BRIEFS

Voters must register by Monday

SANFORD — The Seminole County Supervisor of Elections said Monday, June 10, at 5 p.m. is the last day to register to vote in the July 9 county sales tax referendum. There are no voter registrations planned this weekend, so residents have only today and Monday to register. There were 118,659 residents registered to vote by May 28, said elections supervisor Sandra Guard.

Voters will vote on a proposed 10-year, one-cent increase in the sales tax to finance a $300 million road construction program. Many of the roads in the project list are needed to meet state mandated services requirements, but the list also includes county road projects sought by cities and projects to improve safety and traffic flow on less congested roads.

Registration may be made at the Supervisor of Elections Office, on the second floor of the County Services Building, 1101 E. First St.

Free fishing for all

The Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission will allow freshwater fishing this weekend without the normally required $13 license in recognition of National Fishing Week, June 3 through 9.

People may fish in any freshwater river or lake in the state Saturday and Sunday without the license. All other regulations and boating requirements still apply. Licenses will be required again Monday.

Equipment auction this weekend

LONGWOOD — The annual auction of surplus city equipment is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Saturday morning at the Longwood City Hall. Buyers may register and examine the items beginning at 9 a.m.

Items to be offered to the highest bidder range from surplus vehicles to office equipment and unclaimed items from the lost and found.

Big plans for sports

Sanford proposes city, schools build pool, recreation centers

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A city swimming pool, community recreation center and sports complex are needed here, Parks and Recreation Director Jim Jernigan says.

The three proposals are part of a presentation scheduled for Monday's City Commission Meeting.

Jernigan says a great deal of the proposals are still in the planning stages, and the report is intended to inform the city of needs and possible ways in which to provide for the facilities.

"We've been working on plans for three months and want to keep the city informed."

— Jim Jernigan, Park and recreation director

The swimming pool would be a joint effort between the city and the Seminole County School Board. It would provide a pool at Seminole High School.

The cost is estimated at $1 million. Jernigan has suggested it would cost the city a half million in matching funds with the school board and grant funds from the state paying the additional amount.

The City of Sanford has not had a municipal swimming pool available for public use since the late 1960's, when an above ground pool in Fort Mellon Park was closed and torn down.

The proposed sports complex would also be a joint venture, and be located at Seminole High School. It would provide four lighted athletic fields and support facilities at a cost of $400,000.

The Community Center is projected for Pinehurst Park, a 10 acre facility between 22nd and 24th Sts.

Lake Mary says 'No'

Charter change asked by residents killed 4-1

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The battle over whether or not a citizen proposed city charter change should appear on this fall's ballot ended for the time being last night. On a vote of 4 to 1, the City Commission voted to deny acceptance of the citizen request.

The matter was first brought up several months ago when a group headed by Lake Mary Resident Sheila Sawyer, presented a petition to the city requesting that a proposed charter amendment be placed on the ballot this fall. The amendment would prevent the city from entering into contracts for capital improvements and acquisitions of the lease of property that could not be entirely paid for during that particular fiscal year.

The amendment, similar to one already approved by voters in the City of Longwood, was described at that time, as a move to prevent the Lake Mary city government from spending large amounts of taxpayer money without taxpayer approval.

The question of whether or not to place the charter change on the ballot has been brought up a number of times. At the May 16 commission meeting, city attorney Ned Jirlian was requested by the Commission to make a legal determination. While he originally said he did not believe it was a proper request, he withheld final comment until last night.

"I have reviewed an Attorney General's opinion on the matter," he said, "and I did not find anything that changed my mind." The attorney reported that should such a measure be approved, it would preclude the city from financing involved in contracts that require financing beyond the fiscal year. "These would include such things as major sidewalk programs, road paving, relocation of city utilities, and many other things that are basic functions of the city government."

Tax assessment on older homes to rise

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Brace yourself, older home residents: higher property appraisals may be on the way.

Terry Gombel, assistant Seminole County property appraiser, said the 1991 property assessment rolls are being completed, and it appears assessments of many older homes in Sanford and other areas the county will increase in value.

A higher property value will mean property owners will pay higher taxes, whether the city or other taxing authority raises taxes or not.

Gombel would not give details on the assessments until final calculations are completed sometime in July. He said the total property assessment in Seminole County will increase slightly, but not by the same amount as prior years.

"We've noticed a slowdown in the market," Gombel said. "It's taking longer to sell and the prices aren't going up as fast as they had been."

Last year the gross taxable value of the total of all taxable land and construction in the county was valued at $8.8 billion. That amount represented almost an 11 percent increase over 1989's total value of $7.8 billion. About 65 percent of the increase represented apprais-als of existing property and about 4 percent, $434 million, represented new construction.

Gombel said the value of about 40,000 properties, about a third of all properties listed in the county, were re-appraised. He declined to specify whether a majority of the changes were increases, saying they resulted both small and large increases and decreases.

Hospital endows scholarship fund

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County teachers seeking to improve their education and school staff hoping to become teachers now have a boost from Central Florida Regional Hospital.

This morning CERH administrator Roy C. Vinson presented school superintendent Bob Hughes with a $5,000 check for a new program to further the education of teachers and staff. School spokesman Dick Bohmann said the scholarships will be issued by F.A.C.T.S., Foundation for the Advancement of Our Community Through Schools, to 10 teachers and 10 non-instructional staff.

HCA is committed to community service and civic responsibility as part of a continuing effort to improve the quality of life in our area, Vinson said in a statement. "F.A.C.T.S. believes that education is a vital component."

The education grants funded by this fund are designed to not only recognize outstanding teaching professionals, but to encourage excellence by providing support for the development of teaching as a profession. "We've established Bohmann said F.A.C.T.S. was started in 1987 to promote education in Seminole County. See Education, Page 5A

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Gardner nixes Senate presidency

From Staff and Wire Reports

Sen. W.W. "Bud" Gardner said he will not seek the highest position in the Senate next year so he can devote time to constituents, his business and his re-election.

"The time just isn't right," Gardner said. "I'm a freshman senator and there's no need to rush. My priority is taking care of the folks back home."

If Democrats remain in control of the state Legislature, Sen. Pat Thomas said he'll be Senate president in 1992. Rep. Peter Rudy Wallace said he's got the House speakership wrapped up for 1992.

Gardner, the Democrat from Titusville whose Senate district includes Sanford and eastern portions of Seminole County, has been assured by Thomas that he will retain his powerful position as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Gardner also held the position of president pro tempore this year, the highest-ranking senator under the president, but does not automatically assume the leadership position without a vote of fellow senators.

Gardner's aide Mike Horner said Gardner potentially faces a tough re-election campaign in the predominantly Republican Senate District 17. Legislative district reapportionment next year could also change the make-up of the district, Horner said.

Gardner was charged last week for failing to report three free trips provided by lobbyists during the 1990s. Although Gardner has said he did not have to report the trips and has pledged to fight the charges, the publicity could harm his re-election bid.

Even though Wallace's ascension doesn't occur until two years later, it's considered safer than Thomas' claim. Democrats hold a 73-47 advantage in the House but only a 23-17 margin in the Senate.

Thomas said Thursday his primary task would be raising up to $5 million in campaign funds to keep Republicans from gaining an edge in the 1992 elections.

"We've got to keep our majority," said Thomas, D-Quincy.

Thomas, 57, said he had received pledges to become Senate president from his two rivals, Gardner and Ken Jesse, D-Port Lauderdale.

"I'm prepared for the responsibility that's coming," said Thomas, who has served in the Senate since 1974. "Ken and Bud will both help me. They've got some heavy-duty responsibilities ahead of them."

Lawyer sues municipality

GAINESVILLE — A lawyer whose television commercials remind viewers that his telephone number spells "Dr. Legal" is suing Gainesville Regional Utilities for his broken knee.

Steven Glaser fractured his right knee when his 10-speed bicycle collided with a utility-pole guy wire in May 1988.

Glaser said the knee has mended but still pains him every day. He's sued the city and Gainesville Regional Utilities for $100,000, which is the most the law allows him to get from a municipality.

Glaser said the fracture caused him permanent injury that has somewhat affected his part-time career as an entertainer. He says he plays guitar and sings and prefers to stand when he does so. The knee injury led to the first sit-down performance of his career last year.

Gainesville City Attorney Marion Radson said Wednesday that he's not familiar with the lawsuit, but will conduct his standard investigation.

Employee: Firing was over dud grenade

FORT LAUDERDALE — Her boss' souvenir hand grenade may not have exploded, but an airline employee's decision to report it to police blew up in her face — she was sacked an hour later.

"I got fired because I didn't want to work with a live grenade in the office," Nery Fadden, 33, told the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale for Thursday's edition.

Her former boss at now-defunct Quest Air International, Ralph Hurley, has moved, and his business partner, David A. Schroeder, said Hurley had no comment on the grenade.

Fadden, who had been the office manager for three years, said the incident occurred in February when Hurley brought the grenade into the office to use as a paperweight.

"He said not to pull the pin on it because if we did, we'd all be blown to bits. I said, 'Are you serious?' He was dead serious."

She called police, who arrived and confiscated the grenade, later determining it was a dud. An hour after the police visit, Hurley fired her, she said.

Cops can't play game anymore

PANAMA CITY — The uncanny ability of police employees to win a radio station's call-in contest has come to an end.

Police Chief Roger Haddix said Tuesday he will stop allowing them to play the game that has netted at least 10 employees $17,991 out of $53,500 worth of prizes — nearly a third of the total — WFSY has given away since March 28.

"I'm going to stop it rather than create the impression that we're not doing our job," Haddix said. "It has raised morale around here a good bit. I guess, frankly, I wonder why (they are winning), too."

It is a question that has baffled station and telephone company officials as well.

"It's a phenomena that I don't understand," said Southern Bell spokesman John Robbins.

At the station's request, telephone technicians examined the police phone system and found nothing that would give calls from the department priority over those coming from other locations. The only advantages may be access to a lot of phone lines and a speed-dialing feature.

Noriega must wait to be baptized

MIAMI — Prison officials say deposed Panamanian leader Manuel Noriega will have to wait at least several months before he can receive the blessings of the Baptist Church.

The warden at the Metropolitan Correctional Center, where Noriega has been in custody for more than a year, says no baptism will take place until his drug smuggling trial ends in Miami federal court.

Noriega had wanted to be baptized by full-body immersion in water, most likely the small pond within the walls of the MCC compound.

But a short-term, pretrial jail is an improper setting for such a ritual, said MCC spokesman Dena Davion.

"Baptism is a long-term personal commitment and would not be appropriate in a temporary facility," Davion said. "It's a very serious choice, like going into the priesthood."

Anti-Semitic harassment investigated

MIAMI BEACH — Miami Beach commissioners have agreed to an outside investigation into charges that Jewish city lifeguards have been the targets of anti-Semitic slurs and harassment.

"There is a smell of anti-Semitism here. It is incumbent upon us to see if there is any substantiation," said Arthur Teitelbaum, regional director of a leading Jewish organization that demanded the inquiry.

At least six of the patrol's Jewish lifeguards felt they have been unfairly treated because of their religion, said Teitelbaum, of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

The commissioners consented to an inquiry with a 6-0 vote Wednesday, and urged Teitelbaum to ask the Dade County Bar Association to conduct the investigation on the city's behalf.

High school dropouts get college free

Associated Press

BOCA RATON — About 25 high school dropouts will get the opportunity to go to college for free under a scholarship established by the widow of the late owner of The National Enquirer.

The students will receive room and board as well as spending money. The catch is that they must teach at inner-city schools for four years after graduation.

Philanthropist Lois Pope, widow of Generoso Pope, donated $380,000 to Florida Atlantic University as an initial gift and pledged a multiyear commitment to the program, university officials said Wednesday.

People who quit school and then returned to earn high school equivalency diplomas are eligible, said Marc Lipton, executive director of the Lois Pope Foundation Inc.

The foundation is conducting its candidate search in Florida and a dozen major cities outside the state.

"Clearly, our target is disadvantaged kids who can become effective and positive role models for other kids at risk of dropping out of school," Lipton said.

Pope started the program last fall with 10 students at the College of Boca-Raton. She has transferred the opportunity to FAU because the university has more education professors with doctoral degrees, more teaching certification programs and a greater opportunity to attract donations, Lipton said.

Tempted to attend

About 300 people attended without incident a showing of the controversial film, 'The Last Temptation of Christ' at Seminole Community College last night. Security guards Pete Link and Willard Session, (l to r) chatted as the crowd quietly assembled for the show. Controversy erupted last year when the college, allegedly under pressure from conservative religious groups, moved the showing from an auditorium holding over 300 people to a classroom holding 100. The American Civil Liberties Union sued the school.

Doctor: Man sentenced to 20 years will die of colon cancer within one

Associated Press

PANAMA CITY — A 60-year-old cancer victim whose doctor gives him no more than a year to live has been sentenced to 20 years in prison for murdering his former wife last August.

Circuit Judge Clinton E. Foster ordered the sentence

Tuesday for George Williams, rejecting a defense lawyer's plea for a probationary sentence. He was convicted of second-degree murder for the shooting death of Patay McIlveene, 56.

"This man is dying and has been given six to 12 months by his doctor," Michael Stone told the judge. "There is no one who is more sorry than Mr. Williams. No one would care more to bring her back."

Williams, who has colon cancer, shot his former wife after she told him she was evicting him from the apartment they shared. They had been married for 17 years, divorced and resumed a relationship.

Lawmakers plug $150 million budget gap

By GARY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The state will make financial ends meet for the last three weeks of the fiscal year after legislators meeting in special session plugged a $151 million budget gap.

Lawmakers also took action during Thursday's brief session to keep tandem truck trailers off residential streets and country roads in the wake of new federal regulations opening the trucks to new roads.

The budget bill authorizes Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet to shift funds from specialized trust funds — such as citrus industry advertising — to pay for general government operations.

The House sent the legislation to Chiles on an 86-13 vote a few minutes after it was passed by the Senate 19-15. Lawmakers worked about 40 minutes longer than they expected after Chiles extended the session past its 6 p.m. deadline.

"The emergency session provided a much-needed tourniquet for Florida's short-term budget problems," the governor said. "I anticipate more shortfalls and I plan to continue on the path of tightening our belt and living within our means in this recession."

The measure encountered stiff opposition from Senate Republicans who argued it was improper to take money for general government from funds earmarked for specific purposes.

"We are stealing money," said Sen. Dick Langley, R-Clermont. "It is a bad precedent for us. It is deficit spending."

Sen. Jim Scott, R-Port Lauderdale, charged. "We're still not facing fiscal reality in this state."

The approved plan raises $151.2 million to enable state government to make ends meet until June 30, the end of the 1990-91 fiscal year. Florida's Constitution requires a balanced budget.

Chiles and the Cabinet will be allowed to take one year's interest on a host of trust funds to raise $66.3 million. Another $56.9 million would come from direct transfers from three trust funds and elimination of money from an old construction fund.

Credit card forgery charged

SANFORD — Gabriel Luff Field, 19, 2540 Cabery Ave., Sanford, has been charged with grand theft and fraudulent use of a stolen automatic bank teller card. Field was arrested Tuesday at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility by Sanford police.

According to police reports, Field used the NCNB Bank card on March 7 and 8 a total of six times, including four times to withdraw a total of $530 from the account of the victim. On March 12, the victim reported the teller card stolen from a drawer in her bedroom dresser.

NCNB security investigators obtained a photograph of Field taken at a Publix automatic teller, reports state. The victim identified Field in the photograph, police report. NCNB has reimbursed the victim a total of $700 for the withdrawals and other transactions, police report.

Field was charged with grand theft, credit card forgery and an offense against a computer and held on $5,000 bond.

What a difference a name makes

SANFORD — A local resident and his roommate were arrested Tuesday for giving police a false name.

James Martin Reynolds, 52, 310 Magnolia Ave., Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his home for an outstanding warrant. Police report when they asked if he was Reynolds, he replied his name was James Brown.

Police report asking Reynolds' roommate, Charles William Ley, 40, if Reynolds was the man's correct name and Ley replied James Brown was his name. Both were charged with obstruction of a police officer and taken to the Seminole County jail.

Traffic stop leads to arrest

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Luis Ramon Velasquez, 34, 314 Live Oak Blvd., Sanford, was arrested by Seminole County deputies Tuesday afternoon on charges of driving with a suspended license and for possession of two drug pipes.

A deputy reports stopping Velasquez on Oak Street near State Road 427 for having a broken windshield.

Velasquez told the deputy he was trying to take a short cut to Sanford and beat a train, the deputy reported. A train had passed several minutes before, the deputy reported. A search revealed the two pipes in Velasquez' pockets, the deputy reported.

2 accused of illegal betting

SANFORD — Two men, including a Sanford man, were arrested Tuesday on illegal betting charges from Orange County.

Thomas Earl Boyd, 34, 410 W. Seminole Blvd., Apt. 105, Sanford, was arrested at his home at about 3:30 p.m. and taken to the Seminole County jail.

James David Jones, 32, 2057 Derbyshire Road, Apt. 205, Casaleberry, was arrested at his job, Davey Jones Wrecker Service at 3 p.m. two charges of betting were filed against Boyd earlier this year and one charge of betting was filed against Jones.

Warrant arrests

The following people have been arrested on outstanding warrants:

• Michael John Stootman, 24, 2615-A Mohawk, Sanford, was arrested Thursday morning after a Casaleberry policeman accompanied him to repay a shoplifting debt owed to a Casaleberry convenience store by his wife.

When he presented his identification, police report finding he had a warrant for failing to appear at a court hearing to consider an unsafe auto equipment charge.

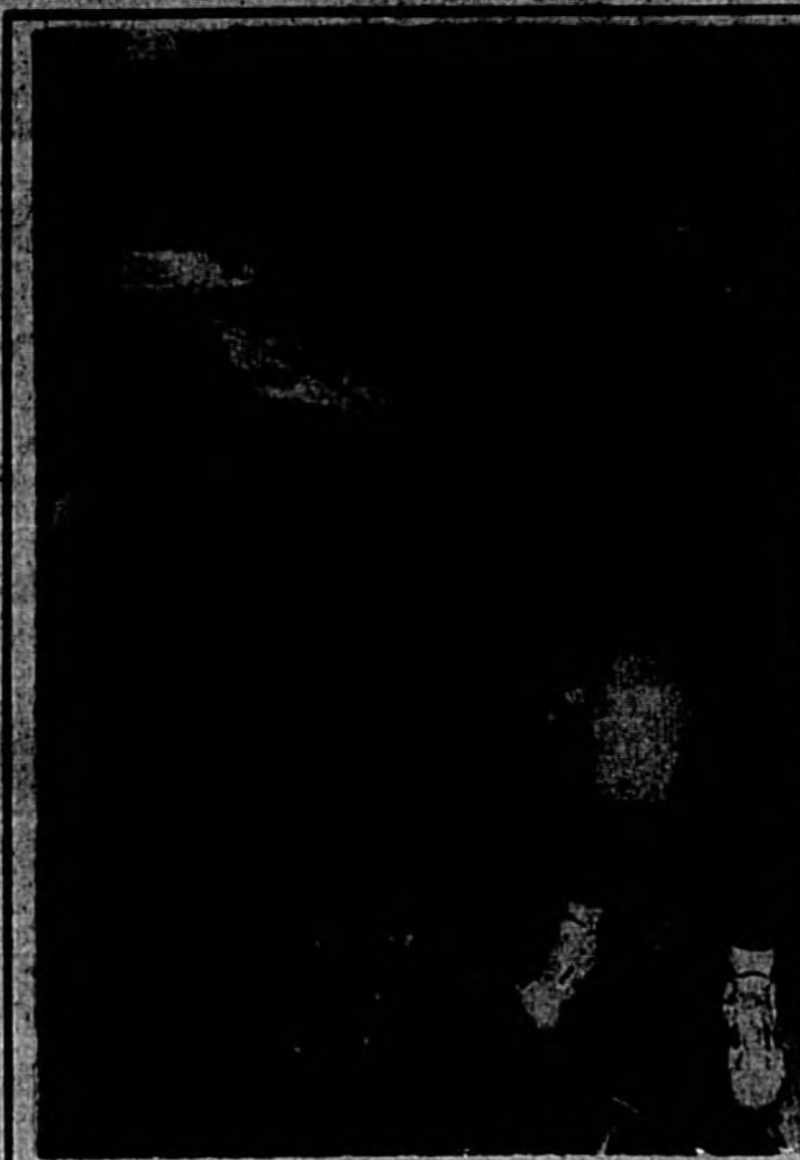

• Raymond Gordon Wiley, 39, 345 Washington Ave., Lake Mary, turned himself in to deputies at the Seminole County jail Wednesday on an outstanding warrant for improper display of a firearm.

• Travis brown, 21, 156 Bethune Circle, Sanford, was arrested at his home Wednesday for failing to appear at a Health and Rehabilitative Services hearing.

• Louis Renee Thomas, 25, Apt. 77, Seminole Gardens, Sanford, was arrested Tuesday at the Seminole County Courthouse on a charge of failing to appear at a hearing to consider driving with a suspended license.

• Alex Bernard Wynn, 22, 1001 W. 10th St., Sanford, was arrested Wednesday at the Seminole County jail on a driving with a suspended license warrant.

• Lawanda Denise Collins, 28, 2031 Dixie Way, Sanford, was arrested at the Seminole County jail Tuesday where she was held on other charges and charged with violation of probation for a petit theft conviction.

Judge approves wide media coverage of Teamster event

ORLANDO — A federal judge in New York City has ordered a court-appointed administrator to come up with a plan to allow wide media coverage of the Teamsters union convention.

U.S. District Judge David N. Edelstein of Manhattan said the convention is an important step toward the first democratic election the Teamsters will hold. The election is required under a court-supervised cleanup to rid the 1.6 million-member union of mob control.

"I believe that this convention deserves all the sunshine and openness that can 'perce' it," Edelstein said. "I believe the union and the public has the right to know."

He issued the ruling Thursday in response to a request by CBS to obtain full access to the convention June 24-28 in Orlando, at which candidates for union officers will be elected.

Area students among first Pace graduates

LONGWOOD — Two Seminole County students were among the six members of the first graduating class of Pace School, in Longwood.

The school, a member of the Florida Council of Independent Schools, is the only accredited one in the area for children with learning disabilities.

The graduation was held this morning at St. Marks Presbyterian Church on Palm Springs Drive in Altamonte Springs. The Executive Secretary of the Florida Council of Independent Schools, Dr. Sharon Bliss, delivered the commencement address. The presentation of the colors was done by the Pace High School

Key Club, ranked number one in the state.

Special guest this morning was Mary E. Dunn, a retired Seminole County Reading Specialist who founded the school in 1971. Mrs. Dunn, who is now 50, continues to serve as the school's librarian and instructor for the Center for Drug Free Living. Her motto for the school was her belief that "all can learn, some need more time, some need another way."

Poll: underage drinkers think they're smart

By NANCY DENAG Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Teen-agers use all kinds of tricks to get beer and wine, but many don't understand which drinks are most potent or even whether certain beverages contain alcohol, a national survey shows.

Surgeon General Antonia Novello said Thursday a survey of 956 students in junior and senior high school found two-thirds couldn't always tell which beverages contained alcohol, even after studying the labels. On average, students were unable to tell the difference three times out of 10.

The problem showed up when students tried to distinguish between alcoholic coolers and flavored mineral waters that have very similar coloring, labeling and packaging, Novello said.

She noted that beer and malt liquor labels do not disclose alcohol content, adding to teen-agers' confusion about which drinks are most potent.

Overall, the survey found that 10.6 million of the nation's 20.7 million students in grades seven through 12 drink. Eight million drink weekly; 5.4 million have binged on occasion; and 454,000 go on a binge of five or more drinks in a row at least once a week.

Thirty-five percent of those who drink said their parents tolerated drinking, although under limited circumstances and in limited amounts, she noted.

Exxon rejection

When Exxon's proposed Alaska oil spill settlement fell apart, nobody won. The question now is whether everyone involved in the controversy will return to the trenches to prepare for a war of attrition in court — or will they try to negotiate something better? Only the latter makes sense.

There are few benefits for Alaska's embattled environment in prolonged litigation. The rejection of the Exxon deal is a personal setback for Gov. Walter J. Hodel, who had demanded far less in compensation for this disaster than many Alaskans felt the company owed. But now Exxon may not be required to pay anything more to clean up the mess until after the lawsuits have been resolved. That could take a decade or more, and by then, more damage will have been done.

The failure of the settlement is also an embarrassment for U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, whose poor-mouthedness of his own case may have encouraged Exxon to think it could get off more cheaply than two federal courts, so far, consider just. But it will make the adoption of a coherent national energy policy much more difficult.

The president's proposed energy plan — already seriously deficient for its neglect of conservation strategies — relies heavily on the hope of new oil development in Alaska to cover increasing domestic demand. Now those hopes may have to be put on hold until Congress and the public are convinced that the Alaskan oil companies can conduct their business safely. Fixing Exxon's liability for the last big spill is an important part of the question of how to prevent similar disasters in the future.

Exxon's not been let off any hooks, either. One federal judge rejected the proposed plea bargain because it wasn't punitive enough. But, as Exxon Chairman Lawrence G. Rawl keeps reminding everyone, his company is making so much money these days that it can absorb almost any fine the courts dish up without blinking. The objective isn't to damage the company, but rather to deter Exxon and the other oil companies from making the same mistake again.

The cash amount of the final settlement was probably never as important to Exxon anyway as laying the controversy to rest. Now that that opportunity has been lost, Exxon can look forward to still more of the ill will that has come its way under the leadership of a company chairman who seems to have learned public relations from Torquemada.

What elements should an acceptable settlement contain? Sufficient funds to pay for a cleanup are only the beginning. The next proposal should ensure fair play for the private litigants injured by the spill, full disclosure of the extent of the damage and more guarantees of safety in the shipping business, starting with a faster schedule for deploying double-hulled tankers and more Coast Guard control over coastal traffic.

Justice

South African Judge M.S. Stegmann has found Winnie Mandela, the wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, guilty of abducting four black anti-apartheid activists and being an accessory to their assault.

Mrs. Mandela argued in court that she had actually rescued the four youths — one of whom later turned up dead — from the homosexual advances of a minister. What appears to be closer to the truth is that Mrs. Mandela had her followers detain the young men because she suspected that one or more was not supporting the ANC.

Proponents of reform fear the Mandela verdict, and the six-year prison sentence imposed, may scuttle negotiations between the government of F.W. deKlerk and the ANC. Those talks are aimed at completing the dismantlement of apartheid and creating a new multiracial democracy.

Shortly before Judge Stegmann opened the Mandela trial, ANC General Secretary Alfred Nzo said the prosecution of Mrs. Mandela was "in breach of the spirit of the agreements entered into between the government and the ANC." Many in the ANC are convinced the government was out to discredit Mrs. Mandela and, by association, the ANC itself.

Until recently, Mrs. Mandela had been a widely respected figure in the anti-apartheid movement.

But not even the Mother of the Nation should be above the law. If Judge Stegmann had acquitted Mrs. Mandela, especially after hearing testimony against her from two of Judge Stegmann's verdict may not foment greater tolerance between black political groups in South Africa. But it does send the clear message to both the ANC and Inkatha that politically motivated violence will not be countenanced by South Africa's courts.

Vatican's capitalism has a heart

To American conservatives, one of the most disturbing facts of political life has long been the steadfast refusal of the Roman Catholic Church to endorse its withdrawal or approval in the concept of capitalism or in its advanced incarnation prior to World War II.

Especially since the onset of the Cold War, which for all practical purposes elevated the alternative of a future under capitalism or a future under communism, conservatives have felt hurt that the church, while condemning communism recently enough, refused to confer its unqualified blessing on capitalism.

A list of the reasons can be found in the familiar objection that capitalism is "based on greed" — meaning that its dynamics depend on the human impulse to better oneself economically. Even communism professed less "selfish" motives than that, and this objection lies at the root of "liberation theology," whereby certain Catholic theologians sought to blend Catholicism with Marxism.

But the real reason is traceable to the church's resistance to the whole 18th-century Enlightenment, from which classical liberalism (including capitalism) derives. The Enlightenment's tendency to believe that free peoples, guided by science, could dispense with God was obviously unacceptable to the church. The economic laws of Adam Smith failed to address certain moral imperatives — a.g. charity and justice — that the church regarded as indispensable. As such they were simply not amenable to a full description of a Christian's economic obligations.

Beginning with Pope Leo XIII's 1891 encyclical Rerum Novarum, successive pontiffs isolated themselves on this point. In recent decades, however, with the sharp decline in the popularity of the more Darwinian forms of capitalist economic theory (the survival of the fittest, etc.), and the recognition of a common social obligation to the unfortunate, the argument has lost much of its edge. Catholic economists such as Michael Novak, who understand the immense potential of free enterprise to "raise all boats," began pressing for a change in emphasis.

The collapse of the communist regimes in Eastern Europe (above all in his native Poland), and the sharp turn of these nations toward free market economies, were all the stimulus Pope John Paul II required. In his recent encyclical, Centesimus Annus, issued on the centenary of Rerum Novarum, he once again makes it clear that "the Marxist solution has failed."

Then, however, instead of evenhandedly condemning capitalism, the pope acknowledged its value.

Catholic economists began pressing for a change in emphasis.

"In capitalism the model which ought to be proposed to the countries of the Third World which are searching for the path to true economic and civil progress?"

"If by 'capitalism' is meant an economic system which recognizes the fundamental and positive role of business, the market, private property and the resulting responsibility for the means of production, then the answer is certainly in the affirmative...."

"But if by 'capitalism' is meant a system in which freedom in the economic sector is not circumscribed within a strong juridical framework that places it at the service of human freedom in its totality, and that sees it as a particular aspect of that freedom, the core of which is ethical and religious, then the reply is certainly negative...."

Remember the USS Liberty

We shall never forget that which we choose not to remember.

The foregoing is not quite as paradoxical as it may appear, for we have elected to remember, recall, and revere selected dates, occasions, and events prominent, or, perhaps, dis-prominent in the history of the United States. Conversely, we have opted to disremember selected occurrences in the history of the United States which, upon reflection, tend to bring discredit upon our country.

We are approaching the 24th anniversary of a tragic event, one which most certainly the government of the United States has attempted to conceal, and one which should be well remembered as we welcome our troops home from Desert Storm and as we salute our fallen on Memorial Day.

On 8 June 1967, USS LIBERTY (AGTR-5), a lightly armed and lightly armored intelligence collection ship, was operating well within international waters, albeit her area of operations was proximate to both Egypt and Israel, opposing factions in the "War of 1967." In spite of providing the aforementioned countries of her presence and, implicitly, her intentions, USS LIBERTY was, without provocation, the target of a vicious coordinated air-sea attack conducted by Israeli forces, resulting in the death of thirty-four Americans and wounding 171 of their comrades.

Having served in a sister ship of USS LIBERTY, and completing more than two decades service with the national cryptologic community, I was well aware of the supreme intelligence organization that they, the Israelis, possessed. I found it then, and find it now, incomprehensible that they could have mistaken a converted World War II Victory ship hull, sporting a deck full of disc-cones, corner reflectors, and dish antennae, one some 32 feet in diameter for an Egyptian man of war.

Additional distractions included her name and hull numbers, ten feet high on the bow, and three feet high on the stern.

Our colors, initially 5 by 8 feet, until shot down, then replaced by a 7 by 13 foot ensign, were flying in an eight-knot breeze. USS Liberty was doomed from the onset, and there was no possibility of misidentification. A coordinated air-sea attack, consisting of motor torpedo boats, launching torpedoes from close aboard, after a lengthy period of surface surveillance, coupled with over-flight reconnaissance, left no room for error on the part of the aggressor. It is well documented that during over-flights, prior to strafing, Israeli pilots were in plain language voice communications with USS Liberty.

Immediately upon being attacked, USS Liberty, in clear voice communications with Commander Sixth Fleet reported her situation and requested assistance. Supporting aircraft were launched immediately from USS SARATOGA, only to be recalled instantly by Vice Adm. William I. Martin, Commander, Sixth Fleet.

USS Liberty, suffering a huge gap in her hull as a result of torpedoes, and without communications capability, having lost her antennae as a result of continued strafing, wallowed helplessly for hours until U.S. Navy surface craft came alongside and provided such relief as they were able to offer.

In one of the most outrageous cover-ups in the history of our country, the story of USS Liberty was, and remains, largely unknown. Perhaps only those few of us who were knowledgeable of her mission, who devoted years to like missions, and who knew her crew so very well, can, in fact, remember.

On June 12, 1989, a memorial service was held, and a plaque placed, in the library in Grafton, Wisconsin, dedicating the valor of the fallen and of the survivors of USS Liberty. It seems fitting to note that no representative of the federal government of the United States of America or of the Department of the Navy of the United States of America saw fit to attend this belated recognition of USS Liberty. Paradoxically, the Milwaukee Jewish Council saw fit to criticize....

From 7-9 June of this year, survivors of USS Liberty will "celebrate" the anniversary of their betrayal — betrayal by our reputed allies, and betrayal by the federal government of the United States.

While we do, indeed, celebrate the return of our service personnel from the Near East, and lament the passing of those who failed to return, perhaps we can take a moment to remember those which we have chosen to forget.

Physicians' legal kickbacks appall

WASHINGTON — In March, a Florida physician referred a 100-year-old patient to a medical lab for a brain scan. The expressed reason for the referral was that the man was experiencing "weakness" and "poor balance."

The better explanation for the referral is that the physician is a part owner of the laboratory and profited from the $1,000 CAT scan fee. The apparently unnecessary test was paid for by Medicare — in other words, U.S. taxpayers.

In the past five years, a growing number of physicians have invested in a variety of medical labs as an almost foolproof income supplement. The resulting self-referral system amounts to legalized kickbacks for the physicians.

Even some doctors are disgusted by what they see. A veteran radiologist told us he's seen enough unnecessary lab visits to make him "sick to be a doctor." He said the problem had grown "exponentially worse in the past few years."

These joint ventures may soon become outlawed.

An upcoming Florida state study will show that almost 75 percent of the state's diagnostic imaging labs are now owned by physicians who refer their patients to these labs. That statistic is unnerving considering a federal probe in 1989 revealed that doctors refer their patients for 40 percent more lab work when they own a share of the lab.

Rep. Fortney "Pete" Stark, D-Calif., has crusaded to stop the self-referral onslaught. He maintains that it's not only costing patients a fortune, but milking Medicare and taxpayers for tens of millions of dollars. Stark wants to make all such arrangements illegal. Sen. Brock Adams, D-Wash., plans to push similar legislation in the Senate.

Physicians' lobbyists maintain that such legislation would rob rural Americans of modern medical equipment. They also argue that such a law would punish honest and dishonest doctors alike. At the very least, they want all existing joint-venture labs grandfathered under any new law. Stark calls it "grandfathering robbery."

Today's blue-chip investment in the nation's physician community is the Magnetic Resonance Imaging machine, or MRI. The cost of the diagnostic equipment is often spread out over several doctors who recoup their investment in less than a year, thanks to the steady stream of patients. The basic MRI costs patients about $1,000 a pop for an exam that usually lasts less than an hour. One Florida physician told us MRI labs dot most Miami street corners.

In May, a Florida physician referred an 18-year-old patient to an MRI lab. The resulting $1,000 test confirmed the doctor's suspicion. The young man's thigh was bruised. Medical experts doubt the test would have been ordered unless the doctor stood to profit.

Our associate Jim Lynch has reviewed files on one orthopedic surgeon in Florida who apparently believes all his patients should visit the MRI lab that he jointly owns. Although the doctor is only trained to diagnose bone problems, he routinely refers patients with headaches and possible neurological problems to his lab for testing. Normally such referrals are made by a neurologist. However, as the aforementioned veteran radiologist told us:

"My profession is not a profession anymore. It's a business. It's unconscionable and it makes me sick."

Almost 75 percent of Florida's diagnostic imaging labs are owned by physicians who refer their patients.

Studies, initial funds are putting commuter train on county track

By Mark P. ...
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — It may be possible to travel to work on a commuter train in the Lake Mary, Sanford and Orlando area, but don't hold your breath. Even though plans are already underway, the Lake Mary City Commission has been advised that it will be several years before the train starts rolling.

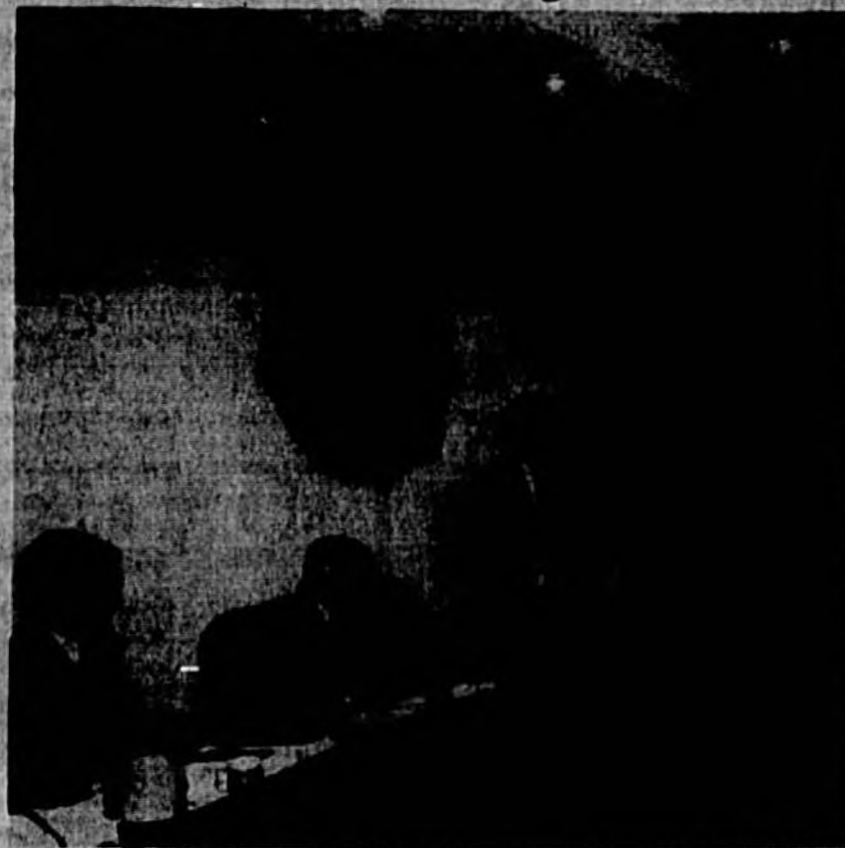

Altamonte Springs Mayor Dudley Bates, who is chairman of the Central Florida Commuter Rail Authority, discussed the steps taken so far in the planning stages since the project first began in late 1989. He explained that in the beginning, the line was to serve Seminole, Orange, Osceola, and Brevard Counties. "Brevard has since then said they would stand aside on the project for the time being," Bates said, "but we have had interest shown from both Volusia and Lake Counties."

Planning has expanded recently since the last session of the Florida Legislature approved a half million dollars for initial funding of the study. Bates explained, "since then, we have obtained the services of a team of expert firms who are all experts in rail traffic. We hope to have our initial plans done during the next eight months, so we can present them to the next legislative session."

Bates outlines a number of routes for the commuter rail mass transit service. They included runs from Mt. Dora, through Apopka to Orlando; from Sanford through Lake Mary and Altamonte Springs to Orlando; an east-west line that would include stops in Winter Garden, the University of Central Florida, and south to Kissimmee. Another, from the Orlando International Airport to Port Canaveral is questionable due to the pull out of Brevard County.

One of the big questions still unresolved is where to install the lines. It could be a cooperative venture with both passenger and freight system using existing tracks, a parallel line adjacent to tracks already installed, completely separate tracks, or a take-over of existing freight lines.

Also ahead for future planning is a study on property rights acquisition, the transit rail corridor study, a determination of how much public involvement

Besides discussing commuter trains, Lake Mary Mayor Randy Morris, standing by a 3-foot tall trophy, explains how the "great city commission softball team" won it by defeating the combined police and fire department team 11 to 7, during their annual city picnic, May 18. The trophy was presented to the city officials by other city officials while police and firemen refused comment. Left to right, Commissioners David Meador, George Duryea, Mayor Morris, Commissioners Paul Tremel and Thomas Mahoney.

will be needed, and the possibilities of cooperation with the existing CSX rail facilities. Bates will be making further reports to the various cities involved in the project during the upcoming months. He is seeking promises of financial support from the cities to be included in the preparation of their 1992 fiscal year budget. He told the commissioners, "I want everyone to be certain that they know this is not a one-city plan. It is an overall regional plan, and it will serve this entire area of Central Florida. As for the immediate future, he said, "The goal is to have all of our planning completed in time to make our presentation to the early 1991 session of the Florida Legislature."

He indicated that if everything goes ahead as planned, the commuter rail service might become a reality as soon as 4 to 6 years from now.

Scholarships

ing grants to teachers with innovative ideas, awards to teachers of the year at each school and a drop-out prevention program at Seminole High School.

The scholarships will be awarded to teachers seeking to enhance their education skills, including obtaining graduate degrees, Hofmann said. He said teacher's aides and assistants or any non-instructional staff member who wants to become a teacher will be eligible for a grant. The $250 scholarships can be applied to only tuition, books and lab expenses, Hofmann said.

School employees seeking scholarships will be required to submit an essay on why they are seeking to advance their educational skills or become a teacher. They must also list their work experience for the county, education and include two reference letters. Applications are due by July 12 for scholarships granted for the year beginning July 1.

Hofmann said Seminole County school personnel spent 143,830 hours in instruction to upgrade their professional skills. Of the more than 3,000 school instructors, more than 1,300 of them have advanced degrees, including master's, specialists and doctorates, Hofmann said.

and 25th Streets, near the Salvation Army facility. Originally, McKibbin Park on 25th Street was considered for the center, but it is being rejected because of an expected problem with foundation construction. The property served as a landfill area for over 30 years, and the cost of foundation construction would be extensively high. Also, taken into consideration is the flow of traffic on West 25th Street that would present a difficult situation for children utilizing such a facility.

Pinchurst was selected because of an already existing athletic field, the cost of construction, the ease of attendance by participants and the amount of usable space already available.

The city's share of the predicted costs for all three areas totals $1,650,000. A number of methods of financing the projects are possible including community donations, a bond issue approved by voters, reserves, and others.

No major decisions on the proposals are expected at the meeting, Jernigan said. "I'm responding to the city's request for information on our recreational needs and requirements, the cost of the projects and other suggestions.

The Sanford City Commission meeting will be held Monday, June 10, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Sanford City Hall.

Jazz great, saxophonist Stan Getz, 64, has died

By LOUANN LOTA
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Saxophonist Stan Getz, a jazz innovator who fueled the sultry bossa nova movement with "The Girl From Ipanema" and played with Big Band greats such as Woody Herman, has died at age 64.

Getz died Thursday at his home in Malibu, said his publicist, Diana Baron of A&M Records. She did not disclose the cause of death, but author Leonard Feather, who writes on jazz for the Los Angeles Times, said Getz had cancer.

Getz, who won 11 Grammy awards, is best known for his 1964 recording of the Brazilian standard "The Girl From Ipanema." However, he was a dominant force on the jazz scene from the late 1940s.

He played and recorded with Dizzy Gillespie, Lionel Hampton, Benny Goodman, Stan Kenton and Woody Herman, and launched the careers of pianist Chick Corea and vocalist Diane Schurr.

Phase two will add two more tennis courts and a pool.

Unemployment jumped in May

By KAREN BALL
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate jumped to 6.9 percent in May as 370,000 Americans were added to jobless rolls, the government reported today.

The rise in the civilian unemployment rate was a sharp 0.3 percentage points higher than April's rate of 6.6 percent, the Labor Department said.

Joblessness has been climbing steadily since the recession started last July, except for a one-month reprieve in April, when the rate fell unexpectedly from 6.8 percent to 6.6 percent.

Most analysts considered that decline a fluke, and had expected a May increase in unemployment to cancel out the April improvement, even though other areas of the economy have been rebounding and offering glimmers of hope that an economic recovery is on its way.

With the 370,000 Americans who joined the ranks of the unemployed in May, the jobless now number 8.6 million — 1.7 million higher than last July, today's report said.

Although today's report offered bleak numbers on the newly jobless, it also included encouraging news about the hiring activities of U.S. businesses. The number of non-farm jobs grew by 89,000 in May, the first such increase in payrolls in nearly a year.

The figures for unemployed and job losses can differ, seemingly contradicting each other, because they come from different surveys. In addition, the total number of the jobless includes both people who lost their jobs and those returning to the labor market or those new to the work force.

The 59,000-job gain for May was sure to buoy analysts because it's such a stark contrast to the steep job losses in recent months.

Charter

Julian recommended the Commission either file a petition in Circuit Court to declare the proposed amendment invalid, or take no action and simply avoid placing the amendment on the ballot.

Sheila Sawyer spoke in opposition to Julian's report. She suggested that Julian was ignoring the full scope of the Attorney General's opinion he had obtained. She said, "you offered options to the city, but the only one you have is to put it on the ballot. This is not a matter of the decision being in the city charter, it is a State rule."

Sawyer said that when elected, the commissioners and city attorney had taken an oath to serve the citizens. She asked, "Do you honor that oath only when it's convenient?"

Prior to the final vote, each Commissioner addressed the issue. Paul Tremel said, "Just because Longwood approved it, doesn't mean it would work for Lake Mary. If it's passed, we will have to take everything to the people in a referendum before we can spend money. That's not why we were elected."

Commissioner George Duryea, while not giving an opinion on whether or not he agreed with the intent of the charter revision, said he would support putting the measure on the ballot and allow the public to decide.

Commissioner David Meador said, "I believe if this measure would pass, many things needed by the city of Lake Mary would fail." He moved to have the measure declared invalid. Commissioner Tom Mahoney seconded the move.

Prior to the final vote, Mayor Randy Morris said, "While we often find it necessary to reject an opinion by a member of the city staff, I believe it would be irresponsible to overrule the opinion of our city attorney."

In the final vote to have the measure denied, only Commissioner Duryea voted in opposition. Mayor Morris stamped up the vote. "This Commission has done what we think is right. We hope the citizens will agree with what we have done. As for those who opposed the move, if they choose to sue us, so be it."

McDonald's cooks up new image

By DAVID DENHEAU
AP Business Writer

CHICAGO — Between its lower-fat foods and heightened environmental sense, McDonald's Corp. has cooked up a new public image: leaner and greener.

Many environmentalists, nutritionists and others in the food-service industry applaud the changes.

But others question how deep they go: Is McDonald's "doing the right thing," as its executives and supporters say, or merely what it believes is necessary to revive its slumping U.S. sales?

McDonald's Chairman Michael Quinlan told shareholders at the company's annual meeting last month that a recently introduced discount "value menu" was beginning to boost domestic sales, which slipped 1 percent in the first quarter from a year ago, to $2.8 billion.

As the value menu came out, McDonald's launched its reduced-fat McLean Deluxe hamburger in March. A few weeks later, the company held a news conference saying it was committed to a sweeping waste-reduction plan.

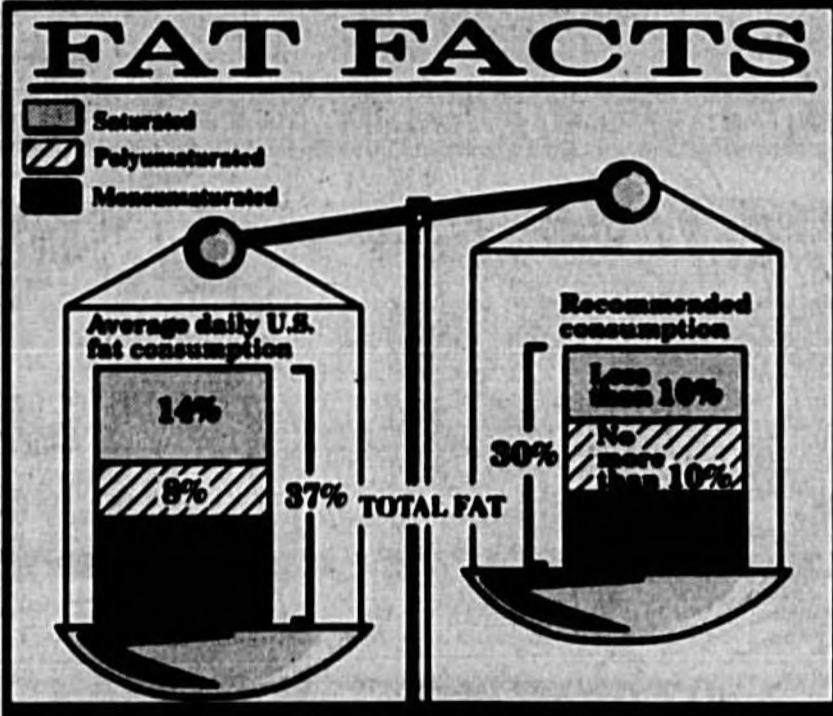

Edward H. Renal, president of U.S. operations, said the timing of the events might have made it appear that McDonald's was conducting a carefully orchestrated public-image makeover — but that it wasn't.

"We're neither that smart, that clever, nor that cunning," Renal said. "Our objective is to do what's right, do what our customers tell us they want."

McDonald's supporters include the New York-based Environmental Defense Fund and millionaire health activist Phil Sokolof, who just a year ago bought full-page national newspaper ads headlined: "McDonald's, your hamburgers have too much fat."

These former critics said that because Oak Brook-based McDonald's serves 18 million people daily, any improvements it makes in the nutrition and environmental arenas have a significant impact.

Sokolof now praises McDonald's effusively for phasing out ice cream in favor of Nutritionists and health experts debate the pros and cons of the various kinds of fat. But there is general agreement that your overall fat intake should be cut to about 30 percent of your daily caloric intake.

But other observers say McDonald's has done far less than it could to become more responsible nutritionally and environmentally.

"In my opinion, they're really saving in a lot of very vocal consumer activist organizations, not all of whom are really informed on the issues," said Sharon M. Olson, a Chicago-based food service marketing consultant.

Nevertheless, she said, "They're reaping the benefits, getting a lot of good consumer press."

Olson's biggest complaint was that the two new types of McDonald's sandwich wraps are harder to recycle than the foam "clamshells" they have replaced.

Theresa Freeman, head of an environmental group called Vermonters Organized for Cleanup, had the same gripe. "It's a little bit of a scam if they're switching to items that are non-recyclable and non-compostable," she said. Richard Denison, senior scientist at the Environmental Defense Fund, said the coated paper wraps used for McDonald's smaller sandwiches

Our objective is to do what's right, do what our customers tell us they want. —Edward Renal

"appear to be fully compostable."

The wraps for Big Macs, McLeans and other large sandwiches consist of a layer of polyethylene plastic between two sheets of paper, Denison said.

"The potential for screening out that plastic after composting is being looked at," he said.

Freeman said McDonald's also could do more for the environment by replacing plastic flatware and paper cups with washable, reusable utensils.

Brian Lipsett, research analyst with the Citizens Clearinghouse for Hazardous Waste in Arlington, Va., said McDonald's gave up on polystyrene foam because it was costing the company too much to fight his group's 3-year-old anti-clamshell campaign.

"I don't think we're going to run out and pin medals on them or anything, but once somebody caves in to your demands, you basically have to stop demanding things of them, at least for the time being," Lipsett said.

Renal said he had never heard of the Citizens Clearinghouse. Bonnie Liebman, nutritional director for the Center for Science in the Public Interest in Washington, said McDonald's menu still has a long way to go.

"What the company has done is made modest improvements in a few foods and made a few more dramatic changes in a few foods," she said. "If McDonald's really wanted to improve the public's health, it would remove 80 percent of the foods from its menu board and introduce fresh fruit salad, fresh vegetables and whole-grain buns."

Renal bristled at Liebman's menu suggestions. "What the hell sense does it make to have that stuff on the menu if nobody's going to buy it?" he said.

House restores space station money

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The House pulled the $30 billion space station program back from the brink of financial death, but NASA might have to pay dearly for the victory through cuts in its other programs.

A 240-173 House vote Thursday restored nearly $2 billion in space station funds that had been deleted in committee from a massive appropriations bill for housing, veterans and space.

But unless more money can be found later in the budget process, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would have to find the funds among its own science, technology, aerodynamics and other endeavors.

"It would be a very, very difficult problem for us," said NASA Administrator Richard Truly.

The vote was a victory for President Bush, who had lobbied hard for the space station. The National Space Council said its chairman, Vice President Dan Quayle, even called House members while on a trip through Eastern Europe.

Salvaging the station was NASA's most important issue because the space agency has "many programs that don't make sense" without it, Truly said. Loss of the station would leave the program "totally fractured," he said.

The orbiting laboratory, seven years and $5.6 billion in the planning, is the centerpiece of America's space effort for the rest of the decade and well into the 21st century. Without it, some supporters claimed, there might not be a U.S. manned space program after the mid-1990s.

"Americans aren't willing to let some other space-faring nation lead the quest for this next frontier," said Rep. Bill Lowery, R-Calif., co-author of the winning amendment which allows $1.9 billion to be spent on the space station in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

The amendment by Lowery and Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Texas, reversed a decision by the House Appropriations Committee to cut nearly all money from the station. It passed only with strong backing from Republicans.

The station and the $13.9 billion NASA budget were part of an $80.9 billion spending bill. It also included $32.6 billion for the Department of Veterans Affairs and $24.4 billion for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The bill next goes to the Senate.

"With Space Station Freedom, there can be no serious debate that we will make scientific discoveries, make medical breakthroughs, improve technology," Chapman said.

But Rep. Bob Traxler, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that handles NASA spending, saw a darker picture.

"You are funding the station at the expense of every other NASA program," said Traxler, D-Mich. "It means space science programs are virtually wiped out."

After six hours of debate, Republicans voted for the station, 133-27, while Democrats split 145-107 against.

NASA weighs a spacewalk to fix shuttle

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — A loose seal on a cargo bay door presented an unexpected chore today for NASA engineers on the ground, as well as the prospect of a spacewalk for two Columbia astronauts.

A long piece of weatherstripping came loose along the edge of a door covering the bay during launch and landing.

The 60-foot-long doors must close tightly for the fiery re-entry into the Earth's atmosphere or the shuttle could burn up. If the doors close properly, but the loose seal causes a gap, the shuttle could be damaged.

Engineers have studied the problem since it was discovered shortly after Wednesday's launch and are considering sending two of the seven astronauts on board out to fix it.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers planned to duplicate the problem today on the shuttle Discovery at Kennedy Space Center in Cape Canaveral, Fla.

"There are no real concerns that we couldn't today, right now if we needed to, crush that seal and latch the doors down," NASA flight director Randy Stone said Thursday. "But it's always the better part of valor to analyze things in their entirety."

Several white blankets of insulation also came loose in the payload bay, probably at the same time the seal was loosened, in a rush of trapped cargo bay air into the vacuum of space.

If the crew can close the doors tight enough, a spacewalk may not be necessary. But if need be, astronauts James Baglan and Tamara Jernigan could take a spacewalk as early as Sunday, Stone said. They would either snap the seal back in place or snip it off. It should take about 1½ hours.

Baglan is part of the four-member research team conducting comprehensive medical tests in Spacelab, a compartment the size of a small bus stored in the bay and connected by a tunnel to the shuttle's crew compartment.

The astronauts worked in the lab for the third day in a row today, collecting blood samples from each other and monitoring other bodily functions to determine the effects of weightlessness on humans.

On Thursday, Baglan, a physician, worked up a sweat as he rode a bicycle for another test.

Twenty-nine white rats and 2,478 jellyfish also are on board. The temperature in a Spacelab facility holding 19 of the rats dropped overnight, but ground controllers decided it was not hazardous to the animals.

Astronaut M. Rhea Seddon, the doctor in charge of Spacelab, said the temperature for the cages was within limits and the rats appeared to be fine.

Astronauts injected iodine into the water of less than a third of the tiny jellyfish to accelerate their growth. Some will be allowed to mature on their own, and others will remain in the initial immature stage.

All the animals will be studied after their return June 14.

Ronald White, chief of NASA's life sciences division, said the crew on Wednesday and Thursday gathered data on how the body's fluids shift during the initial stages of space flight.

Also Thursday, the House debated the fate of NASA's planned space station before voting 240-173 to spend nearly $2 billion next year on the project.

The space station, to be placed in orbit by the end of the decade, is the centerpiece of NASA's plans to meet the president's goal of putting a base on the moon and sending an expedition to Mars. The Senate also must vote.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Howie's takes command

OVIEDO — Hungry Howie's took over first place in the ICBA Men's Basketball League with a 86-69 win over Domino's Noids. The two teams that had been tied with Howie's — the Magic and the Geico Blazers both lost.

John Classay led Howie's with 24, Sam Hamilton added 18, Jay Evans 13, Rick Lorraine and Buzz Younce 12 each and Jeff Meyers seven.

Jeff Whipple hit 30 for the Noids followed by Jay Gungwisch with 10, Rob Rhinehart and Rick Davis eight each, Tim Kespell seven and Fred Lawson six.

The Pretenders beat the Magic 66-52.

John Taylor hit 28, Russ Lawrence 27, Tom Ecker nine and Jeff Ecker two (the first father & son combo in league history).

Paul Batt led the Magic with 20, John Phillips had 19, Steve Meigard 10 and Chris Keasinger four.

Oviedo Gun & Pawn beat Geico 71-48.

Vic Thomas was high with 24, Nelson Pate hit 16, Curtis Legons 12, Steve Buchanan 11, Charley Hardy six and U. McKenzie two.

Garth Bolton led Geico with 21 including five three's, Sam Haynes had 16, Eddie Norton six and Marcus Neal five.

GOLF

Floridian leads

ATHENS, Ga. — Tom Harrell of Palm City, Fla., used a 2-over-par 74 Thursday to build a two-shot lead in the National Lefthanders golf championship.

Harrell carries an 11-over-par 227 total into Friday's final round, which will be played on the 6,380-yard Jennings Mill County Club course.

TENNIS

Men's Semifinals today

PARIS — What next?

After watching Steffi Graf suffer the most ignominious loss of her brilliant pro career, French Open fans are ready for anything in Saturday's final between top-seeded Monica Seles and Graf-killer Arantxa Sanchez Vicario.

The men's semifinals were scheduled for today, with all four players chasing their first French Open title.

In the first match, second-seeded Boris Becker, who would gain the men's No. 1 ranking with a victory, was to play fourth-seeded Andre Agassi, a losing finalist last year.

The other semifinal also paired an American and a German, ninth-seeded Jim Courier against No. 12 Michael Stich. Courier, a Sanford native, gave Becker a shot at the No. 1 ranking by beating top-seeded Stefan Edberg on Wednesday.

BASEBALL

American League to share loot

NEW YORK — American League clubs will get $3 million each from the National League's expansion money, while NL teams will each get $3.5 million less than they thought.

Commissioner Fay Vincent broke with precedent Thursday and awarded the AL $42 million of the $190 million in expansion fees. Vincent also decided teams from both leagues would supply players equally for the 1993 expansion draft and that any future expansion money will be divided equally between all major league clubs.

If the NL had kept all the money, each of its 12 existing teams would have received $15,833,333. With Vincent's decision, each NL team will receive $12,333,333.

Vincent decided each existing major league team will give three players to the pool expansion clubs will select from. Under the previous rules, each NL team would have given six players. This change must be agreed to by the Major League Baseball Players Association, and Vincent said approval is expected.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Final set

OMAHA, Neb. — Kennie Steenstra was perfect again, which was perfectly alright with Wichita State.

"I had a goal at the beginning of the season to win 15," Steenstra said after pitching the Shockers into the final of the College World Series with an 11-3 victory over Creighton Thursday. "I never imagined I would go 17-0."

But Steenstra raised his record to 17-0, becoming the NCAA Division I's winningest pitcher.

The win sends Wichita State into Saturday's final against Louisiana State for the title.

Four Rams ready to take talents to top programs

By ROBBIE STOCK
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — The record-setter is out to set more records.

Brad Bridgewater, who set two state records at the Class AAAA swim meet this past season, is headed for perennial power Texas University next fall, where he will try to lap the competition.

Bridgewater leads a pack of six Lake Mary athletes who received athletic scholarships for next year. Several other Rams, including Mike Merthie and Neil James, are expected to announce their future plans shortly.

From the boys' soccer team, gutsy sweeper Scott Klavins will man the defense for Florida Atlantic next season while Dana Hoover, who helped the Rams to a state title three years ago, will try to pace the attack for the nationally-ranked University of Central Florida soccer team. She will join up with the all-time leading goal scorer for high school, Amy Geltz from Bishop Moore.

Meanwhile, from the football team which took second in the Seminole Athletic Conference due to a late-season surge, two players grabbed scholarships. The sparkplug of the offense, the quick and elusive Chris Haney, will play next fall for the Air Force Prep School. Haney led the late-season surge with his rushing prowess. Sean Adams will suit up for the Naval Academy.

From the boy's basketball team that tied for the SAC championship 6-5 center Jon Brown, who was also a star volleyball player, has signed to play with coach David Jones' matadors of Valencia Community College in Orlando.

Among the athletes who have not yet signed scholarships, but surely will, are Merthie, James, Matt MacDonald, Jason Hamelin, Scott Davidson, Chris Jackson, Matt Citarella and Dena Moraes.

Merthie, who was the SAC Player-of-the-Year in basketball, is awaiting word on the pro baseball draft before deciding on whether to play baseball or basketball in junior college. Hamelin also was an all-SAC pick in basketball and his shooting ability will attract attention.

MacDonald is a good athlete who was the SAC boys volleyball player of the year and also started on the basketball team. Davidson and Jackson were two of the best pitchers in the county while James Dana Hoover (above, left) will take her immense talents to the nationally recognized University of Central Florida women's soccer program in Orlando next year. She is just one of four Rams who have accepted scholarships to major universities for next year.

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department's men's softball league played some splashball Thursday evening at Pinchurst Park after the afternoon thunderstorms had lifted.

The wet conditions did not prove favorable to Gator's Dockside as they managed only five singles while dropping their first game of the season to Seminole Mobile Radio 6-1.

Seminole Mobile Radio (5-2) now moves to within one game of first place Gator's Dockside (6-1).

Expos shutout Redbirds

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — With the playoffs only a couple of weeks away, the pennant race for the Sanford Recreation Department's Little Majors National League is really heating up as Steve Bussard spun a four-hit shutout to lead the Marshall USA Expos to an 8-0 victory over the First Federal Cardinals Thursday evening at Roy Holler Field.

In the battle for first place, the Expos (10-2) now take over the top spot and sent the Cardinals (9-2) into second place, trailing by one-half game.

With the Cardinals loss, the Railroaders Cubs (8-3) avoid elimination and still have an SANFORD — What would summer be without the boys of summer?

Seminole's High School baseball teams will take the field this summer to hone their skills and prepare for next year's baseball season.

All of the Seminole County teams except Seminole compete in the National Amateur Baseball Association. The NABA consists of 25 teams which are divided into four divisions. At the end of the regular season Lyman will host a tournament to decide their divisional winner. The winner of the tournament in Lyman will advance to the NABA World Series in Apopka. As the host of the World Series, Apopka will automatically reach the World Series. If Apopka wins their division then the best second place team of the four divisions will also reach the World Series.

Lyman will host a Fourth of July tournament July 4-7. All county teams (except Seminole) along with Dr. Phillips and a team from

SANFORD — Weather permitting the Sanford Church Softball League Spring Tournament will come to a close Saturday evening at Pinchurst

Park.

It will be a long day as 14 or 15 games will be played at Pinchurst as well as Lee P. Moore Park to finish the double elimination affair. If one team goes unbeaten there will be 14 games, if both finalists have a loss

15 games will be necessary. The championship games should start at around 4 p.m. at Pinchurst.

Ten teams are still in the running for the trophy, including defending spring tournament champion St. Stephen Catholic of Winter Springs and defending fall league champion Central Baptist of Sanford.

Because of rain late in the day last week one game was suspended and the other one postponed until the this Saturday, forcing a change in

Raines leads White Sox over Tribe

By CRUCE MELVIN AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND — Tim Raines never even considered stopping at first base when he lined a base hit to center in the top of the 10th inning.

"They were playing so deep, and the center fielder was playing me toward left field. I hit the ball on the right side of second base — hit it pretty good," Raines, from Sanford, said after his hustling double set up the winning run as the Chicago White Sox beat the Cleveland Indians 2-1 Thursday night.

Raines, who had four hits, went to third on a wild pitch and scored the game-winner on a suicide squeeze bunt by Robin Ventura. Ventura was well-rehearsed for the play — he had sacrificed Raines to second in the eighth inning and had squared to bunt once earlier in the game.

"It was just situations that called for it," Ventura said. "That's what a guy does when he's hitting second. I know I can bunt. I just saw the sign and tried to bunt it."

Raines, who got off to a horrible start this season, has been on fire lately. In his last 17 games, he is hitting .431 (28-for-65).

Doug Jones (1-5) took the loss in relief of Greg Swindell, who pitched nine strong innings but was again the victim of non-support. The Indians have scored two runs or less in seven of Swindell's 12 starts.

"He pitched another strong game," manager John McNamara said. "We had a couple of chances to get going in the first two innings. We didn't have many chances after that."

Melido Perez (2-4) got the win with three innings of scoreless relief, allowing two hits. Ex-Seminole Community College star Bobby Thigpen pitched the 10th for his 11th save.

Swindell gave up one run, nine hits and one intentional walk, lowering his ERA to 2.36. He has yielded just one earned run in his last 20 innings, and in his last nine starts, he has struck out 61 and walked four.

The White Sox ended Swindell's string of 13 scoreless innings in the sixth, reeling off four straight singles. Raines, who led off with a single, was caught stealing on a disputed call, but Chicago tied it 1-1 on consecutive singles by Ventura, Frank Thomas and Fisk.

Cleveland scored a run in the third when Felix Fermin hit an infield single, stole second, continued to third on Fisk's wild throw and scored on Alex Cole's single.

After the game, the Indians demoted controversial outfielder Albert Belle to the minors for failing to run out a double-play grounder in the eighth inning. Belle is still awaiting a hearing on his appeal of a seven-day suspension for hitting a heckling fan with a baseball May 11.

The incident with the fan was just one of many that contributed to his falling out of favor with the front office.

"Tonight was the most flagrant example of not running out a ground ball I've ever seen at the major-league level," McNamara said. "He not only embarrassed himself. He embarrassed the ballclub, everybody in the organization, by doing that. Plus, he has not been productive lately. If you're not productive, you better justify some way of staying in the lineup."

Despite the recent slump, Belle leads the Indians with nine homers and 27 RBIs.

The winners bracket game between Church of God of Prophecy and Markham Woods First Baptist was suspended after 3 1/2-innings of play with Prophecy leading 3-2. The game will be completed from the point of suspension starting at 8 a.m. at Pinehurst. The winners bracket game between Central Baptist and Sanford Grace Christian that was rained out last week will be played at 8:30 a.m. at Pinehurst. Because of the rain delay the losers bracket games at Lee P. Moore Park will start at 9 a.m. instead of 8 a.m. All games at Lee P. Moore will start one hour later than originally scheduled. The scheduling at Pinehurst is not as clear cut. The originally scheduled 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. games will start at 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. The game originally scheduled for 11 a.m. will now start at noon with the remainder of the schedule starting one hour later than originally scheduled. In addition to Central Baptist, Markham Woods First Baptist, Church of God of Prophecy and Grace Christian also in the winners bracket are Sanford First United Methodist and Sanford First Nazarene. First Methodist is the top seed in the tournament after winning the "A" Division of the regular season while Nazarene is the No. 2 seed after winning the "B" Division of the regular season. Also remaining in the tournament, each with one loss, are St. Stephen, Holy Cross Lutheran "A" Division team, Holy Cross "B" Division team and Sanford Church of God.

Use Reglan under M.D.'s supervision

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could you please explain the use of Reglan? My doctor prescribed this following a bad bout with an ulcerated esophagus.

$1.25 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91399, Cleveland, OH 44101-3399. Be sure to mention the title(s).

I also want to take this opportunity to thank you for the knowledge you supply the reading public. We often talk about, experience, or know someone with a particular problem and soon are able to read about the very situation in your column, which clears many misunderstandings, ideas or conceptions. Thank you.

DEAR READER: Thank YOU. Reglan (metoclopramide) is a drug used for the short-term treatment of gastroesophageal reflux, the backwash of irritating stomach acid into the sensitive esophagus, leading to heartburn. The medicine acts by increasing the speed with which gastric contents leave the stomach. It also stimulates the esophageal sphincter (ring of muscle) to contract, thereby preventing reflux. Treatment can be continued for up to 12 weeks, but the manufacturer advises against long-term therapy.

The major side effects of Reglan are depression, dystonic reactions (uncontrollable tremors) tardive dyskinesia (irreversible, involuntary movements), restlessness, drowsiness, fatigue, impotence, nausea, diarrhea and hypertension. Despite these and other serious side effects, most people tolerate the drug very well, providing it is administered under close medical supervision. Once your esophagus heals, you should be able to discontinue the medicine. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips On Medicines." In addition, because hiatal hernia commonly causes an ulcerated esophagus, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hiatal Hernia." Other readers who would like copies should send

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
The sixth Epsom Worldwide Pairs takes place today in thousands of bridge clubs all over the globe. The first time the event was held, every table started play at exactly the same time. This meant people in some countries were playing in the middle of the night. Now a more civilized approach has been adopted: clubs play whenever they like on June 7. In this hand from last year's event, South upgraded his hand slightly by opening two clubs rather than two no-trump. North drove to a slam. Declarer started with 11 tricks. He won the diamond lead in hand, led the club queen to dummy's king and called for a low heart, winning with the king when East played the 10. That was still only 11 tricks, but the diamond ace dropped East's queen, setting up dummy's jack as the contract-fulfilling trick. However, in a tournament every trick is important. Declarer proceeded to run his club winners. That left dummy with two spades, queen doubleton in hearts and the diamond jack. East held four spades and the heart ace. South retained four spades and a heart. What could East discard on dummy's diamond jack? If he discarded the heart ace, dummy's queen would be established. But when he released a spade, declarer's four spades were all winners. East had been squeezed in the majors and was left to regret not having taken the heart ace at trick three. Who was the declarer? Wan Li, the chairman of the National Congress of the People's Republic of China. Wan Li and his partner, Rong Ledl, finished second in the world.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 8, 1991
Two hopes and expectations you've yet to fulfill could be realized in the year ahead. However, it will take continued determination to bring them into being.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to do things today with friends whose company you truly appreciate, but if shopping is one of the selected activities, don't overwork your credit cards. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Reconcile yourself to the fact that you may have to spend money in order to make money today. If you prime the pump properly, profits are possible.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is both an interesting and promising day for you, where good guys aren't likely to finish last. Treat others as you would like them to treat you and expect happy results.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your greatest benefits today are likely to come from participating in something that was originated by another. You may not share equally, but you'll do OK.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Focus your efforts today on promoting the programs and issues closest to your heart. You could be remarkably effective at converting others to your way of thinking.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're innately industrious today, therefore this can be a productive day for you. After you've mastered all your assignments, do something fun and active.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be too fearful about accepting a small flier today. You are presently in a cycle where you may do better than usual in endeavors that have elements of chance.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Timing is of enormous importance today, especially in your commercial and/or financial affairs. Don't do things prematurely; wait until you feel comfortable about your moves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have the capability to communicate well today, both orally and on paper. Additionally, you may hear from somebody you've been thinking a lot about lately.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You can earn yourself an "A" in accomplishments today, especially in financial areas. Focus your talents on matters that can be meaningful to your pocketbook.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to touch the one you love with tender words or deeds today. It will give the recipient a rosy glow that will last long after you've forgotten what you've said.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll function more effectively earlier in the day - if you can do what needs to be done free from outside interference. Toward evening, however, the "social you" will emerge.

Optimists honor Lake Mary cop

By HERMAN SCHROEDER
Special to the Herald

LAKE MARY — Optimist Club of Lake Mary recently honored a city police officer for outstanding service to the community. Officer of the Year is Virgil Picklesimer, a four year veteran of the force.

Charlotte Kieger, president of Optimist Club of Lake Mary made the announcement and presented Picklesimer with a commemorative plaque as Police Chief Charles Lauderdale observed.

During his tenure, Picklesimer has made over 300 arrests for driving under the influence of alcohol (D.U.I.). Fifty-three of those arrests were made in 1990.

Picklesimer has also arrested five alleged burglars, two of whom were caught at construction sites in the city. He has investigated many traffic accidents and helped locate three runaway teens. He also assists many drivers in distress.

Picklesimer told Optimist Club members he could smell a D.U.I. a block away.

Victim's silence means rapist goes unpunished

DEAR ABBY: I worked in a large office building. Each day my husband would drop me off in the morning and pick me up after work.

One day I took my break a little later than usual and went to the restroom down the hall from the office where I worked.

As I entered the restroom, I was grabbed from behind by a man who told me if I screamed or struggled, he would strangle me. Right there in the restroom that man raped me! I didn't know who he was because he wore a ski mask. After he finished, he said if I told anyone, he would hurt my 2-year-old son. Abby, he even told me the cross streets where my son was in day care!

I was so frightened, I told no one, not even my husband. For six weeks I found excuses not to go to work. When I finally told my husband, who had known something was wrong but had no idea what it was, he was so angry, he kicked a two foot hole in our wall!

Since then, I have made a police report, but because so much time has gone by — and all the evidence has been destroyed — there is little hope of catching him.

I have contacted the Rape Crisis Center, moved my son to another day-care center and have filed for workman's compensation. I am also seeing a psychologist to help me deal with the mixed-up emotions I am feeling.

I want to tell other women that if something like this ever happens to them, to report it immediately! Hiding it was the worst mistake I could have ever made. Now they may never catch the creep who did this to me.

SCARED AND STUPID

DEAR SCARED: Thanks for giving me this opportunity to tell my readers that all rapes should be reported immediately. (For the record: A person is raped when another person forces her (or him) to have sex against that person's will.)

Many victims of rape fail to report the crime because they are ashamed or embarrassed. That's a big mistake. The rapist is then free to rape another victim.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very successful businessman. He is also a habitual liar. When we are out socially, and especially on vacations, he tells such outrageous lies that I am embarrassed. He has tripped himself up many times, and vows he will never lie again — but he continues to do so.

It's bad enough that he lies to others, but he also lies to me — usually about insignificant things. I can't understand him. We've been married nearly 25 years, and his lying has become such an issue between us that I nearly left him twice! I love him, but I don't like him because he lies so much. Perhaps if I knew why it is so hard for him to tell the truth, I could cope better. Please help me.

A LIAR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Chronic liars are insecure people who feel the need to appear better or more important than they are. Some merely exaggerate; others fabricate or "embroider" a story to make it more entertaining. Perhaps if your husband felt more comfortable just being himself, he would stick closer to the truth.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 9945, Los Angeles, Calif. 90009. All correspondence is confidential.)

Volunteer Center reopens in Sanford

The Volunteer Center of Central Florida reopened its Seminole County branch office on June 3. Anyone interested in volunteering is encouraged to call 321-5739 to learn of the hundreds of ways they can help their community.

Since 1969, the Volunteer Center has referred citizens to volunteer positions at nonprofit agencies and community projects serving the tri-county area. Last year, more than 10,000 Central Floridians used this service to find volunteer jobs.

Sanford office hours are slated for 10 a.m. — 2 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays. The office, located at 100 Weldon Boulevard on the campus of Seminole Community College, closed in January when the former coordinator left to pursue other interests.

Volunteer Michele Cannon is the center's new coordinator. Helping her are friends and fellow volunteers: Eleanor Hart, Jo Finley, and Barbara Jozwiak. The group met a few years ago through Seminole Spokes.

Spokes brings together new people in the community and helps them to feel at home. Cannon is especially excited about volunteering in the Sanford office, because volunteerism is also a wonderful way to introduce yourself to a new community and meet others who are working to make life richer for all of our citizens.

Rhythms...

Back and forth... the relaxing rhythm of the rocking chair... entrancing, tranquilizing... like the rhythms of nature; the ebb and flow of the tides... day after day... year after year... century after century; sunrise... sunset; the beating of a heart; our breathing out and our breathing in... as dependable and effortless as the dance of the seasons... one following the other; all choreographed by God, our Source.

We need of war and crime, yet nothing is, or has ever been as certain or as powerful as the influence of God as He moves in our midst, as we see Him all around us and feel Him each moment in the rhythmic consistency of our lives. "In Him we live and move and have our being." (Acts 17:28)

In Lowell's "The Changing," a tiny violet speaks:

"For the whole year long I see
All the wonders of faithful nature
Swept washed and dew drip earthward.
Rain fall, sun rise and set,
Earth whirls, and all but to prosper
A poor little violet."

Experience the ineffable love of God as you worship Him each Sabbath. God cares for the violet. He will care for you.

IN BRIEF

Mt. Sinai sets Bible school

SANFORD — Mt. Sinai M.E. Church, 1843 Jerry Ave., invites the public to its Vacation Bible School June 10-15, 9:30-7:30 p.m. nightly. The Rev. Leo Meyer, pastor.

Hutchins to speak at Wesleyan Church

PALMA — Faith Mission President Don Hutchins will minister at the Wesleyan Church of Palma on Sunday at 11 a.m. Don Hutchins has ministered previously in the Sanford area with the Swordsmen Trio.

Hutchins will be bringing an update on the Faith Mission work in the United States and foreign countries while presenting a challenging message to faith in Christ.

St. Matthew's announces VBS

SANFORD — Vacation Bible School will be held June 17-21 from 9-4:30 p.m. at St. Matthew Missionary Baptist Church, East Main St. There will be classes for all ages including adults. The Rev. Arthur Graham Jr. is pastor.

Baptist church presents Orr in concert

SANFORD — Central Baptist Church, 3101 W. First St., will host Sherry Orr in concert Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sherry was her beautiful voice to minister to thousands throughout the nation and the world, according to Jack M. Thomas, minister of music.

There are many who call themselves singers of the Gospel, but there are few who step outside of themselves allowing the Gospel to be expressed through their voices, he said. Sherry Orr is one of these few.

The public is cordially invited to this special service. A love offering will be taken.

Promise to present 'Light Your World'

SANFORD — Promise, the youth choir of First Baptist Church will present the musical "Light Your World" on Sunday at 6:55 p.m.

Promise is under the direction of the Rev. Sidney Brock, minister of youth.

Everyone is invited to attend. First Baptist Church is located at 519 Park Ave. The Rev. Floyd Blake Jr. is pastor.

Baptists present scholarships

SANFORD — Graduate Recognition Day at First Baptist Church, 519 Park Ave., was held recently with eight $200 scholarships from the First Baptist Church Scholarship Fund being awarded.

Recipients were as follows: Ginger E. Albers, Andrew Blake, Meoldye A. Brorup, Derek V. Drake, Zachary A. Morgan, John L. Murray, Mark F. Murray and Kevin M. Rowland.

Join in on 'Sonward Ho!'

WINTER PARK — Calvary Assembly invites children to join SONWARD HO! Vacation Bible School, June 17-21, 9 a.m.-noon.

Children from two years old and up are invited to climb on board for a Pioneer Adventure! The study will be based on the Book of Acts. Through games, crafts, songs and snacks, children will share the adventure of life with Jesus.

Calvary Assembly is located at I-4 between Par and Fairbanks Avenues, at 1199 Clay St. For more information, please call the church offices at 644-1199, Ext. 245.

Baptist church to hold registration party

OVIEDO — The First Baptist Church of Oviedo, 45 West Broadway, (corner of State Roads 434 and 426) invites all children, ages 4 years through 5th grade, to its Vacation Bible School.

Children can enjoy an exciting week of fun-filled activities, crafts, and Bible stories, June 24-28. Sessions are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-12 noon. The public is invited. There is no fee and membership in the church is not required.

There will be a registration party at the Church on June 15 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Free hot dogs, popcorn and cold drinks will be provided. "Peaches" the clown will be there from 11:30-12:30 a.m. Firemen from Oviedo Fire Department will be there with fire truck, 1 p.m. (weather permitting).

Each class is limited in size so registration will be available on a first-come basis only during the registration party.

For more information, call the church office at 365-3484.

Father's Day Concert marked

ORLANDO — Unity Church of Christianity, 5162 Pope Road, will present a Father's Day Concert with Fred Bogert entitled "Dreamscape" on June 16 at 7 p.m. The public is invited; admission to the concert will be on a free will offering basis. For more information on this exciting concert call 295-9181.

Ties to God 'not good if detached'

By Rev. George B. Sprawy, Jr.

I held it in my hands some time ago. It was a piece of paper. I really do not remember what it was — perhaps a ticket or warranty or guarantee or something else. It makes little difference. But what I do remember about it would seem to make a difference. In any case, the words seem clear now. They were bold and plain. "Not Good If Detached."

Those words have run through my mind many times. They seem to say something to me about my life and the way it should be lived. They seem to call me back to a truth about human existence. They seem to declare that I am not good if detached.

Then I remember the times in my own experience when I was detached. The memories are hard. They recall a measure of human misery. Indeed, some of the hardest days of my life have been those days when I was detached — or, at least, felt detached.

There was the time as a young child lost in a department store, as a teenager in a new community, and a new school and other times, both of the past and of the present, when I have been lonely and those times I have felt and feel detached. You know the feelings, you could all probably add to such a list of experiences, times such as when a marriage

If you remain in close relationship with Jesus, you are likely to have high moral standards.

dissolves, a mate dies, the lost child leaves home — times when you knew both the agony and anguish of being detached. It is a lonely, desolate experience that underscores a truth about us. From the very beginning of our lives, we have the sense that we are not good if detached.

And that which is true about human relationships is also true about our relationship to God. In the saga of the Garden of Eden, man detached himself from God. The Biblical story contains the record of the loneliness, the agony, the anguish of mankind who lives apart from God. It is that God, who told us that we are not good if detached, who sent his Son to restore humanity to a loving relationship with Himself. It is that Son who said, "I am the vine; you are the branches — apart from me, you can do nothing at all."

"Abide in me," Jesus says. "That is a crucial word in his faith vocabulary: 'Abide in me and I will abide in you.' Its significance is to be seen in maintaining a close relationship with Jesus Christ for, just as branches receive their whole life from the vine, so the human family depends on him for their life's source."

If you remain in close relationship with Jesus, you are likely to have high moral standards. That is not to say that you will not be tempted with a variety of attractive possibilities but, if your relationship with him is close, you will find the strength to resist and you will find for yourself a higher standard of living.

And, if you are close to Jesus Christ, you can know joy, a joy that will aid in overcoming your loneliness, your unhappiness, your discouragement! It is he that speaks a special word to us that we are loved and cared for. And just as the ticket that is detached will allow you to go nowhere, so the life that is detached from Jesus Christ goes nowhere.

The next time you take a ticket to a concert or ballgame or airline flight into your hands, look at it very carefully and realize that you can't fly, you can't enter the stadium, you can't cross the threshold of the theater if the essential parts of that piece of paper are separated ... and that's equally true with life.

Rev. George B. Sprawy, Jr., is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford.

Health care considered at Christian Scientists meeting

"Humanity's quest for health" set a distinct tone for the 96th Annual Meeting of members of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, recently, according to Ralph E. Walters, assistant committee on publication with The Mother Church, Boston, and member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 975 Markham Woods Rd., Longwood. The local church is one of 2,800 branches of the Boston-based Mother Church with other branch churches located in 68 countries around the world.

Helping society find solutions to health care challenges including the well-being of children and families was a primary concern at the meeting. Because of deepening public discontent over health care and mandated medicine, it was felt answers can no longer be put off.

In a special statement, the Christian Science Board of Directors offered this reminder: "Christians of many denominations are actively involved in healing services and prayers for the sick." They pointed out that many people around the world have found Christian healing an effective remedy in modern-day society.

For three hundred years following the ministry of Christ Jesus, the practice of healing through prayer was a normal part of Christian life. With the discovery of Christian Science by Mary Baker Eddy a little over a hundred years ago, adherents claim, this basic element of Christianity was renewed.

Many of the activities of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, this past year were focused on the welfare of children and the restoration of strength to families.

Reports given at the annual meeting highlighted the importance of seeing Christian Science as not merely an alternative to conventional medical care but as a deeply Christian way of life that finds healing through commitment to Bible precepts and practical spirituality.

The half-day meeting was opened by Jurgen Kurt Stark of Boston, outgoing President of The Mother Church.

The incoming president is Jill Gooding of London, England.

Ed Zito, left, from Rep. Art Grimes office, presents a plaque of appreciation from the House of Representatives to Rev. Querry.

First United Methodist appreciated for 50 years of sponsorship

SANFORD — The First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., recently celebrated sponsorship of Troop 34 of Boy Scouts of America for 50 years. Very few troops ever achieve the accomplishment of being sponsored by the same organizations for that long a period. The invocation was given by Rev. Querry. John Ferguson welcomed everyone and introduced the guests.

The speaker for the event was Mayor Betty Smith.

Certificates were presented with several members of the 1941 troop in attendance.

IN BRIEF

Christianity needs Judaism to survive

NEW YORK — For Christianity to survive and thrive, Judaism must survive and thrive, says the Rev. Donald W. Shriver Jr., outgoing president of Union Theological Seminary.

Bible society passes halfway point

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The International Bible Society says it has passed the halfway point in its "Moscow Project" to deliver 4 million free New Testaments to the Soviet people in 1991.

Robert Horan, the society's vice president for development, said 2 million New Testaments have been delivered and are being distributed all across the Soviet Union by 14 Soviet, 3 European and 5 American organizations.

Bishops request attention to preaching

JACKSON, Miss. — United Methodist bishops have asked the denomination's seminaries to give special attention to training students in the arts of preaching.

While the sacraments and liturgical renewal are important, "effective preaching is central to the task of ministry and the work of the church," the bishops said at their semiannual meeting.

Baptists urge ban

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The head of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission has urged a House committee to maintain the ban on federally funded research on fetal tissue transplants from aborted babies.

The Rev. Richard D. Land said eliminating the ban would mean a "Brave New World" of fetal experimentation, increased "harvesting of fetal life" and would "lower the United States Congress to the level of Dr. Joseph Mengele and his experiments in Nazi death camps."

Leaders want strong relationships

NEW YORK — Both evangelical and Roman Catholic leaders want stronger relationships with the National Council of Churches, says the head of a committee exploring connections with those groups.

Bishop Herbert Chilstrom of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, in an interim report by the committee, said of recent meetings with evangelical and Roman Catholic leaders:

"Both encounters were themselves expressions of the longing and receptivity that exist with other communities to work toward stronger and fuller relationships."

He stressed that the committee's goal was not to get new members of the NCC, which already includes most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, but to enhance relationships with others.

He said the committee wants NCC officers to "express to our sisters and brothers in the Southern Baptist Convention our concern and a word of understanding ... at this difficult time."

That denomination, the largest Protestant body outside the NCC, has been embroiled in internal conflict.

The Rev. Joan B. Campbell, new NCC general secretary, said she was reinstating regular meetings with general secretaries of the U.S. Catholic Conference and the Synagogue Council of America.

Leaders speak out on report

By ANNEA WALLEN Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE — Presbyterian Church leaders spoke out Thursday against a report recommending the church accept presidential sex, homosexuality and bisexuality.

Representatives from 43 of the church's 171 districts in the United States voiced opposition to the recommendations. None spoke in favor.

The one-sided debate was held before a 67-member committee convened this week by the 303rd General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to offer a recommendation on the report that has deeply divided the church.

Individual Presbyterians were allowed to address the committee at a separation session and several said the church should be more tolerant of different sexual orientations.

The 200-page report, prepared by a task force of church leaders and theologians, has caused a furor within the church, selling more than 27,000 copies.

The report argues that premarital sex, homosexuality and bisexuality should be accepted by the church if genuinely consenting adults engage in them.

"We are not afraid of sexuality, but this study is not the platform from which to build," said Robert Smith of Miami. "People are feeling disenfranchised, cut off from their own church, which is abandoning the values they believe in."

Peter Burns of Spanish Port, Ala., agreed, saying: "Sexual union is a gift from God shared between one man and one woman in the fidelity of marriage."

Eighty-six church districts, or presbyteries, submitted their members' opinions of the report. Some districts opposed the recommendations on sexuality entirely, said Leslie Beiden, of Jacksonville, Ark., vice-moderator of the committee. None gave the recommendations unequivocal support, she said.

The report said: "The moral norm for Christians ought not be marriage, but rather justice-love," which it defines as "right-relatedness with self and others."

Is it vital whether Gospel is truth?

What if the Bible scholars are right and Jesus didn't say and do all the things he is reported in the Bible to have said and done? Where does that leave the church and those Christians whose religion is built on the Bible accounts of Jesus' life?

If Jesus never said he would return to earth for the Second Coming; if the Lord's Prayer was composed by some early Christians (incorporating some of Jesus' ideas with some of their own); if he never preached the Sermon on the Mount — what would this do to the faith of the believing Christian?

Such revelations would be "startling to most people and deeply offensive to many — and not just fundamentalists," says Robert Fortna of Vasar College.

Fortna is a member of the Jesus Seminar, a group of 200 Bible scholars and professors who have already dropped a bombshell in Christian circles with their declaration that 80 percent of the Bible sayings attributed to Jesus are not authentic.

Fortna recently dropped his own bombshell. "Most scholars, if they had worked through the sayings of Jesus as we have," he said, "would tend to agree that there is virtually nothing in the Gospel of John that goes back to Jesus."

Sayings such as "I am the good shepherd" ... "I am the light of the world" ... "I am the bread of life" are mostly the work of the author of John's Gospel, says Fortna. He bases this conclusion partly on the fact that Jesus rarely refers to himself in the other Gospels (Matthew, Mark and Luke) that are considered to have historical sources.

The Jesus Seminar is now preparing to cast its critical eye on the happenings in Jesus' life — such things as his miracles and his resurrection. This could produce another shocker.

How will Christians respond? The fundamentalists will dismiss the findings of the Jesus Seminar as "intellectualism" or even the work of the devil. They may also marshal their own corps of Bible scholars to refute the Jesus Seminar.

The mainline churches will travel another course, accepting for the most part the conclusions of the Jesus Seminar while at the same time reassuring their congregations that this does not subtract from the reliability of the Gospels.

The Los Angeles Times has published an interview with Robert Guelich, professor of New Testament at conservative Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif.

What the Gospels give us are not snapshots of Jesus but verbal portraits of him, said Guelich. The final criterion of a portrait is how reliably it represents the person. The details are important only as they serve the portrait.

We must think of the Gospel writers, said Guelich, as portrait painters, not photographers. "John 3:16 — 'God so loved the world ...' — may not be a direct quotation of Jesus," said the New Testament scholar, "but it can still accurately portray Jesus' ministry." If he didn't say those words, is it something he might have said in the circumstances and setting described? If it is not true in the literal sense, is it true to what we know of Jesus?

Reading the Gospels in this way, said Guelich, we find we can still trust them. The portrait they give us of Jesus captures the essence of who he was and is.

In the end, every Christian may have to decide for himself whether the Gospels are true, echoing what Coleridge said, "I know the Bible is true because it finds me."

The Gospels are true if they elicit a response in the heart of the believer.

Southern Baptists salute Bush

By DAVID BRIGGS Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — In the end, Southern Baptists had come to praise President Bush, not to bury him in disputes.

One day after they voted to criticize him for his handling of the National Endowment for the Arts controversy, Southern Baptists gave the president a rousing patriotic salute when he spoke Thursday at their annual convention.

Bush, an Episcopalian, was thanked for leading Operation Desert Storm and cheered for supporting a continued ban on federal funding of abortions and for proposing a constitutional amendment that would allow school prayer.

"The First Amendment was written to protect people against religious intrusion by the state, not to protect the state from voluntary religious activity by the people," Bush said.

He spoke on the last day of the three-day convention — the denomination's first since thousands of Southern Baptist moderates formed their own group, the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship.
