Believed To Have Fine Health To Bring Some Change in Demo- cratic Party Soon

SANFORD, July 27.—The death of William Jennings Bryan came to the city with stunning suddenness and at a time when his name was blazing in lines much as it did in the light of his political years ago.

Efforts at Dayton, had fought with great vigor the question of evolution. Friends here held that he was in vigorous health and had predicted that his voice would ring in the next congress as a movement to throw out and house debate the which he had fought in old venture to predict the effect of the death of Mr. Bryan. In recent years, the capital had been and then his purpose was sharply away from his friends among the in the press galleries.

LOCAL CITIZENS PAY TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM J. BRYAN

Was Great Statesman With Unimpeachable Character,
Life Full of Usefulness, Is
Census of Opinion Here

Tribute to William Jennings Bryan as one of the greatest of American statesmen and whose death marks the close of one of the most powerful and influential forces in the political history of the country, was made today by a number of prominent citizens of this city.

The loss of Mr. Bryan will be keenly felt not only in his own party but in the religious and political life of the whole country, according to the views expressed here.

In speaking of Mr. Bryan, Fred R. Wilson said: "In my opinion our country has lost one of its greatest and best men in the death of William Jennings Bryan and the enemies of righteousness one of their most unrelenting foes."

"Mr. Bryan was a man of the highest ideals of citizenship and morality. His strongest enemies never dared to accuse him of dishonesty or unclean living. He was indefatigable in championing the cause of righteousness. Not all agree with his policies but all de- cent men admired and loved him for his loyalty, sincerity and honesty."

"Failure to achieve the presidency, only placed him beside two of our greatest statesmen, Henry Clay and James G. Blaine. Our greatest men have not always ob- tained the presidential chair. His loss will be universally regretted and his place almost impossible to fill."

R. J. Holly who was a special newspaper correspondent with Mr. Bryan during his first campaign for president of the United States said: "As a special newspaper corres- pondent I was with William Jen- ings Bryan when he made his first campaign for president and I earned my opinion of his unself- ish devotion to his country at that time. The fading years have not diminished that opinion or less- ened our friendship and during his residence in Florida, we met many times and friendship was turned into a genuine love for a man that I consider one of the greatest Americans of all times."

"And yet like many other great men Bryan will be greater in future history than he was in past or present for he will become bet- ter known as the people learn of his real greatness."

"The death of William Jennings Bryan comes as a severe blow to the entire nation," said Mayor For- rest Lake this morning. "In my opinion," Mr. Lake continued, "Mr. Bryan was a man of peerless char- acter and of strong convictions for the right. His death at this time comes as a shock to the whole world."

Rev. T. J. Nixon, pastor of the First Methodist Church, during his sermon last night referred to Mr. Bryan as one of America's great- est. (Continued on Page Three)

Parker A. Henderson, Mayor of Miami, Dies

MIAMI, July 27.—Parker A. Henderson, mayor of Miami, and prominent in the city's business and banking circles, was found dead Sunday morning at his home when his valet went to awak- en him. Physicians summoned to attend him declared death due to apoplexy.

Mayor Henderson had only served about a month of his present term but previously was mayor of Miami from Nov. 1, 1915, to Nov. 1, 1917. He was born in Hampton, Ga., January 7, 1875, resided in Moultrie, Ga., a few years, and came to Miami about 17 years ago. All of his adult life he has been in the lumber business and he was also a director in the First National bank, and in the First Trust and savings bank, and interested in other Miami business and civic un- dertakings.

Mrs. Henderson and the younger son were summoned from Ashe- ville, N. C., and the older son from New York. Mrs. A. J. Henderson, 75 of Hampton, Ga., mother of the mayor, arrived in Miami a few hours after his death to visit him and was informed of the tragedy upon her arrival here.

Visited Miss Mary E. Baird Who Later Became His Wife at Home of Russian Count in Early Nineties

Old Estate Located On East Union Ave.

The City of Sanford and the St. Johns River at this point were always dear to William Jennings Bryan because of a visit to this city during his "courtship" days. He saw Miss Mary E. Baird, who later became his wife. This was learned today from Mrs. J. N. Whitner who, with her husband, was one of Sanford and Seminole county's pioneer residents.

This visit came in the early nineties, said Mrs. Whitner, when Miss Baird and her father, whose home was in Chicago, were spend- ing the winter in Sanford at Villa Shooraa, the estate of an exiled Russian count, Nicholas Wassilieff.

Mr. Bryan, then a young lawyer who was unknown in this state but was already prominent in political circles in the middle West- erner state, spent some time here visiting Miss Baird and her father although the exact duration of this period is not recalled by Mrs. Whitner. He was already engaged to marry her and consequently was much interested in his future wife.

Here he met a number of the young people then living in San- ford and with whom he corre- sponded for many years. Among these Mrs. Whitner said, was Henry Deane, brother of William T. Deane of this city, who soon after Mr. Bryan's visit removed to Tennessee but who, up until the present, corresponded with Mr. Bryan and his family. Mr. Deane was a good friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Bryan and only recently moved back to Florida from Tennessee, this time settling in the city of Miami, which for many years had been the home of Mr. Bryan.

At the time of Mr. Bryan's visit to this city, it is pointed out, rail- roads in Florida were "in their beginning" and most travel to San- ford was on the water, mainly the St. Johns River.

The estate of Count Wassilieff was situated on the north side of Union Avenue, extending from Pump Branch almost to Mellon- ferri Avenue along Lake Monroe. The old residence of the then fam- ily estate still stands on Union Avenue near the Hotel Forrest Lake and in the midst of one of Sanford's swiftly developing sec- tions. It is to this place that it is said that Mr. Bryan has often re- ferred to as a place where he spent many happy hours when he visited Sanford to him as perhaps no other Florida city has save Miami.

Dr. Alexander Karr To Address Women At Meeting Tonight

Dr. Alexander Karr, educational director of the American City League which is conducting the mem- bership campaign for the Sanford Chamber of Commerce in view of raising $50,000 for advertising purposes, who spoke so eloquently during nearly every day of the past week to enthusiastic hearers, will address the women of this city in a special meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Woman's Club on Oak Avenue.

The women especially are urged to attend this meeting as it is de- clared the occasion is one which is of vital interest to every woman of Sanford and the entire adjoin- ing community. Men are also in- vited to attend the meeting al- though it is primarily for the wom- en.

Dr. Karr delighted the members of the Scrap Iron Class and a large number of visitors at the Princess Theater in his talk there Sunday morning on "Opportunity." In connection with this subject he dis- cussed the value of "being ready" and "getting ready" to act when opportunity presents itself.

Opportunity, declared Dr. Karr, presents itself not once to any one man or woman during his or her lifetime but millions of times. He scored the old teachings which have been prominent in the minds of many scholars to the effect that opportunity knocked but once and after that it was useless for that particular individual to wait for another opportunity.

"When a man is given," he as- serted, "that only gives him an- other opportunity. If he fails again, he again has another and a better opportunity to make good because of his experience."

GREATER CITY DRIVE LEADERS TO NUMBER 200

Personnel of Organization Is To Be Increased at Meeting of Committee This Evening;
Work Will Be Systematized

Much Interest Being Shown In Civic Move

Huge Mass Meeting to Be Held
Tuesday Night, Dr. Karr
Will Be Principal Speaker

The big team organization of the "Greater Sanford" campaign will take another step toward completion at 8 o'clock tonight when the four majors of divisions will meet with 24 captains for the purpose of selecting team lieutenants. Each captain will select a num- ber of five helpers. The total or- ganization will run close to 200.

This organization, consisting of one colonel, four majors, 24 cap- tains, a minimum of 120 lieuten- ants, and a number of special com- mittees, will meet later for final instructions.

This voluntary sales force, when it starts work on the morning of Tuesday, Aug. 4, will have been instructed in almost every detail that can be anticipated. Their work is so systematized that they are expected to complete the dis- tribution canvass on the second or third morning, and then they will be allowed to get members any place in the city.

Tremendous interest in the Greater Sanford civic mass meet- ing to be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the new city hall is reported at campaign headquarters. Leaders in the campaign are expecting the greatest crowd ever gathered here in a civic meeting.

The address to be made on this occasion by Dr. Alexander Karr is expected to be one of the most in- spiring speeches ever made in San- ford. There will be music and community singing and the band will be out.

The campaign is now entering its third week, and the manager, D. H. McFarland, expressed him- self today as more pleased with the progress that has been made. He believes that the movement has great possibilities. This, he said, would be a very active week, with all committees working, and getting everything in readiness for the drive next week. The goal has not yet been determined with respect to the number of new members, but much thought is being given to it, and it will be in keeping with San- ford's wealth, population and fu- ture possibilities.

The campaign is already increas- ingly active. Inquiries are com- ing in daily in increasing num- bers, and most of these indicate that Sanford is in the minds of many people as a city that is go- ing to take on greatly increased activity. There is much optimism over the city concerning immediate and future prospects, and there is a firm belief that the city will benefit greatly from the advertis- ing that is getting from the cam- paign. The news that Sanford is in the midst of a great go-to- gether movement and that the citi- zenship appears to be united on the project is looked upon every- where as a splendid sign for the city's future.

Following the campaign, a very much larger fund than ever before available will be at the disposal of the Chamber of Commerce for an extensive advertising campaign, and this is expected to attract many tourists, investors and home- seekers to the city.

Premier Baldwin Devotes Efforts To Settlement Of English Coal Problem

LONDON, July 27.—Premier Baldwin has given up his week end at Chequers Court to devote himself to the solution of the coal problem. The king, equally en- gaged in the efforts to avert what is universally considered would be a national disaster, sent his secretary, Lord Stamfordham, to Downing street today, where he had a conference of nearly an hour with the prime minister and W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of his admiralty, who is acting as medi- ator in the controversy between the mine owners and miners.

Premier Baldwin employed al- most the whole day in consulting with his colleagues and experts to prepare himself for his meeting tomorrow with a committee from the trade union congress.

Nothing further has developed regarding the government's in- tention, but the rumor has gained strength that temporary govern- ment subsidy for the coal trade would be proposed. The idea of such trade subsidies is not very popular in the country, but in the present case, governmental aid might be tacitly accepted as a

As Commoner Appeared Last Week

WOMAN DESIRES TO BECOME FIRST MEMBER IN DRIVE

Miss Daniels of Detroit Requests That She Be Allowed to Take Out First Membership in Coming Campaign

Miss H. F. Daniels of Detroit, Mich., a young woman of wide ex- perience in real estate and devel- opment projects in that city, has re- quested the Chamber of Commerce for the privilege of taking out the first membership in the Greater Sanford campaign of the Cham- ber of Commerce.

Miss Daniels has decided to cast her lot with Sanford after a trip over most of Florida in which she made a study of localities from the standpoint of possible enhance- ment of real estate values. She is convinced that the Sanford sec- tion gives greater promise of pro- fit and opportunities in real es- tate developments than any other section she visited.

She has held responsible posi- tions in Detroit, having been sales director and assistant director of a number of large developments. She expects to interest a number of Detroit people in Sanford.

The Chamber of Commerce re- ports that a number of citizens have called to take out mem- berships, all of them saying that they were heartily in sympathy with the movement for a greater San- ford, and that they believed this one of the most important civic move- ments in local history.

Banners Boosting "Greater Sanford" Campaign Are Here

The Chamber of Commerce has received a limited supply of auto- mobile banners which were order- ed especially for the "Greater San- ford" campaign of the Chamber of Commerce. These are to be hung on the backs of automobiles. The wording is: "Let's Tell The World Of The City Substantial, Support The Chamber of Commerce."

Campaign leaders are desirous of every car leaving Sanford for other points in the state carry one of these banners, as it will indicate that Sanford is in the midst of a big community campaign.

These banners may be had at the Chamber of Commerce as long as they last. They should be kept on cars until the campaign is over week after next.

Body of Great Commoner to Lie In State This Afternoon at Dayton, Tennessee, While Public Will Be Invited to View His Body; Remains to Leave For Capital Wednesday

Great Political And Religious Leader Had Spent Strenuous Day Saturday

Bryan's Prayer at Church Services At the Morning Hour Beautiful Appeal; Police- man Asserts Bryan's Life was Threatened

DAYTON, Tenn., July 27.—The body of William Jennings Bryan who died suddenly in sleep here late yesterday will move on a special railroad car from Dayton for Wash- ington at 8:40 o'clock Wednesday morning, Mrs. Bryan an- nounced through her friends today.

Burial of the political and religious leader will be in Arlington National Cemetery, Virginia at a time to be de- termined later, Mrs. Bryan said the body will lie in state this afternoon between the hours of 3 and 5 eastern time while the public will be invited to view Bryan's body.

The place will be at the home where Mr. Bryan died, off the Rhea county court house, where he fought his last great battle.

In speaking of her husband's passing early today Mrs. Bryan, a heroic little woman, declared, "Oh I so wanted him to be left to me for a few years. There are so many things that he was needed for. He was writing his memoirs and the world needs his memoirs. They told of the great stretch of American history and we so wanted to make his trip to the Holy Land next February."

Mr. Bryan lies at rest in the north room of the Roger's home. He has a most peaceful expression on his face. He seems as though all one would have to say on entering the room would be "Mr. Bryan" and he would immediately an- swer to the call of his name. The lights are turned low and his Dayton friends are gathered around just outside on the front porch.

EXTRA IS ISSUED BY HERALD UPON DEATH OF BRYAN

When news of the sudden death of William Jennings Bryan was received by The Herald last night through an Associated Press dis- patch, plans were immediately made for issuing an extra edition giving Sanford citizens their first official announcement of the pass- ing of the Great Commoner.

Upon receipt of its first mes- saged at 8:30 o'clock, The Herald dispatched an order for more de- tails concerning the sad occurrence and at the same time the electric current was turned on to heat the metal pots on the linotype ma- chine to be heated sufficiently for the machine to begin setting type.

In the meanwhile several tele- phone calls quickly brought mem- bers of the mechanical depart- ment to the office. In a few min- utes time practically the whole force was on hand. Forms were taken from the press and setting machines were speedily made to take care of the story. Under the su- pervision of Hugh S. Osborne, foreman, the force went about its work as though it was an every- day occurrence.

In a few minutes Circulation Manager Lee Peck was on the job and despite the fact that many of the carrier boys had retired, short- ly afterwards between 15 and 20 were on the job anxiously awaiting their papers.

By 9:20 o'clock everything was well under way and at 9 o'clock the linotypes were ready for set- ting. The foreman issued the dis- patches in "takes" and each op- erator set about his task with ma- chine-like precision. While the type was being set, headlines in hand-set type were quickly set up and by the time the operators had finished, everything was in readi- ness for placing the type in the forms and locking them up.

At 11 o'clock the press was run- ning and in a few minutes the word "Extra" was being yelled all over town. In actual operating time the paper had been issued in an hour and 40 minutes.

Despite the late hour when a majority of the citizens were asleep, hundreds of papers were sold. As the newsboys passed down dark streets after dark street, lights began to flash in the homes as people began to open their doors to purchase copies of the paper. At an early hour this morning the newsboys were again on the job and within a short time it was necessary to run off more copies to supply the demand.

As the news of Mr. Bryan's death spread quickly over the city last night, The Herald office was besieged with scores of telephone inquiries asking for further in- formation on the Commoner's pass- ing. Personal calls were also made and by the time the extra edition was issued, there was a large crowd congregated in the office.

Felt Work Was Done
WINCHESTER, Tenn., July 27.—Before leaving here Saturday after delivering an address, William Jennings Bryan, who died suddenly in Dayton yesterday, made the following statement to a reporter: "If I should die tomorrow I should feel that much has been accomplished in the greatest cause for enlightening humanity ever known. I believe that on the basis of the accomplishments of the last few weeks, I could truthfully say well done."

Virtually dominant in the democratic party for nearly sixteen years, William J. Bryan was three times nominated and defeated for the presidency. Then, like Elijah of old, he cast his mantle upon the Elisha of Princeton and exerted a potent influence in bringing about Woodrow Wilson's first nomination for the office to which he, himself, had vainly aspired.

Known in his youth as "the silver-tongued boy orator of the Platte," it was Mr. Bryan's eloquence in his famous "gold" speech at the democratic national convention in Chicago in 1896 that made him the choice of his party. He polled more than 6,500,000 votes in his first campaign.

His career has been likened to that of Henry Clay who also was three times nominated for the presidency and as many times defeated. Clay, too, became a Secretary of State. Friends of Bryan insisted that, like Clay, he was too conscientious, consistent and scrupulous for a politician and that the famous Whig's declaration "I would rather be right than be President" well described the man from Nebraska.

The former Secretary of State was born in Salem, Ill., March 19, 1860. His father was Silas Lillard Bryan, a native of Culpepper county, Virginia, a lawyer and judge. The son, after graduating from Illinois College in 1881 and Union College of Law, Chicago, in 1883 entered the law office of Lyman Turnbull, former United States senator. Subsequently he removed to Jacksonville, Ill., where he practiced law until 1887 when he settled in Lincoln, Neb.

During the presidential campaign of 1888 young Bryan's speeches in behalf of the Democratic ticket attracted attention and in 1890 he accepted a nomination for Congress in the First Nebraska district, a Republican stronghold, "because, no one else would have it," he said, since it was believed no Democrat could win. He was elected and served from 1891 until 1895. He was made a member of the important Ways and Means Committee in his first term.

Two speeches in this period gave Mr. Bryan nationwide prominence, one against the policy of protection, delivered on March 16, 1892, and the other against the repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman Act on August 16, 1893. In the latter he advocated "the free unlimited coinage of silver, irrespective of international agreement, at a ratio of 16 to 1," a policy with which his name was afterwards most prominently associated until he entered the cabinet of President Wilson.

The first nomination of Mr. Bryan for the Presidency at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago on July 10, 1896, has since been characterized as one of the "miracles" of American politics. The machine, after serving in Congress, had run for the United States Senate and been defeated by Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska. Abandoning the law, Mr. Bryan became editor of the Omaha World-Herald and championed the cause of bimetalism as vigorously with the pen as he had upon the forum. He had been beaten for a third time in Congress on the issue of "sound money" and when the time came for the National convention this question was rending both big political parties. There were Free Silver Republicans as well as Democrats, but the nominee of the former, Henry M. Teller of Colorado, threw his support to Bryan when the Nebraska won the nomination at Chicago.

The "cross of gold" speech by Bryan, which has been quoted of ten, perhaps, than any other of his words, and which made him a rival of William McKinley for the presidency—came at the close of a debate on the floor of the convention in advocacy of a free silver plank. Men nationally prominent in the party had preceded him, and opposed the plank unless it should provide for bimetalism international agreement. The situation was tense when the Nebraska, then only 36 years old—no year more than the Constitutional requirement for a president—rose to speak, everybody was fixed, everybody seemed ready for compromise. Not so the delegate from Nebraska. There was fire in his eye when he began to speak.

"I would be presumptuous, indeed, to present myself against the distinguished gentlemen to whom you have listened," he said, "if this were a mere measuring of abilities; but this is not a contest between persons. The humblest citizen in all the land, when clad in the armor of a righteous cause, is stronger than all the hosts of error. I came to speak to you in defense of a cause as holy as the cause of liberty—the cause of humanity."

Then charging the evils of the day—the idle mills, the social unrest and low wages—to the scarcity of money and the "idle holders of the capital in Wall street," he continued:

"The individual is but an atom; he is Lorn, he acts, he dies; but principles are eternal; and this has been a contest over a principle. Having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world, supported by the commercial interests, the laboring interests and the toilers everywhere, we will answer those who demand a single gold standard by saying: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon this cross of gold."

The convention was stampeded for Bryan, who was nominated over eight other candidates on the fifth ballot, following a speech by a Georgia delegate in which the eloquent young orator was referred to as "a soul come to lead the Israelites to battle." Subsequently Bryan received the nomination of the People's and the National Silver parties.

The nominee broke all speaking records in his first campaign, traveling more than 18,000 miles and making about 600 speeches in 27 states. He polled 6,502,925 votes to McKinley's 7,104,779 and received in the Electoral College 170 votes to his opponent's 271. Although defeated, Mr. Bryan remained the leader of his party and, after the Spanish-American war in 1898, in which he commanded the 3rd Nebraska Volunteer Infantry as its Colonel, he opposed the permanent retention of the Philippine Islands by the United States.

In 1900, when again nominated for the presidency, he made "anti-imperialism" the paramount issue but refused to omit an explicit party declaration in favor of free coinage of silver in the party platform. This time he was defeated with a popular vote of 6,358,133 as against 7,207,923 for his opponent. He received 155 electoral votes to McKinley's 292.

Mr. Bryan returned to Lincoln, and started the publication of a weekly political journal called The Commoner. Four years later, 1904, although not actively a candidate for the nomination, which eventually went to Judge Alton B. Parker, he vigorously opposed Democracy's "conservative" attitude.

The interim between this period and the next presidential election of 1908 was occupied by Mr. Bryan, now known by many of his followers as "The Peerless Leader," in several enterprises that kept him in the public eye. Notable among these was his trip around the world on which he started September 21, 1905. Accompanied by his wife, son and daughter, Mr. Bryan first went to Japan, and China where he was hospitably entertained and made numerous addresses one of which, entitled, "The White Man's Burden" was commended by the Japanese-American Society.

The Bryans were presented to the Emperor of Japan and were everywhere accorded the honor of foremost Americans. Later the party went to the Philippines where Mr. Bryan's views on Filipino independence were welcomed. During this visit the savage Moros of Mindanao Island created the Nebraska a "dilemma" or chief of one of their tribes.

Leaving the Philippines the party went to India, the Holy Land, Turkey, Austria-Hungary, Germany, Russia, Italy, Norway, Sweden and other European countries, finally arriving in London on July 3, 1906. Meanwhile Mr. Bryan had "interviewed" King Edward VII, the Emperor of Russia, and other potentates, and Count Leo Tolstoy and had made numerous speeches all of which were reported in the American press and which inspired a desire on the part of Democrats at home to give him a great reception which was done upon his return to America the following September.

About this time Mr. Bryan came out for world disarmament, an ideal which is said to have prompted his drafting in 1913, when he became Secretary of State of the particular form of peace treaty between the United States and foreign nations "by which all disputes were to be submitted to an impartial investigation commission for a year before hostilities could begin." This had been regarded as Mr. Bryan's greatest achievement for thirty foreign nations, and representing three-fourths of the population of the earth, became signatories to the document. About a year later the World War broke out in all its fury.

In 1908 Mr. Bryan was again named as the Democratic standard bearer. The campaign was waged on the principal issue of opposition to "trusts" and for a third time the Democratic nominee suffered defeat, polling 4,000,000 votes to Taft's 7,628,000 and receiving 162 electoral votes to his opponent's 321.

Notwithstanding Mr. Bryan's reverses in politics, it is said, he was "a good loser." Of Presbyterian forbears, optimistic and of a religious nature, his setbacks failed to make him lose faith in his future. He refused to become discouraged. For the next four years, or until the campaign of 1912 which resulted in the election of President Wilson, Mr. Bryan continued to edit his newspaper and to attend the councils of his party.

In his first campaign his home in Lincoln was a Mecca for prominent Democrats, where Mrs. Bryan, a scholarly woman, formerly Miss Mary E. Baird, of Perry, Ill., who has greatly aided her husband in his political career, was a charming hostess. The Bryans had three children, one son and two daughters.

Always in demand as a lecturer, especially at Chautauquas, Mr. Bryan's income was augmented by his writings for newspapers and magazines, and his authorship of several books. The latter included "The First Battle," (1897); "Under Other Flags," (1904); "The Old World and Its Ways," (1907); "Heart to Heart Appeals," (1917). In addition to his Nebraska home, Mr. Bryan after his final defeat for the presidency, established residence in Asheville, N. C., and Miami, Fla.

A few months before the time for the 1912 Democratic National Convention, Mr. Bryan publicly announced he would not be a candidate declaring he was "ready to enter upon a campaign to enter upon a campaign in behalf of a true Democrat with even more vigor than that with which I have fought at any time on my own behalf."

Woodrow Wilson at this time was Governor of New Jersey and had attracted the attention of the Nebraska, it was said, by reason of his "progressive" legislation. The fight on the floor of the Baltimore Convention, led by Bryan against the Tammany men in the New York delegation, is a matter of history. Despite the fact that Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, led on 27 ballots for the nomination and had a clear majority of nine, which ordinarily would have made him the party's candidate, the Nebraska's eloquence and persistence against "domination of the party by Wall Street" resulted in failure of the Missourian to get the necessary two-thirds of the convention and in the designation of Wilson.

Mr. Bryan and Mr. Wilson held many ideals in common. When Mr. Wilson was elected president, he appointed Mr. Bryan Secretary of State.

The two years Mr. Bryan occupied a place at the head of Mr. Wilson's cabinet were years of perplexity and stress. The Mexican embargo, the Japanese anti-alien land controversy in California, and the correspondence with Germany and Austria-Hungary, antecedent to America's entrance into the war, were problems that gave the Nebraska statesman many sleepless nights.

During his term of office, because of an insult to the United States flag and the refusal of "Dictator" Huerta of Mexico to fire a salute as an apology American troops were dispatched to Vera Cruz, which was captured April 21, 1914. Subsequently the troops and warships were withdrawn, Huerta was deposed and a Constitutional government under Venustiano Carranza, who was favored by the Administration, was set up in its stead.

At the height of the anti-alien land controversy in California, Mr. Bryan journeyed to the Pacific coast where he held several conferences with the Governor and delivered speeches before the State legislature.

Mr. Bryan's resignation from the cabinet, which occurred on June 9, 1915, came as a thunder-clap out of a clear sky. It was known there had been disagreements between the President and his chief cabinet officer but that the breach had gone beyond healing was not realized by the public mind. Germany's aggressions and her ruthless U boat policy were daily drawing the United States into the vortex of war. Mr. Bryan seemed pledged to peace. The time came when President Wilson's notes to Germany had to take a final tone and, with the sinking of another American ship and an ultimatum from the United States, Mr. Bryan, who had previously declared "There is nothing final between friends sent his letter of resignation to the President. Mr. Wilson, deploring his action as a "personal loss," in reply, accepted his Secretary's withdrawal from the cabinet stating that they both sought the same end but by different methods.

The zeal of Mr. Bryan to bring about world peace, led him in excess of his enthusiasm, it was said, to public speech and acts that brought upon him a great deal of a religious nature, his setbacks

"The buying power of the American people is about four or five to one of the people of other nations"

—so said one of New York's most prominent manufacturers and financiers in giving his reason why Florida in general, and particularly Miami, are destined to enjoy continued and increasing prosperity. The American people can pour more money into Florida than can be easily computed.

And so MIAMI SHORES today, by virtue of this condition, is filling an immediate need in providing homesites and investment opportunities when Miami, although in the midst of her greatest era of expansion, cannot cope with demands being placed upon her.

This replica of Miami—Miami Shores, being developed along the most improved city plan, is offering similar opportunities to those Miami offered in the early day. ### Bryan Regarded Greatest Fight

 "I would never have delivered my address later than the preceding days in Dayton, where I spent in revising his script."
 "There was no indication of ill-will on his arrival at a few days in advance of the trial. On his arrival at Dayton he spoke only once in public. He spoke several times in Rhea county. His addresses included a speech in his honor by the public school, an informal address to his fellow prosecution and their guests at Morgans, two religious addresses at Dayton and one at Pike. On Monday he spoke at Wilmington carrying out his promise to Attorney General A. T. Denham during the trial that he would deliver an address to the attorney general's fellowmen."
 "Likewise in Dayton, leader of the fundamentalists, Mr. Bryan was made to speak at home in Dayton. His entrance from the courtroom was followed by a succession of cheers. Rhea county politicians were found frequently in the political faith were the most ardent admirers of the former democratic candidate. President and cabinet of all you let a life-long re-shake your hand, Mr. Bryan was a question heard once in the courtroom. His last discussions with the folk concerned the suggestion of a college devoted to fundamental doctrine be established in Dayton for its name should be established, his response was "Well see." There's enough to discuss the name of the brilliant Lustrer."
 "The history of American there are few names which at brilliant lustrer of spirit which has become a memory of William Bryan."
 "For almost 30 years a moralism of national sensibility one upon another. It became almost overnight the leader of his party idol of millions. Three carried the party standard choice for the highest of the land; in another year, 1912, he reaped much credit for placing Woodrow in the White House, and in every other national democratic convention in a generation was in the very center of every that came."
 "In recognition, many said, of his leadership, President Wilson made him secretary of state. Later, under the most sensational circumstances because he the nation was verging toward participation in the European war, and peace always had been his in his earlier years, just as later days he made the place of religion his all-absorbing and turned his talents to work on evolution."
 "Unswerving Devotion"
 "Throughout all his active years followers clung to his standard, unswerving devotion for the cause of his ideals, while his enemies and hated him, calling him ignorant and misguided in economics and his religious great power of eloquence. It brought him to a place of national prominence, remained for many years, but toward the last his old time brilliancy of the platform and the lamp began to dim perceptibly. Although he found time for many venturesome excursions into the fields, politics was his forte. The story of his life work is a history of the national political campaigns that began in the Chicago democratic convention of 1896, stamped from a mold by his "cross of gold" speech, made him its candidate for

 "The criticism. Before the United States entered the war the Bryan had pledged himself to support an expedition financed by Paul, the Michigan manufacturer to Europe for the purpose of getting the boys out of the trenches." Mr. Bryan later his plans and did not go. He was accused of the propaganda of the Central Powers by his enemies and writings. Early in the war he declared it was "not for profit seekers. In 1919 in San Francisco he was accused of being "for the United States to war with Germany would be challenging a madhouse." It was before this he was reported as being opposed to permitting the United States to make any loans to the belligerents. When the United States picked up the gage of battle thrown down by Germany, however, Mr. Bryan promptly declared that must be defeated at all costs and offered his services to President Wilson as a private soldier."

 "While Secretary of State, Mr. Bryan often absent from Washington as a lecturer and this subjected him to no little amount of taillery in the press. In a public statement he said the $12,000 salary he received as a cabinet officer was insufficient to meet the ordinary household demands upon his purse and he felt obliged to supplement his income in other ways. One of his most popular lectures was "The Lines of Peace." When he entered the cabinet, Mr. Bryan astonished Washington by announcing that grape juice would be substituted for alcoholic beverages whenever the Secretary of State and Mrs. Bryan entertained the members of the diplomatic corps. Indeed, Mr. Bryan in his long advocacy of teetotalism was credited by many with having done more than any other American outside of the Prohibition party, to force the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution making the United States a "dry" nation. From March 1918 he was president of the National Dry Federation."

LOCAL CITIZENS PAY TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM J. BRYAN

 "The most ardent admirers of the late and discussed the outstanding traits of the Great Commoner just a few minutes before being informed of Mr. Bryan's death at Dayton."
 "I have always regarded William Jennings Bryan as one of the greatest and best of all the leading men ever known in this country," Rev. Nixon stated this morning. He continues, "one of the most important things in his character was his abiding faith in the Bible as the inspired word of God and the Christian religion."
 "While as a political leader he has had many opponents and enemies, yet many of his policies and views have been adopted and carried out by others. While he was defeated three times in races for presidential chair, I believe he is as good and great a man as has ever been president of the United States. The statement of Henry Clay, that 'I rather be right than president' aptly fits Mr. Bryan," declared the minister. "I regard Bryan's death as a public calamity because of his great influence for good. He will be known to future generations as one of the most useful and prominent characters of all times."

"I consider that the entire nation, and especially the common classes of citizenship of the United States, have suffered a distinct and irreparable loss in the death of Honorable William Jennings Bryan."
 "In my opinion there was no more sincere or faithful champion of the cause of the common people than Mr. Bryan. He was honest, sincere, faithful and enthusiastic in fighting for the rights of the people. He was always lined up on the side of justice, honesty and the common rights of mankind. When leaders of this kind are taken from a nation there long remains an aching void before some other champion of like ability will develop."
 "He was a true apostle for the cause of liberty, not only in political life, but in religious life, and his reverence and enthusiastic appreciation at the hour of the great crusader for right against wrong, William Jennings Bryan."
 Rev. F. D. King, pastor of the First Baptist Church, says:
 "The new world has produced no man like William Jennings Bryan. In political life for more than a quarter of a century he has been the greatest power in his party. Except in the ranks of the enemy his motives have never been questioned, and seldom has an enemy dared to attribute to him an unworthy purpose. He has achieved in the field of the superlative—he has made for himself an enduring place in the hearts of millions of people who contend for justice and righteousness."
 "In the ranks of the Christian forces no layman has occupied such a commanding position as has William Jennings Bryan. And he came to this position because of the genuine worth of the man he has been through the years of his private and public life."

 circumstances but not inconsistent with the deal's previous utterances."
 The Rev. James Edward Weldon, Dean of Durham, was mobbed by miners Saturday. They foisted him in the direction of the river, with the ostensible purpose of throwing him in. He was rescued by the police and taken away in a motor boat.
 Mr. Shinwell added that little blame was to be attached to the miners, for with no other means of curbing the tongue of a dean it was the sort of thing they might be expected to do.
 Whether the government liked it or not, he declared, economic pressure was forcing the country toward national ownership of mines.
 Dean Weldon addressed a great miners gala service today in Durham cathedral. He said he did not begrudge the miners any wages it was possible to pay them, but the question was what was possible to pay them. He advocated conciliation and arbitration.
 A conference of miners and mine owners has been called for Wednesday and unless this should prove successful there seems little hope of averting a stoppage on Aug. 1. Apparently the miners will not countenance even the suggestion of continuing the present agreement from day to day, but the miners' federation will ask for one month's grace, failing which the men will lay down their tools next Saturday.

Ernest Torrence has suddenly become the polished gentleman, and he feels—well, something like the man who has deserted his plow and has donned his boiled shirt for a day in the city.
 "After all the rough neck roles I've had," he says, "I am almost afraid I will trip over my stick."
 Tailored suits, smooth shaves and neat haircuts and Torrence has been strangers during most of his movie career. Since he began his career in "The Covered Wagon," "The Trail of '88," "The Sideshow of Life," "West of the Water Tower," and "The Fighting Cowboy," he has had from being a fashion model, but now everything seems to be different.
 Torrence is featured with Rod La Roche, Dorothy Gish and George Hackathorne in the leading roles of the production which is being shown today and Tuesday at the Milane Theatre. Helen Leighton, former "Follies" beauty, heads the supporting cast. Edgar Selwyn wrote this story of New York's night life especially for the screen.

Apparently the miners will not countenance even the suggestion of continuing the present agreement from day to day, but the miners' federation will ask for one month's grace, failing which the men will lay down their tools next Saturday.

Whether the government liked it or not, he declared, economic pressure was forcing the country toward national ownership of mines.
 Dean Weldon addressed a great miners gala service today in Durham cathedral. He said he did not begrudge the miners any wages it was possible to pay them, but the question was what was possible to pay them. He advocated conciliation and arbitration.
 A conference of miners and mine owners has been called for Wednesday and unless this should prove successful there seems little hope of averting a stoppage on Aug. 1.  The Rev. James Edward Weldon, Dean of Durham, was mobbed by miners Saturday. They foisted him in the direction of the river, with the ostensible purpose of throwing him in. He was rescued by the police and taken away in a motor boat.
 Mr. Shinwell added that little blame was to be attached to the miners, for with no other means of curbing the tongue of a dean it was the sort of thing they might be expected to do.

World Court Foes Are Seeking Help Of Senator Borah

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Opponents of the World Court alarmed over the senate will ratify the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge program providing for American adherence to the court protocol, are centering a drive on Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, hoping of the senate's support, hoping he will find a device for blocking the proposal.
 Representative Tinkham (R., Mass.) is one of the spokesmen of the opposition. He made public Sunday a letter to Borah appealing to him to suggest some means whereby something effective can be done.
 "An audacious and last desperate attempt is being made by the internationalists and occult foreign influence," said Tinkham, "to force the United States into the League of Nations by way of the World Court."
 "It is only a step from this to the employment of our armed forces abroad."
 Tinkham added that the Hague court is sufficient now.
 His letter reflects the continuing dissensions in the Republican ranks over the court program. Eager to avoid displeasing President Coolidge, Republican irreconcilables in the senate plan to propagandize against the court indirectly. Tinkham is one of the willing to be the mouthpiece of the opposition despite the risk of presidential disfavor.

Bryan Pet Mourns For Dead Master

MIAMI, July 27.—"Poor Polly," shrieked Papete, the 18-year-old Bryan pet from his cage in the kitchen of the Commoner's home in Coconut Grove this morning. "Hush Papete," soothed Elsie Griffin, Bryan cook from her chair beside the cold stove.
 "Seem like that Peete Parrot know there's something wrong this mawmin," she drawled, "he jess been frettin' and carryin on evah since Friday night."

Grand Entrance to Coral Gables

The Gateway to Profits

BYOND this gateway lies a magical city where investors are reaping a golden harvest of profits. Only the other day a fruit grove occupied a large portion of it, while over the balance the palmetto grew wild and the pine woods marched down to the sea.

Today it is well on the way to becoming the finest city in the world—fore-runner of the new type of community that discriminating men and women will insist on living in tomorrow.

In this city of Coral Gables, comprising the choicest portion of the Florida Tropics, more than $25,000,000 already have been spent on improvements, and the vast development program calls for the expenditure of more than $100,000,000 additional over the next eight to ten years.

But mere cold figures cannot give the measure of beauty here, where ten thousand acres of gently undulating country run down to the blue waters of Biscayne Bay, where frost is unknown and the flowers always bloom, forever swept by cooling trade winds, forever bathed in limpid sunlight. They cannot give you the least conception of the haunting charm of this city where the business zone is an architectural gem, where are lovely hotels untainted by modern commercialism, where a thousand delightful homes have definitely established a new type of American architecture.

One thing and one thing alone can the figures involved in this vast development program make plain, and that is, Coral Gables offers a sound and secure investment with an assured present and a great future.

The buyers of two and three years ago have made splendid profits as values rose with the progress of development. Many are buying again today in the new Riviera section, with its tremendous development program. They realize that the pre-development price level cannot last long, and that the investor who buys now has the finest opportunity for profit-taking that even Coral Gables has yet afforded.

CHRIST'S BENEDICTION:—Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you.

THE FORMER GLORY
I would that I had seen with my two eyes
The steeples of the Gothic Kingdom rise,

I would that I had seen those but-tressed walls
Of that first towering splendid old St. Paul's,

I would that I had seen the festal way,
When Holy Church proclaimed glad holiday,

But gold has blocked up all the holy wells,
And dumb is all that host of christened bells,

Announcement of the plan to construct an arcade building in Sanford has resulted in many requests for store space in the new building.

William Jennings Bryan

The report of the death of William Jennings Bryan comes as a distinct shock to all who knew him. As a man of unusually hardy constitution, who had not yet reached his allotted three score years and ten, it seems that he had received the summons to his last reward as prematurely as might another man of younger generations.

And yet his had been a life of continued drive and irrepresible action. From earliest boyhood when he first as a mere child mounted the rostrum to declare his antipathy for political corruption, to his last fight at Dayton where like an ancient crusader he had gone to protect the name of Christ, he had devoted his energy and eloquence to the last atom of his strength and endurance in the pursuit of those principles he believed in most utterly for the betterment of the masses.

It is not for this year or this decade to weigh the results of Bryan's efforts or to find his place in history. That will remain for historians of a later year who may have had time to test the final benefits of those four amendments to the constitution for which Bryan is so largely responsible.

Bryan has been criticized by many. He has been said to be always on the wrong side. He would not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold but history has proved that the cross of gold was not after all a crucifix.

But the paradox of Bryan's life seems to be that the best can be gained from the man by a not too literal interpretation. Fundamentalist that he was, he fully believed that Jonah was swallowed by the whale and that Joshua made the sun stand still.

In our civilization we are satisfied with the great principles which we get from the Bible. We are not so much concerned with whether God created the entire world in six days or six million years as we are with the fact that he created it at all.

It doesn't make so much difference whether Eve was made from one of Adam's ribs just so long as she was made at all. As long as Jesus lived a generation on this earth, set a perfect example for fine living, healed the sick and brought happiness into the lives of millions, it really doesn't make so much difference whether he was born of the Virgin Mary.

And so it is with Bryan. We have in him a man who lived and died for what he thought was right. He may not have been right but he believed he was with all the power and determination any living man could have.

I HAVE FOUGHT a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.—Timothy.

IT IS UNCERTAIN in what place death may await thee; therefore except it in any place.—Seneca.

This one has the sanction of the clergy. It was told to me years ago by a friend of mine who was then a priest but now is a bishop. On a certain day a child—a dainty girl-child—was brought to the altar to be baptised.

As Brisbane Sees It

Dillon, Shubert—Right Way. Read last. Queer Official Conscience. The Soul Died. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1925)

SOME AMERICANS go to Europe with money and enterprise on the right basis. Mr. Dillon, Read & Co., now in London, is planning a one hundred and fifty million subway system, in which "British capital will participate to a small extent."

THE SHUBERTS of New York have six theatres in London and will get more. That's the right way for American business men to help Europe—by going over with their money and showing how the thing should be done.

MR. DILLON plans to construct subways for trucks, to relieve traffic congestion on the surface. The same enterprise would be welcomed in American cities, especially in New York, where the stagnation point in congestion has almost been reached.

A DEVOUT reader, disturbed by the fact that passages from the Bible appear to suggest that the earth is flat and square, will find in Isaiah, most significant of all the Bible writers, a text that will satisfy him.

THE GOVERNMENT offers some worthless ships, rusting away at anchor, costing large sums for their maintenance. Henry Ford offers $1,700,000 for them. He would scrap them and use the metal, and his offer is higher than any other.

TOO BAD that man with a conscience was not around when the navy's oil lands were so neatly disposed of. It's extraordinary how active the official conscience becomes when an honest man offers to pay the Government an honest price, and how soundly that conscience sleeps when Government property is being stolen.

A YOUNG man named Scott in Illinois is waiting to be hanged. His mother says she will kill herself at the exact hour of her son's hanging. Scott's father says "My son's soul died last week just before he was to have been hanged."

That statement is new in America, but old in literature. In his hell, Dante shows spirits in torment, whose bodies were still alive, walking the streets of Florence when he left the surface. It is explained to Dante that many souls go to hell before their bodies die, that their punishment may begin sooner.

THE MATERIAL facts concerning Scott, sentenced to death for murder, are these: Under our prohibition system Scott got drunk and killed a man. If he is hanged the bootlegger that sold him the whiskey should be hanged beside him.

MR. ALDRICH, prosperous lawyer, is sued for divorce. His wife alleges cruelty. He replies, "My only cruelty was almost stoning her to death with jewelry." He spent $175,000 on jewelry, gave the lady a $35,000 sable coat, and a chinchilla coat costing $8,000, and securities worth $100,000.

THE LADY realises that not sables, not jewels, not securities, not even the fur of the chinchilla, most interesting little animal, can give her happiness.

ABE-EL-KRIM, stout warrior that he is, suggests peace with certain terms. The terms will become more liberal as time passes. No semi-barbarous state can long resist persistent bombing from the air.

THE FRENCH, with no risk to their fliers, are able to bomb fifteen or twenty Riff villages, and camps every day. Those Moors are a brave people, but they can not stand that very long.

TO THE RESCUE

AS TO WOOD SAWING

Mr. Coolidge believes in the virtues of sawing wood, both in a literal sense as when on his farm, for the upbuilding of his physique and the delight of the photographers, he wields the mighty implement, and also in a gorgeously figurative sense. To accomplish the figurative sawing, he particularly esteems the "Yankee tariff," its shining teeth sharpened to a razor edge, the better to rip open the purses of the proletariat for the enrichment of the chosen few.

HOW FLORIDA DID IT.

The New Orleans Times-Picayune last Sunday, Monday and Tuesday published a series of three articles on Florida, interesting and comprehensive expositions written by Dudley V. Haddock. Mr. Haddock, the Times-Picayune comments, was "formerly Associated Press bureau manager in New Orleans—now gone to Florida."

His three articles were written at the request of Jim Edwards, managing editor of the Times-Picayune, on "How Florida Did It." The cool intelligent nerve of the Florida, native born and by adoption, is responsible for the Florida of today, the Florida attracting worldwide attention, depopulating towns in all sections of the country, causing nervous prostration among boosters everywhere and forcing them to sit up nights to discuss ways and means of stopping migration to the Peninsular State.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

One of the country's best known writers related the incident of a New York policeman who held up traffic while he rescued a fledgling sparrow which had fallen from a high building to the pavement and carried it to safety, that it might have another chance, as he stated it. From this he draws an argument against capital punishment, saying: "Millions praise the kind policeman. The same millions read that a man will be hanged in the morning. Nobody says give that murderer another chance."

WEDDING IN JACKSONVILLE IS OF INTEREST TO FRIENDS OF BRIDE

A wedding which will be of much interest to many in Sanford was that of Miss Marjorie Clay to John Luther Register, the ceremony being performed Saturday, July 25. Mrs. Register has visited here a number of times and has a host of friends in Sanford who wish her every happiness.

The following account was taken from a Jacksonville paper:

St. John's Episcopal church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday at high noon when Miss Marjorie Lula Clay, daughter of Mrs. Walter B. Clay, became the bride of John Luther Register.

The wedding was a quiet event, relatives and most intimate friends witnessing the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Mead Doswell, rector of the church.

The church was simply, but effectively decorated in pink and white, roses and other blossoms being used to advantage. On the altar were lighted tapers.

The bride was unadorned, and was lovely in a gown of pencil blue satin, with platinum silk hat and accessories. She wore a shoulder bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Register left for a trip, keeping their destination a secret, and on their return will reside in Miami.

Mrs. Clay, mother of the bride, wore a gown of white flat crepe with a corsage bouquet of radiance roses.

Mrs. C. W. Sharman, of West Point, Ga., aunt of the bride, was gowned in white Diana crepe, with hat and accessories to match. Her flowers were radiance roses.

The bride has resided in Jacksonville for a couple of years, having previously made her home in Montgomery, Ala., and later in Arcadia.

Mr. Register is with the First National Bank of Miami, and is a graduate of both the Georgia and Florida Military Academies.

Both young people have a host of friends, who will extend good wishes.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The Washington Senators in their last appearance of the season here defeated the Yankees Sunday in both games of a double header by 7 to 4 and 4 to 3, the second game going 11 innings. McNeely's single scored Peckinpaugh with the winning run in the last game.

Third Baseman Dugan of New York was carried off the field in the tenth inning when his injured knee came out of place. Coveleskie extended his winning streak to 13 straight in the first game, although he was relieved for a pinch hitter in the ninth inning.

The first defeat for the Yankees marked the fourteenth time this season that they have failed to extend a two game winning streak.

TIGERS LOSE
DETROIT, July 27.—Three Tiger pitchers could not stop a White Sox assault and Chicago beat Detroit 8 to 6 Sunday, thereby winning the series. An opening inning rampage by the Tigers drove Faber from the hill before two men could be retired but Thurston held Detroit scoreless the remainder of the way, except in the ninth when two safe hits in a row counted a runner.

One Detroit run was the result of three errors. Chicago made Wingo grounded to Davies who threw past Sheely, Wingo going to second. With Cobb at bat Thurston tried to pick Wingo off second and his throw went into center field. Wingo advanced to third and then continued home when Mostil's heave to the plate to head him got by Schalk.

Fire Fighting System Of New York Praised

BERLIN, July 24.—Returning from a visit to New York recently, Director Gempp of the Berlin fire Department praised a number of features of fire-fighting systems he observed in America. He lauded the fire alarm system of New York City and said that the precautions taken in America for storing oil and gasoline are well worth emulating in Germany.

What impressed him most was his observation that, for the most part, New York firemen have their own automobiles.

"Of Berlin's 1700 firemen," he pointed out, "not one owns an automobile. Among our firemen are many volunteers and persons partly inactivated by the war, while in America they are full-time, paid men."

SIGNS

Hon. Ed. Walthall, Care Seminole Hudson-Exxon Co., Sanford, Fla.
 A fellow who takes a tour in an automobile, and that's the only sensible way for a fellow to travel these days, has lots of fun out of the signs on the road, if he keeps his eyes open and lets his mind do a little work.
 I was very much amused recently to see some of the signs that greeted my eyes as I made a trip of a few hundred miles in the trusty old car.
 One of the first signs that was read out by a member of the party was "Smith's Inn." I replied, "who in the heck wants to know whether Smith's is or Smith's out?"
 It was very funny, however, before we came to a sign that was really interesting. A member of our party read, as we passed, along, "Gertrude's Inn."
 "Gertrude's Inn," some one in the back of the car remarked, "is she, indeed? Well, I wonder what kind of a looker Gertrude is. Any way, it's more interesting to know that Gertrude's is than that Smith's is."
 Another sign that caused us to make some interesting speculations was one that read, "Blooms, meals and baths." And I thought of one of some of the fellows I had seen eat, and it occurred to me that the sign might not be so far wrong at that. You've seen these fellows at the table who always need a bath when they get through with a meal. Meals and Baths isn't always such an unattractive combination.
 Then the names of the towns are often amusing. Up in North Carolina there's a place that has been handlabeled by "Snoopy & Snottery"—which seemed rather extraordinary to me.
 Firm names often offer amusing combinations that give the tourist a smile or two. One of the most interesting I have ever run across was the firm of Grabber & Squeezed. It looked like it was doing a thriving business, enjoying an especially large volume of patronage.
 And that reminds me of another sign in a North Carolina resort town which reads, "Ladies' cleaning and pressing a specialty."
 I believe in signs, Ed. And when I see so many thousands of careful business men buying Essex automobiles, it's a sign to me that the car every man ought to buy.
 Yours, Ed. W.

WINGING UP FATHER

MR. JIGGS—I JUST DROPPED IN TO TELL YOU THAT YOUR WIFE INVITED ME UP TO YOUR HOUSE TO SING TONIGHT!

I'M GLAD YOU TOLD ME!

HELLO DINTY—SEND UP THREE OF THE GANG AN' TELL 'EM TO WAIT NEAR MY HOUSE FOR ME.

NOW I'LL GO HOME AN' MAKE THE FINAL ARRANGEMENTS.

NOW REMEMBER—BOYS—DON'T LET HIM GET IN MY HOUSE.

DON'T WORRY—HELL NOT SING TONIGHT!
