Port Authority-Utility Deadlock Remains Unresolved

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

A deadlock between the Seminole County Port Authority and the Lake Monroe Utilities Corp. remains unresolved, according to Dennis Dolgner, administrator of the authority. The Port Authority board decided Wednesday afternoon to remain constant on its contention that approximately $3,600 is due Lake Monroe Utilities in sewage hookup fees. The sewage-treatment company believes the debt is closer to $16,000, said James Hickman, owner of Lake Monroe Utilities. Earlier this year the Port Authority sent Lake Monroe Utilities a check for $3,467.22. That amount, Dolgner said, is what the authority decided it owed the utility company based on a formula established by the state Public Service Commission. The check was held by Lake Monroe Utilities for several months and then returned uncashed. After it received the check, the amount owed for sewer hookups was recomputed by the Port Authority and it still came out to the same figure, Dolgner said.

"We're going to stand firm on our end," Dolgner said. "The Public Service Commission said the Port Authority was correct in the way it computed the charges for hookup fees."

Hickman said the authority is not following government regulations established to determine payment for hookup fees. Calling the authority's action "payment by committee decision," said the cost for hookup fees must be based on three different rates.

Prior to 1975 each county commission in Florida was responsible for regulating local utilities. After 1975 the Public Service Commission assumed regulation responsibilities on a statewide basis, Dolgner said.

When the Public Service Commission assumed the duties, hookup fees were established at $398 each. In 1978 Lake Monroe Utilities sent the Port Authority a bill for $30,000 to cover hookup costs, Dolgner said.

In 1979 a public hearing was held between the state agency, the utility and the authority. A new fee of $308.01 was established for each hookup fee after those hearings, Dolgner said.

"I feel I handle public funds and am in no position to arbitrate," he said. It (the standoff between the Port Authority and the utility) is like rolling two bowling balls together."

Dolgner said the exact number of hookup fees attributed to the authority never was determined. The Public Service Commission dictated that payment should be based on historical flow data, which have not been precisely computed, he said.

"Dolgner doesn't know what he's talking about," Hickman said. "The Port Authority would like to pay only according to the third ruling ($308.01 per hookup)."

Unregistered Condominium Has Problems

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

"Nobody's going to take your home," John Brannigan, inspector for the state Division of Land Sales and Condominiums, assured unit owners of Indian Ridge Patio Homes in Winter Springs Wednesday night, "and we're not going in and bankrupt the developer. We want to make it work."

Brannigan, who began investigating complaints from some unit owners in August, discovered that although Indian Ridge Patio Homes Inc. was registered with Seminole County, it was not registered with the state as a condominium as required by law.

The condominium complex is off Sherry Street one block north of State Road 434 behind the Village Marketplace shopping center.

Brannigan said he completed his investigation in September and made his recommendations for administrative action to the state Bureau of Condominiums.

Faye Mayberry, chief of the bureau, said in Tallahassee Wednesday afternoon that her agency had served notice on the corporate officials of Indian Ridge to show cause why the agency should not take administrative action against the developer.

According to Brannigan and the Florida secretary of state's office, officials of the corporation, which was chartered in 1978, are listed as Stanley Melnick, 5025 Roswell Road N.E., Atlanta, president-director; Jo Ann Barrett, 348 San Miguel, Winter Springs, vice president and director; and Gary E. Massey, Altamonte Springs lawyer, secretary-director. Massey is currently the Lake Mary city attorney and former Winter Springs city attorney.

Ms. Mayberry said that since the administrative proceedings were initiated Massey had filed condominium documents with the division. She said that on Dec. 9 he requested an informal hearing but that a date has not yet been set.

Brannigan said he does not expect the hearing in Tallahassee to be held until after the holidays.

The result of administrative charges could range from the developer's agreeing to voluntary compliance to being fined up to $5,000 on each condominium sold.

There was some confusion over whether the homeowner group was legally known as Indian Ridge Patio Homes Association Inc. or Indian Ridge Condominium Association Inc., and whether the group was registered with the state.

Norman Seidwurm, who was present at the homeowner association meeting Wednesday night as a member of the board of directors, said he, not Melnick, is president of Indian Ridge Patio Homes. Seidwurm said Melnick resigned a year ago.

Brannigan said that as far as the state is concerned Melnick is still president and that he talked to him on the phone in September.

"Mr. Melnick said he is the president and Mr. Seidwurm is simply a representative for two boys from New Jersey in a limited partnership which makes up the other portion of the corporation," said Brannigan. "He was quite upset and said he would contact his attorney, Mr. Massey."

Seidwurm said Melnick has an interest on a mortgage on the property.

Massey today said he is not free to comment as to who the president of the corporation is. He said that as far as he knows all required papers have now been filed with the state. "There may have been technical non-compliance, but nothing wrong was done and those people (the unit owners) haven't been damaged."

Brannigan said the homeowners have no legal standing or redress with the state because the association is not registered with the secretary of state. However, Seidwurm said he has corporation papers for Indian Ridge Condominium Inc.

Eloise Joergel is president of the association. Miss Barrett, manager of the condominiums and a secretary of the association as well as vice president of Indian Ridge Patio Homes Inc., also was at the Wednesday night meeting.

Residents had complained that the office had been closed and the phone disconnected, but were told by Miss Barrett and Seidwurm that the office has been reopened and phone service restored.

When Miss Barrett attempted to respond to charges by residents during the meeting, she was repeatedly ordered to "Shut up, shut up" by Seidwurm.

Some homeowners complained that uncompleted units of the one-story condo have been allowed to become run-down and overgrown with weeds. They also asserted the developer had lost sales by "dragging out" closings from six months to four years.

Brannigan said he had had other cases where condominium developers had failed to register with the state but that this is the first time development had reached the point where he was talking to a homeowner association.

There are 84 units built in various stages of completion, and 47 occupied at present. Unit owners are required to pay $30 a month for maintenance of areas held in common, such as the clubhouse and swimming pool.

An effort last July to amend the condominium declaration to permit an additional 120 units in Phase III of Indian Ridge later was dropped by the developer.

Psychologists

No Degrees? They'll Lose Licenses

Certain practicing "psychologists" in Seminole County will have to give up their occupations when their current county-issued licenses expire.

Effective Jan. 1, the State of Florida will resume regulation of practicing psychologists. In July 1979 the state Legislature abolished the state Board of Psychological Examiners and declared that psychology was no longer a profession requiring regulation by the state.

That action effectively transferred regulation powers to the county level. The Seminole County Commission decided that because the state had determined psychology was no longer a "profession," persons applying for a county license would be required to pay for an occupational license.

Those who wanted to practice psychology consequently saw the county fee jump in 1979 from $15 to $150. An occupational license for a psychologist rose to $225 in 1980, when the county increased most license fees by 50 percent, said Barney Buetner, supervisor of occupational licensing for Seminole County.

"When the story (about deregulating psychologists) hit the papers before the law was repealed, our phones were busy for a week," Buetner said. "We definitely started issuing more licenses (for psychology)."

Buetner said he is certain there are persons practicing psychology in Seminole County without a college degree. The new law taking effect Jan. 1 requires a master's degree from an accredited school from all psychologists applying for state licenses.

Buetner said he is not sure how many persons are practicing psychology in Seminole County currently. To discover this figure will require a computer-aided search of licenses issued. The computer currently is tied up on other business, however, Buetner said he was fairly certain he would not be able to notify all county psychologists about the change in state law by Jan. 1.

He is not sure whether the state will require that occupational licenses issued to people without a college degree be repealed, Buetner said. Licenses will probably remain valid through the 1981-82 fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1982, he said.

According to the bill passed by the Legislature, the cost for the new state professional license for psychologists cannot be more than $250. Professional licenses on a county level are $225, Buetner said. — LEE DANCY

Computer Firm Plans Move To Lake Mary

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Construction on the $1.1 million, 700,000-square-foot plant for Florida Computer Graphics off Lake Emma Road in Lake Mary is expected to be completed in February, said Michael Coffman, president and chief executive officer of the Orlando-based firm, today. The firm, which designs and manufactures color graphics computer systems, will move its operations from Orlando to Lake Mary when construction of the new facility is completed.

The new plant is on a five-acre parcel. The firm was begun by Coffman, formerly vice president and general manager of a division of the Data Point Corp., of California, a year ago with three persons. Today 48 persons are employed by the firm, and Coffman said he expects to hire an additional 100 in the next 12 months.

"As quickly as we can get into the new facility we will be hiring additional personnel," Coffman said today. He said his company is currently operating out of 5,400 square feet of leased space in the Kirkman Commerce Center.

He said the decision to move the operation from Orlando to Lake Mary was made after a comprehensive study was conducted of available property in the area. "We did not want to be part of the Orlando Central Park base," he said,

"and Lake Mary had sufficient space to do the job."

In addition, he said, most of his employees live close to the new plant now. "I live two miles from the plant. However, that was not a major consideration, just nice," he said.

"We intend to be a good corporate citizen of Seminole County and the Sanford-Lake Mary area, and hope they will be happy to have us as an employer," Coffman said.

Should Florida Lawyers Use Dues For Lobbying?

TALLHASSEE (UPI)—Lawyers have been bickering quietly for months over whether the Florida Bar Association should use their membership dues to lobby the Legislature.

The dispute has gone public now and is before the state Supreme Court.

A group of 25 lawyers headed by Robert Westman of Cocoa petitioned the court recently to amend the bar's Integration Rule to prohibit the organization's board of governors "from engaging in political activity."

The court was asked by the bar's litigation committee to hold full-fledged hearings on the petition.

Every attorney must pay bar membership fees, Westman said in his petition, so lawyers "are being coerced" to take political stands they may not believe in.

The bar has a $150,000 lobbying budget and its legislative team is headed by Tallahassee attorney Richard McFarlain. McFarlain has been the organization's chief lobbyist for years. He works on a contract now, but once was a member of the bar's full-time staff.

McFarlain fought attempts by the Legislature to take the bar and the Florida Board of Bar Examiners out from under the state Supreme Court and put the agencies under the Department of Professional Regulation.

His biggest job in the upcoming 1982 session will be to fight moves to apply the state sales tax to attorneys' fees.

Westman appeared before the bar's board of governors this fall to argue that use of the mandatory membership fees for lobbying was improper and illegal. The board voted overwhelmingly to reject his contention.

Making Book Doesn't Mean Studying

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Police have broken up a student-run bookmaking ring at Michigan State University that grossed $114,000 in less than three months.

Detective Sgt. Gary Howell said a frightened 19-year-old sophomore blew the whistle on the ring when its operators pressured him to pay a $1,300 gambling debt he had accumulated in only one week.

Jeffrey Lesson, 21; his brother Kenneth, 19; Daniel Gilbert, 19; and Lindsay Gross, 19, all of Southfield, were arraigned Tuesday for conspiring to violate state gambling laws. They were freed on $1,000 personal recognizance bonds.

Howell described them as "fairly good students from very good families" and did not know where they learned the sophisticated techniques and lingo used in the operation, which focused on college and professional basketball and football games.

During one period of less than three months, the operation grossed $114,000. The ring began last year with a small group of clients but expanded this year, he said.

"They seemed to be pretty nice kids as a whole," Howell said, "Just enterprising."

NATION IN BRIEF

97th Congress Is History; Reagan Racks Up Big Wins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 97th Congress, which yielded to President Reagan more often than it defied him, ended its first session by giving him more of what he wanted: a new foreign aid program and a new farm program.

Combined with earlier victories — including passage of the biggest defense budget in history, record spending and tax cut plans and approval of the sale of radar planes to Saudi Arabia — Reagan became one of the most successful presidents in dealing with Congress since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Minimum Benefit Rescued

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a bill headed for President Reagan's desk that would save the Social Security minimum benefit, the matter of rescuing the entire retirement system is now in the hands of a bipartisan task force.

The House voted 412-10 to approve the bill Wednesday, following unanimous Senate approval the day before.

Jog Away Heart Disease

BOSTON (UPI) — Moderate exercise may prevent and even reverse coronary artery disease, the leading killer of middle-aged American men, researchers who conducted a study of jogging monkeys said today.

"This is the first direct indication it (exercise) might do good" in preventing the form of heart disease that kills hundreds of thousands of people each year, said Dr. Dieter Kramsch, who headed the four-year study at Boston University.

Garbage Emergency In N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Board of Health declared a citywide state of emergency Wednesday night, clearing the way for municipal crews to pick up 100,000 tons of rotting and rat-infested garbage piling up in a 17-day strike against private haulers.

Union negotiators at the same time studied what a management spokesman described as a "final" wage offer aimed at ending the walkout by 2,000 private sanitation workers.

Suit Filed Over Sewage Gear

The city of Altamonte Springs has filed a lawsuit in Circuit Court, Sanford, charging a Wisconsin-based contracting firm — Envirez, Inc. — with breach of contract for installation of faulty sewage treatment equipment.

The suit, which seeks an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000, has been assigned to Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. No hearing date has been set.

In the suit, the city claims it paid Envirez $339,548 for the installation of micro screens in its sewage treatment plant, located on Keller Road. The screens have not performed properly, primarily failing to remove floatable solids from the wastewater, the suit claims.

"They installed the screens and they have never worked properly," City Manager Jeff Etchberger said. "They've made several adjustments to the things but they still don't work."

TIRES TAKEN

An Altamonte Springs man left his home Wednesday morning to find someone, during the night, had stolen all four tires and mag wheels from his car, leaving his vehicle perched on cinder blocks.

Noel A. Rodriguez, 18, of 373 Spanish Trace Drive, told police that someone used a hydraulic jack to steal his tires and wheels, probably around 10:30 p.m. Tuesday. Police found the hydraulic jack nearby.

The tires and wheels are valued at about $1,280, police said.

COWS SHOT

A Jersey and Black Angus cow belonging to an Oviedo man were found shot on his property on Lake Drive.

According to Seminole County sheriff's deputies, owner Ken Black, 49, found his Jersey cow shot to death around noon Tuesday and was unable to locate his Black Angus cow.

Black told deputies he last saw the Jersey cow alive on Wednesday, Dec. 10. The cow had been shot in the side and there were two, 12-gauge shotgun shells nearby.

The Black Angus cow was found Wednesday about 500 yards from where the dead Jersey cow was discovered. The animal had been shot in the rear with a shotgun at close range, deputies said. Black asked deputies to kill the wounded cow to end its suffering.

BRONCO BURGLARIZED

A Forest City man's vehicle, parked at the Why Not Lounge on Wymore Road, off State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, was broken into at 7 p.m. Saturday and about $900 worth of property stolen.

According to sheriff's deputies, James Bolser, 37, of 114 Willow Dr., reported his Ford Bronco was broken into, probably while parked in the lounge parking lot.

Among those items stolen from the vehicle were an assortment of tools, sunglasses, tire tube repair kit, electric saw and a checkbook containing numerous identification cards.

BOAT TRAILER TAKEN

When a Sanford man returned from a day of fishing at 5 p.m. Wednesday, he found someone had taken off with his boat trailer.

Richard Self, 41, of 73 Rockcove Court, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies someone stole his trailer while it was parked at the boat ramp at Jessup Bridge on east State Road 46, Sanford.

The trailer is valued at $500.

BURGLARS HIT SANFORD HOME

Burglars broke into a Sanford woman's home sometime between 7:40 a.m. and 3:15 p.m. Wednesday and stole an undetermined amount of property and money.

According to sheriff's deputies, Kathleen Harrell, 58, of 733 Cherokee Circle, said someone broke into her home by removing glass panes from a jalousie window in the kitchen.

BREAKING AND ENTERING

Burglars broke into the home of Jesus M. Borres, 24, Sanford, between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m. Wednesday and stole an undetermined amount of money and property.

Sheriff's deputies said the thieves entered the home, located immediately east of the Midway Grocery store on Sipes Avenue by smashing a hasp on the door.

SANFORD WOMAN BATTERED

A Sanford woman told police a man came up to her while she was walking along Celery Avenue in Sanford and made sexual overtures to her. When she reportedly told him to leave her alone and used a vocal epithet, the man hit her, then followed her into a nearby store and hit her again.

Juanita VonHerbuls, 20, 1217 S. Oak Ave., told police after the man hit her the first time she went into the Handy Way convenience store, 1419 Celery Ave., to call police and the man followed her, striking her again on the back of her neck.

COOKIE THIEVES STRIKE SCHOOL

Thieves broke into Seminole High School, Georgia Avenue, Sanford, and stole four cartons of milk, 11 soft drinks and 52 buttered cookies from the school cafeteria.

The incident was reported to Sanford police by Cafeteria Manager Helen Constantine after she discovered the burglary at about 4:50 a.m. Wednesday. Police said the thieves used pry tools to open a roll-type door between the cafeteria and dining room.

New Drug Means Hope For CF Victims

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — University of North Carolina scientists say they have found a drug that reduces the natural electrical activity they believe causes mucus to clog the air passages of cystic fibrosis victims.

"Ninety-five percent of the children and young adults who die from cystic fibrosis die because mucus plugs and chronic pulmonary infections damage the lungs," Dr. Richard Boucher, one of the researchers, said Wednesday.

Boucher — who did the study with Drs. Michael Knowles and John Gatzky — warned the research and drug offer neither a cure nor an immediate treatment for the fatal genetic illness, but present possibilities for further study.

In the report published today in the New England Journal of Medicine, the doctors said they believe natural electrical activity in the airways of cystic fibrosis patients — more than twice as high as levels in healthy people — causes mucus to form in the air passages.

The drug, Amiloride, temporarily reduces the electrical activity to normal levels, said Knowles, an associate professor of pharmacology.

Electrical activity in the lungs results from the flow of electrically charged particles — ions of sodium and chloride — across cell membranes lining the airways, Boucher said. The ions act as a kind of chemical pump regulating the amount of fluids in the lungs.

In cystic fibrosis patients, the pump works excessively, removing too much fluid and causing mucus to become thick and sticky, preventing tiny hairs in the air passages from effectively clearing the airways.

In the study, the School of Medicine faculty members tested 24 cystic fibrosis patients and found an average of 60 millivolts of electricity in their air passages.

The average in 150 control subjects — including parents of cystic fibrosis patients, healthy people and victims of other lung diseases — was only 25 millivolts, they said.

The doctors discovered Amiloride acts as a diuretic to block sodium absorption in the lungs, Knowles said.

Using the drug, the team was able to reduce the electrical activity in cystic fibrosis patients to normal ranges for brief periods. But Knowles said the researchers do not know whether the drug or related compounds can be used as a treatment for the disease.

The team currently is designing studies to determine the drug's effect on adult patients, who will receive it orally, and is considering giving it in aerosol form to children.

A technique developed by the team in the study may one day supplement the current method of diagnosing cystic fibrosis, especially in infants. The technique measures electrical activity in nasal passages, which is comparable to that in the lungs.

The study was supported by grants from the National Heart and American Heart associations and the Lung and Blood Institute.

Muggers Karate Chopped

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — A 13-year-old girl and a young woman surprised two muggers in separate incidents in Brazil's largest city, beating up their assailants and turning them over to the police.

Police disclosed the incidents Wednesday as part of an anti-crime campaign that included stepped-up patrols for shopping centers during the busy pre-Christmas period.

Police said new patrols using plainclothes women officers for the first time, were netting about 20 downtown pickpockets and muggers daily.

In one incident Tuesday, police said Sandra Ngai, 13, was working in her father's downtown jewelry shop when two men came in asking to look at rings, bracelets and watches worth around $4,800.

As owner Shu Ngai bent behind the counter the two ran out with the goods.

Police took Miss Ngai to the nearby Cathedral Square used by underworld brokers to "fence" stolen goods and there the girl recognized the thieves.

When they fled, the girl was first to catch up with one of the men and floored him with a karate chop. The two men were arrested and charged with robbery, police said.

The same day, sports reporter Regina Machado de Papa, 27, sent her assailant first to the hospital and then to the police station after he yanked two gold chains worth $2,000 from her neck in downtown Sao Paulo.

Miss Papa chased him for 40 minutes through the city center before catching up with him and rained a succession of karate blows on him, police said.

Miss Papa took her assailant to a hospital for treatment before handing him over to police, they said.

Third Time Was A Charm; Murder Suspect Goes Free

MIAMI (UPI) — Nathaniel Lane, tried three times for the beating death of a white motorist during Miami's bloody 1980 race riots, is a free man today for the first time in 19 months after prosecutors decided not to try him again.

Lane was charged with the May 1980 murder of Benny Higdon, 21, one of three white men dragged from a car and beaten to death during three days of rioting that rocked the predominantly black Liberty City area.

Killers Plead For Mercy

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham took under advisement Tuesday pleas for mercy for two convicted killers — one of them the oldest man on Florida's death row.

Anthony Antone, 64, was sentenced to die for masterminding the 1975 assassination of Tampa vice-squad detective Richard Cloud.

Cop Turns Bank Robber?

ST PETERSBURG (UPI) — Frederick Crawford Jr., a five-year member of the St. Petersburg police department, was shot in both arms Wednesday afternoon as he fled a savings and loan association office robbery wearing a ski mask and carrying a gun.

Police Chief Sam Lynn said detectives had the branch office of Clearwater Federal Savings and Loan Association and a nearby bank under surveillance when the robbery occurred. Crawford was off duty at the time, Lynn said.

Union Diehards Routed At Solidarity's Birthplace

United Press International

Polish "Red Beret" paratroops and secret police units battered down the gates of the Gdansk Lenin shipyard in a dawn armored assault and routed diehard Solidarity strikers who threatened to blow up the yard, reports from Poland said today.

The strikers were taken Wednesday out of the yard, birthplace of Solidarity, and marched off convict-style in the bitter Baltic cold, with 100-yard intervals between each man, as soldiers smashed buildings. The defeated unionists were ordered to go home.

Arabs Protest Annexation

QUNEITRA, Syria (UPI) — Druse Arabs in the Golan Heights began a three-day strike, shutting down stores and schools to protest Israel's annexation of the area, but Israel refused to budge.

At an emergency session Wednesday of the U.N. Security Council, Syria demanded that Israel immediately rescind the legislation rushed through Parliament on Monday and that sanctions be mandated against the Jewish state if it refuses.

Big Bucks In Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — U.S. oil companies pay $100-a-day bonuses to American workers who defy President Reagan's plea to leave Libya, and embassy officials in Greece physically restrain those who try to return, oil workers say.

"I am sure (American companies) are paying their people a bit more to get them to stay on," said a well informed oil industry source in London. "They have too much to lose by shutting down, now they are pumping a bit more."

$2 Million Suit Filed Over Posh Home Sale

MIAMI (UPI) — A couple denied membership in the exclusive Bal Harbour Club, allegedly because the woman's parents are Jewish, have filed a $2 million lawsuit against the club.

Vincent and Elaine Santucci of Miami Shores planned to purchase a home in the posh Bal Harbor Village. Homeowners must also be members of the club.

"But the club's charter states that lots can be sold only to 'a member of the Caucasian race' and cannot be purchased by 'anyone having more than one-fourth Hebrew or Syrian blood,'" the suit contends.

The suit, filed Wednesday in Dade County Circuit Court, said the Santuccis signed a contract Aug. 25 to purchase a luxury home in the village and applied for "regular" membership status in the Bal Harbour Club.

The application was denied Nov. 5, because "the mother and father of Elaine Santucci are Jewish," the suit contends.

The application denial has "embarrassed and humiliated" the couple "in front of their friends and the entire community who knew that they intended to purchase the home," the suit said.

The suit seeks a court order forcing the sale, a ruling that the club discriminated against the couple, an injunction and $2 million in damages.

Bal Harbour has excluded blacks and Jews since the 245-acre, 173-home village was founded in 1946.

Burger Outlines Prison Reforms: 'Factories' Instead Of 'Warehouses'

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger says inmates could be better rehabilitated at less cost to taxpayers if the nation's prisons were turned into "factories with fences around them."

Burger, in a speech Wednesday at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said the United States should no longer simply maintain "human warehouses" for criminals.

"The question I raise is this: Are we going to build more warehouses, or should we change our thinking and build factories with fences around them where we will first train inmates and then have them engage in useful production?" he said.

The chief justice suggested inmates could be put to work making such things as "ballpoint pens, hosiery, cases for watches, parts of automobiles, lawn mowers, computers or parts of other machinery."

During the speech, Burger never alluded to charges leveled by John Ehrlichman that he discussed matters pending before the Supreme Court with Richard Nixon while Nixon was president.

But later, apparently irked by a CBS-TV News crew's attempt to question him about Ehrlichman, Burger knocked a camera off the shoulder of a cameraman, CBS News reporter Derrick Blakley said Wednesday night.

Burger said in his speech that state governments are spending almost $1 billion on new prisons, with another $1 billion for new jails authorized to house an increasing number of convicts. In the past decade, the U.S. prison population has jumped from less than 200,000 to about 350,000.

"We can continue to have largely human warehouses with little or no education and training or we can have prisons that are factories with fences around them," Burger said.

"When a society places a person behind walls and bars, it has an obligation to change that person."

Christmas Mail In Christmas

CHRISTMAS, Fla. (UPI) — The clerks at the Christmas post office are working like Santa's helpers to get the mail sorted and postmarked by Dec. 25.

Customers from all over the country have been flooding the rural mail center with packages and cards since Thanksgiving, swelling the mail volume tenfold.

It's all part of an annual ritual that doesn't let up until after the holiday is over. A lot of people want to make sure their holiday cards carry the Christmas, Fla. postmark.

Somehow, year after year, postmistress Joy Chittum and part-time helpers Carol Russell and Lois Elliot cope with all the extra work.

"We just stay here until we get it all out," says Mrs. Russell, who has been putting in 11-hour days this month. "It's really a lot of fun since the people who come by are so nice."

This year the job has been made doubly hard by Mrs. Chittum's absence. The 26-year veteran of the Christmas rush was hospitalized a week ago and Mrs. Russell doesn't know if she'll be back until after New Year's.

Located on the main highway between Orlando and Titusville, Christmas is little more than a cross-roads most of the year. Few motorists stop by, except for gas.

But early in December the out-of-state cars begin filling the parking lot in front of the neat brick post office. There's even a guest book for customers to sign.

"A lot of people hand deliver their packages and boxes of cards. But some just send them to us in the mail," says Mrs. Russell, who is working her sixth Christmas.

She estimates 100,000 pieces of mail will be handled this season. Most of it is cancelled by machine, but there is a lot of hand stamping to be done also since so many odd-shaped parcels are sent.

Despite the extra work, both women seem to enjoy visiting with customers from faraway places.

"We get the tour buses all the time. The other day there was a group from Singapore and today a man from Italy came in to mail cards — one to relatives and the other to England," Mrs. Russell said.

Their final job of the Christmas season will come Dec. 26, when they fill all the collectors' requests for envelopes carrying a Christmas postmark dated Dec. 25.

"We have special permission from the post office to do that since there is no mail pickup on the 25th," she said. "After that we'll take a breather."

Budget Deficit Truly Staggering

The latest deficit projections announced by Reagan administration economists are truly staggering: $109 billion for fiscal 1982, $152 billion in fiscal 1983, and $162 billion in 1984. All of this adds up to a new overdraft of $423 billion on the U.S. Treasury or an increase in the national debt of nearly 50 percent.

These figures are described in Washington as "worst case" estimates, but only three months ago, the White House forecast a $43.1 billion deficit in 1982.

There hasn't been anything like this in the history of the Republic. The previous record was set in 1976 with a $66.4 billion deficit during President Ford's last year in office. In fact, these annual deficits far exceeded the entire federal budget until a few years ago.

Here then with a vengeance is proof of President Reagan's contention that federal spending is out of control. But such confirmation is in itself confounding. If an increase in the national debt by half during the next three years is insufferable even for so strong a nation as ours, what is to be done? Does the administration, indeed, have any realistic options? Where can it go for $100 billion in new taxes or new spending cuts?

A controlling factor at the moment is the very real presence of a national recession, which drastically reduces or perhaps eliminates effective deficit control. Actually, the recession fattens a deficit by decreasing tax revenues and increasing welfare and unemployment benefits.

Unemployment, the surest indicator of a recession, already exceeds 8 percent and continues to climb. Consequently, this bleak situation goes against any immediate substantial tax increases. It is axiomatic among some leading economists that new taxes levied on a depressed economy are particularly destructive. The last president who attempted to tax his way out of a depression was Herbert Hoover.

With the tax option ruled out, at least for the moment, the President obviously must look for even deeper spending cuts. But there are so many wounds around Washington from previous budget prunings that Congress and Cabinet are already vigorously resisting preliminary skirmishes by Budget Director David Stockman.

In point of fact, the $40 billion or so saved thus far in the budget came mostly from the discretionary state-city-grant programs that account for only eight cents of the federal dollar. Clearly, in the long term, federal spending will be reined in only if some substantial reductions are made in the hitherto sacrosanct entitlement programs and defense spending. Such alternatives, however, must be regarded as somewhat remote and beset by difficulties.

So, for now, the administration sees it has no immediate choice but to navigate as best it can through this unexpected flood of red ink, holding to its original course. The White House said as much on Tuesday. This could mean a deeper recession and another real credit crunch, with interest rates soaring again when the Treasury goes out into the private sector and sops up multiple billions of dollars to cover its spending that should go into economic expansion and increased productivity.

Robert Weintraub, senior economist, U.S. Congress Joint Economic Committee, pointed out in a recent Pacific Institute Symposium in San Francisco that the '82 budget deficit has increased partly because the government has been denied its usual inflation windfall from bracket creep; the administration's success in reducing the inflation rate has reduced expected revenues. Dr. Weintraub believes a recovering economy could change the huge deficit predictions for the better — the decline of interest rates alone will save billions in servicing the trillion-dollar federal debt.

Democrats Ask: NCPAC Separate?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Several years ago the Supreme Court ruled that money spent on behalf of a political candidate would not be counted against his spending or contribution limits as long as the contributing individual or organization acted without consultation with the candidate or his staff.

The federal Election Commission recently disclosed that one of last year's biggest spenders among the independent organizations was the National Conservative Political Action Committee.

In 1980, NCPAC spent more than $5 million on largely successful efforts to defeat liberals and to elect conservatives. Some observers believe that the organization changed the outcomes of several races, including the defeats of Democratic senators in Idaho, South Dakota and Iowa.

Obviously, this has upset the Democrats. So has the prospect that NCPAC will spend more millions of dollars each election year to defeat members of the party.

Now the Democrats are fighting back with charges that NCPAC violated and continues to violate FEC rules regarding its independent status. If these charges are proved, NCPAC may have to pay sizable fines as may the candidates who the organization backed.

The charges are being leveled by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. Rep. Tony Coelho, the Californian who chairs the committee, contends that NCPAC and the candidates it supported engaged in illegal collusion and cooperation during the 1980 campaigns.

These charges are the result of detailed examinations of three Senate races: the John Culver-Charles Grassley contest in Iowa, the Thomas Eagleton-Gene McNary race in Missouri and the George McGovern-James Abdnor battle in South Dakota.

NCPAC reported spending a total of $432,196 in support of Republican challengers Grassley, Abdnor and McNary. (Only McNary was defeated.)

Among the specific allegations made by the Democrats are these:

— In Iowa, NCPAC sent out emotionally charged fund-raising letters on behalf of Grassley and requested that contributions be sent directly to his campaign headquarters.

— In South Dakota, NCPAC provided Abdnor with the results of its extensive polling that showed McGovern to be vulnerable; in fact, it was those polls that persuaded Abdnor to enter the race.

— In Missouri, NCPAC operatives were in constant contact with McNary's aides and coordinated NCPAC's anti-Eagleton activities with McNary's campaign.

The Democrats also point to recent statements by Ed Rollins, the presidential political aide who in January will succeed Lyn Nofziger as White House political director.

Rollins recently told a group of reporters that he intended to meet regularly with independent groups like NCPAC "and tell them where we are heading and let them tell us what they are doing."

Allen Waged PR Campaign In Massacre

WASHINGTON — In July 1973, news reports appeared here and abroad of a brutal My Lai-style massacre of native villagers the previous December in Mozambique, then a Portuguese colony stirring with aspirations for independence.

The dictatorial regime in Lisbon denied the reports. So did the $60,000-a-year U.S. agent for the Overseas Companies of Portugal, a government-linked consortium of firms with heavy investments in Mozambique and Angola, Portugal's other colony in Africa.

The agent was Richard Allen, the national security adviser to President Reagan who is now under suspension.

From Washington, Allen closely monitored the news and periodically filed reports to his worried employer in Lisbon.

As part of his campaign to convince the public that the "alleged" massacre by Portuguese troops never occurred, Allen also arranged for Rep. Philip Crane, R-IOWA, to visit the Portuguese colonies. Crane subsequently pronounced the Portuguese clean. As recently as August 1980, Allen told the Washington Post that the tale of a massacre appeared to have been "a Czech disinformation report."

But my associate Lucetta Lagnado has obtained secret State Department cables that make clear there was indeed such a massacre — or that American Foreign Service officers at least found the evidence persuasive.

ROBERT WALTERS

Texas Bans The Dictionary

AUSTIN, Texas (NEA) — The book recently banned by the Texas Board of Education wasn't a salacious novel, a Marxist polemic or a sex-education manual.

It was a dictionary. That's right, the Merriam-Webster New Collegiate Dictionary, an authoritative standard reference work used in homes, schools and offices throughout the nation.

The board's action would be mildly humorous if it wasn't part of a disturbing pattern that in recent years had led to the suppression of virtually every form of creative endeavor known to the human race.

City, county and state agencies all across the country have sought, with varying degrees of success, to censor not only books but also magazines, paintings, plays, songs, films, leaflets, pamphlets, photographs and records.

Authoritarian government officials, self-proclaimed defenders of the public morality and overwrought citizens are attempting to nullify the Constitution's guarantee to the free expression of — and access to — ideas.

The public agencies frequently are being forced to act because of pressure from ideological zealots oblivious to the profound dangers posed to democracy by the censorship of unpopular or "controversial" ideas.

The lengthy list of challenged works includes these widely acclaimed books: Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," MacKinley Kantor's "Valley Forge," George Orwell's "1984," J.D. Salinger's "The Catcher in the Rye" (by far the most popular target) and Studs Terkel's "Working."

Other targets of suppression include at least five magazines — Sports Illustrated, Esquire, Ebony, Parents and Mademoiselle — and assorted films on subjects ranging from drug abuse to unidentified flying objects.

In the recent Texas incident — a typically outrageous episode — State Education Commissioner Raymond Bynum announced last month that he had removed the dictionary from the list of books approved for use by Texas public school students.

His reason: The dictionary contains seven obscene words cited in a 1973 civil suit that led to a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that a comedian's monologue was not suitable for radio or television broadcast.

The following day, the Texas Board of Education — acting after virtually no debate on the issue — endorsed Bynum's action in a lopsided 17-4 vote.

The board apparently was oblivious to the fact that the seven offensive words were buried among more than 150,000 other entries. Indeed, one school board member characterized the dictionary as "sort of like a manual for dirty words."

The decision will not ban all copies of the dictionary from Texas school libraries, but it does prohibit the use of state funds to purchase the books for use in English and other classes.

Perhaps more significantly, Texas and California are the two most populous of the 22 states that utilize a system requiring statewide adoption of textbooks and other instructional materials.

Because publishers cannot afford the luxury of printing special editions to satisfy various states' idiosyncratic objections, Texas' status as a major purchaser of school books gives it the economic power to influence the composition of future editions of the dictionary used not only in the 22 "adoption" states but also in the 28 "open" states where standard-setting and selection are conducted at the local level.

In a similar action earlier this year, Alabama Gov. Forrest H. "Fob" James Jr. convened and personally attended a late-night meeting of the State Board of Education (held at the governor's mansion) at which five history, civics and government books targeted by conservative critics were removed from the list of state-approved texts.

BUSINESS WORLD City Takes In Partner

By ROBERT STRAND

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — The city of Mill Valley is going into partnership with a private company — the first deal of its kind in the nation — to sell homeowner's insurance to its residents.

The same deal, pushed by AVCO Financial Group, currently is being quietly discussed in at least 10 California cities squeezed for funds because of Proposition 13 and other tax-cutting measures.

The Mill Valley City Council last month approved a plan by which AVCO promises the city a cut of money it expects to save from a home inspection program to be operated by police and fire personnel.

A homeowner who volunteers to have his home inspected, and who makes recommended corrections, will get a reduced premium if he takes his insurance from AVCO.

AVCO should save money because its losses should be lower, and it promises to share the savings with the city.

AVCO, of course, will also have a competitive advantage in the Mill Valley market, although it is not really expected that AVCO will wind up insuring the whole city, a San Francisco suburb, population 12,000.

If the plan works, other large insurance companies probably will move into Mill Valley and other cities to offer the same deal.

"I consider it a win-win situation," said Mayor Douglas Binderup, a financial consultant in his private life. "The insured enjoys a lower premium, the company will be paying out less for losses because we will reduce loss exposures, and the bottom line for Mill Valley is the saving of lives and property."

Direct sales insurers such as Allstate and State Farm could be hurt, along with independent agents who do not carry AVCO. The independents, however, can always apply to AVCO to handle their business.

But Fred Dupuis, executive vice president of the Independent Insurance Agents Association of California, said, "We question that the plan will turn out as well as the city expects."

At present, any Mill Valley homeowner can call the fire department for an evaluation, but only a couple each month do so.

Under the new plan, the homeowner will be prompted to call by a promise of a cut in his cost. Information will be mailed out by the city to its 3,500 owners of single family dwellings.

Inspectors will check for fire hazards such as faulty wiring, burglary hazards such as a lack of protective devices, and liability hazards such as a loose step that could cause a homeowner to be sued. Then a risk assessment will be sent to AVCO.

Of the premium dollar, Binderup says a dime typically goes to commissions, 30 cents is retained by the insurance company, and 60 cents is spent to pay claims.

If AVCO can cut its Mill Valley claims to 50 cents, for example, it promises to pass on to the city government the 10-cent saving. Over three years that is projected to be $100,000 for the city and its taxpayers.

Binderup insists the inspections can be carried out by existing personnel at little extra expense.

reports directly, it had obtained indirect confirmation. "Attorney for Spanish priests (who are) presently in prison awaiting trial... tells us Church does have evidence of 'massacre' which allegedly took place near Tete last December," the consulate reported.

According to the accounts given to U.S. officials, "Bishop of Tete overflowed alleged site and saw 'many' unburied bodies lying around; priests were subsequently allowed into the area to bury the bodies after bishop had threatened he would ... bury them personally."

The secret cable added that survivors told missionaries that the Portuguese Air Force had first firebombed Wiriyamu, which was "subsequently entered by GEPS (All-African Volunteer Paratrooper Unit) who reportedly lined up villagers and shot them."

Footnote: Allen did not return repeated calls from my office.

HELP FOR A NEIGHBOR: Bob Hughes is unknown to the public at large. But in Thousand Oaks, Calif., where he teaches seventh- and eighth-grade pupils at the Ascension Lutheran Church school, there are more than 5,000 friends and neighbors who believe in him.

When Hughes was brought back to Delaware and convicted of the 1976 murder of his wife, his neighbors in California would not accept the verdict. And they put their money where their hearts were, raising funds for his appeal and $300,000 in bail. One couple even pledged the $50,000 equity in their home.

Pat McKean, publicist for the Committee for Truth and Justice via Bob Hughes, explained to my reporter Sharon Spivak the simple reason for this outpouring of support: His friends are convinced he is innocent.

Hughes maintained at his trial that he was asleep inside his home when his wife was strangled outside. But the 34-year-old teacher was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment without possibility for parole. The people of Thousand Oaks, where he had moved with his two sons after the murder, held barbecues and fund-raisers and sold Christmas tree lights to earn money for Hughes' appeal.

Former Watergate counsel Samuel Dash took the case on appeal to the Delaware Supreme Court — and won.

Hughes was given a hero's welcome at the Los Angeles airport. One condition of his release on bail was that he stay clear of his wife's West Virginia grave and his in-laws, who still think he was guilty.

WHO'S NEWS: If the name of the National Security Council's press aide, Peter Dalley, sounds familiar, it should. His father, Peter Sr., was a member of the so-called "November Group" in the Nixon White House. That was the in-house presidential advertising team that worked under Nixon chief of staff H.R. "Bob" Haldeman during the 1972 re-election campaign.

Reader Says Smokers Are Unfairly Roasted

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: For some time now I have been amazed at your lack of fairness toward people who have not been able to quit smoking. It is so totally at odds with your usual efforts to lean over backward on behalf of every "sicky" in the book: drinkers, dopers, teen-age unwed mothers, and all the irresponsible, self-indulgent sex-gluttons who have brought VD back from near extinction to epidemic proportions. These threaten us all with much more horrible futures than cigarette-smoking could ever cause!

As far as I'm concerned, there is no excuse for the kind of vulgar rudeness that is so characteristic of non-smokers and their totally inappropriate, self-righteous hysteria.

I hope your own halo is not too tight, Abby. But if you are really honest in your efforts to be fair-minded, it has to be pinching a bit.

EVELYN INN.J.

DEAR EVELYN: My halo fits fine; it's my slacks I'm worried about.

DEAR ABBY: For Christmas this year I've received a notice of a gift subscription for a magazine that I consider to be completely incompatible with my religious and political philosophy. I would never buy it myself, and don't even want it in my home.

What do you think of someone who would attempt to shove his views down my throat?

SAN DIEGO

DEAR SAN: He's both presumptuous and foolish. A good rule to follow: Don't send reading matter of a controversial nature (religious or political) to anyone unless you're sure that he is sufficiently open-minded to welcome it. (P.S. If we read only one side of a controversial issue, we never learn anything.)

DEAR ABBY: Would you like to know how an 83-year-old relic feels about Christmas?

I dislike exchanging gifts because most people give only in the hope that they'll get something. If I could get off everybody's Christmas list I would rejoice. I don't need anything, and everything I get is either the wrong size, not my style or something I have already.

I can't go shopping myself, so I have to impose on others to shop for me, which is asking a lot. Also, a dollar doesn't buy nearly what it used to, and I resent spending all that money just so people won't think I'm a cheapskate.

I don't like those annual Christmas letters describing where people went last year. It's a lot of bragging and showing off. Neither do I like Christmas cards with the sender's name printed on it. If a person can't even sign his own name in ink and add a personal "Hello," who needs it?

Also, somebody who notifies me that she has sent a contribution to her favorite charity in my name is somebody else I can do without. I like to pick my own charities.

Merry Christmas, Abby!

'This Won't Hurt A Bit'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Some rabies vaccinations will soon feel like a light sting on the skin, quite different from the currently required deeper injections into the muscle, and will offer what physicians believe is 100 percent protection against the disease.

The proposed new vaccinating technique also involves the injection of only one-tenth of a cubic centimeter of human diploid vaccine into the skin instead of a full cubic centimeter in the muscle. Aside from a probable further reduction of pain from the shot, the new procedure will save enormous quantities of the expensive vaccine and cut the cost to the recipient, said Dr. Gregory Parham of the national Centers for Disease Control's viral diseases division.

Tribe Crushes Wymore; Oviedo Whips West Orange

Seminole Wrestlers Seek Tournament Test

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole High coach Scott Sherman's wrestling team has put together some pretty impressive early season records. Friday, however, the Tribe grapplers will see how those records stack up against some of the best competition in Central Florida.

Sherman takes his 4-2 matmen into the prestigious Ninth Annual Lyman Christmas Tournament's first round Friday at 5 p.m. The second round follows at 8 p.m.

The third round begins Saturday at 10 a.m., followed by the wrestlebacks at 12 noon, the consolation finals at 6 p.m. and the finals at 8 p.m. Admission is $2.50 for adults and $2 for students.

Sherman, a former standout wrestler at the University of Central Florida, has built the Seminole program steadily the past few years. He feels that this season it is in the best shape yet.

"Teamwise, we're 4-2, which is better than we were last year," said Sherman Wednesday following a 54-17 mauling of Wymore Tech at Seminole High. "We're progressing very well. Everybody is wrestling better and getting better."

The best of Sherman's lot so far this year has been senior Nate Woodget. The sturdy 140 pounder has muscled and moved his way to six victories without a setback. His work paid off for the number four seed in the tough 140 class.

"We're looking for Nate to do real well in the tournament," said Sherman about his senior. "He's had an outstanding year so far and should keep it up."

Seminole unlimited grappler—325-pound Eric "Shamus" Martin—is the only other player Sherman seeded. Martin, a first year wrestling junior, is 4-2 for the year.

"We could have had more seeds, but a couple of our guys are going down in weight, which should make us that much tougher," points out Sherman. "They didn't have that much weight to lose since they were 'wrestling up' for the team anyway. It shouldn't hurt them."

Two of the Seminoles—seniors Gary Gonterman and Mike Thorman—carry impressive credentials at their present weight. Gonterman is 5-1 at 187 pounds. He will drop to 169 for the tournament.

Likewise, Thorman is 5-1 at 169. He will drop to 157 for Friday's matches. Junior Ronnie Watson, 5-1 at 107 pounds, is expected to do well in the tournament as is junior Vince Clark, also 5-1 at 120 pounds, and senior Tony Williams at 134.

Wednesday night, the Seminoles traded forfeits at the lower weights with Wymore Tech before taking control of the match with nine consecutive triumphs.

Crooms freshman Eric Urena started the ball rolling with a second period attack of James Washington. Urena, a promising youngster, showed Washington the ceiling at 3:37.

After Kevin Tapscott picked up a forfeit victory, Clark pinned Milton Wilcox to give the Tribe a 24-6 edge. Tony Williams (134) decimated Ben Miller, 10-5, and Woodget (140) put the match out of reach by nailing John Frazier at 3:55.

John Ellis (decision), Vince Williams (pin), Thorman (forfeit) and Gonterman (pin) closed out the Seminole scoring. In the unlimited division, Martin had a 4-0 lead before being pinned by Gary L. Foster.

"Eric had him where he wanted him, but his inexperience caught up with him. Sometimes when you get 325 pounds on its back, there isn't much you can do," observed Sherman.

eight good seniors plus a couple of others including Todd Andrew (second in the state last year at 147) transferred to other schools," pointed out LeClaire.

"But we're getting it back together. Bishop Moore pretty much knocked us out last year, but this year we wrestled with them although we lost."

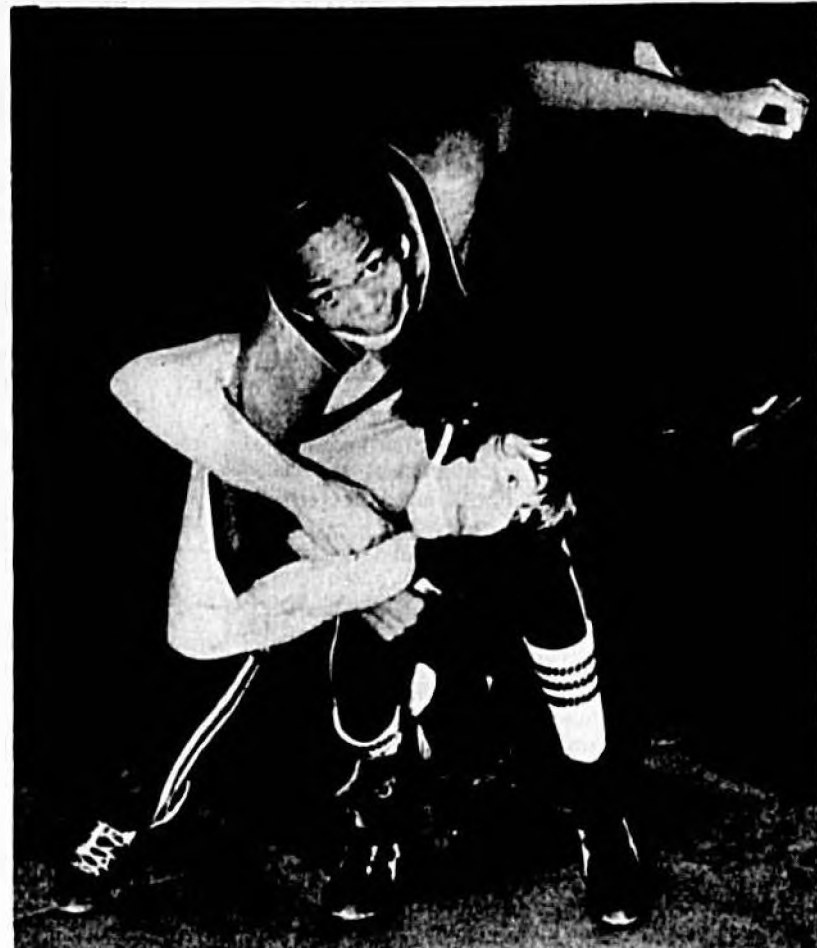

Helping the Silver Hawk resurgence have been two undefeated upper weight wrestlers. Senior Vic Dunlap is an impressive 4-0 with four pins. Dunlap is the fourth seed at 220 pounds Friday.

Footballer junior Dan Rae is 5-0 with three pins at 187 pounds. Both are two year grapplers. LeClaire feels both have a shot at the finals at the Christmas Tournament.

LeClaire has three more seeds with impressive credentials. Senior Joe Dutko, one holdover from the Schwartz era, is 4-1 with three pins. He is seeded third at 121.

Senior Jim Turner has wrestled at both 128 and 134. He is 5-1 with two pins. Turner is seeded fourth at 128. Senior Brent Hilde has made a nice adjustment from the junior varsity. The 134 pounder has a 5-1 record with four pins.

Both Horn and LeClaire are impressed with the Hornets going into the tournament. "They're real strong in the lower weights," says Horn. "But it's going to depend on what they can do after 140 pounds as to whether they can win it."

One of Seminoles victims this year—John Horn's Oviedo Lions—boast three young wrestlers that may surprise some people in the lower weights.

Oviedo's Mike Hilgar, a 107-pound sophomore, is 5-0 after dropping one weight class. "He's a pretty good little wrestler," said Horn. "And he's been tough to beat since he went down to 107."

At 100 pounds, sophomore Shawn Knapp carries the Lions hopes. Knapp is also 5-1. Another sophomore, Steve Berg, is given an outside chance by Horn at 114 pounds. Berg is 4-2. The three "super sophs" all contributed to Oviedo's 37-30 victory over West Orange Wednesday night. Knapp stuck Paul Meremid at 3:31 to get the match off on the right foot.

Down the road from Oviedo, another ex-UCF graduate and wrestler Pete LeClaire has been quietly rebuilding a Lake Howell program that dissolved somewhat when Frank Schwartz left. "When Schwartz left, they graduated

Buzzer Shot Beats Brantley

Boone junior Lennie Grace connected on a 23-foot jumper at the buzzer Wednesday night in overtime to lift the Braves over visiting Lake Brantley, 54-52, in high school basketball.

The loss was the fourth of the year for coach Bob Peterson's hardluck Patriots. They have won one. On Friday Brantley travels to Spruce Creek for a Five Star Conference game.

"That (Andy) Hungerford played possessed in the second half," said Peterson about the 6-2 junior's 24 point effort which led all scorers.

The Patriots broke open a tight game in the second quarter when they outscored Boone, 15-8. Brantley held a 12-point lead midway through the fourth quarter before falling apart.

Junior Craig Mateer hit an 18-footer to tie the game at 52-52 with just 10 seconds to play in the fourth quarter.

Withdrawal

Mays Shares Emptiness Afflicting Ali

NEW YORK (UPI)—Willie Mays has a message for Muhammad Ali. He'd prefer to deliver it to him personally, but until he can, he'd like him to know how much he shares the desolate feeling of emptiness the finally retired former heavyweight champ has to be experiencing now.

Mays wasn't in the Bahamas last Friday night where Ali found out for himself he was through and announced he was all finished, this time for good, after being beaten by Trevor Berbick. Nor did Mays see the fight on closed circuit TV.

That didn't make much difference. Eight years ago, when Mays retired from baseball at age 42, he was forced to endure the same excruciating withdrawal pain that the 39-year-old Ali must go through now. Mays knows how much that can hurt, how much it can take out of the heart and soul of any man who once was at the very top of his athletic profession and suddenly is no more, only because of his age and the normal toll of time.

Willie Mays' name always will be associated with baseball. He was the very epitome of the game itself for most of the 22 years he played it, the same as Ali was for most of the 21 years he fought. But Mays no longer has any official connection with baseball, a circumstance that translates itself into a tragedy and a shame, all because Bowie Kuhn ordered his disassociation from the game two years ago, only three months after he had been elected to the Hall of Fame. Kuhn took the action when Mays chose to sign a 10-year contract with Bally International, an Atlantic City hotel and gambling casino.

Like Mays, Ali refused to quit until it became physically impossible to continue anymore.

"Father Time caught up with me," he declared following his defeat by Berbick. "I'm too old."

Those words were all too familiar to Willie.

"I know how Ali feels now," Mays said on a stopover here Monday. "He'd like to go on and keep doing what he has been for the past 20 years, but he can't because his body won't let him. He says he'll never fight anymore and he has said that before, but I hope he means it this time. The damage already has been done."

By that, Mays explained, he meant Ali took more punishment than was necessary. "I know I wasn't the same ballplayer my last years that I was those 20 years before that," Mays confessed. "I didn't fool anybody. I always said the press here in New York gave me those two years for the 20 I gave them. I never wanted to quit, but what could I do? I knew it was time."

Even though he isn't in baseball anymore, not even so much as a ceremonial coach as he was with the Mets at the time he was banished by Kuhn, Mays still is a highly recognizable figure almost everywhere he goes. He doesn't get as much adulation as he did when he was hitting home runs, making those impossible catches and running out from under his cap with the Giants, of course, but he has learned to accept it, the same way Ali will have to do.

"I don't feel downhearted about that," he said. "Every generation has its heroes and I understand that."

Mays said he's happy now even though he's no longer in baseball. He can say that all he likes, but there's no question he'd be much happier if he had some kind of job, no matter what it was, inside the game.

"You don't think I miss baseball?" he asked in that familiar high-pitched voice of his that invariably would come through when he was getting a little emotional. "Of course, I do. When the commissioner said to me, 'hey, you're disgracing baseball,' you know how much that hurt me? They made me feel like I shot somebody and I know I never did that. I haven't done anything wrong. I have nothing to do with gambling. I see where one of the guys who bought the Phillies is the owner of a race track and put it into his wife's name, and that's all right for him, but they say what I'm doing isn't all right."

Mays revealed he thought of going to Philadelphia when the Phillies were playing the Kansas City Royals in the 1980 World Series so he could meet and talk with Willie Mays Aikens of the Royals, but thought better of it. He didn't want to be considered an intruder.

"I started to come to Philadelphia, but I said I wasn't invited, so I'm not going to embarrass myself," he said. "I did go to Philadelphia two different times this summer to see Pete Rose try to get his 3,000th hit and was there when he got it. I know Pete and I wanted to see him do it. I never went down on the field to talk to him or anything like that. I just stood in the stands. He saw me and he gave me the fist. We have a language of our own in baseball. I knew what he was saying to me when he gave me the fist. He was telling me thanks for coming. It was my pleasure just being there."

Rams Sweep Pair From Father Lopez

Unbeaten Panthers Seek Perfect First Half

Chris Marlette's Crooms Panthers can present their coach with an early Christmas present tonight at 6:30 when they take on the Oviedo Lions in a freshman basketball game at Oviedo.

After subduing Bishop Moore, 44-35, Wednesday night, the Crooms bunch stands at a glittering 7-0 for the year. No Crooms team during Marlette's four years has gone into the holiday break unbeaten.

At Bishop Moore on Wednesday, Marlette wasn't too pleased with 21-21 deadlock staring the Panthers in the face at halftime...so he let them know about it.

"I got a little hot at half," admits Marlette. "We went over there and weren't ready to play."

Panther center Kenny Gordon led a second-half surge which limited the Hornets to just 14 points—six of which were free throws—as Crooms rang up victory number seven.

Gordon had 16 rebounds on the night, seven of which came in the fourth quarter. He also picked off five enemy passes. Gordon scored eight points.

James Rouse led all scorers with 13 points. He collected 11 rebounds. Elsewhere in the county, coach Bill Moore's Lake Mary girls routed Daytona Beach Father Lopez, 64-32, at Lake Mary Wednesday night.

Freshman Kim Averill fired in 13 points and Linn Gregory added 11. Freshman Donna Peterson chipped in nine and a game-high eight rebounds.

"We were only up nine at half, so we went to a zone press and blew them out in the third quarter," said Moore about the Rams 23-4 surge in the third period.

The 4-2 Rams take on Pathway Christian at home Friday at 6 p.m. Coach Willie Richardson's boys team follows at 8 p.m.

Earlier Wednesday at Lake Mary, coach Bob Wagner's junior varsity girls remained undefeated by spanking Father Lopez, 63-19.

Allison Paterson threw in 23 points and Laura Hall totaled 17. The JV is idle until Jan. 7 when it host Seminole.

SEASON OPENS DECEMBER 26TH

Playoff Possibilities Pose Big Headache

Six teams have now qualified for the playoffs, and the games this final weekend of the regular NFL season will determine the division winners and the wild card teams.

MIAMI has clinched a playoff berth and will be the AFC EAST champion if they win over BUFFALO Saturday. The loser of that game will be the wild card.

The other wild card will go to the JETS if they win over GREEN BAY, or if they lose and SAN DIEGO also loses. If the JETS lose and SAN DIEGO wins, the CHARGERS get the wild card berth.

In the NFC, DALLAS and SAN FRANCISCO are champions of the EASTERN and WESTERN DIVISIONS, and PHILADELPHIA has clinched one wild card spot.

The CENTRAL DIVISION champ could be DETROIT, GREEN BAY, or TAMPA BAY, since all three have 8-7 records with the wild card slot going to the second best record or to the NEW YORK GIANTS, depending on how the bucket of worms finally turns.

ATLANTA is also in the running

Cliff Nelson

from a purely mathematical point of view. The possibilities are far too numerous to detail in less than 20 pages, but I believe that the second wild card team will be determined by the fourth tie-breaker rule, which gives the nod to the team with the best net points in conference games.

TAMPA BAY can be in the playoffs as DIVISION CHAMPIONS if they win, or get a wild card slot if they lose and both the GIANTS and the PACKERS lose. This gives them about a 75 percent chance on paper, but you won't find anybody giving you those kind of odds.

I have predicted that the GIANTS will lose and the PACKERS will win, which would give the wild card to the PACKERS if TAMPA loses. I get a bad headache just thinking of the other possibilities. Oh, for the good old days when there was no doubt about who the winners and losers were!

DALLAS (12-3) AT NEW YORK GIANTS (8-7)

The GIANTS will be trying hard to win this one so that they can still be mathematical contenders for a wild card slot.

The COWBOYS index out 9 points better, have a 7 point better offense at home, and a 4 point better overall offense. The COWBOYS have also won over common enemies by an average 5 points per game better than the GIANTS.

The GIANTS have a 2 point better defense at home, and a very slight edge with the home field advantage. Both teams have improved slightly over the last three games. I look for the GIANTS to become very stubborn with their defense. If DALLAS decides to save the first string for the playoffs, they might just lose by a few points.

I had to stay with the formula, however, which has DALLAS winning by about 12 points. BUFFALO (10-5) AT MIAMI (10-4-1)

This could very well be the best game of the week, since both teams are playing for the Division Championship and the home field advantage in the playoffs.

The DOLPHINS have the edge in nearly every statistic. They index out 3 points better, have a 6 point better defense, a 3 point better offense at home, and a 2 point better overall offense.

They have won over common enemies by 2 points per game better than the BILLS, and have improved over predictions by 8 points per game over the last three games. I think this will be a very hard fought game. The BILLS won over the DOLPHINS in Buffalo by 10 points, but MIAMI seems to have put their act together much better since then.

Their defense saved their bacon the past three contests, and I believe it will be good enough this time to win for MIAMI by about 8 points.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

DeLand Trips Lake Mary, 3-2; Rams Blank Lake Highland

Coach Walt Morgan's Lake Mary junior varsity soccer squad closed fast Wednesday at DeLand, but not fast enough.

The Rams dropped behind, 3-0, then rallied for two goals by Andree Sanders and Don Kelly, and had five more shots at the goal before falling, 3-2, to the Bulldogs.

"We played poorly for 70 minutes and you just can't make up a whole game in the last 13 minutes," said Morgan, whose club is now 4-2 and plays Seminole in the Boone Junior Varsity Invitational Dec. 28.

Danny Beck, subbing for an injured Jay Sapp, assisted Kelly's goal and "did a good job for us" according to Morgan.

On Tuesday, goalies Joe Dalton and Paul Ayala combined for a shutout as Lake Mary blanked Lake Highland, 2-0.

Sanders and Kelly had unassisted goals.

Burger King Fetes Gridders

Burger King Restaurants will honor the Seminole County varsity football players tonight at 6 with a banquet at the Eastmonte Recreation Center in Altamonte Springs.

The banquet will open with a hamburger dinner and will be followed by the awards ceremony.

Lucas Bucket Beats 76ers

By United Press International
New York's Maurice Lucas knows what his team needs and he was glad to provide it Wednesday night.

"We need to win tight games like this," said Lucas after sinking a layup off an offensive rebound with three seconds left in the game to lift the Knicks to a 117-115 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

"We have to come out and play with authority, play with some patience and play with a lot of smarts coming down the stretch," said Lucas, who finished with 18 points. "We made some good solid plays when we had to."

In other games, Boston drubbed Dallas 108-92, Chicago nipped New Jersey 98-97 in overtime, Washington topped Cleveland 106-102 and Kansas City downed Phoenix 97-81.

By MERLA MANOR

Winter Park.

Jill Wallace, a senior of Lake Howell High School, was honored by Pankhurst, Inc., as Woman Student Of The Year at the Dec. 8 meeting at Seminole Community College.

Jill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wallace of

With an academic record of 3.4 GPA in all advanced subjects, Jill is interested in attending Florida State University and majoring in Marketing and Fashion Merchandising, with the possibility of attending Law School. She is also interested in ROTC as an avenue to become an airplane pilot.

While maintaining her high grade average, Jill also works for Burdines as a Teen Board member. She is active in community affairs, particularly in fund raising for the Central Florida Zoo and the Humane Society. She has found time to participate in the peso Auction and to usher for the Edyth Bush Theater.

Larry Strickler, manager of Southern Bell, Bell, Sanford, spoke on the subject "The Changing Bell System."

"We, at Bell, have a strong affirmative action program," he said. "Fifty four percent of our employees are women."

"In 1978 we had 766 women in management. In 1981, we have 1143. We are proud of the equality in wages. Today identical work by men and women receives identical wages. This wasn't true 10 years ago. Then, women were paid less than men for the same work."

Strickler also spoke on Bell's efforts to keep charges for residential services affordable in competition with other aspects of Bell and with other systems.

Debra Horner will speak on "Women in the Third World" at the next meeting, Thursday, Jan. 14, 1982.

Zeta Xi Shares With Needy

The home of Deborah Partlow was the scene of a wine and cheese party held for members and guests of Zeta Xi Chapter recently.

Guests arrived in the latest toga outfits (sheets held together rather precariously) for a fun-time evening.

Members collected canned goods for donation to the Sanford Sharing Center and delivery was made prior to Christmas when baskets are made up by volunteers for needy families.

General Henry Sanford Museum-Library was the place of meeting for Zeta Xi members in November. Following a short business meeting, Mildred M. Caskey, curator, led the group through the library and told a short history of the life and times of General Sanford.

An appeal was made for donations toward a fund for building additional storage cabinets for memorabilia collected and held for further exhibits. Appeal was also made to members for any time they might donate to the library.

Frances McAdams was welcomed as a new pledge into the chapter membership. Ruthies have been invited to a tea in Deltona.

Hostesses Myra Michels and Maureen Haig served refreshments following the library tour.

Christmas parties were discussed. Valentine Girl Nancy Hack was in the Christmas parade Saturday. The adult Christmas party was also held Saturday, featuring a progressive dinner with members and husbands going to different sisters houses for each course.

The Children's Christmas party will be Dec. 20 at 2 p.m. There will be a covered dish dinner at the next meeting in celebration of Christmas.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, December 18, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY
December 18, 1981

This coming year you are likely to become involved in three important projects or ventures. Although they won't be related to one another, each has a good chance of succeeding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Just because you may be uncertain of achieving total success regarding a goal which is important to you, you should not use this as an excuse to discard it. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in our Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An ambition you've been keeping to yourself has a good chance of being fulfilled today, but be very careful not to hurt another's feelings in getting what you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to spend time today with persons who stimulate your thinking, even though your beliefs may conflict. Each can learn by exchanging ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be afraid to stand up for your rights today if you feel you're not being treated fairly regarding something to which you are entitled.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Considerable give-and-take may be required today in several important one-to-one relationships. Don't get off to a bad start by making unfair demands.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This should be a very productive day, provided you don't do things in fits and starts. Having too many irons in the fire will hamper your efficiency.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be very careful today not to turn activities which should be fun into competitive situations. Should you become too assertive, it will arouse the ire of your companions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) For sake of peace in the household today be sure there's agreement on ways the youngsters should be managed. Eruptions are likely if there are two sets of rules.

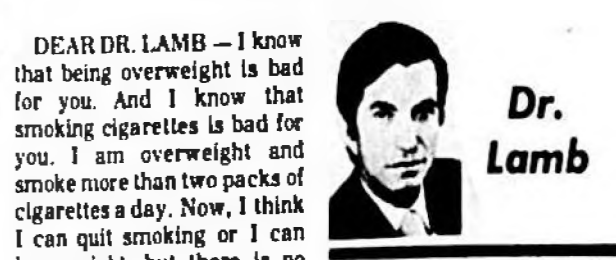

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you may feel your ideas and suggestions are better than your peers today, be careful how you present them. Use the soft sell.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your material or commercial affairs today you are likely to use prudent judgment in some instances while in others you could be far too extravagant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons in accord with your way of thinking will find you a very pleasant and amicable companion today, but any who challenge your ideas will see another side.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you may deem it distasteful, it would be wise at this time to remind one whose obligation is overdue of his or her indebtedness.

Stop Smoking Or Lose Excess Fat

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know that being overweight is bad for you. And I know that smoking cigarettes is bad for you. I am overweight and smoke more than two packs of cigarettes a day. Now, I think I can quit smoking or I can lose weight, but there is no way I can do both.

My wife is after me because she thinks I'm a prime candidate for a heart attack. She may be right. What I would like to know from you is which is worse, smoking or being fat? If I stop smoking I know I will gain even more weight and if I go on a diet I'll need to smoke more than ever. Have you any suggestions?

DEAR READER — I hate questions like that as you know perfectly well that both are important medical problems for you. It is like asking me which poison will harm you less.

You've asked it so I'll tell you that within reason cigarette smoking is a bigger risk for you than being moderately overweight. That is an average generalization with many exceptions. If your blood pressure is high or you tend to have high blood cholesterol levels, then losing weight could be more important. We are back to saying you need to individualize, not generalize, and it depends upon what your health findings really are.

Why don't you quit smoking first just to get started on a program. After you have stopped smoking you can then make a bigger effort to control your excess body fat.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-2, How to Measure Your Risk of Heart Disease, to give you some solid figures on risk factors. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. The three main risk factor are blood pressure, cholesterol and cigarette smoking. Both of the first two are often influenced by body fat.

Now, you don't have to wait to start a fat-control program. Start a walking program right away. When you feel the urge to smoke, go for a walk. The walking will make you feel better and will help you keep from smoking. It will also start using some calories for you. As you build up your walking program it may solve the weight problem in time for you, too. In other words, walk, don't eat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a widow, age 70, and have lived in Oregon for two years at over 4,000 feet. I feel I should be acclimated to the high altitude by now. But sometimes I feel I do not get enough oxygen into my lungs. I often have spontaneous spells of sucking in several bits of breath, while just sitting reading or being quiet. I moved up here from Los Angeles to get out of the smoggy conditions that existed where I lived. I thought it would be better for my lungs. I don't smoke and never have.

DEAR READER — You might want to have a medical examination to see if you need your lung capacity checked. If you are having any problem it is not caused by the altitude.

At 5,000 feet or less the decrease in oxygen in the air is so slight that it has little effect on the body. Our blood oxygen uptake system is engineered so that it will still pick up almost as much oxygen as it normally carries at sea level, even though there is a slight decrease in oxygen in the lungs.

South's jump to five notrump was a modern version of the grand slam force.

He knew that his partner had cue bid diamonds and South wanted to be in seven if his partner could show just the queen of trumps. North's six club response showed poor trumps. With better trumps he would have bid six hearts. With two of the three top honors (an impossibility), North would jump to seven spades.

In any event, South is in six hearts. He wins the diamond lead in dummy and plays the deuce of hearts. East plays the five and now comes the safety play. South must cover with the six and not play the ace or king.

His only worry is a 4-0 trump break. The play of the six guards against this.

Suppose that West held all four trumps. In that case East would have shown out. South would play his king and lead toward dummy's back.

Suppose that West had led from a seven-card diamond suit and could get in with the queen, 10 or nine of trumps to give his partner a ruff and set a cinch contract.

Possible, but a 7-1 diamond break is a 3 percent chance; a 4-0 trump break a 10 percent one.
