The city is in the process of expanding the museum on East First Street with a $150,000 grant from the Seminole County Tourist Development Fund, $25,000 from the Sanford Historical Society and a $100,000 city appropriation. #### Teacher arrested in turnpike shooting

MIAMI - A schooltcacher who allegedly shot a woman as he followed her car on the Florida Turnpike was jailed after a judge set his bond at $50,000.

Vernon A. Jackson, 61, a vocational teacher at Palmetto Middle School, was arrested Tuesday and charged with attempted second-degree murder, shooting into an occupied vehicle and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

The arrest came 12 days after Lourdes Lopez, 27, was shot in the back of her head as she rode north on the turnplke in southwest Dade County with her husband and 2-year-old daughter.

The .357-caliber bullet pierced the back seat, where her daughter sat, then shot through the front passenger seat, striking Mrs. Lopez. She was treated at AMI Kendall Regional Medical Center and was in good condition, Metro-Dade police spokesman Bill Kinnebrew said.

Dade Circuit Judge Murray Meyerson on Wednesday set Jackson's bond at $50,000 pending arraignment on April 2. and he was returned to jail until he could post bail, a spokeswoman for the Dade State Attorney's office said.

State drops charges against counselor

BARTOW - The state has dropped a spouse-abuse charge against a family counselor accused of breaking his wife's wrists during a fight last month.

The charge against Bill Stedlecki was dismissed Tuesday because Gina Siedlecki said the injuries were the result of an accident.

She said she tripped over a wrinkle in the carpet while the couple was arguing, said Assistant State Attorney Michael Cusick.

Siedlecki, who works for the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said he is glad the situation is resolved.

"I am happy and relieved that it is over, but I still feel that if I hadn't been an HRS worker, this would never have been in the paper," he said.

Siedlecki, 40, remains on administrative duty until HRS completes its investigation into his home situation and how it affects his ability to do his counseling job, said Sue Gray, a local HRS administrator.

Radar to be mounted outside patrol cars

BROOKSVILLE - The Hernando County Sheriff's Office has devised a way to install radar units outside patrol cars because of the concern over whether the units cause cancer.

Eight radar units are being mounted inside the light bars atop squad cars, said Sheriff Tom Mylander. The vehicles should be back on the road by the end of the week.

"We did what we needed to do for the safety of our deputies." he said.

The safety issue was raised by an Ohio State Highway Patrol Trooper who cited case histories of traffic officers who developed cancer in areas of the body exposed to radar.

In mid-January, the St. Petersburg Police Department banned the use of radar. Several other law enforcement departments in the area followed the lead, including the Hernando County Sheriff's Office.

Study: Foster children risk sexual abuse

Associated Press

TAMPA - Some 200 children in foster care assaulted other children during a 12-month period in Florida, according to a state study.

Lawmakers ordered the first such study after child advocates said sexual abuse is so common it is almost "part of the trip" through foster care.

Greg Coler, then secretary of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said he needed proof before he could address the problem.

I am sure there is truly more out there than what meets the eye.

So in November, HRS asked its foster care counselors how many of their children had sexually assaulted another, and how many exhibited "sexual behavior of concern."

"I am sure there is truly more out there than what meets the eye," said John Perry. who oversaw the study as the chief of child welfare for HRS.

HRS reported that 200 foster children had sexually assaulted at least one other child during the previous 12 months. Of the 11,572 foster children in care in November, 1,168 - or nearly one in 10 - exhibited some kind of inappropriate sexual behavior. Only one-third of the counsciors say offenders get mental health counseling as needed.

The study, obtained by The Tampa Tribune, was based on the recollections of 383 foster care counsciors.

EDITORIALS School reform

The idea of reforming the nation's schools by allowing parents to choose which ones their children will attend attracts more adherents with each passing year.

Seven states now have enacted choice programs and several city school districts have initiated pilot projects. The Indiana Legislature is mulling over a voucher plan sponsored by the state's 15 top business leaders.

This spring, the Delaware General Assembly will consider a proposal by former Gov. Pete du Pont to allow private institutions to compete with public schools for students who would be given vouchers to use at the schools of their choice.

Although the details vary from plan to plan. each has a common objective - upgrading education by fostering competiton. Until parents and students have the opportunity to favor good schools, poor ones will have no incentive to improve. And that opportunity hinges on several factors, beginning with finances.

The money problem is best addressed by providing parents with vouchers equal to the state's annual per-pupil expenditure. In California, for instance, the Smiths could apply $4,026 to the public or private school their child wishes to attend. The means of transportation would be resolved by parents and ind'vidual school districts.

To qualify for financial assistance, all schools should conform to state health and safety standards. They should provide a basic curriculum and require that their students read and write at or above grade level before being promoted. Private schools receiving public funds must not be allowed to discrimi-nate on the basis of race, ethnic origin, gender

CHUCK STONE

New vice president for Bush?

After the cuphoric victory in which we have all been wallowing. Americans are now shifting speculative concerns to more weighty gossip.

Will George Bush retain Dan Quayle as vice president? If not, whom he will anoint?

Right now, the odds overwhelmingly favor incumbent Denny Dimwit. Not because he is qualified, but because there is no compelling qualified, but because there is no compelling reason to dump the darling of the conservatives. After all, he can still count to 10, he has dutifully carried out his few assignments, and he has been unimpeachably loyal to his president. George Bush understands loyalty and appreci-ates it more. For eight years, he labored in Reagan's vineyards, supporting his president's Neanderthal conservatism even when he knew better. The Yale Phi Beta Kappa also stoically suffered the foolishness of his president, who is suffered the foolishness of his president, who is living proof that a college degree does not guarantee intelligence.

In the first two years of the Bush administra-tion. Quayle hasn't yet had the opportunity to compile a record of loyalty comparable to Bush's during his eight years with Reagan. But he's working on it.

Still, overriding all positive factors in Quayle's behalf is the "V" factor. The way things look right now. George Bush could pick Godzilla as a running mate and humiliate the Democrats in

That also means. course, that Bush can get away with reanointing Quayle. Still, gossip tan-talizes, even when it becomes reductio ad absurdum. Ameri-cans are having a field day, weighing the odds on potential Quayle replacements.

One reason for all the speculation may be the national. bipartisan negative perception of Quayle. Two days before the Persian Gulf War ended, a Washington Post poll found that 49 percent of those polled feit that Quayle was unqualified to be president. Granted, this does signify a small improvement: Two years ago, 52 percent said he was unqualified.

George Bush understands loyalty and appreciates it more.

Begin with a presidential recitation: George

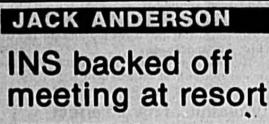

Washington, Andrew Jackson, Ulysses S. Grant, Zachary Taylor, Rutherford B. Hayes, Benjamin Harrison and Dwight D. Eisenhower, All of them

Harrison and Dwight D. Eisenhower. All of them were generals, none of them were previously vice presidents, but most of them were reasonably good presidents with legislative achievements. Following in their justrous footsteps are two of the more electrifying generals in American history — Colin L. Powell, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and H. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of Desert Storm.

Either one would be an unqualified improve-ment over Quayle. Both are military scholars, top-notch administrators and, best of all, very likable persons. I think, however, that Powell has a decided edge, and this is not just ethnic propinquity talking. He has a more politically adept style and exudes a high comfort level. As a black man, his vice presidency would help the Republicans make history - history from which the Democrats might never recover.

But even with patriotic fervor rushing over the country like flood waters and politicians of both parties gushing over Powell's military leadership, the majority of Americans are still not quite ready to accept a black vice president who would be in line to be the GOP presidential candidate in 1996.

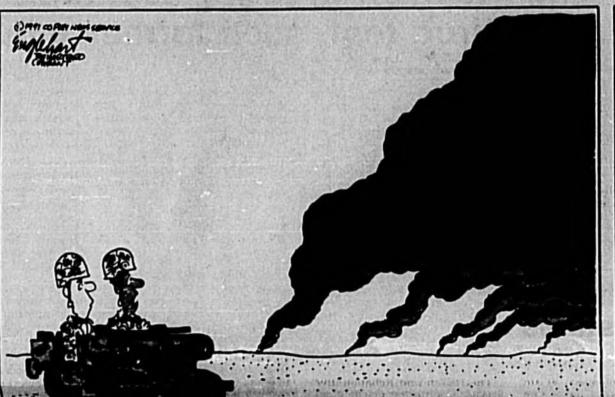

WASHINGTON - Sunny coastal Georgia was supposed to be the site of a conference last month for the federal government's top immigration officers. But the conference is now a casualty of the Persian Gulf War.

Officials at the Immigration and Naturaliza-tion Service canceled the get-together fearing it would look like they were "living it up" at the beach "while half a million U.S. serv-icemen are eating sand in the desert."

That wording comes from an internal INS memo dated Jan. 18, two days after the allies began bombing Baghdad. The memo was written to INS Commissioner Gene Nary Dy information office. It raised several questions about how the INS would look spending more than $100,000 on a conference at an island resort when it can't They feared it would look like even afford adequate detention facilities they were living for the illegal aliens it it up. rounds up. The memo also raised concerns about senior INS managers being away from their jobs during a national crisis, and said the INS couldn't take "any more 'hits' now" after a string of bad publicity. The conference, according to the INS, was "a readymade Jack Anderson column."

or disability.

The church-state issue could be defused by ensuring that state funds serve a secular purpose and neither advance nor inhibit religion. Nor should choice programs foster "excessive entanglement" between government and a particular religion.

These criteria, set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court, can be satisfied by letting parents and students decide where the money will be spent; avoiding any financial incentive to attend religious schools; and limiting government regulation to ensure that secular educational goals are accomplished.

These criteria, set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court, can be satisfied by letting parents and students decide where the money will be spent; avoiding any financial incentive to attend religious schools; and limiting government regulation to ensure that secular educational goals are accomplished.

By observing these procedural safeguards, choice plans should be able to clear all statutory and constitutional hurdles. Du Pont's choice proposal takes the added precaution of reducing the amount of vouchers for students who opt for parochial schools. This is aimed at preventing public money from financing the 10 percent of the curriculum that is devoted to religion.

Parental choice is increasingly viewed as the reform most likely to bring about better schools by breaking the public education monopoly. It's worth fighting for.

"MAYBE IT'LL ESCAPE THROUGH THE HOLE IN THE OZONE LAYER."

TOM TIEDE More U.S. rights for Guam

WASHINGTON - The island of Guam was liberated by the U.S. Marines in 1944, after being held under Japanese occupation during World War II, and Ben Blaz remembers it very well. He says the soldiers were "so big and friendly that all of us who were boys at the time wanted to grow up to be just like them."

And many of them did. The people of Guam have since joined the American military in large numbers and served with distinction. They suffered more casualties per capita than any other U.S. community during Korea and Vietnam: and more than 800 of them (from a total population of 128,000) were engaged in Operation Desert Storm.

Yet Blaz notes there is a sour side to the patriotism. He says that while the Pacific island's troops are equal with other Americans in war, they are not on the same level in peace. Guam is a U.S. territory, its residents are American nationals, but, as Blaz puts it, Guamanians in fact "live with the onus of partial citizenship."

Blaz is Guam's delegate to Congress. And his grievance regarding inferior territorial status is one of the island's perennial concerns. Blaz, for example, sits in the House of Representatives. and even votes on committees. But he points out that he is not allowed to vote on the floor of the House, or in presidential elections:

"I'm just a real small fish in a big pond. It's true for everybody on Guam, and it runs counter to the spirit of this country. One of the things I do as a delegate, occasionally, is to swear in new U.S. citizens. Every time I do. I know that they will have more rights than the people of Guam, who have been citizens all along.'

The people of Guam have been citizens for 40 years. And they like to claim they live "Where America's Day Begins." The "Where America's Day Begins." The 209-square-mile island, southernmost of the Marianas, is located just west of the Interna-tional Dateline. It was originally ceded to America by Spain in 1898, and it became a self-governing U.S. territory in 1950.

Guam is one of the nation's four principal insular possessions. The others are Puerto Rico (a commonwealth). American Samoa and the Virgin Islands. These territories operate much like states: the residents have citizenship standing. But they all grumble to differing degrees regarding the limitations on their rights.

Sometimes the grumbling works. Ben Blaz says the territories have won a few rounds over the years. The governor of Guam used to be appointed by the White House, for instance, but the islanders were granted the right to elect their own in 1970. They also squabbled until 1971 to be able to send a delegate to Washington.

Still, they are not satisfied. Blaz says Guamanians continue to be first-class patriots and second-class Americans. He says the islanders do not qualify for some public welfare benefits, they have inhibiting shipping laws, and Guam GIs serving in the States are separated from home by sky-high international telephone tolls.

Then there is the matter of passports. Blaz says Guamanians traveling to the mainland have to prove their citizenship. He says he is a former Marine Corps general, as well as a member of Congress, "and it doesn't matter who you are, it is where you are from. If you are from Guam. you must show your bloody passport." Finally: The Vote.

Blaz says the islanders want a full franchise, and the need is especially apparent in time of war. He explains that the soldiers now serving in the Persian Gulf could not vote for or against the president who sent them there, or for an unencumbered representative in the federal legislature:

When it comes down

Americans are

than others.

to it, some more equal

"I want to emphasize that soldiers from Guam are always proud to serve their country. And they are doing it again in the desert. despite the fact that they had no voice when Congress voted for the action. But right is right. This is simply not fair. When it comes down to it, some Americans are more equal than others.

Delegate Blaz has been arguing the inequities for three terms in the House. He calls it "chipping away." He says the obvious solution would be statehood, but it is likewise an obvious impossibility, owing to distance -Guam is nearly 4,000 miles west of Hawaii and population factors. Therefore, he has concentrated his efforts on a perennial commonwealth bill.

The commonwealth bill is HR-98. The number corresponds with the year the United States acquired the island. Blaz says the bill would not resolve the voting question, but it would at least bring Guarn up to the rank of Puerto Rico: "That would be a big help in reforming the relationship between the island and the 50 states."

Some apparently agreed, and shared the memo with us. So we asked the INS more about the conference that never was. INS spokesman Duke Austin told our associate Scott Sleek that the conference would have been held at the King of Prince Hotel on St. Simon's Island off the southern Georgia coast. Nearby Brunswick, Ga., is the home of a law enforcement training center for INS inspectors and other federal law enforcement officers. Austin said it didn't cost the INS anything to cancel the conference.

The decision to call off the meetings is a sign of the changing climate in Washington. Opulence in government isn't as stylish as it used to be during the Reagan years. Bureaucrats have long enjoyed traveling on the taxpayers' dime, but the war and its aftermath have put a damper on that. Half a million troops risked their lives to keep Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein from taking control of rich oil fields. Now, fresh from a war and still wrapped in a recession, the whole nation is in a mood to retrench, and government officials are feeling the pressure to do the same.

They remember the public tongue-lashing President Bush got last summer when he went boating off the coast of Maine after ordering troops to Saudi Arabia. Bush gamely tried to maintain the illusion that the war was not disrupting his life and shouldn't disrupt anyone else's life either, but it did.

The INS has more reason than most government agencies to worry about appearances. Investigative reports from the General Accounting Office have painted an unflattering picture of the way the INS is run.

The GAO found weak and inconsistent management at the INS. Personnel procedures were found to be so lax that many INS inspectors were said to be earning up to $20,000 a year in overtime. The financial operations were projected by the GAO to lose millions of dollars in revenues. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh was so upset about the findings that he appointed a special review committee to oversee a shakeup at the INS.

The INS wisely concluded that the GAO findings aren't the sort of thing that the top INS management should be discussing poolside at the taxpayers' expense.

Greenspan promises to end credit crunch

By MARTIN CRUTSHIER AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON - Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan promises to "break the back" of the credit crunch brought on by tight lending policies, widely considered a key cause of the recession.

But his critics remain unconvinced that the central bank is doing all it can to fight the downtum.

Greenspan said Wednesday he remained optimistic that the recession will be short and mild. He noted some recent, preliminary signals that the recession may be bottoming out.

The combination of lower tioned whether the Fed was interest rates, the reduction in oil prices and the resolution of the situation in the (Persian) Gulf continue, on balance, to suggest an upturn in real activity later this year." he told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Greenspan's assessment was echoed in a survey released Wednesday by the Fed's 12 regional banks that showed hints of improvement in such key areas as retail sales, home sales and manufacturing.

"Economic activity remained soft in much of the nation but there were some indications that , recession and an anemic, unthe decline may be slowing." the sustainable recovery." Fed said in its first survey completed since the end of the Gulf War.

And I have been as

Given the slightly more op-timistic tone of the Fed survey. known as the Beige Book, and Greenspan's comments, many economists said they were not looking for any additional credit casing by the Fed until at least

April. "I think Greenspan believes there will be a rebound in the economy on the heels of the ending of the Persian Gulf War." said David Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer. "He feels he has done enough easing for now."

But some economists quespremature in its assessment that the recession could be over soon. Richard Rahn, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said a chamber poll of more than 8,000 businesses painted a picture of an economy still declining with no end in sight.

"The economy is still in a recession with no preponderance of evidence to suggest that it has bottomed out and reversed course." Rahn said. "The Fed. must take immediate action to deal with the reasonable likelihood of a longer-than-average

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md.,

Committee, noted that the unemployment rate shot up to a four-year-high of 6.4 percent in February. He questioned whether the Fed should wait for another dose of bad news before easing credit further. "At a time when the risks are for a deeper and longer recession, it is incumbent on the Fed to take aggressive action before and not after bad news." Serbance said. Greenspan assured lawmakers that the Fed was monitoring economic developments closely and was prepared to do more if needed to combat the downturn. He specifically mentioned the slowdown in bank lending, which has led to complaints from businesses nationwide that they can no longer qualify for loans.

"We have instituted a number of measures to break the back of the credit crunch." Greenspan said. "We will continue to move forward with additional instruments if necessary." He confirmed that the central bank had lowered a key interest rate, the federal funds rate, last Friday following the weaker-than-expected February unemployment report. .

The Fed's credit-casing efforts have prompted many major banks to lower their benchmark prime lending rate, which is used to set a variety of consumer and business loans, to 9 percent. It was down from 10 percent at the end of last year.

The credit easing has helped to send mortgage rates lower as well. The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported Wednesday that the national average for adjustable rate mortgages dropped to 7.45 per-cent this week, the lowest level recorded since the agency began tracking ARMs in 1964.

Rates for fixed-rate mortgages which have been as low as 9.25 percent in recent weeks, edged up to 9.50 percent, still well below where they were a year ago.

The Bush administration is counting on lower rates to boost housing sales and other business and consumer activity in coming months and lift the country out of the recession.

The Fed survey found that real estate agents in some areas of the country were beginning to see increased sales, while home builders were expressing optimism that the lower mortgage rates would finally lift the housing industry out of the

Thousands were without electricity Wednesday and a state of emergency was declared in six Indiana countles after a storm that blew up blizzard conditions, freezing rain and dust storms across

In addition to those affected by the latest storm, occupants of some 11,000 homes were in their 10th day without heat or electricity in the wake of an ice storm that hit western and northern New York state. One elderly woman died of exposure after more than a week without heat in her spartment.

A strong low pressure system produced the stormy weather that swept from the western Plains through the Ohio Valley on Tuesday.

Snow and freezing rain battered Indiana and pulled down power lines, prompting officials to declare an emergency in six counties and one town

"We're telling everybody to stay home. Don't try to come into the area at least through tomorrow," Theobald said Wednesday.

Northern Indiana also got up to 10 inches of snow and state police said 2-foot drifts piled up on roads south of Fort Wayne.

Northcastern Illinois also got up to 10 inches of snow that fell in blizzard conditions with near zero visibility, and up to an inch of ice that collected on branches and power lines.

House authorizes another $30 billion to help S&Ls

By JIM LUTHER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - A compromise bill earmarking $30 billion more in taxpayer money for the bailout of savings and loan depositors is awaiting final negotiations after winning approval but little praise in the House.

"Passing this bill is hardly going to make you a hero in your district ... but you know it is the right thing to do," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., a member of the House Banking Committee.

"We have a leaky faucet on our hands which must be stopped from leaking," said Rep. Chaimers Wylie of Ohio, senior Republican on the panel.

The key vote in the House on Wednesday night was a 213-197 roll call accepting a compromise worked out by congressional leaders and Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady. The amended bill then was approved. 192-181.

On the key vote, 95 Democrats and 118 Republicans supported the compromise; 157 Democrats, 39 Republicans and the lone independent opposed it.

Giving up cigarettes means modest weight gain for habit kickers

By DANIEL Q. MANEY AP Science Writer

BOSTON - People reluctant to give up smoking for fear they will get fat can take comfort from a report today showing they will probably put on less than 10 extra pounds.

"From a health point of view, the weight gain is pretty moderate," said Dr. David F. Williamson, who directed the study. "Lots of people put that much on between Thanksgiving and New Year's."

Gaining weight is a well-known - and much dreaded - consequence of kicking the habit. Smokers typically weigh less than non-smokers. probably because nicotine makes their bodies burn calories faster.

The research, based on a nationwide survey, found that the average smoker who gives up cigarettes puts on an extra six to eight pounds over the next five years. About one in 10 gains 30 pounds or more.

But scientists emphasized that even this much weight gain is far healthier than continuing to smoke.

"The last thing we want is to have people conclude from this article that this is a reason to continue to smoke," commented Dr. Robert Klesges of Memphis State University, who has done research on smoking and weight gain. Synoking substantially increases the r operations unless more money is forthcoming quickly. The RTC has spent most of the $50 billion that Congress approved last year, and President Bush already has said another $50 billion will be needed for the 12 months that begin Oct. 1.

In addition, the RTC is borrowing on its own another $100 billion that it expects to repay after disposing of assets from failed S&Ls.

The House measure is quite similar to one passed by the Senate last week. Negotiators are expected to work out differences between the two versions next week and send the final bill to the president for his signature.

Even those members who spoke loudest for passage of the bill seemed unhappy with it.

"It is the easiest thing politically to say 'damn the S&L scandal," said Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee. "But we have no choice" but to pass the bill.

Some of the toughest speeches against the measure were made by freshmen members who were elected last November as the public debated the price tag for the ballout.

'I'm less than overwhelmed with the job the RTC is doing in my state." said Rep. James Bacchus, D-Fla. "I am unwilling to give them a blank check."

Exxon's $1 billion welcomed

By BRIAN S. AKRE Associated Press Writer

JUNEAU, Alaska - Some environmentalists and elected officials welcomed an agreement by Exxon Corp. to pay a record criminal fine and pump more money into cleaning up the nation's worst oil spil. Others said the $1 billion settlement NO. lets the company off easy.

Gov. Walter J. Hickel, who with U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh announced the deal it to the Legislature tonight. Lawmakers must ratify the pact. Exxon agreed to plead guilty to four misdemeanors and pay a $100 million fine. It would also pay an additional $900 million for cleaning Prince William Sound and the Gulf of Alaska.

The company already has spent $2.5 billion to mop up 11 million gallons of crude spilled by the Exxon Valdez in March 1989.

Exxon would pay the new cleanup money over 11 years:

Does this really make the oil industry sit back and say, 'Whoa, we're going to have to pay for the damage we cause?

-Riki Ott, environmentalist

also caps further damages at Wednesday, planned to explain $100 million. Alaska native villages and private groups still may pursue their own lawsuits.

"It's good to get this behind us." Hickel, a former U.S. Interior secretary, said at a news conference in Washington. The governor said the deal benefits the state and federal governments. Exxon and the environment.

Other officials were relieved that more cleanup money would start flowing soon - without long, expensive litigation.

"None of us want to be $135 million of it would cover involved in seven to 10 years past expenses. The settlement and still be waiting for a settlement." Kodlak Mayor Bob Brodle said. He said other affected towns and villages generally support the agreement but want to examine it more closely. But a spokeswoman for a coalition of Alaska fishing and environmental groups said the public "got sold short."

"Does this really make the oil industry sit back and say. 'Whoa, we're going to have to pay for the damage we cause?" No. In terms of real dollars this doesn't cost Exxon that much." said Riki Ott of the Oil Reform Alliance.

Among factors that would reduce the cost of the civil settlement: Exxon doesn't have to pay it all up front and can deduct it from its federal taxes. The fine isn't deductible.

Civil settlement money would go to a federal-state cleanup trust. Half the $100 million fine would go to the federal treasury. half to the state.

Ott said the criminal case should have gone to court. Exxon and its shipping subsidiary faced trial April 10.

Serbia reform wins exposure

By SLOBODAN LEKIC Associated Press Writer

BELGRADE. Yugoslavia -Serbla's newspapers and broadcast media, long rigidly controlled by the republic's hard-line leaders, have made a remarkably sudden about-face. under the pressure of this week's anti-Communist upsurge.

In a dramatic shift that chips away at support for Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, the media of Yugoslavia's largest republic are now doing the previously unthinkable: providing prominent coverage to the opposition.

"The television station and the Politika publishing conglomerate are two of the pillars of this regime - without them all of Serbla would see that the emperor has no clothes." said Vuk Draskovic, Serbla's main opposition leader.

Milosevic used the support he built up through media control to confront Yugoslavia's other five republics, some of which want a much looser federation. with his own vision of a socialist future tightly controlled from Helgrade.

The changes signalled at minimum a decision by Milosevic to cool the media's antagonistic tone, and at maximum a loss of control.

After police on Saturday used live bullets, armored cars and water cannon to break up a demonstration by 100,000 people protesting censorship, TV Belgrade had described the crowd as "hooligans" and "drugaddicts" in the pay of Western intelligence services.

But as Milosevic faced a round-the-clock student protest Tuesday, the Serbian government sacked television head Dusan Milevie.

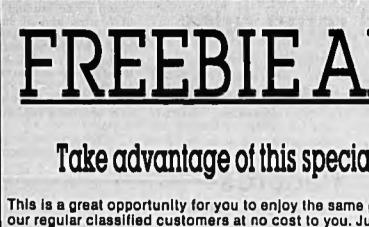

'Mitevic is the most hated man in Scrbia," said Draskovic, who has repeatedly called for Mitevic's resignation and for a non-partisan editorial policy. On Wednesday, just four days after the original protest, Belgrade TV carried an anti-Communist protest live and Politika gave it front-page cover-

Opposition parties and Western observers have said manipulation of the media was one of the tools Milosevic used to ensure a big victory in December for his Socialist Party, the renamed Communists, in Serbia's first free elections in 45 years.

Belgrade TV, which broadcasts on three channels to all parts of Serbia, routinely referred to the anti-Communist parties as "fascists" and "terrorists" allegedly bent on destroying Serbia.

During the electoral campaign the station gave each of the dozens of newly formed parties 90 minutes to present their platforms, while serving a steady diet of pro-Communist propaganda on all news and current events programs.

walking Rita Frison and Tiffaney Jones and committing four errors.

During the early going, Seminole (2-4) continued its recent improvement defense. Through the first four innings against Eustis, Seminole played nearperfect defense.

"We played great in the field," said Seminole Coach Greg Register, who may have found the steady outfield he's been searching for. "We've found three great outfielders in Latreace Turner, Nakia Riggins and Andrea Ruffin.

"Our infield played great. Argte Walker (Seminole's shortstop) played a real good game defensively.

But then Eustis mounted a comeback, scoring two runs in the fifth inning and five in the sixth while the old Seminole returned, committing nine errors over the final four innings.

"We used to fall behind early and play well late." said Register. "Now it's the opposite. We need to play seven full strong innings.

Lisa McConnell had an RBI single for Euslis as Seminole committed three errors in the two-run fifth inning. In the five-run sixth inning, Demetria Baggett, Mandy Biggano, Stephanie Boren, and Tonya Contris singled for Eustis as Seminole committed three errors.

But Seminole did not lose control and kept Eustis from tying the game. For this, Register credited his players' "greatattitudes."

The young Eustis Panthers came in tired and mentally drained.

"We played five games in fivedays and we only had eight days. of practice before we played the games." said Coach Ted Gottiried "We made too many mental errors, which turned into physical errors. Mentally, we were out of it until we started hitting the ball again." Leading the Seminole offense were Ruffin (triple, single, two runs), Kennon (triple, single, run). Waber (single, two runs). Walker (triple, run, RBI), Frison (run, RBI), Riggins (RBI) and Jones and Turner (one run scored each).

Seminole hosts Lake Howell Thursday at 4:15 p.m. at Fort Mellon Park.

When kidney stones form and are passed down the ureter (the tube leading from the kidney to the bladder), they cause irritation and inflammation, as well as excruciating pain. Although the effects of the stones ordinarily disappear once the acute affliction is over, scar tissue can sometimes appear in the ureter. This can lead to partial blockage, a swollen kidney and persisting discom-

In my opinion, you should be examined by a urologist who will likely perform either an IVP (a special kidney X-ray) or cystoscopy, a procedure during which the specialist uses an instrument to examine the lining of the bladder. At the same time, the urologist may perform a retrograde study, an examination of both ureters to check for obstruction. With this tech-nique, the specialist can determine whether there is persistent swelling, scar tissue and a blocked kidney, which would require additional treatment
