Port Authority Cruises Into Trouble With Meeting

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Developments within a company holding a lease at the Port of Sanford may cause the Seminole County Port Authority to hold a meeting in late December.

But it's a safe bet the meeting won't be held on board the Bay Queen.

The authority met Wednesday while cruising the St. Johns River aboard the excursion boat which recently set up operations at Sanford's Monroe Harbour Marina.

But questions over the legality of that meeting have prompted Executive Director Dennis Dolgner to say that the authority probably won't do it again, particularly if it raises a question.

Dolgner said the authority had no intention of limiting access to the meeting by going on the cruise. He said the trip was a combination meeting and Christmas party.

Florida's Sunshine Law prohibits holding meetings in a place or manner that inhibits public attendance. Opinions on file in the state Attorney General's office claim luncheon meetings can restrict attendance because some people might be unable or unwilling to buy lunch in order to attend.

The cruise cost board members, authority staff and reporters $15 apiece.

Dolgner said it's the first time in his eight years with the authority that a meeting was held outside the agency's offices.

In authority business, Dolgner reported that St. Johns Petroleum Co. is trying to sell its fuel blending operation at the port.

"A month ago St. Johns could not make a profit blending. They still cannot make a profit," Dolgner said.

A decline in oil sales compelled St. Johns to cease operations at the port over a month ago. The firm, which took over Saxon Oil Company's lease, may ask the authority to take over its $28,350-a-year lease.

If the firm does that, the authority might be forced to refinance a $56,000 outstanding loan on the blending facility and tank farm at the port.

If the company defaults, the authority will not turn to the county for tax help, Dolgner said. "We made a commitment to get off of the tax rolls."

More likely would be that the port would separate the facilities and lease them individually. The tank farm has a 3 million gallon capacity and can be split up easily, Dolgner said.

"We have at our disposal two marketable facilities," he said. "The worst that could happen is we would have to renegotiate the note."

Dolgner said St. Johns' two parent firms, Leemore Oil Co. and Scotland Oils, are uncertain whether they will continue the partnership which created St. Johns. Scotland Oils was recently purchased and the new management has not yet made a commitment to the future of the port facility.

Dolgner said a late December meeting could be necessary if the developments force the authority to take any action.

Another firm at the port will be paying less rent for its facility during 1983, following a review of the loan interest rate, Dolgner said.

Formlex Incorporated's interest rate dropped by 4 percent in the October review. The drop from 18 to 14 percent lowered the firm's payments to $3,094 from $3,449.

Aid Sought For Destitute Shack Dwellers

By DONNA ESTES

Johnie and Ethel Johnson don't have much to be grateful for this Christmas. The old couple survived another year.

And they are still living in the home they have shared for more years than they can remember.

After all their years together all the couple have is their property and home of sorts. To those who have suggested that the authorities be asked to remove the couple and place them in a nursing home, Johnie has shown his gun and ammunition, assuring that if that time ever comes, he will kill himself.

Their home is a ramshackle hut of sorts about three miles from the downtown section of Sanford. It used to be a mobile home many years ago. When the trailer began to disintegrate, Johnie, 82, who was known as the "junk man" in his early days, laid a few blocks around it and piled some scrap metal on the roof to keep the elements out as best he could.

It has no running water, no electricity and thus no refrigerator and no cooking stove. In fact it has no kitchen at all and no heat.

It has only one bed — and Ethel, 78, spends much of her time there because of high blood pressure. Johnie slept in an easy chair until Wednesday when a kind-hearted minister brought in a mattress for the bedstead he had.

But the home and the 60 by 100-foot lot it occupies belongs to the elderly couple and they don't want to move away despite the fact the shack has no windows and does have gaping holes in the floor and the roof.

The property valued by Property Appraiser Bill Suber's office is worth $1,300. It includes a value of $480 for the shack. "That means the house is worth practically nothing at all," Suber said.

"I used to have money," Johnie said, noting he came to the Sanford area in 1926 and acquired some property through the purchase of tax deeds. He built some houses and sold them. Hard times began when he was in an industrial accident and injured his eyes.

For a long time, Johnie collected scrap metal and sold it for an income.

Homestead Residency Rule Nixed

By TENI YARBOROUGH

In a ruling that will have profound effects on local governments, the Florida Supreme Court today declared the five-year residency requirement for the state's $25,000 homestead exemption on property taxes unconstitutional.

According to Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber, the court's action could have a "devastating" impact on local residents, predicting they could pay 30 percent more in property taxes next year to offset the lost revenues when all property owners claim the $25,000 exemption.

"In round figures, we have 34,650 five-year residents who are granted the $25,000 exemption and 9,100 under five-year residents granted only $5,000 in exemptions in the county," Suber said. "So, with the ruling as you've explained it to me, those 9,100 people will receive an increase in exemptions by $20,000 each which means $182 million in property value will be taken off the tax rolls."

"That tax loss will have to be made up from somewhere and more than likely, it will come from the taxpayer," he said. "So, if the average person is paying $15 per $1,000 assessed valuation, we're looking at about $2.75 million being passed on to other taxpayers."

In the 4-2 ruling, the justices decided that singling out residents of five years or more violates the equal protection provisions of the state Constitution.

The court made its decision prospective, meaning that local governments will not be required to give refunds to those denied the exemption in past tax years.

However, the justices did order a refund for Richard J. Osterdorf, a Daytona Beach lawyer who filed the successful suit challenging the residency requirement, and other taxpayers who have similar suits pending.

"I must admit I am relieved that the court ruled that only the Daytona man and others who filed suits prior to their ruling would be repaid," Suber said, adding that he has not been officially notified of the ruling. "I am not aware of anyone in Seminole County who filed such a suit. However, a resident may have, through a private attorney, filed a suit by joining it with the Daytona suit, which the law allows a person to do. I don't know if anyone here took such action."

"The reason for the equal protection clause was to assure that there would be no second class citizens," the majority wrote. "To approve the validity of the statute would in reality establish a second class of citizens in Florida."

The court did not strike down the exemption itself, but rather ruled that it should be offered to "all bona fide permanent residents."

Suber said he is still unsure of the full impact of the court's ruling, but added that, "You can bet the legislature will be quite concerned with this as would any other taxing body. I'm sure it'll be a top priority for them when they meet in 1983 session."

Meanwhile, legislators had feared the exemption would not withstand the constitutional attack and already have begun studying alternative taxing sources to help local governments.

The suit claimed the exemption violated both the federal and state constitutions. Most lawmakers had expected the federal Constitution would be the key.

The justices, however, anchored their ruling on the state Constitution.

Chief Justice James Alderman and Justice James Adkins dissented, agreeing with the Fifth District Court of Appeal that the provision was constitutional.

"Our decision is based solely on the equal protection clause of the Florida Constitution and is prospective for the taxable year 1983 and subsequent years except for those persons who have judicially challenged the statute in a timely manner," the majority said.

Housing Development OK'd

Development of a controversial 722-acre planned unit development in Chuluota was approved this week by Seminole County commissioners.

The development, to be built by Michael Jones who built The Crossings in Lake Mary, is planned for 283 single-family houses and 3.5 acres of commercial development.

Jones' plan to build 198 houses on 2 1/4-acre lots and another 85 houses on 1-acre lots was vehemently opposed by residents of the area. Many of those opposing the project own 10 or more acres and object to the zoning change from the area's current agricultural use.

Jim Jones, whose family owns 30 acres across Fort Christmas Road from the development, said the property is one of the last natural areas in the county.

"I can go out my back door and see deer and wild pig. That's (the development) where they're coming from."

The area is largely undeveloped, rural land but is only a few miles from the University of Central Florida and the Martin-Marietta and Westinghouse plants.

The development was approved by a 3-2 vote, with Commissioners Robert G. "Bud" Feather and Bill Kirchhoff opposing the plan.

They claimed the roads planned for the development are inadequate to provide total access for emergency vehicles. Jones' plan calls for construction of about 3 miles of paved road, 16-feet wide. Another 3 miles would be left unpaved because of the difficulty in putting paving on some types of soil found there, Jones said.

The width of the road and the paving was the main item of contention in the two-hour hearing.

The private roads in the development, which will be maintained by the development's homeowners association, are 6 feet narrower than the county requirements.

Jones told the residents that under the property's agricultural zoning, he could build houses on 1-acre parcels.

But Kirchhoff said Jones wouldn't do that because the requirements for road construction make it too costly.

"That's the reason it wasn't being done. It costs too much to build curb and gutter," Kirchhoff said.

He explained that county emergency and rescue vehicles have been hampered by insufficient roads in existing private developments.

"For the county to continue to approve projects that aren't paved is opening problems for people who live out there," Kirchhoff said.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn also opposed the construction of private roads below county standards. "We have a track record over the past five years. Private roads do not work," she said.

But Mrs. Glenn voted along with Commissioner Robert Sturm, who claimed the development is a buffer between urbanization and the rural lifestyle in the area, and Commissioner Barbara Christensen to allow the development.

There was one bright spot for the protesting residents. County Land Management Manager Herb Hardin said Jones may not be able to construct as many houses as he proposes on the property because a large portion of the property is below the flood prone elevation. Hardin said roughly half the property is unbuildable.

Wayne Williams Loses Bid For A New Trial

ATLANTA (UPI) — Attorneys for Wayne B. Williams say they never expected the judge who sentenced their 24-year-old client to life in prison would grant him a new trial in the Atlanta child slayings.

Fulton County Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper who presided over the 10-week trial, Wednesday rejected defense arguments "new evidence" justified a retrial.

Williams was convicted of the murders of Jimmy Ray Payne, 27, and Nathaniel Cater, 27, who was the last in the string of 29 murders of young blacks — most of them children — that terrorized poor black neighborhoods in Atlanta for two years.

Lynn Whitley, leader of Williams' latest defense team, said he did not expect the Georgia Supreme Court — which will likely hear the case early next year — to reverse Cooper either. He said he was "perfecting the record" for an ultimate federal appeal.

Reagan Suffers MX Defeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, handed another big setback on the MX missile, looked to the full Senate today to unlock nearly $1 billion he wants to begin production of the nearly-warhead weapon.

The Senate Appropriations Committee voted, 16-12, Wednesday to indefinitely freeze the funds until Congress approves a basing plan for the missile Reagan so urgently wants.

In doing so, the committee spurned a compromise plan Reagan offered to "fence" the money until early next year when he would resubmit his basing proposal and Congress would vote on the plan.

But the committee action was not as harsh as that of the House, which voted last week to strip the $988 billion in production money from the Pentagon budget.

A White House spokesman said the committee vote was not surprising, and vowed to continue the battle when the measure reaches the Senate floor.

Gas Tax Nearing Passage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate is moving slowly toward passage of President Reagan's nickel-a-gallon gasoline tax, perhaps tonight, with the legislation largely in the form the administration wants it.

The threatened filibuster by a small group of youthful conservatives appeared to be dissolving under pressure from Reagan and from colleagues who want to wind up their work and go home for the holidays.

The bill would add 5 cents to the tax on gasoline and fuel, and use the annual $5.5 billion in revenue for work on the nation's highways, bridges and mass transit system. The administration expects the measure to create some 300,000 jobs. Minor differences would have to be worked out with the House.

The hut at 2206½ McCarthy Road just off 2nd Street near Airport Boulevard cannot be seen from either major road. It is nestled in an overgrown area among weeds, brush and trash heaps, 10 to 12 feet high.

A huge stockpile of used tires, many still on their rims, takes up much of the yard area in front of the shack.

"I used to be able to burn the tires and sell the scrap metal from the rims, but that time has gone," he said. "People don't like the smell of burning rubber and the regulations say you can't burn."

Others have found the Johnson yard a good place to dump old junk car bodies, old refrigerators and almost any other kind of trash imaginable.

With no cooking facilities and no way to keep food, the Johnsons survive on one meal five days a week from the Meals on Wheels program.

Two members of "Operation CHURH", Christian Helpers United to Reach Humanity, a spiritual and material outreach program, visited Johnie Wednesday, offering what assistance they could.

The Rev. William Lewis, assistant pastor at New Bethel Missionary Baptist Church, and Brother Anthony Miller of Second Shiloh Baptist Church looked at all the needs of the elderly couple and were almost overwhelmed with the enormity of the problems.

"Only with God's help and guidance will we be able to solve these problems," said Lewis, as he, Miller and Johnie held hands forming a prayer circle.

"Oh, heavenly Father, show us the way," Lewis intoned. And the wheels of assistance began moving.

Lewis said today a mattress and some warm clothing was delivered to Johnie Wednesday night.

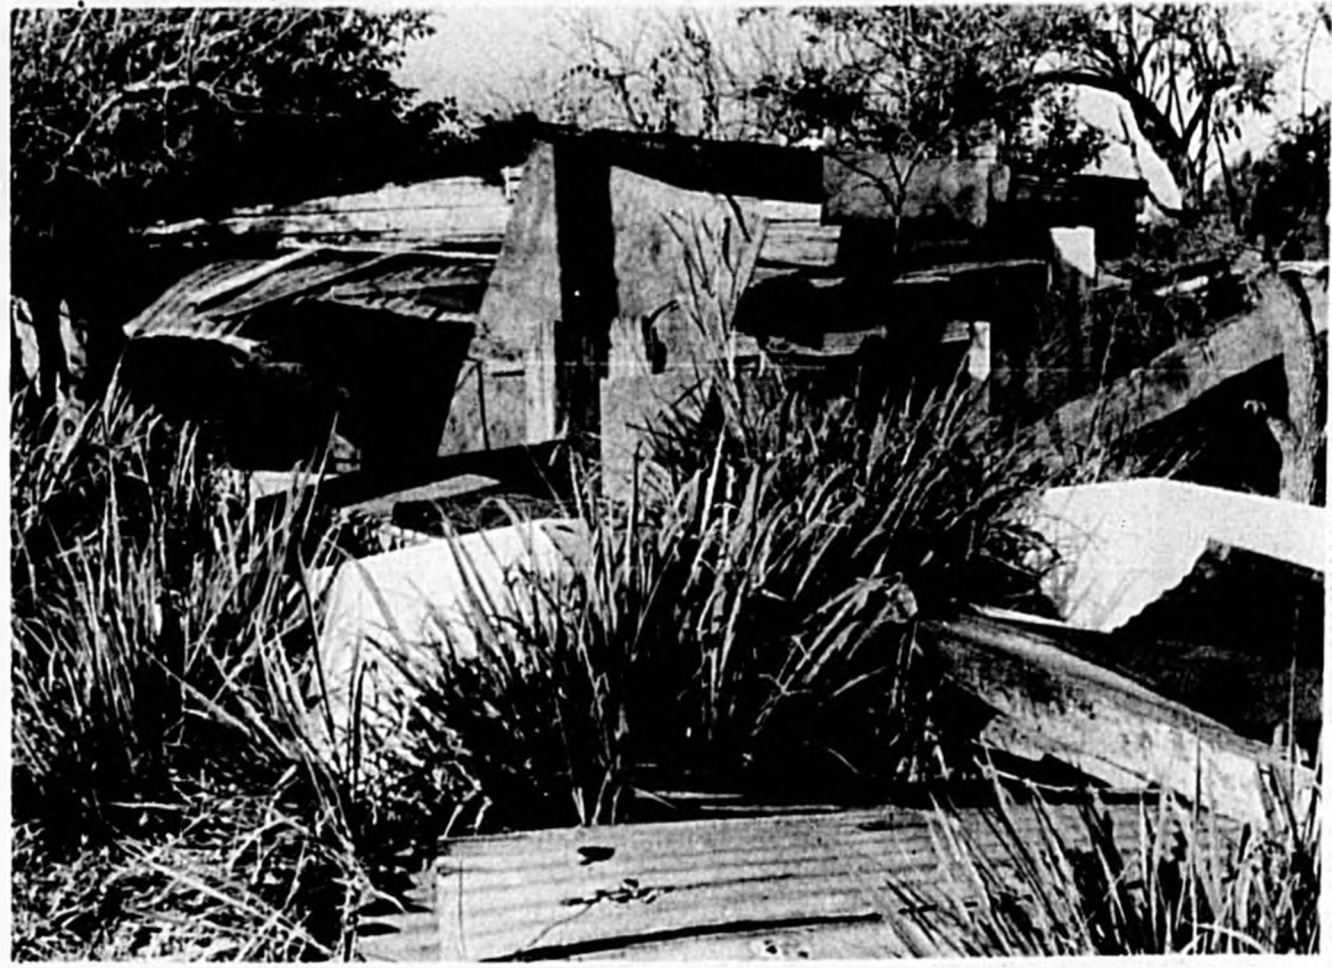

Lewis and Miller are organizing a work party for Saturday to clean up the lot. They are looking for someone who would like to buy the scrap and remove it and for anyone who would like to help with the cleanup.

Before they stated making plans for the elderly couple, the ministers gently asked if Johnie would accept their help. "Oh, praise God, I would be so grateful," he said, adding he would pay as much as he could out of his and Ethel's $200 a month Social Security checks.

"We don't want your money," Lewis said, as tears streamed down Johnie's face. "We want to help. I drive by on Airport Boulevard every day and didn't even know you were here."

It was obvious the hut cannot be repaired. But the possibility exists that a different new mobile home, one in better condition, can be placed on the property.

A county official said the Johnsons or their agent must submit affidavits showing that a mobile home has been at the site since before 1960. Next a percolation test must be done at the site to prove a septic tank can function there and a septic tank must be installed. After this, running water must be connected to the trailer — the Johnsons now use a pump in

This shack nestled among the debris and overgrown brush at 2206½ McCarthy Road near their front yard and electricity must be connected. The trailer must have a refrigerator and cooking stove to keep food on hand and a furnace to provide heat for the cold times ahead this winter.

Lewis asked Johnie Wednesday if he and his wife have blankets, especially with the chilly weather seen this week. "I bought one yesterday," he said. Asked if he had breakfast, he insisted that he had cooked eggs and grits, but the ministers knew that couldn't be true because there is no way to cook in the hut.

Lewis and Miller said they feel confident they can gather together men to do the labor that must be done, but the money for the trailer, the septic tank, city water and power are another story. Mrs. Mary Gilmore, retired supervisor of the adult program at the Seminole County Mental Health Center, heard of the couple's problems just today.

She said she will be opening an account at the Flagship Bank in Sanford to accept donations of those who would like to help financially in the project. An anonymous donor from Casselberry immediately offered a $400 contribution to open that account.

"It's a big job, but maybe we can get it all done by Christmas," Lewis said today. "We are going to try and need all the help we can get."

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Doctors prescribed television, music and arm and leg exercises for Barney Clark today to keep the "desperately ill" recipient of an artificial heart from slipping into mental lethargy and to combat pneumonia.

Clark, weakened by three open-chest operations, was alert but had suffered physical setbacks, doctors said Wednesday.

He still was in critical condition today at the University of Utah Medical Center at the beginning of his third week with the first permanent man-made heart.

3 FHP Troopers Owe State Nearly $5,000

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Three Florida Highway Patrol employees were billed Wednesday for using patrol cars for private purposes, seeking reimbursement for meals that were never purchased and falsifying repair claims.

Comptroller Gerald Lewis is seeking reimbursement from Lt. Newell B. Thornhill of Ormond Beach for $3,911.82, from Cpl. Terry G. Parish of Lake Placid for $545.28 and from Sgt. George Price of Port Orange for $225.21.

The report said the activities of the three men indicate a "callous disregard for the applicable laws, rules and formal policies of the (patrol) relating to the use of public funds and property."

Gypsies Fleecing Elderly

MIAMI (UPI) — Theft by gypsies who migrate to south Florida in the winter has become such a problem that one Miami police district is planning to create a special task force to deal with gypsy-related crimes.

Police warned Wednesday that some 500 gypsies who migrate each year are back, and that among them are some of the smoothest con artists in the country.

The gypsies, originally from Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania, arrive in Dade County by the hundreds each year from summer homes in Maryland and Illinois, police say.

They settle in mobile homes and motels from North Miami Beach to Homestead, according to police. Many of them, police say, then prey on area residents — especially the elderly.

'Robbery Victims' Sue

CLEARWATER (UPI) — A mother and her 12-year-old son say they were so terrified when an armed man yelled "Get over here or else I will blow your head off" that they could hardly move.

They were placed in such "sheer terror," in fact, that they are asking for $15,000 in a law suit against the city of Tarpon Springs, the owners of the grocery store where the incident occurred and the plainclothes police officer who allegedly threatened her.

What Lois Murphy and her son Thomas Monti Jr. experienced in March 1981 has a police training exercise, a pre-arranged mock holdup of a grocery store. The only problem, says a law suit filed Tuesday in Pinellas County Circuit Court, was that no one bothered to tell Ms. Murphy that the robbery was a fake.

Police Silence Walesa

By Throwing Him In Jail

GDANSK, Poland (UPI) — Police broke into Lech Walesa's apartment today, taking the leader of the disbanded Solidarity union into custody, a neighbor said. Police would not immediately confirm the report.

Walesa reportedly was intending to break a month-long, self-imposed silence at today's mass at St. Brigida's Church in Gdansk marking the 12th anniversary of riots in which dozens of workers died.

He had told supporters in Gdansk after his Nov. 12 release from 11 months of martial-law internment he needed at least a month to get his bearings before making public statements.

More Quakes Reported

United Press International
A strong earthquake rocked the mountainous north of Afghanistan and Pakistan today. In Yemen, rescue workers were still digging out from a jolt that killed at least 1,400 people and left more than 300,000 homeless.

In Pakistan, there were no immediate reports of casualties or damage, officials said. No details were immediately available from Afghanistan, which is occupied by Soviet troops.

Radio Pakistan said Pakistani agencies monitored the quake at 6.0 in Peshawar, a town on the Afghan-Pakistani border 106 miles west of the capital of Islamabad, where it also shook the ground.

American experts said the Afghan quake did not appear related to the one Monday in Yemen, some 2,000 miles to the southwest.

Sanford Floral Shop Badly Damaged By Fire

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A fire broke out in a Sanford florist shop causing extensive damage to it and neighboring businesses just hours after fire personnel inspected the buildings. Sanford firefighters responded to the blaze at the Country Attic Florist and Crafts Shop at 1018 S. French Ave. at about 11:17 p.m. The newly-remodeled shop, which is owned by Ann Gracey, 52, of 2551 Palmetto Ave., Sanford, was scheduled to hold its grand opening soon, officials said.

Fire investigators are continuing their probe of the blaze which also caused heat and smoke damage to businesses on both sides of the florist shop. No one was injured in the fire and firefighters said the blaze may have been sparked by a smoldering cigarette. No dollar estimate of the damage was available.

According to fire officials, the shop had been inspected for compliance with fire safety codes earlier in the day and that several violations or potential problems were pointed out to the owner. She was instructed that the corrections would have to be made before the building would be certified as meeting fire standards.

Merchants See Another 'Late' Christmas

United Press International

It took some survival tricks like special sales, but the recession will not kill the Christmas industry this year. Shoppers are being selective and apparently holding back for a late rush but retailers say sales generally range from fair to very good.

The Christmas shopping season is in the home stretch, which marketing officials say is their most crucial time, and stores are ready with huge inventories of the most popular items like video games and equipment, clothing and electronics.

Sales were lagging in economically depressed areas such as Detroit and parts of Ohio but a random UPI sampling showed most department stores were at least keeping even with the 1981 Christmas season.

"In general, sales are up substantially," said Mark Hunter, marketing director for the 160-store Woodland Hills mall in Tulsa, Okla. "We had an extremely large crowd out here (during the weekend). This so-called recession we are in has not really affected Woodland Hills."

"We think the consumer's attitude is better, much better than last year," said Marcus Tully, senior vice president of marketing for the Famous Barr Co. chain. "Last year there was a great deal of concern about the coming year. It's not that they became accustomed to it but it's not new to them."

A panel of economists says Americans will spend $91.3 billion on Christmas — 5.5 percent more than they did last year. Adjusted for inflation, the gain will be 2 to 2.5 percent.

"I wouldn't want to imply this is going to be the great savior," said Robert Eggert, publisher of Blue Chip Economic Indicators, who put together the survey. "But it may be the start of the improvement we've all looked forward to."

Lower interest rates, consumer confidence and the stock-market boom are responsible for the surge in Christmas spending, Eggert's group says.

Another key reason is many stores broke tradition this year by having seductive pre-Christmas sales.

"It's a real cat fight," Robert Dicker, president of San Diego-based Waleker Scott, said of the sales. "We try to look like a traditional department store, not a discount house."

In Houston, Robert Sakowitz said his competitors had forced his Houston-based Sakowitz chain to have sales, but it could have a negative effect similar to the airline industry's price-cutting wars.

"You gain an edge for a few days or maybe a week but then someone comes right back and undercuts you," he said. "We're building up a credibility problem with the consumer as to what the real prices should be."

Video games are the season's hottest gift. A Milwaukee store sold 100 of Coleco's Avenger games in the first 30 minutes of the day.

"Video has been strong," said Richard Ryan, manager of the Kiddie City toy store in Springfield, Pa. "Video is accounting for 40 to 45 percent of our sales so far."

Michigan's 17.2 percent unemployment rate is the nation's worst and Christmas sales have been restrained because of financial instability. Marketing executives are hoping for a last-minute surge.

"It'll be a late Christmas, much like last year," said Robert Carlson, senior vice president for merchandising at Crowley, Milner and Co. of Detroit.

Shoppers also are becoming smarter, going for quality items and paring their Christmas lists, officials said.

Unemployment Claims Ease Somewhat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department said today there were eight thousand fewer claims for unemployment benefits than would be expected during the week ended Dec. 4, bringing the total new benefit applications to 590,000.

It was only the third time the total was below the 600,000 mark since initial claims, adjusted for routine seasonal hiring and firing patterns, first exceeded that level in mid-August 17 weeks earlier.

But the latest total was still near the 598,000 level that helped generate November's 10.8 percent national unemployment rate.

The report was characterized as "status quo, unless they continue to go down," by department spokesman Steve McManus.

Before compensation for typical changes in benefit claims at this time of year, the total of actual applications for state unemployment benefits was 709,200, up 135,000 from the previous week.

Weekly new claims have dropped in eight of the previous 11 weeks since the year's high of 703,000 adjusted claims was hit in the week ended Sept. 18.

Abusive Nuns Face Possible Jail Terms

WHITTIER, Calif. (UPI) — A nun who punched an 8-year-old boy in the stomach, pulled his hair, stomped on his toes and struck him with a ruler was convicted of child abuse along with another Catholic sister.

The Roman Catholic nuns face a possible $500 fine and six months in jail on the misdemeanor convictions. They remained free on their own recognizance until sentencing Jan. 11.

A 10-man, two-woman Municipal Court jury deliberated about four hours Wednesday before returning guilty verdicts against the former principal at St. Hilary's Elementary School and the 67-year-old teacher who assaulted the boy.

Sister Urban Maureen Molitor, 35, the principal convicted of child abuse for not reporting the incidents, and Sister Louridine Sok, the teacher, sat impassively when the verdicts were read.

"They have permission to spank my son, but spank him on the behind," said Nettie Garza, mother of the boy assaulted by Sister Sok. "We believe in discipline if necessary, but this is not discipline. This is child abuse."

The abuse against Michael Garza occurred between Sept. 8, 1981, and Jan. 19. The boy testified Sister Sok had punched him in the stomach, pulled his hair, ground her foot onto his toes and struck him with a ruler.

Another child-abuse accusation charging Sister Sok threw a 9-year-old girl against a wall, was dropped when the girl's family moved out of the area, said district attorney's office spokesman Al Albergate.

Charges were brought against the pair following complaints by some parents in the predominantly Hispanic parish over certain disciplinary tactics employed by the nuns.

Other parents argued those complaining were trying to take over the Pico Rivera school in an effort to change the direction of parochial education.

Deputy District Attorney David Velasquez said Sister Sok has been reassigned to a librarian's position in the Midwest. Sister Molitor is between assignments, he said.

The trial before Municipal Court Judge Patricia Hofstetter began Nov. 30 and involved about four days of testimony. Jurors began deliberations Tuesday afternoon and returned with a verdict shortly before noon Wednesday.

Marcos Jails 9 Manila Newsmen

Fear of the printed word has driven the Philippines' President Ferdinand Marcos into rash action against a Manila newspaper and its staff.

Recently, the English-language newspaper We Forum, with a circulation of 22,000, was raided and closed by the military. Jose Burgos Jr., the editor and publisher, former Philippine Sen. Francisco Rodrigo and eight executives, editors and writers were placed under arrest.

The eight staffers were retired university professors Salvador Roxas Gonzales, Armando Malay and Ernesto R. Rodriguez, all columnists; managing editor Crispin Martinez; news editor Teddy Cecilio; Circulation manager Angel Tronqued; production manager Edwardo Burgos, and advertising manager Teodoro Burgos.

They were accused of sedition and conspiracy to overthrow the Marcos regime. The government said there was evidence We Forum had become a tool of the outlawed Philippine Communist Party and the party's New People's Army and the Movement for a Free Philippines, which is based in the United States.

Another possible reason behind the seizure was a recent series of articles in the newspaper which cast doubts on Marcos' World War II record as a guerrilla fighter against the Japanese in central Luzon.

Even though Marcos ended 11 years of martial law in January 1981, he still is a virtual dictator, ruling by presidential decree. He can order mass arrests and does so as a warning to dissidents. Similar crackdowns this year have imprisoned union leaders and priests and nuns, accused of inciting rebellion in rural areas.

There were similar raids and arrests a few weeks before Marcos visited the United States last September. He came to talk about better trade relations, to purchase military weapons and to discuss raising the rent for U.S. use of Subic Bay Naval Base and Clark Air Base. While here he was picketed by Americans of Filipino descent who protested his human rights violations.

Manila seems to be taking the latest mass arrests stoically. There was no immediate editorial reaction from Manila's major daily newspapers or from the National Press Club, of which Jose Burgos is a former director.

But his provocations are reported throughout the world. And the We Forum incident will be another black mark on his record of human rights violations.

Free Trade Rapped

The concept of free trade is under attack at home and abroad. The world has been moving steadily toward greater trade freedom since World War II, but that movement has stopped and may be reversed.

Recently a world trade conference in Geneva brought no agreement. The United States insisted that the European Common Market countries reduce export subsidies on their agricultural products. The Europeans refused.

In Washington, the House of Representatives has passed a public works bill with the strongest "Buy American" language in decades. And the House is poised to pass a "domestic content" bill, which is frankly protectionist, for the auto industry. The leading Democratic presidential candidate for 1984, Walter Mondale, draws shouts of approval from labor union audiences when he calls for action against foreign competition.

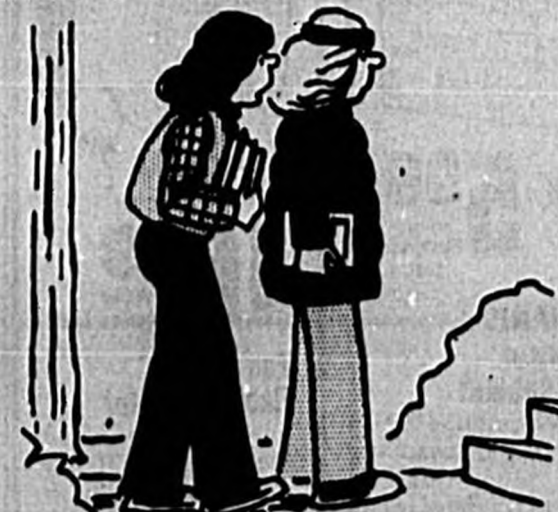

A Gallup poll indicates 61 percent of Americans favor new laws to limit imports.

The greatest pressure may come from the farm sector. Our crop exports are down at a time when our granaries are overflowing. The cost of farm price support programs, previously estimated at $4 billion this year, will be at least $12 billion.

The pain of unemployment and farm surpluses causes resentment. We want to strike out. But that would invite retaliation and could cause even greater pain in the future.

In times like these, we must hold fast to the free trade concept, or we may lose it forever.

With folks going all out to decorate their homes and yards with Christmas lights, it is like a fairy land as you drive through some neighborhoods at night now.

You may want to include in your Christmas tour a stop at one of the area churches where outdoor live Nativity scenes are enacted.

One of these will be Rolling Hills Moravian Church on State Road 434, one-half mile east of I-4 in Longwood. This is the 10th year for this annual production which will include a cast of 40, lights, narration and music. The performance is free to the public and there is plenty of parking space. It will be at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19, 20 and 21.

The Christian Teens Group at Ascension Lutheran Church in Casselberry will present "A Child is Born" at 7 p.m. on Dec. 19 near a small lake on the church grounds. The presentation will include congregational singing of Christmas carols and narration by Bob Christopher of Radio WKIS. The church is located on Ascension Drive off Overbrook Drive.

The Sanford Middle School Student Council sponsored a "Winter Wonderland" door decorating contest with the various classes participating. And the winner is Mrs. Washburn, SLD (Specific Learning Disabilities) teach and her class. They will each receive a free ticket to the school's Snowball Dance to be held for Sanford Middle School students in January and free refreshments. Kenny Eckstein is president of the student council.

Looking for a program for your group? The Visiting Nurse Association, as part of their community education program, will be happy to present a 20-minute program, including a 12-minute film on the services they provide in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties. For additional information or scheduling, call Rae Gailey at 628-0065.

The Salvation Army Christmas bellringers are getting help this week from other volunteers in manning kettles in the annual drive. Working 9-5 today at the Sanford Post Office are members of the Woman's Club of Sanford, and at the K mart in Sanford will be members of the Salvation Army Advisory Board. On Friday, Sanford Pilot Club members will be at Publix in Sanford Plaza, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, Sanford Kiwanis Club members will be at all Sanford locations.

There were approximately 300 families who applied for assistance with food and toys at the Salvation Army in Sanford. They will be distributed on Dec. 21 to those who are eligible applicants.

Moscow's Freeze Aim

'One of the most active groups in promoting the disarmament movement in Europe has been the World Peace Council.'

Leaders of the nuclear freeze campaign in the United States are furious that President Reagan has branded the movement as inspired by foreign forces. However, the evidence fully supports the President.

Support for that charge is appearing in a number of studies and reports being issued by think tanks and other scholarly organizations. One of the most interesting pieces of documentation is a report by Edward J. Walsh of the U.S. Industrial Council Educational Foundation. The report is entitled "Trends On The Left — Anti-Business Attitudes in the United States."

Mr. Walsh has written for a number of serious journals including Barron's Financial Weekly, American Spectator, and Chronicles of Culture. The history of the nuclear freeze campaign is presented in his report. The following is an excerpt from Mr. Walsh's analysis:

"In November, 1981, the Washington Post reported that British communists and members of the extreme-left Socialist Workers Party are among the national leaders of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament. In West Germany, the Communist Party and communist-linked German Union for Peace are in the forefront of the disarmament movement.

"One of the most active groups in promoting the disarmament movement in Europe has been the World Peace Council, which operates in the United States through an affiliate, the U.S. Peace Council. The WPC is a Soviet front organization, founded in Paris in 1949 but later expelled from France and from Austria. As reported by free-lance writer Rael Jean Isaac, the WPC's purpose is "to identify the Soviet Union as the world's chief force for peace among Third World countries, and to manipulate Western opinion."

"Other organizations that entered the campaign for the freeze in the United States include Clergy and Laity Concerned, the War Resisters League, the American Friends Service Committee, and many others. Most of these groups were established during the heyday of Vietnam War protest."

Mr. Walsh offers additional documentation as to the leftist origins of the nuclear freeze campaign.

As a nuclear freeze is a Soviet goal in arms negotiations, it isn't surprising that Moscow launched the freeze campaign in Europe and the United States.

Pensioners Stopped From Hiring Lawyers

WASHINGTON — The Social Security Administration has just pulled the wheelchair out from under some cripples. Here's the dismal story:

The agency discovered that disability pensioners who have been cut off the rolls have a better chance of reinstatement if they hire lawyers. So officials leaped into action — and illegal action at that.

The penny-pinching officials set out to discourage attorneys from representing disability claimants before the administrative law judges who review their appeals.

On Sept. 20, the agency issued a 22-page memo to its district offices. The memo states — falsely — that "the Appropriations Bill for Fiscal Year 1983 contains a Limitation on Administrative Expenses (LAE) which prohibits SSA from setting individual fees for attorneys and other representatives, and from paying authorized fees to attorneys out of past-due benefits even if the fee was allowed by a federal court."

The fact of the matter is that the 22-page memo was based on nothing more than wishful thinking by officials determined to keep handicapped persons from having their appeals effectively argued.

A provision prohibiting the Social Security Administration from paying lawyers' fees was proposed by the agency, but was not — repeat, not — included in the appropriations bill.

A House Appropriations Committee aide told my associate Vicki Warren, "Our subcommittee didn't even recommend that it be put in the appropriations bill, because it is not in our jurisdiction — and the Social Security Administration knows that." Any changes in the SSA act would be handled by the Ways and Means Committee, he explained.

Asked about the memo, an SSA spokesman said it was issued "by someone who was overzealous." Ordinarily, he said, memos are not sent out telling agency employees how to implement changes in the law until the law is actually passed.

Indeed, the agency acknowledged as much by sending out a second memo 18 days after the first. The Oct. 8 memo simply countermanded the Sept. 20 memo's instructions.

The wasted effort and paperwork involved in the two sets of orders would be bad enough. But the results were more serious than that.

According to a representative of the National Senior Citizen Law Center, agency officials achieved pretty much what they wanted anyway. News of the first memo made the rounds of those who deal with disability claims, he explained, and "the letter had a chilling effect on private attorneys" who represent disability claimants fighting to keep their benefits. This is what the Social Security Administration really wanted in the first place.

It's obvious that the 22-page memo mistaking the law took a lot of work to prepare and send out. Yet at about the same time, the agency's boss, Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker, was explaining to critics that the reason his department was late in issuing regulations for other laws was that his employees simply didn't have time to do it.

Yet no such labor shortage stood in the way of the illegal instructions to enforce a law that didn't exist.

'A majority chose to go sleepwalking into the future.'

College Guide For Blacks

By STEVE SZKOTAK

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Barry Beckham was an eager but woefully unprepared student when he left his home in New Jersey in the 1960s to attend Brown University.

"I was floundering academically and there was nobody to help me. I learned by trial and error," Beckham recalled.

Even though he was an "inveterate college reader," Beckham's research was lacking in one crucial area: What did Brown offer him, a black student?

Beckham, 38, survived the initial academic shock quite well and is now an associate professor of English at Brown's Graduate Program in Writing. And now, the successful novelist is putting together a guide he hopes will ease the often painful college experience for students who are black.

"The Black Student's Guide to Colleges" is a student and administration profile of 165 institutes of higher learning across the nation. It is designed to answer the questions asked most often by black applicants.

Beckham, who could still pass for an undergraduate, said the collection of essays, observations and basic facts addresses the concerns of the black high school student making the big move to college.

"Black students need an entirely different of information than they get in ordinary guides," he said. "In choosing between Brown and Princeton, or any school the black student looks at, he has to ask: 'How comfortable will I be only academically but psychologically?'"

Beckham said the guide is particularly needed now with more blacks going on to college. When he graduated from Brown in 1966, the graduating class at the Ivy League school included three other black men. Today, between 400 and 500 black men and women attend the prestigious university.

But there's a flip side to the higher enrollment figures. Black students are dropping out at "an alarming rate," Beckham said. "The name of the game is retention," he says.

The guide should prepare black students for what's in store before they attend their first will focus on several key areas: social, academic, financial aid, black organizations and off-campus climate.

A key to a black student's success, he said, is what support services are available — tutoring, professional services and alumni activities, which can provide a valuable "role model in telling students how they survived," he said.

"We're telling students that most schools have programs to help students like blacks whose preparation wasn't that great," Beckham said.

Black professional societies are an important aspect of achievement, he said.

"There are some things only a black medical student can tell another black student," he said. "It's the old boy networking system ... of survival. We have to feed each other to help each other."

A college's social life, another key question of any freshman, is answered in the guide with emphasis on black activities. Parties, sports, entertainment and other diversions are all touched upon.

"My experience was very, very difficult," Beckham said of his undergraduate years. "There was no black social life, no black faculty, no black students, no black parties. Since then, there have been tremendous changes."

A typical entry for a student at a small, competitive California college will advise applicants: "The counseling services are very good, but there are no black counselors except our assistant dean of admission, who alone is trying to accommodate all of our needs."

A student at a small Rhode Island college warns of the school's "intimidating whiteness and uninspiring social life, (but) most black students are pleased with their choice ..."

A community's racial atmosphere is also surveyed.

"The town-and-gown aspect is very important," he said. One college, a member of the Seven Sisters, was ranked very high by black students for its academics.

"But one student said shopkeepers looked suspiciously only at black students when they shopped," Beckham said.

Beckham collected his information through mail surveys submitted from five black students at each college. One administrator at each school was asked to complete a questionnaire on such basic facts as enrollment, the number of black students, tuition and financial aid opportunities.

The guide also contains a ranking of the top colleges for blacks and essays on writing term papers, on study skills and on the black student-athlete.

Beckham was assisted by 20 student editors in sorting the information. "I've got students working on this who said they could have used the guide."

From the initial response, Beckham sees a need for the guide.

"We are finding almost blanket agreement that blacks are having transitional problems," he said.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Trade Talks Dash Hopes

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Capitol Hill's growing support for trade protectionism terrifies the Reagan administration. Already introduced into the current 97th Congress are bills calling for new import quotas, higher tariffs, reciprocal trade limits and so-called "local content" requirements.

None have passed so far, but all — and more — probably will be introduced in the coming 98th Congress. The protectionist mood is growing in both parties — primarily in response to the import restrictions that most of the United States' trading partners have introduced to protect their domestic industries, which have been hard hit by the worldwide recession. The administration is thus faced with the very real possibility that much of this protectionist legislation will pass in the coming year.

To try to head off this protectionist drift, the administration forced a ministerial-level meeting of those nations that have signed the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), hoping to gain a strong statement against protectionism and the erection of new trade barriers. But the meeting has just concluded, and where U.S. wants are concerned, it was an almost complete failure.

Administration officials are trying to cast the meeting's results in the best possible light — but, privately, they admit that Western trading countries are on the verge of a trade war that the United States sees as disastrous for all concerned.

At the Geneva meeting, the U.S. delegation, headed by Trade Representative Bill Brock, hoped to have the 88 nations represented agree to a strong statement against the erection of any new trade barriers. The United States also sought an agreement to roll back existing policies that contradict GATT, and, specifically, to have Common Market nations eliminate agricultural-export subsidies that the United States claims hurt U.S. farmers' ability to sell on the world market.

The meeting lasted two days longer than scheduled, with the final session continuing until 5 a.m. After some extraordinary arm-twisting, all the United States got was a watered-down statement in which the GATT signatories pledged to "resist protectionist pressures" and "refrain" from "taking or maintaining any measures inconsistent with GATT."

As for the agricultural questions: All that the United States could get — even after reportedly threatening to dump U.S. grain and butter surpluses on world markets — was agreement on a "two-year work program" to bring agriculture "more in line with the multinational trading system."

Even this was a very short-lived victory: As soon as the session ended, many of the participants began to issue "clarifications" and "interpretations" of the final resolution.

The Common Market countries made it clear that their agreement to the agricultural "work program" was not a commitment of any kind to any new negotiations regarding agriculture products. Twenty-three other nations, individually or in small groups, basically have said that the agreement does not apply to what they are now doing.

Among the leading opponents to any real change in the status quo was France, which is in the lead among those Common Market nations that are erecting new barriers against foreign exporters. French Trade Minister Michel Jobert called the GATT meeting ideas Brock presented were "ill-timed" and "completely unsuited to the present situation."

Orlando Banker Heads Savings Bond Campaign

Hans W. Tews, president of Sun Bunk, N.A., has been appointed chairman of the 1983 "Take Stock In America" (TSIA) campaign in the metro Orlando area, according to Frank Borman, chief executive of Eastern Airlines and volunteer state chairman for the Savings Bond Program.

Tews will direct Savings Bond activities for the Greater Orlando area for his second consecutive year. He will work with a committee of leading business executives, bankers, and community leaders to encourage more area residents to "Take Stock In America" by joining the Payroll Savings Plan at work or by increasing current bond allotments or by buying more Savings Bonds at their banks or savings institutions.

HANS TEWS

"Through December 1982, there will be $12 million in savings bonds and interest accruals for the Orange-Seminole-Osceola counties," Tews adds.

Concluding a very successful 1982 campaign, Tews said an increase of 5,900 new bonds for 1982, which surpasses their projected goal of 5,000. He notes that this amounts to a $212,000 increase for the area program.

Fish Doc Makes House Calls

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Unlike most doctors, John Schliech makes house calls, but only for patients with fins and scales.

Schliech is a fish doctor, a bit unusual for someone with a nuclear physics background, but perfect for an avid aquarium hobbyist.

Schliech and partners David Bibb and George Alwon operate Distinctive Aquariums, a firm specializing in installing and maintaining aquariums in businesses and homes in the Raleigh and Chapel Hill area.

Distinctive Aquariums, which is breaking even after 1½ years of operation, is one of the few firms of its kind in the Southeast.

"We approach this as aquarium art," said Alwon, a management consultant who is the firm's business expert.

"Aquarium art," as opposed to a couple of goldfish in a bowl, it isn't cheap. Bibb, a zoology major who designs the aquariums, estimates a 20-gallon tank costs from $600 to $5,000. Businesses pay an average of $1,000 for aquariums.

Hobbyists generally have fresh water tanks, but Distinctive Aquariums prefers harder-to-maintain salt water tanks because the fish are more colorful than fresh water varieties.

"They are blue and red, yellow, orange, some greens — very iridescent," Bibb said. Bibb recreates the fish's natural habitat, complete with real grasses and brightly hued coral.

African cichlids like coral caves and tall grasses. The popular angelfish hails from South American rivers and prefers a sandy, grassy bottom filled with knarled, dark wood. It also likes muddy water, but Bibb said "naturalness sometimes gives way to esthetics.

"Esthetics are very important," Bibb said. "That little fantasy world in each tank — that's what we strive for."

Aquarium art is tailored for the buyer. Bibb won't put delicate fish in a place where children are prone to knock on the aquarium glass. And he won't "give a shy older lady in a rest home an aggressive fish" that might chase other fish around the tank.

Men, Women Here Differ

Do You Think Wives Should Strike For Love?

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

It was reminiscent of Aristophanes' "Lysistrata" in Smithfield, R.I. last week when 15 housewives went on strike from their wifely duties to demand more romance and help around the house.

The women, all in their 20s, were protesting their husbands' lack of attention and willingness to help with the chores. They said their complaints had gone unheeded for months.

Although a sampling of Sanford area women polled had different opinions on the housewife strike, none would admit to having done it to their spouse.

"I think they should strike, I most certainly do," said Carol Cline of DeBary, who, by the way, is no longer married. "A great deal more women should do it."

Did she try it on her ex-husband?

"No, but I wish I had, she replied.

"It's a good idea, I sure do think they should strike," said Peggy McKelvey, a Sanford widow who was happily married for 20 years. She said she never resorted to this sort of tactic to get what she wanted. "Didn't need to. My husband helped me around the house."

"It's okay if it's your bag, but I wouldn't do it to my husband," said Debbie Borhman of Sanford who has been married nine years and has three children.

"I guess if you've tried everything else you might try it, but I could find a better way to get what I wanted."

"If you heard me at home sometimes, you'd probably think I agreed, but I don't," said Linda Pederson of Sanford who has been married 14 years martyr act and they (husbands) don't listen when you nag and complain, they feel threatened," Mrs. Pederson said. "You have to take time to sit down together and talk calmly and rationally. Instead of nagging, ask his advice about the problem, this puts him in a position of authority."

The striking Rhode Islander women and their kids greeted their husbands with signs when they came home from work saying such things as "Have you hugged your wife today?" and "Mothers on Strike."

When their strike put them in the national media spotlight, all but three of the women got cold feet and backed down. The husbands of the other three capitulated after four or five days and agreed to give them more attention and help with the children.

and has three sons.

"I never did that to my husband. Not that I don't get frustrated in my situation, but it usually works to sit down and talk about it.

"I can understand their frustrations. Husbands tend to ignore what needs to be done, but it works better when you ask nicely rather than getting huffy and uptight about it," said Mrs. Pederson.

"In the rat race of life, husbands and wives don't have time for each other and this puts a lot of strain on a marriage and a family. We all get to this point, but it's just a matter of what to do about it.

"I've finally learned it never pays to put on a big

"I went on strike for love," said Brenda Larkin, a wife of 14 months. "It's more communication, that's what I mean by love and affection. A lot of people think I mean in the bedroom, but I mean talking at night, a little romance."

An unexpected aftermath of the strike was a flood of invitations to appear on radio and television talk shows from as far away as Chicago and California. Two of the couples appeared on the Phil Donahue show in Chicago. The studio audience noted that things couldn't have been too bad since the couples were sitting on the platform holding hands.

Polish Statement

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II Wednesday endorsed a statement by Polish bishops saying the church is "co-responsible" for Polish destiny and called martial law and the outlawing of the Solidarity union "painful" for Poles.

It was the pope's first public statement about his homeland since Polish military ruler Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski announced last Sunday that the major provisions of martial law would be suspended at the end of the year.

The pope, speaking solemnly in Polish at his weekly general audience, made his comments in the form of a prayer to the Black Madonna of Jasna Gora, a patron of Poland. He quoted extensively from a statement issued by Polish bishops on Dec. 2.

"In the sector of social problems the bishops remind that the church is co-responsible for the destiny of the nation in which it carries out its apostolic mission," the pope said, quoting the bishops.

"In the spirit of this responsibility, the church wants to contribute to the consolidation and the growth of the common good."

Continuing his quotation, the pope said the mission of the church is "not realized outside the conditions of social and political life."

"It is a duty of the church to speak up every time the spiritual welfare of the faithful and the defense of moral values and the dignity of the human person requires it."

The bishops' statement read by the pope said recent events in Poland "have painfully struck entire social groups and numerous persons," and cited the banning of the Solidarity union, "which enjoyed recognition of vast social circles."

"It is to be regretted that other roads were not chosen, when the nation is aspiring to peace and social order."

"The church holds that the construction of a durable social peace requires the respect of the just aspirations of society, organized in social groups, on the basis of accords reached and conventions obtained as a result of dialogue," the pope said, quoting the bishops.

The pope then spoke in his own words, saying: "United to you, mother of our nation, in the sign of your effigy of Jasna Gora, I present with pain — and at the same time with full hope and faith — these difficult problems and concerns, which my brothers in the episcopate expressed."

...Rams Blown Out By Edgewater, 44-21

Blakely and six more on a pin by Robert Rawls.

"They can't matchup with the experience that we have," said Brown about the Rams. "Plus, we were fired up because Colonial squeaked by us and we went all out."

Eugene Davis (100) pinned Ed Schuckman, wrestling for Ivan Carbia who contracted a rash from a Christmas tree, in just 15 seconds.

The Rams added two forfeit wins for a 12-6 lead before the roof caved in. In the feature match of the night, Ed Aubrey (114) decisively Jack Likens, 13-8.

Likens, undefeated at 107, was wrestling up a class because he's already experienced two forfeits this year and Schwartz wanted him to have some competition before Friday's tournament at Lyman.

"We knew the guy would be tough," said Schwartz. "And Jack was a little upset about having a loss on his record, but we were getting tired of the forfeits."

At 157, Blakely took an easy 10-4 decision over Kip Beachum. Rawls, meanwhile, came on like a man possessed to stick John Stewart in just 15 seconds.

"Rawls was just awesome," said Schwartz about his 320-pound junior. "He was all ticked off that we were getting squashed, so he let it all hang out."

Lake Mary's fine 140-pound Bob Olson suffered his first loss of the year when he was pinned by Ernie Vega in 3:22.

Olson, a junior, had a 10-6 lead when he got up too high and Vega caught his head and stuck him.

"We were really pressuring Bob to get a pin," said Schwartz. "He just overdid it and got caught up too high."

In junior varsity action Wednesday, Edgewater whipped the Rams, 9-0, and Seminole blanked Spruce Creek, 24-0, as Stan Ferguson, Vince Williams, Paul Mock and David Debose collected pins.

Sixers Down Pesty Cavaliers

United Press International

When a team can make Philadelphia play its game, that's something. But when Philadelphia does and wins anyway, that's something else.

"We tried to play our type of game — gambling, double-teaming, running. We tried six types of game, but we didn't make a crack," Philadelphia's Julius Erving said after the 76ers downed pesty Cleveland, 99-93, Wednesday night.

Cleveland Coach Tom Nissalke said his team wouldn't have had a chance even if they let the 76ers play their own game.

"What this does show is that if you stick to a game plan, you'll be all right," said Nissalke, who was happy his team was not blown off the court. "If we ran with them or got into a free-lance game, he wouldn't have a chance."

Moses Malone scored 23 points and pulled down 20 rebounds to lead Philadelphia. Malone and Maurice Cheeks sparked a 14-0 run over a span of nearly five minutes in the third quarter that helped the 76ers gain control, after the Cavaliers scored the first 7 points of the third quarter — 5 by Cliff Robinson — to take a 53-46 lead.

In other games, Atlanta downed Indiana, 107-101, Denver topped Milwaukee, 113-98, Boston clipped Detroit, 108-104, Kansas City shaded New Jersey, 119-118, and Utah beat San Diego, 119-113.

Black Hawks Crush Winnipeg

United Press International

The Chicago Black Hawks, owners of the NHL's best record, have a mutual admiration relationship with their fans.

With Keith Brown scoring and assisting twice in a five-goal first period and Steve Larmer and Al Secord adding two goals each, the Black Hawks crushed the Winnipeg Jets, 10-3, Wednesday night and received a standing ovation from 16,438 Chicago Stadium fans.

In other games, the New York Rangers crushed Los Angeles, 7-1, Detroit and Pittsburgh skated to a 4-4 tie, St. Louis topped Toronto, 4-2, and Montreal nipped Vancouver, 3-2.

Hoyas Stunned By American

Don't blame Ralph Sampson for this one — he is in Japan.

The last time Georgetown took the floor in Landover, Md., Sampson struck for 23 points and 16 rebounds in a ballyhooed 68-63 victory for the Cavaliers. It was the final game for No. 1 Virginia before a four-team tournament in Tokyo this week.

Wednesday night the No. 7 Hoyas returned to the scene of the crime with the 7-foot-4 Player of the Year nowhere in sight but was stunned nonetheless, 62-61, by American.

Georgetown Coach John Thompson insisted the Virginia game had no bearing.

"Last Saturday had nothing to do with this," he said. "American may not have a Sampson but 6-5 Mark Nickens filled in quite nicely with 17 points. The Eagles, who led by 19 points in the second half, relied on strong foul shooting in the final four minutes to stave off a frantic Georgetown comeback."

Christmas Comes Early For Perkins, Parcels

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Christmas came 10 days early for Ray Perkins and Bill Parcels.

With both men describing Wednesday's rapid developments as fantasies fulfilled, Perkins announced he is leaving as New York Giants' coach at the end of the season to take the head coaching post at Alabama and Bill Parcels was named as his replacement.

"Very few people in this world get a chance to do exactly what they would like to do and to me, the New York Giants and Bill Parcels is like Ray Perkins and Alabama," said Parcels, currently the Giants' defensive coordinator. "Ray Perkins has done a tremendous job for the New York Giants, instilling a work ethic and pride and I would like to build upon that foundation."

"My No. 1 reaction to this whole thing is that I'm a very lucky guy."

Parcels, 41, was named by New York General Manager George Young as Perkins' successor beginning in 1983, just hours after the Giants' 41-year-old coach confirmed reports he is returning to his alma mater to succeed the legendary Bear Bryant.

"I'm not happy with the circumstances, but I'm happy to make a choice from within our organization," said Young, who along with Giants' owner Wellington Mara gave Perkins permission to talk to Alabama officials in person last week. "Ray stated to us that he wanted to coach the team for the rest of the season and my conclusion was he has put a lot into getting us where we are and I thought it would be proper to let him finish 1982 out."

"I wasn't rooting for him to go, but I thought if they offered the job to him he would take it. When he told me of his decision Monday I had to face the facts."

Parcels was the head coach at the Air Force Academy in 1978 but didn't play professionally following a standout career as linebacker at Wichita State (1961-63). He joined the Giants' coaching staff last year after serving as linebackers' coach with the New England Patriots in 1980.

Perkins, a former star end at Alabama in the mid-1960s, took the New York helm in 1979 after serving as an assistant coach with the Patriots and San Diego. New York went 6-10 and 4-12 in his first two seasons, but in 1981, Perkins guided the Giants to a 9-7 mark and their first playoff berth in 18 years. They currently are 3-3 and riding a three-game winning streak.

"The only factor against taking the Alabama job was leaving here after three or four years of building something to be proud of," said Perkins. "I would leave the Giants for no other opportunity but to return to Alabama and succeed a man I think is the greatest coach in the history of college football."

Perkins, who was signed to a five-year contract by Alabama for $100,000 per season, received high marks from his players.

"Personally, I'm sad to lose Coach Perkins when we're on the verge of a turnaround," said veteran linebacker Brad Van Pelt. "He was the main reason for our success. But I'm happy for him because it's a dream come true."

Kicker Joe Danelo said the Giants will have to avoid dwelling on Perkins' lame-duck position.

"As a player, I have to feel he's been the catalyst for our recent success," he said, "but he has to do what he feels is best ... The season will still have continuity — he's not leaving right now."

Parcels, who has agreed to a multi-year contract as head coach in '83, also wasn't about to be deterred from his primary task.

"I still work for Ray Perkins," he said, "before leaving for an assistant coaches' meeting. ... it weren't for him taking a chance on me last year, I wouldn't be in this position right now."

Bryant Will Be Missed

United Press International Bear Bryant will be missed. It's a sad day for Coach Bryant and for college football and anyone associated with college football," said Auburn's Pat Dye, the last coach to beat the 69-year-old Bryant, who announced his retirement Wednesday.

"He has meant a lot to the game and will be missed," Dye said. "But what I want most of all is what is best for Coach Bryant."

Former Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes wanted to see Bryant continue.

"I don't like to see him retire," Hayes said. "He meant so much to football. He was a great leader. A great inspiration to his players. All in the game are going to miss him terribly."

Duke Coach Steve Sloan, who played for Bryant at Alabama, said he spent a night with Bryant "two or three weeks ago" and knew he was thinking about retiring.

He said, "I just imagine it was a very emotional time for him. I'm glad I wasn't there to see him make the statement. He has got so many memories, all having to do with winning the big games and all the players he has coached."

Sloan said he disagreed with Bryant's statement Alabama players deserved better coaching. "I don't believe there is a team that ever got better coaching."

Several of his former players, now playing in the NFL, credited Bryant for their success. "I'm saddened by it. The man meant a great deal to me," said New York Jets' defensive tackle Marty Lyons, who was an All-America at Alabama under Bryant. "I don't know if without his guidance and push I'd be where I am today. There is a great deal of class in the man. I love him ..."

Jets' quarterback Richard Todd, who also played under Bryant, said his ex-coach excelled at getting the most out of his players, both on and off the field.

"I hate to see the man go. Coach Bryant is the kind of coach who not only takes care of the top players, he's also concerned about the second and third and fourth team guys making something of themselves and finishing school," said Todd.

"He helped a lot of them find jobs and motivated them to finish school ... It was a pleasure to have played for him. Coach Bryant was a great motivator."

New Orleans quarterback Ken Stabler said Bryant was a humble man who was not afraid to take the blame if things went wrong.

"I hate to see him go," he said. "He has always been the one to take the blame and not take the credit, but you can be sure that he's always been the boss. He kicked me in the pants when I needed it, helped me at a time when I needed it."

Holley Kurimai, Philip Ricker Exchange Vows

Holley Anne Kurimai and Philip Kyle Ricker were united in Holy Matrimony on Dec. 13, at 6 p.m., at Holy Cross Church, Sanford. The Rev. LeRoy Soper performed the double ring ceremony in a festive setting of candles and holly decorations. Miss Beatrice Buck, organist, presented the nuptial selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Kurimai, 101 Loch Arbor Court, Sanford. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Ricker, 2407 Stevens Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride chose for her vows an elegant white formal gown fashioned along the 1940s silhouette. The exquisite sculptured bodice, designed with a sweetheart neckline and long tapered sleeves, was lavishly embellished with reembroidered Alencon lace motifs, seed pearls and sequins. Her full tissue taffeta gathered skirt cascaded from the dropped bodice waistline into a graceful chapel train. Reembroidered Alencon lace enhanced the bottom of the skirt and train.

A Queen Anne cap of Venice lace, seed pearls and sequins accented with lily-of-the-valley, secured her lace trimmed imported silk illusion chapel length veil. She carried a cascade of white roses interspersed with holly.

Miriam Rye Wright attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a teal blue taffeta gown featuring a double ruffle accenting the neckline that came to a low oval in the back. Her headpiece was a modified derby style teal blue taffeta hat and she carried a single white rose showered with baby's breath and holly.

Bridesmaids were Julie Reagan, Vicky Reynolds Talmadge, Carolyn Moore Brown and Mary Ann Grover Duxbury. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's. Their headpieces were wreaths of baby's breath surrounding a flat teal blue taffeta crown.

H. Joseph Brister served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Martin L. Brister and Tony LaCerva. Groomsmen were Ralph T. Cowan III, Stephan Baker, Jeff Patton and Joseph S. Kurimai Jr., brother of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a dinner-dance reception at Deltona Country Club for about 224 wedding guests. The reception area depicted a traditional Christmas setting while the band played favorite tunes. Following a roast beef dinner, guests were served the apple spice wedding cake, a large white tiered cake, trimmed in teal blue frosting and white roses. After a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the newlyweds will make their home at 610 Camellia Court, Sanford. The bride will graduate Friday, Dec. 17, from the University of Central Florida, Orlando, with a B.S. degree in computer science. The bridegroom is a certified aircraft mechanic employed by Cimmaron Air Service, Sanford Airport.

Among the out-of-town wedding guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley B. Loveland, maternal grandparents of the bride, Fairfield, Conn.; Mrs. Joseph Kurimai, paternal grandmother of the bride, Hollywood, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Keefe and daughter, Kelley, North Lauderdale; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Loveland and sons, Bryan and Chris, Sudbury, Mass.; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Pittman, Greensboro, N.C.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Ange Castaldo, Oswego, N.Y.; Mrs. Robert Grandjean and daughter, Eileen, Houston, Texas; Mrs. Julian Kately, Hollywood; Ronald A. Ricker, brother of the groom, and son, Ronnie, Lithia, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Darley, Soperton, Ga.; and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sweat and daughters, Kim and Vicki, Wrightsville, Ga.

How Exercising Can Prevent Heart Ills

DEAR DR. LAMB — I do not understand why jogging, running, exercising of all types helps prevent heart attacks. I can see that if you work your heart, the heart muscle will get stronger, like exercising your leg muscles but how does a strong heart muscle prevent heart attacks?

I always thought that heart attacks were caused from a clot forming in the coronary artery or an obstruction of the arteries. A strong muscle would not affect this as far as I can see. What exercises should one do for the arteries? DEAR READER — A muscle cannot grow or enlarge without adequate circulation. The heart muscle is no exception. Circulation provides the needed oxygen for the working muscle cells. The muscle cells must break down energy compounds from food to perform work and this process requires oxygen.

You are correct in saying that running and various endurance exercises increase the size and strength of the heart muscle. That is because the heart must pump more blood to deliver the needed oxygen to release energy for work. Since the heart muscle works harder it too must have more energy and oxygen. Your coronary arterial blood is different from the arterial blood in your legs and elsewhere. Even when you are sitting still almost all the available oxygen is taken from the arterial blood as it flows to your heart muscle.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday December 17, 1982

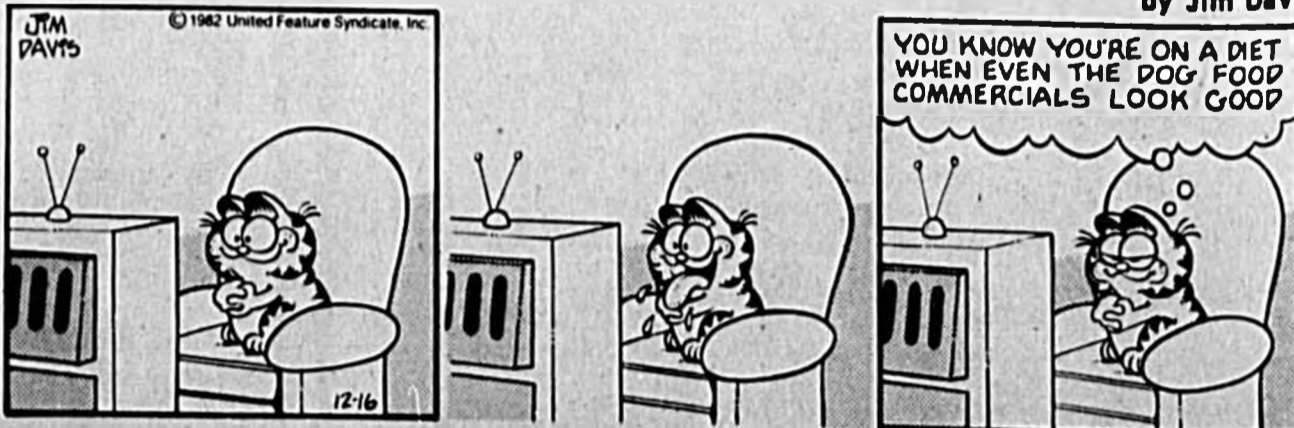

YOUR BIRTHDAY December 17, 1982 This coming year should prove to be an exciting one. For the first time in a long time you'll be able to bring your ideas to market. The more you become involved in, the more opportunities come your way. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not wait on others to make things happen for you today where your financial interests are concerned. You're the one who's needed to get the ball rolling. New predictions for the year following your birthday are now ready. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your keen insights and speedy deductions make you the leader of the pack today. This becomes even more evident when dealing in financial realms. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The reason you're so effective today is because you influence others subtly. Before people realize where the ideas are coming from they're already carrying them out. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When mingling with friendly groups today you may pick up bits and pieces of information which could put you on to something good. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep on the best of terms with persons who can help you advance your present ambitions. They could play key roles in your affairs now. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An opportunity potentially helpful to you careerwise might develop in a sudden and unexpected way today. A male friend may trigger the happening. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're noted for being a fast thinker. Today, this ability is likely to be put to good use in business matters, where you may have to make some quick decisions. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Circumstances may place you in an opportune position today where you can function as the middle person in bringing two parties together for a profitable purpose. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you want co-workers to be more industrious and productive today, first set the example. When they see you in action, they'll pick up your pace. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Much can be accomplished today if you take time to organize your methods. First determine how you want to do things — then proceed in an orderly fashion. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to leave things until the last minute today, but should tasks pile up, you'll be very resourceful in coping. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Don't treat lightly any bright ideas you get today for ways to turn a quick profit. Chances are, your thoughts for making the cash register ring are on the mark.

Yes, Virginia, There Will Forever Be A Santa Claus

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago when your column appeared in the now defunct New York Mirror, a 6-year-old girl named Virginia wrote to you, saying that her friends told her there was no Santa Claus. Your oft-quoted response was beautiful. Will you please run it again?

E.G.J., DOVER, DEL.

DEAR E.G.J.: To set the record straight, the child was 8, not 6, and the column did not appear in the now defunct New York Mirror — it appeared in the now defunct New York Sun. The letter was not addressed to me, it was addressed to the editor. And the beautiful response was written by Francis P. Church in 1897!

It is a famous, well-loved classic, but has never appeared in my column. And here it is:

"Dear Editor:
"I am 8 years old.
"Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus.
"Papa says, 'If you see it in The Sun, it's so.'
"Please tell me the truth. Is there a Santa Claus? — Virginia O'Hanlon, 115 West 95th Street"

"Dear Virginia: Your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus.

"The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's not proof that they are not there.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart.

"Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Oh, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else read and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, 10 times 10,000 years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

The Nose Feels Strange, But Witch's Role Is Fun For Elias

By PETER MEADE

Even after all the presents have been opened on Christmas Day there is one gift left for the entire family to share — PBS' presentation of the Metropolitan Opera's "Hansel and Gretel," Saturday, Dec. 25.

The "Live from the Met" telecast features American mezzo-soprano Rosalind Elias, as the witch in the familiar fairy tale, which has traditionally been performed at Christmas since it premiered in Germany in 1893.

A favorite of opera fans worldwide, the tale of the two broommaker's children (played by Judith Blegen and Frederica Von Stade) who take a perilous walk through a mythical German forest will be sung in English and simulcast over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network.

Miss Elias says she looks forward to her role despite the witch's evil temperament and physical transformation, which requires two hours of make-up.

"The nose feels quite strange," she says, "As does the false chin and the ripples on the neck. But I don't mind it when I look in the mirror, because it's a wonderful character to play. It's like taking a pill and becoming Dr. Jekyll. We are ourselves every day, so playing in this performance makes the holidays special."

"I've done my share of glamorous roles, like 'Carmen,'" she explains, "But just like on television, the protagonist always stands out. And when the children come back stage after the performance, they always want to see the witch."

ROSALIND ELIAS
... opera star featured in PBS presentation of 'Hansel And Gretel'

Miss Elias says the production is "magical." The opera showcases the Met's technical and scenic brilliance as the stage is transformed into an enchanted forest, with a scrumptiously colorful gingerbread house complete with peppermint shutters and a pretzel doorknocker. There have been only minor alterations made to bring this opera to television, the presence of the television cameras affecting the actors far more than the audience.

"For the audience we must be bigger than life," she explains, "Because to many we are the size of a postage stamp. Yet for television, we must underplay our parts."

U.S. Envoys Meet With Israeli Leaders

United Press International
A Syrian-arranged cease-fire took hold in Lebanon's northern city of Tripoli but Christian and Druze Moslem militias battled with rockets and heavy artillery in the Israeli-occupied mountains east of Beirut.

In Jerusalem, U.S. envoys Philip Habib and Morris Draper were meeting Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon today in an effort to break the impasse over the pullout of foreign forces from Lebanon.

In Washington, Lebanese Foreign Minister Eli Salem held talks with President Reagan Wednesday and called for the withdrawal "within weeks" of 40,000 Syrian, 10,000 Palestinian and 30,000 Israeli forces from his country.

"The time is right for a solution," Salem said. "We should be talking about immediate withdrawal."

In Beirut, Lebanese President Amin

Gemayel telephoned Syrian President Hafez Assad Wednesday and sent a special envoy to Damascus to discuss the withdrawal of foreign forces and the fighting in Tripoli, 53 miles north of Beirut.

Militias loyal to Syrian forces battled with rival guerrillas for eight days, leaving 40 dead and 136 wounded, until Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam Wednesday negotiated the week's second cease-fire.

Despite the truce and the formation of a "reconciliation committee," sniper fire continued to echo through the deserted streets Wednesday, with gunmen maintaining positions behind sand barricades and at street corners.

But in Lebanon's Shouf Mountains, Christian and Druze Moslem militias traded heavy-artillery fire Wednesday in villages around Bhamdoun, 10 miles east of Beirut on the highway to Damascus, the rightist Voice of Lebanon said.

SERGEANT'S SON SENTENCED

A Sanford police sergeant's son who had been given until 5 p.m. Friday to report to the Seminole County jail to begin serving a 60-day sentence, was taken to the jail two hours after a sheriff's deputy stopped him for driving with an expired tag and learned he also had a suspended driver's license.

Dennis Arthur Dube, 25, the son of police Sgt. William Dube, was sentenced to 80 days in jail and one year probation after pleading guilty to a charge of unauthorized use of a car before Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Lefler.

Lefler, who sentenced Dube Friday and told him to get his personal affairs in order and report to the jail at 5 p.m., also told the younger Dube that he had relied on his father's job for too long to keep him out of trouble.

Dube pleaded guilty in October to charges of stealing a car from Tom Norrell's Used Cars along U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford. The car had been repossessed from Dube because of his failure to make payments.

Dube said he pried open the lock to the gate surrounding the car lot, then drove the vehicle out of the enclosure, damaging the car and chain link fence. Dube called Norrell later that night to tell him he had taken the car and promised to later make payments, but Norrell filed charges against him.

Dube was also ordered to repay Norrell for damages incurred during the incident.
