BRIEFS

Cold spell keeps firemen busy

Fire units were being called to areas throughout Seminole County during the night and early this morning. The first sudden cold spell produced problems with some heating stoves turned on for the first time in many months.

"I would say the number of calls were significant," according to Assistant Chief Bill Kinley with the Seminole County Fire Department.

Problems like this generally happen when people turn their heaters on for the first time, he explained. They may have dust on the heating coils or have forgotten to open the flues before they start the fires. The result is that their home ends up being filled with smoke.

Kinley said there were no fires of any major consequence or loss overnight or early this morning. Apparently people were aware enough of the danger that they called us even though it was only smoke problems," he said.

City fire departments in Sanford and Lake Mary reported no problems in their areas.

Columbia lands in California

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Columbia and its medical research crew swooped through the clear desert sky and landed today after 14 days in space — the longest flight in shuttle history.

The spaceship and seven astronauts landed at Edwards Air Force Base at 7:06 a.m. PST. A clear sky and light wind in the Mojave Desert made for virtually perfect landing weather.

Congratulations on a very successful life sciences mission. Mission Control told commander John Blaha and his crew.

Columbia logged 5.8 million miles and circled Earth 225 times during its journey, which began Oct. 18. Some 30,000 spectators were on hand to welcome the crew home.

At 14 days, 13 minutes, the mission exceeded by nearly five hours the previous shuttle flight record, set by a crew aboard Columbia last year. It was also the fourth longest flight of any kind in U.S. space history.

Three tickets Will split jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's latest Lotto game ended with three winning tickets splitting a rollover-lattened jackpot worth an estimated $15 million. Lottery officials announced Sunday.

The tickets were the only ones sold in the state last week that had all six of the numbers drawn late Saturday: 2-5-9-14-30-34.

The $1 tickets were bought in Boca Raton, St. Petersburg and in the southern Lake County town of Clermont.

The drawing also produced 373 five-of-six winners worth $1,030 each; 18,125 four-of-six tickets worth $51 each, and 316,711 three-of-six tickets worth $4 each.

This week's jackpot is estimated at $7 million.

TDC, county back grant; racing planned

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Now that the Tourist Development Council, TDC, and Seminole County have agreed to supply Sanford's Derby Park with a grant, the city commission has approved the agreement.

Jack Wert, with Seminole County TDC, has announced the grant of $7,500 is being given to the Sanford Parks and Recreation department. According to the wording of the joint agreement, the money is to be used specifically for advertising and promoting the Seminole County based Central Florida Soap Box Derby in markets throughout the State in order to promote tourism within Seminole County.

Parks and Recreation Director Mike Kirby has already determined how the money would be allocated. $1,000 will be used for a display booth and banners for use in the local area as well as taken to Akron, Ohio during the annual national Derby held each Fall.

The remaining $6,500 is to be used in advertising outside the Orlando area, printing and distribution of promotional materials.

The Derby Park, located off Oregon Avenue, just north of S.R. 46-A, is slightly over 10 acres in size. It was used for the first time this past year. See Derby, Page 2A

Sanford story goes to Japan

Photographer publishes paper about area

By ED KORGAN
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — A local photographer tries to make an international connection between Sanford and Yokohama, Japan.

Shoin Fukui, born in Japan, is recognized as a very aggressive photographer. Since he moved his studio to the downtown Sanford area he has been constantly at work looking for ways to promote the town, the local area, and its residents.

His latest effort has been the printing of a paper completely in Japanese with most of the photography taken by Shoin in the central Florida area. The paper will be distributed through the rail commuter transit company now operating in Yokohama. It is estimated the distribution will be to over 200,000 households throughout the city. Yokohama is a city of three million people approximately 150 miles southwest of Tokyo.

The presentation to the Japanese people is rather unique and colorful. Unlike an ordinary newspaper it is printed on high gloss paper which provides vivid images of colored pictures. The most interesting are those of local residents Kay Bartholomew, Gerald Gross and family, and Shoin and his family. First Street in Sanford is also pictured. It is hoped that the images and their accompanying stories will spark some interest to visit the Sanford area.

Longwood to close out year's budget

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Closing out last year's budget and amending the new budget to continue the take-home car policy for some city employees top the agenda for the Longwood City Commissioners Monday night.

The commissioners will consider $143,000 in general fund budget transfers in the 1992-93 fiscal year budget. The budget year ended Oct. 1 when the 1993-94 budget went into effect. A public hearing on the budget transfers and amendments will be conducted during the meeting which begins at 7 p.m.

Included in the transfers, is $61,000 for salaries and wages in a number of departments covering the 5 per cent raises for city employees.

City administrator James McFelin explained, "Last year, when the budget was prepared, the budget was passed using the same figures for wages, fringes and benefits as the previous year because they (commissioners) hadn't made up their minds whether or not they were going to give a raise. So the 5 per cent raise was not included." See Budget, Page 5A

Elvis' Cadillac auctioned off

TAMPA — In an auction fit for a king, Elvis Presley's 1971 Cadillac Sedan de Ville was auctioned off for $28,000. Businessman Jack Jackson, who splits his time between Cedar Falls, Iowa, and Punta Gorda in southwest Florida, was the buyer Sunday of the sleek black automobile. "I'm going to use it in the promotions business," Jackson, 50, said. He wouldn't specify further, other than to say the car likely will be featured in some sort of display that will carry it all over the country.

Children struggle to escape

NORTH MIAMI — Martine Alliance is a typical 14-year-old girl who likes talking on the phone and wants to be a singer, maybe like Whitney Houston, when she grows up. That's if she doesn't become an actress. But the ninth-grader is wise beyond her years in the ways of the world after what should have been a quick trip to Haiti to complete some immigration paperwork turned into a five-month nightmare. Martine and about 150 other children of U.S. resident Haitians were required to return for visas permitting them to live here.

School on Saturday night. A nearly sell-out crowd of about 2,000 dedicated marching band enthusiasts were entertained by the spectacular half-time show extravaganzas performed by each of the district's six high school bands, dance teams and flag corps. Slushing through the mud and sidestepping puddles, the participants hardly seemed to notice the soggy landscape of Greyhound Stadium. "It was a spectacular show," said Don Schmaus, band director of the Lyman High School band which hosted this year's event. "It was very good." The annual festival, sponsored by the Sanford Herald and the Sanford Optimist Club, showcases the talents of some of the district's top musicians and dancers. The crowd was comprised mostly of families and friends of the performers. "They were enthusiastic," Schmaus said. "It was wonderful for the students." The band festival is designed to showcase the talents of the students, but is not a competition. "They're all winners," Schmaus said. Organizers said that the wet weather did not put a damper on the event. Student band members are trained to march and perform in all kinds of weather from heat to cold, from dry to rain.

July for the Sanford Soap Box Derby racing event. "At the present time," Kirby said, "we are still working on the park, but we are doing it as time permits and money is available." He said the current work involves drainage plans to prevent water from being on the actual course track. "The next big event we have planned for Derby Park will be this December 18th and 19th," Kirby announced. This will be the Derby Rally, and while we'll have two days of racing, it won't be connected to qualifying for the national derby. That will still be done at our races in July of 1994." Kirby said specific details on the Rally will be announced after the city completes the major project involved with the Golden Age Games, which will begin on Sunday, Nov. 7.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Guns and kids

Lawmakers consider proposals to raise gun possession age to 18

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Debating the issue of guns and kids in a special session may seem like deja vu to some Florida lawmakers: They did it just four years ago. But the goal in 1989 was to stop young children from playing with guns and accidentally shooting their friends. The goal now is to stop teen-agers from using guns to rob and kill. Two 13-year-olds made headlines in recent weeks as they were charged with murders at opposite ends of the state. Most teen-age murder defendants, however, don't attract as much attention because they're a few years older and they have so much company. Ninety-one of the 584 people arrested in Florida on murder charges in the first six months of 1993 were teen-agers. There were 188 juvenile murder arrests last year, down from 188 in 1991. Not all murders, of course, involve guns. However, one of every five arrests in Florida for illegal gun possession or purchase last year and in the first half of 1993 was a teen-ager — more than double the 1989 rate.

"No one's going to pretend that after having passed this bill that we're going to find that juvenile crime is no longer a problem in the state of Florida."

—House Speaker Booley "Bo" Johnson

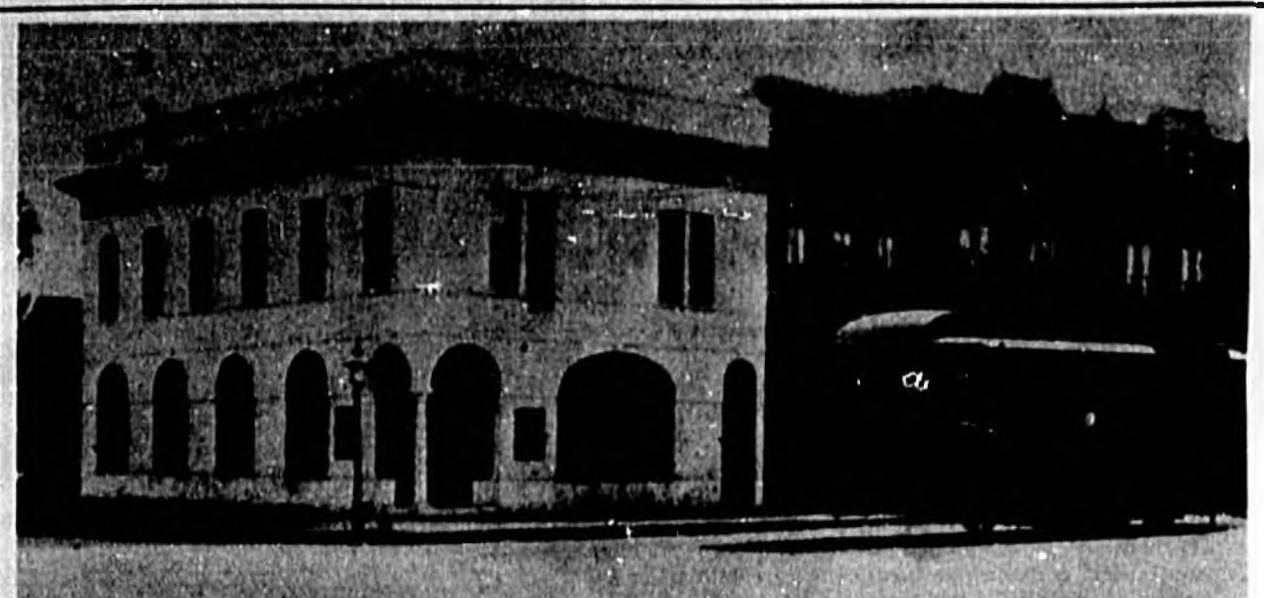

"We do not need a knee-jerk, quick-fix, 30-second sound bite answer to this problem," Moore said. The short-term response, according to Moore, Gov. Lawton Chiles and legislative leaders, is to raise the legal age for gun possession. The five-day session was originally planned so lawmakers could fix the workers compensation insurance system and stabilize the property insurance market, still shaky from Hurricane Andrew. The governor and legislative leaders agree that systemic reforms should be dealt with in the regular 60-day session that begins in February. "The problem doesn't lend itself to a quick fix," House Speaker Booley "Bo" Johnson said. A juvenile gun law would have an impact on teen-agers who are dabbling in crime but who have not yet joined the group of 2,000 to 3,000 hard-core criminals, Moore said. "No one's going to pretend that after having passed this bill that we're going to find that juvenile crime is no longer a problem in the state of Florida," Johnson D-Milton, said. "This will be a good initiative beginning. Senate President Pat Thomas, D-Quincy, said, "The main thrust will come in February." State law now bans teens under the age of 18 from possessing firearms except while hunting or for marksmanship purposes when they're under adult supervision. Various versions of a juvenile gun bill have been drafted, but all would increase the legal age of possession to 18. A proposal by Chiles would allow police to seize the firearm of any minor unless they're hunting or target practicing under the supervision of adults. The draft legislation would make it a third-degree felony for adults to provide teens with firearms except for hunting or marksmanship and a first-degree misdemeanor for teens to have such guns. A similar law recently passed in Colorado was declared unconstitutional earlier this month. A juvenile magistrate ruled a provision that allowed five days of detention without a bond hearing violated the due process rights of equal treatment under the law. But Florida will try to avoid that problem by passing a bill that makes sure that laws that ban adults with felony records from having weapons also apply to teen-agers, Johnson said. "We could then have tougher penalties for juveniles who are in possession of guns if they've had a prior offense," he said.

Confusion remains in clinic buffer zone issue

By Associated Press

MELBOURNE — Police plan not to enforce a buffer zone around a women's clinic where abortions are performed, saying differing court opinions and a directive from the state attorney general have confused the issue. "We will not enforce the original injunction . . . the buffer zone," Melbourne police Chief Keith Chandler said. "But we will keep the peace and if anyone violates a state statute, we will enforce that." He said that short of direction from any other court, last week's decision by a federal appeals court in Atlanta saying the buffer zone around the Aware Woman Center for Choice appeared to be unconstitutional would be the department's guideline.

Way Back When

Here's the new National Bank Building located on the southwest corner of First Street and Park Avenue in 1910. It was also in this building that Rollins College was founded. In later years this building once housed Sanford's Western Union office managed by Lester Tharp. Even later this building became the Florida State Bank of Sanford, one of the McNulty chain of banking institutions headed by C.H. McNulty and headquartered in Melbourne. The Florida State Bank here was managed by E.G. Fitzpatrick. The chief cashier was "Gene" Tucker. At one time the building was owned by Walter L. Cooper Sr., a civil engineer. Note one of the "Southeastern 'Everglades' trolleys which operated from downtown Sanford to Cameron City. The trolleys were often referred to as the "S'E" meaning "slow and easy." # Freezing weather grips north Florida, record lows set

By Associated Press

Freezing weather gripped North Florida today and the chill was felt down the Peninsula as a record cold front stuck around after bringing howling Halloween winds that caused havoc throughout the state. Records for today fell from Tallahassee to Miami. A sampling found Tallahassee shattering its old mark of 35 degrees set in 1954 with a temperature of 28. In northeast Florida, Jacksonville broke its old record low of 37, also set in 1954, with a mark of 33. In Central Florida, Melbourne dropped to 38, easily breaking the record low of 52 set in 1976. Meanwhile, Miami bottomed out at 52, breaking the old record of 55 set in 1954. On Sunday, records were broken in Orlando,

Melbourne, Apalachicola and Pensacola. "This is rather unusual for this time of year," said Joel Rothfuss, meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Miami. "We are talking about records set 35 or 40 years ago." Highs for today were expected to range from 50s in north to the 70s in the south. The weather was to continue blustery, but not of the level of Sunday in which damage was reported throughout the state. The cold weather prompted a freeze warning Sunday by the National Weather Service for northwest Florida and the Panhandle. Residents and farming interests were advised to take precautions to protect young or tender vegetation. The cold snap was the result of a low-pressure area over the Gulf of Mexico that helped guide the front. The low strengthened Sunday, throwing westerly winds across the state and pushing high tides against the Central Florida Gulf Coast. The weather wasn't supposed to stick around, though. Clear, sunny skies are predicted for at least the next three days, and temperatures should be warming back up by Friday, the Weather Service said. Expect the warming trend to start Tuesday. On Sunday, weather damage was reported throughout the state. In Citrus County officials reported water over some coastal roads in the wee hours, but no serious flooding was reported anywhere. Two mobile homes were destroyed and one was damaged by a possible tornado near Felida, 25 miles east of Fort Myers, at 1 a.m. Sunday, said officials of the Hendry County sheriff's office.

Numerous twisters had raked the state from west to east Saturday, destroying some homes, toppling power lines and snapping trees from the Panhandle to Northeast Florida and down the state to Southwest Florida. "They raced through Gilchrist, Marion, Alachua, Putnam and St. Johns at about 50 miles per hour," said meteorologist Pat Holbrook of the Weather Service's office in Gainesville. "They were moving fast." Two homes were killed when a barn collapsed near Ocala. In nearby Putnam County, the sheriff's office reported a twister touched down near Lake Hewitt, damaging 15 homes along State Road 315. Alachua County storms damaged or destroyed several mobile homes along State Road 28, while in Levy County a tornado ripped siding from some mobile homes and destroyed one house.

Call leads police to suspect

By Associated Press

SPRING HILL — A family friend for 10 years made the anonymous call that led detectives to the suspect in the serial slayings of four elderly women killed in their beds and set on fire.

Janice Daniel hesitated for three days over the "painful decision," then disguised her voice to make the call to the Hernando County Sheriff's Office.

"I really hoped that I was wrong, but in my heart I knew I was right," Mrs. Daniel, 42, said. "I'm not sorry I did it, not at all."

With the tip, deputies arrested Edwin "Michael" Kaprat III, 29. He pleaded innocent in writing Friday rather than face an open court arraignment Tuesday on murder, arson, attempted murder and burglary charges.

Mrs. Daniel became acquainted with Kaprat's father — Edwin "Skip" Kaprat Jr. — through work. She met Michael in 1980 when he moved in with his parents in Spring Hill.

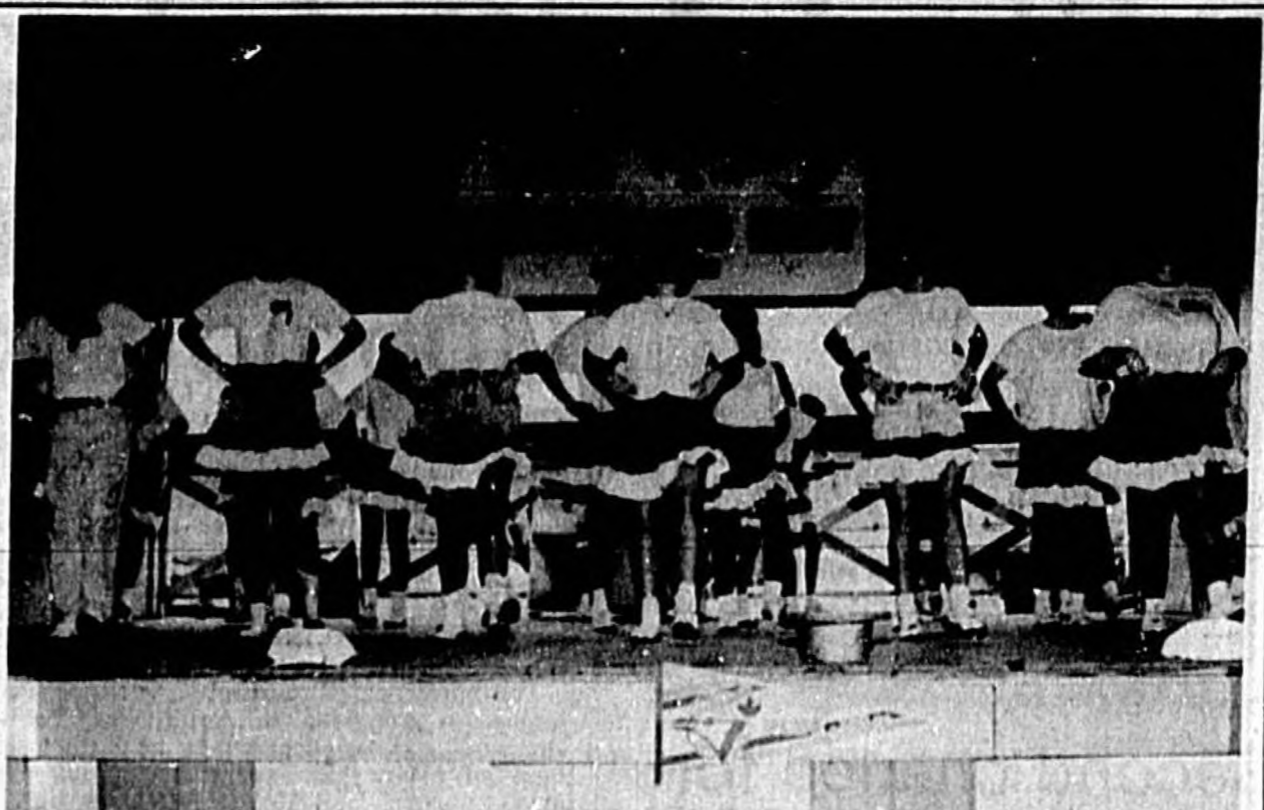

Mrs. Daniel decided the horrifying deaths outweighed the idea of casting suspicion on the son of a friend. She knew Kaprat had been arrested in the 1991 slaying of a Tampa man, but the charges were dropped.

"He was in trouble a lot. He had been in drug rehabilitation programs," Mrs. Daniel said. "They spent a lot of their savings on drug rehab for him."

Mrs. Daniel remembered the younger Kaprat began helping his father with odd jobs on properties owned a real estate agency last year.

"All of the old ladies love me," she heard Kaprat say. Ruth Goldsmith liked him so much, she recommended him to friends.

Goldsmith, 72, was found dead in her home Aug. 18. On Sept. 2, her neighbor and good friend, Lydia Riddell, 79, died in her burned mobile home. Sophia "Sue" Garrity, 80, was next on Aug. 7. After the death of Lorraine "Alice" Dawe, 87, on Sept. 28, deputies warned the public a serial killer was on the loose.

Clogging for Down Syndrome

Hollywood East Cloggers danced their way into the hearts of patrons attending a fund-raising benefit Saturday, Oct. 30, at Flea World, when all proceeds were directed to Down Syndrome. The cloggers have performed in such places as Cheyenne Saloon, Lake Buena Vista, and the Disney Easter Parade. Also, they have danced for numerous non-profit groups.

Judge calls defense claim 'psychobabble'

By Associated Press

DADE CITY — A judge derided an attorney's claim that CBS gave him editorial control over an interview with a confessed serial killer as a "psychobabble" defense strategy.

Bobby Joe Long gave specifics about nine slayings in a 90-minute videotape that Pasco Circuit Judge Wayne L. Cobb viewed behind closed doors. Only a few excerpts have been broadcast.

Cobb concluded Friday that the interview was voluntary and opened it for use by prosecutors during a second retrial scheduled to begin Nov. 8 in the 1984 murder of Virginia Johnson, whose remains were found near Zephyrhills.

Miami attorney Ellis Rubin and Long told the judge that the interview was given on the condition that Rubin could review it and edit the interview before it aired, but he was never given the opportunity.

But former CBS News reporter Victoria Corderi said in a deposition that she never made any such agreement.

Cobb said granting the interview sounded like a strategy to help Rubin argue Long's appeal before the Florida Supreme Court.

"Mr. Rubin is famous for his psychobabble defenses and that's all Mr. Long wanted to talk about in this interview, that these murders were caused by his second toe being longer than his first one or something like that," Cobb said in his ruling from the bench.

The judge said he was convinced Rubin told Long the interview wouldn't hurt him in court. If it became necessary, the judge said, Long would be able claim Rubin gave him bad advice when he agreed to the interview.

"That's exactly what you're doing now," Cobb told Long's current attorney, Assistant Public Defender Bill Eble.

Rubin was representing Long in an appeal of a Tampa murder conviction at the time of the interview.

The Pasco conviction was overturned because police denied Long's request for an attorney before he confessed to nine slayings.

But before winning that reversal, Long pleaded guilty to eight Hillsborough County murders and granted the CBS interview.

In overturning the Pasco conviction and the subsequent death penalty last year, the Supreme Court also prohibited prosecutors from using evidence of the other killings.

Long faces 30 life sentences and one death sentence in the Hillsborough cases.

Second chance for expelled students

Dr. Tom Marcy, director of public school education for Seminole County said the expulsion of a student is "tantamount to the economic execution of a child." We believe it could also be an invitation to a life of crime.

Students who reach their late teens, without a high school education, will be hard-pressed to find a job with an adequate income. Even graduates do not have an easy time, but at least they have that degree, and more important, that education.

The plan to offer continuing education to those who may have been expelled during school, is commendable. They will be given the opportunity of obtaining a General Education Development, (GED) diploma. It will be a start in the right direction.

Seminole Community College, and a few others, will even allow GED graduates the opportunity to begin higher education if they so desire.

Schools do not oust students without reason. Depending on the extent of the situation, it could be for disrupting a class or school bus driver, lying to an adult in authority, illegal use of school forms, indecent exposure, possession of a weapon, distribution or sale of narcotics, or committing crimes such as arson, assault, robbery, etc.

Some of these incidents may be due to an outside influence or child-like attitude. Students removed from school may regret their moves, and hope to continue their education.

Others however, may be habitual offenders. They may have no intention of trying to improve their education. This type may also not want a job which requires their time and energy. Even if one is obtained, it wouldn't last long. If a teenager can't follow rules in school, he or she will be unable to survive in the workplace.

Their only recourse would be to expand their activities to crimes which inevitably could result in a prison term.

We commend the Seminole County School District for seeking to help those who want to return to school after an expulsion. The students themselves may, some day express appreciation for the opportunity.

Crime statistics have proven over the years that the more education a person has, the less likely he will become a criminal.

Through this, schools can do much toward reducing juvenile and eventually adult crime problems.

Save Longwood police, vote yes

I would like to respond to your opinion on the proposed Longwood charter amendment. I feel you have been misinformed on some very important facts.

The amendment was proposed by the people that opposed consolidation. It is not a different approach to the same end.

Paul Lovestrang who initiated the consolidation effort last year, has tried this year to reduce the force by two officers. No one is going to disband the police department at this time, but he will try to reduce the number of officers to an ineffective and unsafe level.

The amendment will establish that 2.2 sworn officers per thousand population (present level), be on the Longwood police force, and the "other members" are support personnel.

The "other side" is using the term deputies to confuse, so we can't tie their hands. I really can't imagine a trained deputy as a records clerk or a receptionist (support) etc.

The only way to ensure our police department, as it is, is a yes vote.

Cuomo and the Fairness Doctrine

In addition to trying to crush all corners in verbal jousts, the governor of New York's most abiding hobby is the Constitution. When I first knew Mario Cuomo — he was lieutenant governor at the time — we argued long and repeatedly on whether the Establishment Clause was meant to erect an insurmountable wall between church and state. Later we explored whether the roots of Roe v. Wade can be found in the Constitution.

The governor is currently brooding about moves in Congress to restore the Fairness Doctrine — whose effect will be, as in the past, to diminish rather than expand free speech on the air.

In a recent conversation with Broadcasting & Cable magazine, the governor sounded exactly like the late Justice William O. Douglas. Said Cuomo: "I have never understood the distinction between electronic and print media in terms of the reasons for the First Amendment ... and the basic rationale for freedom of speech."

Cuomo added that the drive by Democratic members of Congress to command broadcasters to present opposing views on controversial issues is related to the rising popularity of conservative talk-show hosts on the radio. If the Fairness

Doctrine returns, these programs — and the few with hosts on the left — will become safely bland. New York's governor also noted that broadcasters, by and large, have been rather subdued in protesting the renewed gutting of their First Amendment rights. "I get the sense," he says, "that a lot of the people who make profits in this business will sell freedom for fees. They will make deals with Congress; they will accept regulation that they shouldn't be accepting ... all in exchange for an opportunity to make more money."

The governor, as is his custom, delivered a baleful prophecy: "This ceding of authority, on a basic principle, has to come back to haunt you. And the truth is, if (broadcasters) raised hell in this country, not just the conservatives would be with them but also a lot of embarrassed liberals." If the doctrine is reimposed, he added, the liberals' turn "is going to come."

There is already some embarrassment in the series of the American Civil Liberties Union. A representative of the ACLU dutifully came before a House subcommittee to support the bizarre notion that fairness is achieved by government regulation of speech. For some time, however, national leaders of the ACLU have been convinced that the Fairness Doctrine violates the First Amendment, but they have been unable to persuade the mechanical liberals on the national board to change the ACLU policy.

In a 1985 Fairness Report the Federal Communications Commission agreed that the Fairness Doctrine was not in consonance with the First Amendment because, among other reasons, it had chilled speech rather than encouraged diverse views. Those brave stations providing opinions that were out of the mainstream had a much higher likelihood of having to prove to the FCC that they had provided enough time for conflicting views.

In addition to trying to crush all corners in verbal jousts, the governor of New York's most abiding hobby is the Constitution.

WHEN HE LEFT THE HEALTH CARE SEMINAR, GRAHAM FELT A LOT BETTER ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S NEW PLAN — ALTHOUGH HE DID WONDER WHAT ALL THE SNICKERING WAS ABOUT.

What American foreign policy?

For most Americans these days, the phrase "American foreign policy" is an oxymoron. The old certainties shattered and the old imperatives no longer operative, people and government are adrift. Until the problem is directly confronted, the situation will continue to deteriorate. The nation is in urgent need of agreement on the shape and direction of U.S. policy as we approach the 21st century, and it can only be achieved through thorough public debate about clearly articulated alternatives.

That is not what we have today, and the blame can be widely shared. On too many issues, the president is more weather vane than leader. As for Congress, it chases after headlines like a terrier after rats and with no larger sense of purpose. Polls and overnight swings in public opinion mesmerize both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. Reacting constantly to events, president and Congress avoid the hard task of formulating policies that can be systematically applied.

Until they confront this task, the worst impulses of the political process will run free. Policy by lurch and lean will continue to be the order of the day. Where candor is required, hypocrisy will prevail.

What else can you say of the effort by the GOP's Senate leader, Robert Dole of Kansas, to tie Mr. Clinton's hands in ways he resolutely opposed when there was a Republican president? On the other hand, how else can you describe some liberal Democrats' born-again defense of virtually limitless presidential supremacy in foreign policy?

This intellectual and policy vacuum on both sides of the aisle might be of at least limited comfort to the White House if it had a fixed policy compass, but it doesn't. Nine months into the Clinton presidency, we have been treated to a torrent of press conferences and speeches on key issues whose one discernible thread of continuity is their discontinuity. Policy has been made and unmade at the gallop, seemingly as much in response to images on CNN as to the actual events.

Worse, though consistent with the hot air on Capitol Hill, the president and his men keep trying to pretend they have not been bouncing from pillar to post. That's beyond hypocrisy, it's terminally dumb. Say Haiti or Bosnia or Somalia and you conjure up images of confusion, retreat and just plain stupidity. When the president or his representatives claim otherwise, they forfeit all credibility.

At his best, Bill Clinton is exactly the man the situation requires. He knows that a new consensus must be put together and that the public must be involved in the process. Because he is of the post-war generation, he understands its mindset and concerns. He can claim to speak for and to the future, and he often does so with great eloquence.

The problem is that he and his foreign policy team have not worked out the full outline, let alone the details, of a Clinton foreign policy. Lacking both, disconnections between proclamation and practice are inevitable. Also inevitable is the growing sense that the people he has put in place in the major national security posts are not up to the job.

If the United States were Europe, no one would care about the fumbling and bumbling. But the United States isn't Europe. As the British magazine, The Economist, put it last week, "If America can't get a grip on the world's impending disasters, nobody can."

At this point in the discussion, everybody tends to start pointing fingers outward. The American people are to blame, some politicians say privately, since they are no longer willing to risk money or lives on the hard job of building a new world order. Congress is to blame, says the White House, and the president is to blame, says Congress.

The truth is that there is plenty of blame to go around — but that the buck stops at the White House. The president is the person entrusted with the formulation of foreign policy and its implementation. He is also commander in chief. It's his responsibility to construct a foreign policy and put it before Congress, not as a bait-and-switch tactic but as a good faith effort on which he is willing to stake a big chunk of his political capital.

Then it's up to Congress and the American people to respond just as seriously. Bill Clinton is the only president we have, which is something both he and Congress need to remember. The United States is the only great power left in the world, which is something its government and people must never forget.

If Washington continues to improvise, the future will be no improvement on the recent past. While there is no magic formula that will make the world's problems go away or permit us to manage them without error or disaster, flying by the seat of the pants all but guarantees repeated crackups. What is needed is a foreign policy flight plan understood by the public and Congress and followed by the president. Achieving one will require the full participation of all three.

The nation is in urgent need of agreement on the shape and direction of U.S. policy.

Wilson's advice on school choice goes unheeded

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Failed behind-the-scenes negotiations between Gov. Pete Wilson and pro-school choice politicians best tell why Proposition 174 is doomed to failure this week.

If supporters of the proposition, which would give approximately $2,600 per child for parents to spend at the private school of their choice, had listened carefully to Wilson's confidential advice, they would have had a much better chance at passage this week.

Proponents of the measure, like Joseph Alibrandi, chairman of Excel (the group sponsoring the initiative), are normally allies with the Republican governor. The GOP has pushed the voucher system as its answer to failing public schools.

That's why it was such a telling and devastating blow to have Wilson come out against Prop. 174 last month. Wilson's late-breaking opposition could have been avoided if proponents like Alibrandi had heeded his advice.

Sources here told us that Wilson spent more than a year urging school choice advocates to rewrite the language of their proposition. Among Wilson's chief suggestions was to insert the words "gradual" or "phased" so it wouldn't have a catastrophic effect on California schools and the state's budget if it passed. But the choice advocates wouldn't budge.

The last straw for Wilson may have come when proponents made a secret admission to him. A source in the governor's office told us that Wilson pressed them repeatedly on how they thought private schools could possibly handle a potentially massive transfer of some of California's 5.3 million schoolchildren from public to private schools.

Finally, the answer came: The proposition's organizers acknowledged that private schools couldn't handle a large influx. "We asked the people at Excel — and we haven't used this publicly — and they said they think the maximum transferring that could possibly be handled is 9 percent over the next three to five years," the source said. "That's just the capability to respond with classrooms and teachers."

Nationwide support for school choice has been growing by leaps and bounds in the last decade. By the end of last year, legislation proposing some sort of school choice was introduced or pending in 34 states. Twenty-nine governors have indicated support for choice, up from 20 in 1991. Citizens groups have formed in at least 19 states to champion school choice.

Wilson himself was on record repeatedly favoring school choice. But he held out his support until extracting the secret admission from supporters that private schools couldn't handle the load.

What finally clinched his opposition was a California Department of Finance estimate of the short-term economic impact on schools and the budget. The study concluded that the cumulative cost would be at least $1 billion over the first three years. If fewer students converted, the cost could climb to $1.6 billion.

In an interview with us, Wilson hinted at his frustration with friends and allies pushing this measure.

"The great vulnerability is that it's front-loaded with costs," Wilson said. "If the state of California were not a government operating under the constraints of a balanced budget provision in its constitution — a business might be able to say, 'We will structure this offering knowing that we're going to lose money in the first five years.'

The GOP has pushed the voucher system as its answer to failing public schools.

Budget

Included in the budget items in each department. Any wage increase was supposed to come out of contingencies, but it didn't, because there was money left over within the budget items of the department to cover that cost.

The commission will also consider the take home car policy for city vehicles. Vehicle approval is supposed to be incorporated in the annual city budget. However, the authorization was not passed with the 1993-94 budget so the commissioners are considering a budget amendment. Two commissioners have voiced opposition to the take-home policy because of the added depreciation costs. Objections have also been raised about where the cars are taken by off-duty employees.

During budget hearings, Police Chief Greg Manning told the commissioners cars in his department last longer because officers took better care of their vehicles under the take home plan.

A total of 21 city vehicles are taken home by city employees. City administrator James McFallin drives a 1991 Ford Taurus provided in his contract with the city. Parks and Recreation Director Sandi Lomax has a 1985 Ford.

Fire Chief Charles Chapman drives a 1986 Crown Victoria. Fire loss management is assigned a 1986 Crown Victoria.

The following cars are assigned to the police department along with the miles they are driven to the respective residences: Chief Greg Manning, 1991 Ford Explorer, Sanford (10 miles); Assistant Chief, 1991 Crown Victoria, DeBary (27); Lieutenant of Patrol, 1988 Crown Victoria, DeBary (26); Lt.

Paper

Fukul explained, "I just love to get with the kids; they are just so appreciative when I am around. We just seem to have a great time whenever we are able to get together."

But after all the niceties and fun things are over, the harsh realities of life in a small town where business is struggling to survive, sets in.

As hard as he works to promote this area he says it is just sometimes downright disappointing. In his public relations drive he has come across many different attitudes and sometimes feel the negatives are more present than the positives.

He points to the almost 55 stores which are closed down in the Sanford vicinity. "We need to pull in some businesses and ideas that will make Sanford more interesting to the tourists that flock into Florida from all over the world including my Japan," he said. "I talk to my travel agent friend in Yokohama about Sanford and he says very diplomatically, 'Shoin, your town, Sanford, is very boring. There is nothing for my customers to do. Please try to get something interesting so I can send my people to your town. Write and show me what I can show to my travelers...'"

The newspaper is his latest play in trying to show his people what interests he finds in the central Florida area. The front page pictures are that of a shuttle launch at Cape Canaveral and the shuttle assembly building. The photos are outstanding and were taken and authorized by NASA. This is not really what he wanted to show but Japanese people as well as people all over the world are interested in the progress of the American shuttle program.

He remembers that he moved his studio to this town because he met some very business-like people who convinced him that Sanford was a good place to settle down and build his business.

But Fukul continues to wonder.

Jackson

Jackson had a long and colorful career of 33 years in military service.

He enlisted in the Navy on June 18, 1931. When World War II broke out, he was flying fighter planes from an aircraft carrier in the Pacific.

In Guadalcanal, he participated in 12 separate landing invasions of various Pacific islands. He eventually served as air officer on the carrier U.S.S. Enterprise, the only operational carrier in the Pacific during that period of the war.

Earlier this year, Jackson commented that one of the saddest recollections of the war was losing a brother who was stationed in Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack, Dec. 7, 1941.

After the war, he became training officer for AirLant, (Aviation, Atlantic) for the east coast, and was stationed at Norfolk, Va.

During the Korean war, he was executive officer on board another aircraft carrier, the U.S.S. Yorktown. He also served as director of the Airborne Early Warning System for the navy's entire Pacific fleet.

Jackson's introduction to Sanford was an assignment as Commanding Officer of the Sanford Naval Air Station. In June, 1955. He remained here until 1957 when he returned to Norfolk to serve on the staff of the Supreme Allied Command for NATO.

He was scheduled to take over command of an entire carrier fleet, but due to a heart condition, he was forced to retire. When he left military service, he was elevated one grade level and became a Rear Admiral.

Although he was originally from Wisconsin, he did not return, choosing to live in Central Florida. He said of all the duty stations he had seen in the navy, he chose the one he loved the most, for his retirement. He and his family have lived at the name location on Linda Lane near Lake Mary since that time.

Regardless of the closing of the Naval Air Station in Sanford many years ago, he maintained contact with many former navy friends who also remained in the area after retirement.

In the local area, Jackson was a member of the Markham Woods Presbyterian Church, Kiwanis Club of Sanford, American Heart Association and American Cancer Society.

He is survived by his wife, Catherine; daughters Lee Mennig, Endicott, N.Y., Lynn Shorten, Gainesville, Sharon White, Sanford; son, Robert W. Jr., Orlando; and five grandchildren.

PUTTING THE PEDAL TO THE METAL CAN HAVE A WHOLE NEW MEANING.

The shock, the anguish, the damage—the results of a crash far outweigh the time you save by driving too fast. It's a fact that your chances of seriously injuring someone increase the faster you go. And when you drive too fast for conditions, you make things even worse. A crash like this can happen in a heartbeat. And if it does, it will change your life forever.

Clinton says he's won 'secret battle' for NAFTA

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — As the push for an unpopular three-nation trade pact begins its frenzied final days, President Clinton says he has won the hearts and minds — but not the votes — of the lawmakers needed to pass it.

"I believe we will do it," Clinton said in preparation for this week's public relations blitz for the North American Free Trade Agreement. "But it's going to take all hands on deck."

The call to arms was starting today with remarks and a question-and-answer session at the Chamber of Commerce. Businessmen at 210 sites throughout the country were taking part.

High-profile endorsements — from Nobel Prize winners and former Cabinet secretaries, among others — will be trumpeted Tuesday. After talking about health care on Wednesday, Clinton plans to travel outside Washington on Thursday to promote NAFTA.

The House is scheduled to vote Nov. 17. "That's an eternity," Clinton said last week at the Wall Street Journal Conference of the Americas. It was the first of two speeches that set the foundation for this week's promotion.

Clinton claims he has already passed the "first threshold" by convincing a majority of legislators that passing NAFTA is the right thing to do. He says the trade deal would pass by secret ballot, a boast that draws jeers from foes.

"I believe we won the secret battle," Clinton said.

To win the real battle, aides say Clinton must convince lawmakers that they can vote openly for the unpopular pact without being thrown out of office.

Opponents, from former presidential candidate Ross Perot to scads of Democratic congressmen, say the agreement among the United States, Mexico and Canada would send thousands of jobs across the border to Mexico, benefiting only big corporations looking for cheap labor.

Clinton appears to be at least 50 votes short of passing NAFTA, a wider margin than he ever faced before the House narrowly approved his budget plan in August. A powerful foe, House Democratic Whip David Bonior of Michigan, claims 208 committed "no" votes — just 10 short of a majority.

White House officials say Bonior is inflating his totals, but the administration won't share its estimates. Aides say the president can pull within eight or 10 votes in the next week or so — close enough to hope for victory.

Jim Jontz, a former Indiana congressman who is directing an anti-NAFTA lobbying group called the Citizens Trade Campaign, says: "I'm not betting the farm today. If they could sell part of the White House lawn to get the votes, they would do it."

Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia said Sunday he still thinks Clinton can win, although the sales job is coming later than he would have liked.

"I wish last week the president had come up and pushed as hard for NAFTA and for job creation as he pushed in health care," he said on CBS's Face the Nation.

The president compares NAFTA to flypaper, catching "the accumulated resentments of the past" — jobs losses, falling wages and a general erosion of faith in government.

S/L cleanup agency official tells employees they will be wiretapped

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Three months ago, employees of the government's savings and loan cleanup agency were told that wiretapping wasn't allowed. Now, some workers say they've been told their own calls will be monitored to stop leaks to the media.

Employees of the Resolution Trust Corp.'s Dallas office were told last Monday by legal division director Duane Curtis that the monitoring is intended to keep agency information from being provided to reporters.

Since then, five employees have told The Associated Press that they have heard clicking on their phone lines that sounds like wiretapping — a development that Justice Department officials and privacy experts say would violate wiretapping regulations.

But the issue of wiretapping came up in the Dallas office over the summer, and the message then was different. In an electronic mail message on July 22, Curtis' predecessor in Dallas told his workers not to monitor phone calls.

"I could think of no circumstance where it would be appropriate for an RTC employee to record phone conversations even if the employee first advised the person(s) also involved in the phone call," Rex Taylor advised his staff.

"I would like to take this opportunity to remind everyone," Taylor's message said, "that taping of phone or other conversations among employees should not occur with or without the office employee(s) knowledge."

Curtis told a staff meeting last Monday that employees shouldn't be surprised if they heard clicks on their phone lines because the RTC was planning to monitor their phone calls, said the employees. The legal division workers were also told that a log would be kept of their outgoing telephone calls. Curtis did not use the word wiretap.

All employees spoke on condition that they not be identified by name.

Extract from kudzu may conquer alcohol craving, study says

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An Oriental remedy for alcoholism seems to work — at least in rodents. When tested on hamsters who preferred booze to water, extracts of kudzu root curbed their craving, Harvard researchers say.

Dr. Bert L. Vallee of the Harvard Medical School said the kudzu extract "has been used widely in China and Japan for centuries to treat alcoholism.

You can buy the stuff in pill form over the counter in Japan and China."

Vallee and his colleague, Wing-Ming Keung, collected information about the use of kudzu from doctors in Asia and found that since about 300 A.D. it has been a treatment to suppress alcohol consumption.

"They make a concoction of it and drink it as tea," said Vallee.

Vallee said the researchers identified the active ingredient in kudzu as a compound called daldin. This was synthesized and then injected into 71 of the hamsters.

Another extract from kudzu, called daldazin, had a similar effect.

The kudzu compounds also were tested against approved drugs now commonly used to blunt the appetite for drink in human alcoholics. Vallee said the kudzu products worked better.

Study says people who report UFO sightings are not crazy

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON — People who see flying saucers are not nuts. And neither are folks who claim to hitch rides with extraterrestrials, researchers say.

A team of scientists led by Dr. Nicholas P. Spanos of Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada, gave a battery of psychological tests to people who claim to have close encounters of one kind or another, and compared the results with tests given to people who make no flying saucer claims.

The results, published today in the Journal of Abnormal Psychology, show that the people who claim to have seen and even ridden in UFOs are just ordinary folks with normal imaginations. "We can't say these sightings are real or not, but we can say these people are not necessarily abnormal," Spanos said in a statement from the American Psychological Association.

In the research, Spanos and his colleagues examined the intelligence, imagination, paranormal beliefs and mental health of 48 people who claim to have seen UFOs. The same tests were given to 127 people who made no such claims.

Spanos said they found that the UFO sighters were not "off the wall." "They tend to be white-collar, relatively well-educated representatives of the middle class," he said. They were no different from the control group in intelligence, in the tendency toward fantasy, or in suggestibility.

"Our findings clearly contradict the previously held notions that people who seemingly had bizarre experiences, such as missing time and communicating with aliens, have wild imaginations and are easily swayed into believing the unbelievable," the study said.

Spanos said the only significant difference between the UFO sighters and the others was that those who reported flying saucers had previously established belief in the existence of UFOs and in aliens.

The study found that 80 percent of the close encounters reported occurred at night and about 60 percent of the alien contact reports happened during sleep.

"Some UFO reports are likely to occur when external events are ambiguous or unfamiliar, when darkness makes it hard to see clearly or when one is in that disoriented state just before falling asleep," the study said.

Nearly a quarter of people with intense experiences told stories suggesting sleep paralysis, a relatively common experience in which one feels awake but cannot move, said study co-author Patricia Cross, a psychology graduate student.

Dolphins give Shula No. 324

MIAMI — Don Shula wanted to match George Halas' NFL record for coaching victories with a Super Bowl team, and the Miami Dolphins looked like one Sunday.

Scott Mitchell, making his second NFL start in place of injured Dan Marino, threw three touchdown passes and the defense did the rest in a 30-10 victory over Kansas City as Shula tied Halas' record of 324 wins.

The victory improved Shula's record to 324-152-6 (.678) in 31 seasons with the Dolphins and Baltimore Colts. The late Halas was 324-151-31 (.671) in 40 years with the Chicago Bears.

Shula will have a chance to break Halas' record Sunday when Miami plays at the New York Jets.

Buccaneers outlast Falcons

ATLANTA — Tampa Bay's defense almost ruined a career-day for Craig Erickson before making a stand when it counted most.

With Erickson passing for 318 yards and four touchdowns — both career-beats — the Bucs built a 31-3 lead Sunday over Atlanta before hanging on for a 31-24 victory by stopping the Falcons on downs at the Tampa Bay 9 with 50 seconds left.

The Bucs (2-5) snapped a two-game losing streak as Erickson took over the offensive lead from Reggie Cobb when the workhorse back was sidelined late in the second quarter with a sprained left knee.

Erickson's scoring passes covered 42 yards to Vince Workman, 5 yards to Cobb and 60 and 44 yards to Horace Copeland, whose last four receptions have gone for touchdowns.

Cobb ran for 75 yards on 18 carries and had two catches for 19 yards before leaving with the knee injury 1:08 before halftime.

Earnhardt closes in on Cup

PHOENIX — A broken sway bar in Rusty Wallace's Pontiac all but gave Dale Earnhardt his sixth Winston Cup championship Sunday as Mark Martin ran off with the Slick 50 500 at Phoenix International Raceway.

Earnhardt, who came into the race leading Wallace by 72 points, took advantage of his pursuer's misfortune by finishing fourth. The 42-year-old Earnhardt will carry a 126-point lead into the season-fnale on Nov. 14 at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

He can earn the $1.25 million stock car championship on Atlanta's 1.522-mile oval by finishing no worse than 34th in what is expected to be a 42-car field.

Martin was the class of the field at Phoenix throughout the 312-lap race on the one-mile oval, leading seven times for 254 laps including the final 23, as he held off a late challenge from Ernie Irvan to win for the fifth time this season and the 121th of his career.

The game's star attraction for the British fans, Orlando's 7-foot-1 center Shaquille O'Neal, was the expected crowd-pleaser with his inside power. He scored 31 points despite constant foul trouble that saw him disqualified in the game's final minute.

LAKE MARY — Losing just one game all day, Lake Howell swept to a defense of its 1992 Volleyfest title Saturday, defeating University 15-8, 15-7 in the finals of the 1993 Volleyfest, described as the unofficial state championship for boys volleyball.

Lake Howell's Osvaldo Barreras was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

After defeating Evans 15-13, 17-15 in the first round, the Silver Hawks (25-2) had to outlast Bishop Moore 15-9, 12-15, 15-11 in their second-round match. Lake Howell then defeated University 15-9, 15-11 in the winners' bracket final.

University, which won the Metro Conference championship, rebounded to beat Bishop Moore 15-13, 15-8 in the losers' bracket final for the right to face Lake Howell again in the finals.

The University Cougars (22-6) would have had to defeat Lake Howell twice in order to claim the Volleyfest crown.

In other first round contests, host Lake Mary (which shared the Seminole Athletic Conference crown with Lake Howell) outlasted Kissimmee-Osceola 15-12, 14-16, 15-12; University swept Lake Brantley 15-8, 15-8; and Bishop Moore got past Dr. Phillips 15-12, 14-16, 15-12.

University then sent the Lake Mary Rams into the losers' bracket with a 15-9, 15-5 decision while Lake Howell was handing Bishop

Moore its first loss.

The Lake Brantley Patriots made things interesting in the losers' bracket, eliminating Osceola (16-14, 17-15) and Lake Mary (17-15, 15-12) before losing to Bishop Moore (7-15, 15-10, 15-13). After eliminating Evans, Dr. Phillips also was eliminated by Bishop Moore (17-15, 15-11).

Lake Howell's victory keeps the membership in the exclusive club of Volleyfest champions at three: Lake Mary won the first two Volleyfest crowns, Osceola captured the third, and Lake Howell has claimed the last two.

SANFORD — Home was not sweet Saturday at Chuse Park.

Of the five games that were scheduled to be played in the fall season of the Sanford Church Softball League, one was a forfeit while the home team was the loser in the other four.

Fun Division-leading Sanford All Souls Catholic, which was listed as the home team on the schedule, was the beneficiary of the forfeit as Antioch Missionary Baptist of Oviedo could not field a team.

The other Fun Division game saw the Disciples from Lake Mary Nativity Catholic staying alive in their chase for the title with a 19-3 facing of Sanford Christian No. 2.

The leaders of the Fellowship Division, Sanford First United Methodist, came up with an eight-run second inning to break a 3-3 tie and went on to top Sanford Christian No. 1, 18-3.

The other two Fellowship contests featured good matchups as far as the standings go, and both games went down to the final out.

The Crusaders from Lake Mary Nativity Catholic took over sole possession of second place by scoring five runs in the seventh inning and two in the eighth to edge Sanford-First Nazarene, 13-11, while Sanford-Central Baptist scored six runs in the seventh inning to erase a 13-12 deficit and won its third straight game, 18-14, over Deltona-Trinity Assembly of God.

All Souls is now 6-0 on the season and holds a two-game lead over the Disciples (4-2) in the Fun Division. Trailing the leaders are Antioch (1-4) and Sanford Christian No. 2 (0-5).

Just like All Souls, First United Methodist is also 6-0 and holds a two-game lead in the Fellowship Division. Completing the standings are the Crusaders (4-2), Central

Predators, 49ers get defensive

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Predators knocked off the previously unbeaten Eagles to grab a piece of the Minor Division top spot, while the undefeated 49ers continue to flex a tough defense in the Major Division to highlight Saturday's play in the Sanford Recreation Department Youth Flag Football League at McKibbin Park.

The Predators were able to convert their extra point try, while the Eagles' point after touchdown attempt came up empty as the Predators held on to win 7-6 and even both teams' record at 3-1.

The Seminoles (0-4) held the Bulldogs (2-2) to one touchdown, but still fell 6-0.

Next week, the Eagles battle the Bulldogs at 9 a.m. and the Predators play the Seminoles at 10 a.m.

In the Major Division, the 49ers (4-0) were only able to score one touchdown, but it was enough as they blanked Cowboys (0-4), 6-0. The 49ers have limited their opponents to 24 points.

In the late game, the offensive-minded Dolphins (3-1) put 25 points on the scoreboard for the second time this season in topping the Steelers (1-3), 25-14.

Next week in the Major Division, the Cowboys challenge the Dolphins at 11 a.m. and the 49ers take on the Steelers at noon.

Playing the fool shouldn't be part of playing ball

You didn't hear it here first, but things are getting out of hand.

What is supposed to be a recreational activity is becoming a point of major contention. Something we're supposed to look forward to doing has degenerated into a source of anxiety. There's more jeers than cheers, more anger than fun.

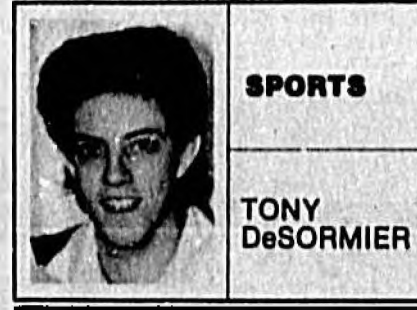

I'm talking about the Sanford Recreation Department's men's softball leagues.

You can't go to Chuse Park (and I assume the situation isn't much better at Pinchurst) without hearing someone — players, coaches, umpires, and administrators — complain about something.

It's gotten out of hand. And before you get carried away with nodding your head with self-righteousness, you've all played a part in creating this mess.

Let's start with the players, who have been the most vocal violators of the necessary alliance between umpires and league administrators.

The onfield antics — complete with profane vocabulary — have reached levels of embarrassing proportions. What should be a "Q"

SPORTS

rated night at the ballpark has become, at the very least, PG-13 and, on occasion, reaches NC-17.

What goes through your mind when you carry on that way? Do you enjoy having your children or your teammates' children see you act the fool?

Trust me, I'm no prude when it comes to the use of off-color remarks. Given the appropriate audience and circumstances, I'm as fluent in the vernacular as anyone. But children are not the appropriate audience and in a public setting isn't the right circumstance.

I appreciate the personal drive to win, the intensity of competition. That's why I play on Thursday night and in the church league on Saturday. I've killed my share of rallies and botched my share of plays in the field to understand intimately the embarrassment and frustration that goes with it.

Also, it's understood that playing softball is a welcome and necessary release of the tension accumulated during the work day. You're either just put in a hard day's work or, like those of us on the graveyard shift, you're about to put in a hard night's work.

None of that matters; hold your tongue.

Complaining about umpires is no excuse, either. I don't care how justified your gripe with an umpire may be, throwing tantrums or using profanity is not the answer. Bad calls are like bad hops; they're part of the game. If you can't handle it, don't play.

I will not criticize the work of the umpires or administrators. Their jobs are difficult enough without second-guessing from here. If anything, they may be too lenient with their execution of reasonable rules and guidelines, especially in the area of field decorum.

Leniency creates its own problems, which both players and umpires are both discovering with the "zero tolerance" guidelines governing the use of profanity.

In attempt to be understanding that sometimes some things will be said in the heat of the moment, umpires have let minor cursing and occasional mutterings about calls go unheeded. But that cursing and mutterings have escalated into open profanity and confrontations.

And players wonder why they're getting ejected.

Since there's no way for an umpire to determine accurately between what was said in a momentary lapse and what was meant as a personal attack, they now have a "zero tolerance" guideline, where even the unconscious slip of the tongue will result in an immediate ejection.

While there's a definite psychic whiplash from being ejected this week for something that didn't even warrant a warning last week, players have no-one to blame but themselves for forcing the guideline to be implemented. In this case, the punishment fits the crime.

It's time to plant amaryllis

Trumpet-shaped flowers star as holiday gifts

Amaryllis are grown from bulbs and produce three to many trumpet-shaped flowers ranging from deep red to pink stripes, depending on variety. Amaryllis are normally planted in November through February and bloom in the spring during March to May in the landscape.

Those received as gifts have been forced to bloom. Amaryllis can easily be forced to bloom in about six to eight weeks. And if timed right can make the perfect holiday gift for that special friend or family member. The added bonus of receiving an amaryllis as a gift is that it can continue to grow in your garden after it blooms for the holidays.

To induce early flowering, plant the bulb with at least 1/4 of the bulb above the soil. Water thoroughly and place the pot in a bright area that receives indirect light. In a few weeks a bud will develop in the center of the leaves. Keep the soil moist but not wet. In about six weeks, a pair of flowers will open first, and a remaining pair will open in a few days. The total blooming period can last about two weeks. Remember, as gifts, timing is important. Bulbs can be purchased at most stores with gardening sections. For the unusual, order bulbs through catalogs.

Plant the bulbs in the garden after you have enjoyed the flowers indoors as they begin to wither and die back. Amaryllis prefer partial shade and well drained soil.

GARDENING

TRICIA THOMAS

Amend the planting site with 2-3 inches of organic matter and 1 or 2 pounds of 5-10-10 or similar bulb fertilizer per 100 square feet and incorporate before planting.

Be sure to plant the amaryllis bulb high in the soil. At least 1/4 to 1/2 of the bulb should be above the ground. This is one of the major reasons that amaryllis fail to bloom, so it is very important to plant at the correct depth. Another way to look at it is that the amaryllis bulb has a "shoulder" and a "neck." Always plant the bulb at the "shoulder" depth and never cover the "neck."

Amaryllis do not need to be dug up each year and started as some other bulbs do. Digging can be helpful though if you want to propagate the bulbs or replant elsewhere. It is also a good time to remove and destroy diseased or unhealthy bulbs.

Fall is the best time to dig and propagate the bulbs. This is done after the leaves stop growing and start to turn yellow. At this time, the offsets or bulbets have formed. They can be removed and planted in beds or in flats with potting soil. These young offset will produce flowers in two or three years.

Failure to flower is a big problem with amaryllis culture and there are many factors that can cause this. Although it is done commercially, the bulbs do not need to be dried and stored. Amaryllis bulbs really should not go through prolonged periods of dryness. Bulbs can be replanted immediately after digging. Or if you must store them, do it in dry sand or sawdust to prevent excessive drying out.

Another factor that negatively affects flowering is digging the bulbs before they are mature in the fall (before the leaves turn yellow). The flowers need time and food to develop the flower. Too much shade can also reduce flowering by decreasing plant vigor and flower size.

Last, planting in a too rich soil with lots of nitrogen or over fertilizing with high nitrogen fertilizers will produce a beautiful green plant but no flowers. The amaryllis will use the food produced to manufacture new leaves instead of accumulating food for the developing flower. Use fertilizers low in nitrogen, plant in less fertile soils, and avoid overwatering especially late in the season when the flowers are developing.

Gardeners learn about xeriscaping

Urban Forester Mike Martin spoke on xeriscaping at the Oct. 21 meeting of the Garden Club of Sanford. He explained the process from the planting of the landscape to proper plant selection of flowers and shrubs and passed out colorful and informative brochures. President Mary MacTavish conducted the business meeting in a setting of autumn decorations.

Holiday cheer from Operation Abby

DEAR ABBY: In the past you have been so successful in getting your readers to respond to good causes, I hope you will consider doing another Operation Dear Abby this year. We have troops stationed in strategic places all over the world who would early love to receive some mail — and perhaps some homemade cookies.

I participated in Operation Dear Abby in 1992 and received heartwarming letters of gratitude from men (and women, too) in the armed services. And a number of schoolteachers made it a class project, which resulted in correspondence between enthusiastic young people and men and women in all branches of the service.

One word from you and it could lift the spirits of countless thousands of men and women who will be spending Thanksgiving, Christmas and Hanukkah far from home and loved ones. Thanking you in advance...

J.W.G. IN BALTIMORE

DEAR J.W.G.: Hallelujah! The addresses have arrived. Unlike previous years, specific military units are not being targeted. Rather, we are targeting the major U.S. mail centers of the world. The mail centers will receive the mail and distribute it on a fair share basis across the board — which will provide better coverage for our service members without overburdening military transportation, or inundating any base or ship. The Military Postal Service Agency has asked that my readers send only first class or priority mail.

If a reader wants to send mail to a specific area, address it to the closest geographic center, which will distribute the mail to all branches of the service in the area that it supports. These addressees will be open only for the holiday period from Nov. 15, 1993, to Jan. 15, 1994. (After that, the APO/FPO will close.)

1. Operation Dear Abby, APO AE 09135 — serves Europe.
2. Operation Dear Abby, FPO AE 09685 — serves the Mediterranean Basin.
3. Operation Dear Abby, APO AA 34085 — serves South and Central America.
4. Operation Dear Abby, APO AP 96265 — serves Korea.
5. Operation Dear Abby, FPO AP 96385 — serves the Pacific Basin.

Dear Abby readers are the kindest and most warmhearted people in the world. Let's make this holiday season one our troops so far from home will remember!

DEAR ABBY: After 60 years, the poem sent to you by Samuel Thorpe finally caught up with me! I refer to: "Where can a man buy a cap for his knee..." etc.

I grew up in a small Oregon town. When I was a schoolgirl, the whole town turned out to attend the programs put on by the kids.

I was asked to recite the poem you mentioned. I was doing very well until I came to the line, "Can you sit in the shade of the palm of your hand?" Well, I slipped on the "sit" word and nearly brought the roof down! Of course the adults did not laugh out loud, but believe me, it did not go unnoticed. I swore I never wanted to hear that poem again — and then it showed up in your column! Thanks for the memories.

MARJORIE Y. CONVERSE, FAIR OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I dialed my old friend long-distance to wish her a happy birthday. We always call each other on our birthdays. Well, the minute the phone was answered, I knew I had a stranger on the line.

The stranger was absolutely thrilled that someone had remembered her 95th birthday! She told me she lives alone in an apartment, and her only relative was a niece who lived in New York.

I didn't have the heart to tell this elderly "birthday girl" that I had made a mistake. I simply told her that "a little bird" had informed me of her special day. (Actually, I thought I had dialed a friend in Denton, Texas — not a stranger in Austin!)

I wanted to get the lady's name but she was so excited, all she could say was, "Thank you for calling — my phone never rings; I'm all alone, and I will never forget that you remembered my birthday!" Then she hung up.

High altitudes make heart work harder

DEAR DR. GOTT: During shoulder surgery several years ago, I was found to suffer from PVCs. Although I have changed jobs to a virtual stress-free environment, am not overweight and do not smoke, the condition seems to have gotten worse. I've been told this is due to the altitude (I live at 9,600 feet), since the condition didn't exist when I lived at sea level. Could this be true? Short of visiting a cardiologist that won't be covered under my insurance, is there anything I can do to alleviate this?

DEAR READER: I am not aware that premature ventricular contractions (extra heartbeats) are caused by living at a high altitude -- although there is some rationale for this: Low oxygen in the air could cause your heart muscle to work harder and be more sensitive. Seeing a cardiologist would be cheaper than moving. You need to know why you're experiencing PVCs and what can be done about them.

Remember that everyone, at one time or another, has PVCs; in most instances, they're harmless. PVCs can be caused by nicotine, caffeine, alcohol, stress, and emotional upset. Therefore, you might attempt to regulate these factors in your life, where appropriate.

Sometimes PVCs can indicate a heart condition, such as arteriosclerosis of the coronary arteries, or an underlying disorder, such as anemia. The doctor can identify these factors, which can be treated with appropriate medicine.

Although your insurance may not cover a consultation (I don't know why this is the case), a cardiologist would be your best resource -- and the office call shouldn't cost an arm and a leg. Your only other option (if you're not going to move to a sea-level community) is to put up with the PVCs. This is probably a safe choice, but I'd advise the cardiologist consultation -- just to be certain everything's OK.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Heart Disease."

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Four weeks ago I featured Larry Cohen's new rubric, "Eight never, nine ever." This means that, during a part-score battle, if you and your partner have only eight combined trumps, you should compete at the two-level but stop bidding if the opponents go to the three-level. However, if you have nine trumps, compete at the three-level but don't go to the four-level.

North on today's deal probably wishes he had read that article before going to Washington, D.C., for the Summer North American Bridge Championships.

West decided he was too strong for a simple one-spade overall; hence his first-round double. North now made an ill-advised bid. With such sterile distribution and a zillion losers, the distribution and a zillion losers, the main problem with one no-trump came on the second round. North just couldn't resist showing his diamond support. West, facing partner's bid and looking at four tricks, went for the maximum -- but the result exceeded his wildest expectations.

West led off with his two top clubs, showing a doubleton in the process. He cashed the heart ace and spade ace before giving partner a spade ruff. East cashed the club queen, on which West discarded his heart four. Now the defenders had a mini-crossruff: heart ruff, spade ruff, heart ruff.

Are you keeping count? That's the first nine tricks to East-West. Declarer showed his trump suit and suggested he could manage the rest. But five down was a cool 1100 to East-West.

Isn't it amazing how often it works well to support partner at the first possible opportunity.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 2, 1993

SITUATIONS important to you personally, as well as to someone for whom you feel responsible, could take a substantial turn for the better in the year ahead. Old obstacles will be removed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An enormously effective ally who knows how to do things without calling attention to him/herself has your best interests at heart today and will encourage others to think similarly. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you could be quite lucky, but not necessarily in material ways as the world deems good fortune. It will be regarding something that won't rust or can't be stolen.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're in a good achievement cycle, provided you don't establish too many objectives for yourself today. Restrict your focus to the most meaningful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you could do better than usual in competitive involvements, provided you don't underrate your competition and you have the will to win.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Some unanticipated changes might occur today in an area of importance to you. If you're flexible and roll with events, it could prove to be to your ultimate advantage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your quick wit and delightful charm are two of your best assets today. Mutual benefits are likely from situations where you deal with others on a one-to-one basis.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The extra funds you'll soon be needing to do or have something special you've been wanting looks like they'll be there when required. Assets may start to grow as of today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

The secret to your success today is to treat life like a game, even aspects of it that are serious or boring. Have fun, but also play to win.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're looking for the bluebird of happiness today, don't go searching for it outside of your own environs. It's very near to you and to persons with whom you want to share things.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you know the right things to say to people and today isn't apt to be an exception. The only difference, however, is you may have a larger crowd to charm than usual.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions in general are rather favorable for you today, especially situations pertaining to your material affairs or finances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your ability to spread sunshine and uplifting thoughts to others contributes mightily to your popularity today. Some people need a smile more than they need food. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
