Longwood raises political stakes

LONGWOOD— An ordinance raising the amount of deposit a political candidate is required to make with the city clerk from $25 to $100 has passed on first reading.

A public hearing is scheduled for June 20 after which the city commission will take final action. If adopted, candidates may be more willing to pick up their campaign signs after the election since they will get their money refunded only if the signs are removed within a 14-day limit.

The ordinance bans signs from public property, road rights-of-way and utility poles or trees in the rights-of-way. It only passed 3-2 on first reading Monday because two commissioners said it was put on the agenda without their first having a chance to consider it.

Garbage pail kids stolen from auto

WINTER PARK— There was an unauthorized pickup of "Garbage Pail Kids" novelty cards from a car in rural Winter Park Thursday.

Marlen Clausen, of 2041 Sussex Road, Winter Park, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies eight boxes of the cards, which are collected and traded by children, were stolen from her car after 1 p.m. Thursday, outside Comics Etc., 1274-1425, Semoran Blvd. She said the cards have a total value of $75.

Popcorn banned from Mayo Clinic

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI)— Microwave popcorn has joined smoking as a no-no at the Mayo Clinic.

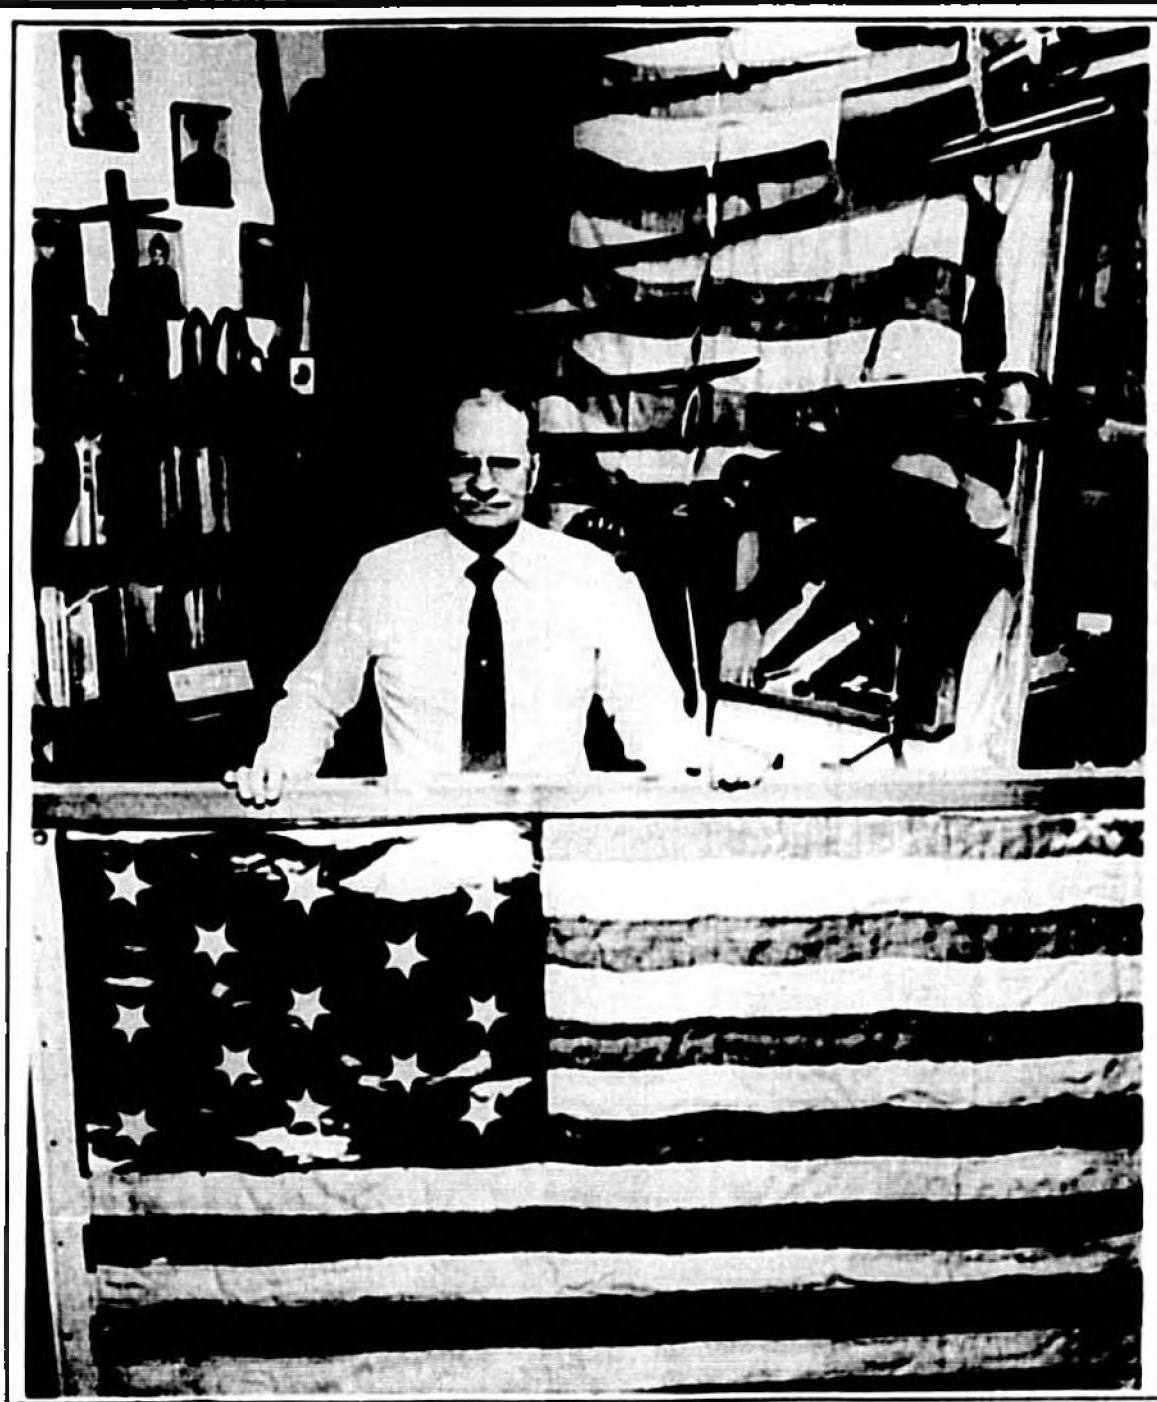

The famed medical clinic has banned the popcorn because the smell was too tantalizing for patients, a spokesperson said Thursday.

The action was taken after complaints from patients, some who were on restricted diets, and others fasting in preparation for tests.

Employees have been prohibited from popping corn in recreation rooms and microwave popcorn was removed from vending machines.

Meg Black, clinic spokesperson, said employees are having no problems in living with the ban.

Black said clinic officials found it was not fair for patients to suffer through an urge for popcorn.

Sanford man's 13-star Old Glory to be on display this Flag Day

By Joyce Herald

SANFORD— A 13-star U.S. flag which could be more than 140 years old, will be on display during Flag Day ceremonies planned to begin at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday at the new American Legion Post 53 Home, 2874 S. Sanford Ave.

Francis Tobin, a veteran of World War II and a collector of historic military memorabilia, owns the heirloom of our country's heritage.

Tobin, a former American Legion Post Commander, said he was given the flag several years ago by Charles Chappel, another former Post 53 commander.

According to Tobin, 10 to 15 years ago Chappel was working with a demolition crew in Orlando when he spotted the stars and stripes in a garbage container. He retrieved it and tried to locate the owners. However, Chappel's search ended when he learned the owner had died and relatives could not be found.

Tobin said the flag's 13 five-point stars are hand-stitched to the cotton flag. The stripes may have been stitched by a crude sewing machine, but Tobin said, "if this was sewn by a machine, they certainly are wobbly stitches."

He said everyone that has seen the flag is highly impressed with it. "It just takes one look at it to see it's handmade," he said. He points out the stars are hand-cut and the blue in the flag is frayed with age. Tobin said the flag is a

Longwood recall effort expanding

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD— All five Longwood city commissioners may soon be the subject of recall petitions if the chairman of the recall committee has his way.

Jack Stuckey said today it has been the committee's plan from the very beginning to seek the recall of Commissioners Richard Bullington, Henry Hardy and Ted Pooling as soon as they have served the required amount of time for a recall effort to be made.

Mayor Dave Ginter and Deputy Mayor Lyndon Dennis, who are three-fourths through their first term, are already the subject of a petition drive.

Stuckey said the three, who took office in January, by his calculations, will have served one-fourth of their first term by the third week in June and will be eligible for recall action. They were doing the same thing as Ginter and Dennis, Stuckey said. "What it boils down to is these folks don't follow the charter."

Recall petitions, charging Ginter and Dennis with malfeasance and misfeasance, were certified Tuesday by Sandra Goard, the county supervisor of elections, as having more than the required number of verified signatures.

There were 167 verified signatures on the petition to recall Dennis and 160 on recall of Ginter. Signatures of 19 percent of the registered voters or 149 names are required on the first petition and 15 percent or 628 names are needed for the second petition, which will include defensive statements from Ginter and Dennis.

Vogt wants to reform auto insurance rates

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald Staff Writer

TALLAHASSEE— Senate President John Vogt (D-Merritt Island) says the state needs to return to affordable mandatory automobile insurance for all drivers and that will be one of his goals if he is elected state insurance commissioner.

Vogt, 51, is retiring from the senate this year after 16 years in the District 17 seat, to run for state insurance commissioner. Insurance Commissioner F. H. Ginter has announced plans to run for U.S. Senate to replace the retiring Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Lakeland.

Former District 17 senator Lori Wilson, a Republican, has announced her intention to run for the seat Vogt is vacating. District 17 includes portions of Seminole, Orange, Brevard and Osceola counties.

Vogt said a bill passed by the Legislature this year requiring $100,000 property damage liability insurance for all drivers and adding stricter enforcement measures is a step in the right direction. But the state also needs to require mandatory bodily injury coverage as well, he said.

"I think the people want mandatory bodily injury coverage."

State grant would help preschool children

By Carol Rumsey
UCF Intern

SANFORD— Fifty preschool-age children whose parents cannot afford day care will be helped through a new Seminole County education program if the school board receives state grant monies totaling $175,000.

Board members approved a prekindergarten early intervention program Wednesday for submission to the state. The board applied but was denied funding last year.

Since February, a council made up of educators, business and community leaders and various child welfare agencies has met monthly to discuss the issue. The council studied Head Start, New York State Prekindergarten and Brookline Early Education programs.

They found the most cost-effective programs had targeted poor, handicapped and bilingual children. The programs succeeded in spurring cognitive and developmental growth of these children. The philosophy of the programs is based on the idea that a dollar spent now saves six spent down the road on remediation and correctional programs.

The school board now serves 378 children ages 3 to 5 through its Head Start Prekindergarten Low Income and Migrant programs.

Marton G. Daley, assistant superintendent for instructional services, said although she would like to see more done for this age group Seminole County is fortunate to have the current programs. "We have more than most counties do," she said.

And were unique in that our Head Start program operates under the school system.

According to the committee's report, 500 Seminole County children, including preschool-age children, are eligible for care but due to a lack of funds must

1,500-mile bike trip begins Sunday for heart association

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD— Four men, including three city residents, will begin a laborious 1,500-mile bicycle journey from Sanford, Maine, to Sanford Sunday morning to benefit the American Heart Association.

Jim Clark, John Lommerse and Dr. James Quinn, all of Sanford, along with Tom Clark of Manhattan, N.Y., will leave the southern Maine city at 7 a.m. and begin their quest to help raise money for the American Heart Association (AHA) to go to cardiac rehabilitation.

The three city residents, who are financing their trip, have already raised $3,000 for the AHA. Donations and pledges can be made by calling the AHA at 843-1330 or by writing the association at P.O. Box 5364665, Orlando, 32853.

The four bicyclists said they will end their trek June 26 at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, 401 E. First St.

The four will enter the city from State Highway 17/92.

"If we're not ready now, we never will be," said Quinn, 37, who has a family practice in Sanford and is vice president AHA Seminole County Unit.

Lommerse, 23, works for his family-owned Dutch Mills nursery. Jim Clark, 43, is a teacher at Tuskawilla Middle School. Jim's brother Tom, is a vice president with Chase Manhattan Bank in N.Y.

Jim Clark left from Orlando International Airport this morning with the three 12-speed bikes for Portland, Maine, where he will meet his brother.

"It's going to be a challenge," Clark said Thursday.

Quinn and Lommerse will leave Saturday afternoon for Maine and the four will leave the Sanford, Maine, Chamber of Commerce, Sunday.

Not rushing into INF treaty is wise

The best news to come out of the fourth superpower summit meeting was what did not happen — agreement on a strategic arms treaty. True, President Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev say they moved closer to a pact to slash long-range nuclear weapons by 30 to 50 percent, but disagreement on such issues as the president's well-founded insistence on the SDI anti-missile program kept the two sides apart.

The normally happy-faced Mr. Gorbachev was irritated over the failure of the two leaders to make such a breakthrough to follow on the recent pact banning intermediate-range missiles in Europe and the Soviet Union. But despite such media salivating over the chance the two leaders would crown their Moscow meeting with a strategic weapons pact, Mr. Reagan wisely declared that "I am dead-set against deadlines."

We're glad to hear him say that because it would be understandable for a president with only seven months remaining in office to want to achieve an arms agreement that would elevate his place in history. But Mr. Gorbachev knows that too, and he hopes to bring off an arms agreement that would free the Soviets to try to energize a virtual basket-case economy, hopefully with the aid of U.S. technology.

There can be no such pact until every possible loophole is closed since our long-range missiles are a vital deterrent against Soviet threats to our European allies that could result from the INF pact. Further, our arms experts must draft it with the full awareness that while Mr. Gorbachev may enjoy the full support of his Kremlin cohorts today, he could be managing a power station in Siberia tomorrow.

If the two leaders were unable to boast of concrete achievements, they could consider the meeting a success on a number of counts. Mr. Gorbachev gained the satisfaction of having Mr. Reagan apply the official stamp of his softened view of the rival superpower by withdrawing his contention, made early in his presidency, that the Soviet Union was an "evil empire." Time, of course, will tell.

For his part, Mr. Reagan successfully reached out to the Soviet people in speech and press conference remarks, supporting Mr. Gorbachev's reforms that inch toward freer political expression and free-market economic policies. In a speech to Moscow State University students, beneath a huge white bust of Lenin, he eloquently extolled our nation's tradition of free speech, free elections, free enterprise and an independent judiciary.

The president also repeatedly called for greater Soviet concern for human rights to a degree that annoyed his hosts. Miss Manners may have found fault with such comments, but they represented an imminently appropriate statement of U.S. traditions that deserved to be expressed in the international political arena.

At one point Mr. Gorbachev commented in describing U.S.-Soviet relations that, as the ancient Greeks would say, everything flows, everything is in a state of flux. That is true enough, and so is Winston Churchill's statement that the Soviet Union "is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma." It will ever be thus.

"Speaking of decaying infrastructure — WOW!"

Israel's economic health is improving

The last time I was in Israel, in 1983, much of the conversation concerned inflation, which was running at 190 percent. It reached 445 percent the next year.

But in Israel today the talk dwells on what the Arabs call the "Intifadah" and the Israelis call the "uprising" — that is, the turbulence on the West Bank and Gaza. The argument in Israel rages about whether Israel must negotiate "land for peace." One party says Israel needs peace more than land, the other says the opposite. The argument, compounded by the fact that most neutral observers don't see an Arab negotiating partner who could cut a reasonable deal with the Israelis and make it stick.

Is this one more impasse in what Israelis and Palestinians regard as a 40-year war? That, however, may be too pessimistic. The outcome of wars is not determined only on battlefields. Economics, demographics and politics play a role.

The wild inflation in Israel is gone; the rate has been below 20 percent over the last three years. Real wages, which had been falling, went up by 8 percent in 1986 and 1987. The Gross Domestic Product, which had been sluggish, went up a solid 4.6 percent in 1987. Analysts say it will stay over 4 percent this year. In March, Israeli exports topped the $1 billion mark for the first time.

All this has an impact on the 40-year war: Thus, Israel has demographic problems. Projecting high Palestinian birth rates leads many Israelis to reject absorbing the West Bank because that would yield an Israel that could be "democratic, but not Jewish" or "Jewish, but not democratic."

But a healthier Israeli economy can alter demographics. Fewer Israelis would leave, searching for economic opportunity. It also attracts immigrants. Hundreds of thousands of Jews may be able to leave the Soviet Union. What portion will go to Israel? More today than when the economy was a disaster.

If the Israeli economy moves into overdrive, even more immigrants will come.

That may happen. Across the political spectrum, on paper at least, Israelis agree that some of the old European socialist ethic must go. It will be a tough domestic fight, but it could yield more entrepreneurialism, investment and privatization — and less regulation, bureaucracy and taxes. That's not far from a supply-side recipe.

Economist Herbert Stein, my colleague at the American Enterprise Institute, has punctured some of the puffed-up claims of some American supply-siders. Yet, in a recent speech he said, "I believe the supply-side diagnosis and prescription are particularly applicable to Israel."

I spent some time in northern Israel in the mountains of Galilee. My friend Chiam Sharett (working with the Union of American Hebrew Congregations) is setting up a "free enterprise community village." It's on a mountaintop with a breathtaking view — the Mediterranean Sea in the distance on one side, the Sea of Galilee on the other. The settlers are from almost everywhere, including America. As far as the eye can see over the open land, other Jewish communities are perched on mountain crests. The Galilee area is now 70 percent Arab. Yet it offers a great opportunity for Israeli settlement: it is not far from Haifa, the center of high-tech growth.

Ford says Meese should go

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Gerald Ford pulls no punches in terms of whether Attorney General Edwin Meese should resign, despite the "full confidence" that President Reagan has expressed in his longtime friend and Cabinet member.

Ford recalled when Howard "Bo" Callaway, his campaign manager in the 1976 campaign, was accused of a conflict of interest, Callaway did not hang on until his name was cleared — although he was eventually vindicated, Ford said he walked into the Oval office and resigned so as not to taint Ford's election chances.

The same, Ford said, was true of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, who resigned when an off-color racial joke that he told aboard a campaign plane was publicized, embarrassing the Ford administration.

Politically speaking, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater has no trouble separating Democrats into shades from conservative to liberal. In his book they are all liberals.

Asked if he thought that Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis was a "McGovernite liberal," he replied, "It's our view that every Democrat is a McGovernite liberal — either that or a Carter liberal."

President Reagan is losing one of his best speech writers, George Gilder, to Vice President George Bush for Bush's presidential campaign. Actually, Gilder had been one of Bush's speechwriters before he joined the Reagan team three years ago.

Gilder wrote two speeches Reagan delivered at the Moscow summit that were viewed as outstanding and displaying a depth of understanding about the Soviet Union. The speeches were delivered at the Dantlov Monastery and Moscow State University and were classics in summing up the differences between a free society and a totalitarian government without the usual polemics.

Gilder said he had a lot of help from James Billington, the librarian of Congress, and comedian Yakov Smirnov, a Russian emigre, who guided him with their knowledge of Russian literature and mores.

Gilder, who is a devoted admirer of the president, said he simply let "Reagan be Reagan" in his speeches.

Federal deficit makes tax hike inevitable

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — The next administration will have to raise taxes. It is not a matter of if, but a matter of when and how much. The federal deficit will reach $176 billion next year, and the Reagan administration, which created the current spending policies, is not about to waste its lame duck period grappling with the deficit.

Tax experts looking ahead to the new administration are giving serious consideration to several options for increasing revenues. They include:

●The sacred tax deduction of home mortgage interest has already been attacked under tax reform. Property owners can now only deduct the interest on their primary and secondary residences. By 1990, tax reform also will phase out deductions for consumer interest, such as credit cards,

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Twisted thinking

WASHINGTON — An editorial written by Michael Gartner, editor of The Daily Tribune in Ames, Iowa, qualifies for The Worst Editorial of the Year Award. The article is captioned "Dial-a-Porn Ban is Obscene," and it was reprinted in The Wall Street Journal.

In this editorial, Mr. Gartner condemned Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Rep. William Dannemeyer of California for attaching a rider to an education bill—a rider that bans dial-a-porn. He declares that the day the president signs this bill will be "a sorry day for freedom." In his view, the legislation "silences our speech. It smother's our freedom. It tramples on our Constitution."

It's incredible that anyone should believe that the pornographers who peddle sexual fantasies to children in explicit language, have a right to engage in that kind of degenerate activity. Sen. Helms and Rep. Dannemeyer surely performed an important public service in attaching their rider to the education bill.

Mr. Gartner complains in the mildest terms about dial-a-porn, saying that "it's bad for the parent's wallet and probably bad for the child's mind." Nevertheless, he opposes enactment of a ban. He adds that "If Sen. Helms doesn't like dial-a-porn, he needn't dial and listen." What a miserable cop-out.

It's too bad that Mr. Gartner's readers didn't insist that he attend the congressional press conference at which mothers of children victimized by dial-a-porn told how the telephone pornography had resulted in sexual crimes and emotional sickness. Parents at the press conference described how children who have been exposed to dial-a-porn act out sexual fantasies, molesting other children as young as four years old.

Mr. Gartner says that "If Rep. Dannemeyer doesn't want people dialing pornography from his house, let him bar it with technology." In other words, Mr. Gartner would require parents to go through the trouble and expense of individually banning dial-a-porn so that the pornographers can continue to profit. Well, that won't work anyway.

The press conference produced information that pornographers invade schoolyards. Pornographers reportedly have passed out cards with "adult" phone numbers at this city's playgrounds. The Washington Times reports that a teacher in a suburban Virginia school confirmed that her fourth graders have been given leaflets at school invitations to call phone numbers with sexually explicit messages also have been mailed to households in the District of Columbia. Late-night television programs sometimes carry ads for a "party" line with sexual messages.

Mr. Gartner insists that the American Civil Liberties Union, which opposes the ban on dial-a-porn, "seems to care far more about our rights than do the men and women whom we elect to preserve them." What twisted reasoning. He assumes that parents—and the public in general—don't have a right to prevent filth from flooding American homes. He seems not to understand that tolerance has its limits. The authors of our liberties surely never intended that a tidal wave of filth be protected by the law.

One wonders what parents in Ames, Iowa, think about Mr. Gartner's opposition to a law forbidding telephone invasion of American homes.

Mood is affected by food

By Sandra L. Latimer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — If you want to start the day awake and alert, skip the jelly doughnuts and have some low-fat cottage cheese, a physiologist suggests.

Not only is the cottage cheese less fattening, but it also contains protein which breaks down in your body to create an alert feeling, said Louis DeWain, while jelly doughnuts have carbohydrates which break down to create a calming effect that leads to sleepiness.

"Look how many secretaries bring doughnuts to work," said DeWain, who teaches physiology at Capital University. "About an hour and a half later, the productivity wanes, the chitchat begins and then there's the mid-morning coffee break. We all know that caffeine makes you alert."

By lunchtime, the mood has leveled off. After lunch, productivity picks up again, he said.

DeWain has been studying how the kind of food we eat can affect a sense of calmness or alertness.

He's found that simple carbohydrates break down to produce a chemical reaction in the body that creates a calm, relaxed mood that can lead to sleep.

"Simple carbohydrates (sugar or corn) get into the blood the fastest," DeWain said. "If you're anxious or stressed, that's the time to grab that handful of jelly beans. Maybe that's why President Reagan eats them."

Protein foods do just the opposite. They create an alert phase.

The more complex the carbohydrate, such as potatoes, the longer it takes to break down and get into the system, he said.

Eating proteins and carbohydrates together sets up a situation DeWain describes as a child (carbohydrate) who wants to do one thing, pulling against the parent (protein) who wants to do something different.

"The child usually wins out," DeWain said.

DeWain said he often puts his research into practice.

"If I'm having trouble sleeping, I'll have a cup of hot chocolate with marshmallow and it's not long until I fall asleep," he said.

"If I want to get going in the afternoon, for lunch I'll open a small can of tuna and eat it straight, a little salad of lettuce, tomato and peppers, and a glass of water. Not only is it quick and easy, but it keeps me wide awake."

"When I'm hyper or up against a deadline, I may have a little bit of candy," he said. "But not too much because it might put me to sleep."

traditional mortgage. One possibility under consideration is to raise revenues by eliminating the private-purpose tax-exempt bonds.

●Under current law, the profit on the sale of a home is not taxed if the seller buys another home within two years. If the taxpayer dies before the tax is paid, the government writes it off. The federal treasury could realize an increase of about $27 billion by 1993 with a new tax on just 30 percent of the capital gains from home sales.

●The favorite tax plan of some Democrats is the value-added tax which, in simple terms, is a national sales tax.

According to a report by the Congressional Budget Office, a 5 percent value-added tax "on a broadly-defined consumption base" could reduce the deficit by about $77 billion in fiscal year 1990 and roughly $459 billion in 1989 through 1993.

Democrats begin writing platform

MACINAC ISLAND, Mich. (UPI) — Democratic platform writers tried to craft a document today that would give presidential nominee Michael Dukakis the momentum to capture the White House without alienating Jesse Jackson.

A committee of 15 delegates, headed by Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., wants to write a pithy document that will unify the party and provide Dukakis with the themes for his general election campaign.

Jackson, with the nomination now lost to Dukakis, has begun focusing in recent days on the platform and the party rules as the next stage of his campaign. The committee is aiming for a document that does not alienate Jackson and his supporters in the liberal wing of the party while providing little or no ammunition to Dukakis's Republican opponent, Vice President George Bush.

The panel began examining a working paper prepared by Theodore Sorenson, one of President Kennedy's top speechwriters, but Jackson sources said their supporters and Dukakis's backers were unhappy with the tone of the draft.

According to the sources, who requested anonymity, the once rival campaigns have agreed to work together to modify and alter the Sorenson draft.

But Paul Kirk, chairman of the

Jesse Jackson
...The man in the middle

Democratic National Committee, dismissed the report as an "overstatement," insisting the Sorenson draft "will prove to be a very positive first step in the process." "There are some differences here and there," he said but stressed the focus must remain on unifying the party for the November elections. In recent days, Jackson has said he wants the platform to address a number of specific issues, including branding white minority ruled South Africa a "terrorist" nation.

"Everybody has common sense about it," Kirk said, playing down the possibility of a bruising battle over the platform.

He noted, for example, that the Sorenson paper — which has not been made public — makes a specific reference to South Africa and terrorism, but he did not indicate whether the language would be acceptable to Jackson.

Party officials are optimistic the 1988 platform can avoid what many Democrats believe was a debacle in 1984 — a 54-page document that Kirk compared to a "wish list for special interests."

Such traditional Democratic themes as full employment, housing, universal health insurance and welfare reform may well be wrapped into a more general "family policy" statement in the platform.

Dukakis vows constant pressure on Bush

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis says he would like a day off to tend to his house and tomato garden, but he knows that he is in a race for the presidency and vows never to let up the pace.

At a fund-raiser that added about $500,000 to his estimated $26 million campaign war chest Thursday night, the prospective Democratic presidential nominee told supporters to ignore polls that show him ahead of Republican rival George Bush.

"I don't know if we are in the middle of Heartbreak Hill or approaching Cleveland Circle," said Dukakis, referring to points along the route of the famed Boston Marathon, which he once ran.

He said he realized "it's going to be a tough race."

"My tomato plants need cultivating and my house needs work. I desperately need a day off," Dukakis added, but said he is ready for the next phase, the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta.

A nationwide poll released Thursday by USA Today-CNN showed Dukakis leading Bush 45 percent to 39 percent. The poll of 1,253 registered voters, taken between June 6 and June 9, also showed that a Dukakis ticket including Democrat Jesse Jackson would lose to Bush 47 percent to 40 percent. No margin of error was given for the poll.

The survey also found that voters do not believe Jackson has earned the right to the vice presidential slot simply by doing well in the primaries. Of those questioned, 56 percent said the civil rights leader has not earned the vice presidential nomination, and 52 percent said Jackson should not be guaranteed any role in a Democratic administration.

The latest poll by The Washington Post-ABC News found most Democratic voters want Dukakis to choose his own running mate. Two-thirds of those polled favored letting the nominee pick whomever he wants. About three out of 10 people said the second spot should go to the candidate finishing second in the primaries, which in this case is Jackson.

The Washington Post-ABC poll was conducted May 19 through May 25 and had a sampling of 1,219 voters, 656 of them Democrats. The poll had a margin of error 4 percentage points for the Democratic voters and 3 percentage points for all voters.

Thursday night's $1,000-per-person fund-raiser pushed the Dukakis campaign closer to its financial goals, said Robert Farmer, chief Dukakis fund-raiser.

"We have nearly reached the legal fund-raising maximum," Farmer said. "We are not quite there."

The maximum the campaign can raise is $27.6 million, he said.

Dukakis left the party to return to his suburban Brookline home and be with his wife, Kitty, who left Massachusetts General Hospital Thursday following surgery to repair two herniated cervical discs.

"My wife needs me and I want to get back," Dukakis said.

He said the long campaign and his wife's surgery has taught him that family is irreplaceable.

"When you have had the kind of week we have, you find out what's important. There is nothing more important than family. You are looking at the luckiest man on the face of the earth."

Grand jury returns indictment after investment fraud scheme

MIAMI (UPI) — A grand jury returned a 43-count indictment Thursday charging two men with running a $60 million investment fraud scheme, and alleging the defendants falsely said one man counseled President Reagan, U.S. Attorney Leon Kellner said.

Charles Phillip Elliott and William H. Melhorn were charged with investment adviser fraud, securities fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy, Kellner said.

As of January 1987, Elliott and Elliott Enterprises owed about 940 investors $60 million from sales of various investments.

The indictment alleged that the defendants falsely represented Elliott Enterprises as an investment banker with many years of experience. In fact, Kellner said, the company had suffered large losses and had far more liabilities than assets.

The defendants also allegedly told investors their investments would be secured by municipal bonds or other securities held in safekeeping, when there was no collateral held in safekeeping. Many securities the defendants said were held were, in fact, used to secure loans made to Elliott, the indictment said.

In addition, the defendants allegedly lied when they said Elliott was an economic adviser to President Reagan and that U.S. Senators had successfully invested with the company.

Female suspects really males

CORAL SPRINGS (UPI) — Police arrested three people suspected of backing their car into the front doors of a department store Thursday morning, but it wasn't until they were booked that police discovered two female suspects were really males.

Coral Springs police said they were notified by a security guard the front door windows of the Lord & Taylor department store in Coral Square Mall were broken Thursday about 4:30 a.m.

A patrolman spotted three people in a car with no headlights on and noticed broken glass on a back bumper, police said in a statement. The suspects apparently backed the car into the door windows.

After questioning, the three — apparently a male and two females wearing makeup, earrings and jewelry — were arrested for loitering and prowling.

"It was later discovered during booking procedures that two of the suspected females are in fact males," police said.

Police arrested Kim Carlito Anderson, 27, Kenneth Stevens, 25, and Warren Walker, 19, all of West Palm Beach.

Stevens and Anderson also were charged with possession of fictitious drivers' licenses and deception by disguise. Walker was charged with possession of cocaine. More charges were pending.

Store Manager Robert Catania said nothing was taken. Police said they were investigating similar reports in Palm Beach County of crime suspects masquerading as women.

Court upholds judge's sentence

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Supreme Court has upheld the five-year sentence given Tampa circuit court judge Arden Merckle for accepting a bribe, noting that judges should face tougher-than-normal penalties which they violate the public trust.

The court on Thursday also expanded the protection given homesteaded property, ruling that creditors cannot force the sale of a deceased person's home even if the deceased had no dependent relatives.

In most cases, a public official caught taking a bribe is fined or given a short jail term, but not sent to prison. That penalty is not enough for corrupt judges, the court ruled.

"A judge's ability to render justice, protect the people's liberties against abuse by other branches of government, and, most importantly, cement the public's adherence to the rule of law all depend on the very lifeblood of the judiciary — respect," the justices wrote in an unsigned 5-2 ruling.

Vice president: Democrats guilty of 'malpractice'

HOUSTON (UPI) — Vice President George Bush, accusing Democrats of leaving the nation "like a patient in intensive care," says America must not return to their leadership, especially under presidential rival Michael Dukakis.

"Eight years ago, our country was in big trouble," Bush told the Texas Republican Party Convention on Thursday. "We were like a patient in intensive care, flat on our back, wired up tubes all over, and not too confident in the physician in charge."

"Then we came in. The patient's back on his feet and better than ever, and now who do we hear knocking on the door but the doctors who made him sick. And they're asking to be put back in charge of the case again. My friends, they're lucky we don't bring a malpractice suit."

Bush, whose fiery tones brought numerous ovations from the more than 11,000 Texans, began his attack on Dukakis by saying the Massachusetts governor is too liberal on issues ranging from taxes to the death penalty and is so far to the left that he is out of touch with most of the country.

"My opponent is an articulate defender of a flawed world view, a man who holds strong convictions and who speaks in moderate tones. But his views and values are too often, in my judgment, out of the mainstream," Bush said.

A nationwide poll released Thursday by USA Today showed Dukakis leading Bush 45 percent to 39 percent. The poll of 1,253 registered voters also showed that a Dukakis ticket including civil rights leader Jesse Jackson would lose to Bush 47 percent to 40 percent. There was no margin of error given for the poll, taken June 6 through June 9.

Bush fended off various questions about his role in the Reagan administration during an hourlong interview Thursday on ABC's "Nightline" program. He said he knew of no "real evidence" linking Panamanian leader Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega with drug trafficking until indictments came down earlier this year.

George Bush
...Delivers fiery speech

Bush also told ABC he does not think the Iran-Contra scandal will be a "compelling issue" in the 1988 election, and he reiterated his stance that the sale of U.S. arms to Iran was not seen initially as an arms-for-hostages deal.

In the interview, Bush defended the administration's anti-drug efforts.

"There's some progress. But am I satisfied with the progress? Absolutely not," Bush said of the war against drugs.

"We have to solve this problem not by stepping up just interdiction, but by doing more on the user side, on the work force side, on penalizing drug kingpins," he said.

Bush clinched the Republican nomination in early May, but Dukakis needed his landslide victories in Tuesday's primaries to win enough national convention delegates to guarantee him the Democratic presidential nomination.

"It begins today," Bush said before addressing the Texas Republicans. "I am convinced the country does not want to swing left and that's what the choice will be.

"I wrapped this Republican nomination up earlier than we thought we would. The Democrats subsequently have been dominating the news with their actively contested primary. But now, as of today, there's a new ball game. Spring training is over. The regular season has begun."

Senate expected to approve death penalty for drug kingpins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, brushing aside warnings that innocent people may die, prepared today to approve the death penalty for drug lords convicted of murder.

Although the legislation has overwhelming support in the Senate, it may run into difficulty in the House, where the bill will be given to the Judiciary Committee, led by Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., a foe of capital punishment.

The strong support for the death penalty in drug-related murders was starkly outlined in two votes Thursday.

The Senate voted 69-27 to limit debate on the bill, eliminating any chance of a liberal filibuster, and voted 65-31 against substituting life imprisonment with no parole for execution.

The measure, offered by Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., would allow, although not make mandatory, the death penalty for drug czars who kill or order the killing of someone, for a drug organization hit man who commits a murder and for any person who kills a law enforcement officer in a drug-related murder.

Also Thursday, New York Mayor Edward Koch and Toledo, Ohio, Mayor Donna Owens, appearing before the investigations subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, blamed the flow of drugs to "a foreign invasion."

Koch complained the federal government has not done enough to reduce, much less stop, the influx of illegal narcotics. "We still don't have a war on drugs. It's not even a police action."

Jet dodges military helicopter

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI) — An Eastern Airlines jetliner making its final approach Thursday to Savannah International Airport had to dodge a military helicopter that entered the area without authorization, officials said.

There were no injuries in the 10-15 a.m. incident.

Flight Control Supervisor Danny Morgan said the Eastern pilot was 3 miles out on his approach when he spotted the helicopter, swerved to avoid it and proceeded to land.

"The pilot of the DC-9 noticed it in front of him and had to swing out right to avoid him," Morgan said. "It wasn't a near miss or anything. We couldn't make (radio) contact with it (the helicopter) and we followed it on our radar for about 15 miles before we lost it."

There were 62 passengers on Eastern Flight 587. Morgan said Hunter Army Air Field was notified the helicopter's pilot had violated civilian air space.

"It was a violation for him to come into Savannah," he said. "Normally, Hunter tells us whose going to be in our area and they (the pilots) have to get in contact with us by radio before coming in."

Capt. John Lott, a spokesman for Fort Stewart, said the Cobra crew was instructed to make a wide arc away from the military base to allow a C-5 transport plane to land.

Thief sentenced to library

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A man who stole a turkey to feed his hungry family last Thanksgiving must read "Les Miserables," a classic French novel about a man imprisoned for stealing a loaf of bread, as part of his sentence.

Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Carl Character also ordered Reginald Moore to give him a report on the book by Thanksgiving, obtain his high school diploma and perform 50 hours of community service work.

IN BRIEF

Arab leaders pledge money to support Palestinian uprisings

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Arab leaders concluding a 21-nation summit criticized U.S. policy in the Middle East, called for an independent Palestine and pledged hundreds of millions of dollars to finance the uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories.

The Arab leaders said Thursday the size of the fund would not be disclosed, but the Independent Central Press Agency in France said in a dispatch from Algiers it would be between $350 million to $400 million.

Palestine Liberation Organization sources said the fund would provide $43 million a month and a lump-sum payment of $128 million.

The fund would be administered under the existing Baghdad Agreement between the Arab League countries and would channel money to the PLO and the "front-line" states of Syria and Jordan that border Israel, Arab sources said.

They said the main contributors to the fund, which will be used to support the Palestinian uprising, would come from the four oil-rich gulf states of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

A statement read by Arab League Secretary General Cheddi Khibi of Tunisia criticized U.S. policies in the Middle East.

Washington, it said, is "biased towards Israel and hostile to the Palestinians. The summit condemned these policies, which encourage Israel to violate human rights and stall the current peace efforts."

Israeli troops kill Palestinian

RAMALLAH, Israeli-occupied West Bank (UPI) — Israeli troops shot and killed a Palestinian and wounded at least 10 others in demonstrations called to mark six months of anti-Israel unrest in the occupied territories.

Security officials told Israel Radio that Thursday was one of the most violent days in the West Bank and Gaza Strip in several weeks.

Shops were closed and many workers stayed home in the territories because of a general strike called by the underground committee directing the uprising. About a third of Palestinian students stayed home from school, Israeli officials said.

The Gaza Strip, where some 90,000 residents were under curfew, was relatively quiet.

But an army spokesman and Palestinian sources reported violent clashes in at least seven West Bank towns and refugee camps.

In the West Bank town of Sebastia, about 35 miles north of Jerusalem, an army patrol that stopped to clear a roadblock was attacked by villagers throwing stones.

An officer shot and killed a youth who was about to throw a brick at a soldier, an army spokesman said. Palestinian sources identified the youth as Imad Hassan El Awareh, 16.

Iran-Contra cases: North trial set first

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh wants Oliver North to be the first Iran-Contra defendant to stand trial, but he would rather prosecute the fired White House aide alongside his old boss, John Poindexter.

In papers filed Thursday with U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, Walsh indicated he would prosecute North first if forced to conduct four separate trials.

But Walsh appealed to Gesell to allow him to try North and Poindexter together and hold a second proceeding for the other two defendants — retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord and his business partner, Albert Hakim.

The request followed Gesell's ruling Wednesday that Walsh must conduct four separate trials to protect the constitutional rights of the four men charged in the worst scandal of Ronald Reagan's presidency.

Reacting to Walsh's decision to prosecute him first, North told CBS News: "I guess Winston Churchill probably said it best. He said, 'Never give in. Never, never give in.'"

"And whether I have to fight this thing out alone in the courtroom or with others, we will fight it out to the end and in the end we will win."

In asking Gesell to reconsider his order for four trials, Walsh said, "Four separate and sequential trials will result in at least some of the defendants living under the cloud of an indictment for several months."

He warned Gesell taxpayers also would suffer "substantial expense of trying four cases involving substantially similar proof and witnesses."

The Walsh investigation has already rung up about $6.5 million in legal expenses and four separate trials would add millions of dollars to the final tally.

All four men are charged with conspiring to defraud the government by diverting money from the sale of U.S. weapons to Iran to aid the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Poindexter, who was Reagan's national security adviser, and North, a member of the National Security Council staff, also are accused of obstruction of justice.

In selecting North to be tried first, Walsh has revealed he feels he has his strongest case against the fired White House aide.

Legal observers said Walsh will be forced to reveal the heart

Oliver North ... 'Never give up' of his conspiracy case at the trial, giving the other defendants a preview of what to expect.

Senate passes bill banning polygraphs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Opponents of lie-detector tests applauded Senate passage of a bill banning their use in the workplace, a practice that Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., likened to a "20th century version of witchcraft."

The compromise bill, earlier passed by the House 251-120, was approved 62-24 Thursday and sent to President Reagan, who is expected to sign the measure.

The legislation, backed by organized labor, would prohibit the use of polygraphs by private-sector employers, with the exception of drug companies and those companies that provide security services, from requiring workers or job applicants to take lie-detector tests.

Kennedy, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, both strongly endorsed the measure.

"This legislation is long overdue," Kennedy said. "For too long, we have allowed millions of employees and job applicants to be subjected to those inaccurate instruments of intimidation."

"And for too long we have tolerated this affront to the most fundamental American principle of decency and fairness. Today, we stand ready to send to the White House legislation that will sharply curtail a practice that is little more than 20th century witchcraft."

The bill would prohibit a private employer from directly or indirectly requiring an employee or job applicant to take a lie-detector test or to act against a worker who refuses to submit to a polygraph exam.

Federal, state and local governments would be exempt as would consultants and experts under contract to the Pentagon, the FBI, and the Energy Department, as well as anyone under contract to government intelligence agencies or who have access to top-secret materials.

Polygraph tests would be allowed in the private sector in criminal investigations when an employer has "a reasonable suspicion" that one of his employees is involved.

The bill also sets rigid standards for polygraph examiners and provides for civil penalties of up to $10,000 for violations.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, noting the blanket exemption for federal, state and local government, called the measure "a poor bill" and said he hoped Reagan would veto it.

Judy Goldberg, legislative representative for the American Civil Liberties Union, said, "We are delighted I think it's a wonderful bill. We'd like to see all polygraph tests banned, but this should take care of the vast majority of polygraph abuse."

Twelve states and the District of Columbia have laws considered even more stringent than the bill but nine have no rules governing the use of the lie-detector tests in private employment.

Convicted child killer put to death

DRAPER, Utah (UPI) — Arthur Gary Bishop, who said he abducted, sexually abused and killed five young boys because he was misled by Satan, was executed today by lethal injection for his self-described "wicked, perverse and depraved actions."

Bishop, 37, a bookkeeper who told police in a tape-recorded confession in 1983, "I'm glad you caught me because I couldn't stop. I get around little kids and I start shaking" was pronounced dead at 12:15 a.m. MDT from a combination of three drugs, prison spokesman Myron March said.

In February, Bishop called his life on death row "tedious and worthless" and ordered a halt to all appeals, fired his anti-death penalty attorneys and asked that his execution proceed, saying "I dare not deny its call."

"I realize that I allowed myself to be misled by Satan and, as a result, my life has been marked by wicked, perverse and depraved actions," Bishop said in a final, handwritten statement. "Though perhaps too little, too late, I am doing the right thing now."

He said he was "ready and anxious to die."

Police said Bishop, who lured boys to his residence with offers of money or candy, tied two boys to a post and sexually abused them, but allowed them to leave. Of the five who were killed, three were beaten to death and one was strangled. The fifth victim was shot but the body was so badly decomposed that a cause of death could not be confirmed.

"I want to offer again my most profound and heartfelt apology to my victims' families. I am truly sorry," Bishop said. "I have tried my best to empathize with their grief and devastation and I hope they come to know of my concerns and prayers for them."

Bishop refused a last meal, saying he preferred to fast. He spent his final day in a death-watch cell sleeping, reading from Mormon Church scriptures and meeting with his attorney, a Mormon bishop, a psychologist and his biographer.

Although Bishop said his death might help atone for his "disgusting, deviant desires and self-centered behavior," Shona Cunningham, the mother of one of the victims, called the execution "his last self-serving act."

"He's not giving up his life to make our lives easier. I'm really sick and tired of hearing this," she said, adding Bishop came to her and offered to help find her missing son "to make my life easier. He had (already) murdered Graeme (Cunningham)."

Bishop's execution was the 99th in the United States since the Supreme Court lifted capital punishment moratorium, clearing the way for the nation's first execution in a decade.

January 1977 death by the squad of Utah double murderer Gary Gilmore.

Bishop gave his $5 commissary account to his brother, Douglas, who is serving prison terms for sexually abusing young boys. He also gave a poem and a copy of his statement to Heber Guertz, Mormon bishop.

Guertz said Bishop "laughed and cried with me and prayed together." The priest said, told of temptations he could not escape because pride stopped him from seeking help, and that his death sentence "calls hell's presence near."

Bishop was moved into a death-watch cell next to a makeshift execution chamber 2 hours before the execution. About 30 minutes before midnight Thursday, he was strapped onto a gurney, had intravenous needles inserted in each arm and was wheeled into the chamber.

One executioner injected a combination of sodium pentothal to cause unconsciousness, pavulon to paralyze his lungs and potassium chloride to stop his heart. Another executioner gave Bishop a harmless saline

Cash, Connors upset at grass court tourney

LONDON (UPI) — Pat Cash and Jimmy Connors suffered setbacks in their Wimbledon preparations Thursday, making surprising third-round exits from the $385,000 Stella Artois tournament.

Cash, the Wimbledon champion and No. 2 seed, lost 7-6(7-5) 6-4 to fellow Australian Darren Cahill. Connors, the No. 3 seed, was edged 6-4, 7-6(7-5) by French doubles specialist Guy Forget.

Cash, who had dropped only three games in his two previous matches, double-faulted repeatedly against his best friend on the circuit.

After recovering from a 3-1 deficit in the second set, Cash made consecutive double-faults on deuce to drop serve. Cash continued to struggle with his serve and Cahill clinched the match two games later when his opponent netted an easy backhand.

"That was the best win of my career by far," said Cahill, 22. "But Pat did not play as well as he can and served double-faults at critical times."

WFL suspends play for 1988 season

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The fledgling World Indoor Football League Thursday suspended play before its first season could begin after losing two franchises and determining others were too financially unstable.

Roger Gill, the San Antonio-based acting commissioner and president of the league formed May 3, said the failure of the San Antonio franchise to raise $200,000 in needed financing by a noon Thursday deadline proved the final straw.

Ferrell hired to coach Oviedo team

Ex-SHS manager takes over solid program

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Editor
OVIEDO — Oviedo High Athletic Director Dale Phillips announced Thursday night Mike Ferrell will be the new baseball coach for the Lions.

Phillips said about a dozen coaches sent in resumes for the position vacated by Howard Mabie, who will be an assistant coach at the University of Central Florida. Three applicants were selected for interviews and, of those three, Ferrell was chosen to be the new coach.

"He (Ferrell) has some big shoes to fill, but I know he'll work hard to do it," Phillips said. "I've known him for years and he has always been a gentleman. It also is our philosophy to get a good teacher first and from what I know Mike is an excellent classroom (Social Studies) teacher."

Ferrell, the head coach at Seminole High the past four years, said he had mixed emotions about the move, but was glad to advance to an established program and move to a school that is closer to his home in the Winter Springs area.

"I graduated from Seminole and worked with a lot of good people there," Ferrell said. "But when you're in the coaching profession and have a chance for advancement, you can't be afraid to make the move. I left for me right now I needed a change and was very fortunate to be in position to have a shot at the Oviedo job."

"I was also happy to get it because I live in the Oviedo-Winter Springs area so I'll be a lot closer to home."

Although he won't manage his first game for the Lions until the spring of 1989, Ferrell's involvement in the Oviedo program starts almost immediately.

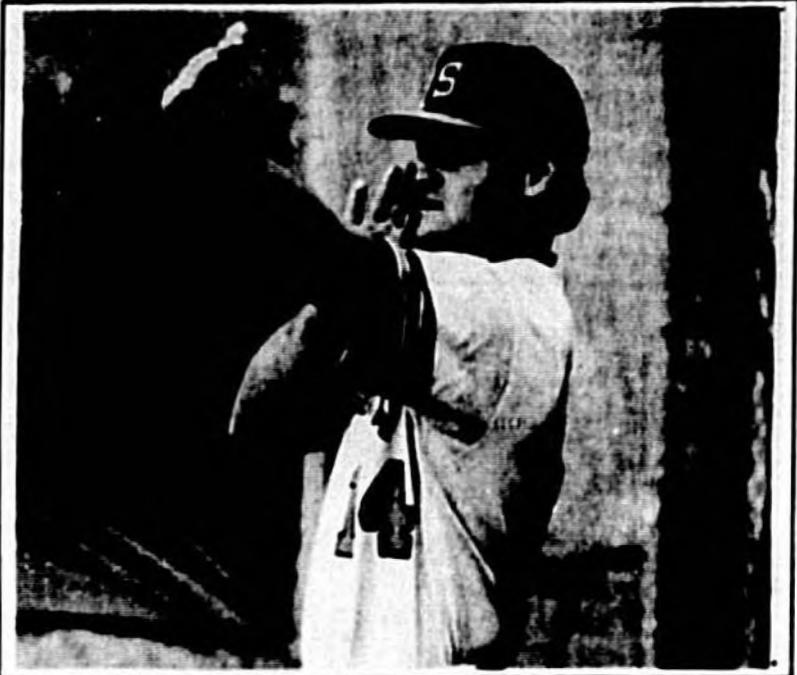

"The main thing I have to do right now is improve the field," Ferrell said. "That's something that will have to start right off the bat. If we start right away, the field could be in good shape by next baseball season."

Ferrell's teams at Seminole High have always been competitive but had trouble against the larger schools in the area which have better feeder programs. This past season, Seminole won its first six games and wound up finishing the season at 11-16.

"Leaving Seminole wasn't an easy thing to do but I felt coaching and teaching-wise I needed a change," Ferrell said. "Another main factor was Oviedo's feeder system. The Oviedo Little League and Seminole Pony systems are excellent, right up there with the Altamonte system. The community really cares about the baseball programs so I couldn't ask to be in a better situation."

Mabie, who will coach at UCF and continue to teach at Oviedo, built the Oviedo baseball program into one of the best around in Class 3A. In the past three years, the Lions have won three consecutive district titles, two region crowns and advanced to the state playoffs once.

Mike Ferrell directs his outfield during Seminole High baseball action this past season. Oviedo High Athletic Director Dale Phillips announced Thursday that Ferrell will be the Oviedo coach this coming school year.

"I'm looking forward to continuing the line program that Howard (Mabie) set up," Ferrell said.

Lakers awaken, thump Pistons

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The task of defending an NBA title, seemingly less difficult than mastering nuclear physics, has left Lakers Coach Pat Riley confused.

"This team mystifies me," Riley said of the Lakers after they evened the final Thursday night with a 108-96 triumph over the Detroit Pistons. "After all the years they (the players) have been together, it seems they have to be humbled before they gather their strength."

The Lakers were embarrassed in the opener, losing 105-93 on their home court. Game 3 will be played Sunday at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich. Detroit will host the next three games.

James Worthy led the Lakers with 26 points. Byron Scott had 24 and Magic Johnson came out of a sick bed to score 23. Adrian Dantley, who had 34 in Game 1, led the Pistons with 19.

"We had a chance to win the basketball game," said Detroit Coach Chuck Daly. "We've got three at home. It'll be interesting to see if we can hold serve on our home territory."

The Pistons, down 75-63 with 1:22 left in the third quarter, rallied before the period's end to trail 76-69. They continued to climb back in the fourth and tied the score 80-80 with 8:25 left when Rick Mahorn hit a layup.

Johnson then led a 11-4 surge with two free throws. Worthy scored on a layup, and after John Salley dunked for Detroit, Worthy tipped in a shot left-handed tip-in. Scott put down a free throw and layup and Worthy capped the burst with a lay-in.

"When it got to 80-80, it was time to dig down or crack," Riley said. "Our heart came out."

The Lakers led 97-92 when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar missed a hook long with 1:35 remaining. Worthy grabbed the rebound and as he was about to pass, referee Jess Kersy blew the whistle.

"In my opinion, Abdul-Jabbar's shot did not hit the rim," Kersy said. "I noticed the 24-second operator erroneously reset the 24-second clock apparently thinking the shot hit the rim. Therefore, I stopped play. The Lakers retained possession and since the shot clock was below five seconds, it was reset at five for the inbounds play."

Daly said the call was critical. "It was very, very big," he said. "It gave them the ball and

FIVE POINTS — Salvagio's Boys came from behind to hand KORG USA its first loss of the season, 12-6, and Advanced Brake used an impressive performance to eliminate Florida Carbonics, 12-4, Thursday night in the Pinto Playoffs before 201 fans at the Seminole Pony Baseball Complex.

Action in the tourney will resume tonight at 7:30 with KORG and Advanced Brake to battle. The winner will meet Salvagio's for the title.

Salvagio's and KORG both finished as the winners in separate divisions and were expected to put on a tough ballgame. The game was not a let down as it was close until the final inning.

Salvagio's struck quickly with a run in the top of the first inning. Nick Melasus led the frame off with a single followed by a fielders choice by Nathan Sims that KORG put Melasus out at second on Jeremy Frost followed with a single that placed runners on first and third before Josh Pickett grounded out to short to score Sims and give Salvagio's a 1-0 lead.

KORG came right back, though, with two runs in the bottom half of the inning. Stuart Gilmer led off and reached first safely on an error. Chaz Lytle followed with a single to place runners on first and second. Jason Bernosky then stroked a run scoring single to right field to even the score at 1-1. After two consecutive flyouts Michael Hutting singled to left to score Lytle and give KORG a 2-1 advantage.

Salvagio's came right back with a run in the top of the second to even up the score off a lead off homer by Brandon Gremillion that sailed well over the left center field fence. After an out Scott Gremillion doubled but a pair of plays by KORG shortstop Michael Evans prevented any more runs from being scored in the inning.

The game remained scoreless until the bottom half of the third inning when KORG plated three runs. Lytle led off with an infield single with Bernosky reaching on an error to place runners on the corners. Danny Purcell then ripped a towering home run over the center field fence to give KORG a 5-2 lead after three innings.

Survival of the fittest

18 and under tournament draws elite field

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Editor

Mark Millwood of the Seminole Falcons and Gary Littrell of the Fern Park Renegades-Matches know there will be some high-caliber softball played in the Seminole Softball Club 18 and Under Tournament. When this many good teams and players are on hand, it comes down to survival of the fittest. Millwood and Littrell will find out just how fit their teams are this weekend.

The nine-team tourney will be played at Merrill Park and Lake Brantley High in Altamonte Springs. Along with the Falcons and the Renegades, Kissimmee, Tampa's Pepsi Magic, Manatee County, South Dade, Boca Raton, Plantation and Lake Lytle will compete in the round-robin, single elimination format.

The Falcons open play Saturday morning at 9 against Kissimmee at Merrill Park Field C. It will be the first big test of the summer for the Falcons, who consist mostly of players from the Lake Howell school district.

Leading the way are a three starters from last year's Lake Howell High team, Rixja Millwood, Marie Peters and Lee Ann Trimble. Millwood, second base, and Trimble, pitcher-shortstop, both hit over .400 for Lake Howell in 1988 while Peters was one of the top defensive outfielders and also hit over .300.

Ginger York, outfield, also saw plenty of playing time for Lake Howell's Julie Barton at first base. West Orange's Lynn Trombley at second, Oviedo's Tammy Jenerette at shortstop and West Orange's Anita Thomas at third. The outfield will consist of West Orange's Shawn Czarniecki in left, Oviedo's Corrie Lawson in left center, Lake Mary's Brooke Taylor in right center and West Orange's Glenda Correllis in right.

Other players who Littrell hopes to have at some point in the tourney are Edgewater's Joey Paugh, Oak Ridge's Jackie Ellis, Lake Howell's Stormi Littrell, Oviedo's Jill Knutson and Jodie Switzer and Lake Mary's Amy Adams.

The Renegades were 5-2 in the Bally Tournament last week and are currently 6-1 playing in the Lake Fairview Women's B League. Littrell also looks forward to having former Lyman star Kristie Kaiser as his assistant.

The 18 and under is one of three tournaments being hosted by the Seminole Softball Club this weekend. While the 18s will play at the two Altamonte sights, the 15 and under and 10 and under tourneys will be at the Seminole Softball Club Complex.

The 15 and under tourney is being hosted by the Seminole Eagles which is actually a 14

Bonds' single lifts Pirates over Cubs, 4-3

United Press International
Cubs Manager Don Zimmer said Thursday night he had two choices with the game on the line.

Chicago was leading 3-2 with two out and runners on second and third. Zimmer chose to pitch. Bonds responded with a game-winning, two-run single off Frank DiPino to propel the Pirates to a 4-3 triumph.

"I could have walked Bonds and brought in (right-hander Mike) Capel to pitch to the other guy (on-deck batter Jose Lind), but he hasn't been pitching all that well," Zimmer said. "That was the only decision that I could have made. But I went with my veteran left-handed pitcher against a left-handed hitter."

"I didn't have anything in my head at the time," Bonds said. "But I'll remember this one forever. And if I hadn't come through, I would have dwelled over it forever."

Rich Gossage entered in the ninth and yielded consecutive doubles by Darnell Coles and pinch-hitter Sid Bream, cutting Chicago's lead to 3-2. DiPino, 0-3, relieved, and Bream moved to third on Mike LaValliere's groundout.

After Denny Gonzalez walked, pinch-hitter R.J. Reynolds grounded to third, and Bream was tagged out in a rundown. Gonzalez moved to third and Reynolds to second during the rundown. Bonds singled to right making a winner of Jim Golt, who pitched 1 2/3 innings to improve to 3-1.

"It was very big for the team and very important for the two fellows who did the job," Bream said after Pittsburgh won for only the third time in nine games.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

At Los Angeles, Mike Marshall and John Shelby each delivered an RBI double to highlight a three-run fifth inning for Los Angeles. Shelby extended his hitting streak to 24 games, tops in the majors this season. Orel Hershiser, 8-3, allowed two runs on five hits over eight innings. Jay Howell earned his sixth save. Nolan Ryan, 5-4, permitted four runs in six innings.

Padres 3, Reds 1

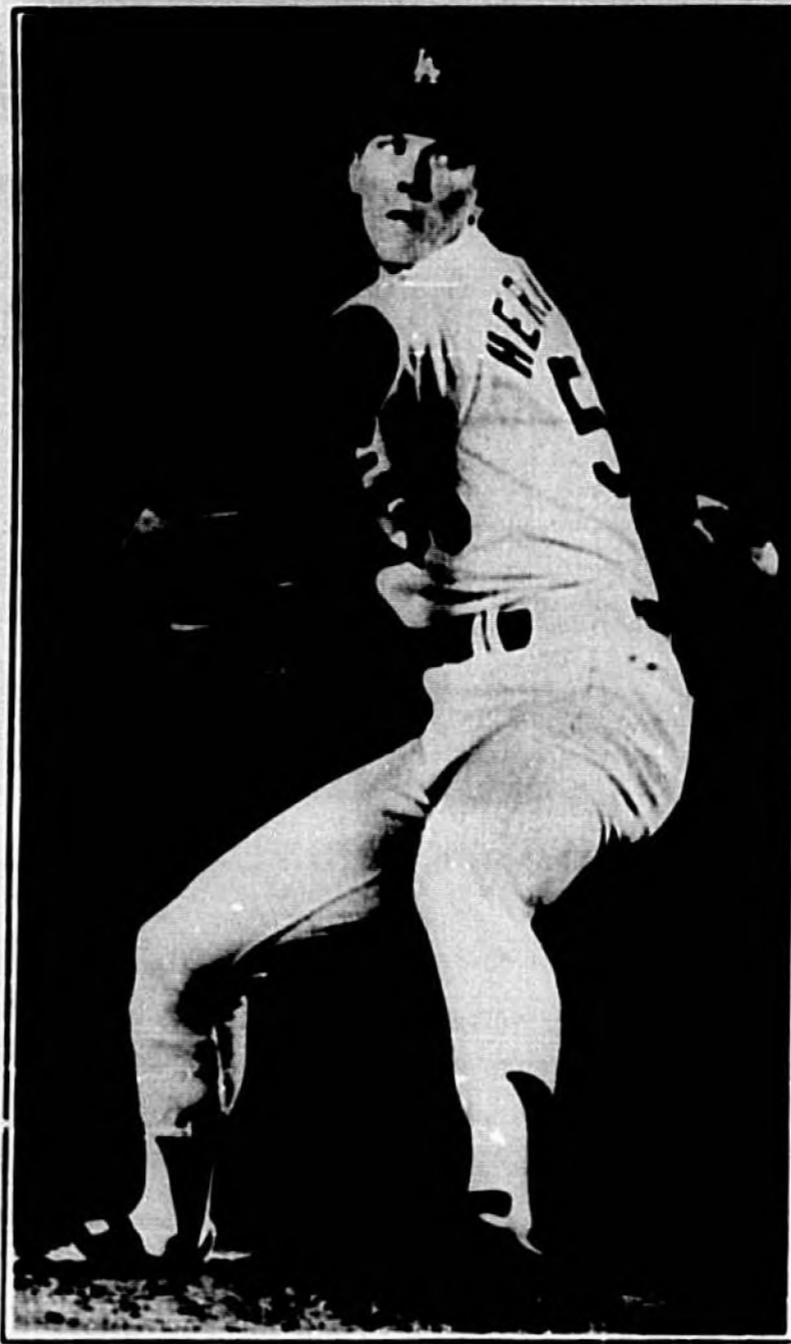

At San Diego, Jimmy Jones, 5-5, scattered three hits over eight innings. Mark Davis notched his career-best eighth save and Cincinnati's Jeff Treadway committed two errors as San Diego scored three unearned runs in the third. Treadway booted Tony Gwynn's grounder for an error, then threw wildly to first for another error. The Padres followed with three unearned runs off Ron Robinson, 2-5.

Giants 6, Braves 5

At San Francisco, Candy Maldonado drove home two runs, including one in a four-run third inning. Mike LaCoss, 5-4, pitched 6 2/3 innings and helped out with a single to start that big rally, and two sacrifices. Scott Garrelts earned his third save. Atlanta's Pete Smith, who committed two throwing errors, fell to 1-6.

Rangers 5, A's 2

At Arlington, Texas, Jeff Russell, 5-0, allowed six hits, two runs, walked two and struck out four and Steve Buechele broke an eighth-inning tie with a two-out, two-run homer to lead the Texas Rangers to a 5-2 triumph Thursday night over the Oakland Athletics. Twins 7, Mariners 5

At Seattle, Mark Davidson keyed a three-run sixth inning with a two-run double leading Minnesota. The Twins took a 2-0 lead in the first. Gladden led off with his fourth home run of the season, off Mark Langston, 5-6. Steve Lombardozzi walked and went to third on Tommy Herr's single. Kirby Puckett's single to right scored Lombardozzi. Bert Blyleven, 4-6, earned the victory, the loser.

Tigers 6, Indians 2

At Cleveland, Pinch-hitter Luis Salazar singled home Jim Walewander to highlight a four-run ninth inning lifting Detroit over Cleveland, ending the Indians' three-game winning streak. Reliever Mike Henneman, 1-1, pitched 1 1/3 innings for the victory. Cleveland

TORONTO (UPI) — As many as 20 members of the Toronto Blue Jays allegedly were involved in a brawl six weeks ago after pitcher Todd Stottlemyre approached a woman in a restaurant, newspaper accounts said Thursday.

According to reports in the Toronto Star and Toronto Sun, the team was at Saint John's, New Brunswick for an exhibition game April 25, and after becoming snowbound, engaged in a fight with approximately six patrons in a seafood restaurant.

Off-duty bartender Billy Vaughan said he cautioned Stottlemyre, who "gave me a shot."

"Once the first punch was thrown, they all jumped in, just like a team," said Vaughan.

While many of the senior players, including catcher Eric Wright, tried to act as peacemakers, others allegedly held down Vaughan and bartender Clayton Cole. They continued scuffling, overturning tables and breaking glass, Vaughan said he was punched hard in the face by George Bell.

Helen Richardson said she was slammed against a wall by one of the players.

"It was like an out-and-out brawl," she said. "Blood, smashed glass — it wasn't very nice. We were just sitting there and the fight broke out within minutes — all the players got in on it."

The melee ended when Blue Jays Manager Jimmy Williams and other team officials entered the bar.

No police report was filed. The team did not comment on the matter. An American League spokesman said league president Dr. Bobby Brown was aware of the incident but was treating it as a clubhouse issue.

Stanford stays alive, tops Fullerton State

COLLEGE BASEBALL

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Despite a batting slump, defending champion Stanford has moved closer to another College World Series crown.

Stanford, though collecting only four hits, stayed alive in the tournament Thursday night, riding Lee Plemel's eight-hitter to a 4-1 victory over Fullerton State.

"We score more runs than the other guy," Stanford Coach Mark Marquess said. "It's just one of those things. I think we hit 220 last year and won a national championship. You gotta get the key hits."

Stanford has hit 200 in the College World Series and 150 over the last three games.

"There were a couple of key plays that we didn't make," said Fullerton State pitcher Longo Garcia. "I started putting more pressure on myself and started walking guys."

The Cardinal, 44-23, which committed six errors in its last meeting with the Titans, tightened its defense to force a Friday night (7:10 p.m. CDT) showdown between the schools.

Arizona State and Wichita State play the first game Friday at 4:10 p.m. The winners Friday meet Saturday for the NCAA baseball crown.

Plemel raised his record to 12-8, including 2-0 in the CWS, in a battle of senior right-handers. Garcia, who beat Stanford in his last outing, fell to 10-6. Before a crowd of 13,945.

Stanford first baseman Ron Wittmeyer singled, homered and scored twice.

Fullerton State, 43-17, entered the game as the only undefeated club in the CWS. Stanford is bidding to become the first repeater since Southern Cal won from 1970-74.

Stanford capitalized on shoddy fielding to score three times in the second inning. Paul Carey led off by reaching on first baseman Keith Kaub's error. One out later, Wittmeyer singled. Then Garcia, who had walked only three batters in two previous post-season outings, walked Brian Johnson and Tim Griffin to force in a run. Eric DeGraw forced Griffin, producing the second run of the inning. Johnson then stole home when DeGraw broke for second and got in a rundown.

Wittmeyer homered in the fourth to raise the score to 4-0.

Fullerton State rallied in the eighth. With one out, Mark Razoak doubled and advanced on Bobby Jones's infield single. Greg Manning singled home a run. Marquess stayed with Plemel and Brent Mayne hit into an inning-ending double play.

"The double play in the eighth was the key to the ballgame," Fullerton State Coach Larry Cochell said. "I wasn't surprised Mark left Plemel in. He had handled Brent before."

Report: Toronto players involved in bar brawl

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles third baseman Pedro Guerrero led Friday because of a pinched nerve in his neck that will require traction for 3.5 five days. The Dodgers called up outfielder Jose Gonzalez from Triple-A Albuquerque to fill Guerrero's spot on the roster.

The team announced infielder Alfredo Griffin, who has been on the 15-day disabled list since May 22, will move to the 21-day list because of the fractured bone in his right hand.

Guerrero, a former four-time All-Star hitting .316, has missed five games because of the pinched nerve, which developed from a bone spur. He will be placed in traction at Centinela Valley Hospital in Inglewood, Calif.

UPI's Comeback Player of the Year last season after knee surgery, Guerrero has played 43 games this year and has three home runs and 30 RBI.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates placed outfielder John Cangelosi on the 15-day disabled list retroactive to June 6 with a sprained right thumb, and purchased the contract of third baseman Denny Gonzalez from Triple-A Buffalo.

Gonzalez became the team's regular third baseman after Bill Madlock was traded to Los Angeles Aug. 31, 1985. He injured his right knee, which twice required arthroscopic surgery.

In 1986, Gonzalez hit just 222 with Hawaii in 109 games, but recently was named Pittsburgh's AAA Player of the Month of May. He was batting .328 with eight homers and 30 RBI on the season.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pirates entered Thursday's game with a home attendance of 596,224. They will go over the 600,000 mark in their 32nd home date, the earliest since 1980.

The 1980 season attendance of 1,646,757 is a Three Rivers Stadium record.

Seattle's unique ballhawking fans

SEATTLE (UPI) — The 49-year-old college professor ran hard to his right, then downward over three sets of bleacher seats before thrusting out his glove to catch the 400-foot batting practice home run. Ken Moore came sliding to a halt, turned and held up his glove in a triumphant gesture, cracking a big smile.

Just another day at the park for the "hawk." As in ballhawk.

Moore is one of about a dozen men who almost daily venture into the Kingdome for their rendition of the old "knot-hole gang" experience, when youngsters received game passes in exchange for the home runs and foul balls they ran down.

Moore spent many days outside San Diego's Lane Field during the early 1950s, dodging cars traveling the old Pacific Coast Highway in pursuit of balls hit out of the park.

"It was dangerous, but I loved it," he said. "We got a buck a ball, which got us into the game. This is different. Now we dodge the bleacher seats, but it's still a kick."

"My first ball? Wow. It was my first game. I caught a foul ball Fred Hatfield (Detroit Tigers) hit off the great Satchell Paige (Browns) in 1952 in St. Louis."

The new breed, most of them men in their 30s and 40s, spend $5.50 daily just for the pleasure of catching batting practice home runs behind the left and right field fences. The game also is included for the price of the ticket.

Moore, who figures he caught 120 batting practice balls (before 60 games) and another dozen home run balls last season, is considered by many anywhere between 30 and 300 people show up as the best of the ball shaggers.

"He is the best at getting a good jump the second the ball is hit and running it down. And he's fearless out there," said a newspaper employee who preferred anonymity.

"Probably my best catch was a Dave Kingman drive a few years ago that I had to go a long way for," Moore said, talking like the college centerfielder he was for Redlands (Calif.) University. "At the end of it I ran into the end of a row (of seats) and put a nasty gash in a knee. But I made the catch. I wear shin guards and knee pads now."

"Yeah, he's a real loonie," said an admirer, Carl Harris. "My wife saw him do that one and she said, 'You stay away from him, he's crazy.'"

Some of the regulars even consider themselves better ball-catchers than many of the major leaguers being paid hefty salaries to run down balls.

"The players don't catch balls hit as long (and hard) as the ones we catch," said the newspaper employee, who at 49 figures he's got 16 more years before he hangs up his glove. "Plus, we've got obstacles and other people to fight off."

They've also got pride in their form of recreation.

"Regulars have ethics and don't push each other around," Moore said. "We're friendly. Besides, no ball is worth that. But some of the guys who just show up once in a while try to push you around. Those guys you learn to avoid."

Naturally, some of the shaggers are more serious than others. Take John Hamilton, a 43-year-old owner of an antique store who has kept all of the 392 balls he has retrieved during his eight years in the stands.

"I consider myself a ballplayer out there. I'm an active participant," Hamilton said. "It's tough because the ball comes off the bat spinning. It moves faster when a pro hits it. And they hurt when you catch them."

The regulars also have their own secrets, such as: "Always try to be the front mitt" or, rightfield is best "because while more balls are hit to left, there are fewer people per ball in right."

Most of the regulars give their batting practice catches to kids. Hamilton is an exception. He has had each ball autographed by a player and placed in a trophy case.

Moore doesn't keep the batting practice balls, but he has all of his 22 home run catches, many of which have stories behind them.

"A home run hit last year by Phil Bradley (former Mariner) off Don Sutton (former Angel) had a fingernail cut across the threads," Moore said. He got both Sutton and Bradley to sign the ball, though Sutton was unaware of the ball's condition when he wrote his name.

"After he signed it," Moore said, "I showed him the cut. He got a little mad and said, 'I suppose you went to the newspapers about it.' I said I didn't think it would be news to anyone."

Leonard trade surprises teammates

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — To those outside the San Francisco Giants, Jeffrey Leonard was a mystery.

He rarely smiled and his stark honesty often came off as cockiness. During last year's National League playoffs, in which he set a record by homering in four consecutive games, Leonard drew fire for his "flap-down" home-run trot.

"I was shocked by this," Mike Krukow, a teammate for the last six years, said of Wednesday night's trade. "Jeffrey Leonard was the consummate professional in my opinion. He played hard. He played hurt. He played hard, but the situation arose where the Giants wanted (Mike) Aldrete to play."

Leonard was hitting .256 with two homers and 20 RBI at the time he was sent to Milwaukee for infielder Ernest Riles. He also could have become a free agent at the end of this season. His $900,000 salary was likely to jump, particularly in light of his MVP Award in last year's playoffs.

His potential salary demands combined with his age (32) made the time seem right for the Giants.

"He was a guy who wanted to play everyday against everyone," Manager Roger Craig said. "But there are times in your career where you've got to move. I know about that."

Candy Maldonado said Leonard's contributions extended beyond the batter's box.

"You're always surprised when someone is traded," he said. "He did a lot of things for the club, so we'll miss him."

route to a 25-20 lead after one quarter.

The Pistons, who shot 32 percent in the opening period, were within 37-35 with four minutes to play in the half when the Lakers surged. Johnson put down a short jumper and free throw, keying a 12-4 closing spree that made it 49-39 at halftime.

Twenty-three free throws were shot in the third quarter when the Pistons peeked at the lead. Laimbeer's layup midway through the period put Detroit within 61-57, but the Lakers ran the court a bit and put a 14-6 run together to take a 75-63 lead with 82 seconds left. Detroit, however, scored 6 of the last 7 points to close to 76-69.

The Pistons had held opponents to below 100 points in five straight games and nine of 10.

"They did what they had to do to win and that's the bottom line," said Detroit center Bill Laimbeer.

Panel 3: I GUESS IT WAS THE BURGLAR'S SCREAMS.

Tissue should be removed soon

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 23 weeks pregnant. I have "moderate dysplasia arising in flat condyloma." Should I wait to have laser surgery until after the baby is born?

DEAR READER: Dysplasia means abnormal cells that appear in your case, to be arising from warts in your reproductive tract. Your obstetrician is the best judge of whether you should have the tissue removed now or later. However, sooner or later, you should have it removed. The timing of the procedure is a highly individualized matter.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband sustained a blow to the inside of his knee. It is hard, swollen, about the size of a baseball and painful. He's had fluid removed five times in the last four months. The surgeon can give us no idea of how long this will continue. Will he ever improve?

DEAR READER: From the information you supply, I suspect that your husband has developed an annoying medical condition called traumatic bursitis. The blow to his knee irritated the joint covering, causing fluid buildup, commonly known as water on the knee. This excess fluid results in a swollen knee that can be uncomfortable.

Often the fluid can be removed with a needle and syringe; however, the improvement is sometimes only temporary as the fluid may reaccumulate. Several joint taps may be necessary until the knee returns to normal.

Obviously your husband could be suffering from other causes of joint swelling such as ligament or tendon injury from the blow he received. I suggest that you ask for a referral to an orthopedic surgeon who will be able to more precisely define your husband's problem.

In case surgery is the answer, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, AN INFORMED APPROACH TO SURGERY, which covers everything from second opinions to outpatient surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had hepatitis in 1951. Can I donate organs?

for years. Blood tests will indicate which type of hepatitis you had and whether the infection has been cured or is simply dormant in your system. For obvious reasons, you would not be considered a candidate for liver donation.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It's not so easy to bid after partner's overall. Generally bidding a new suit simply corrects the contract to a better strain, and the overcaller is not forced to bid on. An exception to this rule occurs when there is an overall of an opponent's preemptive bid. Then new suits bid below game are usually played as forcing. Today's deal is an example of slippery bidding after an overall, but the result was fine.

North bid one spade over West's skimpy one diamond opening. South bid two hearts, and North introduced his strong club suit. Now over South's three spades, North felt safe in bidding four hearts. His partner could hardly expect him to have three-card support for the hand. After the club lead, declarer had no difficulty. He simply won to dummy and took a heart finesse. West won the king, but the defenders could take only a diamond trick thereafter.

Ironically, had West opened with a weak two diamonds, bidding to the right contract would have proceeded more comfortably. North would still over all two spades, but now South's bid of three hearts would be forcing, and North would have little choice except to raise to four.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY JUNE 11, 1988

The year ahead unlike the past several years will be a time when you'll be able to expand arrangements, ventures or operations that have a sound base. Big things could be in the offing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your hunches and perceptions will be more on target than usual today, especially regarding matters that pertain to your career or material security. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to matchmak er, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you feel a trifle luckier today than usual, there will be justification. Lady Luck is in your corner — be optimistic regarding your involvements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your possibilities for achieving important objectives are very good today. Focus on targets of your sequence and live your best shots.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Knowledge you've acquired from past experiences can be utilized to your advantage at this time. Don't downplay what you know.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Favors you seek will be treated generously today. However, don't request something for which you have no immediate need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Here is a close friend with whom you always have luck regarding arrangements you perform together. Today will not be an exception, so team up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are now in a cycle where your earning potential is much better than usual. Look for ways to generate more income from your present endeavors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take time to romanticize something that recently has been causing you problems. If you put it in proper order, it will produce benefits instead of headaches.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your luck should come through for you today, just when you need it the most. Don't despair if you are a few paces behind when the finish line is in sight.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions in general are starting to look up as of today. Some good news, for which you've been hoping, could usher in the new trend.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is a good day to take stock of your financial position. If you've accumulated a little surplus, devise a way to use it to make you more.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be more fortunate than usual today in arrangements where you are the one in charge. Pull the strings yourself without being abrasive or dictatorial.

Panel 1: NOW WHERE DO YOU THINK THE POLE VAULTING WILL BE?

GARDENING

Caution: Power mower blades can kill, pesticides can poison

Since most of us are spending time on gardening chores, this is a good time to comment on lawn mower and pesticide safety. Particularly now that children are out of school and frequently take over lawn mowing chores, and help out in the garden.

Last year 77,000 persons visited emergency rooms for treatment of injuries from power lawn mowers. Some of these injuries included loss of toes and feet and even fingers and arms. Several deaths resulted from flying objects thrown out by the blades.

Statistics indicate that 50% of all lawn mower injuries result from contact with the rotary blade. Now all new rotary mowers have certain safety features to protect the operator, a blade clutch safety starter and a deck which provides more protection from the blade.

But until you purchase a new mower, here are some safety tips to follow to prevent lawn mower accidents.

Begin by replacing all the safety shields and devices that were removed because they were bothersome. Be certain that Johnnie or Susie is big enough, mature enough and thoroughly trained before using the lawn mower. Dig out the operator's manual and review safety recommendations.

Celeste White

Take the time to inspect the area to be mowed, making certain that all dangerous debris has been removed. Never make adjustments to the mower when the engine is running. Make sure children and bystanders are away—far away—from the area to be mowed. This is no time for the children to be helping Dad.

Mow slopes laterally, never up and down. Never mow backwards, one step and your foot will be under the mower. Never mow wet grass. Wear sturdy leather shoes to protect feet. Following these suggestions could save much grief and pain.

Pesticide safety is the responsibility of each and every person using chemicals. Here are some tips for the safe use of pesticides.

1. Read the label! Look for the warning words like DANGER, WARNING and CAUTION. Also, the label will tell you which plants and insects you can use your pesticide on.

2. Know the safety precautions before you get started. Do you need to wear rubber gloves or avoid breathing spray mist?

3. Know where you can spray and where you can't. Is the pesticide labeled for indoor use? If not, spray the plant outdoors.

4. Be prepared for accidents. Always fill your sprayer with water first, then add the chemicals to avoid splashing.

5. Have a safe storage area out of the reach of children and pets.

6. Have a safe mixing area. One that is well ventilated and well lit.

7. Check the amount you need to spray prior to mixing. You may want to spray with water first to see if you'll need one gallon or two.

8. Before spraying, check out your equipment to see if nozzles are clean. Never try to clear clogged nozzles with your mouth.

9. Never reuse old containers or put pesticides into another container. The next person may not know that the coke bottle has pesticide in it.

10. Read the label again! It contains all the information that you need to know.

A worker's service appreciated

May 28 at Western Sizzlin' Steak House in Sanford, included presentations of two plaques of appreciation and a gold watch to Jones. Laxner said Jones' absenteeism record at the food distribution company was almost unblemished.

Dad promises but doesn't pay tuition; daughter brokenhearted

DEAR ABBY: When I was a teenager, I got pregnant. I didn't tell for marry the baby's natural father. I married my high school sweetheart when my daughter was a year old. My husband adopted her, and has been a wonderful father to her ever since.

I never kept anything from "Libby"—she has known about her natural father for years. When she turned 18, she wanted to meet him, so I reluctantly contacted him. ("Steve" is now married, a family man and very well-to-do.)

Steve was a little leery at first, but when he saw Libby, he could not deny that he was her father. They got to know each other, and Libby grew to love him very much. Steve said he wanted to make up for lost time and pay for Libby's college education, and wanted her to have his name, so he asked for her birth certificate, adoption papers, etc., which we gladly gave him.

After Libby enrolled in college, they sent Steve a bill for tuition. He called the college, denied being her father and refused to pay it.

Libby was heartbroken—not because of the money, but because he had built her hopes up, then rejected her. Steve said his wife was jealous and gave him an ultimatum—and he had to choose his wife. I have wanted to write to him and his wife and tell them what I think of them, but my better judgment prevailed. However, I want the legal papers he took and never returned. Some can be duplicated and some cannot. What should I do?

CONFUSED IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR CONFUSED: You should advise this poor excuse for a man that if he does not return the legal papers at once, you will turn the matter over to an attorney. Then follow through.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, I was barred from a local establishment that I've been going to for years (12). This pub has been a meeting place for myself and friends for such a long time. It has a "Cheers" atmosphere—you know, "a place to go where everybody knows your name." It hurt me when I was asked not to enter simply because a guy who entertains there is an old boyfriend. He told the manager (who is his brother) that he feels uncomfortable when I'm there. He left me 12 years ago. I never even talk to this guy, let alone hassle him. So, why after 12 years is he having me barred?

I can't seem to get a straight answer and I really don't understand, but it's very embarrassing to know all my friends know I'm an "undesirable."

BARRED AND HUMILIATED

DEAR BARRED: If your presence at the pub makes your former boyfriend uncomfortable, it's his problem, and he's very unfair to have you barred from the establishment for that reason. However, since his brother is the manager, where the manager calls the shots—unfair as it is—there is nothing you can do about it.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and have engaged a photographer to take pictures. My problem is that I am blind in my right eye. I have no control over the movement—the eye "floats."

How can I take a nice wedding picture?

AUGUST BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Tell the photographer about your problem. It's possible for him to shoot the picture at an angle that will not show your "floating eye."

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

It was her evening

Church laywoman honored for love, accomplishments

"This is Your Night" was the theme selection of a recent event honoring Annette Wright Campbell for her accomplishments and dedication to her church, St. James AME, and to the Sanford community.

Mrs. Campbell is the musician for her church choir. In her honor, the mistress of ceremonies for the evening was Mrs. Bernice Madden. Musical selections were rendered by the Mass Choir of St. James AME Church. Tributes of love were shared as several spoke about Mrs. Campbell's love in different roles: as a mother, by her daughter Shellina; as a wife by her husband, Henry Lee Campbell; as a daughter, by her mother, Mrs. Louts (Annie) Wright; as a sister by Frances Richardson and Althea Nelson; as a friend by Karena Tarrant and Myrtle Ashley; as a co-worker by Melvin Philpot; as an employee, by Carolyn Ash, her supervisor at Florida Power and Light; and as a Christian, by Elaine Turner.

Words of spiritual inspiration were given by Pastor James E. Hannans of St. James AME Church. Soloists for the evening were Elaine Turner, Shellina Stafford and Delores Walker.

In behalf of the young people of the Sanford community, Elaine Turner gave special presentations for great accomplishments to the following for success in their field of endeavor. Dr. Lou Charles Harold, M.D., in the medical field; Annette Campbell in the field of business administration; Capt. Karena Bracy Tarrant, BSUMSA, registered nurse, U.S. Army, also in the medical field.

Words of appreciation were given by the honoree for the very special love given her in this special program. Out-of-town guest was Capt. Kenneth Tarrant, U.S. Army, husband of Capt. Karena Tarrant as well as former Sanfordite and best friend of the honoree.

Crooms Academy Class Reunion Meeting for the classes from 1931 to 1949 will hold their monthly planning meeting at Trinity United Methodist Church, Sanford Avenue and Sixth Street on Sunday, June 12, at 5 p.m. Juanita Harrold and Kathryn Alexander are chairwomen.

The Westside Neighborhood Improvement Strategy (WINS) Committee will meet Tuesday,

June 14, at New Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church, West 12th Street. Interested citizens are invited to attend this informative meeting about the improvements in the Goldshore area.

The annual banquet of Morning Glory Missionary Baptist Church is to be held July 16 at the Sanford Civic Center. Tickets are now available by contacting Eave Williams and the members of the church. This affair will benefit the church's building fund. Tickets are $6 and are tax deductible. The Rev. Andrew Evans is pastor.

Market active, stocks up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 9.60 Thursday, was up 9.95 to 2103.30 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 414-240 among the 1,023 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 10,763,000 shares.

Prices ended mixed Thursday after drifting through a day of heavy but directionless trading in which profit-takers overwhelmed upward momentum generated by strong gains in the previous session.

Joseph Barthel, director of technical strategy at Butcher & Singer Inc., said the turnaround suggested that after the Dow industrials' nearly 150-point rise over the past two weeks, "some of the courage of the rally is behind us."

"It would seem that now, to get beyond this point, would not be courageous any more, but rather foolhardy," Barthel said.

Barthel predicted that the short-term rally probably will struggle on through the balance of June.

Dollar slightly lower; gold up in light trading

By United Press International

The dollar was slightly lower in light trading today on major world money markets. Gold moved higher.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar ended the week lower against the Japanese yen, closing at 124.85 yen, off 0.58 from 125.43 yen on Thursday.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.7145 West German marks, down from Thursday's close of 1.7207.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.4315 Swiss francs, down from 1.438, in Paris at 5.7915 French francs, down from 5.8055 and in Brussels at 36.03 Belgian francs, down from 36.15.

In Amsterdam, the dollar began the day at 1.9264 Dutch guilders, down from 1.934 and in Milan, the dollar opened at 1.27625 lire, down from 1.27865 on Thursday.

In London, the pound opened at $1.821 compared with Thursday's close of $1.8125.

In early New York trading, the dollar was mixed against key foreign currencies in light trading following the Labor Department's report showing the nation's wholesale prices rose 0.5 percent in May — in line with market expectations.

On the bullion markets, gold opened $2.50 an ounce higher in Zurich at $457.50, and in London gold opened $2.30 an ounce higher at $457.30.

The London morning gold fixing was $457.10, up $2.10 from Thursday's close.

In earlier trading in the Far East, gold closed out the week at $457.25 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, up $1.90 from Thursday's close.

Eastern Airlines Inc. expects substantial second quarter loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eastern Airlines Inc. expects to post a substantial loss in the second quarter, while its sister airline, Continental, is expected to be profitable, executives of parent company Texas Air Corp. said Thursday.

Phil Bakes, president of Miami-based Eastern, which has been plagued by recent losses and a bruising battle with unions over proposed wage cuts, told shareholders at Texas Air's annual meeting in New York that losses are continuing into the second quarter.

Bakes attributed those losses in part to the recent fitness examination of Eastern conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration and the Department of Transportation.

Developers donate $1.6 million to UF

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Two Florida developers have contributed $1.6 million to establish an eminent scholar in affordable housing and enhance academic excellence at the University of Florida, it was announced Friday.

University President Marshall Criser said Jess and Ida Childre are donating $400,000 to the university, which will be added to more than $400,000 of state funds to establish the Ida Rogero Childre Eminent Scholar Chair in Affordable Housing.

The chair will complement the newly formed Center for Affordable Housing located in UF's College of Architecture.

"Affordable housing is rapidly becoming a crisis for many in Florida," Criser said. "Through their generosity, the Childres have made a significant contribution toward helping the University of Florida alleviate this problem."

A builder, realtor and real estate developer in the Titusville area for many years, Jess Childre is a 1950 graduate of Florida's School of Building Construction. The Childre chair is the 49th eminent scholar chair established at UF since the state program was established in 1979.

Criser also announced that Alan Squitieri, a pioneer in shopping center development, a leading citizen of Alachua County and owner of the Oaks Mall in Gainesville, has bequeathed $1 million to UF. Criser said the gift will enhance academic excellence at the university.

"As we embark on a capital campaign to upgrade the quality of programs and facilities at the University of Florida, it is particularly gratifying to have a dedicated citizen and outstanding Floridian such as Mr. Squitieri step forward and help us," Criser said.

morning.

The three city residents admit that they have no extensive experience with long-distance bike riding.

However, it's been nothing but practice, practice, practice, since Jim Clark originated the idea several months ago. The idea grew from an inter-Florida trip to a trip from New York to Florida to eventually a Maine to Sanford route.

"Finding the time to practice, that's been the tough part," said Lumme. "It's been like a part-time job."

The three have put in between 300-400 miles a week in preparation for the 14-day journey. They will cross at least 12 states while traveling more than 100 miles a day.

The bicyclists will use only secondary roads during the ride and the actual route and distance will be determined by weather conditions. "Very secondary roads," Clark said of the route.

The route was selected after contacting several bicyclist organizations across the eastern seaboard.

Fully loaded each 12-speed bicycle will weight approximately 40 pounds. The four will carry only water, clothing, tools and spare tires.

They will leave early each morning and "credit card it" each night at various motels along the route.

age as long as it doesn't raise the rates," Vogt said.

He said the state repealed mandatory automobile coverage for property damage and bodily injuries about 10 years ago, leaving the current requirement for personal injury protection (PIP).

As a result of the repeal, which he supported as a compromise to no coverage at all, Vogt said many drivers have been flouting the law by not carrying PIP, or any insurance. Insured drivers have been facing increasing annual costs for their uninsured motorist coverage as a result of the increasing number of accidents involving uninsured drivers, he said.

With no higher position available to him as a state senator after serving as senate president for two years, Vogt said he is now hoping to gain the insurance commissioner's office in this November's election.

Vogt was responsible for the Save Our Rivers Act of 1981 and was instrumental of the state's Growth Management Act of 1985.

He is the owner of Amaack, Inc., a Cocoa Beach engineering firm. He is married to Tonia Vogt and they have five daughters and one grandchild.

go without. Most often, these are children whose parents work and because of the parents' low income the children go without adequate care and stimulation. These same children tend to fall behind in their school studies in later years.

Some, though not necessarily from poor families, have been identified by Health and Rehabilitative Services as being physically abused by their parents and are on a waiting list for child care. The report states that if these children were placed in the proposed program, they would not only be protected during the project hours but counseling would be provided to parents through coordination with other services.

Program Director Brenda Griffin said if the school board receives funding it will contract the services of Community Coordinated Child Care for Central Florida and the already formed council will serve as the watchdog for the program.

Griffin said the grant was first made available in 1986. At that time $700,000 was doled out to eight pilot projects throughout the state. In 1987, $1,620,000 was divided among 19 programs.

"I want to be optimistic, but I just don't know how much money there is right now," said Dalley. "I've heard that most likely they'll be refunding existing programs, and if there is any money left over that would go to new programs."

Volusia was one such county to receive funding in 1986 and again in 1987.

Jo Anne Rodkey is the program development administrator for the Volusia project, which serves 20 children. She said that district originally applied for three sites but funding was made available for only one.

The children were screened upon entering the program and are monitored to see if they are developing appropriately for their age group. "Screening provides the framework; it helps you plan individual programs for children," Rodkey said. The instructor uses a special skills checklist to ensure that a child's visual, language, auditory and motor development is where it should be. A special emphasis is placed on the child's developmental level in relation to social, motivational and emotional adjustment.

Rodkey said the major problem is space. "Betty Castor has said that prekindergarten programs are a priority of hers," Rodkey said. "It's an important program, one which needs to expand, but in Volusia County we're already overcrowded." The current program is not held on a school site, but in a community facility.

The Seminole County grant proposal must be in the state office by June 15. After that, Dalley said it could be a few weeks or months before they will know if funds will be approved.

...Recall

The committee will have 60 days to come up with enough signatures of registered voters. If that petition is certified and the commissioners in question don't resign, it will be up to a judge to set the date for a recall election in no less than 30 days or no more than 60 days.

Gunter and Dennis have five days in which to respond in no more than 200 words to the grounds for recall listed on the petition.

Stuckey said, "I'm not euphoric, it's just the first tiny step. There's a lot of work ahead of us. We have to have more signatures this time, but we have the experience and I hope we can count on the support of those who signed the first time. I would like to get 700 signatures. Ideally we will get enough names the first weekend, but I don't think that will happen. It didn't go as fast last time as I had thought it would."

Stuckey said someone is circulating a paper in the city that calls those behind the recall movement the "sour grape gang," but added, "I don't feel we're that type of people." The committee will meet Tuesday night at the city's community building on Wilma Avenue.

Both Gunter and Dennis said the citizens are within their rights to attempt the recall, but they have no intention of resigning and plan to stick it out no matter how the second petition effort goes.

Both are up for re-election on Nov. 8 and it could be about that time before a recall election could be held, Gunter said he plans to qualify in September to run for his second term on the commission, but Dennis said she wants "to wait and see how things go and test the waters" before deciding whether to run again.

Gunter said he does not believe his attempts to have Police Chief Greg Manning investigated and ousted are the real reason behind the recall effort. "These are my political opponents trying to get back at me, doing the same thing they did when I was elected," Gunter said. "The police chief issue is just a scooter they're riding around on. They are saying I violated Manning's civil rights by asking for an investigation, but if I hadn't have done it I would have been wrong."

"They are out there with a piece of paper (the petition) that is not a true statement," Gunter said. "Eventually it will come to light. Malfeasance and misfeasance are deep and there is nothing to indicate we did either. What they are preaching at the door while collecting signatures is innuendos and half-truths to get people emotionally upset so they will sign by telling them we're going to raise their taxes."

Dennis said most of the things listed on her petition don't make sense. "They talk about us discharging a city administrator selection committee without a public hearing when no public hearing was required," she said. The volunteer committee actually withdrew from the selection process after some commissioners wanted to give their advice on applicants.

"As for participating in Don Terry's polling of commissioners," Dennis said. "He has for years polled commissioners on certain matters, but has always been very discreet and has never asked us how we would vote."

The petition also lists times when she was mute on votes concerning the city's hiring of her brother-in-law Jeff Erchberger through I&P Financial Inc. to do a management study of the city departments and an audit of the Police Benevolent Fund. "I declared a conflict of interest," she explained. "and I'm required to be mute (refrain from voting) by the state law."

Dennis said she had not even read the charges on the petition until after she was notified it was certified. "I didn't want to have to think about it until I had to and I've been so busy working at my job for the city and at home, I've had other things to think about."

"They wanted to keep me so preoccupied with the recall that I couldn't do city business, but I wouldn't let that happen to me," she said.

Dennis said things have changed at city hall this year, but for the better. She said the way the city was being run previously, if it had been a small business it would have gone bankrupt.

"You can't run a business that way with each person going his own way. Now we have a good city administrator in charge," Dennis said.

little tattered and quite fragile, but it's not discolored or stained.

"It's a thrill to stand in front of it and realize it's the second official flag," Tobin said. The flag served as the nation's official banner from 1777 to 1795.

The flag, which measures 6 feet 11 inches by 3 feet 5 inches, has brass grommets that may give a clue to its age. The brass grommets, or rings, are used to fasten a cord to the flag.

Whitney Smith, Director of the Flag Research Center in Winchester, Mass., said identification of an original 13-star flag dating back to the late 1700's is difficult. He said it is easier to prove a flag is a replica than to determine if it is an original.

Smith said since Tobin's flag has brass grommets it probably dates to the mid-19th century. In addition, he said if Tobin's flag has machine stitching it must have been made after 1846 when the sewing machine was invented.

Smith estimated that only six original 13-star flags are still in existence. He said a scientific analysis of the flag's fabrics, dyes, threads and stitches could confirm its age.

"We get a lot of people who think they have an original 13-star flag. But what these people don't know is the 13-star flag has been made throughout our history," Smith said about flag replicas. He said even if the flag is not an original-it is still a nice item.

The local ceremony at the Post 53 home Tuesday is part of a national Flag Day recognition event. President Reagan will lead the country in the pledge of allegiance at 7 p.m. in a televised message to mark the occasion.

Members of the Sanford Flag Day Planning Committee have joined forces with the Sanford Area Veterans Advisory Council to present the Flag Day ceremony.

The area veterans advisory council includes representatives of the Amvets, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, Italian American War Veterans and the Fleet Reserve.

The city of Sanford will begin its ceremony at 6:45 p.m. at the American Legion post and join Americans across the nation at 7 p.m. pledging allegiance to the flag. Judge S. Joseph Davis, chairman of the Flag Day Planning Committee, has invited and urged the public to attend the ceremony.

They don't make 'em like they used to

Vintage cars stir old memories

Story and photos
By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — They don't make 'em like they used to. So when antique and classic cars are on display they draw admirers, tug at memories and stir envy.

That was the case recently in Lake Mary when shoppers parked their bland contemporary vehicles and sallied forth in the same shopping center lot to two rows of showroom spillover old cars, each with its own style and special ties to its owner.

The memories of the viewers match or exceed those of the owners, who as members of The Florida Region Antique Automobile Club, roll out for similar shows about eight times a year. They also compete for prizes in other types of shows.

"I wanted to check and see if they had what we had. I wanted the grandchildren to see the car we had," said Lake Mary's Carmen Massuro. "It's not here," she said of the 1929 black Model A Ford, her husband Jim was driving when they were courting more than 60 years ago.

The Massuros instead singled out something similar to show granddaughters Jennifer, 9, and Stephanie, 7, — the forest green and black 1931 Model A owned by Sandy Pedersen of Matland.

Hugh Downs: 20/20 mainstay since '79

NEW YORK (UPI) — For ABC's "20/20," it was Hugh Downs to the rescue.

The magazine-format show celebrates its 10th anniversary with a two-hour retrospective tonight, 9-11 p.m., Eastern time, hosted by Downs and Barbara Walters.

Walters is a comparative newcomer, however. Although she made her first appearance on "20/20" in 1979, she did not become co-host until 1984. Downs has been a "20/20" mainstay since its second airing, on June 13, 1978.

"I happened to be in New York on business when '20/20' premiered on June 6," Downs said in an interview. "I was splitting my time between my home in Arizona and San Francisco, where I did a show for PBS called 'Over Easy.'"

"My wife and I were in New York for five days — and we ended up here for 18 months."

Downs said "20/20" premiered on a Tuesday and the next morning Roone Arledge, president of ABC News, called with an offer he couldn't refuse.

"The critics savaged the first show," Downs said, "and as soon as I heard his voice I knew what he was calling about. I was worried ABC might be asking me to paper over a disaster until they could quietly fold it, but they promised to leave it on the air two years." Downs said "20/20" has gone through three stages over the last decade.

"First, to survive, you have to grab them by the lapels and show them you are there," Downs said. "We did the kind of programming that was sure to get people's attention. We had a lot of rock stars and top sports figures, people of wide interest. We still do pop music occasionally, but in proportion."

In the second stage, he said, the show did what a magazine ought to do — provided features and information.

"As for the third stage," Downs said, "we came to that fork in the road about a year ago, going from pure information into service. Anything we put on the air now not only informs and diverts, but enhances people's lives. It's why we put great stress on consumerism, and have John Stossel, who is the best consumer reporter in the business. It's why we do medical features and features on financial health."

"We still do investigative stuff when appropriate, because people have the right to be informed. But we have abandoned just spotlighting something bad or dangerous and saying, gee folks, isn't that awful. It doesn't serve any purpose."

As for television's other successful magazine of the air, CBS's "60 Minutes," Downs said:

"'60 Minutes' achieves something I would have said was impossible. Being an anchorman myself, I was jaded by the fact that they were successful without an anchor. Their anchor is a stopwatch. On our show, there's an identification with Barbara and me that helps the linkage between the viewer and the material."

Lake Mary woman wants answer

Dear Dick: I would like to know what part the actress Mary Louise Wilson played in "The Thorn." This happens to be my name. — L.L.W.K., Lake Mary, Fla.

[Dear M.L.W.K.: Your name like played Tonnette, the ranchmaid.]

Dear Dick: Please settle a bet for a friend and me. If I win I have to clean his house once a week for a year. If I win he has to buy me a steak dinner once a week for a year. He says Dudley Moore and Kirk Cameron are father and son. I say he is wrong. — J., Houston.

Dear Dick: Bon appetit. Kirk is the son of Robert and Barbara Cameron. Perhaps your friend saw Dudley and Kirk in the film "Like Father, Like Son." They played the title roles.

Dear Dick: My husband and I love the PBS series "Mystery." Each week we ponder if there is any significance to the letters on the urns during the closing of the program. There are two urns, one with the letters DC and the other with the letters PM and NH. Any ideas? — L.M., Rome, Ga.

Dear L.M.: We live and urn. I had to track your question down all the way to the station, WGHI in Boston, that produces the show. It turns out that three members of WGHI's staff put their initials on those urns, as their tickets to posterity. DC is Didi Cahill, the woman in charge of post-production for the program. PM is the office manager, Pauline Mercer, and NH is the assistant to the producer, Nathan Hasson.

Dear Dick: Who played the leading characters in the movie "Of Mice and Men"? I think Lon Chaney Jr. played the big, retarded man, but who was the soft-spoken lead? — H.L., Hollywood, Fla.

Dear H.L.: Burgess Meredith was the costar, with Chaney, and supporting roles in the 1939 film were played by Betty Field and Charles Bickford.

Dear Dick: I need your help in finding a movie that made quite an impact on my life. I am a striving cartoonist. Back in 1976, I saw an animated movie "Wizards." I believe George Burns did the voice of the good wizard. — T.W.M., Climax, Mich.

Dear T.W.M.: That was a Ralph Bakshi film, and it had voices of many stars (including Mark Hamill) but George Burns was not among them. I don't know where you can find the film, though. It is not on cassette.

Dear Dick: My mother and I have a bet. On the new show "The Highwayman." I say the highwayman is Josh Taylor from "The Hogan Family." She says it's not. — B.J., Paw Paw, Mich.

Dear Dick: Can you tell me where Jacko, who plays on "The Highwayman" is from originally? — O.K., Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Dear B.J. and O.K.: Mom wins the bet — Sam Jones plays the highwayman. As for Jacko, he is, I believe, from Hunger (via Australia).

Dear Dick: When I was a boy, I saw a movie called "Murders in the Zoo," with Lionel Atwill, the evil one. I have never forgotten it. Is it possible to buy a video of it? — D.O., Ontario.

Dear D.O.: No. That 1933 film is long gone. Your only chance is through a collector of old movies.

Dear Dick: I remember the movie "Gable and Lombard," and wondered who starred in it and if it's on cassette. — I.R., Bluff City, Tenn.

Dear I.R.: That 1976 film, with James Brown and Jill Clayburgh, was classified as a bomb, but nevertheless, it is available on cassette.

Dear Dick: I am writing to settle a bet with our son. My husband and I say that some time in the '50s, Mike Wallace hosted a show that featured a local beauty contest every week, sponsored by Tavern Pale Beer. There was more to the program than that, but that's what stands out in our mind. At the time, Mike was married to Buff Cobb. Our son just laughs when we try to convince him. — Mrs. L., Oak Lawn, Ill.

Dear Mrs. L.S.: I can find no record of such a show, and I've never heard of Tavern Pale Beer. But Mike Wallace was married to Buff Cobb, that's certainly true. For the record, they co-hosted a New York-based TV features show called "All Around the Town" (1951-52) — but there was no beauty contest involved. Wallace was the emcee or panelist on several TV quiz shows in the early 1950s — including "Guess Again," "What's in a Word?" and "The Big Surprise." Thereafter, he became widely known as a TV interviewer.

Cruz loses Chip after Tori was injured in an auto accident while on her way to Los Angeles to work on a film project. Mason and Father Michael get into a fight after Mason accused Michael of killing Mark. During their fight, a drunken janitor at the mission caused a gas leak, which in turn caused an explosion. Sister Sarah kept Sister Agatha from hitting Mason over the head with an incense burner while he was fighting with Father Michael. Sophia accompanied Eden, who secretly underwent tests at a fertility clinic. The tests proved that Eden can't have children. Jeffrey was thrilled when Kelly told him that she wants to get pregnant again. Pamela paid an accountant to make it look like T.J. is stealing money from Sophia's business. Ming Li doesn't like Andrea, who fears that Ming Li is causing a rift in her romance with Cain. Someone tried to kill Mason with an ax.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: CORRECTION TO LAST WEEK'S SUMMARY

Jessica confided to a priest—not John—that she has AIDS. John, who doesn't know that Jessica has AIDS, was ecstatic when she accepted his marriage proposal. Victor, who is the trustee of Phillip's trust fund, won't turn the money over to Phillip unless he's sure that he can handle the responsibility. Kelly (Leanna) photographed more of Victor's private files. Nikki confronted Lauren, who insisted that her relationship with Victor is strictly business. Casey was surprised when Nikki admitted that she hasn't told Victor that she's pregnant. Brad met with Lisa, who verified his suspicion that Jack is the person who is investigating Brad's past. Jack told Nikki that he doesn't understand why she sticks with Victor. Jill and Kay are convinced that Nina turned down their bribe money because she wants Phillip and his money. Kay agreed to let Nina and her son stay in her home after Phillip said that he's going to take responsibility for the baby's upbringing.

Cronkite at large airs Saturday

By Joan Manner
UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Walter Cronkite will be back to report on some of the things that interest him—an update on the dire environmental predictions of 18 years ago, a visit to exotic Macau and a riproaring ride in a hot air balloon.

That's what Cronkite has been up to in the last year or so, reported in the third edition of "Walter Cronkite At Large," a CBS News special to air Saturday, 10-11 p.m. Eastern time.

These specials are part of what has been keeping Cronkite busy since 1981 when he turned the anchor booth over to Dan Rather. He has done two previously, in 1986 and 1987.

It's a pleasure to see Cronkite back, looking perhaps a little more relaxed and a very little older than in the days when he was Uncle Walter, the nation's top news anchor and the most trusted man in America.

Cronkite starts out on a serious note—the environment. He goes back to two of the original doom-sayers, ecologist Barry Commoner and biologist Paul Ehrlich, both of whom are still gloomy about man's future and the quality of his life on Earth.

The show also asked 20 of the nation's leading environmentalists for an update.

Cronkite reports that, excluding nuclear war, the scientists believe the Earth is most threatened by the coming greenhouse effect caused by a blanket of pollution that traps the earth's heat; by the hole punched in the ozone layer by chemicals used in refrigerators and air conditioners threatening a plague of skin cancer; the clearing of forests, which could alter the climate and turn fertile land into desert; acid rain, and the exploding population.

Cronkite says perhaps the greatest threat of all is public apathy.

"Despite opinion polls showing public concern for the environment," Cronkite says, "our experts almost unanimously named public apathy as one of the 10 greatest dangers confronting the environment today."

Much of that apathy, the environmentalists say, comes from the Reagan administration. As a sad end piece to the show, Cronkite returns to the subject of the environment to report on how the glory that was Greece, the Acropolis, is being destroyed by pollution.

From the environment, Cronkite moves around the world to Macau, founded by the Portuguese in 1557, the first European colony in the Far East. Like Hong Kong, Macau will return to Chinese rule in 1999.

Cronkite notes that when he last walked Macau's exotic streets 15 years ago, the Portuguese possession was a sleepy colonial backwater, whose principal means of livelihood were "fishing, gambling and mortal sin."

"China, if it wished to defy world opinion, could have seized little Macau at any time," Cronkite says. "But it was the colony nobody wanted, so poor and backward, a burden, not a bonanza."
