Elks dare others

SANFORD - Sanford Elks Lodge 1241 agreed Thursday night to donate $200 to the Sanford Fire Department, in the public fund-raising drive to purchase back an old Sanford fire truck originally obtained in 1921. Marty Dyer, chair-man of the Elks Trustees said, "We are a fraternal organization, and there are many others in the area, so we want to challenge each of the chain to match what we are giving."

He salied, "Getting this old truck will add to the history of our city, and I believe everyone should get involved."

An update on the funds raised to date will be published in Tuesday's Sanford Heraid. A total of $5,500 is needed, and must be obtained by no later than the end of this month.

SANFORD - The Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee is ready to recommend the establishment of a Community Redevelopment Agency (CRA) to handle the redevelopment of the lakefront area. The matter will be presented to the Sanford City Commission today, beginning at 5 p.m., during the commissin work session meeting.

Committee chairman Larry Strickler says the Master Plan Steering Committee has voted unanimously to recommend establishment of the CRA, generally covering the Lake Monroe waterfront from Interstate-4 through downtown Sanford.

Strickler says the committee views the establishment of the CRA as a critical step for the effective and timely development of the waterfront.

The purpose of a CRA would be to establish capital funds with which to revitalize and improve the waterfront and downtown area.

INVERNESS — A hospital already shaken by allegations that a male nurse raped four sedated female patients has been sued by one of the women for $1 million.

The negligence lawsuit filed Friday was the first legal complaint against Citrus Memorial Hospital in the case of registered nurse Bruce Alan Young, charged with four counts of rape. Police are interviewing more than 20 other women who fear they were victimized while in the hospital's care.

In each of the four criminal cases, police charge Young, 45, administered drugs to prolong sedation, then raped the women in the recovery room.

The 24-year-old who filed the lawsuit did not consciously remember that Young had raped her until she read articles about his arrest this week, her lawyer said. She has had recurring nightmares since coming home from the hospital after abdominal surgery in December.

MIRAMAR - U.S. Rep. Alcee Hastings is vying to become the chairman of the influential Congressional Black Caucus by seeking the support of many of the people who decided to impeach him.

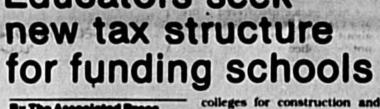

The first black federal judge in Florida, Hastings was impeached by Congress in 1989 after being acquitted of bribery charges at a trial. Rep. John Conyers, D-Michigan, the caucus' senior member, chaired the impeachment proceedings. Hastings was elected to Congress two years ago in the 23rd District, which links the predominantly black areas of seven counties from Miami to Fort Pierce. He currently serves as one of two vice chairmen of the 40-member caucus. 'He's running." said Hastings' spokesman Robert Drummer. "but that's all I can tell you. There's no comment coming out of this office on that." Hastings' strongest rival to succeed current chairman Kweisi

The caucus will vote to elect a new chairman after the Nov. 8 general elections.

Penmanship: not just for school

Last Wednesday, the Sanford Herald presented the IRS list of people in Seminole County who have not been located to receive refunds from 1993 income tax. No doubt the list was well-read.

People have commented that they wanted to see if their names were included, whether friends or relatives may be on the list, or if they knew anyone at all.

Refunds to people in Seminole County ranged from just a few dollars to a few thousand dollars, with an average of $678.

This is the third consecutive year that the Herald has published this list. Several people have been located through this information in the past, and we hope the same will occur this year.

In a few cases, the people due refunds have moved since they filed their returns. A few others have died. Most of the reasons for the refund checks being returned however, were because of improper information, or illegible handwriting.

As brought out in the article, people spelled Altamonte Springs in at least four incorrect ways. Even the City of Sanford was spelled Sandord.

Errors in zip codes were also apparent. A person living in Oakland, between Orlando and Clermont, listed Sanford's zip code. Another in Mt. Vernon, (no state listed) gave the zip code of Altamonte Springs.

Not everyone writes with sufficient clarity to fully identify names, cities and states. Some people also forget numbers and are prone to err.

Making AIDS a public health matter

furious at having been kept so vulnerably

The bravest public official I have ever known was Dr. Stephen Joseph. New York City's commissioner of health during the 1980s. He had the admirable stubbornness of Dr. Stockman in Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People" - the public health physician who infuriated the citizenry because he exposed the fact that the town's instructure that were polluted and had to be shut down. be shut down.

In New York, Dr. Joseph was attacked relentlessly as an enemy of the AIDS establishment. It consisted, as now, of leading public health officials, gay groups and the American Civil Liberties Union -- all of whom, from the beginning of the AIDS epidemic, have given privacy an overwhelming priority over saving lives.

Steve Joseph insisted that AIDS is a public health - not a political - problem. Accordingly, he strongly advocated contact tracing so that those inflicted would reveal whom they had slept with since many of the latter were uneware that they were now at risk of themselves being infected.

Around that time, the New York City Health Department surveyed a sizable number of infected women in East Harlem. Hardly any had known, during sex, that their husbands or companions had been infected. The women were

As a result, there were a result, there were posters around New York vilifying him as an enemy of privacy; he was spat upon and otherwise harassed; and both became fortresses. Eventually. they too were accomplices of fatal silence. The power of the AIDS establishment to enforce silence was recently noted by Helen Mathews Smith, former editor of MD megazine.

Mathews Smith, former editor of MD magazine, in The Wall Street Journal: "With the backing of Gov. Mario Cuomo, (the late) State Health Commissioner David Amelrod refused to classify AIDS as a sexually trans-mitted disease. As a result, the testing and partner-notification that applied to syphilis and genorrhes do not apply to HIV" in New York. Smith also quotes Aditys Kaul, director of the Pediatric Infectious Disease Clinic at Bellevue Hospital: "If we know (by testing) that the mother is HIV-positive and the infant is too, we will not lose the child in the first month. If we don't know, the baby dies." don't know, the baby dies."

And Tom Stoddard, a prominent AIDS activist who believes in the primacy of privacy, noted in a New York Times op-ed piece last summer:

"A 1992 study at Howard University Hospital in Washington... disclosed that 41 percent of the people who died of AIDS in the hospital had never been diagnosed with it." Stoddard believes that they never came in for treatment because they didn't know "there is been "Much more likely addn't know "there is hope." Much more likely, silence -- lack of testing and contact tracing -- equaled death.

It's still 'Eleanor Roosevelt time'

BOSTON — What a heady time that was. Exactly a year ago, the headlines declared that Hillary had taken the Hill as if Congress were San Juan or Iwo Jima.

She came, saw and wowed the place, answering every question about the health care plan she had shepherded to the Capitol door. The members were in various stages of awe. The media was in full gush. Under the spotlight, under pressure she was a pro.

But lately Hillary Clinton's schedule is a list of First Lady Photo Ops. There was the day care center in Conshohocken, Pa., the christening of In Groton On Monday when health care reform was officially declared dead. she wasn't even asked for a culogy. On Tuesday, she was busy escorting Mrs. Yeltsin.

In such cases, outside assistance is needed. and people should not be too ashamed to ask for help, either in writing leverything but the signature) or double-checking to insure all figures and numbers have been accurately presented.

The lack of doing this, as can easily be seen in the IRS search list, can cost people tens, hundreds, thousands of dollars.

IRS forms are not alone in this need for better clarity. Banking papers, legal documents, various types of forms, even proper addresses on an envelope are also necessary.

We have computers and typewriters these days. We believe there is still a need to improve penmanship, not only in our schools at every grade level, but in our own homes at every age level.

If someone refuses to double-check for accuracy or legibility on forms as important as IRS tax reports, some may believe they deserve to lose refund checks.

Think about it. Test your handwriting ability. If others have questions about what you have written, do something to improve it. It will help others, but of more importance, it will certianly help you.

LETTER Chiles robs you

When trying to decide which of the two candidates for governor to cast your vote for, perhaps you may consider this little tidbit: Do you want a governor who works for the people or one who thinks that you, the average hardworking taxpayer are too stupid to decide what's good for you?

After considerable effort, the "Limited Casino" issue had the signatures needed and certified to be placed on the November ballot. The governor and his administration, according to news reports, then challenged this proposed amendment in the Florida Supreme Court in an attempt to keep you. the stupid voter, from having a voice in this matter. The Supreme Court decided that everything was proper and it would stay on the ballot.

This is a clear attempt to circumvent the will of the people. This is an attempt to keep the voters of Florida from deciding for themsleves a course of action that will affect their personal lives. Put another way, this was another attempt by the Chiles administration to take away your choice. your vote.

Not long ago this tactic by Lawton Chiles robbed you of your right to vote on another legalized gambling issue.

It doesn't matter whether you are for gambling or against it in this case. What matters above all else is that Gov. Chiles tried again to deny you your freedom of choice and I for one am capable of choosing for myself.

It's ironic that the Democratic Party ad presently running on TV attempts to paint the Republicans as trying to deny you your freedom of choice after the antics of the present administration over the last three years.

People deserve more than this

Mankind came out of the forest and fields and into community for safety and civilization. Neither world leaps to mind when we think of today's cities. In ways large and small, our increasingly urbanized world more closely resembles an anarchic wilderness than a collective bulwark against a common threat. Things won't get better until more of us not only decide that our cities must improve, but also demonstrate that we are willing to take personal responsibility to implement the necessary changes.

Much of the political response has focused on quick-fix national remedies such as the omnibus crime bill of 1994. The administration professes to believe it will make a noteworthy difference for the better, and some of the measure's $30 billion may actually affect the problem, if only marginally. For instance, putting more police on the streets should have a positive impact.

But much of the crime bill is either voodoo criminology or social welfare legislation wrapped up in law-and-order bunting. To note only one of its familiar defects, few members of Congress really believe that the scores of new death-penalty crimes added to the federal code will have a measurable impact on public safety. They piled them on, nonetheless, hoping that their constituents would equate tough talk with tangible results.

And that, unfortunately, is the open secret. Congress and the president -- Republicans and Democrats - have given us what we seem to want, a slogan-strewn substitute for the hard business of reclaiming our streets and communities. Feel-good rhetoric and hollow laws are meant to paper over our unwillingness to act on our own behalf or to pay the cost of a meaningful attack on crime. We want "somebody" to do the job for us, preferably with the stroke of a wand, which usually guarantees that when "something" is done, like the crime bill, it is a fraud.

A recent story in the Philadelphia Inquirer provided a different kind of example. It was about a small convenience store manager's endless battle against graffiti in a neighborhood pockmarked by such vandalism. For the manager, 32-year-old Jeff Pritchett, "it wouldn't be right to stop caring.'

So Pritchett goes out with paint and roller each time the side wall of Won's Food Market is covered with graffiti, four times over a three-week period, eight or more times over the preceding two months. His is not the only place in the neighborhood which has been targeted, but it is the only one where the decision was not taken to roll over and play dead. He thinks his working-class neighbors deserve something more for their rent money than a street marred by visual pollution.

A few more Jeff Pritchetts and West Oak Lane, the street that holds Won's Food Market, would take a long step back toward being a fully functioning community. Further down the Eastern seaboard, a few more people willing to take personal responsibility could quickly end what has become a small but significant citywide problem in Washington, where thieves rob street planters almost as quickly as they are filled with plants and greenery. The police say they have more important things to do than try to preserve these tiny urban oases of beauty, and with almost 300 murder cases so far this year. they are probably right. But the thieves swim in a sea of public acquiescence. There are almost always witnesses to their snatch-and-run activities. If the onlookers would take the time and trouble to note license numbers and offer to testify in court, the game could be brought under control.

That is the sad part about the deterioration of our urban environment, however. The Jeff Pritchetts are few and far between. Most of us don't want to be bothered by acting individually on behalf of the common good. Even fewer are willing to take the risk of combating crime head-on.

But it takes countless individual decisions to restore civilization's fabric. They need not be grandiose. Indeed, what the larger society judges to be most pressing is often less valuable than the small steps available to each citizen.

Few of us can or should try to substitute for the police when it comes to violent crime, but all of us can add something to our communi-ty's net worth. A number of social commentators, most notably Charles Murray, have made the invaluable point that when people lose control of their streets, they lose control of their civilization. It is not a small thing to be routinely assaulted by foul language, to be rudely accosted by aggressive panhandlers, to be denied clean streets and walls, to be deprived of the restorative amenities of flower, shrub and tree. It is not a small thing to preserve a neighborhood's sense of its own worth. It is important that urban space be something more than the setting for the cold business of making and spending.

These have to be hard times for the president's wife, the woman-in-her-own-right, the confident lawyer. Through the campaign and the early days of the administration when Hillary Rodham Clinton was the target of as much vitriol as I have ever seen. she took comfort in thinking about Eleanor Roosevelt's strength under fire. Indeed moments before she went into the congressional hearing room last year, an aide whispered to Hillary, "This is Eleanor Roosevelt time."

Hillary chose Eleanor as her role model, a foremother or forefirstlady, while she was clearing a new path for women in the White House. But who will she look to now, at a moment of defeat, a time when the most secure of us would feel shaken and unsure about where to go next?

How about Eleanor Roosevelt? I am told that the Clintons have a copy of Doris Kearns Goodwin's new book on their night table. I hope so. "No Ordinary Time" weaves together biography and policy, the private and the public, the Roosevelts' relationships and the course of World War II in a way as complex and layered as life itself.

But it challenges the view that most of us have of Eleanor the Icon who moved from the ugly duckling of her childhood to the strong woman in the White House. In real life, Eleanor Roosevelt faced continual crises and had to reinvent her role no less than three times while she was first lady.

When Franklin Roosevelt was elected in 1932, his wife was terrified that she could be locked into a ceremonial role, condemned to the one thing she couldn't bear: feeling useless. Again in 1940, when the prospects of war drew Franklin to foreign policy. Eleanor's working partnership in the New Deal was threatened, and she faced the same sense of Finally, when the war broke out, Eleanor not Hillary, but Eleanor - tookthe first government job ever held by a first lady, at the Office of Civil Defense. When it blew up in her face, she had to reinvent her own role again.

Eleanor and Hillary are not joined at the head. The times are different, so are their psyches and their marriages. But Hillary shares with her predecessor the need for a sense of purpose in life.

The Clintons came into office with experience as working partners. They believed that they had the people behind health care reform and all they needed was the policy. In the too-secret, too-expert, too-Beltway process of creating the policy, they lost the people.

They can blame it on gridlock, on Repbulicans, on the media. Fair enough. But it was also bungled. I would be surprised if Hillary didn't share a sense of failure. It's still Eleanor Roesevelt time.

Other problems however, caused delays and difficulties in the races.

From the first qualifier of the day through the final race, drivers could not help but hit the course markers.

The Seminole Power Squadron, a local organization which promotes boating safety, spent much of the day setting up and resetting up bouys on the course.

The first qualifying heat for SST-60 boats ended up with only five laps complete because drivers had "sunk" two markers, effectively eliminating two turns from the course.

Urban gorilla to meet first wild cousins

By The Associated Press

TACOMA, Wash. - After almost 30 years in an urban jungle, the gorilla who had animal activists going ape is heading for green grass - and a simian social life - at the Atlanta 200.

Ivan, a 450-pound western lowland ape, is leaving by plane Tuesday for Zoo Atlanta, where 20 other gorillas live, alter spending 27 years alone at a circus themed shopping mall.

The 30-year-old aliverback gorilla was captured in the Congo when he was a baby and sold to the founder of the mall, Earl Irwin. The gorilla was housed in a 40-by-40-foot concrete compound next to a T-shirt shop.

"I'm glad it's happening now, and that it's not too late for Ivan," said Terry Maple, director of Zoo Atlanta.

Ivan's isolation angered animal rights activists, including singer Michael Jackson, who once proposed adding the ape to his menagerie.

Irwin resisted any move, saying the gorilla would suffer more in a new, unfamiliar environment. But the mail filed for bankruptcy reorganization in 1992, and a new home had to be found for Ivan.

Zoo Atlanta's gorilla habitat is home to Willie B., a gorilla who, like Ivan, spent most of his life in isolation. The $4.5 million exhibit mimics a rain forest setting in 116 acres.

Ivan won't just be tossed in with the gorilla community there. He'll spend the first three months in his own isolated suite. A shuttered window separating him from the others will gradually be opened, and gorilla experts will monitor his reactions.

Americans on alert in Leyte

MANILA, Philippines - The U.S. Embassy is advising Americans to be on alert for incidents in advance of next week's ceremonies marking the 50th anniversary of the U.S. attack against the Japanese on Leyle Island.

About 4,000 U.S. Marines will re-enact the Oct. 20, 1944. landing, and U.S. Defense Secretary William Perry is expected to head the U.S. delegation at the ceremonies. Delegations from Australia, India, France and other countries also plan to attend.

At least seven Americans were slatn by Communist rebels between 1987 and 1991. But protests and other incidents waned after the decline of the rebel movement and the 1992 withdrawal of U.S. forces from the Philippines.

The government hopes the Leyte ceremonies will improve the image of the country and encourage tourism and investment.

A half century ago, the U.S. invasion of Leyte paved the way for the liberation of the Philippines, which was overrun by Japanese forces in 1942. U.S. troops led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur recaptured the capital of Manila four months later.

LOS ANGELES - Trick or treat?

A blood-spattered football jersey, a plastic toy knife and a rubbery O.J. Simpson mask are scaring up business for Halloween retailers.

'We're almost sold out of the original shipment." said Victor Pahl at the Ragstop-Vintage store in Fullerton, where the whole ensemble costs $50.

The store has already sold about 20 masks and has received as many as a dozen calls a day from people wanting to dress up as Simpson or his ex-wife. Nicole Brown Simpson.

A blonde wig and some imagination made up a Nicole costume, at least for one customer, Pahl said.

The woman put a wig together with a dress from the store's vintage clothing collection.

"There is a tragedy to this," Pahl conceded, adding that the costumes were longue-incheck. "Maybe you've got to laugh at tragedy."

MONTEREY. Calif. - After all the lush tributes from his fellow drivers, the essence of Mario Andretti's final race was perhaps best captured with the words on a young woman's T-shirt: "We'll Mas You, Mario."

Mario Gabriel Andretti, an Italian immigrant who for decades has been the world's mo beloved driver, sped around an Indy-car track for the last time Sunday. It was his 407th Indy-car race — another of his many records.

"I'm just going to have to find out if there's life after driving after all," he said after a 31-year career ended at Laguna Seca Raceway. "You notice I'm keeping my (racing) suit on. I may sleep in it ionight."

Tracy tops Bank of America

MONTEREY, Calif. - On a day when Mario Andretti and Nigel Mansell bid farewell to Indy-car racing. Paul Tracy scored a convincing victory Sunday in the season-ending Bank of America 300.

Tracy was unbeatable in earning his second straight victory at Laguna, third of the season and the eighth of his budding indy-car career.

Only Penske teammate Al Unser Jr., who clinched the series title with two races remaining in the season, appeared to have even a remote chance of catching Tracy, but Unser's transmission broke on the 75th lap.

Tracy, the record-setting pole-winner, cruised in a 21.33 second victory over runner up Rout Boesel. Jacques Villeneuve, the rookie who started Beside Traty on the front row, was third.

Undefeated 49ers, Bears unscored upon

From Stall Reports

SANFORD - Five teams remain undefeated after two weeks of play in the Sanford Recreation Department Youth Fiag Football League, but two teams in particular have stood out.

The Seminoles in the Minor League (7-9 year olds), the Dolphins and 49ers in the Major League (10-12 year olds) and the Bears and Hurricanes in the Senior League (13-15 year olds) all improved to 2-0 Saturday at the field across from Sanford Middle School.

Of those five, the 49ers and Bears have been particularly dominating as neither team has yet to give up a point.

And it hasn't been only the defense that has been impressive for those two squads. The offense has also been very productive, the Bears scoring 63 points and the 49ers totalling 58 points.

The Minor League games produced a pair of defensive struggles with the Seminoles (2-0) edging the Predators (0-2), 7-0, and the Eagles (1-1) nipping the Bulldogs (1-1). 14-7.

The Major League games saw the Dolphins (2-0) dump the Steelers (0-2), 19-6, and the 49ers (2-0) whitewash the Cowboys (0-2), 38-0.

There were a pair of blowouts in the Senior League games, as the Bears (2-0) blanked the Dolphins (0-2), 39-0, and the Hurricanes (2-0) dumped the Cowboys (0-2), 28-6.

Next Saturday, in the Minor games, the Bulldogs challenge the Seminoles at 9 a.m. and the Eagles play the Predators at 10 a.m.; in the Major games, the Dolphins battle the 49ers at 11 a.m. and the Cowboys Glee Feetball, Page 2B

Teamwork a concert of individual abilities

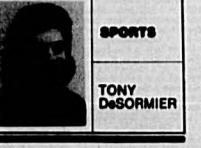

Teamwork knows no race, no color. Either you're a teammate or you're deadwood.

It's not often that I feel compelled to comment here on something that appeared elsewhere in the Sanford Herald, but Sunday's Page 1 story concerning a rally of the Klu Klux Klan warrants a few words if for no other reason than to offer a contrasting opinion.

The story stated that Klan regional coordinator John Pipe is of the opinion that every person should be proud of his or her heritage and do what they can to protect it. He was quoted as saying "We are here to bring the message of love, love for your race and love for your country."

Whatever. Since my neighbrhood and my church consisted largely of families similar to my own, caucasian Catholics, my first experiences with individuals from other ethnic backgrounds came when I started going to school. I'd guess that's true for most of us, whatever your personal background.

Similarly, it wasn't until we became involved in extra-curricular activities that we started interacting on something more than a social level with others from different ethnic backgrounds. Clubs, committees, teams ... you weren't an individual student, but a member of a group, working for a common cause.

In athletics, the roles individuals play are very clearly defined. usually along the lines of the particular skill each player brings to the team.

On football teams, for example, fast guys are running backs and big guys are lineman. But it doesn't matter how good one group is without the other. Without a running back to block for, an offensive line is a gang. Without an offensive line to block for him, a running back is roadkill.

and all all an adventised and a second s

When an individual shines in an athletic contest, it's often the result of a group effort. If a running back gains a bunch of yards, someone's blocking for him. If someone scores a bunch of points in a basketball game, someone's getting him or her the ball.

There's a well-worn cliche' that there's no "I" in T-E-A-M. That's true in that a team's success depends on mutual cooperation, on a group of individuals working together. But that cooperation isn't meant to sublimate individual talents, but to employ each individual's talents to augment each other's.

It may be simplistic to view a sports team as a microcosm of society at large, but it's a metaphor that works. It's not uncommon and not inaccurate to describe businesses, schools, communities, even marriages as teams, entities that depend upon contributions from everyone involved for mutual suc-CCSS.

Teamwork isn't the sacrifice of individuality, but the sum of it.

And just as one individual is not more important than the team.

neither is any one individual less important than the team. A successful team needs everybody and all the varied talents they provide.

Ethnic background doesn't change that. A good coach doesn't care what color you are, what religion you practice, or how you pronounce your last name, but only if you're willing to do what you do best to help the team.

It's one thing to talk about "love for your race and love for your country." but just as the two are not mutually exclusive, neither are they synonymous (see "There's no I in T.E.A.M").

Pride in your heritage is a wonderful thing up to the point where it becomes exclusionist. Those who practice ethnocentrism are like ball hogs ... OK. you're wonderful, but what does that do for the rest of us? And whether you like it or not. eventually you're going to need the rest of us.

Ultimately, our success as a team is dependent on our willingness to help each other and rely on each other. We need everybody. We need what each person can bring to the party.

Bills rush by Dolphins

AP Sports Writer ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. - The

Buffalo Bills used a new look to get themselves back into famillar territe The Bills abandoned their no-huddle offense after two series Bunday, then buildozed to 214 rushing yards in a 21-11 victory over Miami that moved them into a tie with the Dolphins for first place in the AFC East.

"They can't get rid of us." said wide receiver Andre Reed. who had seven catches for #2 yards and set up a touchdown with a 19-yard run on a double reverse.

We're like a fly. Flying around, keep bugging people. We're never out of it, that's for

With the Bills turning in a mediocre performance in a loss to Chicago last week, the Dolphins came into town hoping to establish themselves as the new power in the AFC East. A loss would have put the fourtime AFC champions down two games - 2% really, counting the tiebreaker.

We felt that this was a very. very important game for us," Dolphins coach Don Shula said. "If somebody is going to beat Buffalo and knock them out of the Super Bowl and AFC Championship, it's got to start up team in the last seven meetings between Miami and Buffalo, who have now met 21 times since 1971 with the division lead on the line. The Bills have won nine of the last 12 of those games. "When our backs are against the wall, we always play well," said Thurman Thomas, who had his fourth consecutive 100-yard rushing game. "We knew we had to win the ball game, and we were going to do whatever we could to win H."

Even if it meant getting away from their trademark no-huddle. The Bills like the no-huddibecause it keeps their opponents off-guard. But it also causes problems for Buffalo's patchwork offensive line, which gets no time to read the defense And, when the Bills' offense isn't clicking, their defense gets no time to rest between series That's what happened against the Bears, who had a 2-1 edge in time of possession. On Sunday, the Bills kept the ball for over 36 minutes - their biggest edge in possession in almost a year. It was also the Bille' first 200-yard rushing performance since 1992.

Thomas said the Bills practiced the no-huddle like they do most weeks. But with a swirling wind that made passing treacherous for both quarterbacks, they opted to go to a conventional offense in order to eat up more of the clock.

ATLANTA - Ironhead Heyward gave the Atlanta Falcons' coaching staff just what they expected when he went into the starting lineup for the first time this season.

"He's a load in there." coach June Jones said after watching Heyward pound out 87 yards and two touchdowns on short runs in a 34-13 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Sunday.

"He gives them something to think about when he breaks into the secondary." Jones said. "I noticed some guys were trying to nail him on the ankles."

The trick to watering Too much or too little can cause problems

Proper watering can be a tricky business especially when Mother Nature adds too much water for us. Most of us either water too much or too little and since the symptoms are the same in both cases, it can erem confusing. But if we understand what is happening to plants that are overwatered or underwatered we can begin to see things more clearly.

more clearly. When we underwater our lawns or other plants it is usually done with the best intentions. Most people think that a daily light sprinkling is the proper way to give our plants the best possible care. When, in fact, it is almost useless to lightly sprinkle plants everyday. These light, frequent, waterings are only able to wet the soil to a depth of approximately one inch and are not able to get water where it is needed — the roots. Plants need water in the root some to be Plants need water in the root some to be absorbed by the plant and most plant roots are much deeper than one inch. Plants will fare much better if given a weekly soaking. When watering allow the soil to become wet to a depth of several inches. A soil that has been wet to a depth of six to eight inches will retain moisture for several days. whereas a soil wet to a depth of only one inch will usually dry out within a day. So, to keep plants at their best give them a thorough watering at least once a week

ny of us do overwater our plants at times and in essence drown them. As mentioned before, the symptoms for overwatering are the same as the symptoms for underwatering. The leaves begin to turn brown at the tips and edges, then turn brown all over and drop from the plant. These symptoms should be the same for both cases, since they result from the same cause - too little water in the plant tissue.

How could constant overwatering of a plant possibly result in too little water in the plant? The answer is that too much water in the soil causes death of the root system as a result of an oxygen deficiency. The plant's root system needs oxygen to live and when the soil stays soggy all the time, very little oxygen is present in the soil. When this condition exists, the roots die. Dead roots do not absorb water, even if there is an abundant supply present in the soil When the roots are no longer able to absorb water the leaves begin to show signs of a lack of water. Often these symptoms are considered a sign of too little water and more is applied, only to compound the problem. And more often than not, the plant dies quickly.

To avoid these problems give your plants a thorough soaking at each watering and allow the soil to become slightly dry between watering. The heavy rains that we have had the past few months do not leave much choice in the matter. Hopefully drier months are ahead and we can again return to sensible irrigation practices mentioned above. "Reminder: If you are having problems in your garden and landscape, be sure to attend "Garden School '94" on Wednesday evenings, Oct. 26, Nov. 2, Nov. 9, from 7-9 p.m. The cost is $15 (per family and is non-refundable). # Home sprinkler best fire insurance

DEAR ABBIT: It is a national diagrace that the United States has the highest fire death rate of any country in the industrialized world. In recent months, we have all heard or read about devastating fire deaths. A number of firefighters have been killed this year, and recenty eight children

Prevention week, we encourage the public to change the batteries in their smoke detectors ("Change your clock, change your battery").

But you can do more' to protect your family and home. 1 urge your readers to consider chance of a sprinkler going off installing residential fire sprinklers. There has never been a multiple loss of life due to fire or smoke in a building equipped with a sprinkler system. For less than what homeowners pay to install carpeting, they caninstall an instant firefighting system that could save children, adults, senior citzens - even the family pet. (Part of the cost can be recouped through reduced homeowner's insurance premiums, but more importantly, sprinklers are the best life insur-

Abby, your readers abould also be encouraged to stay in motels and hotels equipped with sprinkler systems. They should demand that facilities such as nursing and retirement homes have the same fire protection. Every year, senior citizens in these facilities die needlessly because they can't move fast enough to escape.

For readers who may think that sprinkler systems are conspicuous and ugly, or fear they may go off accidentally and ruin their homes, the newer systems are inconspicuous, and the accidentally is only one in 16 million!

Individuals and families must take responsibility for their own lives. Installing a sprinkler system is the best way of fulfilling that responsibility.

Alcohol abuse may lead to impotence

DEAR DR. GOTT: Some time ago you wrote about the effects of alcohol on the human system. One of these, in men, was the loss of an erection - impotence. For many years I drank myself into a state of unconsciousness just about every night. Boy, were you right. I've been sober for over seven months and wonder if the effects of alcohol will abate? Will I ever return to my pre-alcohol days? DEAR READER: Potency de-pends on many factors that include both physical and mental aspecta. For example, as you noted, alcohol adversely affects a man's sexual abilities. Other physical considerations - such as severe illness, diabetes, many medica-tions, and the normal aging process - also may cause erectile dysfunction.

Common mental conditions may also lead to impotence. These include stress, depression, fatigue, and boredom with one's partner.

Therefore, while I can assure you that your sexual interest and ability will improve once you have been sober for several months, you may need to address the other issues I men-tioned if you are to return to your "pre-alcohol days."

See a urologist. Such a specialist will question and examine you to identify any treatable disorders and will work with your family doctor to diagnose unsuspected physical ailments (and detrimental activities) that contribute to your problem.

In addition, the urologist will offer techniques, ranging from injections into the penis to penile implants, which can restore your potency.

To give you more information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Impotence." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long. self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During the course of an examination by my orthopediat for a back problem. he mentioned the term "clonus" as he examined my feet. What is the significance of this term and can it be treated? DEAR READER: Clonus, which is a difficulty controlling.

which is a difficulty controlling rapid tensing and relaxing of muscles, usually reflects an underlying nerve disorder, such as multiple sclerosis. In my opinion, patients with this disorder should be exam-ined by neurologists.

Bridge is a great game because it transcends international bar-riers. A new both containing an interesting collection of deals, "On the Other Hand," has been written by Kathie Wei-Sender. who came to the United States from China, and Martin Hoffman. who was born in zechoslovakia and reached the United States a couple of years ago via England. It is published by C&T (800-525-4718, $12.95). I noticed that a few of the analyses are truncated, leaving the reader to do some thinking. Perhaps you consider this to be a good feature: perhaps you don't.

spade. South from the first trick with the heart ace over East's queen. He cashed the spade ace, ruffed a spade in the dummy, crossed to hand with a club and ruffed another spade, with dummy's heart king. However, now South two tricks, a club and Today's deal from the book is the sort that most players would get wrong. You are shown the North-South hands and asked to plan the play in six hearts. West having led a low trump.

North might have been bid-had to lo a heart.

As the authors point out, the fatal error occurred at trick one. As South was going to have to ruff two spades in the dummy. he should have put up dummy's heart king. A spade to the ace, a spade ruff, a diamond ruff, a spade ruff and a club to the ace are followed by the heart ace. When the queen drops, South draws West's last trump and claims, conceding a club trick.

The heart finesse was a Greek

You may become involved in several exciting new projects in the year ahead. However, be mindful of what you're doing and try not to keep too many irons in the fire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You should be extremely effective today when dealing with those operating on your wavelength. Although, if you run into opposition. your transmission might get garbled. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker. c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When others treat you kindly. you're usually the type who tries to reciprocate. Today, however, you might step out of character and be more of a taker than a giver.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Expenses could get out of hand today if you associate with persons who are able to spend more freely than you. Abide by your budgetary standards, not theirs, to avoid problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is one of those days when you might fail to leave well enough alone. Interfering with something that is presently running smoothly could create unnecessary complications. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Friends will be prepared to accept you despite all of your shortcomings today, as long as you're prepared to accept them as they are. If you begin finding fault with them, expect similar treatment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Once a touchy issue is resolved today, forget it and let it lie. If you start to rehash it, you could quickly defeat all that's been accomplished.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're capable of handling difficulties today, but unless you are thorough, there's a chance that what you tie up might later unravel. Make sure you do a complete job.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you make any changes at work today, be sure the patterns you establish do not create a whole set of new problems. There's a possibility they might.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Important arrangements should not be made hastily today. Take your time. If you jump the gun, you might have to endure an uncomfortable situation for a long time to come.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be sure to be at home today if you're having anyone come to do work around the house. If there is no supervision, the results could be extremely disappointing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not take it upon yourself today to critique your co-workers. What you say might evoke responses you won't enjoy hearing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your luck in financial dealings today could be definitely limited. so don't press it. Be grateful for small gains.
