Selects Ten Winners; Wallace Leads With 11 Named Correctly

For the third consecutive time B. A. B. Wilkinson won two tickets to the Milano Theater in the Herald's football contest and thereby gains the reputation of being either the luckiest man in Sanford or the best dopster. With ten choices correct, Mr. Wilkinson was second to Russell Wallace who picked 11 winners and who will also receive two tickets.

Wilkinson went wrong on Army, Navy, Georgia Tech, Davidson and Georgia while Wallace guessed poorly on Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech and Davidson.

Eighty-two selections were turned in with 66 persons favoring Army to defeat Yale, and fifty-three choosing Georgia over Florida.

The results of the selections follow:

Football Capital Of U. S. Is Still Uncertainly But Field Is Narrowing Down

By Davis J. Walsh International News Service Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The football capital of America might be found today among the stately spires that rise above the campus just outside South Bend. It might be the tiny hamlet they call Hanover, N. Y., resting in a setting that is almost primitive. It might be the beautiful Los Angeles; sombre, half-tinted Pittsburgh; historic, knobby, quaint, old New Orleans; the eastern outpost on the edge of the desert, Salt Lake City; or that sprightly charmer of the Northwest, Minneapolis.

It might be any of these and it might be none. For while Notre Dame, Dartmouth, Southern California, Pittsburgh, Tennessee, Tulane, Utah and Minnesota remain undefeated in week-end games that were all-consequential, so did Purdue, Texas, California and Detroit, while Cornell drew a blank all together and preserved its record intact.

A Yale game to be played today in that Dartmouth "having" ranked Hanover, must be conceded to be one of the leading teams in the East, and that the other is Pittsburgh; that Southern California's 7 to 0 victory over Stanford gives it most of the authority in the east; that Texas looks the part as the best team in the Southwest; that Tulane's diapal of Georgia Tech stakes it to an equal ranking with Tennessee in the South; that Purdue, with another victory over Chicago, is in sole charge of the Big Ten at the moment and so on.

Included among the veterans to speak is the fact that Notre Dame surveyed another of its big moments, this time beating Carnegie Tech by a touch; that Michigan and Missouri, having played a 7 to 7 tie, must look to the remainder of the schedule for the Big Six championship and that Utah, winner over Colorado, Ariz., still is the best in the rising, young Rocky Mountain conference.

With the exception of Nebraska, beaten by 14, and naturally Missouri, these form the 100 percent group in the football set, although California, in view of its scoreless tie with St. Mary's, actually belongs with Fordham and David Elkins, co-stars in Saturday's game. California's winner over the Olympic Club by 21-10, is the only east team between U. S. 2 and the title now.

AN official South American commission reports Chesterfield's blend as the "most desirable." In the Canal Zone, that international crossroads, Chesterfield is far and away the favorite. RELATIVITY ABOUT FLY INFESTATION SEEN AS BENEFIT

U. S. Agent Says Fall
Knowledge Of Facts
Instills Confidence

In reply to a letter from a prominent fruit grower in the vicinity of Deen who wrote objecting to news made public concerning a new fruit fly infestation based on Nov. 16, the eradication headquarters in Orlando said that the knowledge of the facts makes the occurrence a cause for confidence on the part of the grower and the public rather than cause for alarm.

The following paragraphs have been taken from a letter written by L. H. Warner, agent, United States Department of Agriculture, citrus division, of Mount Dora, which the writer explains the advantages of publication of facts concerning the progress of the eradication work:

"Our complaint concerning publication by some newspapers of the finding of a Mediterranean fruit fly infestation on Nov. 16 is noted carefully.

"However, there is evidence that many citrus growers who have followed the eradication work closely since its beginning in order that they might keep thoroughly posted will not agree with you that the news item reciting simply the bare facts was 'adverse publicity' as you characterized it. They will agree that the publication of a truthful statement of fact is under the circumstances unfavorable to the best interests of the citrus industry of Florida.

"It is true that a complete suppression of all news concerning fruit fly eradication work as you suggest, might build some confidence on the part of growers and the public; but it would be the false confidence borne of ignorance. It would be the sort of confidence which would go to pieces at once in the face of rumors circulated by word of mouth. People will talk; and in the absence of definite printed statements of truth the fact there is no curb upon imagination of inaccuracy.

"In this particular instance, before the newspaper item of which you complain made its appearance, this office was called upon to answer telephone calls from various places over the peninsula, some at quite a distance. Again, this particular infestation was found in ripe Homotana oranges, but before any newspaper mention was made of the fact the word had spread widely that it had been found in green Valencia oranges.

"You can be assured there is no intention on the part of any one of these offices to spread news of a alarming nature. On the contrary, the best efforts here for months have been directed toward curbing as far as possible false alarms which were being carelessly spread. The most effective method yet found to accomplish this is to give out brief, accurate and clear statements of fact, eliminating opinions or comment.

"Generally speaking the newspapers and agricultural publications of Florida have realized the situation and have made an effort to cooperate. Confidence borne of full knowledge of the facts is a true confidence, and has not the weakness of that false confidence and sense of security which comes of ignorance."

Last Of America's War Dead Arrive To Be Buried Here

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(INS)—The last of America's war dead to come home today, resting almost forgotten for the past ten years in the frozen fastness of the trans-Siberian railroad, the bodies of 75 doughboys, 29 of them unknown, were brought back on the liner President Roosevelt.

Most of them came from Michigan, and 54 will be in 30 members of the "339th," based in that city. Governor Frederick W. Green of Michigan, will meet the special funeral train when it arrives in Detroit Sunday. The dead were killed during the Archangel campaign of the World War.

The funeral vessel was met when New York Bay by the destroyer Kana and the municipal boat Moran with all flags flying at half mast. A squadron of 12 military planes draped overhead as the liner steamed slowly into port.

A national salute of 21 guns, the highest possible, roared forth at the President Roosevelt's general contractor's Island. At the Hoboken pier, a bugle sounded "taps," the soldier's farewell lullaby. Rev. Wallace Hayes, of England, M. A., national chaplain of the veterans of foreign wars, conducted services.

HELPING THE SCHOOL CHILD BY EMILIE HOFFMAN

A lad was severely punished by an exasperated father because he had to remain after school every day to finish his number work. It had not occurred to either the teacher or parents to find the reason for the child's failure. Punishment did not better matters, so the mother called upon the teacher, who was at a loss to account for the situation. The boy was intelligent and his attention did not seem to be diverted, but he just dawdled over his arithmetic task. Neither and teacher came to no conclusion, so that evening when Sonny went to bed mother pleasantly said: "Now, dear, maybe you can help us. Your teacher and I do not know why you never get your work done in school. There is a reason. Do you know what it is?" This was the reply the astonished mother received: "I can't see the figure on the board from my seat. After school the teacher makes me sit in the front seat where she can keep an eye on me. I can see the figures great large and I get my numbers done in a jiff."

The child's seat was changed, he no longer had to be detained after school and his spurs went up high. A similar case was that of a girl in the fifth grade who was a failure in spelling. She sat in the rear seat in the schoolroom, and after many tearful experiences parental investigation brought out the fact that the girl had impaired hearing and heard only a few of the words as the teacher gave them out in the written spelling lesson. Physical handicaps are the cause of many of the school failures. A child may be sick without any notice of the fact by any one. In both cases cited no one was aware of the physical defects in the respective children.

We do not expect a sick child to do well in school. Parents and teachers have a right to expect this and it is the parents who must keep their children in good health and remove any handicap to school progress when it exists. Good health is so important to the proper educational development of the child that special efforts are now being made in New York City schools to perfect the health status of the pupils, but it requires home cooperation to really establish a school of healthy children.

If your child has not attained high proficiency in the examination in school, by all means put him under the care of a physician, in due time you will probably note an improvement in his class standing.

When hanging clothes on the line, put all of the same kind together—sheets, slips, etc. It will save time sorting later.

LAWTON DIRECTS AUTOISTS' NOTICE TO TRAFFIC LAW

Motorists Must Stop Before Passing Bus Unloading Children

In the 1929 session of the Florida Legislature a law was passed governing the passing of school buses by motorists. In a statement made to The Herald this morning by T. W. Lawton, superintendent of Seminole County Schools, it was revealed that either through carelessness on the part of the driver or through ignorance of the existing law, many motorists have been disregarding this statute.

Mr. Lawton said that according to the state law a driver of a motor vehicle may not pass a school bus which has stopped. He further said that this does not necessarily mean that the driver must wait until the bus passes on before continuing his travel, but merely to come to a full stop before passing a school bus, when it is in the act of taking on or discharging students.

The 1929 Florida Law relative to School Buses is given as follows:

"Section 1. That every person using, operating or driving a motor vehicle upon or over the roads or highways of the State of Florida, upon approaching any bus or other motor vehicle used in transporting school children to or from school, while such bus or other motor vehicle is stopped and engaged in taking on or discharging such school children thereon upon the roads or highways of the State, he and are hereby required to bring such motor vehicle to a full stop before passing such school bus or motor vehicle, provided such school bus or motor vehicle used in transporting school children is marked for identification, as hereinafter provided. That any person failing to comply with the requirements of this section or violating any of the provisions hereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed Three Hundred ($300.00) Dollars or by imprisonment in County Jail not to exceed ninety (90) days or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the Court.

"Section 2. That all motor vehicles used in transporting school children to and from school in the State of Florida be, and are hereby required to be distinctly marked 'School Bus' on both front, rear, and sides thereof, in letters of not less than five (5) inches in length and so plainly written or printed and so arranged as to be legible to persons approaching such school bus whether traveling in the same or opposite direction, and that such school bus driver, be required to stop such school bus on the right hand side of such road or street as close to curb or edge of road as is practical."

Mr. Lawton further made it known that the Seminole County school buses were made to comply with Section 2 of the state law relative to school buses, in that the words 'School Bus' were plainly written on the front, rear, and sides of every vehicle carrying students of the various schools.

Army Ends Work For Notre Dame Contest

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 22 (INS)—All preparatory work, completely, Army's football squad, thirty-eight strong, today was to depart for New York and Saturday's encounter with Notre Dame. Two special trains will carry the Cadet Corps and band to the scene of battle tomorrow.

A stiff gale was whipping across Mitchell Field yesterday when the Cadets took their final practice. No rough work was permitted, the men spending an hour in packing, passing and sparring. Especial attention was paid to passing, indicating that Coach Jones plans to take to the air should the Irish forward wall prove too formidable.

LEADS SCORERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (INS)—Clare Hinkle, Bucknell's smashing fullback, was leading eastern individual football scorers today with a total of 143. Hinkle accumulated 59 points yesterday as his team overwhelmed Dickinson, 78 to 0. Hinkle displaced Al Marsters, Dartmouth ace, who, until the time he was injured, had accounted for 108 points.

Da' and Bauer, backs, and Crane and Cralkey, linemen, are the only injured members of the squad of 60. Following yesterday's practice Coach Ingram announced that Hagberg, most abilitated player on the team, would start the game at right end.

ATLANTA BANKER DEAD

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 22 (INS)—Samuel T. Weyman, prominent Atlanta business man, was dead today from injuries sustained last night while battling a forest fire on his estate here. Weyman president of the City Savings Bank and Trust Company, was attempting to extinguish the blaze on a hillside when he plunged down a 45 foot embankment.

Intricacy of cut and superb workmanship usually lavished by dressmakers upon silk now is associated with frocks of jersey. SMOTHERING AND BLOATING

Mississippi Planter Gets Rid of These Ills by Taking Theford's Black-Draught.

Bogue Chitto, Miss.—Mr. W. B. Johnson, who lives a few miles from here, says: "I am a farmer and a hard worker. I have taken Black-Draught when I would feel sluggish or out of sorts and it has been a great help to me. I have been taking Black-Draught at intervals for 30 or more years. There is nothing to compare with it, for me. I take it made as a tea. "I had stomach trouble for a long time. I would swell or bloat up and smother. "I would work hard all day, be hungry, come in and eat—just tired out—and go to bed, thinking I'd get a good night's rest. I would begin smothering and no matter how cold it was I would have to get up and go out in the air to get my breath. "I sent for a package of Black-Draught and began taking it. After taking it regularly for a while, I quit having these spells. "Theford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable remedy, free from dangerous mineral drugs."

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY
By Robert Barry

A favorite adage among politicians is that newspaper editors know how to "run everybody else's show but their own." It is grounded in the view that it is unwise to "step into the shoes of others" and to get out and "do better yourself" in a similar situation, an ancient protest against the great art of criticism.

Washington presents today a novel cross-section on that historic idea.

There is a lot of talk of the new uprising within the Republican Party. It is designated variously, according as it is esteemed—the "Young Guard," the "Baby Bloc," the "Young Turk Movement," the "Hoover Regulars" or in slang, "What Have You?"

There can be slight argument as to the leadership of the new revolt which has split the Republican Party three ways where it was divided before into two factions; a subdivision which has brought the Grand Old Party, which has been so intolerant of bloc systems of Government, closer to the multiplication of parties in the French Chamber of Deputies or the German Reich than division over religion has brought a fragile Democratic Party.

The White House clipping service summarizes a story of editors in small towns telling the life and ways of the whole situation, and letting President Hoover know in no uncertain terms what really ought to be done about things.

That clipping service fails to disclose the true nature of an important political combat now going forward in the National Capital.

Senators Vandenberg of Michigan, and Allen of Kansas, have assumed leadership of the "Young Guard." They are going to try to show the Republican Old Guard how things ought to be done in the Senate.

Both are small town editors. Henry Allen never would have been heard of in national politics except for his talents as a Wichita, Kan. publisher, and his innate sense of publicity values.

Arthur H. Vandenberg has been editor and publisher of the Grand Rapids, Mich., Herald since he was twenty-two, which fact ought not to be held against the paper.

With copies of the Chicago Tribune the Kansas City Star, the Detroit News or the New York World on their desks Allen and Vandenberg became quite prominent in time at writing editorials telling Washington how the Government should be run.

Somewhat or other, no one has advanced so far any plausible reason, both men have landed in the Senate.

They are in a position now of being required to make good. They have set about the task by undertaking a new scheme in the Republican Party. They have done right well at it.

Allen does not know anything about Pennsylvania politics, forgetful about practical politics in the majority opinion of Washington, and the consensus is that Vandenberg's stump speaking in the Senate is not likely to prove more effective than "Jim" Watson's back-slapping and head-shaking.

Mr. Allen and Mr. Vandenberg are likable gentlemen. Their motives are pure, their instincts impeccable. They do not wear well. They are among the easiest persons in Washington to get tired of.

It would be unfair in the opinion of the country to judge them by that pair.

With Wilson of Indiana all and all but out of the picture, and can't step out and get a swell looking twenty-three year old President for Wellesley or Bryn Mawr. Then education would get an even break in the rogues' gallery with Ziegfeld's and Earl Carroll's troupe.

You take a twenty-three year old President at Bryn Mawr, for instance, and the place could go as educational as "night" if it could steam up an enrollment of 12,000, with only 19 per cent of them girls. And don't tell me the boys wouldn't study hard for their sweet and cute alma mater. Most of them would study three extra years to get a Ph. D. degree from her lily white hands.

Things have certainly switched in the colleges since the Ivy started to grow in the clouds. Studied till he was thirty-five or forty to get a niche as a college instructor. About the time he was bald or gray, or both, they might make him an assistant professor. At sixty-five he was ripe for a full professorship and when he got to be seventy-five or eighty he was either made college President or laid off.

Now it seems they're scouting the Boy Scouts for college Presidency timber.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY
By Robert Barry

President Hoover's apparently Herculean efforts to restore confidence in the nation's business, and particularly in so-called Republican prosperity are, to say the least, praiseworthy, whether they accomplish anything or not. It is up to every leader in the nation to bolster, so far as he can, industrial America and to keep a full dinner pail, both for the laborer and the capitalist.

The President's conferences with the heads of every line of business activity and the various announcements which have been issued indicating that there will be full steam ahead, have probably served to cheer people up, but they have not appreciably increased the amount of trading in New York stocks. For the morale of the people, he has done much; for practical prosperity, he has done nothing. If prosperity is a mental attitude, he should have accomplished great things; if not, there was nothing he could do.

His call upon the states and various municipalities of the country to indulge in an orgy of development, of road building, bridge building, canal construction, and a general widespread expenditure of tax money for public improvements, undoubtedly has its commendable aspects. The time for any city to erect public buildings is when times are hard and building programs are on the wane; then, labor and materials are cheapest. The only trouble is, his advice, so far as Florida is concerned, is a little late.

Florida had its orgy of development and expansion some four years ago, and has not yet fully recovered from the effects. Florida built roads, canals, bridges, drained swamps, and spent money as if it were water, not only until there is no more money for public improvement in Florida, but also until there is nothing else of any material importance which needs improvement. In Sanford, for instance, we not only can sell no more bonds for the construction of streets, but we also have sufficient paved streets to last us until our present population has doubled or tripled.

The Bradenton Herald has taken the same attitude with regard to the community. It said recently: "Speaking from a local viewpoint, county and city, this newspaper does not believe very much aid can be given in this manner. Any money spent just now for improvements that are not vitally necessary and cannot be delayed would very likely create a more undesirable condition than is now faced. Manatee county and Bradenton are not backed by the overflowing treasury of the United States. It would be well to keep this fact in mind while considering the request of Governor Carlton to join in a nation-wide public improvement program.

"Of course, such a plan would be desirable for many reasons but we do not believe it would be sensible. Creating obligations that cannot be met without undue effort and hardship is never good business policy. Very probably there are thousands of communities in the country that can join in the plan and help render a real service but we are convinced that local conditions do not warrant any effort of the county or city along this line."

Contempt Of Court

Contempt of court should be looked upon by respectable persons as an offense inimical to law and order and deserving of the severest punishment. We say "should be looked upon" rather than "is looked upon" because courts have, in recent years, committed such reprehensible injustices that most people can have nothing but contempt for their decisions. No less than a few weeks ago, three Washington reporters were sentenced to 45 days in jail on a contempt of court charge for refusing to divulge confidential information which they had obtained in revealing the flagrancy of law violation in the Capital concerning the case of the journalists, the Miami Herald writes:

"While sympathizing with those three Washington reporters locked up for contempt of court, if there are any tears to be shed waste them not on the journalists. The tears should be spent for the judge and district attorney who permitted such a miscarriage of justice. They will suffer far more than the men of the pencil.

"In fact, the reporters are probably enjoying their 45 days of rest. Their salaries have been doubled and they are receiving other emoluments. In addition they have joined distinguished company and are securing a bit of fame. There is no disgrace to such imprisonment. It is an honor.

"Besides this, their incarceration may bring about the adoption of a law that will protect the journalistic profession hereafter against such judicial persecutions and punishments. Senator Capper has proposed a law and one has been introduced in the House of Representatives relieving newspapermen of the obligation of revealing the sources of their confidential information.

"In obeying such ethics as well as the honor of the honest gentlemen, these reporters had declined to tell the names of their informants in connection with their stories on wet conditions in Washington. The newspaper campaign turned the light on the lawless situation. Perhaps that angered the law. It wished to keep the truth hidden. And so when the writers refused to give the source of their information, which was of no consequence, the court, the grand jury and district attorney punished them instead of the law-breakers. That reveals a great deal as to the breakdown of legal machinery. It reflects the weakness and blindness of justice. So weep for that. Not for the jailed reporters."

A COLLEGE PREXY AT THIRTY

University of Chicago has just installed a new President, aged thirty and no 100ths years. It is a novelty in educational circles to have a Prexy who has hardly used up a dozen packages of safety razor blades in his life—it goes to show that Chicago offers a great opportunity to a young man. But of course in Chicago all ages are equal when the machine-gun bullets start to fly.

President Hutchins is the first man to leap from the college benches to President's swivel chair in so short a time. To be head man of a university at thirty means he's no older than some members of the football team. And maybe he isn't drawing any more pay.

But we like this idea of making young bucks the boss of the educational world. It means that if they are to withstand this sort of competition, President Lowell will come out in a raccoon coat and spats. President Angell of Yale will wear blue shirts with the collar to match and President Hibben will show up at a meeting of the Princeton overseers dressed in a yellow slicker with wise cracks and funny drawings inked on the back.

When the average age of a college senior is twenty-one and the Prexy is only thirty, it won't be so embarrassing to touch him for ten bucks till the showpiece check comes in.

We do not know what plans President Hutchins has in mind for the University of Chicago from now on. But if Prexy Hutchins acts his age, he will install a course in tap dancing, another in advanced ukelele playing and maybe Gin Mixing 31-11, with laboratory work.

It's been a long time since academic circles have been so staggered as they have by this appointment. President Hutchins, who is a Yale graduate, attended Prexy and rooms of publicity, but he is still 11,635 columns behind Albie Booth. However, if he keeps up his good work for the next three years, he may fatten his scrap book to be as big as Booth's, provided Albie breaks his leg in 1930, 1931 and 1932.

And now that a thirty-year-old President is a success at U. of C., there is no reason the overseers

Senator Moses does not say: "I used to be a newspaper man myself" nor accompany a bill on the back with an Allen or a Vandenberg bromide about still being "one of the boys." The fact remains that the sharpest tongue in Washington was wheeled on an editorial pen in the office of the Concord Evening Monitor up New Hampshire way, from 1802 until 1918, when he came down to Washington.

Alice White Stars In New Campus Picture Called "Hot Stuff"

Fraternity horse play, once carried to such extremes on campuses but now strictly censured and regulated, always delights an audience, either in a theatre or around a campus.

So it was a happy combination of ideas that led to the staging of a Greek letter initiation as a part of a gay party that helps make "Hot Stuff" a rollicking, fast moving picture. This First National Vitaphone feature, starring Alice White, opens at the Milano Theatre today.

Out of a vast store of ideas on fraternity customs, gathered from a series of visits to college campuses and from his personal recollections, Mervyn LeRoy has concocted one of the funniest "stunts" for initiation purposes that has ever been screened. The youthful director puts his little group of players through one of the most strenuous evenings of their lives. "Hot Stuff" gives Miss White an exceptional opportunity for her punny talents. She is the ideal comed, pretty, girly, saucy, slinky and good hearted but level headed. Opposite her is William Bakewell, a new comer among leading men but one who gives much promise.

Louise Fazenda, as Aunt Katie, the college spinster is apt to be a campus toast after the picture has been viewed by college audiences.

it's the blend—and the fragrant tobacco

Camels have always welcomed comparison with any other cigarette because the true test of value is the pleasure to be found in smoking.

The most important thing for smokers to know is that genuine cigarette quality must begin with the selection of tobaccos. Nothing can take the place of quality tobacco. Thus the extraordinary goodness of Camels begins with the choicest tobaccos grown and these are blended with expert skill to achieve the mildness and surpassing fragrance of this great cigarette. It is this genuineness of quality which smokers appreciate when they have passed the experimental stage and know real smoking pleasure.

Three friends, Noah, Aram, and Ham, a French girl, Marie, the American, Travis and Al; and a priest, meet on a Continental train. The three friends quarrel over the girl, but Travis and Al rescue her and escape to Paris. War is declared. Marie believes Travis is dead. She marries a man named Al. Three years later Marie, heartbroken, finds the priest and the three friends at a dropping station. An air raid... Marie is rescued... Marie, Japheth's betrothed, is taken to heaven a sacrifice to Noah. The prophesied flood descends, flooding Japheth.

A bolt of lightning crashed against the side of the Temple of Japheth. The wall burst open and the floods and rain pouring in, swirling about the idol of Sin. It seemed to rest, unperturbed, for a moment, and then suddenly it toppled sideways in the crash. The head splintered in the crash, the horns unloosed themselves, and Miriam, staring all her strength, pulled away from the bonds that held her and staggered through the torrent and out the door.

High and higher came the waters, lapping now at the windows of the second stories of houses. The people sought the rooftops, some hurrying with them their household gods, their boxes of jewels, watching fearfully the never ceasing rise of the encroaching water.

Within the palace Nephtali, with all his bravado, was trying to forget that without the storm he would have had built a Temple to his god against this very thing—had he had the flood to come that would wipe the wickedness from the earth.

Japheth climbed up, the world and cleanse it from the sin which he, the King, had first sown.

And then, even as they danced and whirled and put on their false faces of smiles and carefreeness, there came a little stream of water, seeping slowly into the marble floor like some gigantic snake. With shrieks of terror the dancers fled, knowing neither where to go nor in which direction to turn, looking only once at the water that crept about his feet, King Nephtali turned to his High Priest and his Chief Counsellor, and then is thought by common consent they backed up towards the roof and fled.

Leaping up the marble steps, Japheth and Elin after him, Nephtali made his way, coming suddenly on the high roof of the palace. With a quick gesture the King closed the trap door behind him, barring it so that others might not follow. With a kind of sigh of relief he turned to his companions.

"Well, at least we are safe here for the time being," he breathed, "but from his usual exertions. I scarcely think the flood will stop this high." Elin assured him, trying to restrain his own surprise.

"I beg not," Replem added. "But I hardly be shivered at the thought. Another streak of lightning showed him animals flitting about, seeking some sort of safety along the high city walls, or on the rooftops. People were thronging in to shrieking terror as wild beasts ran alongside them. But the beast themselves never grew turned about at the cry of fright, they only scrambled along, the plug in their claws or paws or with their heads as the water came to their throats.

With a sudden reminder the water receded.

FIRE CALLS

After answering five calls yesterday officials of the local fire department reported today that all of the alarms proved to have caused little damage except one in Goldborough where a negro house was completely destroyed by fire. The other calls were reported to have been at the Monroe Bridge, on two vacant lots, and the fourth in the Hill Lumber Company yards.

COTTON UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(INS)—Following the holiday lull, the cotton market was more brisk here today with prices up 2 to 5 points.
