpley scored 24 points for Dallas and could not be stopped late in the game. Eight Mavericks scored in double figures in an attack that featured 57 percent shooting.

Dallas built a 6-point lead with two minutes to play when Tarpley beat Olajuwon and was fouled for a 3-point play. Moments later Tarpley again spun around Olajuwon for a layup that boosted Dallas' advantage to 11.

Portland vs. Utah At Portland, Ore., Terry Porter added 20 points for the Blazers, who lost four of five regular-season games to the Jazz, including two in Portland.

Thurl Bailey had 31 points and John Stockton 20 to lead the Jazz. Utah's Karl Malone, who averaged 27.7 points a game this season, was held to 16. He scored just 4 points in the second half.

Stockton's two free throws with 6:08 left in the third quarter closed Portland's lead to 69-59.

Chicago vs. Cleveland At Chicago, Jordan's 50 points helped the Bulls win their first playoff game since 1985. The Boston Celtics swept Chicago in the opening round the last two seasons. Dallas vs. Houston At Dallas, Tarpley scored 24 points for Dallas and could not be stopped late in the game. Eight Mavericks scored in double figures in an attack that featured 57 percent shooting.

Dallas built a 6-point lead with two minutes to play when Tarpley beat Olajuwon and was fouled for a 3-point play. Moments later Tarpley again spun around Olajuwon for a layup that boosted Dallas' advantage to 11.

The nose loves those who know how a rose grows

Where did the rose originate? No one is really sure, but it can be traced back to the ancient Chinese, North African and West Asian civilizations. The rose is one of the oldest flowers in cultivation and has been grown for over 5,000 years.

Over 4,000 songs have been written exalting roses and it has been mentioned in poetic works since civilization began. The rose has inspired fashion, interior design and other works of art. Before the beauty of this flower was really appreciated, it was valued as a food. Roses have been pickled and boiled; they have been made into jams, jellies, cakes and candies; and in Victorian days, rose petals were boiled to obtain rose water and perfume.

Roses are grown in all of the fifty states and even though they require special care in Florida, their magnificent beauty makes all the work very worthwhile.

In Florida, the rose bush is an evergreen shrub that grows and blooms most of the year in our part of the state. Each year, the plants produce from five to seven flushes of bloom and a few flowers between cycles.

Rose culture is slightly different in Florida than in other regions. Plants grow larger here and must be given plenty of room. Winter protection is not necessary but anchoring taller varieties to reduce wind injury is recommended.

Roses should be planted in an open location where they will receive direct sunlight for at least six hours during the day. The best soil is one having good drainage but an adequate supply of water and nutrients. Most organic amendments like compost, leafmold, peat and mulches can be used to increase water and nutrient holding capacities of our sandy soils.

Most rose plants sold have been grafted on one of the following rootstocks: Fortuniana, Dr. Huey or Multiflora. The Fortuniana types are longest lived, grow larger, are more vigorous, produce more flowers and are usually recommended for Florida. Other ever-blooming varieties on other root systems can be grown successfully but do not produce as high quality plants as the varieties on Rosa Fortuniana rootstock.

In Florida, roses are high maintenance plants. They need irrigation, fertilization, mulching, pruning and pest control.

Two diseases—black spot and powdery mildew—can be limiting factors in rose production. Weekly fungicide sprays may be necessary. Mites are the major insect pests, but other pests include caterpillars, scales, aphids and thrips. Rose pests can be effectively controlled if general recommendations are followed: Buy plants free of diseases and insects; keep plants free of fallen leaves and diseases or insect infested plants or canes; and follow a regular spray program to prevent severe damage from diseases and/or insects.

If you are not already growing roses, plant a rose and you'll soon realize why it is called "The Queen of Flowers."

Scout cookie pushers aren't cutesy vendors

DEAR ABBY: Thirty-five-year-old "Girl Scouts" are almost unheard of—until cookie-selling season approaches. Then these badge-less mothers are turned loose in the workplace to unload goods for their 10-year-old kids.

Co-workers of parents whose children participate in sports or other activities are subjected to seasonal pitches for fund-raising items. Whatever happened to the Girl Scouts and Little Leaguers who used to go from door to door to sell their own cookies and candies? I frequently buy wares from these children's parents, but just once I'd like to see a handwritten acknowledgment from the child on the bulletin board in Mom's or Dad's workplace.

I will remain skeptical that Girl Scouts even exist unless my co-workers are allowed to wear their green uniforms to the office.

HEIDI, FORMER DOOR-KNOCKER

DEAR HEIDI: I see your point, and you are not alone. However, let's be fair. I've seen supervised Girl Scouts selling their cookies outside supermarkets and malls—always cheerful, persistent and enthusiastic. At the workplace, you are buying cookies, not gratitude.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question for your readers. Have you ever come in from shopping and your child has fallen asleep in the car seat? Have you decided to let him sleep for a few minutes more while you open the door and throw your frozen foods into the freezer? If you have, think of this.

I shut off my car, went into the house, and approximately three minutes later, I smelled smoke. My car was on fire. Fortunately, I had not left anyone in the car—but I know of parents who do. Also, because I'm sure some readers will wonder—I do not smoke. My 1981 Pontiac burned in less than 10 minutes!

Abby, it had never occurred to me that a car could catch fire after the engine (motor) had been turned off. I hope your column will bring this to people's attention and prevent a tragedy.

LUCKY IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR LUCKY: Thanks for what could be a lifesaving item.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Consult specialist about skin disorder

DEAR DR. GOTT: Ten surgeries and seven years later, no one has been able to tell me what I can do to prevent future occurrences of hidradenitis suppurativa. Can you?

DEAR READER: Hidradenitis suppurativa is a chronic skin condition marked by repeated infections of the sweat glands, primarily in the underarm and groin areas. Simple cases present as boils and abscesses, which are readily treated with antibiotics and hot compresses. Chronic and recurrent episodes are a different matter because the infections can coalesce, forming deep tracts of inflammation that are resistant to therapy and can make arm movement and walking painfully difficult.

As a general measure, susceptible patients should avoid skin irritants; in particular, the aluminum salts that are added to most antiperspirants can really trigger an attack of hidradenitis. Surgical excision of infected areas may be necessary. Some experts have had success treating the condition with isotretinoin, an anti-acne drug. See a dermatologist for advice about prevention in your specific case.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 4 foot 9 and go out with guys who are much taller than I am. I wear 5-inch heels or high platform shoes with 7-inch heels all day. Will this cause problems?

DEAR READER: The use of platform shoes will make your footing unsteady. You may tend to fall easily or twist your ankles. To my knowledge, platform shoes are not hazardous for any other reason.

Spike heels are another matter. When a woman wears high-heeled shoes, her posture is affected because her weight is thrown forward onto the balls of her feet. This requires unconscious adjustments to correct her balance. In particular, the lower back muscles must compensate for alteration in posture. Therefore, women who constantly wear high-heels often experience low back and hip pain. High-heeled shoes also cause shortening of the calf muscles. This can lead to pain and leg cramps whenever lower-heeled (or no) shoes are worn.

This discomfort usually disappears once the woman changes to flat-bottom shoes or standard heels and becomes accustomed to the greater "stretch" they provide in the calf area.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Today's deal is presented as an example of precise bidding to the best slam contract. Examine the bidding by North. No problem with the initial response, nor with the second bid of two hearts. Then, after two no-trump by South, North bid only three diamonds. What about that bid? Isn't it possible that South just might decide to pass? The ruling principle here is that when responder makes two forcing bids (one spade and two hearts) and then supports opener's suit below game, that last bid is 100 percent forcing.
After three diamonds, South did not really want to go beyond three no-trump unless North was willing. At the same time, South liked his values, so he bid three hearts to show interest. Then came the four-club cue-bid by North. South was now able to show the club king, and that was all that North needed to bid the slam, but in diamonds. That contract was easy. Of course, six no-trump would count more for North-South, but declarer would have to make the right spade guess.

If South did play six no-trump without a spade lead, his best approach would be to see if hearts split. When West shows up with the heart guard, South would have no choice but to play West for the spade queen by leading a spade up to dummy's K-J and inserting the jack. East's ace is forced out and dummy's spade king is the 12th trick.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
APRIL 30, 1988
In the year ahead, try to keep your business friends separated from people with whom you pal around socially. This will give you the best of both worlds.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unsolicited advice today could provide you with an answer for which you've been searching. Be an attentive listener regardless of whom you're conversing with. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your primary concerns today are likely to be focused on your financial interests. With this incentive, no one will have to push you to pursue objectives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A relationship with a person you recently met socially could develop into something rather profound. This is an association worth cultivating.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Remuneration for services you are capable of rendering can be increased if you go about it properly. Look for ways to expand your base.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If a spur-of-the-moment problem arises today, you should be able to resolve it and direct others in a manner that will be to everyone's advantage.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An unexpected development that could benefit you materially could occur today. There's a possibility that it will be linked with something already ongoing.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If there's something important that requires your attention today, don't wait for others involved to get in touch with you. Either call them or go see them yourself.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) Something that is presently running smoothly will continue to do so if you don't interfere with it today. Don't introduce changes merely for change's sake.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to revitalize your relationship with an old friend you've been neglecting a bit lately. He or she will be thrilled to hear from you.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In competitive career situations today, you are likely to have more reserve and resourcefulness to draw on than your competitors will. Don't let them bluff you.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something may occur today that will severely test your beliefs and standards. Fortunately, they will be more than a match for whatever transpires.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) The seed of something you have shown a while back looks like it's about to bear fruit. It's possible that you may even see some of its sprouts today.

Elegant chapeau or campy art

Toppers just don't return

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Try as they might, fashion mavens just can't seem to bring back the hat, once the de rigueur topper to a woman's look.

From time to time the fashion world dictates that the hat is back, and there is a fluttering of interests. But hats just can't seem to get the foothold on the fashion front they once held.

Lois Dycus of Sanford's Lois' Place, said hats in the summer in Florida do have their place as a fashion accessory. Their popularity is based greatly on the shade they offer on a sunny day at the beach. Dycus said today's woman just isn't as inclined to don a hat for dressup occasions, such as a Sunday visit to church.

Hats, she said, today primarily add color to casual, summer outfits. A few are intended for evening wear, although they haven't caught on to a great degree. We may wish for the romantic, nostalgic look of a hat, but when it comes down to making a dressing decision, most women leave their hat at home. And when we do buy a hat, Dycus said, it is usually an inexpensive sun screen, not a top of the line fashion item.

A major problem with wearing a hat in an era of clipped, moussed and gelled hair is how to anchor the hat to the head. A critical point in breezy Florida, Dycus said a tight fit of the hat is the major hope of the woman who wants to keep a contemporary hat on her head.

In another era, when women had mounds of thick hair beneath their bonnets they could anchor their hats in place with large pins stuck through the hat and into the hair.

Hats still go to the head of some, especially diehards, schooled in the day when a lady never left home on a special occasion without a hat, white gloves, and in the case of young girls, black patent leather shoes.

Hats can cover a multitude of hairstyle sins, and can add an air of mystery and intrigue. But some, like Geneva's Elizabeth Mathieux, who still hang onto their hats, say it a matter of "respect."

Mathieux said she wouldn't consider leaving home without her hat, except on the most casual of missions. She also still wears white gloves.

"I think if you're going to a nice luncheon or to church a hand and gloves show respect," Mathieux said. "Oh goodness, yes, I wear hats," she said, of the wide-brimmed straw hats to which she adds colorful flowers and bows.

Mathieux said she is such a mad hatter that when her church, the First Baptist Church of Geneva, celebrated its 100th birthday in 1975, most of the church women wore hats she had decorated.

She adds about $40 to $50 worth of silk flowers and bows to the hats she adorns and adores. Mathieux said she would like to see a general return of the gracious art of hat wearing by women and said it does have its practical side.

The Florida sun is hard on the eyes as well as the complexion, and those who wear hats, 68-year-old Mathieux said, always find themselves in the shade if their hat is brimmed.

While we may not opt to wear a hat today, the fascination of these decorative creations, is still a draw to some. Sanford's Linda Renfro, like others, collects old hats and uses them as decorative items in her home.

"I have a few nice, old hats," Renfro said. But she never wears them. "I'm curious. It's like the period of time they were worn was so different. Women dressed so elegantly. I always try to picture my hats being worn, especially straw hats with flowers.

"I try to figure out the dates they would have been worn. Most of mine, I would say, are from the '20s to the '40s.

"When I was a kid I used to wear a hat every Easter. No, I don't now. I guess women mainly wore them to keep the sun off their faces and hats and gloves always went together. I have my grandmother's straw hat. I remember her wearing it in church when I was a little girl.

"I also like old bonnets. I have a bonnet with a matching apron. It was a Sunday bonnet, with lace," Renfro said.

She displays her hats by hanging them on the wall or placing them atop large antique thread spools — but never on her head. The sign of a different place and different time where what was once functional becomes campy art.

This summer will reveal a movie cornucopia

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter

Hollywood (UPI) — The motion picture box office is on a record-setting course with $1 billion already in the till and the big-buck season yet to come.

Traditionally, the first three or four months of the year are slow at the box office, what with inclement weather, the pressures of school work, income taxes coming due and the studios' releasing patterns, which put only a handful of top prospects out during the doldrums.

All the same, this year's slow season has been the best financially in memory. And if theater owners and studio bosses have their way it will only get better with the approach of late spring and summer when they release their most promising pictures and their biggest names.

Some 100 motion pictures, large and small, good and bad, will be released to theaters by Labor Day.

Scheduled to shine are the likes of Clint Eastwood, Paul Hogan, Sylvester Stallone, Robert De Niro, Dudley Moore, Richard Dreyfuss, Mark Harmon, Bruce Willis, Dyan Cannon, Tom Hanks, James Caan, Liza Minnelli, Sean Connery and Jeff Bridges to name a few.

Cranking out laughs on the big screen will be funnymen Chevy Chase, John Candy, Dan Aykroyd, Eddie Murphy and Bob Goldthwait.

For the younger crowd there will be Jody Foster, Kiefer Sutherland, Emilio Estevez, Lou Diamond Phillips, Charlie Sheen and Pee-wee Herman.

Note it will be the actors — not actresses — who carry most of the box-office load. As usual, few summer films star major actresses because most top actresses are dramatic stars and summer fare is almost always light comedy or heavy action featuring physical prowess and bloody violence.

The women will have a partial day, however, in Disney's "Big Business," with Bette Midler and Lily Tomlin teaming up.

The schedule of releases is liberally sprinkled with sequels. In addition to Dirty Harry and Rambo, there are new editions of "Caddyshack," "Short Circuit," "Pee-wee Herman," "Arthur"

the lovable lush, and "Crocodile Dundee."

May will offer one of the most promising pictures of the year, "Crocodile Dundee II," a sequel to the box-office hit of 1986-87, starring Australia's charismatic Paul Hogan and Linda Kozlowski.

Not so merry is the situation in which Harry Callahan finds himself in "The Dead Pool," the fifth in the Dirty Harry series starring Eastwood. This time Clint is the target of assassins.

No less embattled is Stallone. In "Rambo III" he finds himself once again decimating enemy soldiers by the brigade. This time it's in Afghanistan.

Dudley Moore bounces back in "Arthur II, On The Rocks," with Liza Minnelli and John Gielgud (in a flashback) reprising their roles. Arthur loses his fortune in this one.

"Big Top Pee-wee" finds the hyper little nerd as a farmer who falls in love with a circus star and runs off to join the dazzling beauty.

Even a robot is involved in a sequel with "Short Circuit II," in which No. 5, the electronic whiz, becomes enmeshed in further adventures, but this time without Steve Guttenberg and Ally Sheedy.

The ghosts, goblins and terrors will also be released again in "Poltergeist III" and "Phantasm II."

Maybe it's the swim trunks, but summer brings out the interest in muscle stars. In addition to Eastwood and Stallone, Arnold Schwarzenegger and martial arts star Chuck Norris will also be bunching their biceps during the hot months.

In "Red Heat" Schwarzenegger plays a Russian cop in America seeking to bring to justice a dope smuggler and getting involved with a narc played by James Belushi.

Norris will zap the bad guys in a number titled simply "Hero."

Shirtlessness will also be displayed by Belgian newcomer Jean Claude Van Damme in "Bloodsport."

More conventional masculine derring-do will be evidenced in a bunch of action-adventure movies.

Sean Connery, this year's Academy Award-winning best supporting actor, stars as a tough army provost marshal in "The Presidio," at odds with an equally hard-edged San Francisco cop played by Mark Harmon.

Television's Bruce Willis ("Moonlighting") will be much in evidence this spring and summer in "Sunset," playing Tom Mix in an action-comedy spoof with James Garner in the role of Wyatt Earp. Willis also stars in "Die Hard," playing a New York police detective who becomes a hostage to terrorists in a Los Angeles high-rise.

"Outer Heat" is yet another cops-and-robbers thriller. James Caan is a Los Angeles cop chasing his partner's killer, with Mandy Patinkin as his sidekick.

"Young Guns," is a western about six youthful outcasts hired to guard a ranch against a ring of bad guys. The vendetta stars Emilio Estevez as Billy the Kid, Kiefer Sutherland, Charlie Sheen and Lou Diamond Phillips.

"Nam" is a Vietnam war picture starring Michael Dudikoff.

Peter Weller and Sam Elliott co-star in "Shakedown," based on a true story of a lawyer and a renegade detective investigating the murder of an undercover cop.

If gunfire and sweating muscles begin to wear thin during June, July and August, there are a passel of movie comedies to cool you off.

Among the most promising is director George Roy Hill's "Funny Farm," starring Chevy Chase and Madolyn Smith, a couple escaping New York for the unattainable bliss of rural living.

More laughs will be found in "Vibes," with Cyndi Lauper and Jeff Goldblum as a pair of mismatched psychics in Ecuador. Peter Falk co-stars.

Box-office champ Eddie Murphy plays the prince of a mythical African kingdom who comes to New York in search of a bride in "Coming to America," with Arsenio Hall as his royal companion.

Other comedy offerings:

"Me and Him," with Griffin Dunne. "Dead Heat," a sci-fi cop comedy with Treat Williams as a zombie and Joe Piscopo as his pal. "The Wrong Guys," a group of stand-up comedians at a Cub Scout reunion. "Elvira, Mistress of the Dark," starring Elvira as herself.

Two comedy films that promise to be a cut above the usual star pair of Academy Award-winning dramatic actors.

Robert Di Nero plays a modern day bounty hunter tracking down an accountant, played by Charles Grodin, in "Midnight Run," under the direction of Martin Brest. Richard Dreyfuss will star as a starving actor who impersonates the president of a Caribbean island country in "Moon over Parador," directed by Paul Mazursky.

Still more comedy: "Bagdad Cafe," a fable with Marianne Sugebrecht and Jack Palance.

"Sweet Lies," with Treat Williams in Paris.

"Memories of Me," with Billy Crystal on the loose with JoBeth Williams and Alan King.

"Caddyshack II," with Jackie Mason (replacing Rodney Dangerfield), Chevy Chase and Dan Aykroyd.

"Hot to Trot," with a talking horse and Bob Goldthwait as its interpreter and Dan Aykroyd as brother-in-law on a family vacation.

"The Great Outdoors," with John Candy and Dan Aykroyd as brothers-in-law on a family vacation.

There are also some serious, thoughtful dramatic films on the way — not many, but a few.

"The Kitchen Toto" is a drama of a British family in Kenya before the Mau Mau uprising.

"Running on Empty" stars Christine Lahti and River Phoenix and has the FBI pursuing members of a former '60s radical family.

"Betrayed," offers Debra Winger and Tom Berenger in a Costa-Gavras drama.

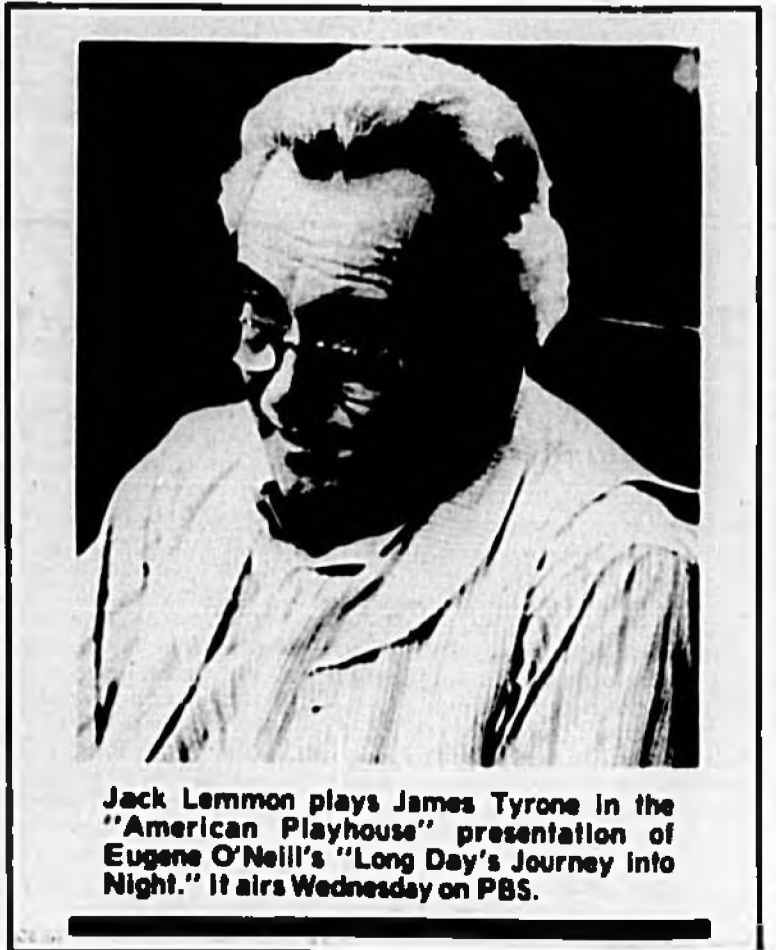

"Chronicle of a Death Foretold" is an Italian (in English) import of deceit and intrigue.

"A World Apart" stars Barbara Hershey in South Africa in 1963.

"A Summer Story" is a turn-of-the-century English drama with a cast of newcomers.

"Tucker: The Man and his Dream," stars Jeff Bridges playing automaker Preston Tucker, directed by Francis Coppola for producer George Lucas.

"A Handful of Dust" is the film version of the Evelyn Waugh novel of 1930s English aristocrats and infidelity.

Jack Lemmon plays James Tyrone in the "American Playhouse" presentation of Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night." It airs Wednesday on PBS.

The Florida sun is hard on the eyes as well as the complexion, and those who wear hats, 68-year-old Mathieux said, always find themselves in the shade if their hat is brimmed.

While we may not opt to wear a hat today, the fascination of these decorative creations, is still a draw to some. Sanford's Linda Renfro, like others, collects old hats and uses them as decorative items in her home.

Autry's still in the saddle

Guy MacMillin

By Guy MacMillin

When Gene Autry stopped production of his TV series in 1956, this kid was inconsolable. I couldn't remember a time when my favorite cowboy hadn't been singing songs and catching bad guys...

first gold record ever awarded. He eventually sold more than 100 million.

He has written about 200 songs, but he doesn't read music. "I can kind of tell what the notes are," he told me, "but I can hear a song once and I can sing it."

By 1930 Autry was singing on WLS radio in Chicago. That led to his movie career, playing himself. "I really never considered myself a finished actor. I was more a personality than an actor," he says today.

Whatever he was, he was certainly popular, not only the top Western star in the early '40s, but at one time the No. 4 male box-office attraction in the country.

Autry left the movies in the early '50s to concentrate on "The Gene Autry Show," one of TV's first series. Meanwhile, he was buying those radio and TV stations and hotels and, eventually, the California Angels baseball team.

He's the only entertainer with five stars on Hollywood's Walk of Fame — for records, movies, TV, radio and live performances. I asked if he'd ever had a professional failure.

He paused. "Well, I've done a lot of shows that I didn't think were really as good as I could if I had done them over," he said, chuckling. "But I've been very fortunate in most of the things that I've taken up after I left my railroad career."

Respinning 'Cocoon'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The cast of the 1985 hit movie "Cocoon" is getting ready to star in the sequel to the Zanuck-Brown film, which was directed by Ron Howard.

Back again are stars Don Ameche — who won the Academy Award for his role — Wilford Brimley, Hume Cronyn, Jack Gilford, Maureen Stapleton, Jessica Tandy and Gwen Verdon. Youngsters Steve Guttenberg and Tahnee Welch also are back.

Daniel Petrie will direct the sequel, which relates the adventures of the senior citizens who left Earth for the planet Antarea. The only missing original cast member is Brian Dennehy who is working on another project.

Okie wants to know if McQueen is old flame

Dear Dick: I have wondered for 30 years about Steve McQueen. I almost married a young man who was in the Army at the time, who looked identical to Steve McQueen. His name was Johnny Scroggins. We both lived in Arizona in the '50s. Are they by some chance the same? What was Steve McQueen's real name and where was he brought up? — M.L.W., Okmulgee, Okla.

Dear M.L.W.: Sorry to have to burst that pretty bubble, but the late actor was born Terrence Steven McQueen in Beech Grove, Ind., and raised in Indianapolis and Slater, Mo. No Scroggins, he.

Dear Dick: Can you tell me if the woman who played the part of Angel in the mini-series, "Windmill of the Gods," was the same actress who was in the short-lived but funny series, "Open All Night," a few years ago? — L.K.H., Alpena, Mich.

Dear L.K.H.: Yes, same actress. Her name is Susan Tyrrell, and she's always good for a fine performance.

Dear Dick: I am very confused. My friend and I both remember that one of the original Smothers Brothers died two or three years ago. Then they held auditions to find someone to play the part of the brother who died. The one they found looks almost exactly like the dead one, but it's not. We also remember seeing an interview with the other brother talking about his brother dying. No one believes us and it's beginning to make us think we're crazy. — Unsigned, Pleasant Grove, Utah.

Dear Unsigned: I wouldn't say crazy, exactly, but which one of you thinks he's Napoleon? No truth to any of that garbage; both Tommy and Dick Smothers are still living, still the original Smotherses.

Dear Dick: Are the following people still with us? — Norma Shearer, Sandy Baron (the comic) and Peter O'Toole. — M.N., Ventura, Calif.

Dear M.N.: Baron and O'Toole are with us, but Shearer died in '83.

Dear Dick: Where else have I seen Beth Howland previously? — M.R., Houston, Texas.

Dear M.R.: She was Vera on "Alice" for the run of that sit-diner.

Dear Dick: My husband and I have a bet. I say the actor who plays Asa Buchanan on "One Life to Live" used to be on "The Texas Rangers." He says no. — M.H. and H.H., Glenwood, Iowa.

Dear M.H. and H.H.: One for his side. Philip Carey is the actor who plays Asa and, although he is a veteran of many series, he was not involved with "Tales of the Texas Rangers." You may be thinking of "Laredo," in which he starred.

Dear Dick: Back in the '50s, we loved the Saturday night program, "The Lucky Strike Hit Parade." Who were the original singers on that program? — M.L.H., Henderson, Texas.

Dear M.L.H.: The originals, when the show began in '50, were Eileen Wilson, Snooky Lanson and Dorothy Collins. The original announcer was Andre Baruch, and the original orchestra leader was Raymond Scott.

Dear Dick: Is the wife on "Welcome Back, Kotter," the same person as Bailey Quarters on "WKRP"? — T.F., Port St. Lucie, Fla.

Dear T.F.: No. Marcia Strassman was Julie Kotter. Jan Smithers was Bailey. Two different women.

Chance to sit on jury at 'Trial of Bernie Goetz'

By Joan Manner
UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — People read about major trials in their newspapers, look at artists' renderings on the local news and wonder what it would be like to serve on the jury or at least be in the courtroom audience.

Viewers of "The Trial of Bernhard Goetz" on American Playhouse will get a chance to come very close if they tune in PBS Wednesday, May 11, 9-10:30 p.m., and Wednesday, May 18, 9-10 p.m.

Bernie Goetz is an electrical engineer who, on Dec. 22, 1984, shot four black youths on a New York City subway train with an unlicensed handgun.

He polarized opinion in New York City and around the country. He was either a folk hero — an ordinary man who protected himself during what he believed to be a robbery — or he was a vigilante who took the law into his own hands and threatened the lives of others with his illegal gun.

Goetz surrendered to New Hampshire police nine days after the shooting. His confession was videotaped by New York detectives who went to Concord to question him.

The real trial began on April 27, 1987, and ended on June 16 when Goetz was acquitted on all charges except criminal possession of a weapon in the third degree.

On hand nearly every day of the trial was Harry Moses, a 44-year veteran of CBS News who had produced stories for "60 Minutes" and as an executive producer supervised units for Bill Moyers and Mike Wallace, as well as heading a special investigative unit for the "CBS Evening News" with Dan Rather.

Moses, co-producer of the show, also directed and constructed the script from the trial transcripts.

"I was in the courtroom 80-85 percent of the time, and we had somebody else there another 10 percent of the time," he said in an interview. "I couldn't have directed it if I hadn't been there."

The concept is unusual for television, which seldom dares to decide before the fact that something is worth doing.

"What I was worried about when I started this thing was what would we do if Goetz didn't take the stand," said Moses. "Is there a film in it? We knew, almost from the beginning, that Barry Slotnick, Goetz's lawyer, would not let him testify."

"The day they played the videotape of his confession I knew we had a movie. We ended up dramatizing 25 minutes of it as part of the 2 1/2-hour show. If it had not been in evidence we couldn't have done so."

Moses' problem was with his own ground rule — not one word was to be in the script that was not in the actual trial transcript. And while not every witness would make the trip from court to script, those who did appear on the show would be in the same sequence in which they testified.

"I had 4,600 pages of trial transcript," Moses said, "and I got it down to about 150."

"Strangely enough it was not enormously difficult for me, because I had been doing much the same thing for so many years. When you do documentaries or a magazine piece for '60 Minutes,' you interview a lot of people and you shoot 20-25 to one. That means for every minute you use, you throw out 24."

"This was pretty much the same process — trying to play fair, trying to pay attention to what is important."

Moses calls the show a re-enactment, not a documentary or docudrama, and he emphasized that the transcript was his bible.

"Every word in the script was taken verbatim from the trial transcripts. Nothing has been added. Zero!" he said.

The only liberty Moses took was with the set, giving the courtroom a surreal look that blends courtroom with subway station in a way that is unobtrusive but effective.

Peter Crombie, who plays Goetz, bears an eerie resemblance to his real-life character. Richard Libertini plays Slotnick. Andrew Robinson is Assistant District Attorney Greg Waples, and Ron B. Scott plays James Ramseur.

The re-enactment of Goetz's confession is both riveting and uncomfortable. Knowing that these are the words, the stammering, the incoherence of the real Bernie Goetz makes it fascinating. But his rambling, his distress, his broken sentences and emotional troubles are enough to make you squirm.

Another highlight is the testimony of one of the youths Goetz shot — James Ramseur. Ramseur, brought to the courthouse from a prison cell where he is serving 8 1/2-to-15 years in jail for rape and robbery in another case, at first refuses to testify and is charged with contempt.

He returns later to erase the contempt charge but turns surly under cross-examination. The judge almost begs Ramseur to answer the questions, because if Goetz's lawyer cannot properly complete cross-examination, all of Ramseur's testimony will be inadmissible.

Clockwise from left, John Hillerman, Roger E. Mosley, Larry Manetti and Tom Selleck say goodbye after eight years on CBS's "Magnum, P.I." The series will end with a special two-hour episode airing Sunday over WCPX-Channel 6.

ager, Brewster, took like a crook. Leigh lambasted Ryan for not checking the facts before she printed her story on Brewster, who proved he'd done nothing illegal. Johnny insisted that he's not jealous of Marve's friendship with Neil, but the green-eyed monster rose up in Johnny when he saw her talking to Neil. Lizzie stalled giving John an answer to his marriage proposal. John is still attracted to Nancy.

SANTA BARBARA

Hypnotherapist Heather hypnotized Scott, who remembered that he had been with Hal on the night he disappeared. Everyone was stunned when a hypnotized Scott said that he saw a man fighting with Hal, who was knocked unconscious. While Hal was unconscious, Scott saw a woman come into the bathroom and shoot him. Pamela told Keith that C.C. killed Hal in cold blood after Keith agreed to give her total immunity and a share of the blackmail money that C.C. has agreed to pay Keith. Gina met Major Hamilton, who purchased a house that Gina wanted to buy. Major Hamilton wired and dined

Tom, whom he met at the Orient Express. Mason is upset over C.C.'s involvement in Hal's death. Kelly is determined to prove to Sophia that T.J. is no good. Major Hamilton and his cohort, Kai, showed Andrea around his new home. Tam was upset that Andrea made dinner plans with the Major.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Leanna sneaked into Victor's office, opened his locked files and photographed the contents. Cassandra told Paul that she likes him but feels that their budding relationship is moving a bit too fast. Jack returned to Jaco after Asoley agreed to step down and let Jack be the top brass of the outfit. Kay asked Rex to get her valuable jewelry out of the safe deposit box and take it to a jeweler to be cleaned. While out on a date with another woman, Samantha, Skip couldn't stop thinking about the good times he shared with Carol. Lauren offered Brad an executive job at Fenmore Industries, but didn't tell him that Jack had turned the job down because he was reinstated at Jabot. Danny urged Phillip to relinquish his romantic hold over Cricket so that she can forget about Phillip's problems and get on with her own life. Leanna furthered her "friendship" with Nikki.
