Tax Changes Will Save U.S. $134 Million A Year

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Treasury will save $134 million a year from a major change in taxes on capital gains that House and Senate conferees have agreed to.
Conferees agreed Friday to increase the length of time an asset such as land or stocks must be held to qualify for the favorable capital gains tax treatment, from the current six months to nine months in 1977 and to 12 months in 1978 and thereafter.

At the same time, the conferees agreed to raise the amount of capital losses that a taxpayer can deduct from ordinary income each year. Currently, tax law allows a person to use the investment losses to offset up to $1,000 of salaries and other regular income. The conferees agreed to raise the limit to $2,000 in 1977 and to $3,000 in 1978.

Trent Lowers-Temperatures By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Warm, humid weather in the East was separated from cooler, drier weather in the West Saturday by a strong cold front moving steadily across the Plains and Great Lakes

Late Friday night, temperatures had dropped into the 40s and upper 30s over the Northern and Central Plains and had cooled considerable in the western Great Lakes

The cold front also was responsible for thundershowers from Michigan to West Texas. Scattered showers and thundershowers were also reported from New York and southern New England to the middle Atlantic Coast and over portions of the southern Appalachians and Florida.

2. Do you favor an ordinance requiring impact fees?

ALEXANDER - Yes, if urgently needed at times of high growth rate for additional classroom capital outlay to avoid crowding. County government should operate within current income for other expenses.

BINFORD - Any fee-collecting procedure or directive should be initiated

DEVIESE - There is an impact on our school system every time a new residence is occupied with children. I will work to ensure that our school system does not absorb a time-lag cost of education. J would favor an ordinance requiring impact fees that school board needs.

DORFMAN - Yes. FRENCH - I favor some form of impact fees. Ordinance can be initiated if we eliminate politics and take common-sense approach; planning is key as is ability to make a decision. Closed-door decisions must be eliminated.

GUNTER - This would be taken under advisement and study done to determine constitutionality.

HATTAWAY - If present taxing laws de not allow for the adequate funding of our budget and a legal impact ordinance can be drafted that is equitable to all, I would favor it. KIRCHHOFF- Yes, if done in an equitable manner. The citizens should not have to bear the burden of accelerated PERRY - I favor the concept of impact fees and would support a fair and equitable cooperative city-county ordinance that would apply to all county development. This would reduce fees to a more reasonable level without reducing revenue.

TYRE - If we are to have impact fees, they should be legal. WILLIAMS - I favor impact fees, but not based on current method (stop-gap effort to offset unanticipated growth). County comprehensive plan should be designed for growth county taxpayers want and can afford. When new development requires public facilities not included in the capital improvement programs, they should be assessed for difference between what is included and budgeted and what they will require for their development. Also, when a new development requires the CIP schedule to be accelerated, they should be assessed this difference.

--- Cordidates in the Sept. 7 primary for the Seminole County Commission answer questions here dealing with some of the key issues facing the county and area. The questions were prepared by The Evening Herald and Sunday Herald in conjunction with the League of Women Voters.

> 3. Do you favor the expansion of the county's role as operators of sewer and water facilities?

ALEXANDER- Not on the basis that the county has entered the field, acquiring two private utilities that will probably require the rates to be increased 30-40 percent to cover operations and costs. The county could enter the utility business where public health or need exists.

BINFORD-Initial entrance of county into sewer and water business has been sloppy at best. Poor business acumen was displayed in recent acquisition of Indian Hills and Consumers Utilities Corps. The only time county should take over a utility is when that entity is in such a state as to be detrimental to citizens. DEVIESE - I would not favor such an expansion unless it could not. But that's what commission has done. FRENCH— As population increases, the need for sewage disposal in lieu of single septic tanks is necessary. The water needs are of first importance, yet there are large areas of our county where potable water cannot be obtained with individual wells.

GUNTER- Only after a study has been made, could we discuss this intelligently. After looking at Altamonte Springs' sewer system — federally funded — I would lean toward the county taking over as operator. HATTAWAY- There is no question that there are many ad-

PERRY- I am opposed to expansion of county's role as operators of sewer and water facilities through purchase of privately owned and operated systems. I believe we must look ahead to the regional concept of sewer and water facilities; the county does have a responsibility in this area.

DEVIESE - Yes. A periodic review of the effectiveness of county programs, agencies and advisory boards should be undertaken. Many programs outlive their usefulness and tax money is wasted in a non-functioning bureaucracy.

DORFMAN - Yes.

FRENCH — If the present commission was effectively doing its job, these reviews would be automatic without a "requirement need." What we have now is an overlapping of duties which is so complex that the waste is unknown. An efficient work force can be obtained with mutual trust, understanding and cooperation.

PERRY - I believe that by monitoring the effectiveness of our county programs, agencies and advisory boards we can avoid wasteful spending. Efficiency and economy in government is the only alternative we have to improve services without raising taxes.

TYRE - Yes. All county programs should justify their existence.

WILLIAMS - This is absolutely necessary for local government to be open, effective and respected. I have been working on such a program and will be presenting it to the commission this year.

5. How do you think depart services should be provided for in the county?

ALEXANDER- The county should never have let legal expenses reach this amount by contract with any attorney. I full-time staff attorney without outside practice could be established for about half the current cost.

BINFORD- The position of County Attorney has been a partisan plum ever since Harold Johnson left that position. When the Republicans had controlling vote on the county commission and appointed the county attorney, Democrats cried "politics" and "foul." Likewise, when the Freeman-Hattaway group gained control the Republicans were upset. I strongly recommend we consummate as in-house, full-time legal department. DEVIESE- Legal services for the county should be removed from the realm of politics. Taxpayer money is being spent to hire a law firm at a fee structure that is too high. A legal staff for the county should be created that is non-partisan and tax-

DORFMAN- This office must depoliticized. People of this nation pay their president $200,000 a year and the people of Seminole are paying their lawyers nearly this amount. We can find a non-political legal department for $70,000 a year. These funds would provide for two lawyers, two secretary-clerks, and sufficient operating funds.

FRENCH- A full-time county attorney and staff is the only answer if we are to save tax money and have trust among the attorney, commissioners, work force and citizens. The county attorney has to be our attorney 100 per cent of the time and this cannot be done with an attorney still in private practice. GUNTER- Like the other agencies within the county, I think a review should be made of county legal services. Nuclear Power Not For Pakistan

For Pakistan, which has no nuclear power plants, to insist that it must purchase a French nuclear reprocessing plant is like a farmer without a cow buying a churn.

Nevertheless, the United States is not engaging in overkill when it warns Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto that he risks losing U.S. aid if he goes through with the deal.

Bhutto has been quoted as saying that he would "never surrender to any nuclear blackmail by India. The people of Pakistan are ready to offer any sacrifice, and even eat grass, to ensure nuclear parity with India."

to eat grass, but their diets could be altered conto eat grass, but their diets could be altered considerably. The United States is supplying Bhutto with about $144 million in developmental and food aid and substantial military assistance. The loss of this aid would certainly leave Pakistan more vulnerable to the designs of India and her patron the Soviet Union despite Pakistan's symbolic possession of a plant that could produce the ingredients of a plutonium bomb.

However, diplomacy among allies rarely moves from extreme to extreme. As one philosopher noted some 30 years ago "There is nothing wrong with Americans except their ideals. The real American is all right. It is the ideal American who is all wrong."

On the issue of nuclear proliferation or in the business of foreign aid, the United States has always leaned more than a little bit toward the ideal American. We would venture that Pakistan will eventually get its atomic manhood symbol as well as U.S. assistance. It is not in the American interest to have a beggared Pakistan and it is beyond the ability of the United States to control international nuclear traffic for at least two reasons. First, too many of our allies are engaged in the business and, second, many of these countries are ahead of us in nuclear technology and are therefore more competitive. In fact, we couldn't even keep the cork in the bottle in 1946 when we did have an actual monopoly.

Today five members of the Security Council, as well as India, have exploded atomic bombs and an estimated 20 other countries could do so if they wished. By the same token there are 158 power reactors in the world, a tenfold increase in generating capacity in just 10 years. Sen. John Glenn estimated recently that some 30,000 pounds of plutonium are produced annually in just the underdeveloped countries, enough to make 3,000 bombs of the kind that devastated Hiroshima 31 vears ago this month

Yet the United States continues to act as if we still had a nuclear monopoly. There is nothing wrong with shaking a finger under the nose of Bhutto, but the real effort should be exerted among our allies who will sell nuclear technology without requiring inspections and controls by international agencies. And the effort should be in the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and wherever we have clout.

Another multilateral effort to lessen nuclear dangers may not succeed, but it is worth the effort. Or, as James Thurber said: "You may as well fall flat on your face as lean over too far backward." jobs and pensions.

A Good Balance

Taxpayers will find it difficult to criticize any move that makes it easier to put the finger on welfare cheaters and helps to track down runaway fathers.

A recent Senate vote would incorporate in tax legislation unde consideration a provision that would allow use of Social Security numbers for tax purposes, auto registration and licensing and in administration of welfare programs.

BERRY'S WORLD

There is a school of thought that holds that person's name can affect his personality. I suspect there's a lot of truth in that notion, and I am in a position to know whereof I speak.

Of course, since personalities are such nebulous and impressionable things, almost anything can affect them, from the pull of the moon to a sore toe. It seems only logical that having to carry around moniker stuck on you by people you never even met until you were born would tend to warp your

Now, how all this has affected my personality is a mystery to me, although I'm sure it has. Maybe someday in the future I'll go completely bananas and attack the editor's office while making ratetat-tat sounds with my mouth and hurling rotten ranges like hand-grenades.

Well now, 198 years after this sage advice, the U.S. Congress, in its infinite wisdom, decided to ignore it and passed the 1974 Trade Act setting up something called the International Trade Commission (ITC), the purpose of which is to 'protect" U.S. business from foreign competition, enact tariffs and, where "necessary,

U.S., North Korea Discuss

Plan To Separate Village

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) Representatives of the U.S.led United Nations Command and their North Korean counterparts met Saturday to discuss a proposal for partitioning this peace village into two camps to avoid any new clashes between American and North Korean troops.

The proposal was made by the North Koreans in response to U.S. demands that something be done to ensure the safety of American soldiers in Panmunjom, where two U.S. Army officers were bludgeoned to death last week by North Korean guards.

The Korean Military Armistice Commission, with representatives of both sides. met across 11.22 care table just 400 yards 1997 the site of the Aug. 18 melee. It was the third full meeting of the commission since the in

Terrorist Suspects Released

- water T de life been

ROME (AP) - Seven years after Italy's deadliest terrorist attack, two of the last suspects are being freed from prison because the government has failed to win any convictions in the case. Saturday's release of alleged right-wing extremists Giovanni Ventura and Franco Freda has renewed public debate on the problems of the Italian justice system and the government's inability to deal with terrorism

Forty persons, including suspected extremists from both the right and left, were arrested as a result of the Dec. 12, 1969, bombing of a bank on Milan's Piazza Fontana. The attack killed 16 persons and injured 100 more. Only one now remains in prison — a former agent of the Italian intelligence service who was arrested last month.

Forger Confesses

LONDON (AP) - "The master faker of the century" has confessed he painted 2,000 forged masterpieces in the past 25 years, but he says he left clues detectable by X ray that gave them away as phonies.

British artist Tom Keating, 59, said he painted the imitations in a one-man crusade to dupe and discredit dealers who he claims have

At a news conference Friday, Keating said anyone fooled by his fakes were "round the bend." He said the clues he left on his canvases included profanities that could be seen under X-ray examination and sometimes his own signature or deliberate mistakes. He admitted doing copies of Goyas, Rembrandts, Gainsboroughs, Renoirs, Turners and Degas.

Heroin Smugglers Sentenced

MOSCOW (AP) - As part of a campaign to stamp out the "Moscow connection," the drug route through the Soviet Union, a court has sentenced three American heroin smugglers to labor camp terms ranging from five to eight

Their Russian lawyers said after the sentencing Friday that they would file an appeal with the supreme court of the Russian federated state. But observers said there was little chance of a reversal.

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

Well, Since You Asked. .

Q. How many stolen bases does Lou Brock have up to date in his major league career? Do you think he will break Ty Cobb's cord of 882? - Raigh Layton, Walnut Creek, Calif. Coming into August, Brock's career figure was $39. That is nore bases stolen than anyone in history has accomplished at the age of 37. At a similar juncture, Cobb's total was 830. Cobb had also played 19 seasons versus 16 for the Cardinal speedster. I think Lou will prolong his career until he breaks the record — without extending himself, he has already swiped more than 30 bases this season so far. If he stays healthy, he could top Cobb in usually reliable sinkerball. And

Can you tell me who would be out? - Don Stoughton, Steubenville,

It happened this season, involving Rennie Stennett of the Pirates as the runner going to second. The umpiring team of Ed Sudol was at first divided on the call, with two of them saying the 1, and the Chilcago Cubs made up my mind I was going man on third should score. But they finally ruled that the runner was out at second, and the other runner had to return to third base. The umps later huddled with Fred Fleig of the National League and agreed that was the right call. "Once interference happens," explained Fred, "you have to call it at that very meone or what? - Mark DiBerardine, Amsterdam, Ohio. The U.S. Olympic team is administered by a committee for each sport. Usually there are qualifying standards before an athlete can be considered for the final Olympic trials held the same summer as the Games. My feeling is that if you're competing at least on a regional level and are good enough, you'll soon ome to the attention of Olympic Committee officials and be invited, for instance, to special camps for boxers. I find it difficult to believe a person could have Olympic ability and not get a chance, barring injury, to make the team.

Q. What ever happened to Scipio Spinks, who used to pitch for the Cardinals? - Mark Erustmann, Springfield, Mo. Scipio Ronald Spinks, who's not 30 yet and came out of Chicago, went the way of all bad arms. His brief major league career (four seasons) ended after 1973 with a 7-11 record. Last summer he was with Des Moines in Triple A ball but seems to strikeout performance in seven singles while Hunter sur-have dropped out of baseball sight. Q. If the Oakland Raiders were committed to getting a new kicker to take over for George Blands, why didn't they draft Chris Bahr of Penn State? And why did they have Blanda even come to camp when it's apparent Fred Steinfort will be the new man? I think George should have been given the chance to retire gracefully. — D.D., Alamo, Calif.

I don't want to get too deep into that can of worms. Bahr was available to the Raiders on the second round, and passing him over was supposed to be Al Davis' decision and led to the departure of Ken Herock from their personnel department. think the Raiders would have been happy to have Blanda retire gracefully. But George isn't the graceful type. Q. What is George Allen going to do with all his running backs, now that he has John Riggins and Calvin Hill signed as free agents? — T.R., Wilmington, Del.

It's the opinion of most coaches that you can't have too many running backs because they're an endangered species. Veteran Larry Browns' scarred and aged knees are still suspect. Mike Thomas had a brilliant rookie year, but he's not the biggest guy in the world. Riggins and Hill have shown they can gain 1,000 yards a season, and both are under 30. I think they make the Skins a strong threat to the dominance of the Dallas Cowboys.

Q. Can you tell me the names of the minor league prospects who will likely replace the five unsigned players in the Oakland letics' lineup next year (if Charles Oscar Finley does not sign free agents to replace them)? I mean, replacing Joe Rudi in left field, Szi Bando at third base, Campy Campaneris at short, Don Baylor at first and Gene Tenace behind the plate? — Henry Recadt, Antioch, Calif.

The A's are really in trouble. To the list above, add premis reliever Rollie Fingers, who may be more irreplaceable than all the rest. Charlie O. traded away his prime prospects in previous deals — e.g., second baseman Manny Trillo to the Cubs, outfielder Chester Lemon to the White Sox, outfielder Dan Ford to Minnesota. The only likely products down on the farm are a shortstop named Rob Picciolo and a first baseman-third baseman named Wayne Gross. The bicker is that, except for Reggie Jackson, there won't be too many desirable free agents around either. Jackson back to Oakland? How's that for a long shot?

Q. How many of the first men chosen in the NFL draft for each of the lest 10 years are now playing regular for their teams? GONE TOMORROW

I'm putting my home up for sale and in talking to the real estate agent he said I'd have to pay points when it sold. This would amount to $1,000. What are points and do I have to pay them? Points, or sometimes called a discount, is an adjustment that is paid to a lender to increase the return on money invested and applies usually to FHA and VA mortgages. Government regulations on FHA and VA mortgages do not permit the buyer to pay the points so, therefore, the seller must pay them. inventional mortgages usually do not have to be discounted because the interest rate and down payment is flexible. If a conventional mortgage is being secured and points should be required, the buyer usually pays this discount on the loan he is Discount points on FHA or VA loans are necessary because an investor who has funds to lend wants a higher interest rate on his money. Each point represents 1 per cent of the mortgage loan amount. Discount points are used to make these mortgages as desirable as other investments.

Ordinarily, each per cent of a loan that a lender collects in cash at the time the loan is made will increase the lender's efective rate of interest 16th of 1 per cent over the term of the loan. Suppose a buyer wants a $30,000 loan. One point would be $300. If the lender collected I point his rate of interest would increase to cent and only get 81/2 per cent on a VA loan, he must charge enough points to increase his yield to 9 per cent. The difference between 81/2 per cent and 9 per cent is 1/2 per cent. This is the same as four-eights; so the lender must charge the seller 4 points if a VA loan is to be made to the buyer.

If you don't sell on FHA or VA financing you eliminate a large proportion of prospective buyers who can only afford a small down ayment and need low monthly payments. nd your question to:

If you think your opinion counts for anything at all in this county and this state, you can do something about it Sept. 7th.

I happen to think

That's why we elect state legislators. That's why I'm running for House Seat 34 in the Democratic Primary.

Don't sell yourself short. Your opinion about the issues that affect your day-to-day living in Central Florida can be carried all the way to

What it takes, is somebody to listen to you. To honestly weigh the merits of your opinion. And to take the time and energy to represent that opinion fairly in our

I want the job of representing you and your opinion. I represent no special interest group. And I don't promise everything for everybody. But I'll listen. And work hard for a better Seminole County and a better Florida for all of us.

To do that, I need your vote on Sept. 7.
And, if elected, I'll need your opinions and suggestions. Please contact me at Newman Brock Campaign Headquarters —

Bryan his first piano lessons. His chief interest is in popular music, but he believes a good grounding in the classics is essential for success in both instrumental music and voice. As Bryan entered his teens - and after his voice had broken - he found that singing became his main interest - "the piano just helps me out." Audiences at Winter Park's Langford Hotel were enchanted recently when Harden performed on two weekend engagements, as well as several shows during the week. He has tried writing his own music and hopes to publish some of his work one day. "I've got one song — it's called 'To Vicki' — that's my favorite. I have a lot of faith in it," he said. His interest in singing led him to audition for a part in Seminole High's 1975-76 production of 'The Fantasticks.' He won the lead role. Later in the year, he gained a different experience as musical director for the school's production of 'You're a Good "But it was through 'Godspell' that I really decided on a theatre major," said Bryan. He played in the Act Three production of the musical which recently returned to Sanford

Trooper Ed Gillis spoke to the drivers on safety aspects, emphasizing:

"The most dangerous part of driving is the loading and unloading. Seventy per cent of the accidents that happen, take place at this time."

He urged parents to accompany young children to bus stops and to teach them safe conduct while waiting. When entering the bus, youngsters should hold the handrail and not rush up the steps. Leaving the bus can be hazardous, so no horse play should be allowed.

Close attention should be given to passing autos. "One mistake may be all you have a chance to get," he said. According to Woodrow Burnsed, supervisor of transportation, there will be a total of 170 buses on Seminole County roads, beginning tomorrow morning. "Last Friday, each driver had a dry run over his daily route," he said. The Seminole County Bus Drivers Association officers are: Audrey Bolger, president; Eather Miller, vice-president; Bobby Bradley, secretary; and Phil Stanley, treasurer.

All drivers agree the No. 1 priority, while driving, is safety and keeping control. They are a conscientious and friendly group, with a love for young people.

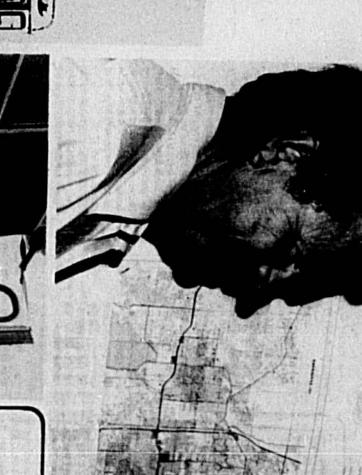

But above all, these school bus drivers have the ability to laugh — at themselves and with the children.

WALTER MONDALE AND JIMMY CARTER

Mondale Eases Into Spotlight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Slowly, even cautiously, Walter Frederick Mondale is easing into his new role as the Democrats' vice presidential candidate and a sudden national ce-

As a professional politician, he is accustomed to being on stage. But until Jimmy Carter brought him onto the ticket, he was not well-known nationally, despite a short-lived presidential campaign that ended nearly two years ago. Halfway through his first major campaign tour, which aides describe as a shakedown trip, a metamorphosis is taking place, as jokes are polished, a pace is set, and the candidate absorbs lessons from a variety of audiences. Before flying here for a day's rest, Mondale on Saturday issued his sharpest attack yet on the Ford administration, responding to the President's announcement of a list of issues on which he'll campaign.

The Minnesota senator said in Morton Grove, Ill., that the areas of jobs, housing, health care and education aid were Ford's failures, not his accomplishments, and boasted, "If he campaigns on that, the election's over and we have won." On Sunday, Mondale and his staff had a chance to take stock of his initial progress on the campaign trail and to prepare for several major speeches this week, including one

Richard Moe, the Mondale campaign director who was the senator's administrative assistant for four years, said the over-all opinion is that "he's doing quite well." "He's kind of feeling his way," said Moe, an admittedly partisan observer. "I think he feels confident with his new role, but it will take some getting used to and that will come with experience."

Mondale, like most candidates, has an unwritten list, so far fairly small, of jokes and stories to use as opening and closing lines in speeches or to make a point. Invariably, the speeches end with an invitation to the audience to journey to Washington for the Carter-Mondale inauguration, and the candidate tells his listeners that "-(fill in the name of the local politician at his side) will pay all of your expenses out of his own pocket." It always gets a hearty Mayors are given high praise, generally as "the best mayor" or "one of the best mayors" in the country. Top honors went to Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago. When Mondale flew approximately 1,200 miles out of his way to confer with Daley, he called him "one of the truly great mayors of our time and our country."

Showdown Expected On Legal Expenses

A showdown is expected Tuesday on whether County Atty. Tom Freeman should be asked to produce detailed information on $13,000 in legal fees charged as a result of last year's jail fire. County Commission Chairman Mike Hattaway said today County Commissioner John Kimbrough will have to ask the board to ask Freeman to provide the detailed information on fees as equested on Aug. 18 by Kimbrough.

Hattaway, who said he hasn't read a letter Kimbrough sent him last week, said the "board meets every Tuesday" and that the Republican commissioner can make his request at that time. In the Friday letter from Kimbrough, the commissioner asked Hattaway to ask the board to direct the county attorney to provide detailed information on the $13,000. In the Aug. 18 letter to Freeman, Kimbrough said bills were

"void" of detailed explanation. Freeman replied by telling Kimbrough to read the contract. According to the attorney, the mitract with the county does not require a detailed breakdown of te type requested by Kimbrough. Contacted today, Freeman said the issue will be left to the
