Volunteers needed

Seminole County Better Living for Seniors currently needs volunteers for both its Meals on Wheels and H.O.M.E. Programs. Individual, group, and corporate volunteers are encouraged to call. The Meals on Wheels Program provides a nourishing noon meal and a cold breakfast to elderly clients who are homebound and unable to cook for themselves. The H.O.M.E. Program provides minor home repairs, heavy chores, and painting for elderly clients unable to perform these tasks for themselves.

On the job training is provided, no high level skill is required. The reward is the knowledge that you have improved the quality of life for someone else. To volunteer, please call Seminole County Better Living For Seniors at 333-8677, ext. 120.

For information, call 647-1792.

Safe motorist tips

The National Safety Council reminds motorists that buckling up can save lives. The council estimates 469 people may die and 24,000 may be injured over the Fourth of July weekend. The council urges motorists to make sure children are properly fastened in their seats. Don't drink and drive. Use public transportation or a designated driver when appropriate. More than half of all fatal crashes last Fourth of July weekend involved alcohol. When taking long trips allow enough travel time for frequent breaks.

A building at Pine Shadow Apartments is littered with graffiti, raising the ire of one elected official.

Commissioner demands action or resignations

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

Sanford City Commissioner Kerry Lyons says he has waited long enough.

Now, he says, heads will roll. Lyons said he was inspired to run for office after seeing the lack of action on complaints at what was then known as the Franklin Arms Apartments behind Seminole High School on Lake Jenny.

"I used to watch drug deals occur and trash pile up without intervention," Lyons, who lives near the apartments, said. "Now that I have been on the city commission two and a half years, the problems continue to occur."

Today, the facility is known as the Pine Shadow Apartments. The name has changed, Lyons said, but the problems never changed.

On June 13, Lyons said, the state closed down the apartments for violations of state codes. It wasn't until last week, Lyons said, that anyone in the city was informed about the closure.

The commissioner called a press conference this morning to shed some light on the "non-developments" at the apartments.

"I have requested many times

Plan approved to fund workers' comp deficits

Special to the Herald

TALLAHASSEE--State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner Bill Nelson announced the execution of agreements aimed at solving PCA Property and Casualty Insurance Company's $160-million deficit at no cost to the Florida Insurance Guaranty Association fund and the public.

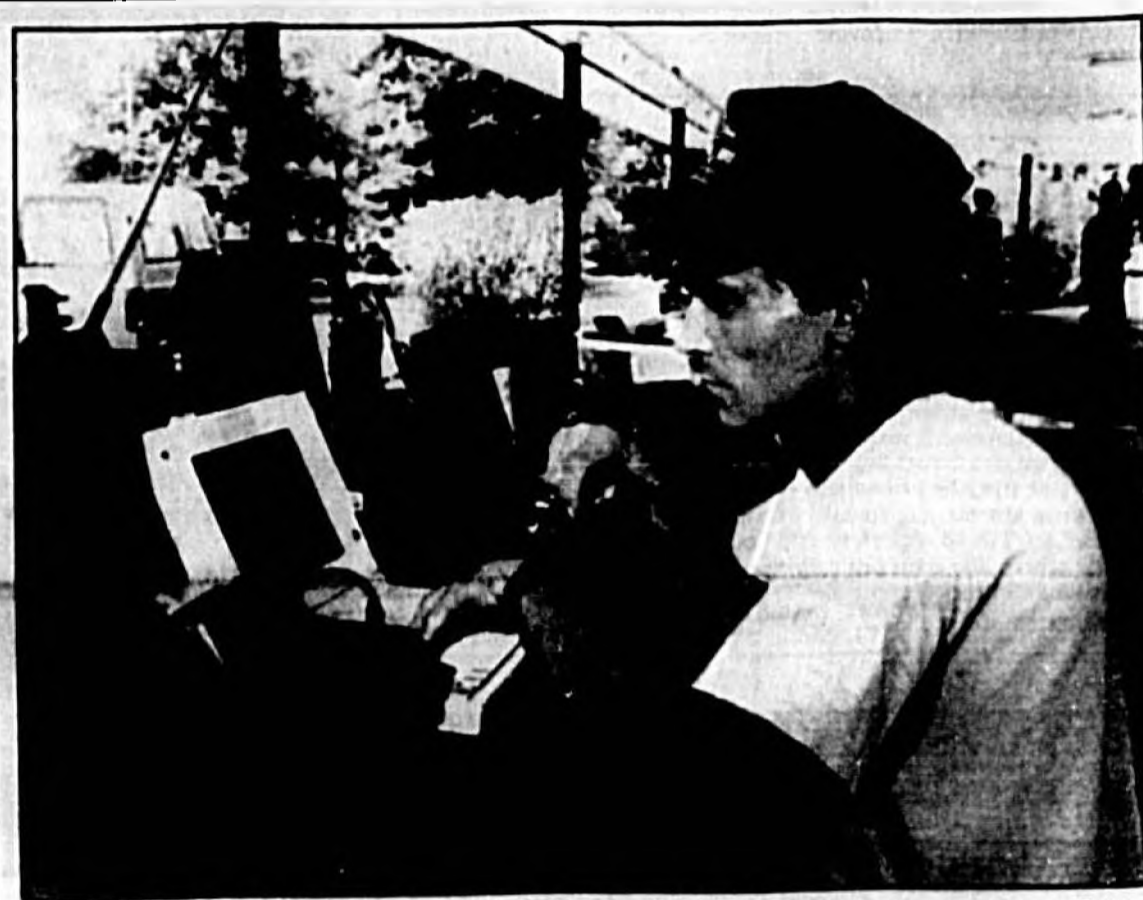

Nelson agreed to suspend a state takeover of the troubled workers' compensation subsidiary of Physician's Corporation of America, a Miami-based health insurer that now is being acquired by Humana Inc. The subsidiary, PCA Property and Casualty, based in Longwood, had faced a June 2 deadline for fixing its financial problems or being taken over by the Florida Department of Insurance (DOI).

"We made sure they met our deadline, and now these agreements should enable us to avoid huge losses to the guaranty fund," Nelson said. In agreeing to suspend proceedings in Leon County Circuit Court pending completion of Humana's acquisition and the related agreements, "Once finalized, these transactions will mean that the claims of thousands of injured workers will be paid and a $160-million disaster will not be hitting the pockets of Florida's consumers."

After learning last fall of mounting losses by PCA Property and Casualty, Nelson placed the workers' comp company under administrative supervision, and ordered it to stop selling or

African-American Male Summit focuses on role of black youth

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

Boys will be boys. The key is to make sure they grow up to be strong, responsible, confident men.

The organizers of the African-American Male Summit, held on Saturday at the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club, want to make sure that the young black men in the community have what it takes to make that transition when the time comes.

The all-day summit included a variety of workshops conducted by local leaders who could both impart their knowledge and serve as role models for the 104 boys in attendance. "We're trying to empower these youth," Don Miller, executive director of the Boys and Girls Club, said. "We want to expose them to a day filled with activities and learning with other African-American males. We want them to have a chance to make contact with strong role models and to get excited about life."

Though the program was geared toward African-American males, the group did include one young man who is white. Organizers said he had expressed an interest in learning more about what issues his African-American friends faced and said he was more than welcome to attend.

"We weren't going to turn any young man away," said G.C. Gilchrist, a spokesman for the Or-

See Youth, Page 5A

Participants in the African-American Male Summit had a chance to take part in a number of experiences including taking a look at what opportunities they might have in the military. Ahmad Myers, Lyndon Merble and Donnie Johnson joined their newly-found friends Sgt. Grimes, Sgt. Wilson, SPC Grimes and SSG Sachs in checking out a military vehicle.

Some tips to keep your pet safe and happy on this Independence Day

WASHINGTON, D.C. - While millions of Americans eagerly anticipate the displays of bright booming fireworks as the pinnacle of their Independence Day celebrations, the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) cautions that our pets do not share the same enjoyment.

Leslie Isom, HSUS associate for companion animal care, says "Animals become extremely frightened during fireworks displays, and in their fear they sometimes panic and act unpredictably."

According to HSUS, cats and dogs often become frightened and disoriented during July 4th festivities, and in their confusion, they may escape from the yard or house and get lost leaving pets in serious danger and owners heartbroken.

HSUS urges pet owners to recognize that animals do not enjoy this holiday's noisy spectacles and suggests that pet owners take a few precautions.

- Resist the urge to take your pet to the fireworks display.
- Do not leave your pet in the car. If you only hot air to breathe inside a car, your pet can suffer serious consequences, even death, in a few short minutes. Partially opened windows don't provide sufficient air but do provide an opportunity for your pet to be stolen.

- Keep your pets at home inside, in a sheltered quiet area. Leave a television or radio playing to keep him or her company while you are attending July 4th picnics and parades.
 - Never leave pets chained outside unattended. A frightened animal can become entangled and injured in the chain or even break the chain and flee.
 - Make sure your pets are wearing identification tags so that if they do become lost they can be promptly returned. Lost or abandoned animals should be taken to the local animal shelter; it provides the best chance for them to be reunited with their owners.
 - If you plan to go away for the three day Independence Day weekend, entrust the care and feeding of your pet to a responsible friend or ask your veterinarian to recommend a kennel.
- "If you follow these simple precautions, you and your pet can have a safe and happy July 4th," concludes Isom.

Fired up to party all month

ing ice cream, hot dogs, baked beans, blueberry pie while hanging out in parks recreating with our kids?

If you only have a week to celebrate, you might want to try this one on for size: it's National Canned Luncheon Meat Week.

Meanwhile, there are plenty of things to celebrate today and no other.

It's National Frozen Yogurt Day, National Postal Worker Day, National Financial Freedom Day, Freedom from Cancer Day and International Joke Day.

Is that enough celebrating for one day? You might just need a day off after all that, but you'd better wait until Friday before you try to relax.

One of my favorites among the celebrations is that there is Anti-Boredom Month.

Take the time this month for some introspective examination, the boredom inspector says. Being bored occasionally is OK, but if that goes on for an extended period of time, you might be headed for serious trouble.

If you kick off your afternoon with this column, though, you'll never get bored!

We can take you to Toronto, for example, where you can celebrate that nation's 35th anniversary of independence.

Or you can go back in time to celebrate the Battle of Gettysburg, which occurred on July 1, 1863.

Canadians are full of the celebratory fever today.

From the Friendship Festival in Fort Erie, Ontario, and Buffalo, NY (which highlights the cooperative efforts between the Niagara communities to the Canada Day to Party in the Park in Hamilton, Ontario) which is just an excuse to go outdoors for crafts and music festivals, as well as fireworks displays, our neighbors to the north are having some fun today.

Among their other events is Big A Cowboy Day today. They just wanted an annual event for the people to show their appreciation for cowboy contributions to rodeos, country music, western dancing, cowboy movies and, of course, white hatted horses.

If you intend to mail off a card to your favorite cowboy for anyone else, for that matter, don't forget this is the fourth anniversary of postage stamps backed with adhesive before that, you had to glue those little fellows on. And now with the self-adhering stamps, you don't have to taste that sticky glue any more.

If you've made it this far and are still looking for something to which to lift your glass, here are some celebrity birthdays.

Actor Dan Aykroyd is 55, actress Faye Dunaway is 59, film critic Pauline Kael is 60, actor James Earl Ray is 61, actress Jane Fonda is 60, actress Cyndi Lauper is 38, Olympic gold medalist and rower is 49, and a former photographer, Twyla Tharp is 50.

Brassed Off: fine film makes a statement

David Frazier
Screen Tests

Brassed Off (R) - What a wonderful little film. It is a comedy-drama in the vein of the social conscience movie. Its fictional story is reflective of those real-life dramas in communities throughout portions of England, Wales, and Scotland where the coal industry is the generator that keeps the small towns, like the fictional one in Brassed Off, running.

Written and directed by Yorkshireman Mark Herman, Brassed Off is about the town of Grimley, which relies on the local coal mine for its stability. At the core of this colliery is the brass band, a tradition in Grimley. Assembled from most of the miners in town, the all male band takes on a new addition in a befitting less that manner because of her job. She picks up where her father left off and takes her inheritance in the band. The guys are not opposed to her admission into the band until they learn who she works for. She works for the British Coal Board that gives a review as to whether an existing mine is essential for production continuation.

Pete Postlethwaite stars as the devoted band leader Danny. Danny gets up one day and ready for practice or competition. People find him most peculiar because he seems to think more of the band than the possible colliery closure. However, I think Danny realizes, as we do, that the band is the beam that supports Grimley. Without it, things may be worse. It is a way for the miners to keep their sanity. Aside from worrying about potential dissension among band members due to the closure, Danny must fight a debilitating illness contracted from years in the mines.

Danny's son Phil (Stephen

Tompkinson) wants to please his father by sticking with the band. Yet staying with the band may cause more harm than good as Phil's wife becomes more and more frustrated taking care of three kids while Phil is out blowing his horn or working in the mines. Then there is Andy (Ewan McGregor) and his childhood sweetheart Gloria (Tara Fitzgerald), both band members, trying to rekindle the old flame despite Gloria's career path.

Brassed Off is another film about the triumph of the human spirit. The Tories - a name for the right wing conservative party that Margaret Thatcher belongs to - can take away the business, but they cannot take away the pride of the townsfolk. The film is more statement but also unrushed humor and human drama. It is a great marriage.

Postlethwaite continues to impress me. He received an Academy Award nomination for In the Name of the Father. He has also done exemplary work in The Usual Suspects, James Sanford resident Minnie Kane continues to invest in her community in loving memory of her late husband, John. Together the couple over the past 18 years until John's death, participated in many community activities, such as the Chamber of Commerce, Golden Age Games, Knights of Columbus and RSVP. Kane recently donated a check to the United Chambers Scholarship Foundation, Inc. founded Dec. 7, 1992, to aid local students in need of funds to further their education. Bob Douglas, first vice president and manager of SunTrust Sanford and Downtown Sanford market, also the founder and first president of the scholarship foundation, accepted the check from Kane.

Multi-county drug ring busted

Special to the Herald

Charles R. Wilson, United States Attorney for the Middle District of Florida, announced this past week that a multi-county drug ring involving approximately 2000 people of marijuana and cocaine, was broken up. Wilson said that the ring was operating in 12 counties with approximately 2000 people involved. Wilson said that the ring was operating in 12 counties with approximately 2000 people involved. Wilson said that the ring was operating in 12 counties with approximately 2000 people involved.

The present indictment is the second round of arrests being conducted in the Juan Miguel Diaz drug trafficking organization with operations out of Volusia County. On April 18, 1997, after a three week federal jury trial in Orlando, Juan Miguel Diaz, age 28, of Deltona, Geoffrey Ridgeway, age 22, and Daniel Wert, age 24, all of De-

Land, and Javier Becerra, age 21, of McAllen, Texas, were convicted of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute approximately 20,000 pounds of marijuana and over 200 kilograms of cocaine. These defendants face sentencing on July 21, 1997 by the Honorable Judge Thomas C. Lewis. As a result of the evidence submitted at that time, Judge Ridgeway will face the potential of mandatory life imprisonment.

This case was investigated by agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration, United States Customs Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. Judge Lewis said that the case is a significant one in the fight against drug trafficking.

What's in a name?

When it comes to image, progress toward changing one is often slow.

One of the latest issues of the National Football League trading cards features Sanford's own star, Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Jeff Blake, superimposed on a map of Florida with his hometown highlighted. Only his hometown is mistakenly listed as Sanford. Spokeswoman for Playoff Trading Cards, Robin Comero, apologized profusely to the city, and said it was just human error. "It just sounds like it should be Stanford, like the college," she said.

A current sale promotion is being advertised for the Florida Mall in south Orlando and the Seminole Towne Center in north Orlando, not Sanford.

Advertising for the upscale Lake Forest development, in Sanford, bills the posh homes as being in northern Seminole County, with nary a mention of where they really are.

Customer mailouts from Dillard's department store, for Chanel makeup promotions, list all the Florida locations for Dillard's. The first brochure, received soon after the Seminole Towne Center mall location opened, listed it as being in Sanford. Six months later, during another Chanel promotion, the location still read Sanford.

We doubt Henry Sanford would approve of adding the T to Sanford to comply with name recognition we apparently are already receiving. We don't suggest that either.

With all the positive changes currently being made all over town, we hope our town's pride will continue to shine through. Defend your town and its historic name. Maybe we sound like Stanford to those who don't know about us. But someday, if the positive momentum continues, that school, and that city may even contemplate dropping the T.

All in all, Newt's a decent hitter

Newt Gingrich gets a lot of grief for his wacky ideas, but a study of his stats shows that he's a .300 hitter. Considering the league he plays in, that's a pretty respectable average.

Everyone would score his hits differently, of course, but my guess is that even his severest critics would credit him for three out of 10. I recently jotted down 13 of Newt's ideas, for example, and found myself in admiration of four of them.

The ones that I thought were ludicrous included the space trilogy; the idea that space tourism will be a growth industry for the United States; that the handicapped should be shot into space; that space will be the Niagara Falls of the future for newlyweds. (Wedding nights can be awkward right here on earth. Imagine the scene in a weightless environment.)

Nor am I enamored of the concept of laptop computer tax credits for the poor; or resurrecting orphanages; or converting America into an international mall for organ transplants; or building a real Jurassic Park and bringing back extinct species.

Holding out beach volleyball as a measure of our freedom strikes me as a stretch. And portraying the curtailment of free ice to Congress as a symbol of GOP thrift seems absurd.

Even his severest critics would credit him for three out of 10.

But consider these Newt Notions:

-- Periodic "Correction Days," during which Congress would review "self-evidently stupid," "profoundly dumb" and "silly" government regulations and vote them out of existence.

-- The donation of free time by the TV networks for anti-drug commercials. "When the networks can give $600,000 a show to three ('Seinfeld') stars, each in the same half hour," said Newt in a speech, "the networks can give every single ad we need to communicate with our kids, and they ought to do it as citizens because Americans have been pretty darn good to the networks."

-- Privatization of the National Endowment for the Arts.

"If the people who come to lobby us (for arts funding) who are famous and rich would simply dedicate 1 percent of their gross income to an 'American Endowment for the Arts,'" Newt told a press conference in April, "they would fund a bigger system than the National Endowment for the Arts." He pointed to the $90 million that the Walt Disney Co. paid to departed president Michael Ovitz and added: "If Disney would simply donate as much to the endowment as Disney pays one executive who is leaving the company, you could finance the whole thing."

The NEA is currently funded at $99.5 million a year, so it would take a trust fund of about $1 billion to generate that much annual income, and that is a lot of moo-lah to raise privately. Nonetheless, Newt's idea is a good one. See Spear, Page 5A

And when it comes to matters of sex in this country, nothing is ever that simple.

Birth control: What's so complicated?

It should be a no-brainer. Birth control reduces the rate of unwanted pregnancy and abortion. Therefore, birth control should be widely available and easy to obtain. It should be as inexpensive as possible and drug companies should be encouraged to develop safer and more reliable methods.

But, alas, this is America. And when it comes to matters of sex in this country, nothing is ever that simple. For all the obnoxious we do about sex, we actually get very nervous when it comes to helping people take control of their sexuality. The United States reports the highest rate of unwanted pregnancy in the Western industrialized world; it also has the highest abortion rate.

What do countries such as Canada, France and Sweden know that we don't? Well, it's pretty simple really. They know that birth control works. But for some reason, this is a fact that we just don't want to accept here.

Consider the way our health insurance companies deal with this issue. Most traditional insurance plans don't cover reversible methods of birth control. Health Maintenance Organizations have done a better job in this score, but when it comes to indemnity insurance plans, only 33 percent cover oral contraceptives and only 15 percent cover all five available forms of prescription reversible birth control -- the pill, the diaphragm, Depo-Provera, Norplant and IUDs. Contrast that with 86 percent that cover sterilization and 66 percent that cover abortion.

I feel silly explaining why this is a bad idea. First, there is the economic costs of surgical sterilization, abortion or bringing an unwanted pregnancy to term. Second, there is the emotional cost.

Sterilization, for example, is currently the most popular form of birth control in the United States, and certainly for many women it's a desirable choice. But according to Dr. Felicia Stewart, director of reproductive services for the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation, it frequently leads to devastating results for people who divorce and subsequently wish to start new families. "One of the saddest things is that we have a fairly substantial amount of regret," says Stewart. "But as a clinician we do not want to be in the position to say we will not do this because you haven't had enough children."

The short-sightedness of private health insurers can also be found in the federal government, which has reduced funding for the National Family Planning Program (Title X) by 72 percent since 1980. Couple that with the fact that 30 percent of poor Americans have neither health insurance nor Medicaid coverage, and it should come as no surprise that half of the unintended pregnancies in this country occur because no form of birth control was used.

Then there is our national queasiness about sex education. Once again, the United States has the highest rate of teen pregnancy and abortion in the Western industrialized world, but it's not because our kids are more sexually active. Indeed the rate of teen sexual activity here is about the same as comparable nations. The difference is that American teens have lower rates of birth control use.

Finally, there are the anti-abortion activists, who have succeeded in making not just abortion but all forms of family planning a hot-button issue. The confusion See Eckel, Page 5A

Notice Shabazz for her triumphs

WASHINGTON--The grainy black-and-white photo--bought and framed years ago for my family room--shows three adults sitting with three little girls, all in conservative '60s dress.

Only the two men, smiling broadly, seem relaxed. The toddler perched on the younger man's lap looks distracted; her sisters--who look about 8 and 4--wear identical outfits but seem quite different. The elder grins gamely, the younger glances away, her eyes wary.

And on the end, nearly out of sight, sits a woman. Eyes downcast, she looks as if the last thing she wants is to be noticed.

The whole world noticed when she died last week. Millions were stunned that Betty Shabazz, 61, had stopped breathing, struggling, surviving three weeks after being burned in a fire allegedly set by her grandson, named after her husband seated beside her in the picture, Malcolm X.

Ironically, I heard the announcement of Shabazz's death at George Washington University, while awaiting the appearance of the best known person in the photo--Muhammad Ali. Many in the audience gasped.

Since Shabazz had survived three weeks, we assumed she'd make it.

Ali--despite the Parkinson's disease that has turned his shout into a whisper--has made it, or has at least docked in an embracing harbor. "When We Were Kings," the awesome Oscar-winning 1986 documentary about his great comeback fight, the "Rumble in the Jungle," debuts on video this week. Touring to promote his new book, "Healing," a slim volume of inspiring quotations about tolerance co-edited by Thomas Hauser, Ali basks in the love of a charming wife and strangers whose adoration borders on the religious.

So many ironies in one photo. Who would have thought that three decades after being vilified as traitors by many Americans, Ali and Malcolm would be admired by millions? That thousands of fans, many of them white, would turn out to speak tearfully of Ali's "courage" and "inspiration"?

Could anyone have guessed that the picture's shy matriarch, cruelly widowed, would raise six children alone, earn three degrees and lecture on civil rights? Or that one day, her grandson--the child of the photo's wary-eyed girl--would be charged in her death?

It is all so deep.

So is the ocean of love that buoys Ali. In "Healing" he writes, "I wish people would love everybody the way they love me." At the program I attended, sponsored by the Smithsonian Associates, you could see why.

One audience member gushed that he'd driven "80 miles per hour from New Jersey" to say that he came to America 23 years ago "with the dream of meeting Muhammad Ali." A graying brother fondly recalled boxing against him in Golden Gloves matches--to which Ali responded. "That was you?" A dreadlocked chef offered to fix him special meals.

Eyes downcast, she looks as if the last thing she wants is to be noticed.

Then a blond guy, 19, took the mike. "I didn't fight you, didn't break the speed limit and I can't cook," he began. "All that's left is to say thanks. To me, you're a hero, as you were to my father."

When someone asked Ali, "Who's your hero?" the champ answered in his quiet rasp: "Malcolm X."

He's one of mine, too. When I bought the photo, I admired the reticent woman in the corner--but far less than I admired her husband. It bothers me that I didn't know the breath of Shabazz's courage until she was near death.

When her beloved husband was slain, Betty Shabazz, 28, had been married just seven years. She spent more than four times that long as Malcolm's widow--reminding the girls she raised alone of their daddy's ideals, furthering her education and overcoming her shyness to speak out for kids in need. Like many women, she never stopped giving--not to the world, not to the troubled daughter who witnessed her father's slaughter, nor the grandson whom police say killed her.

We sometimes forget how often women, by the gift of their time, love and sometimes dreams, help make men heroes. We overlook how often women who bury their men, as too many black women do, become heroes. And at what cost.

I keep remembering the Rev. Joseph E. Lowery's comment about Shabazz: "She dies as she lived, struggling." Somehow, it felt like a slap, reminding me of too many black women's existences. A life should be appreciated for more than its struggles.

So many ironies. Malcolm's senseless death three decades ago showed us how far in the struggle we had to go: Betty's tragically reminded us, Ali's love-steeped life shows how far we've come, though he still struggles to help others transcend their prejudices.

I wish Shabazz had died peacefully, deep in old age, after so many battles. That the shy soul all but hidden in my photo could have been noticed more for her triumphs than her tragedies.

lando-based African-American Male Summit organization. "We think it helps promote more understanding," Michael Mobley, director of Seminole HOPE, was among the speakers at the event. He talked to the young men about education, wisdom and knowledge.

Calling on them to stay in school and to get excited about the things knowledge could bring, Mobley had the young men cheering about going to school before he was done with them.

Talk show host Willie Clark wanted the young men to know their roots so they could plan for where they were going. They had to have a mission in life before they could head toward a goal, he told them.

Other speakers included Ed Wallace, who talked to them about relationships, and Byron Brooks of the mayor's office in Orlando, who talked to them about physical confidence and health.

The program wasn't all work and no play, however.

The young men were given both breakfast and lunch and had a three-on-three basketball tournament and a free throw competition, all sponsored by the African-American Male Summit organization and Orange County.

Gilchrist said he sought some support from Seminole County, but got a response only from county commission chairman Randy Morris who did offer his support.

"Maybe next time," Gilchrist said.

The group is planning an African-American Female Summit at the Boys and Girls Club in the fall. They hope to make both events annual occurrences.

through our code enforcement and police department to enforce our codes and laws at this site," he said. "Minimal action has been taken."

He said he received a call from a constituent who had called the police regarding a burglary and a graffiti incident in progress.

According to the police dispatch, the call was received at 5:57 p.m. and it took officers 16 minutes to respond.

"It's ridiculous," Lyons said. He said he was aware there was a shift change occurring at the time of the call, but he found it difficult to believe that "10-20 officers were too busy to respond."

Lyons has asked for the police department to provide him with information about who was on duty at the time of the call and about what urgent calls were being handled at that same time.

He added that he has been unable to get cooperation from the staff at City Hall regarding finding a name and a telephone number of the owner of the property.

Prior to the most recent incident, Lyons said, he asked the city manager (Bill Simmons) to give him information about the status of city action regarding the apartments. After several days, Lyons said, Simmons had no information.

Lyons said he has tried to work within the traditional bounds of government, but must now take extreme measures.

"While it is difficult for me to do, as I have a working relationship and confide personally with (them) at times, I was elected to stand up and represent the citizens of our city," Lyons said. "To that end, I am suggesting that our city manager, Bill Simmons; chief of police Joe Dillard; police commander Bill Hasson and Charles Rowe of Code Enforcement, consider resigning their office due to gross negligence of the public health, safety and welfare of the women, children and men of both the Pine Shadow Apartments and the surrounding community."

Rowe said the city is doing all it can, along with the state, to solve the problems.

"We're doing all due process allows," he noted. "We're doing everything we can."

According to Rowe, the code enforcement board will address the issue again on July 6.

Officials have already cut off power and water to the apartments and have sent public works employees out to remove abandoned refrigerators from the property which might create a health hazard to children in the area.

According to Mayor Larry Dale, 24 hour police security has been posted on the property to ensure the safety of those who remain there and those in the community who might venture on to the property.

"We've done about all we can do," Dale said. "Because we operate in the sunshine and Kerry has not brought this up in a meeting, I don't know, specifically, what his big hang ups are."

Dale said that Lyons did not represent the city or the commission as a whole in his actions.

Dillard was in a meeting this morning, but his office said he would not be able to comment until he had heard from Lyons himself.

Simmons and Hasson were not available for comment this morning.

with the abortion debate has had a very significant impact on contraception development in the United States," says Rod Mackenzie, who has held executive positions at Johnson & Johnson and the Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. "The pharmaceutical companies that develop new methods of birth control have received nothing but criticism."

The result is that there has been almost no attempt on the part of American drug manufacturers to develop safer or more effective methods of birth control. "You can spend the same amount of money and invent Prozac," says Mackenzie, referring to the extremely profitable anti-depressant.

This cannot go on. The strange form of Puritanism practiced in this country is leading to devastating results. The fact is that the rate of unwanted pregnancy can be dramatically improved. All it takes is a reality check -- that is, an admission that sex happens, and often for reasons other than procreation. As Dr. Stewart says, "If other countries can get these results, why can't we?"

one. Given its controversial nature, publicly supported art will always be subject to censorship as long as mealy-mouthed politicians are writing the checks. The arts should be privately funded, and it is about time the snooty crowd in Los Angeles and New York put a portion of their fat fees where their loud mouths now are.

... Pay down the national debt. The deficit is steadily declining, but the government still borrows billions every year. Each annual shortfall gets piled onto the cumulative national debt, which now stands at about 65.3 trillion and costs the taxpayers nearly $1 billion a day in interest payments. Newt's idea is to get the budget in balance and keep going, using surpluses to pay down the debt. If the government spends 1 percent less each year than it takes in, he figures, the debt would be paid off by the year 2020, and we could begin to build up a "rainy day fund." Such a scenario is impossible to imagine, given the powerful interest groups -- from tax cutters to the defense industry to educators to welfare advocates -- that would go berserk if they saw money going into a national savings account.

Still, I give Newt credit for his vision. Indeed, I would go so far as to say he hit a home run with the rainy day fund.

Education is a way of life

By CARTER GILMARTIN
Herald Correspondent

Ron Nathan is truly a son of Goldboro. Born in Sanford 47 years ago, he attended Goldboro Elementary grades one through six. He taught at Goldboro Elementary for 14 years. Now, he is principal at Goldboro. Student, teacher, administrator -- Goldboro has shaped Nathan's life both personally and professionally since the age of six.

Born to Ruthie and Herman Nathan in Sanford, Nathan has lived here most of his life. Here he learned to love and perform music. It was music that led him away from Sanford, first to Tallahassee, where he majored in music at Florida A & M University. He received a bachelor of science in Music with Education certification in 1970. One year later he received a master's in Music Theory and Composition at Indiana State University in Terra Haute.

From there, he returned home as Seminole Community College's first band director. But Nathan was of an age in the early 1970's when going to Vietnam was always a possibility.

He joined the United States Navy in 1972 and saw the world as a conductor, arranger, teacher and performer of music.

Although he traveled to Africa, Iceland and Europe, it is nearby Bermuda he now names as his favorite place away from home.

Nathan names the favorite period of his life as "life in the church". He is now a trustee, deacon and Sunday School teacher, minister of music, youth leader and Dean of the Bible Institute at Tabernacle of Prayer, located on West 13th Street -- in Goldboro.

He grew up in a family that attended church at First Shiloh in Sanford. He joined Tabernacle of Prayer on his own in 1978 and feels God led him there.

The wall of his office has a poem written by his pastor, Carrie Bute Bryant. Nathan says she is his hero. "She is my pastor, my teacher, my hero." Why? Because she's led him closer to God and to a fuller understanding of God's purpose in Nathan's life. "I value the word of God above everything in my life. All of my confidence is in my faith in God."

Pastor Bryant's sermons are based on God's teachings, according to Nathan. "I believe I was sent there to hear her. When situations are too tough for me, I go to my pastor."

Being the boss at a school one attended as a child, in a town where one grew up, has its rewards and its challenges. The rewards are obvious, including having those who inspired you also see your success.

The best teacher he had as a child was at Goldboro. "Ms. Eddick Walden gave me a chance to realize I had potential and that I was capable of doing something." She was his second grade teacher. "She saw something in me I didn't see. As a child at that time I was pretty rebellious." Ms. Walden used participation in a school talent show as a reward for Nathan's conformity. "When I finished my work, I could work on the talent show." He made sure he finished his work.

That pattern of setting goals and doing the work necessary to gain them appears to have stayed with him. The challenges, too, are obvious to anyone who has lived in Sanford this past year as Goldboro has experienced the facility and staff changes necessary to open as a magnet school in math, science and technology in the 1998-99 school year.

Students, co-workers and friends know of Nathan's music and leadership skills. He plays all woodwind instruments, piano and also sings.

His love of tennis is as well known. Tennis great Pete Sampras is another of his heroes. Tennis is Nathan's primary hobby. He recently won his second trophy competing in Orlando, a fact revealed not by Nathan, but by his wife Ingrid.

Ingrid and Ron Nathan have been sweethearts since high school at Crooms Academy. She teaches at Lake Mary High School. They have four children, Jaamin and Asia, 7 and 10 respectively. They have always attended school wherever Nathan worked--Hamilton, Red Bug, Goldboro, Ayana studies engineering at the University of Florida. Eldred Merricks studies business at UCF.

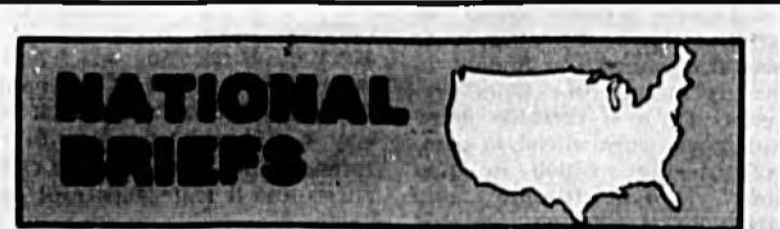

Family values remain constant though finances and circumstances may change from one generation to the next. Nathan grew up in poverty. He relates "there was never an excess of anything we had." To this day, he is not wasteful, though his family is no longer poor.

"I had a mother who imbedded education in us. I was not allowed to make below a 'C'. College was her goal for me."

Education for Nathan's family is not just a goal anymore, but now it is a way of life.

Education commission appointments

TALLAHASSEE--Governor Lawton Chiles has announced he is appointing Panama City businessman Joe Chapman and Department of Management Services Secretary Bill Lindner to serve on the Governor's Education Commission.

"Each of these individuals brings to the table a deep knowledge of the great challenges Florida faces in the future," Governor Chiles said. "They will help the outstanding members of our education commission develop a comprehensive strategy to address the greatest issues facing our schools."

Governor Chiles, who serves with Dr. Jack Critchfield as co-chair of the Commission, established the 88-member blue-ribbon public/private task force last September. The new members are:

* Joe Chapman, 58, of Panama City, chairman and CEO of Peoples First Properties, Inc. and chairman of the Child Care Executive Partnership.

* Bill Lindner, 47, of Tallahassee, Secretary, Florida Department of Management Services.

The Commission is conducting the first wholesale review of Florida's public schools--from pre-kindergarten through college--in more than 20 years. The panel is studying every issue impacting education in Florida including school crowding, student performance, classroom discipline and education funding. The Commission will make recommendations to the Legislature and to the Constitution Revision Commission.

For kids on the go

HOUSTON--For kids on the go, do not forget the H2O this summer.

"Kids can become dehydrated very quickly in the sweltering heat," said Dr. Robert Shulman at the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center in Houston. "The best thing to do is to fill kids up with plenty of water before they go outside."

In addition to water, sports drinks and fruit juices are also good to give children. It is best to stay away from drinks that contain high levels of caffeine. Caffeine is known to increase the flow of urine, so instead of replenishing the body, it can contribute to dehydration.

"Dehydration can cause a child to become dizzy or drowsy, develop headaches and a dry mouth, and in severe cases become unconscious," said Shulman, a professor of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine and director of the nutritional support team at Texas Children's Hospital. "In infants, symptoms would include decreased urination, and sunken eyes. Parents should be concerned if the baby's diaper is consistently dry."

Infants should never be exposed to the sun for long periods of time, and never placed in direct sunlight. Always dress them in light colored clothing and put a hat on their head, even when going outside for a short time. A light blanket can also protect their arms and legs. They tend to become dehydrated quicker than older kids because they sometimes have trouble communicating when they are thirsty.

Many times older kids are so pre-occupied with what they are doing outside that they will play to the point of heat exhaustion. The amount of liquid children need depends on the heat, degree of activity, and how long they play outside.

"Parents need to step in and make sure children have plenty to drink before and during play time," said Shulman. "The extra effort will make it a safer summer for active children."

But now everyone stands way off the plate and dives in at the ball. The best pitch a pitcher can throw is inside and try to saw off the bat in the batter's hands. But now if you throw inside the batter is ready to come after the pitcher even if he doesn't get hit. I have seen pitches that an umpire could have called a strike if he had wanted too (in the replay the ball looked over the corner) and the batter falls down, gets up, and either stares down or yells at the pitcher. It is absolutely ridiculous and the umpires should do something about.

Maybe warn or throw the batter out?

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Hunter safety should be a top priority, as statistics on hunting accidents reveal that the majority of fatalities occur when a hunter fires at an unknown target.

FISHING FORECAST

Base action is dead slow due to the summer heat. Early in the morning, late in the afternoon, or at night is your best bet. The Ponce Lake are in a top spot due to low water levels. Bream and catfish are biting in deep holes and bends in the river.

Catch and release snook fishing is alive and well at Sebastian Inlet with fish in the 8-15 pound range. Large live shrimp and one-ounce jigs are sure bets for snook action. Also expect a few flounder, redfish, jack crevalle and ladyfish. Snook and tarpon are also active back in the Sebastian River.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that offshore action is hot. Fish are in close, and Shupe and his party caught 5 nice dolphin, 5 king mackerel, and a 40 pound cobia last Sunday on Pelican Flats. Good fish are also on EA Reef. The water is superclean, and many anglers are making the mistake of going too far offshore and leaving the fish behind. It has been a banner year for tripletail in the buoy line, with some fish topping the 30 pound mark. Flounder and sheepshead are biting inside the Port. Trout and redfish are rated as good on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

Sheepshead are still the main attraction at Ponce Inlet. Live shrimp or fiddler crabs are hard to beat for these toothy bait-stealers. Small bluefish, drum, redfish, and jack crevalle round out the action. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

Pair stay busy giving back to the community

By BONNIE WILSON
News Staff Writer

SANFORD - Robert Jamin and his wife of 28 years, Nancy, give back to the community in so many ways. Their tireless efforts have assisted many people and animals.

Jamin attributes his involvement mostly to his wife. "She's the backbone of my work. I'm just the front guy. She's the motivator. She does everything for me."

He is part of ABATE of Florida Inc., Seminole County Chapter (American Blindes Aiming Toward Education).

"I've been the events coordinator on and off for past eight years," he said. "Right now I'm the district state representative for ABATE. We have monthly meetings and do a tremendous amount of community projects."

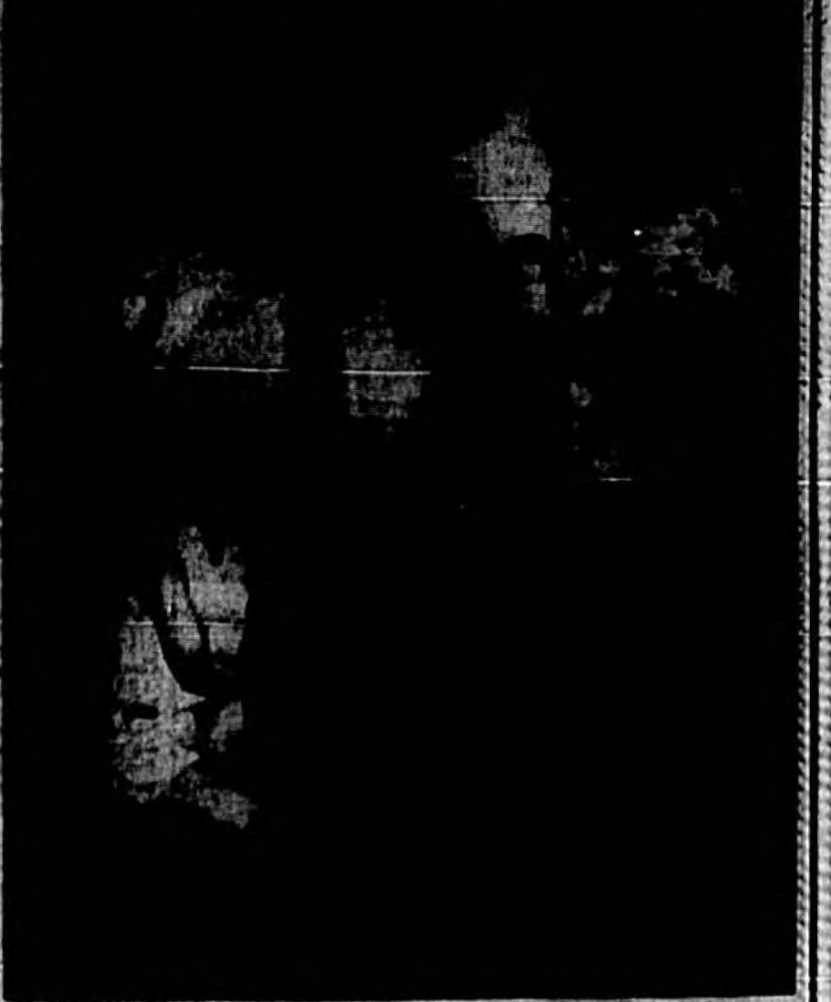

Jamin shared that ABATE was part of the John Croghan Run, and set up a subway fund in the name of Sheryl Parr, while also helping with the Marty Barber Run. In addition the group have an Adapt-A-Road program that cleans a strip of road from the hospital to the overpass on 17th in front of the Lake Monroe Inn.

He also shared, "We have supported the Seminole County Mental Health Center for about eight or nine years now. We give about 250 lbs of food and about 15 lbs of toys to help others. We also give the lot over back to the Children's Rights Organization."

Another true love of Jamin's is the Seminole County Humane Society. "I've owned just about every dog and cat I can imagine, and I'm proud to say my property is now much needed funds. The 2nd Annual Run for the Cross is set for Sunday, July 26.

"All proceeds will benefit the Seminole County Humane Society," he said. "We desperately need more sponsors and volunteers to help. The run will begin at the Humane Society at 8 a.m. At about 11 a.m. or 12 noon we will serve food and have entertainment at Jamin's home, 1168 Sheryl in Sanford. We'll have Sheryl, hot, chicken, drinks, and live live bands of entertainment and side dishes like baked beans, potato salad, macaroni salad, and bread."

Jamin continued by saying, "I truly believe that throughout our lives, whether you're wealthy or not, you've got to give something back to the community. I just enjoy doing it. I get a real kick out of helping. When you help somebody you get a lot of joy out of it. The politicians don't help. If we as citizens don't take up a cause and help, we won't survive. We need to be involved. I'd like to see people get more involved in helping others even if it is in just a small way. There are millions of things we can do."

Bahia widely used turfgrass in area

Bahia is a popular choice for turfgrass in our area, second only to St. Augustine. Although Bahia is considered less attractive than St. Augustine, it requires less maintenance than St. Augustine and does not require much irrigation. Bahia is a widely used low maintenance, coarse-texture turfgrass that has an open, upright growth habit. Under most conditions, Bahia will not produce a turf comparable in quality to St. Augustine. Those who desire a high quality lawn appearance might be disappointed with Bahia.

Bahia is normally light green in color and grows best in full sun. Major pest problems include mole crickets, weeds, and occasionally dollar spot disease. Establishment is by sod or by seed. During drought, Bahia avoids damage by dropping its leaves, forming an extensive root system and undergoing dormancy. When water is applied, new leaves appear quickly. If the homeowner does not have an irrigation system or prefers a low maintenance, heavy traffic turf area, Bahia is a good choice for a lawn.

Fertilization: Bahia will perform satisfactorily using the fertilization schedule that is recommended for St. Augustine. Apply fertilizer two times per year at the rate of 1 pound nitrogen per 1000 square feet.

Mowing: If Bahia is non-dormant and growing, mow it at 3 to 4 inches, which is as high as most home type rotary mowers will allow. High mowing promotes a deeper, more extensive root system enabling the grass to better withstand drought and nematode stress.

Do not remove more than 1/3 the height of the leaf blades with any mowing. Use only a sharp, balanced mower blade. Sharpen the blade and the lawn will look lush and be more susceptible to disease. Rehydrate and balance blades monthly.

Irrigation: Irrigate only to prevent drought stress on an "established" lawn. Normally, there is no need to irrigate in the summer months because rain provides enough water. Overwatering encourages shallow roots, disease, and weed invasion. Apply 3/4 inch of water per application and then wait until the turf shows signs of wilting before watering again. Watering may be discontinued during the winter months, when the grass goes into dormancy.

Weed control: Selective control of weeds such as goosegrass, or crabgrass, is limited to hand pulling or applying, as a spot treatment, a herbicide containing glyphosate (Round-Up). Following suggested application procedures, be sure to observe safety and irrigation instructions. Bahia to not compete with broadleaf weeds such as penny, witchweed, knotweed, spurge, and lambsquarters can be controlled with herbicides such as 2-4-D, Dicamba and/or MCPP.

Pests: Inspect for mole crickets tunnelling and mounds. Mole crickets will surface few minutes after applying 3 gallons of water with 1 to 2 oz. of detergent soap per 3 square feet of turf. If mole crickets are present, apply Dimecron or Durban as recommended. (Al Perper is Seminole County Urban Horticulturist. Senators seek support for a bill to set mammography standards

DEAR ABBY: We read your column with the letters from breast cancer survivors, and couldn't agree more that early detection is the key to preventing breast cancer. Mammographies are the best tool we have for early detection.

We have introduced legislation in the U.S. Senate to reauthorize the Mammography Quality Standards Act (MQSA) to ensure national standards for mammograms. This crucial law was originally authored by Sen. Mikulski in 1985, but will expire this year if it is not reauthorized.

Mammography is our most powerful weapon in the war against breast cancer, but only if it's done safely, accurately and by trained personnel. We need uniform national standards so women can be assured that the mammogram they get in any clinic across the country, from Maryland to Texas to Minnesota, is safe, effective and reliable, and that the results are read accurately. Since 1985, more than 9,000 of the 10,000 mammography facilities nationwide have been inspected and accredited by the federal government.

When we introduced the legislation, we sent around an historic "Dear Colleague" letter asking for support. It began, "We, the women of the United States Senate, invite you, the men of the United States Senate, to join us..." And the good news is - they did! Right now, we have 47 senators, Republicans and Democrats, men and women, signed on to support this important legislation. A companion bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton, D.D.C., and Nancy

GARY NAJARIAN, SITUATE, MASS.

DEAR SEN. MIKULSKI AND HUTCHISON: I wholeheartedly lend my support. Such standards are essential to women's health care.

Resolution, it is worth the effort to take you in hand and drop a note (or girlfriend) to your elected representative in Washington urging their support of the Mammography Quality Standards Act (MQSA). It will ensure national standards for mammograms, guaranteeing high-quality screenings for breast cancer, as well as peace of mind for those who need it.

DEAR ABBY: If a high school boy wants to take a girl to the prom and needs money, please tell him to earn it. He could knock on neighbors' doors and offer to do yard work, clean win-
