County offices being renovated

SANFORD — Plans are being worked out to renovate the county offices building. The Seminole County Services Building staff members are preparing to move to the county operations center at the Five Points complex.

From May 15 until September the offices of the Seminole County Board of County Commissioners and County Manager Ron Rabun will be temporarily housed at the operations center. The move is necessary to complete renovations of the existing space.

The commissioners, county manager and deputy county managers may still be contacted at their listed telephone numbers. Their mailing addresses will remain the same.

The commission meetings scheduled on the 2nd and 4th Tuesdays of each month will be conducted in the BCC Auditorium, room 1028, of the county services building. All work sessions will also be conducted in room 1028 during the renovation.

Fraud arrest

WINTER PARK — Officers from the Seminole County Sheriff's Fraud and Forgery Unit arrested Kimberly Renee Burns, 28, of 648 N. Semoran Blvd., Winter Park, Wednesday afternoon. She has been charged with one count of grand theft.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, Burns was the manager of "The Fashion Bug," a women's clothing store in Butler Plaza near Casselberry. She is accused of making 20 fraudulent credits toward her Visa card between May 28, 1994 and Oct. 10, 1994. See Briefs, Page 6A

'Keep road two-lane'

By SANDRA BLUMBT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The city's Land Planning Agency took the first steps Wednesday night in a long process of keeping Rangeline Road a two-lane road, now and in the future.

The LPA members agreed to send amendments to the city's Comprehensive Plan to city commissioners recommending they forward it to the state for review.

As written, the city's Comprehensive Plan calls for the three-laning of Rangeline Road in 1998 and four-laning the road from State Road 434 to Church Avenue by the year 2006.

The amended plan would maintain the two through lanes of traffic of the mile-long stretch which connects Longwood Hills Road to State Road 434.

During the discussion, LPA Chairman Marvin Meltzer noted the only reason the widening project was included in the city's Comp Plan was to make it conform with the Greater Orlando Transportation Study.

"We were just complying with what they wanted," Meltzer said, noting Rangeline Road is no longer listed for widening in the greater See Road, Page 6A

Good Samaritan furnishes haven from abuse

By MIKE PERSAMP
Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW — A real estate agent's quick thinking and a new homeowner's generosity will mean some spouses running from abuse will have a furnished place to go.

Sales executive Anne VanDerworp of Stirling International Realty recently sold a furnished home on Glencrest, in Heathrow, to Avery Nye. During the sale, Nye mentioned that he had his own furniture and did not really need the $10,000 worth of furnishings included with the house.

VanDerworp reportedly researched the matter, and arranged for all eight rooms of furniture to be donated to Safehouse of Seminole, the new spouse abuse center, where victims reside until they find permanent homes.

VanDerworp arranged for Seminole County, one of Safehouse's sponsors, to provide the personnel to move the furniture. Seminole County Commissioner Daryl McLain volunteered See Furnished, Page 6A

Thrift Shop opens

The new Salvation Army Thrift Shop opened this morning at 418 E. First Street in downtown Sanford. Area manager Lee Ashby said the opening day crowd was very large, packing the store all morning. The store, operated by the Adult Rehabilitation Program of the Salvation Army, will be open Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Letter carriers to collect food for the needy

By MIKE PERSAMP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County letter carriers are asking postal customers for food. It isn't because they're hungry, but because they want to help those who are.

The Letter Carriers Food Drive will be held this Saturday, May 13, throughout the county as well as across the nation. Residents of Seminole County are being asked to participate by placing non-perishable food near their mail box prior to mail delivery.

Letter carriers will collect the food as part of their rounds that day. The donations will then be distributed to those in need through Second Harvest.

At the Sanford post office, Luis Nieves is supervising the local collection once again this year. He reported that last year, the collection produced over two half-ton trucks full of food items obtained just from the Sanford mail routes.

Throughout the entire county, several tons of food were obtained. See Food, Page 6A

School head: Name change reflects 'what we are'

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Crooms Academy is once again a part of Sanford.

It's not official yet, but the Crooms School of Choice is changing its name to Crooms Academy. The matter must be taken up by the school board, but school administrators believe there will be no problem with the approval.

"We believe that 'academy' more accurately reflects what we are," Karen Coleman, principal of the 13th Street school, said.

An academy, she noted, is a "specialized center for learning."

The trend in education is in that direction. The Academy of Health Careers at Seminole High School, for example, gives students highly specialized training in the health careers in the context of a well-rounded education.

Crooms, she said, is a specialized center where students "learn job skills and are prepared for life long learning."

Coleman said that the name change also reflects a connection to the school's roots. Decades ago the school was Seminole County's all-black high school. Crooms Academy was one of the finest schools in central Florida, it is said.

"I think the name accurately reflects what we are now," Coleman said, "but I think that it is very special that it has this historical significance as well."

After integration caused the closing of Crooms Academy as the black students were integrated into the other high schools, the district chose to keep the name Crooms (named for a prominent educator in Sanford), but changed "academy" to "school of choice."

Coleman believes that was an appropriate name at the time.

"I think that when the school was established as an alternative school, it was a 'school of choice,' but I don't think that is an accurate description of what we are now," Coleman said.

They'll steal your hearts

Kyle Spector, as the Artful Dodger, belts out a lively number at Idyllwild Elementary School's presentation of the musical Oliver by the fourth grade class. Oliver is a fanciful musical based on the Dickens novel about an orphan who goes to London and hooks up with a den of pickpockets on the way to discovering his past. The show will be presented this evening and Friday evening at the Sanford Civic Center at 7 p.m. Tickets are $3 at the door or $2 in advance at the school.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

USF gets record $6.45 million gift

ST. PETERSBURG — The All Children's Hospital Foundation has pledged the largest private gift ever to the University of South Florida — $6.45 million to fund research and training in pediatrics.

"This provides a major endowment, which will significantly further our research and teaching efforts in pediatrics," said Vicki Mitchell, director of major gifts at USF.

"I would absolutely hope it would raise the profile of USF and the hospital nationally," Mitchell said.

The agreement between the All Children's Foundation and USF makes the $6.45 million contingent upon a 100 percent match from the state Board of Regents, which could bring the total to nearly $13 million. USF's Foundation has already applied for the matching money.

Matching money is provided annually by the Legislature to encourage private gifts to state universities.

Michael Road, spokesman for USF's Health Sciences Center, said the money likely will be used to lure leading researchers in pediatrics to USF.

Cubans report harassment

MIAMI — Six of the 13 rafters returned to Cuba say they and their relatives have been harassed by state security agents, a newspaper reported today.

"They placed an official from the Interior Ministry outside the house," said Ulises Cabale, one of the men taken back Tuesday. The official "harassed my mother long before we arrived," he told The Miami Herald in a telephone interview.

His mother Angelina said an Interior Ministry official had falsely told her Saturday that Ulises and another son, Cesar, who were then on a U.S. Coast Guard cutter, had been imprisoned in Havana and "would be sentenced to several years in prison, because they were criminals and (the ministry) was tired of their attitude."

A U.S. State Department official said Wednesday the U.S. government had been assured the 13 would face no reprisals.

"We need to find out what's happening and then we'll act," said Richard Nuocio, the State Department's liaison with the Cuban American community. If the allegations are true, "it is something that we would take very seriously," he said. "We would discuss it seriously with the Cuban government."

Homestead again on base closure list

MIAMI — Southern Dade County finds itself in familiar territory with a new list of base closure recommendations.

"The decision puts us today where we were two years ago: fighting to keep the base open," U.S. Rep. Carrie Meek, D-Miami, said Wednesday in response to recommendations that Homestead Air Reserve Base be added to a government panel's list for review.

The action gives the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission more options to choose from when it makes its final proposal on which bases to close, realign or leave intact in late June. The list would then go to President Clinton and Congress, but in past closure rounds commission recommendations have been approved.

Homestead officials Wednesday cited the role of the base in Caribbean military operations as reason for keeping it intact and even increasing its capacity.

The air force base was realigned to a reserve base in 1983, after being leveled by Hurricane Andrew in August 1982.

"We don't think anything has changed," said Mayor Tad Detmery, who launched when Homestead was on the list to be closed. "We're still in the process of Homestead in process in 1983."

The base was the launching pad for troops and construction equipment in the buildup of refugee camps at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and continues to provide training space for out-of-state aviation units, he added.

Moore children give $8 to July 4 celebration

Luxury dorm gets too little business to pay bond note

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A luxury dormitory that enticed students with computer hookups, maid service, a fast-food court and a parking garage is being closed after missing bond payments.

SouthGate Campus Centre's managers were told this week to vacate the building, said Tom Clark, director of operations.

About 175 Florida State University students who planned to live in the dorm this fall are being told they will have to room elsewhere, Clark said.

Students who planned to stay in the dorm in June for summer classes also must find new housing, and about 100 employees connected with the building's service and food operations will be out of work, indefinitely, he said.

No students currently live at SouthGate. The 556-bed dorm was financed with $28.7 million worth of tax-free bonds approved in 1981.

It opened in 1983 with an occupancy of about 50 percent.

The cheapest rent package, covering room and board, was $2,579 a semester. That compared with $1,075 for a room with air conditioning or $890 without air conditioning in university housing — not including food.

The building generated enough revenue to cover costs but missed bond payments, including its April payment, said Clinton Taffe, county liaison to the Educational Facilities Authority.

The bonds were issued through the authority in 1981. The authority was set up by the Leon County Commission to develop education-related buildings. County taxpayers aren't liable for bond payments.

After the missed payments, Dreyfus Corp., which bought the bonds, and SunTrust in Orlando, the bond trustee, decided to close the building.

Sexton indicted on more sex charges before prison release

By Associated Press

CANTON, Ohio — The wife of convicted murderer Eddie Lee Sexton has been indicted on new sexual abuse charges less than three weeks before her scheduled release from prison.

Estella May Sexton was sentenced in April 1984 to two years in prison for gross sexual imposition and child endangering. A grand jury has now indicted the 47-year-old former Jackson Township woman on 31 new sexual abuse charges, including accusations that she raped a son and a daughter.

Stark County Prosecutor Robert Horowitz said Wednesday that Estella Sexton will probably be returned to Stark County and arraigned on the new charges when she completes her sentence at the state woman's prison in Marysville at the end of the month.

Seven of the counts accuse Estella Sexton of molesting or helping her husband rape and molest five of their children when they were younger than 15. Eight of the Sextons' 12 children — three boys and five girls aged 10 to 25 — are named as victims in the indictment announced Wednesday.

"Because seven of the charges involve life sentences, we would ask for a high bond," said Stark County Prosecutor Robert Horowitz. "Obviously risk of flight has been an issue with this family."

Estella Sexton has been in custody since Jan. 14, 1984, when FBI agents arrested her and her husband near Tampa, Fla. He had fled with seven of his children from child abuse charges in Stark County.

One of Eddie Sexton's adult sons told authorities that the 23-year-old husband and infant son of one of his daughters, Estella M. Good, had been killed and buried at Florida camps where the family stayed.

Eddie Sexton, 52, was sentenced in November to death for ordering his mentally retarded son, William Sexton, 23, to strangle son-in-law Joel M. Good Jr.

Estella Good, 24, pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the death of her son. She said she smothered the 9-month-old child after her father told her to stifle his crying. She was sentenced to 12 years in prison, but the judge suspended six years because she testified against her father. The mentally retarded son, William, was ruled incompetent to stand trial and sent to an institution.

Estella Sexton, who was not charged with the killings, was returned to Ohio and convicted of the original child abuse charges brought in October 1983.

The new indictment accuses Estella Sexton of 13 counts of sexual abuse — two for rape, two for felonious sexual penetration, eight for gross sexual imposition, sexual battery — and six counts of endangering children.

She also is charged with 12 counts of complicity for allegedly helping her husband molest the children.

Study: Kids scared about future

By LAURA MYERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Many kids, ages 10-13 are frightened about their lives and their futures, according to an advocacy group that says children view their parents as loving but inept when it comes to solving problems.

"I'm scared of being killed," says 10-year-old Janelle.

"I don't want to get raped, but that happens to everyone," says 11-year-old Barbara.

Then there's David: "If I get kidnapped, I probably won't see my parents again."

As a group, children ages 10 through 13 think they're more likely to die or be abused than to start smoking or drinking, according to a study released Wednesday.

The survey by KidsPeace, an advocacy group for children and families in crisis, found that youngsters still look to parents for advice, but the study suggests that most parents are ill-equipped to deal with problems confronting children.

"Most parents want to be good parents, but they don't know where to turn when there's a crisis," KidsPeace spokesman Mark Stubbs said at a Capitol Hill news conference. "The kids are really scared and confused out there."

In releasing the survey that quoted some children, KidsPeace launched a program to train parents to help kids deal with fears and problems, and they named talk show host Leesa Gibbons as the national spokeswoman for the effort.

The KidsPeace program includes a television and radio information campaign and "SafetyNet," an Internet computer service that offers advice — "seven standards for effective parenting" and "15 ways to help your kids through crisis."

"We stand at a turning point in the history of children," said John Peters, chief executive officer of Bethlehem, Pa.-based KidsPeace. "We as a nation have the last best chance to help America's kids. ... Parents have a last chance to help kids."

According to the survey, 47 percent of children questioned reported bleak expectations for their lives, saying they would be unhappy in the future.

At the same time, 93 percent of the children believe their parents really love them. And about two-thirds said they'd go to their parents for advice — 72 percent about drugs, 63 percent about sex and 72 percent about alcohol. Mom beat out Dad 4-to-1 as the source of advice, according to the telephone survey, conducted by Barna Research of Glendale, Calif.

Barna Research polled 1,023 children at random nationwide this year. The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Some other survey findings:
— 85 percent think their parents might die.
— 87 percent fear doing poorly in school.

— 54 percent think they might get AIDS.
— 53 percent fear poverty.
— 51 percent feel they may die.
— 50 percent fear kidnapping.
— 47 percent think their parents might not "be available."

— 45 percent fear physical or sexual abuse.
— 43 percent fear bullies.
— 42 percent think they won't get married or have children.
— 41 percent think they may get involved in drugs.
— 40 percent worry they won't have close friends.
— 40 percent think they may start drinking alcohol.

— 38 percent fear their parents will divorce.
— 38 percent think they might start smoking cigarettes.

Vote on overhaul of Clean Water Act

By H. JERRY HENRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The House is considering a controversial overhaul of the 23-year-old law that protects lakes and rivers from pollution, but the debate is not only about water quality, but also big government and property rights.

As lawmakers began a string of votes on the measure Wednesday, one speaker after another attacked the Washington bureaucracy for imposing too many requirements on local communities and businesses in the name of protecting wetlands and lakes and rivers from pollution.

Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., complained about the "regulatory nightmares" dictated from Washington to uphold federal wetlands laws. And other supporters of the bill deplored "the dominance of the federal government" and argued local officials should be free from micromanagement by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"We're bringing the pendulum back to the middle," declared Rep. Zach Wamp, R-Tenn.

One of the bill's most controversial provisions would dramatically narrow federal control over wetlands. That issue, more than any other part of the legislation, pits property rights advocates against the government.

"What we have in this debate is a clash between the rights of individuals (and) the power of the government" over private property, declared Rep. James Hayes, D-La., who was key in developing the wetlands language in the bill.

The legislation, which will be brought to a final vote today or Friday, would substantially rewrite the 1972 Clean Water Act, which has been responsible for improved water quality over the last two decades by requiring stringent emission controls on industry and municipalities.

The measure has the strong support of industry and many of the local water pollution control officials, who long have sought greater leeway in meeting water quality standards, arguing federal rules impose unnecessary expenses.

The legislation would provide that flexibility, maintained Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., an architect of the bill and chairman of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, which crafted it.

The measure calls for easing federal requirements for industrial pollution and urban runoff, gives local officials greater discretion in dealing with sewage treatment, and allows for a variety of waivers for industrial releases into lakes and rivers.

It also would narrow substantially the criteria for declaring a wetland. Opponents of the bill complain at least half of the country's wetlands no longer would be protected under the bill.

Shuster scoffed at suggestions that the bill represents a rollback in pollution protection, as many Democrats and the Clinton administration have charged. "The states still have the right to impose whatever standards they choose to impose," he said.

Nevertheless, Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., said the federal water protection law "is fast becoming the Dirty Polluters Protection Act."

Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said the legislation "serves the interests of industrial polluters" who helped write the bill. "It rolls back decades of environmental controls that have made sure that our waters are clean," he said.

Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., accused Republican leaders of a "dangerous liaison" with interest groups directly affected by federal pollution controls in the writing of the legislation. Shuster bristled at suggestions that it is a polluters' bill, noting it has the support of the nation's mayors, local water pollution officials and governors.

Attempts Wednesday to scale back major parts of the bill, while seeking to address some of the shortcomings of the current law, failed by votes of 194-243 and 166-260. The votes suggested likely approval of the measure when it comes up for a final vote.

But opponents celebrated a modest victory late Wednesday when they salvaged a federal coastal pollution control program that had been earmarked for elimination. The measure was resurrected by a 224-199 vote.

Codes, displays, and the way Sanford looks

Plans are underway to allow downtown merchants to display certain merchandise on sidewalks. The city is officially advertising (legal ad), specifying the what, why, when and where of the sidewalk display ordinance.

City Commissioner Lon Howell is against it, even though other commissioners, Dave Farr of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, and downtown merchants want it to be allowed.

Howell says he is not trying to prevent merchants from conducting their business. What he is opposed to is the possibility (or is it a probability) that the approval will be abused.

We join with Howell in these feelings. He believes, as do many people, what's good for the goose is good for the gander. Therefore it wouldn't be surprising if some merchants outside the downtown area would feel left out. Why should they be restricted from the outside displays just because their business is not in the downtown historic district?

Wait a minute, let's look at the real picture. Drive south on French Avenue, travel along 13th Street and elsewhere. Business operators have, for a long time, been piling items outside their store fronts. In most cases this isn't new merchandise. Many items are used, having been discarded by some only to be re-sold by others.

Certainly, the restrictions proposed for the downtown area appear to be logical, and would work, but only if obeyed by one and all. That however, would be utopia.

The chamber's Dave Farr has asked the city to undertake a 60 day laboratory on code violation breakdowns in the historic downtown district. He said the chamber will assemble a task force of small business owners and operators to prepare a new outside display provision.

We thought we already had a "task force," namely, the city commission and city staff. If merchants in the downtown area are to be allowed to have their outside displays, as Howell suggests, it may cause hard feelings from non-downtown merchants. If everyone is allowed to have outside displays, there will be those who abuse the privileges. We already see that.

It appears to be a no-win situation. Unless there is city-wide business approval, adequate codes and strong enforcement, this ordinance may be causing more problems than we need.

Overbuilding ruins the environment

The Seminole County commissioners only want to spend money and not use what we have. There are 3 malls standing empty but they want to build two new ones when the people said "No" because it will ruin the wetlands and peace of the area with more traffic than it can handle. And they wanted me to help them save money, and the fresh drinking water and the run-away water. They agreed with me on this run-away water and the saving of drinking water for the future but they decided to build two new malls which we do not need. For we have three large malls standing empty at the present time. "Why!" build more when not needed? These commissioners fell for the smooth soft talk of these developers who know not a thing about people, wetlands, run-away water or drinking water. All they want is "money and more money." The developers do not care that the wetlands when filled in will cause big, big problems when the heavy rains come. The wetlands will turn into a bathtub of water; the dry season has grazing fields but not for buildings and roads, homes do not need to be built on sinking sand, the wetlands were put there for a reason.

Will man never learn that he cannot go against nature? We, who live here year round, are going to suffer for these mistakes but the big problem is going to be the fresh drinking water for all. The drinking water is going to run out in the next 10 to 15 years, then what is going to happen? The building of new homes should be limited and should be built with the idea of withstanding high winds of hurricane force. Hot matchstick material ... there are too many empty houses now. Use what we have now before building new ones.

Sue Tudor

Creeping disgust threatens government

As a result of the Oklahoma City tragedy, we are in danger of exaggerating the importance of "hatred of government" in America today, and overlooking a far more widespread and politically potent emotion that is perhaps best described as being "sick and tired of government."

Sure, there are some people whose outrage at government borders on the pathological, and who are even prepared to commit crimes of violence against it. There are such people in every generation, acting out their hatred of all authority figures (probably starting with their fathers) in the name of any cause that can be used to justify it.

The youngsters of a quarter-century ago who chanted "Hey, hey, LBJ, how many kids did you kill today?" were in no mood for reasoned discourse, and some of them, just like Timothy McVeigh, resorted to bombs. If Bill Clinton believes that one cannot "love the country and hate the government," he should recall that, as a young man, even he didn't think it improper to "leave the military."

Moreover, the conduct of the U.S. government has not always been above reproach. I stuck by the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms after Waco, but no sensible person regards that episode as their finest hour. As for the FBI's slaughter of the innocents at Ruby Ridge, it was treated as such a trifle by the liberal media that I actually miss it's significance.

But Waco and Ruby Ridge do not loom large in the average American's bill of indictment against the government. The burden of that complaint is less dramatic but far more comprehensive.

Some striking poll figures were recently released by the Council for Excellence in Government. Asked, "Do government policies help or hinder achievement of the American Dream?" 58 percent of all adults polled said "hinder"; only 31 percent said "help." The disproportion was of course higher among Republicans (69 percent to 31 percent) but Democrats agreed (47 percent to 40 percent). Even among those receiving government assistance, 47 percent replied "hinder" and only 30 percent said "help."

Moreover, the conduct of the U.S. government has not always been above reproach.

The truth is that over a period of many years the intrusions of government into the life of the average American have grown slowly but steadily more numerous and more annoying. Most of them were decreed with the best of intentions, but gradually -- like the straws piled one by one on the camel's back -- they have come to represent an almost unendurable burden of regulations that makes normal economic or even social activity impossible.

The Heritage Foundation has just published a wonderful booklet called "Red Tape in America," describing some of these regulations and the disasters they have visited on the public. In Chapter 1 we learn that Thomas Hopkins, an economics professor and former deputy administrator of the Office of Management and Budget, estimates the cost of government regulations at $400 billion a year, or $4,000 per household. Other estimates are higher.

It was well summed up in a recent bumper sticker: "Make welfare as hard to get as a building permit."

Time to talk back to hate speech

Finally, the bully has been challenged. Finally, the chip has been knocked off, the line has been drawn, the gauntlet thrown, the bluff called, the battle joined.

It's about damn time.

Five days after the April 19 bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City, Bill Clinton pounced. There are a lot of hateful things "said regularly over the airwaves," he said. "We hear so many loud and angry voices in America today whose sole goal seems to be to keep some people as paranoid as possible. ... They spread hate. They leave the impression that, by their very words, violence is acceptable."

For days thereafter, at political gatherings, in conference, on campuses, he repeated the message: Hateful speech inspires and nurtures hateful, sometimes dire behavior.

The way they screamed and screamed, you would've thought the talk-show marionettes and a few of their right-wing puppeteers had been attacked by a cloud of killer bees.

"Liberals intend to use this tragedy for their own gain," huffed Rush Limbaugh, who would never think of exploiting anything for his own gain. "The blame game is underway," whined Oliver North, former missile supplier to Iran, convicted liar and now, naturally, a talk-show host. "I don't believe I'm fueling the lunatic fringe," said G. Gordon Liddy, Watergate wacko and now, naturally, a talk-show host, who probably can't recognize lunatics because he sees one every time he shaves.

Talk-radio hero Newt Gingrich didn't like it, either, when he was asked whether his own bombastic rhetoric may have nourished the notion that blowing up buildings is a proper outlet for political anger. The man who created a special lexicon to describe Democrats -- "traitors, pathetic, corrupt, incompetent, sick" -- denounced the suggestion as "grotesque."

But it wasn't just Republicans and right-wing motor mouths who got on Clinton's case. The president's speeches "need to be looked over a bit closely," said Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y. "We're talking about this whole problem as if this represents anything other than a bunch of wackos on the fringe, left and right," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-De.

Others slammed the president for trying to make political hay out of the Oklahoma City tragedy. Particularly nasty were the words of columnist Charles Krauthammer. "Clinton has found his weapon," he wrote. "The dead of Oklahoma." The president ought to go after terrorists, Krauthammer concluded, not attempt to curtail "the legitimate speech of the political opposition."

The problem with a lot of people, I'm beginning to think, is that they don't know how to listen. Clinton also said: "It is time we all stood up and spoke against ... reckless speech and behavior. ... When they talk of hatred, we must stand against them. When they talk of violence, we must stand against them. When they say things that are irresponsible, that may have egregious consequences, we must call them on it."

We must call them on it. Hear it again: We must call them on it. For five or six years now, the headlines of hate radio have held sway. I speak here not of their politics -- indeed, I agree with lot of their politics -- but of their style, their manner of discussing their politics. Too many are mean and malicious. They may give solace to angry but normal people, but they appeal to the conspiratorial and pathological as well.

It's about damn time.

What, really, is too much?

What -- really -- is too much? A simple question! A simple-straightforward question! A very good, simple, straightforward question. It is truly too bad that there is no simple, straightforward answer to it. Way too many variables for one single-straightforward answer. Way toooooo manyyy.

Whaddya say! Want to give it a shot? What the heck! What do you have to lose -- other than five-10 minutes of reading time? And perhaps five-ten days of pondering time. And ponder -- you will.

Let's start with something that most of you just might agree that it's really "too much."

Here we go. You're in your favorite shoe store for a new pair of those absolutely super shoes you saw in today's paper. You tell the salesman you want size eight. He looks at those canal boats at the bottom of your legs and sighs.

He produces a size eight shoe and you and he fight a magnificent battle to cram your size 11 foot into that size eight shoe. Grunt ... Groan ... Wheeze ... Nothing helps. It ain't gonna go. There's just too much foot for too little shoe. It's just "too much." Agreed?

Here's another one that you just might agree that is "too much." This one is just now coming into vogue. It's the hottest new swimsuit to hit the shops in years ... and you just gotta have it for your next trip to the beach.

You hit the swimwear shops bright and early and tell the clerk what you want. She smiles and quietly says that it comes in sizes up to size 50 only. You say you'll try one. She glances at your size 58 rumble seat and sighs mightily.

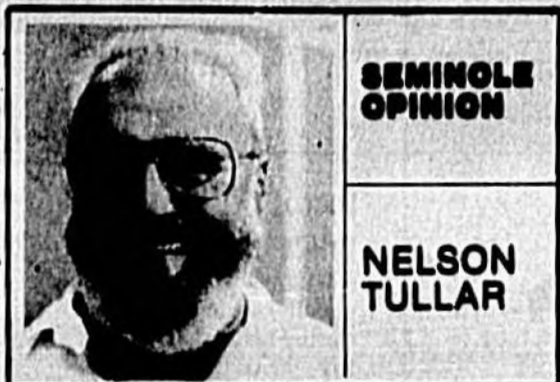

She produces a size 50. You try -- with superhuman effort -- to pack your size 58 rumbleseat into that size 50 garage ... and succeed. Snug! A groan understatement. Tighter than the bark on a tree! Getting a bit closer. In danger of imminent explosion. Right on! Obviously and truly -- "Too much." Agreed?

Where are we going with all this "too much"? You're about to find out.

Waco, Texas ... Oklahoma City, OK! Two totally unnecessary ... absolute disasters ... that should never have happened. Know it loud and clear, right here and now, my clearly stated personal position relative to both those disasters. They were "too much." I, the author of this column, am absolutely and unequivocally opposed to such action by anyone ... or any group ... be that group "the government" or a group of private Joe Blow citizens, one or more.

Many innocent men, women and children died a fiery death in the Branch Davidian holocaust ... perhaps at their own hands ... perhaps at the hands of others.

Many innocent men, women and children died a fiery and crushing death in the near total destruction of the Federal Building in Oklahoma City, Okla. This time, at the hands of others by a gigantic explosion, an explosion so violent that it ripped apart steel reinforced concrete eight or nine floors high and who knows how many yards downward ... down into the bowels of the earth.

Why did these disasters happen? What possible feeling, a feeling so strong, that it set the stage for each of these disasters to happen? Whatever feeling, whatever belief held by someone, surely was extremely strong and very deep.

Could it possibly be that the Branch Davidians' initial actions were in opposition to the government's constantly increasing interference in their private lives ... as they viewed it? There seems to be a growing multitude of just plain ordinary folks who tend to think so.

And now, The Oklahoma City disaster ... supposedly done by one or two extremely disgruntled private American citizens. Were these two perpetrators acting alone or are they the vanguard of what is yet to come?

Were they making a very violent action statement in response to the Waco, Texas outcome of death and destruction? Is it remotely possible that their action statement was directed at the current level of presumed governmental interference in private life here in the USA?

Whatever it was, they spoke with a loud voice. A voice so loud that everyone here in the USA should listen with a cupped ear. If that voice was directed towards "government," be it federal or state, then our tri-level, governmental would be very wise to listen intently ... and respond accordingly.

There is a growing preponderance of outspoken opinion against so much governmental intrusion into private life areas where they have absolutely no business being. Our federal and state governments would be prudent to stop talking and start listening, listening to the people, their constituents, and then act with huge amounts of common sense, if that's possible.

Evidence in bombing

OKLAHOMA CITY — Investigators have evidence that Terry Nichols traveled here from Kansas with the Ryder truck used in the federal building bombing, a law enforcement source said. Nichols was charged Wednesday with the April 19 bombing. He told the FBI he picked up suspect Timothy McVeigh in Oklahoma City three days before the blast, then dropped him off in the Kansas town where the truck was rented, prosecutors say. Investigators believe Nichols then made a second trip to Oklahoma City in the truck, a law enforcement source in Washington told The Associated Press. "We're not absolutely certain it's true, but it is credible," the source said. The source did not say when or with whom Nichols made the second trip, or whether the truck was carrying the bomb at the time. He surrendered in Kansas on April 21 after learning he was wanted for questioning.

Evidence against O.J. revealed at last

LOS ANGELES — The crucial evidence against O.J. Simpson stands revealed at last: a single drop of blood isolated from a river of gore near two bodies and a scientist's conclusion that it carries Simpson's genetic fingerprint. Beyond all other evidence offered to jurors in nearly four months of trial, the DNA analysis tying Simpson to blood at the murder scene could hold the key to his fate. But the defense plans a fierce attack — not on the highly regarded laboratory which obtained the test results, but on the police investigators and chemists who they suggest tampered with blood samples before they reached the scientists. The results first revealed to the jury Wednesday still packed a punch.

Clinton-Yeltsin summit

MOSCOW — After a subdued summit with Boris Yeltsin, President Clinton set down today with rivals of the Russian president and other leaders to demonstrate that his support for reform goes beyond any one political figure. Clinton said he didn't think Yeltsin, whose control over the government has been questioned by some analysts, would object to his meeting with Russians of various political stripes. "I wanted to have this opportunity mostly just to listen to all these people talk about the conditions in Russia," Clinton said. "I am here to learn." Participants said Clinton praised the Russian government's determination to go ahead with parliamentary elections in December and presidential elections next June. He also discussed the enormous sacrifice of the Russian people during World War II and got varying advice about how to deal with Russia.

Business economists: No recession soon

By JOHN D. McGLASS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Many of the nation's top economic forecasters are confident the nation will escape a recession at least through 1996 and believe both unemployment and inflation will remain moderate. Forty-three professional forecasters surveyed earlier this month by the National Association of Business Economists agreed the economy has decelerated sharply over the last six months. The survey consensus released today projected the expansion slowing to just a 2 percent annual growth rate during the current quarter, from 5.1 percent in the final three months of 1994 and 3.8 percent in the first three months of 1995. But none of the economists foresaw a recession, generally defined as two consecutive quarterly declines in the gross domestic product, the total output of goods and services in the United States. "The stretch of weakness that the economy will endure during the second quarter seems to be considered a sort of 'pause that refreshes, after which the expansion is projected to continue for at least another six quarters," according to the survey summary. "Indeed, the view of the NABE panel seems to be that the economy will somehow accomplish something that probably has never happened before: an extended soft landing," it said. Economists use the term soft landing to describe an economy slowing sufficiently to curb inflationary pressures without stalling into recession. That was the goal of the Federal Reserve as it boosted short-term interest rates seven times in the last 15 months. The NABE forecasters believe the economy will grow at a 2.5 percent rate during the second half of 1995, 2.5 percent for the year and 2.5 percent for 1996. The survey results are similar to those of another poll early this month by the newsletter Blue Chip Economic Indicators, published in Boston, Ariz. Only three of the 50 Blue Chip economists said the next recession will begin this year.

Six forecast the next downturn in 1996, 21 in 1997 and 30 in 1998 or later. "In other words," said Robert J. Eggert Sr., the newsletter editor, "more than 80 percent believe the next recession won't occur until after the next presidential election. That's a forecast we're sure the White House would like to talk to the bank." Still, the NABE survey found forecasters expecting the Fed to boost interest rates one more time over the summer as insurance against any inflationary spiral. At the same time, the consensus projects unemployment hovering between 5.5 percent and 5.7 percent. It dropped to 5.4 percent in 1994 and has averaged 5.6 percent during the first four months of 1995. The forecasters said that although the Fed appears to have stayed off any explosive rush of inflation, prices will post a modest advance, rising 2.5 percent this year and 2.4 percent in 1996. The Consumer Price Index rose 2.6 percent in 1994.

WHO blames Ebola virus for deaths in Zaire

By RASHA BAYNE
Associated Press Writer

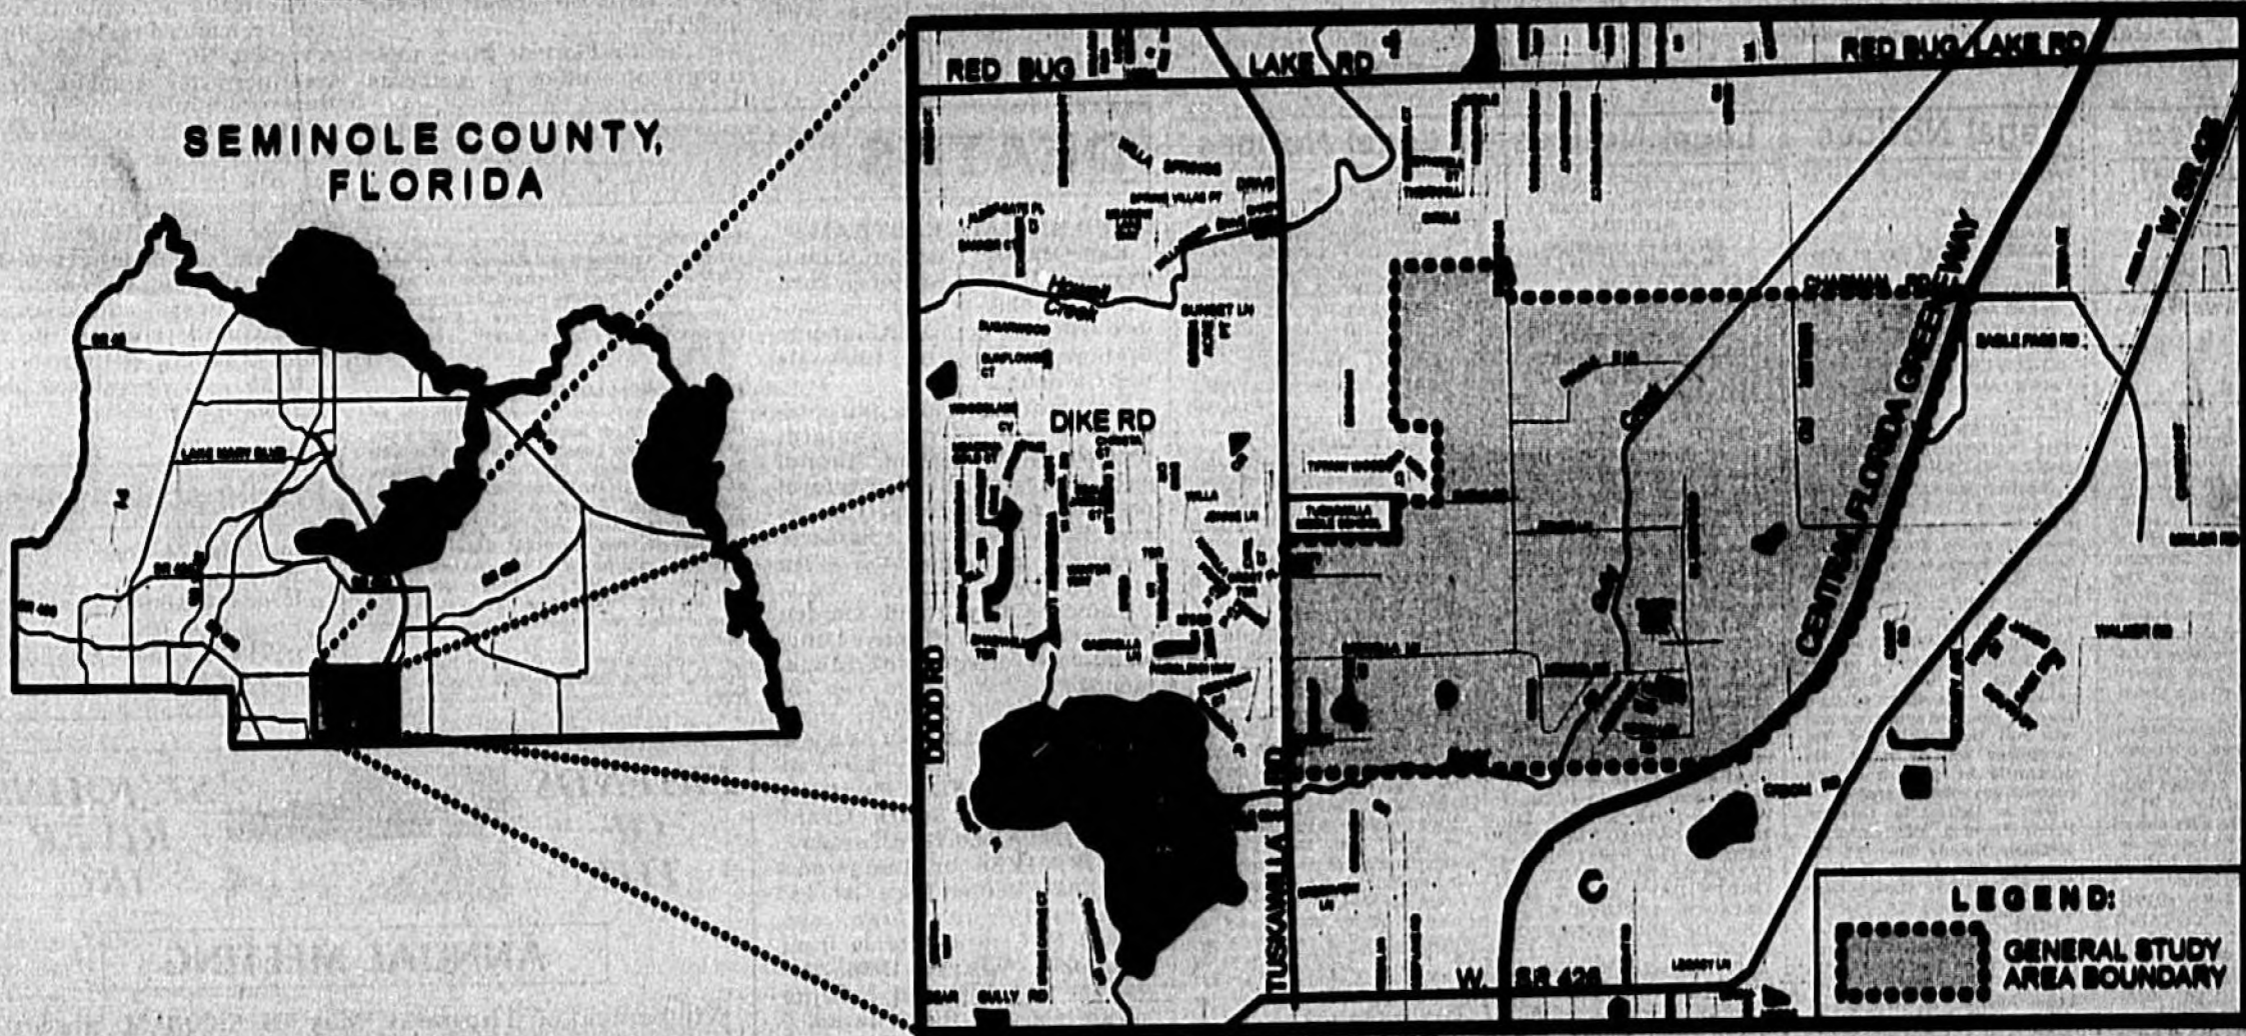

KINSHASA, Zaire — The deadly Ebola virus is to blame for scores of deaths in central Zaire, the World Health Organization confirmed today, as an aid group said the death toll had reached 170. WHO was also investigating a possible second outbreak of the disease. The epidemic in Kikwit, 370 miles east of Zaire's capital of Kinshasa, is the first outbreak of Ebola in 16 years. The virus causes hemorrhaging, fevers and death within days for up to 90 percent of those infected. Kikwit, a city of 600,000 people, was put under quarantine Tuesday. A team of experts who arrived there today found its 350-bed hospital deserted except for 20 sick patients, WHO said in Geneva. "In view of the dispersal of patients and staff from the hospital, WHO believes that more cases of Ebola disease will occur in the vicinity," the agency said. It said 20 more cases were suspected in another hospital 60 miles south of Kikwit that received a Kikwit patient. The Ebola virus was identified after researchers from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta tested blood samples from victims in Stroot said in Geneva. The aid group Doctors Without Borders reported today that 170 people had died since hemorrhagic fever was reported in Kikwit a month ago. It also said the Ebola virus may have killed three people in Moango, 75 miles west of Kikwit, and infected seven others. Health officials were checking those reports, Stroot said. Oloko Tsofobashe, an economics professor at the University of Kinshasa, warned today that even if the disease doesn't spread, the quarantine could cause hardships. "Kikwit is the most important agricultural area near Kinshasa. If trucks cannot leave there, there will be food shortages," he said. There is no vaccine or treatment for Ebola, which Ralph Henderson, the assistant director for WHO, called "one of the deadliest viruses we know." However, he said, "This is not a public health emergency in the sense of a wild spread either in Zaire or internationally. It is a very serious outbreak in the area it concerns." Henderson and other WHO officials emphasized that in previous outbreaks, the virus — which is not normally spread through casual contact and is not airborne — has run its course and been contained. The doctor who first discovered Ebola two decades ago said its fatality rate is as high as 90 percent and victims die within days. "It is definitely a hemorrhagic fever, where victims bleed to death with blood coming out of the ears and eyes. It's a horrible disease," Dr. Peter Piot told The Associated Press. David Tombo, a 50-year-old tourist guide in Kinshasa, said, "I'm really scared. This virus is deadly, and we don't know where it will strike next." The WHO officials said two of three previous outbreaks originated in hospitals with very poor hygiene. A third was caused by African funeral rituals that involve cutting open the corpse. Piot said the Zairian hospital where he discovered Ebola in 1976 had 150 beds and only three syringes. That same year, 274 of 300 people died in an Ebola outbreak in one Zairian village. Like HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, Ebola is spread through body fluids and secretions. "Once you institute precautions, make sure you're not using contaminated needles, you can contain the virus," CDC infectious disease specialist Dr. Ruth Berenson said Wednesday on ABC's "Nightline." But the head of WHO's Africa office, Evarim Sambo, said the

Jarvis shuts out Marlins

MIAMI — Kevin Jarvis pitched the first complete game in the majors this season, a two-hit shutout for the Cincinnati Reds in a 3-0 victory over Florida on Wednesday night that kept the Marlins winless at home this season.

Jarvis, making his third start of the season and his ninth career major league appearance, pitched a two-out inning in the second inning and a two-out single to Gary Sheffield in the ninth.

The 25-year-old right-hander, who had two hits of his own, struck out three and walked two in his second major league victory.

John Burkett (2-2) took the loss for the Marlins.

JACKSONVILLE — Robin Jennings singled in the winning run in the ninth inning to help Orlando defeat Jacksonville 3-2 in the Southern League on Wednesday.

Ken Coleman, who led off the final inning with a single for Orlando, came across to break a 2-2 tie that had lasted since the seventh inning.

Relief pitcher Rick Greene (0-2) gave up three hits in the inning for Jacksonville, which has lost eight of its last nine games.

Orlando reliever David Swartsbaugh (2-0) worked scoreless seventh and eighth innings, and Terry Adams was perfect in the ninth to earn his fourth save of the season.

Greyhounds play host to Raiders, Senators, Tigers

By TONY BOGGS

LONGWOOD — Once again, the Lyman Greyhound baseball team has come out ahead thanks to contributions from both a "rookie" and a "veteran."

Today and Friday, the Greyhounds will host the 6A-Region I tournament — the last stop before the Class 6A state championship tournament in Sarasota next weekend — an honor secured by first-year Lyman principal Dr. Peter Gorman and veteran athletic director Tom Lawrence.

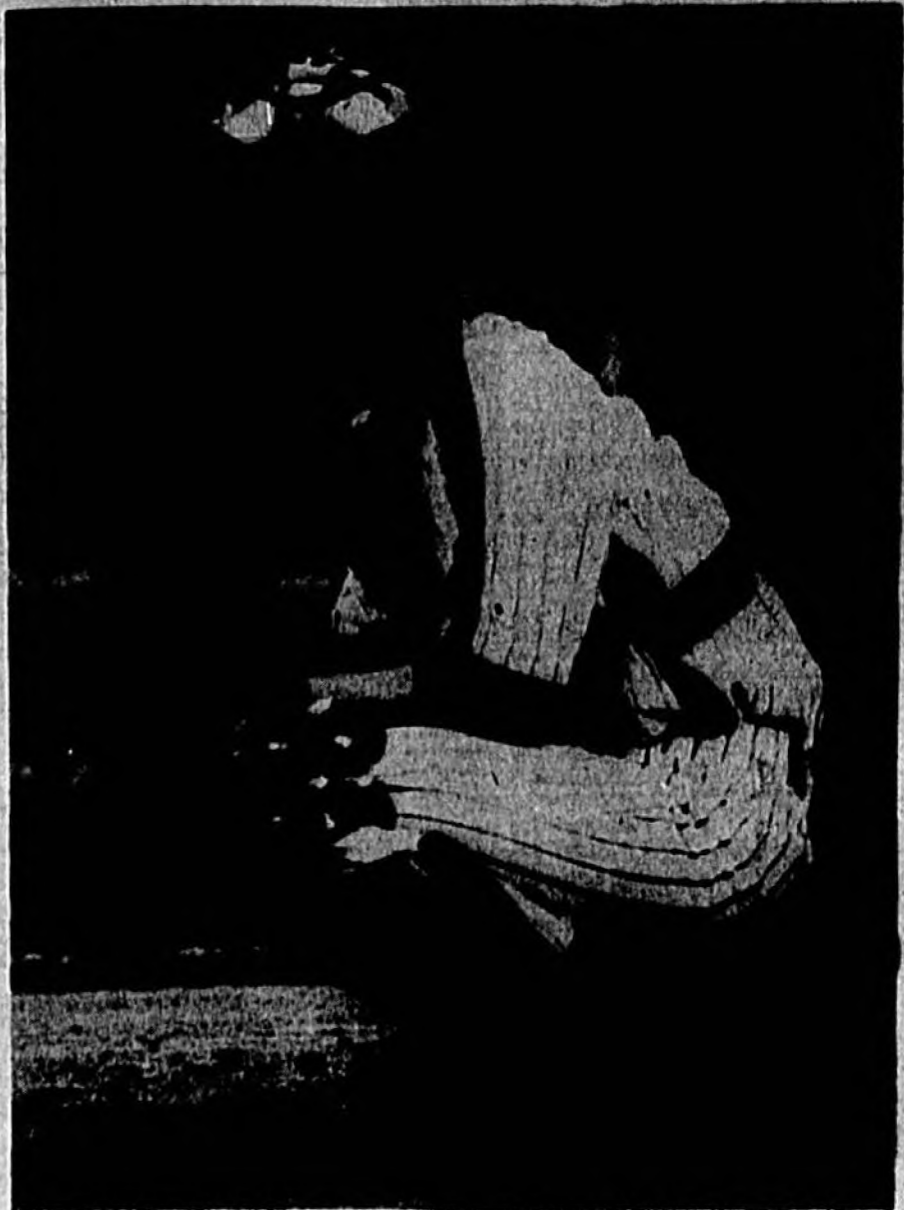

"All we did was ask," said Lawrence Wednesday of the somewhat surprising announcement. "We put in a bid to host the tournament on Monday, assuming we won Tuesday's game, and the FHSAA accepted it."

Last year, the Greyhounds and Lake Brantley Patriots had to travel Pensacola for the Region I playoff.

Since two of the teams in this weekend's tournament come from the Jacksonville area — 6A-District 3 champion Neptune Beach-Fletcher and 6A-District 2 runner-up Orange Park — it was anticipated the Greyhounds would be heading northeast this weekend.

Instead, the Orange Park Raiders (who defeated Tate 5-3 Tuesday) will play the Fletcher Senators (who eliminated Lake Howell 6-3 Tuesday) in a 4 p.m. game today at Lyman.

At 7 p.m., the Greyhounds (27-3) put their 14-game win streak on the line against the Pensacola Tigers (23-10) after beating Middleburg 5-3 in their subregional game Tuesday. □ See Region, Page 2B

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Astor's James Powell III held off repeated challenges by Dick Anderson to win the fourth race of the Florida Pro 125 Late Model Series last Friday night, May 5, at Orlando Speedway.

Powell, who led every circuit in securing the victory, also won the second race of the series, which was run at Charlotte County Speedway. "It was a good race with Dickie (Anderson)," said Powell, currently the series' points leader. "He raced me hard and clean all night. The car was almost perfect tonight. I have to thank my crew and all the guys at Bemco."

After setting the evening's fifth-fastest qualifying time, Powell started the race from the pole position by virtue of the draw. At the drop of starter Laverne Patrick's green flag, Powell jumped to the point with Scott Bramlett and Ronnie Roach trailing.

SANSULA — Wildwood's Dick Anderson outraced a star-studded field to pick up the $2,500 winner's check in the fifth installment of the Florida Pro Late Model 125 series run last Saturday, May 6, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Anderson, who set the evening's second-fastest qualifying time, started the race from the pole position by the luck of the draw. At the drop of the green flag, Anderson bolted to the lead with Scott Bramlett and Mike Fritts in tow. Several laps later, Anderson opened up a 10-car advantage over the rest of the field. Anderson was never seriously challenged as he led every circuit to claim the victory.

"We've just had all kinds of bad luck lately with wrecks and mechanical problems," said Anderson, the defending Florida Pro Series champion. "We have a fantastic car and tonight, we were able to prove it."

There are only two options at this point in the season," said Lyman coach Bob McCullough after the Greyhounds' 1-0 win over Tallahassee-Lincoln Tuesday. "You either lose or you win the state championship."

"We're going to go out and continue to do what we've done all season; play sound, fundamental baseball and try and have some fun."

Jason Franke (8-0) is expected to get the starting assignment for Lyman. Pensacola will counter either with ace Steve Hankins (11-3 after getting the win in Tuesday's game with Middleburg) or Shaun Raybon.

The Tigers are led offensively by senior shortstop Anthony Brooks, who had three hits against Middleburg Tuesday, and Darren Blakely, a .412 hitter with over 30 stolen bases this season.

Leading the Greyhounds are leadoff hitter/center fielder Freddie Young (.380 with 18 stolen bases and two home runs since returning to the lineup from an injury at midseason) and catcher Ted Koller (a team-best .446 average that includes 19 doubles, six triples, a home run, and 23 RBI).

Tonight's winners will meet at 7 p.m. Friday for the right to represent the region in Sarasota next weekend.

And then tonight, of all stupid things, a lapped car drills me with the caution flag out. After that, the car was just plain dead. I wonder where some guys' heads are when they're racing."

Lapped cars caused problems for some of the other drivers. At the century lap mark, a lapped car put Russell in the wall going into turn four. And for the second time, Cook was a victim of circumstances.

In the closing laps, it was still Anderson and Fritta on the point while James Powell III (the series' current points leader) had moved to third ahead of Cook and Russell.

Anderson took the checkered flag about 15 car lengths ahead of Fritta.

"It was a long, tough race," said Fritta. "We would have been glad just to finish tonight. I'm ticked with second place, especially right behind Dick."

"My last time and my good finish were possible because of the crew's hard work."

Powell, who won the Pro Series race Friday at Orlando, finished third several car lengths behind Fritta.

"We flat missed everything on the car tonight," said Powell. "The car was bad all night. It was just all over the track. Hope the next time out, we can really go racing again."

Russell, a four-time FASCAR Late Model champion, finished fourth in front of Cook.

"We qualified second for the race and we were running up front all night," said Russell. "The track was a little slick, but I found a good groove to race in. We were in there 'til the lapped car knocked me out."

In the incident involving Rogers, Cook had some sheet metal knocked off, allowing exhaust fumes to get into the car. During the second meek, Cook's ride received rear-end damage.

"The car was a little loose all night," said Cook. "Toward the middle of the race, it got tight. We had our hands full."

The race took 75 minutes to complete. There were no lead changes and six caution periods.

Other feature event winners were Jimmy Winks (Modifieds), Bobby Bell (Bombers), R.J. Arnone (Mini-Stocks), Timmy Todd (Limited Late Models), Barbara Pierce (Sportsman), Mike MacDougall (Mini-Bombers) and So Walker (Run-Abouts).

inside of Roach for third place. On lap 83, Anderson moved past Bramlett into second place and the hunt was on.

"Despite eight caution periods that bunched the field for new starters, Anderson was unable to overtake Powell."

As Powell was working his way through lapped traffic, using the slower cars to keep Anderson at bay, Gary Belough and David Rogers were hooked up in a battle for fifth place. On lap 86, Rogers gained the advantage.

Six laps later, Roach, who raced in the top five since the beginning of the race, was side-swiped by a lapped car. That knocked a bleed-off valve off of one of Roach's tires, forcing him from the competition.

"I was lucky with lapped traffic tonight," said Powell. "Some of the guys were having a problem with the slower cars. I was able to use it to my advantage and keep Dickie behind me. I was trying to build a good lead because there was some good racing going on behind me."

With 12 laps to the checkers, Marc Kinley's engine blew, dumping oil on the track. Powell managed to avoid the spill but Rogers and Anderson got caught up in it.

Rogers slid into one of the other cars and his night was over. Anderson, however, had Lady Luck on his side as he slid in the oil and nudged the wall, but was able to continue.

On the final restart, Powell bolted to the lead and took the checkers less than a car length ahead of Anderson.

"I just didn't have enough for James tonight," said Anderson. "Lately, he's been running real strong and driving some smart races. Tonight, I just had a second-place car."

Bramlett came in third ahead of Belough, Mike Franklin Jr., Jeff Williams, and Mike Fritta, who started the race dead last.

The race took 85 minutes to complete. Powell pocketed the winner's check of $8,500.

Other division winners were Jimmy Winks (Modifieds), Bobby Bell (Bombers), R.J. Arnone (Mini-Stocks), Timmy Todd (Limited Late Models), Barbara Pierce (Sportsman), Mike MacDougall (Mini-Bombers) and So Walker (Run-Abouts).

Skeptic appreciates psychic's candor

DEAR MR. STEWART: Why is that the "tabloids" write so much about psychics and in the way that they do? Doesn't that do a disservice to your profession? You, however, seem to be different, that in you seem to "downplay" what everyone else tries to overdo in meaning, we, the public, I, for one, appreciate your candor and the way that you come across. Yes, I am a skeptic, but I cannot say that I, myself, have not had certain experiences that border on the psychic.

'ESPecially' JERRY STEWART

As for the "tabloids," the one time that I got written up was not only fair, but very accurate as well. I was in the National Tattler, many years ago, and by a writer by the name of Clifford Linedecker. (I think he lives in Florida now?) It was in the early stages of my career when although I had very little to be spoken about, it was because I was interesting to write about anyway, you know, about the 600 pounds that I had lost as well as being psychic. I have to admit although I was happy with the article as to the way that it came out being so truthful and all, that I cannot help wonder if there weren't a few people anyway who thought that it was another "phony baloney story" about some itinerant psycho being written up to sell magazines such as this one was. I have learned not to condemn everything that I read and try to keep an open mind until proved otherwise. Don't forget, people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones" (Good philosophy).

By the way, what does Lee Ann's precursor Maria Clark and Jerry Stewart have in common? (not a joke) The answer is: author Clifford Linedecker who just wrote the unauthorized biography of Attorney Clark. It was due out sometime in April of 1986, published by Pinnacle Books, a division of Kensington Publishing Corp. It's a paperback and sells for $6.95. Its title is "Her Private Trials and Public Triumphs" (I just knew that I would have some connection with this O.J. thing somehow even if indirectly like this.) Must be psychic!

DEAR JERRY: When would be the best time to sell our home as we want to move back up north by fall?

J.J. LAKE MARY
DEAR J.J.: I think you mean "when will our home sell"? Obviously, you should have it on the market already, but I think that it will sell sometime between the 1st of May and the 1st of August. Let me know if I do as you can write me to your "going away party."

(The Sanford Herald is not responsible for the opinions expressed in this column unless by Jerry Stewart. Write him, c/o Sanford Herald, 298 N. French Ave., Sanford Fl. 32771. Stewart's phone for appointments and speaking engagements: 1-407-336-3365)

Reporting telephone fraud is easy

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, you published a letter from a woman in Illinois whose mother has been victimized by fraudulent telemarketers because she can't resist these sweet-talking "prizes" that come in the mail.
Abby, the law enforcement community can and should do more than offer sympathy.

First, complaints concerning telemarketing scams should be filed with the National Fraud Information center. Call (800) 876-7060 during normal business hours Monday through Friday (Eastern time). Or contact your state's attorney general.
Last year, a nationwide effort was made to crack down on telemarketing fraud. Law enforcement officials now share access to a national computer database that contains information about ongoing investigations, active cases and consumer complaints.

In addition, the National Association of Attorneys General, the Federal Trade Commission and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) have launched a consumer education campaign to combat telemarketing fraud.
A free brochure, "Telephone Scams and Older Consumers," is available by writing to: Federal Trade Commission, Sixth and Pennsylvania AVE., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.
RONALD W. BURRES, ILLINOIS ATTORNEY GENERAL

DEAR ATTORNEY GENERAL BURRES: Thank you for the helpful information. I hope my readers will place the toll-free number near their telephones and report all suspicious calls.

DEAR ABBY: The recent letter from "Unshakable in Milwaukee" reflects a common concern of people who have arthritis. In your answer you offered a good strategy when confronted by a potentially painful handshake. Here are three additional options:
— When people offer their hand, enclose their hand with both of yours. This offers a warm response and gives you control over the intensity of the handshake.
— Place only one or two

ADVISE ABBIGAIL VAN BUREN

inches of the end of your fingers into the other person's palm. This alerts them to be careful and keeps large knuckles out of their grip.
— A smile and a friendly nod before a hand is offered may avoid a handshake.

Thank you for pointing out that many men as well as women have arthritis. In fact, nearly 40 million Americans of all ages have some form of the disease, according to statistics released by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Those interested in learning more about how to reduce joint stress from arthritis can receive a free "Basic Facts" brochure by contacting their local chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, or by calling (800) 523-7800.

TERESA J. DEARY, NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS, ARTHRITIS FOUNDATION

DEAR MR. DEARY: Thank you for the additional suggestions, which should benefit many readers. And thank for sending the "Basic Facts" brochure, which I found most informative. I had been unaware that the word "arthritis" refers to more than 100 different diseases that can affect the joints and other parts of the body.

DEAR ABBY: The best retort concerning baldness came from writer-humorist Abe Burrows ("Guys and Dolls").
On being introduced to a woman, he politely removed his hat. With shock, she said, "Why you haven't any hair!" To which Burrows replied, "I don't have a mustache either ... it's a hat."

MAC CARROLL, PITTSBURGH

Leg numbness calls for more testing

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from continued tugging in my left side (front and back) with slight numbness down my left leg. I've been going to a chiropractor for two weeks, but the nature of the discomfort makes me wonder if it could be other than skeletal.

DEAR READER: Yes, it could. And, because you have not improved with two weeks of chiropractic manipulation, I urge you to check with your family physician. Tumors, abscesses and calcium deposits could cause the symptoms you are experiencing.

In my opinion, you need blood tests and, probably, a CT or MRI scan to diagnose your condition. Your family doctor can, after examining you, coordinate the necessary tests, refer you to specialists as needed, or prescribe physical therapy to relieve your discomfort.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Medical Specialties." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My recent Pap smear revealed the presence of human papillomavirus. What is HPV and does it increase the risk of cancer? Should I take any precautions before intercourse?

DEAR READER: Human papillomaviruses cause genital warts. The affliction is sexually transmitted, after which the viruses commonly infect the cervix, vagina or reproductive area (in women) and the penis. In your case, the HPV infection could probably be seen on the cervix; the presence of the virus was confirmed by the Pap test.

Aside from the obvious reason for treatment (to cure the warts and prevent dissemination), therapy for HPV is mandatory because the untreated virus infection can lead to cancer of the cervix.

Therapy consists of surgical

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In his February magazine, the editor of New Zealand Bridge, Richard Solomon, started a competition called Magic Moments. It will feature deals in which good fortune was heaped upon declarer (or the defenders, I suppose). Two examples are given, one being today's deal.

North's opening bid showed 7-11 high-card points with at least 5-5 in spades and another suit. This bid has its good moments. If you have a fit with partner, you can win a lot of tricks with few points. Here, though, North caught his partner with a misfitting strong hand. South had nowhere to go but three no-trump.

At first glance, the contract appears hopeless, but look closely at the minor-suit spot-card distribution.

West led his fourth-highest diamond: eight, queen, ace. (One cannot help thinking that East should put in the nine, especially as he knows declarer has five diamonds.) South returned the diamond four, collecting both the jack and nine. Now West tried the club nine: five, queen, ace. South cashed his three diamond winners, East throwing hearts and West releasing the club eight. South continued with the king and switched to the spade queen, which didn't cause South any pain. After winning the second spade, declarer cashed his three club winners. The last trick was won with dummy's heart ace, giving South 10 tricks.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 12, 1995

Persons for whom you did favors in the past will eagerly seek ways to reciprocate in the year ahead. You will discover that being a nice guy can really pay off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before relaxing and letting go today, make sure you've paid adequate attention to your responsibilities. You won't be able to enjoy yourself if you have a guilty conscience. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and $ASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Go along with the majority today instead of insisting upon having your own way. A small sacrifice will be better than a fight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

This will not be a good day to discuss business or mundane matters with friends, especially if you're out together in hopes of finding some fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Strive to achieve things today from which everyone can derive some type of benefit. Avoid goals which would reward only you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you get involved in a joint venture today, make certain the costs and efforts will be shared proportionately. If it doesn't balance out, pass the action.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might not be able to function as independently as you'd like today due to your mate's demands. Instead of fighting, try to find some sort of compromise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Your way of doing things might be best today, but you'd be wise not to call too much attention to your tactics. It might wound some sensitive egos.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Go slowly with someone of the opposite sex that you met recently. There is a chance that this person may not be all he/she professes to be.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Whether you like it or not, everything you do today is likely to be scrutinized by others, so be doubly careful about how you behave in public.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes we can get away with telling harmless little fibs, but today won't be one of those days. Keep this in mind if you feel like embellishing a story.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Disappointment is possible if you do something for another in hopes of getting more back in return. Insincere motives aren't likely gain you any ground today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Flattery might work to gain temporary support today, but after the persons you target realize they've been manipulated, they might turn their backs on you.
