

SHS Students Answer Teen-Age Pregnancy Query By LEONARD KRANSDORF

Herald Staff Writer

Do you think teen-age pregnancies are a rarity? If you do, think again. It is estimated that half of all U.S. teen-agers are sexually active and more than one million girls under 20 get pregnant each year, according to the National Alliance for Optional Parenthood.

And Seminole students seem to be aware of how sexually active teenagers are, at least according to a Seminole High School health class surveyed today. One question asked of the class was: Do you think teen-age pregnancies are rare?

"No, teen-age pregnancies are not unfamiliar because if you look around school, one out of 20-30 girls is pregnant," said one 16-year-old girl, when asked if pregnancies are Another 16-year-old girl said, "No way! Half the people you see are either pregnant or have been pregnant at one time or another." Only one of the 21 students said he thought teen-age pregnancy is a rarity. "I just do not see many, but there might be," said the 17-year-old male student.

And the class listed several reasons why teen-agers are sexually active. "They do it because they say 'I will do it this one time and will not get pregnant' and then they turn around and get pregnant," said a 16-year-old girl. "Most teen-agers do not think ahead," said a 17-year-old female. "Some just think it's fun," said a 15-year-old

"At this age, boys have a feeling of proving themselves and the girl wants to have a boy to feel wanted and do things because of love," said one 16-year-old female. There were mixed reactions from the students as to whether students like to brag about sexual exploits and whether they have sex so they will look better in their

Romance Not Dead Come February 14 By JANE CASSELBERRY Herald Staff Writer

Romance is not dead t least not on Feb. 14 (Wednesday) when seems to experience a revival each year. But sweethearts and lovers are in the minority when it comes to sending valentine greetings these days, according to some of those who sell and manufacture the cards.

"Family valentines go first and then they buy whatever we have left. Sweetheart cards are the last to go," according to the clerk at Jeola's Gift Shop in Casselberry. Children mostly buy the valentine assortments in large boxes. she added.

The peak day for sales is the day before Valentine's Day, according to Elaine's Card and Gift Shop in Sanford Plaza, as husbands wait until the last minute to buy their valentines. Men buy more cards for Valentine's Day than any

"I know the guys like to talk about it. The girls talk, but not as much as the guys," said one 17-year-old girl. "My girl isn't afraid to talk about anything.

"Well, some of my friends have their own way," said one 18-year-old girl. "Some of my friends are shy about it. some don't care who knows, so it's both ways, really." "Most of my friends don't talk about it, we don't see why we should share this information. We feel its personal," said one 16-year-old girl expressing another point of view. Some of the students believe the fault rests with the parents.

"Yes, the parents say how bad it is, and it just makes the child go out and try it more," said the 17-year-old girl. "If the mothers weren't so strict, then I don't think most of the children would go out and get pregnant," said another girl.

Another 17-year-old girl said, "I think the parents should talk to their children more about sex and the do's and don'ts. If children understand the chances of pregnancy, then maybe they will stop and think. Parents should be more strict."

"From the parents' view, being strict on a child is the best way of her not getting pregnant," said one 18-yearold girl. "But, on the teen-agers view, she has not been in the world and she wants to know what goes on, then she has several contacts with some male and gets pregnant. Then when she tells mom, she figures it is because she has let her out of the house and can't trust her, but it's the mother's fault for withholding her," the girl added.

However, a different view was shared by another 16year-old girl: "I know of some parents who are very bad on their children and so they do things to get back at their parents. But for me, if I wanted to do this I could, but I don't feel it is needed. I think more about school and life

Industry Must Try Harder

Granted all the possibilities opening up for trade with mainland China, it is more important for the United States to settle the problems afflicting its trade with the rest of the world.

The opportunity comes up this spring when the results of the "Tokyo Round" of international trade negotiations are presented to Congress. Four years of highly technical negotiations involving 100 countries have gone into agreements now nearly ready for signing. They amount to a new charter or series of codes to govern world trade.

The need for rules to assure free and fair trade among nations is obvious enough, but the Carter administration will need all the help it can get for passage of federal legislation required to put some of the agreements into effect.

The problem with trade legislation, besides understanding its arcane economics and vocabulary, is that so many members of Congress look at only one side of the street when they approach the subject.

They want to know what a trade bill is going to do to protect jobs and businesses in their home state from foreign competition. They are less likely to think about what the same bill will do to keep foreign markets open for American products.

Those markets are absorbing one-sixth of everything we grow, manufacture or mine in this country, which speaks for itself it terms of the jobs and volume of business dependent on our exports. This must be kept in mind when the new trade agreements are attacked, as they certainly well be. for not going far enough to satisfy those industries, such as steel and textiles, that have been suffering the most from foreign competition they regard as unfair.

Fairness is what Robert Strauss, the president's chief trade negotiator, thinks has been achieved in the new agreements.

They tighten up the rules aimed at preventing "dumping" of products on export market at an artifically low price, and would set up a sort of world trade court - something missing now - to settle grievances.

Nevertheless, Mr. Strauss must buck a tide of protectionism in Congress. We can hope for a trade debate that is more enlightened than emotional. one that separates fact from myth in analyzing why imports have made such inroads into markets once dominated by our domestic industries.

Complaining about "dumping" or that imports are priced low because of "cheap foreign labor," is not enough.

How much of the problem is of our own making - a lapse in the productive efficiency and aggressive marketing that once was our distinc-

The Volkswagen, for instance, was designed, built and marketed by Germans with a living standard similar to ours.

It was not "dumped" on our market, but succeeded here because Detroit slept through an automotive revolution.

Why is Japan now dominating a new growth industry - television recorders for the home? We are famous for innovative technology that creates new products, or at least we were.

The new trade agreements are essential to sustain a policy of free trade. The United States, as the world's largest trading nation, has the most to lose in the long run protectionism in our Congress shoots them down and retaliatory trade barriers begin to rise around the world.

If foreign competition is relegating some of our once-leading industries to a status of No. 2, a familiar advertising slogan offers some advice: Try harder.

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, has been appointed to a special Ad Hoc committee on legislative reapportionment. The committee's responsibility is to study and review all bills pertaining to reapportionment.

Two bills have already been referred to the committee. Brantley is a cosponsor of one of the bills. The bill he is co-sponsoring would be identical to the constitutional amendment which was on the ballot in the November election and failed along with other amendments.

The bill, if passed by the Legislature, would be on the ballot again in 1980. It calls for the creation of a seven member bi-partisan committee to reapportion the state into single member legislative districts.

Brantley said government closer to the people is the goal of single member districts rather than multi-member districts. He said the biggest opposition to the single-member district concept will come from Brevard and Dade Counties which have 22 representatives, elected from multi-member districts.

Another bill before Brantley in the special committee would have the reapportionment

Brantley said rumors are circulating in the halls of the Legislature that Gov. Bob Graham will be calling for a vote of ratification on the equal rights constitutional amendment (ERA) before March 15. Brantley said it is believed there are sufficient votes in the House to approve the amendment and only one vote lacking in the Florida Senate.

He said the proponents of ERA would like to see it ratified in Florida before March 15, the original deadline, in case the extension of time granted by the Congress for ratification is found to be unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court. When Brantley ran for office, he pledged opposition to ERA.

ANGLE-WALTERS Now This Is News

EASTON, MD. (NEA) - The instinctive reaction of politicians who spot a bandwagon headed their way is to leap aboard - without much guibble as to its destination. So when not just one but scores of politicians resist the impulse, that is news.

And that is what happened here last weekend when more than one hundred top elected Republican leaders who had gathered to seek consensus on a handful of major policy questions declined to endorse the concept of a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

The balanced budget amendment is the biggest, brassiest political bandwagon on the road right now. Some 25 or 26 state legislatures have already petitioned Congress to adopt such an amendment itself or call a constitutional convention to do so. If 34 states act, Congress will be forced to call a convention.

Republicans for years have been the principal advocates of a balanced budget, railing against the free-spending ways of the Democraticcontrolled Congress and the huge federal deficits SCIENCE WORLD which have resulted.

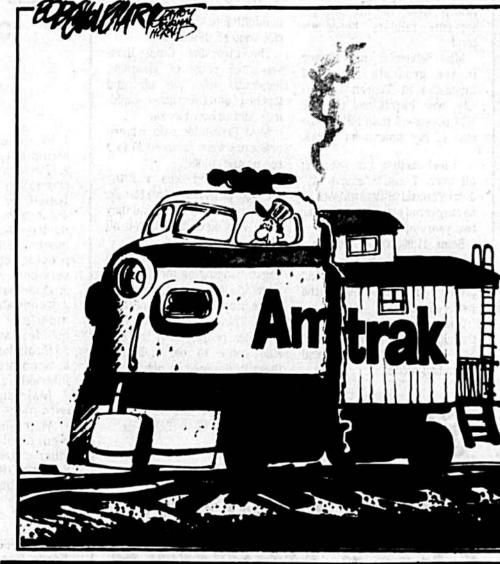

Yet most of the senators, House members and governors who came here for the second annual nformal issues conference at the Tidewater Inn refused to call for a constitutional amondment to By DAVID TUCKER require a balanced budget. Instead, the approved a call for an amendment to limit federal spending and urged that Congress, through its normal legislative process, balance the budget starting fiscal year 1981.

The consensus, interestingly enough, cuts across ideological lines, oblitering the usual right-left distinctions. Staunch conservatives like Sen. James McCluer, R-Idaho, and Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., joined moderates like GOP National Chairman Bill Brock and Sen. Jack Danforth, R-Mo., in opposing any constitutional amendment to balance the budget.

And most of those who took the opposite position argued political expediency, rather than abilesophic commitment. "I'm convinced this is a Republican issue and we're about to lose it." warned Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., one of several Unless we move aggressively," added freshman Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., "the Democrats may once again pre-empt our issue." Dole, Gingrich and others who echoed them may well be correct in their assessment of the political allure of a balance-the-budget amendnent. But doesn't make it good policy - which the majority of Tidewater II perticipants cknowledged, to their everlasting credit.

There are a millio onstitutional amendment to require a balanced underet is a lowery idea, but most of them are airly sophisticated and difficult to explain to a while paniched by inflation and erroneously convinced that unbalanced budgets are to blame. No matter how it is written, any constitutional mendment requiring a balanced budget is rought with perils.

VIEWPOINT With $$$ So Goes Influence By DON GRAFF

Even in hyper-inflationary times, $1.2 billion can buy a lot.

Quite possibly even the vast improvement in public broadcasting proposed by the latest Carnegie Commission report. In case you missed or skipped over the considerable attention to that document in recent news columns, it surveys the present and potential of noncommercial television and radio and comes up with a clutch of recommendations for restructuring them to better serve the public and "help the creative spirit to flourish."

Key proposals include replacing the existing Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the Public Broadcasting Service (themselves creations of a 1967 Carnegie Commission study) with two new bodies. A Public Telecommunications Trust would head the system with responsibility for administration and long-term planning. A Program Services Endowment, semi-automomous of the trust, would underwrite programming.

Funding would be increased from the current $1.2 billion by 1985, with half to come from federal appropriations. A major source would be lees raised from licensing commercial broadcasters. Facilities would be emanded to reach 90 percent of the U.S. population. *

As the Carnegie Commission sees it, the result would be a communications service for the viewing and listening publics that "can illuminate the dark corners of the world and the dark corners of the mind. It can offer forums to a multitude of voices... Above all, it can add to our understanding of our own inner workings and of one another.

Well, maybe. At the very least, the report's authors are certainly flourishing creatively. But without doubting their sincerity or dismissing the basic conclusions, questions might be raised concerning some points and assumptions. Commercial television, for example, comes in for scathing criticism for its concentration on "audience maximization" and for denying Americans "whan other societies consider vital: a flourishing public communications service uncensored by commercial imperatives."

No argument, but it should not be forgotten that the creative spirit has been known to flourish in commercial broadcasting, particularly in the early days when money was in shorter supply and commercial considerations were for that reason no less imperative. Much that came out of that era is now considered classic - Sid Caesar's "Show of Shows." Ernie Kovacs, the long-run "Omnibus," the last perhaps yet to be excelled in bringing culture to

Sabotage Blamed In Wreck,

Train Slams Warehouses

OAKLAND PARK. (UPI) - A sabotaged switching device apparently caused a Florida East Coast freight train to jump the tracks shortly after midnight and slam into nearby warehouses, railroad officials said.

"The cause is evident. It was an act of sabotage: there's no question about that," said Thomas Johnston, general superintendent of the FEC's Hialeah terminal.

Oakland Park police said about 22 cars of the 70-car train left the tracks at 12:05 a.m. Three FEC crewmen sustained minor injuries and were taken to Northridge Hospieal for treatment.

Two Die In Yacht Race

MIAMI (UPI) - Sailors know they are expected to battle the elements but this time the elements won as the compatriots of Tom Curnow believe he was the second man to die in a Florida yacht race within the last two weeks.

Curnow, 37, of Fort Lauderdale, fell over the side of the sloop Pirana Friday night in rough Atlantic seas as the boat sailed in a Southern Racing Conference race. The Pirana returned safely to Miami Saturday but Curnow's body has not been found.

Curnow's presumed drowning comes on the heels of the death of Obsession crewman Tom Curtis, who was killed when the ship's mainsail boom struck him in the head during the previous SORC race. They are the first fatalities since SORC was founded in 1951.

Police Agent, Wife Killed

FORT MEADE (UPI) - A former confidential informant for the Polk County Sheriff's Department and his ex-wife a teacher, died late Sunday from gunshot wounds inflicted earlier in the day.

Barry and Jo Ann Branch, both 26, were found in a mobile home Sunday morning by deputies called to the house by someone who told police "there was trouble there," sheriff's department spokesman said.

The Polk sheriff's office said Branch used to work undercover buying drugs for the department.

The department said the deaths are still under investigation and were no suspects at the present time.

Wealthy Want To Limit Tourists

PALM BEACH (UPI) - A wealthy town councilman who operates two New Jersey wholesale food products firms from his Palm Beach home wants to impose tolls of at least $2 on the cars using bridges into this island playground.

Walter L. Rathburn, 69, also says he wants the town council to ask the state to hand over control of State Road A1A through Palm Beach to limit tourist travel on that highway. "I want the town for residents," Rathburn told Town Manager George Frost Saturday. "My God, the traffic is at a crisis level. Do you know that about 30 percent of the cars over here are tourists and sightseers and gawkers?"

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Bear Bryant Injured

In Bathtub Tumble

NORTHPORT, Ala. (UPI) - Paul "Bear" Bryant, football coach of the University of Alabama, was reported improving Sunday at a hospital here where he was being treated for a cracked rib and bronchitis. University spokesman Tony Giles said

Bryant's physician, Dr. Hayse Boyd, had told him that Bryant's endition was good.

Giles said Bryant fell last week as he was getting out of a shower and apparently cracked a rib. After several days of pain Bryant sought medical attention and doctors discovered he had a respiratory problem. Bryant was admitted to the West Alabama General Hospital Saturday.

Dodgers, Trojans Tie

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The Los Angeles Dodgers and defending NCAA champion Southern Cal played to a sixinning, 0-0 tie Sunday before 35,000 non-paying fans at Dodger Stadium.

Both teams used four pitchers in the exhibition contest, with the Trojans collecting four singles off Dave Patterson, Paul Bain, Tim O'Neil and Charlie Hough. The Dodgers were limited to five hits.

Boston U. Eyes Beanpot

BOSTON (UPI) — Defending champion Boston University meets Boston College in the finals of the 27th annual Beanpot tournament Monday night for the hockey championship of Boston.

The Terriers are in the finals for the 16th consecutive year, having won the trophy nine of the last 15 years. BC has not beaten BU in the last 10 meetings, since the 1976 Beanpot final.

In the consolation game, Northeastern meets Harvard. BU is No. 1 in the East and a solid favorite to win their 11th Beanpot. BC has won the second most titles (nine), but the 6-10 Eagles are struggling.

Dawkins Sparks Victory

By United Press International Boston Listening to Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham, one would think he attaches great significance to the 76ers' 107-99 victory over the Atlantic Divison-leading Washington Stars 0 Bullets Sunday. "I have a great deal of confidence in this team," he said. "There's some doubt sometimes. We have our share of peaks and valleys, but if we play at the level we did today, College especially on defense, that's the key to the playoffs."

Darryl Dawkins, starting in place of injured forward Julius Erving, scored 24 points and Eric Money, whom Philadelphia obtained in a trade to replace injured All-Star guard Doug Collins, chipped in with 15 as the 76ers cut the Bullets' lead to four games. Collins will undergo foot surgery today that will sideline him for the rest of the regular season. The 6-foot-11 Dawkins, starting up front with 7-foot-1 Caldwell Jones, found the outside to his liking. He canned four shots from 20 feet out in a 13-point third quarter that helped the Sixers build an 84-67 lead, which was needed to withstand a fourth-quarter Washington rally that cut the margin to six.

Ceitics 107, Knicks 102

Chris Ford scored 24 points and Dave Cowens added 29. Boston, 21-20 under Cowens. is now one-half game behind New York in the Atlantic Division standings.

Pacers 110, Bulls 106 Mike Bantom hit 20 of his game-high 25 points in the first half and Ricky Sobers added 20 as Indiana snapped a threegame losing streak. Artis Gilmore had 20 for Chicago and Mickey Johnson added 18. Bucks 126, Nuggets 87

Junior Bridgeman scored 20 points. Six other Bucks scored in double figures. Johnson Denver and scored 12 points. Reserve forward Tom Boswell led Denver with 16.

BSP Names Charity Ball Benefactors

By DORIS DIETRICH OURSELVES Editor

Beta Sigma Phi (BSP) is tradition - and progress. It is preserving and promoting culture. And love and charity - and that's what the international sorority is all about.

For years, the local BSP chapters and City Council. have sponsored a February Valentine Ball with the proceeds going to charities or deserving non-profit organizations,

And 1979 is no different. In the past, there have been kings, queens and honorary ball chairmen. BSP has raised thousands of dollars for deserving causes.

According to Helen Hamner, president of the BSP City Council, proceeds from this year's ball will be directed to Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, the Henry S. Sanford Memorial Library-Museum, and a Sister Charity Fund. Each BSP chapter and City Council is represented by a Valentine Girl. One will be chosen as the reigning BSP queen at the Valentine Ball, Saturday night, Feb. 17, at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 2404 S. Oak Ave., Sanford, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The queen, who will be chosen by the Orlando BSP Executive Board, will be announced at the ball.

Tickets ($10 per couple for the formal BYOB event) are available from any BSP member, or by calling Pat Van Winkle, 322-8030. Mixers will be available. Music will be under the command of John Sauls Jr. and "Skylark."

Preceding the ball, Betty and Bill Jack will entertain the Valentine Girls and invited guests at a cocktail party at their Glenway Drive home.

Jane Akers (top) and Karen Wallace of Theta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, study the colorf poster telling all about the big Valentine Charity Ball coming up Saturday night.

CPAs Income Tax Advice Knocked For A Loophole

DEAR ABBY: Referring to the letter from a Florida CPA: He amended your advice to the woman who asked about the seriousness of her husband's practice of pocketing part of his daily income.

The CPA quotes you as saying it was indeed a serious offense, and her husband could be fined shop sounds like a clip joint. or jailed or both. Your comment: "Leave it to a CPA to catch the omission." TV HIGHLIGHTS Well, the CPA is correct up to a point; however he didn't go far enough either! Had he read Section 6013(e) of the Internal Revenue Code, he would know that the spouse is relieved of liability under certain conditions.

On omitted income, it reads: "The other spouse establishes that in signing the return he or she did not know of, and had no reason to know of, such omission."

C.J.S.: TAX CONSULTANT VENTURA, CALIF. DEAR C.J.S.: Leave it to a California tax consultant to find a loophole that was overlooked by a CPA.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to complain about barbers who charge bald-headed men and those with full heads of hair the same price for haircuts. She thought the baldies should pay half price.

You replied, "So how much should the barber charge the man with long hair that requires twice as much time for a haircut? Sorry, it all evens out. Anyone who feels that the trimming he's getting isn't worth the trimming he's getting should stay out of barber

Trying To Make His Father Stop Smoking

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 12years-old and I am writing to you about my dad. A couple of weeks ago I found out my father has emphysema from cigarette smoking. The doctor told him to stop smoking. Otherwise, he's eventually going to die. Now my father is only 30 years old and I am frightened of what is going to happen to him. I've told him not to smoke, but he won't listen. What should I do?

DEAR READER - I wish there was a good answer to your I was pretty and very healthy. uestion. People are responsible for their own health. Doctors can't make a smoker stop smoking cigarettes and, unfortunately, neither can the person's family

The individual has to decide himself that he wants to stop smoking. You might be a very significant factor in helping your father to decide to do this. Why don't you just tell him that it's important to you that he live a long life, that you'd like for him to be around when you grow up and have children of your own. Tell him you don't want to grow up without a father. If he knows you love him and that it's important to you, it may be just the push he needs to the chest forward improves the help him kick the habit.

DEAR READER - It's no laughing matter, but don't xpect much help from those highly advertised products that you have seen. They don't actually increase the size of the breasts. Some of the exercises that go along with such plans develop and strengthen the muscles behind the breast, and it is the enlargement of those muscles, not the breast itself that may improve a woman's appearance.

Computer Voting? Aye From County, Nay From Mrs. Bruce

By DONNA ESTES erald Staff Writer

Seminole County could convert to an ultra-modern computer punch card system of voting by the March 1980 presidential preferential primary, according to Jeff Etchberger, director of the county office of management, analysis and evaluation (OMAE).

However, the idea is meeting with opposition from the county supervisor of elections Camilla Bruce, who said she was not consulted about the new system.

The new method could cut the cost of voting machines by as much as 90 percent, said Etchberger, displaying a two-foot aluminum and molded plastic board on which voters could punch out their choices on computer cards with a metal stylist.

The OMAE director said the system is currently used in several Florida counties including Dade, Brevard and

The county's 178 current voting machines are in good working order and Mrs, Bruce said she doesn't see anything wrong with the current system.

The proposed attache case-sized "votamatic" has no moving parts and would cost nothing for maintenance and present no storage problems, Etchberger said. The piece of equipment on display in the county commission conference room is one of several types of equipment the commission has been looking at with a view toward conversion by early 1980, he said. The votamatic would cost about $260 per unit, compared with about $3,000 per unit for a conventional voting

According to law, the county would have to have 460 of the new units at a cost of slightly more than $100,000, he said. The results would be tallied by an in house computer, which is already on order and which would be used for other county functions and is expected to arrive later this Etchberger said the voting machines on hand could be

Guardsmen Ask Sanford: Pay Us

By TOM GIORDANO Herald Managing Editor

Two street department employees have officially asked for monies they say the city of Sanford owes them for time spent over the past several years training with the Florida National Cuard. Just how much that amounts to could not be

And whether the city is obligated to pay the not be known until the city attorney researches the matter and advises the city.

The issue came to light in recent weeks when Seminole County officials said they would seek an amendment to a state law which requires municipal and county employers to pay their personnel full salary for any time spent on military training with the Florida National Guard.

Knowles said when he read that the county men for that purpose beyond one year ago will was going to seek a change in that law, expressing a preference to continue the partial-pay practice, he asked City Attorney C. Vernon Mize Jr. to look into the matter and advise the city.

Mize's advice was to have the city commission formally adopt a policy of paying full salaries to national guard personnel for that period spent training, regardless of how much the guard pays them.

Seminole County, as well as the city of Monday, city commissioners followed that Sanford, have not been complying with that advice unanimously and revised the partial-law. The county and Sanford have paid their pay policy for city employees attached to the
