NORA KANE
 (From Poetry)
 She was a Kane and the Kanes
 were white trash.
 Who lived in a cabin up Pleasant
 Run.
 They cleaned their fodder beam
 with groundhog, Borrowed their bread-stuff and stole for fun.

All of the Kanes had the Old
 Nick's temper.
 Their feet mashed to the fid

 And they could go to a patch of ground.
 Like their hound dogs followed a corn-fed coon.

Bad Sage was old when he married
 Nora.
 To brute and carry and do his

 And the Saggs called her a scheming
 hussy,
 But she ruled the Saggs and rule
 them still.

Her brown feet jiggled to the hymns they quavered,
 Her life blood swept through their torpid veins.

She signed her X in their family
 bible,
 And filled their cradles with swarthy Kanes.

A Memorable Occasion

The unveiling and formal dedication this afternoon of the marker commemorating the 100th anniversary of the founding of a small village on the shores of Lake Monroe, later to become Sanford, will be a momentous event in the annals of the Sallie Harrison Chapter of the D. A. R., which is presenting the marker to the City.

The Herald wishes to compliment the Chapter for its activity in securing and presenting the marker and for its many efforts in the past to keep alive the historical background of the city of Sanford and to re-impress upon us the obligation which we all owe to the hardy pioneers who made the city possible.

When there is ever a tendency to bemoan the woes of the present-day existence, it is well to recall the early days when our predecessors overcame the hardships and obstacles which were at that time much more difficult to hurdle. Because of the indomitable courage and character of our early pioneers we are able to enjoy the fruits of a much fuller life, and it is well that we have an organization existing today to honor those pioneers.

The Polish Policy

The way to get along with dictators is illustrated in part of course by German and Italian citizens who submit quietly to everything their rulers propose, no matter how obnoxious, but hardly to any less extent by Poland where exactly the opposite policy has been adopted. The Poles have made it abundantly clear that they will resist by force of arms any attempt on the part of Hitler to dominate them.

Five years ago the Berlin and Warsaw governments concluded what amounts to an armed truce, as both countries have territorial claims against each other, and both know that some day accounts will have to be settled. In the meantime they have agreed to ten years of peace, a peace which finds the Germans driving the Poles out of Poland, and the Poles driving the Germans out of Poland, and in every other way getting ready for the big day.

"The propaganda carried on by the German Republic before Hitler came to power impressed firmly in the minds of the Poles the dangers which might arise from the German population in Poland," says the New York Herald Tribune. "As a result, for five years the Germans in Poland have suffered as possible enemies of their Polish neighbors and the Polish state. When the Czechoslovakian crisis was at its height certain young Nazis among the Germans in Poland started wearing white socks. The local population in the various towns stopped that within twenty-four hours by beating the Nazis up. Then when the Nazi government rounded up Polish Jews in Germany, and started to ship them to Poland, the Polish government promptly began to round up Germans in Poland, and the measures in Germany ceased."

The results show that the Nazis, when answered in their own language, understand it much better than they do attempts to deal with them in the polite fashion adopted by the democratic powers of western Europe. The Poles have at least convinced the Germans that although they are not as strong as Germany, they are not less determined. They have made it plain that they will resist any effort to force them to give up former German territory and they are convinced that Hitler will not risk war in Europe that might become a general conflict."

 item of taxation. Under the ad valorem system, he said, those who regularly pay their taxes are penalized or forced to pay higher taxes because the other 80 percent of the property owners do not pay any taxes until they can settle the claims of the city, county and state against their property for a small figure when taxes become several years in arrears.

The Board went on record as emphatically opposing diversion of part of the race track monies into the school coffers and also the proposal of the Florida League of Municipalities seeking a reallocation of the gasoline tax monies giving the cities two cents of the tax on all of the fuel sold within corporate limits.

County Clerk O. P. Herndon and the Commissioners stated the County's tax levy would be increased enormously if these two sources of revenue from the county were diverted wholly or in part.

Rep. John G. Leonard and he planned to introduce a local bill into the Legislature which would give the County authority to provide its own liability insurance for all of its employees. This proposal was met with favor by the Commissioners as an economy move.

Another legislative proposal which brought about an interesting discussion was a statute which would require all school board elections and bond levy elections for schools to be held in connection with the general elections.

It was pointed out that encampments ballot boxes and polling places were maintained for the school election and that was a waste of storage space or equipment by school boards.

Oral statements will be heard, but for accuracy of record all important facts and arguments should be submitted in writing, as the records of the hearing will be required for examination.

 the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which promptly locked it up, refused to let Congressmen see it, and then persuaded the House to table the resolution which demanded the data.

Rep. Martin J. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) author of the resolution, immediately announced he would use every proper method to "tear a shroud of mystery" from Hull's communication to the committee.

He said he had been advised that Hull himself had asked that the document be kept secret.

Fish, ranking Republican member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, issued a statement criticizing the "administration's program of secret diplomacy." He said:

"The public is entitled to know what the administration has been doing to protect the interests of American landowners and other property rights in Mexico."

"Apparently there is a conspiracy of silence to cover up the inaction of the New Deal administration in permitting the Cardenio government of Mexico to confiscate American-owned property without adequate compensation."

He added that the good neighbor policy toward Mexico had collapsed and the "radical Mexican government" had been encouraged by the "failure of the administration to act firmly" to seize British and American oil properties and to barter oil with Germany.

1000 Ways to Say
"I LOVE YOU"

Sending a Valentine is an old custom which began simply... one just sent a little message of love or esteem. Then the Victorians got hold of it and there was a sharp rise in the lace paper and ribbon market.

But now, how that custom has expanded! The shops are filled with a bewildering array of lovely tokens, all designed to express that same old sentiment to someone on February 14th.

Of course you'd like to send "something different", but what? The more you walk around and look, the dizzier you get. Why not relax? Sit down and study the advertising pages of this newspaper. Here, you'll find the stores own versions of the most appropriate gifts, and he'll take care of any purse.

Could there be a more meaningful message of love than one of these? You can make it say just what you want it to say.

New Spanish Peace Terms Are Studied

Negrin Seeks Clemency For His Followers And Franco Promises No Reprisals

Central Spain To Continue Fighting

Russia Protests Japanese Provocations On Russian Border

Great Britain was reportedly today to have taken new peace terms from the Spanish government to the insurgents after the latter had landed forces on the Balearic Island of Minorca and had reached the French border in Catalonia.

The insurgents landing at Minorca occurred after the departure of the British cruiser Devonshire, which had been sent to the island to negotiate a surrender.

The new peace terms reported to have been offered by Dr. Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier now in France, centered mainly about clemency for his followers.

Insurgent quarters said Generalissimo Franco, while still demanding unconditional surrender, promised there would be no reprisals and that only those accused of crimes would be tried.

Despite peace reports, supporters of Negrin and Generalissimo Maja, government commander in Central Spain, said they were determined to continue fighting.

Meanwhile, Franco began withdrawing forces from conquered Catalonia to prepare for a final drive on the remaining fourths of Spain still held by the government.

Italy announced an intensification of war preparations as her answer to the British-French solidarity.

Soviet Russia instructed its chargé d'affaires in Tokyo to protest against "Japanese provocation" in continuing clashes on the Soviet-Manchukuo border.

The government announced last night in a semi-official statement that Italy was compelled to speed her preparations for war because of British Prime Minister Chamberlain's affirmation of the pooling of Anglo-French military strength.

The Informations Diplomatique made its announcement shortly after Premier Mussolini conferred with the Fascist supreme defense council for the third time in three days. It said that a "real and true Anglo-French military alliance" existed.

The announcement referred to Chamberlain's statement before the British house of commons Monday. He asserted that British armed strength would be at the disposal of France in event of war and that immediate British cooperation would be invoked if vital French interests were menaced.

Chamberlain's statement, regarded as a warning to Italy in relation to her revisionist demands against France, was followed by French Foreign Minister Bonnet's warning Tuesday night to Italy and Germany that France never would permit any foreign state to threaten Spain's integrity.

Last night's announcement through the semi-official Informations Diplomatique confirmed strongly to the tension over Mussolini's military role in the Spanish war and statements in the Italian press that Fascist troops would remain in Spain until a "political victory" as well as a military triumph was achieved by the Spanish rebels.

The Italian French Warships, much in demand recently, made their first appearance in the Bay of Biscay, and the Spanish port of Santander was reported to have been taken over by the Spanish rebels.

City's 102nd Anniversary Is Observed With Dinner

Hanna Speaks At Unveiling Of Memorial

Mrs. Ballard Presides At Program For Founders' Day

Declaring that Sanford is fortunate in having many persons who have contributed significantly to the history of Central Florida and the entire state, Prof. A. J. Hanna, president of the Florida Historical Society, delivered the principal address of the occasion.

"One of the greatest purposes of the D. A. R.," said Mrs. Brevard, "is to perpetuate the noble qualities of those who have gone before, as well as their memories."

Speaking on "The Deeper Meaning of Our Great Organization," she congratulated the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and heard Mrs. E. M. Brevard, state regent of the D. A. R., deliver the principal address of the occasion.

Mrs. Brevard was introduced by Mr. W. H. Ballard, regent of the local DAR chapter, unveiled the bronze tablet before a patrol of local Boy Scouts who acted as guard of honor. Mrs. W. B. Ballard, mistress of ceremony, on behalf of the Sallie Harrison Chapter, presented the marker to Mayor Edward Higgins.

Extending greetings from the Florida Historical Society, Dr. Hanna, professor of history at Rollins College in Winter Park, and author of "Flight into Oblivion," read some interesting excerpts from the diary of Dr. H. D. Kitchell, New England minister who arrived in Sanford in January of 1884 and spent several days at the old "Sanford House" of which he wrote with no little irony.

The visiting minister spoke of the settlement of Fort Mellon and of the Rev. M. Presby who was pastor of the Methodist Church at that time.

Prof. Hanna also read a telegram from Mrs. Sanford Dow, daughter of General Sanford for whom Sanford was named, expressing regrets that she was unable to attend the anniversary of the city which "My father called the 'gate city of Florida.'"

Following an introduction by Mrs. W. B. Ballard, regent of the chapter, Mrs. J. N. Whitner, one of the city's oldest and most beloved residents, for whom a beautiful magnolia tree was planted in the park a year ago, pulled the cord which revealed the marker to the eyes of the public for the first time.

The exercises were opened with a invocation by the Rev. J. B. Root. Mrs. Ballard presented the tablet to the city and Mayor Edward Higgins accepted it, concluding his remarks with the introduction of "the man who has done so much toward making Sanford a city beautiful," James Moughton, superintendent of city property.

Mrs. L. Woodruff, chairman of the Marker Committee of the chapter, was Mrs. Cary D. Landis, State corresponding secretary of the organization and Mrs. E. M. Brevard, State regent. The latter made the principal address at a dinner held in the Mayfair Hotel in the evening.

Professor A. J. Hanna, president of the State Historical Society, concluded the afternoon exercises by giving a message of greeting.

The high school band furnished the music.

Girl Charged With Breaking Beauty Law

Lillian M. Rigley of Jacksonville, inspector for the State Board of Education, yesterday served a warrant on Mrs. Beatrice Young, 16, George Street, the latter having violated the law requiring any person under 18 years of age to have a "political history" as well as a military record, was achieved by the Spanish rebels.

Midwest States Swept By New Wave Of Cold

Much Of Nation Is In Grip Of Storm Moving Eastward To Atlantic Seaboard

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A cold wave, brewed in the icy Mackenzie River basin of Canada, spread over the midwestern plains enroute from the Pacific northwest to the Atlantic seaboard.

Snow swept some of the mountain states and reached into the southwest. Highways were digitized closed in Arizona and some sections of the state reported the heaviest snow in 40 years.

Strong winds—whipped up big snowdrifts which closed Utah highways and marooned passengers of the derailed Denver and Rio Grande western train 80 miles south of Salt Lake City.

A snowslide down a canyon wall buried two houses at Bluffdale, Utah, and three bodies were believed buried where the slide killed a woman.

Continued cold prevailed in northern California, and even the southern part of the state where citrus is grown was shivering.

Williston, N. D., reported a below zero temperature.

Flood tension eased along the Ohio River from Louisville to the Mississippi as the stream reached its crest at Louisville and barely covered the waterfront and lowland areas.

The plight of flood sufferers in the eastern Kentucky mountains, where unprecedented high waters rolled over the tops of small houses near small streams, brought criticism of WPA from Representative May, Democrat, Kentucky, who said the WPA had refused to help them, and a denial from George H. Goodman, state administrator.

Goodman said the criticism was groundless and without foundation of fact.

May, in Washington, charged the WPA with "indefensible refusal to cooperate" in aiding the sufferers. He said he made every effort to induce WPA officials to cut their red tape so that relief could be given people whose homes have been swept by the flood.

Goodman replied that food and other commodities were furnished liberally in communities where the Red Cross had taken charge and an appropriation for a project set up for relief had been increased from $2000 to $30,000, and more funds would be available if needed.

The exercises were opened with an invocation by the Rev. J. B. Root. Mrs. Ballard presented the tablet to the city and Mayor Edward Higgins accepted it, concluding his remarks with the introduction of "the man who has done so much toward making Sanford a city beautiful," James Moughton, superintendent of city property.

Mrs. Lehman also commented the work of Superintendent of Parks James Moughton who, she said, has always been "grand help" to the work of the D. A. R.; and introduced Prof. and Mrs. W. B. Ballard, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and regent of the WPA with "indefensible refusal to cooperate" in aiding the sufferers. Court Denies Jarrell's Plea For Rehearing

Florida High Court Mandate Rules Alleged Cuba Baron Must Serve Term

Hand Doesn't Act On Commitment

Capital Call Received By Sheriff Asking Delay In Case

TALLAHASSEE, Feb. 9—(AP)—Governor Cone granted a six-day reprieve to Joseph W. Jarrell, sentenced to one year for violating the statute forbidding lotteries. The reprieve is effective immediately. No reason was announced.

The Florida Supreme Court yesterday handed down a mandate denying a rehearing of its unanimous decision on Jan. 3 affirming the lower court's conviction and one-year sentence of Joseph W. Jarrell for conducting a lottery in Seminole County.

Shortly after receiving the Supreme Court's mandate, Sheriff C. M. Hand was served a commitment directing him to arrest Jarrell and deliver him to the State prison at Raiford but the Sheriff said he had delayed action because of the telephone call he said he received from the Governor's office in Tallahassee late yesterday instructing him to delay action until he has received further instruction from the Governor.

Sheriff Hand said he expected the telephone call to be followed by a reprieve signed by Gov. Cone which would give Jarrell his freedom until his case could be given consideration by the State Pardon Board. He added that he would take no action in the case until he has received further instructions from the Governor's office.

Jarrell is said to be the cousin of the former Governor John Martin, and it was reported from reliable sources that political pressure is being brought to bear to secure a reprieve and ultimate pardon for Jarrell who was convicted and sentenced before Circuit Judge Millard B. Smith in December of 1937.

Jarrell was one of three indicted by the Seminole County Grand Jury at the Fall Term of the Circuit Court in 1937 for conducting a lottery. The other two, Stinson Kidlaw and Lewis Mitchell, will go on trial during this court session, according to Assistant State Attorney Lloyd F. Boyle who prosecuted the case, as well as presenting arguments before the Supreme Court after the conviction and sentence of the lower court was appealed.

Jarrell's indictment followed an intensive investigation by the 1937 jury during which hundreds of witnesses were called upon to testify. During the trial it was brought out that Jarrell had a large corps of sellers and that he received several thousand dollars weekly from the sale of lottery tickets known as "Cubans".

Jarrell was found guilty by the jury of all five counts as set out in the indictment against him without a lengthy deliberation.

Melbourne Rejects Proposal For City Electric Plant

MELBOURNE, Feb. 9—(AP)—The people of Melbourne rejected a proposal for a municipal electric light plant in an election Tuesday when freethinkers of the Progressive party carried the election.

The election was conducted on Feb. 2, 1937, between the city and a private company, the Melbourne Light and Power Company, which had been formed by a group of citizens who opposed the proposed plant.

The proposal was defeated by a vote of 4,436 to 3,141. The proposal would have cost approximately $250,000 per year.

In Melbourne circles it was regarded as almost certain that a meeting of all Italian bishops which the Pope was scheduled to address Saturday in observance of the 10th anniversary of the Lateran Accord between the Church and the Italian state would have to be cancelled. The Italian personnel gathered in the Pauline Chapel to pray for the Pope.

Pontiff Suffers New Attack Of Cardiac Asthma

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 9—(AP)—The Vatican News Service announced this evening that Pope Pius XI had suffered an attack of cardiac asthma and was unconscious for a half hour. The service gave no details but other sources familiar with the Pontiff's condition said an attack of influenza had developed into bronchial pneumonia.

In Vatican circles it was reported that the Pope had been admitted to the hospital early this morning with a severe attack of cardiac asthma. The Pontiff was in bed with a high fever and was receiving oxygen therapy.
